In the "Lohengrin" segment Mrs. Dobyns as Ortrud disclosed highly artistic qualities.—Maurice Rosenfeld, Chicago Examiner.

Mrs. Dobyns, as Ortrud, knew how to use her big range and powerful dramatic voice to the best advantage in the role.—Illinois Staats Zeitung.

Mrs. Dobyns sang the music of Ortrud with much authority.—Felix Borowski, Record-Herald.

Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns created a splendid impression in the role of Ortrud. Mrs. Dobyns has a mezzo-soprano voice of wide range and much power. She has studied the music of Ortrud conscientiously and sang it with sincerity and conviction. In the balcony scene she upheld all the difficulties of her score with much skill and in the "Defiance" rose to distinctly fine dramatic heights. The blend of voices was good and in the latter long scene especially there was a great display of dramatic power and musicianly skill.

Mrs. Dobyns presents a fine appearance on the stage and the audience at once accepted her as a favorite.—Music News.

The popular and successful opera evenings at Fullerton Hall brought forth the brilliant opera "Aida" with Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns as Amneris.

Mrs. Dobyns makes a most pleasing appearance and she knew her role exceedingly well. Her voice of the mezzo-soprano quality and of exceptional range. She took part in the scene with "Aida" and displayed a fine command over her rich full voice, and her dramatic interpretations of the text added greatly to the effect she created. She was likewise successful in her scene with Rhadames. (Advertisement).

###

Easterly—Miss Marie Easterly, pianist and accompanist at the Bertha Smart Iredale School of Music, was married on April 6 to Mr. Paul Fischel.

RADANOVITS STUDIO

A partial list of programs given and engagements of the artist pupils of Sandor S Radanovits, teacher of voice.

Hattie L. Mann, Baron Hirsch Society, March 10.

Laura Cohan, special service Memorial Church of Christ.

Isabel Richardson Artists' Association, Tuesday, April 20.

Artru Platz Artists' Association, April 20.

Augusta Meeker Recital, March 10, Messiah Church, Austin-Chicago, and March 26, musical program for the Woman's Club of Auburn Park. Princes Wa-Tah-Wa-So, April 14, recital, Central Music Hall, and April 17 at Rogers Park Woman's Club.

Warren Proctor, special soloist with Berwyn Choral Society, March 26, and March 30, recital in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Sunday, April 18, Margaret Lester, soprano; Augusta Meeker, contralto; Warren Proctor, tenor, and Cardon V. Burnham, baritone, sang the solo parts in the first public performance of William Lester's cantata, "The Triumph of the Greater Love," at St. James Church.

###

White-Freyn—Lillian White-Freyn, artist pupil and teacher in the Mrs. Charles L. Krum Studios in the Fine Arts Building, presented the following pupils in a very successful song recital: Sadie Saxe Berman, Mrs. Mader, Mrs. Heinrich Schuckert, Mrs. Kahn, Mrs. William A. Curtis, Mrs. H. Bergner, Miss G. Loitas and Miss Katharine Ruby.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE CONCERT ORGANIST COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR
We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS VOCAL DIRECTOR WESTERN CONSERVATORY Voice Teacher Coaching PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - - - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George Children's Harmony Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

(26th Year)
Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. - Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. - Flatiron Bldg.
New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. - Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

A MUCH-COMMENTED-UPON INTERVIEW WITH MADAME SCHNITZER

Mme. Germaine Schnitzer is a pianist who thinks far beyond the keyboard. (It was the late Marc Blumenberg who once told me that a too arduous devotion to the black and white keys made the mind narrow and arrested the mental processes.)

This summing up could never apply in the case of Mme. Schnitzer, whose outlook on life is of the sunniest, broadest and most comprehensive. Indeed, the study of human nature gives her intense delight, and she is far and away beyond the common or garden ("pasture," one might wish to whisper) variety of woman whose powers of ratiocination rarely include the process of putting two and two together.

Our little pianist also is the personification of frankness, and after she has solved her problem she does not fail to state her case—given time and opportunity—and the world is usually the wiser. Sometimes the little world of her friends and intimates; occasionally the big world that waits for revelations.

Sometime ago Mme. Schnitzer was interviewed by a representative of the New York Herald, and she made quite clear her conclusions regarding the status of the pianist as compared with that of the singer.

These emphatic conclusions of the positive little lady were copied into other papers of the United States, and commented upon, each after his kind, by the chosen scribe or journalistic commentator.

The Philadelphia Enquirer for one, devotes an entire page to the original statement; its attempted refutation, and much decorative illustration.

Boiled down Mme. Schnitzer's statement of the celebrated case—now celebrated with a vengeance—of pianist versus singer reads as follows:

"Pianists are much better than singers morally.

"Pianists are too independent to have backers and friends.

"Perhaps that is why they dress so atrociously. They haven't the money to dress well.

"It is a fact that women pianists scarcely ever try to look attractive as singers do.

"But at any rate, although they are rather scarce, feminine pianists are much nicer as a class than singers."

You will perceive, fair reader, that Mme. Schnitzer states her case distinctly and without ambiguity. She employs none of the circumlocution of the casuist. It is not necessary. Mme. Schnitzer employs the method of Socrates in her deductions. She eliminates the elements of doubt; and draws her conclusions from observation apparently; a truly Socratic method of induction. Of course the howling mob—no personality intended—of singers spurn and scorn the insinuation, especially the older ladies, and the married ones. It makes one think they have missed their vocation and should have trained for the ministry.

One of the ladies in rebuttal even goes so far as to say: "To be an operatic singer demands the cultivation of the strongest element of character." Maybe! Maybe! I may, in exceptional cases; but I am reminded of the experience—the recent experience of a young professional singer—a pupil of my own—who was informed, a short time after the beginning of her engagement that husbands calling at the stage door for young wives were not encouraged to continue the practice—that husbands must emphatically not be visible.

In the actual parlance of the theatrical person who delivered the advice: "Don't have your husband hanging round the stage door. Send him home and tell him to stay there."

Whatever else Mme. Schnitzer has done with her frank little conclusions artlessly communicated to an up-to-date New York reporter, she has set the ball rolling and the tongues wagging, and while silence may be golden and an excellent thing beside Castoria for children even of an old growth, our great little pianist has done slightly more than stir the surface of the waters. She has made part of the community—not excluding the feminine portion—sit up and think; not the worst thing that could happen.

For one thing I am specifically glad. These revelations of the opera singing

G
I
O
V
A
N
N
I

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

male contingent upon Mme. Schnitzer's frank declaration there were a few remarks offered by Georgette Leblanc—Mme. Mac-terlinck—which were too killingly funny. I wish I might waste space reproducing her words, but I dare not tempt the scissors of my editor.

Poor, dear little Schnitzer was obliged to disappoint the members of the Harlem Philharmonic Society, where she was to have played on April 13. She was ill with still another attack of the influenza, to which she seems to be especially susceptible in this detestable climate of ours.

After all we know now from the other sides of the question that the opera singer need not heed the advice of Hamlet: "Be you pure as snow, chaste as ice, you shall not escape calumny." She is so pure that calumny cannot touch her.

h h h

Robert Maitland in Concert in Brooklyn

Our young English baritone, Robert Maitland, is still the subject of flattering comment in Brooklyn, where he captured all hearts and set the feminine susceptibilities a-flutter by his very self, as well as his very singing.

His appearance in the Brooklyn Academy of Music was a signal for the gathering of the clans of concertgoers; their wives and daughters—especially the daughters. (And be it remarked that you shall know if a man is successful in his calling of musician by the daughters.)

It was in the Academy of Music of Brooklyn, and on the 12th of April that Mr. Maitland added new strings to his bow of successful appearances, and helped educate the Brooklynites in an appreciation among other selections of the songs of Hugo Wolf, of which he delivered three: "Wohl Denkt Ich Oft," "Alles Endet," "Fuehlt Meine Seele."

The singer vitalized his songs and translated them musically, and his audience showed its gratitude in prolonged and vehement applause.

His numbers in the second part of the program were:

Ye Twice Ten Hundred Deities (17th Century)..... Henry Purcell
Myself When Young (Persian Garden).....Liza Lehman
Thou Art Risen My Beloved.....Coleridge-Taylor
Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind (As You Like It)..... Sarjeant

Mr. Maitland's clear enunciation of the vernacular was delightfully crisp. It is something to be able to follow the singer without having recourse to the printed page, and Mr. Maitland enunciates. He also fills his renditions with the proper spirit native to the meaning and intention of poet and composer. In his delivery of his lines Mr. Maitland lends to his work his education and his culture as well as his temperamental outflow.

The Brooklyn Eagle had this to say of his singing: It mentions Mr. Maitland as having been the baritone who sang so successfully in Brooklyn with the Oratorio Society in "The Messiah" last December and then goes on to say: "He has a baritone voice that is rarely sweet in quality, and he uses it with consummate art."

The audience present packed the house. Mr. Herbert Fryer was the pianist

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich
Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON
437 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York.

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABEL

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CONTRALTO

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Gorton Scho
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO

67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR

ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3633 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aetlian Hall, New York

Music in America

WOODSTOCK, ILL.

Dear Music News: Will you graciously give little Woodstock today a wee corner of that smile of yours, "the smile which never comes off?" Hundreds of music sharps about this small but famous type-writer town are far richer in experience, although poorer (75 cents worth) in pocket than they were yesterday, for they have heard and seen Wilhelm Middelschulte, that wonder-working exponent of the organ, and at this moment are going about dazzled and mystified with the new light which he can radiate from head, heart, hands and feet. He came to the little organ of the Presbyterian Church last night in response to the request of its choir leader, and played a program which the large and attentive audience certainly had reason to consider a tribute to its discriminating taste in the varied literature of the world of music.

I am sending this program, hoping to see it reappear for the approval of all your readers, whose music gospel remains steadfast and orthodox to the just standards of which this truly great artist is indeed a ministering spirit, a missionary, a sower of good seed.

That he is a wizard at the keys and performs astonishing gymnastics with his feet goes without saying. There are scores of organists who are all that, but this man has that reverence for his high ministry that he brings Bach and Handel up from their contrapuntal deeps and makes the laic mind discern their monumental greatness.

Fancy an average well-dressed audience vociferously applauding Handel's "Concerto No. 1" or the Bach "Pastorale," and the happy response of the German in the fascinating "Allegretto" of Mendelssohn's "Fourth Sonata." Who shall declare that we are not growing wiser in our generation, if only through the team work that our ears can do?

The principal and decidedly acceptable assisting artist was Letitia Gallaher of Chicago, she who was the prima soprano in the world's pageant of Light and Darkness at the Auditorium a year ago. The attractive personality of this young lady captured the audience at once, and this notwithstanding that her opening number (perhaps in deference to the church deacons) was that fierce indictment of the Israelites, "Jerusalem, Thou that Stonest the Prophets."

She gave out this great number from "St. Paul" with dramatic severity wisely tempered with the inevitable pathos of its class. Mr. Middelschulte accompanied at the organ, and the audience broke all the rules laid down in the footnotes of the program by their applause.

In her delightful secular numbers she was accompanied by Mr. Dwight Hay (only partly of Chicago), and the twain wrought out the really splendid song joys for which we were all looking. She, like the chief of the evening, was gracious to the limit with encores, and gave abundant honors to her able master, Torrens, the man who scouts hot air in vocal tactics.

Finally the choir of the church gave an interesting short anthem, varied with telling solos and finishing with full participation by the entire audience, the organist, Mr. Middelschulte, singing withal the "Holy Lord God Almighty" with the worst of us.

This was accompanied by Mrs. Hamilton, who missed a few of her notes in the joyful excitement. In the vernacular of Emperor William III, "that was some chorus."

A good point and one well worth general adoption on such occasions was made by giving an intermission half way down the program, when the audience got up and chatted with their neighbors, while the church was thrown wide open for fresh air and a reinvigoration of lungs and ears. This by order of the master of ceremonies, the Rev. Mr. Beck, who also, in brief but felicitous words, presented to the audience the artists of this gala Easter organ concert.

Addios,

F. B. H.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

Recreation Center was the scene of a most novel and charming musical event, Tuesday evening, March 16. This was the appearance in English, Scottish and Irish folk songs of the Misses Dorothy, Rosalind and Cynthia Fuller of Sturminster Newton, Dorset, England, under the local management of Mrs. E. F. Herbert.

Much could be said of these three young ladies purely from the musical standpoint if there were not other elements entering into their work which call for especial attention because of their exceedingly novel and unusual characteristics.

The quaintness of manners as well as of dress grasps and holds their audiences because they are so rare in these modern days and because of their undisguised sincerity. Perhaps the most charming feature of the whole program was the artlessness and simplicity with which it was given. The program opened with a prologue and closed with an epilogue and contained such variety as the children's action songs, love songs, songs of fun and fancy, ballads, and songs of home and country.

A. B. BARNETT.

Bourbon—Under the direction of Professor F. W. Kraft, who has the Presbyterian choir in charge, the latter gave a delightful cantata last Sunday evening, showing the organization to be perfectly in harmony with the work of their leader. The soloists, Mrs. James Fribbley, Dr. Susie Bockoven, Messrs. Charles Elkins and Earl VanCuren, delighted their hearers. The chorus did splendid work, and the whole program was one of great pleasure. Mr. Kraft can well feel good over the result.—News Mirror, Bourbon, Ind.

Harris—Milon Harris announces a summer school of vocal music for June and July. He will remove on May 1 from his old studio to 521 Kimball Hall where he should be addressed after that date.

TOLEDO, OHIO

March 26 was a significant date to nearly every music student in Toledo, especially to those in the piano departments. On that day Jan Siekiesz, the Dutch pianist, gave a 4 o'clock piano recital in the Valentine Theater, having been brought here by Bradford Mills of the Toledo Conservatory of Music. A systematic campaign was made, that reached every piano teacher in the city, special rates were given to students, and teachers were urged to take their entire class, with the result that the first floor of the largest theater of the city was entirely filled with an enthusiastic audience that spurred Mr. Siekiesz to his best efforts and made his recital one to be remembered. It was his second recital here this year, having been brought first by the Eurydice Club, a month previous. His playing is decidedly virile, and he has technique sufficient to meet all demands.

It is hoped this recital is the first of a series of 4 o'clock musicales to be given later in the valentine, as the hour is ideal for all students, and their purpose being educational, all students should attend.

Since Mrs. Marrs Nearing presented the Hemicycle of the Art Museum with a new Steinway piano, that beautiful building has become the center of attraction for local recitals of all kinds. Many teachers are availing themselves of the little Grecian Theater for pupils' recitals, and the free Sunday afternoon concerts, given under the patronage of the directors of the Art Museum, have been so popular that the concert room cannot begin to take care of the crowds. All local musicians give freely of their talent for these educational concerts, and the results have been most gratifying. The Hemicycle has been most ideal also for the Eurydice Club's morning musicales, which are becoming noted for their high plane of excellence.

FORT SMITH, ARK.

In spite of the inclement weather, a large crowd attended the Methodist Church, Monday night, March 29, for the lecture-recital given by T. Carl Whitmer of Pittsburgh, Pa.

As the rain fell the enthusiasm of the audience rose with the development of a program, the arrangement of which was in itself a work of art. After a brief and comprehensive review of the story of music in the United States Mr. Whitmer played the slow movement from MacDowell's "Heroic Sonata," this being truly, as he said, characteristic of America's foremost and most beloved composer. Mr. Whitmer is a poet at the piano and his genius seems peculiarly fitted to interpret the beauties of MacDowell, "who knew himself to sing." Then came a group of what might be termed sketches "Music for Aesthetic Dances, written by the player," the program read. These short numbers revealed Mr. Whitmer in his creative mood. These called attention to features by which the growth of the art may be traced. Following the group of original sketches came excerpts from John Beach; from the talented pianist, Helen Hope Kirk; the writer and composer, Arthur Farwell, and a beautiful Nocturne by Henry Holden Huss, the last exquisitely played by Mr. Whitmer. In the absence of Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Sternberg appeared in two numbers by Cadman, one of America's representative song writers. In the closing number, "Symbolisms"—musical readings—words and music by Mr. Whitmer, were given by Mrs. Shipman with the author at the piano. In this there seemed to be a meeting of artists—Mrs. Shipman displaying in her reading an attainment of much distinction. This was, perhaps, from an artistic standpoint, the highwater mark of the program.—A. L. Kelton, Van Buren, Ark.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

The close of March and the advent of April were marked for us by the coming of Gatty Sellars, the English organist. Mr. Frank R. Hurlbutt, the genial organist of the Baptist Temple, is responsible for bringing him, and as it is some time now since we have had an organist of any mention visit Charleston, two fairly good-sized audiences turned out to greet him. The program of his first recital (March 31) was a good one.

The popular numbers were perhaps "Melodie du Soir," by Silesn; "The Song of Songs," by Moya, and Rubinstein's "The Russian Patrol."

At his second recital, the following evening, he announced his selections number by number as he played, waxing humorous between whiles; and having an attractive personality carried his hearers through a varied program which might with another player have been thought a trifle long.

On Monday evening, March 5, the Mason Quartet, assisted by Mrs. Mathilda Reddington Mason, soprano, and Miss Hilda

Froelich, pianist, gave a concert at the Burlew Opera House under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias, but to a very meager gathering, scarcely deserving the title of audience except for the fact that they lacked not in appreciative demonstrations.

The program was arranged for the general public; at the same time the musician was evidently considered for himself alone, in one number, the 'cello solo, "Andante," by Mann, played by Mr. Schultze. Mrs. Mason was the favorite soloist. She has a charming presence, a good voice and a knowledge of its best use, and her selection of songs was most happy for such an occasion.

We have been fortunate, too, in having a young Boston tenor, Mr. J. C. Richardson, with us the past two weeks, at the Kanawha Presbyterian Church. This young man gives fine promise and we hope to hear from him.

J. HENRY FRANCIS.

Vilim—The Vilim American Violin School will give its commencement concert at Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening, May 4.

SPECIAL OFFER

HUGO KAUN

Melodious Etudes, Op. 23

Highly endorsed by leading teachers in Europe and America

Price $1.00, Special Offer 45c

Postpaid

Fillmore's Modern Graded Course

For the Pianoforte in Eight Grades

Embodies every feature in line with MODERN PEDAGOGY

Price Each Grade . $1.00

Special Offer . 30c

Postpaid

ELEANOR EVERETT FREER

Lyric Studies, Op. 3

These Studies of unusual value for Teaching or Concert work

Price $1.25, Special Offer 75c

Postpaid

Bernhard Ziehn—Theoretical Works

Manual of Harmony, . . . Price $2.50

Five and Six Part Harmonies, " . . . 1.75

Canonical Studies, . . . " . . . 3.50

Postpaid

THEODORE THOMAS—"Ziehn is the greatest living Authority."

OTTO LESSMAN (Berlin, Germany)—"Ziehn's Manual of Harmony is the work of a genius."

HANS von BUELOW—"Ziehn is the greatest theorist of music in the world."

PROFESSOR RIEMANN—"I recommend these books of Ziehn for every teacher or pupil, every master or disciple of music."

Wm. A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

HERMAN

DEVRIES

MRS. HERMAN

Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

Residence 5433 Harper Av.

Associate Vocal Instructor

Tel. Midway 8963.

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSE

SOPRANO

609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE

FAULKNER

TENOR

Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and 4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

Mme. Cecile M. Behrens and Advanced Pupils in Recital

In her charming suite on the west side, Mme. Cecile M. Behrens entertained a host of friends and admirers on the afternoon of April 7.

The hostess received in a magnificent costume of white satin, palest saffron chiffon and gold lace.

Mme. Behrens herself constituted the truly delightful feature of the function by her admirably clear and forceful performance of Stephen Heller's "Fantasie" and the poetic delineation of Chopin's "Nocturne" and the same composer's "Grande Variations Op. 12." She was obliged to respond with two encores, one of which was the delightful "E Minor Waltz" of Chopin.

Mr. Arthur Mason, who has made such wonderful strides in his art since under the tutelage of Mme. Behrens, acquitted himself notably in a "Liebeswalzer" by Moszkowski and William Mason's "Monody."

Miss Estelle Clark, who is a credit to the excellent pedagogic methods of her teacher, was heard in "Crescendo," by Lassen; "Poem," by MacDowell, and Schumann's charming "Novellette." Other performers were Miss Naumann, who interpreted MacDowell's "Novellette" and pieces by Saar and Jadassohn, and Mrs. Beard Addis, who was down for Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso."

Pupils showing the excellent results of Mme. Behrens' instruction were Misses Elfrida Siegel and Marie Pfretzshiner and Mr. H. C. Maerlander and Thomas Haney.

A dance followed, after which supper was served.

Mme. Sundelius' Activities

Mme. Marie Sundelius has by no means finished her season. The attractive young soprano has still a long list of appearances ahead of her.

Apropos Mme. Sundelius will sing the "Joan of Arc" with the New York Oratorio Society next season. She is now on tour with the Minneapolis Orchestra.

Society of American Musicians—A series of chamber music concerts will be given under the auspices of the Society of American Musicians on Sunday afternoons at Fullerton Hall, beginning May 2 and extending over one month. The detailed programs will be printed in Music News next week.

American Conservatory—Pupils of Miss Louise Robyn, assisted by violin pupils of Mabel Woodworth and Mary Cox, will give a program on Saturday at Kimball Hall at 3:15.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

IDA GARDNER
CONTRALTO
Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

The Elderly Person

The series of symphony concerts prepared by the Chicago Orchestra is nearly over for this season. The Elderly Person is fond of saying, with earnestness and sincerity, that the Art Institute and the Orchestra are the two greatest things in Chicago, and he has been and is jealous for their continued supremacy. But just because he feels this way he can't forget that others may not fully agree with him. A good many people have not hesitated to give vent in print to their dissatisfaction during the winter at some of the conditions obtaining in Orchestra Hall, both on and off the stage. These published comments can be intensified manifold by conversation with the regular attendants who, in many cases are outspoken and in others reserved, but where, in each case, the feeling is much alike.

It is a big task to conduct an orchestra. It is just as big a task to prepare its programs. It is an enveloping process to sift the good from the bad and both from the indifferent. It is absolutely basic to have ideals and to be allowed to work towards them. It calls for almost Socratic wisdom to separate one's own prejudices from other people's prejudices. It needs finished perspicacity to detect the trend of public taste and the bearing of musical tendency. It needs fortitude to stand sponsor for what one regards as growth just as it needs patience to bear with those who see only the present and have no wish for wider vision. It is fretting to be looked to as a leader and yet be held in leash. It is hard to have a great machine and not feel tempted to use and control it according to one's own's inclination. All these and a hundred other problems and constituencies confront, surround and try to overwhelm a director of an orchestra. Small wonder then that there are not many men in the field or that they do not altogether succeed. There can be the competent players, eminent soloists, large audiences, excellent business management and yet not bring about the outcome most desired by any honest man at the head of any honest undertaking, namely, satisfaction to his patrons. Setting aside the invariable variety of conflicting opinions and criticisms, it has to be stated fairly and squarely that the programs offered this season have not met the situation, and Mr. Stock and the business management may feel like facing this condition, and asking themselves what caused it and then decide to correct or ignore it. The Elderly Person commends the subject to them. If the comments have been irritating for many reasons and so hardened the hearts of those involved, the old adage, so prevalent in all law offices, about the man who loses his temper and losing his case thereby, is commended also for reflection.

The Orchestra and Orchestra Hall are a Chicago institution, the latter being built just as truly by the many willing hands which contributed small sums as by the hands which wrote large checks. And the concerts are supported by the same people and they are the real owners and managers whether they be allowed voice or not. If this be not true then the solicitations for subscriptions towards a permanent establishment for the orchestra in its own home were not honestly set forth. It has to be said frankly, however, that since the opening of the building the management has indicated an indifference toward any but the well-to-do that is very much like the attitude the late Mr. Vanderbilt expressed when told that the public did not like his way of operating railroads. And as the management is of course subservient to the board of directors, the natural inference is that the policy is dictated from that source. But there is that self-respecting body which fills the balcony to be considered, because it practically furnishes the sinews of war, inasmuch as it is such a large body. These people, who can and do have what they think they need, do not emulate or envy those who sit in boxes, do not want to climb fifty-seven varieties of stairs to the gallery, and know that the music is nearly a flat failure from seats on the main floor. Society people sit in boxes or on the main floor because those are presumed to be the choice seats by reason of their being the highest priced. But they are not. Any music lover who has tested will say quickly that the orchestra sounds better in the gallery than anywhere else in the house. Among the main floor patrons are any number of honest music lovers, competent to give good judgment on all works presented. But the preponderating portion is there largely for social reasons, or for the prominence of the soloist appearing. This statement can be verified by observing the desolating vacancies when no soloist appears or when some notable social event is occurring elsewhere. On such occasions do the groups of uniformed nurses know the joy of "sitting in a box."

In the gallery are the students and the people who have to spend their money for amusement carefully. They have dizzy seats after the long climb, and if programs are short (as they so often are) these patrons feel the effect first. The air is bad, of course, but the patrons are for the most part young and buoyant. All things considered they have the best time, for if they do not care for the program they are not much out of pocket, and as every one up there expresses himself freely, and as if he carried the whole weight of all vital decisions in his hands (as is the way of students), he has the intense joy of delivering himself unstintedly if he does not get what he wants, and so forgets his disappointment in evacuating the steam within him.

Not so the great body between the extremes of gallery and main floor. And they are the ones who heretofore have said least and felt most. The Elderly Person speaks for himself as one of them, and thinks he voices a real fealty of the body toward Mr. Stock. His progress upward they have watched with keenest interest and rejoiced when the results seemed to reinforce the first overwhelming sentiment which placed him where Theodore Thomas once stood. And now that they say, more in regret than otherwise, that they are sure there is something wrong, either in themselves or in the music offered, they don't feel any sense of disloyalty. But somehow they don't feel at fault themselves, because in sifting their impressions down to a basis they are sure that they have heretofore found joy and gratification in the music and work of the orchestra. And, in passing, it may be noted that if any evidence of this lack of sympathy with present conditions was needed, it was afforded by the gaping waste spaces in the balcony on the occasion of the concert for the Pension Fund. There was a fringe in the front rows, and a sparse following in the rear. Elsewhere it was yawning vacuum. Society did its part notably, because the concert had patronesses of impregnable social importance, and those who hang about these fortresses thus received the cue to be present. There was a plentiful spending of money for the undesirable seats, some devotees loftily refusing "change" for large bills offered at the box office. And so the concert was financially successful without being popularly so. If the question be mooted as to why the balcony was vacant it cannot be answered definitely, but that part of the public possibly remembered the other time when it responded, and did not care to do so again, when the season had not been one to make a strong appeal to their sympathies and through that to their pocket-books. At any rate they were not there as they ought to have been, if they are the backbone of support, through attendance, which may be gauged through inspection any Saturday night. The balcony is always filled, the main floor seldom.

It is futile to get down to small details on such a large matter. Any dissection of individual complaint or praise about program or management could be argued pro and con without reaching any result except to convince each arguer that he alone was on the right side. But the one topic which may be considered as embodying the groundwork of dissatisfaction is found in the "novelties" considered necessary for the proper seasoning of a series of symphony concerts. To discuss their value, or to praise or blame Mr. Stock for the acceptability or dissatisfaction with each one, is worse than carping. But looking at conditions in a mild-eyed manner, and with the sedateness of years, the Elderly Person rather leans to the view that the bill of fare has had generous amounts of the novelty labor given it. Even at the risk of inciting the ire of fiery youths who believe that our friends Mozart and Schumann are out-classed and that Mendelssohn is not to be thought of, and the contempt of the woman who thinks the devotion to Beethoven cloying, and that the programs have had entirely too much of the over-lauded Wagner—even in the fact of these conflicting views he still insists that there is a happy medium where the newer men and methods can have ample recognition and yet not overlook the men and their measures who have proved their merits by their survival, and who stand comparison very well, even if they do not reach conclusions in the same way. We have truly progressed musically, it is more than confessed, but it is not yet time to relegate Beethoven, Brahms, Tchaikowsky, Dvorak and their kind to the popular concerts, and confine ourselves to the not always lucid lucubrations of the modernists who insist upon being extreme. Everything is not inspired because it is new in method, theme, expressions. It is just as valuable to sift things now as ever. The Scriabine was folly, the Schoenberg silly, but the Converse, for example, superb. In between these extremes were no end of things that came in at one ear and went out of the other just as countless "novelties" have done in other seasons. One could paraphrase Villon and say "Where are the novelties of yester-year?" Then, with an honest questioning, may not one ask that those things which we should hear to keep us well in touch with the advancing thought be carefully sifted before they are presented?

The Elderly Person is quite well aware that it is easy to plan other people's work and it is doubtless audacity to undertake to voice so evasive a thing as sentiment. But he is sure that the programs have not been satisfactory this season to a very large contributing element—and he wishes it were otherwise.

And somehow he has a sort of a vague feeling that Mr. Stock has discovered the fact and revealed his acceptance of the condition of affairs. Of course there is no way of knowing what plans were originally made for the three final concerts, but the Elderly Person can't figure out any better reason than this acceptance to explain the presence of the Borodin, Franck and Tchaikowsky "Pathetic" symphonies on those programs. These are all moderns, but not experiments, and they are grateful to all who love music and in the case of the "Pathetic" the word "popular" may even be fittingly applied.

SANDOR RADANOVITS
VOICE CULTURE
Room 404, 59 East Van Buren St., CHICAGO, ILL.

It isn't right to nag a man when you don't quite follow him in his views, but surely it is right to urge the director of a great orchestra to preserve catholicity of spirit, and, being first honest with himself, to deal even so with the men and women who wish to be his patrons.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

Layfield—On April 5, Mrs. Layfield, contralto, sang at the closing reception of the Nike Club, April 8 sang the title role in the second performance of Saint-Saens' latest opera, "De Janire"; April 10 and 13, appeared with the Chicago Artists' Quartet and on April 15 will sing at the Irving Park Country Club.

Amstutz—Mildred Bennett, pianist, pupil of Fanny Amstutz-Roberts, and Adeline L. Amstutz, soprano, gave an interesting program at the Victoria Hotel in Gary, Ind., on April 17.

Johnson—Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson sang at the benefit concert for the Old People's Home given at M. E. Church in Oak Park last Wednesday afternoon.

COLLINS J. BROCK ACCEPTS POSITION AT LAKESIDE, OHIO

Mr. Collins J. Brock, has accepted the position of director of choral music at Lakeside (Ohio) Chautauqua Assembly for the season of 1915 (July 11 to August 29).

Lakeside is on the shore of Lake Erie, not far from Sandusky and Toledo, Ohio, and is one of the oldest and best known assemblies in the central states.

Mr. Brock is basso and manager of the Chicago Lyric Quartet, which has been on the road three summers in Chautauqua work, and was being booked for this season by Chautauqua Managers' Association. The other members of the quartet are Margaret Smith Lester, soprano; Lucy J. Hartman, contralto, and Grant Kimbell, tenor. William Lester is the accompanist.

COLLINS J. BROCK

At the request of the quartet, the bureau is releasing it from this summer's contract, leaving Mr. Brock free to assume the Lakeside work, a position for which he is well fitted by years of experience as choral conductor, singer and teacher, both in Chicago and at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio.

"THE CREATION" AT THE NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

On April 25, 29 and 30, as may be noted by reference to advertisement elsewhere in this issue of Music News, "The Creation" will be sung under the direction of Mr. H. Augustine Smith at the New First Congregational Church with a notable array of soloists.

These include Marie Sidenius Zendt, Warren Proctor, Edward Walker, Gustaf Holmquist, William Carver Williams, Howard E. Preston, Alice R. Deal and H. Augustine Smith.

The performance is given three times in order to accommodate the immense crowds which invariably turn toward this church when the festival concerts are announced.

Bush Temple—A recital will be given at the Bush Temple this (Friday) evening by Robert Yale Smith, pianist, and Mme. Justine Wegener, soprano.

Ehrhardt—Mr. Edward Ehrhardt has just returned to Chicago after a short concert trip in Ohio where he played recitals at Findlay and Delaware.

Orchard—Walter Brauer, 'cellist, has returned to the city and resumed teaching at the Orchard School of Music.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

Thursday evening, March 25, marked the close of the Symphony season, afforded by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, in their series of eight evening concerts, under the St. Paul Institute auspices. Increased attendance has been noticeable at each concert and a larger series of concerts is being talked of for next season.

Perhaps the two programs given over to Tchaikowsky and Wagner, respectively, were the greatest favorites. At least, they were among the greatest treats of the season to many.

Mr. Oberhoffer and his men gave of their best in that masterpiece, the Brahms C Minor Symphony. This superb symphony, so characteristic of Beethoven in its intellectual content, was given an interpretation that was deeply impressive. Beethoven's Overture, "Leonore," Op. 72, No. 3, opened the program. George Klass, second concert master of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and formerly of the St. Paul organization, was soloist and was accorded an enthusiastic reception. His playing of the Beethoven Concerto for Violin in D Major was that of the finished artist and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

One of the largest audiences of the season greeted Florence Macbeth in her concert and operatic recital at the Auditorium. The singer so captivated her hearers with the charm of her singing that she was obliged to give several encores. She graciously responded and was laden with many floral tributes. The beautiful and rare quality of her voice throughout its compass, the perfect ease of her delivery and finished style of her singing were marvelous. The "Shadow Song," from "Dinorah," opened the recital. The "Bell Song," from "Lakme," exquisitely sung, with perfect intonation at all times, the "Caro Nome," from "Rigoletto," and the "Polonaise," from "Mignon," were the arias given. A group of German songs by Franz and Mendelssohn were lovely and sung with rare beauty of expression. Old French songs by Weckerlin and Dell'Acqua, were invested with much charm. Of the English songs, Henschel's "Spring Song" and Marion Bauer's "Star Trysts" created greatest enthusiasm. Carrie Zumbach Bliss proved a most artistic accompanist and delighted her audience with the finished style of her playing. The concert as a whole was a great artistic success and an occasion long to be remembered.

Emile Onet, a long-time resident of St. Paul, is organizing a Twin City Operatic Association, to be composed of local talent from the Twin Cities. Developing the taste for grand opera among the masses and making it possible to hear good music at a nominal price as in Europe, is the end toward which Mr. Onet is working and considers this project can be accomplished at this time. Mr. Onet numbers among his pupils Mildred Potter, Oscar Seagle and many others who have won distinction in the concert and opera field at home and abroad. He recently presented a group of his pupils in selections from "Il Trovatore" at one of the Schubert Club programs.

Joseph Sainton, late conductor of the Brighton (England) Municipal Symphony Orchestra, and musical director of the Savage, DeKoven and Aborn Opera Companies in this country, has located in St. Paul, and has been appointed to succeed W. W. Nelson as conductor of the municipal band at Lake Harriet, Minneapolis. Mr. Sainton is now engaged in organizing a chorus here, preparing to give opera in concert form and oratorio. A production of Gounod's opera, "Faust," assisted by soloists from New York and Chicago, is being planned for some time in May.

Clara Williams, the well known soprano of Minneapolis, and Georg Klass, violinist of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, with Franklyn Krieger, accompanist, and C. Morgan, pianist, assisting, gave a most enjoyable concert, under the auspices of the J. O. C. Club, at the First Methodist Church.

Edwin Arthur Kraft, municipal organist of Atlanta, Ga., and formerly organist and choir master of Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, O., gave an organ recital at the House of Hope Church, March 29, before a large audience.

At Eastertide, elaborate musical programs were given in many of the churches. At the House of Hope Presbyterian Church, the chorus-choir of seventy-eight voices, under the direction of Owen J. Bowman, sang two cantatas, "The Seven Last Words of Christ," by Dubois, and Sunday "Christ the Victor," by Dudley Buck. The soloists were the church choir, consisting of Mrs. Jessica De Wolf, soprano and director; Miss Adah Dahlgren, contralto; Mr. Benjamin F. Foster, tenor; Mr. Francis J. Rosenthal, bass, and Mrs. Harry W. Crandall, organist.

At the Church of St. John the Evangelist, the choir of sixty-five boys and men, under the direction of Mr. G. H. Fairclough, sang the cantata "Victory Divine," by J. Christopher Marks.

At Central Presbyterian Church, the choir, under B. W. Day, sang Bartlett's cantata, "From Death to Life," and at the First Methodist Church Alma Peterson sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," from "The Messiah." MYRTLE WEED.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The final meeting for the season of the McDowell Club consisted of a chamber music program. Mr. Hans Bruening and William Jaffe played Suite Op. 11 (Carl Goldmark) for violin and piano; Mr. Jaffe, "Kol Nidrei" (Bruch) for his violin solo, and Mr. Bruening played the Schubert-Liszt "Fantasie" with Miss Vera Pregel at the second piano. This was Mr. Bruening's only solo appearance in Milwaukee this season and the club was more than fortunate in being thus favored as he is a veteran artist of years' standing and still retains his leadership as a soloist in this city. Mr. Jaffe is also a routine artist and was heard to splendid advantage.

Mrs. Cora Lochner sang "Nachtgesang und Traumklänge" of Scheinflug, with cello obligato by Grace Hill. Genieve Mullen sang two Brahms songs with viola obligato by Henry Winsauer. Both ladies were in unusually good voice and completed one of the finest programs of the year.

The Milwaukee Musik Verein finished their wonderful series of concerts by presenting Verdi's "Requiem" with Chicago Orchestra accompanying. It was a unique event in that Director Zeitz first appearance with the club was in the same work just ten years ago. He was given a very beautiful floral recognition from his chorus in honor of the event. The chorus did fine work in every detail. Each score was perfectly read with good shading and contrasts. The soloists were Albert Lindquest, tenor; Lucile Stevenson, soprano; Charlotte Peege, alto; Burton Thateher, bass. It was a particularly well balanced quartet as to color and quality of tone and the many intricate concerted numbers were most accurately rendered. The most grateful parts are written for the soprano and alto and in the "Agnus Dei" blended as one voice. The singers, with the exception of Miss Peege, were professionals of recognized standing throughout the west and it was with quite universal pride that Milwaukee music lovers felt that Miss Peege, in her first oratorio engagement of importance, was wholly the equal of any of the distinguished members of the quartet.

Mr. Frank Olin Thompson will be heard in recital in Stephenson Hall, April 16. Mr. Thompson is assistant director of the Wisconsin Conservatory and has been a brilliant pianist for some years.

CINCINNATI

The Matinee Musical closed their season last year with the artists Katherine Goodson and Christine Miller. The program was a magnificent one and well worthy of the praises lavished upon it. Both artists merited great applause and Cincinnati will welcome their reappearance next season.

The Cincinnati Popular Concerts closed Sunday, April 4, after an unusually satisfactory winter. These concerts were held in Music Hall. The orchestra was always received with a crowded house. The soloists this season were not so successfully chosen as in previous years and we will hope that next season will offer up better material.

Miss Florence Hinkle gave a song recital at Ennery Hall, April 7. Her program was well chosen and comprised a group of old Italian songs, others by Brahms, Schumann and Schubert, with a group of modern French and one of modern English. Her voice was never heard to better advantage. Miss Lina Palmer was the accompanist, her work deserving special mention. I am sorry to have to say that the audience was very small.

The last Symphony concert was held as usual in Ennery Hall, April 9 and 10, Dr. Kinwald conducting. It was one of the most enjoyable concerts of the season. Marie Rappold of the Metropolitan was the assisting artist.

The class of Mr. John Hoffmann of the Conservatory of Music gave an interesting recital on April 8.

The First Presbyterian Church of Aurora, Ind., gave as its Easter music "Roboni," by Loveland, under the able leadership of Mr. Hoskins. The soloists were engaged in Cincinnati and were picked from the class of Mr. L. Drew Mosher. The choir did very efficient work and the soloists received great praise for their work.

Mr. Sidney C. Durst, Cincinnati's favorite organist, has been engaged for five organ recitals at the Panama Exposition. Mr. Durst leaves for San Francisco May 22.

Mr. Joseph O'Meara, reader, Miss Florence Tral and Alinda Voss Mosher have been engaged for a recital at Liberty, Ind. for April 15. L. D. M.

LOS ANGELES.

The Woman's Orchestra, in the second concert of series of five, gave a very interesting program. The day was too attractive outside to be shut up inside, hence a small audience. "Merry Wives of Windsor," overture as the opening number, followed by Handel's "Largo," in which Miss Bessie Fuhrer, concertmaster, gave a fine rendition of the inspiring melody with orchestra accompaniment. The piano solo numbers, Schubert's "Impromptu," A flat; Olson's "Butterfly," Leschetizky's "Arabesque," and Verdi-Liszt's "Paraphrase," from "Rigoletto," were most exquisitely rendered by our own Miss Lillian Amalu Smith, an artist of the first class. Her encore was equally charming, scintillating crystalline character of lightness and tremendous speed and valubility of tones.

Miss Mercedes Ciesielska gave, in costume, two songs each, in Japanese and Russian, with some freedom of dramatic expression and marked facial color. She is immensely effective in this class of folk songs, giving a native characterization.

Mrs. Henion Robinson most effectively supplied the piano accompaniments. A piccolo solo, "Silverbird," by Thiere, played by Minnie V. Percival, was an accomplishment on the most unmusical of all instruments. Strauss' "Southern Roses" and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" were well rendered by the orchestra, Mr. Henry Schoenefeld, director.

Mr. Charles A. Demorest, dedicated a new Estay organ, installed in the North Broadway Christian Church, on Easter Sunday afternoon. Mr. R. H. Crittenden's male chorus of sixteen voices assisting in several numbers. Mr. Dill, baritone, sang Bailey's "Alone With Thee." Mrs. H. W. McCann sang "O Divine Redeemer," Gounod. The organ program was a choice list for enjoyment and display of the organ, opening with Batiste's grand "Offertoire" and closing with the Handel chorus, "Hallelujah."

The Music Teachers' Association held a monthly meeting. Mr. Thomas Govan, baritone, sang a group of songs, "Israfil," by Oliver King, being particularly worthy. Mrs. Bevirt gave a lecture on piano teaching by the Dunning system. We were promised a practical illustration of its excellencies, with a class of pupils, but the pupils did not materialize, but explanation was given through the apparatus. From what was said of it, it appeals perhaps to children and interests an ever important factor in the unfolding of the child. The study of the child mind is as important as the subject taught.

Mr. Fred A. Herrman gave three organ numbers at the Trinity for the Children's Home Society benefit, with telling effect. "Poet and Peasant Overture" and Th. Dubois' "Invocation" and "Laus Deo." Robert M. Staples in violin solo, "Souvenir de Moscow, No. 6." Wieniawski, with Miss Hope at the piano, was effective and an encore was demanded. Miss Irene Wadey, a pupil of Ellen Beach Yaw, sang charmingly in Haydn's "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," "Cuckoo Song," by Abt, and "Spring Invitation," by Miss Yaw. The accompaniments were effectively played by Miss Lucy B. Seator of Chicago. The whistling of Miss Margaret McKee reached a high plane in puckered lip art, so bird-like and with pleasant quality. The chorus of forty ladies in whistling afforded much pleasure to all. They were under the direction of Miss Agnes Woodward. Mr. E. M. Bonnell in the humorous line and special instruments were unique and entertaining. Mr. G. Allen Hancock, on his historic 'cello, rendered Walther's "Prize Song" from "Meistersingers," with Mr. William Edson Strobbridge at the piano, in good style. The Orpheus Male Quartet sang Buck's "Annie Laurie," and were called back for an encore. Miss Eleanor Miller gave a humorous reading, Wood's "A Yale Yarn." Miss May MacDonald-Hope rendered Chopin's "Scherzo in F Sharp Minor" and Schubert's "Erlking," with excellent artistry. The L. A. Oratorio Society sang Faning's "Miller's Wooing," under Brueschwetler's conductorship.

Mr. Archibald Sessions closed his series of eight organ recitals this week, making the one hundred and fifteenth since he has been organist at Christ Church. Mr. Herr Reinhold Oeschler, tenor, sang two German songs and the "Chegelida Manina," from "La Boheme." Splendid appreciation has been given to Mr. Sessions in the interest given to organ music.

The Gamut Club, April 7, had one of the best treats in its existence, a month ago, someone said, a $3,000 program was given. This one surely in artists and rendition was well up to the $5,000 grade. Upon this occasion there were at least thirty guests and celebrities from Europe to Hawaii, and from Seattle to Mexico. Members from our city council showing their interest in this body of men who do things for art and music.

President F. W. Blanchard of the American Grand Opera Association, who heads the $10,000 opera prize, "Fairylend," by Horatio Parker, an enterprise now in rehearsal and stage preparation for the production in July, while the biennial session of the Federation of Woman's Clubs will be in session here. He gave an enthusiastic account of the undertaking, introducing Louis F. Gottschalk, the training master, and Mr. Alfred Hertz, the general director. Then Mr. Porter in a neat speech introduced the star, Miss Marcella Craft, who is to take the role "Rosamund" in the opera. She replied in a plain and most practical way, which touched the hearts of all present, for simplicity and real heart sentiment, also giving a brief account of her preparation and unfolding the hope she had within her to attain to a worthy place in the art world of song and opera. We had the pleasure of hearing two great operatic solos from Mrs. Constance Balfour, a soprano of fine voice, physique, and well trained, giving an encore in French. Mr. Walter P. Briggs of Seattle, a paper man, gave a good talk, praising the City of the Angels, in their aspirations, operatic and musical, and bespoke for the entire coast a real art and musical future. We heard some fine harp playing. Lucia Forest Eastman of New York City, who is on a concert tour to the coast. Mrs. Helen Louise Kimball, in readings captured all and encored in an Italian dialect "Giovanni, the Musical Man."

Mr. Cyril Dwight Edwards, baritone, with Mrs. Clinton J. Hinman at the piano, gave in good operatic style the "Prologue," from "Paliaccia," in English text, perfectly understandable. This he followed with "Bloodred Ring Around the Moon," by Malinson, in which his dramatic expression, voice, quality and facial expression reached full height of song and dramatic interpretation. Miss Margaret Butler Stephenson, in charming presence, with Miss Laura Gregg at the piano, gave "Waltz Song," from "Romeo and Juliet," responding with the "Little Gray Home in the West" as encore, playing her own accompaniment. She sang "Caro Nome," from "Rigoletto," to the great delight of all.

Miss Lee gave a glowing report of Miss Mary Antins' coming, who was belated for this receptive occasion. Last, but not the least interesting, was a group of French songs by Mlle. Augette Foret. She sang "Vous dansez, Marquise," by Lemaire, and "En Passant par la Lorraine," and "Petit Gregoire," French folk songs. Many other splendid talks and male choruses by the quartet of the Orpheus Club, and a song, "Mi California," by Carl Bronson, the poet musician of the club. S. W. MOUNTZ.
1651 Sixth avenue.

Cotsworth—Mr. Albert Cotsworth delivered his lecture on "Dickens" before the Church Club of Brainerd on Thursday night.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER

PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMAS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
IENNIE BOWMAR RICK

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET Soprano
WILLIAM Composer-Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8868

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

AGNES LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO
SONG RECITAL PUPILS
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wollsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN
Baritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

TENOR
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Whittman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW
PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

RECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3222

A CONCERT OF SERIOUS ASPECT

Prudence Neff, pianist, and Robert Dolejsi, violinist, gave a concert at Central Music Hall on Sunday which disclosed the fact that they are both very serious young artists as well as possessing also in each case ample technic and musicianship.

PRUDENCE NEFF

The program opened with the Cesar Franck Sonata in A Major, which is difficult, long and of very great breadth in its form and development. It was played splendidly.

ROBERT DOLEJSI

Likewise the great "Appassionata" Sonata (Beethoven) was given with sincerity and broad musical style by Miss Neff. This pianist has ample technic for all the items covered by such terms as facility, endurance, speed, brilliance and power, but she has much more than that.

Her development of finger, wrist and arm is of that transcendent quality which gives absolute control of tone and which enables its possessor to give real interpretative values to whatever she essays regardless of its abstruseness or its difficulty.

Her second number was a novelty, i. e., the Liszt-Busoni "Episode from Lenau's Faust," which, though it has an interesting "program," is yet very dull in its effect.

Miss Neff played it with great skill and made it at least pianistically strong and effective.

Miss Neff also played accompaniments for Mr. Dolejsi and proved herself a mistress of the difficult art.

Mr. Dolejsi gave for his principal number the D'Ambrosio "Concerto" in B Minor, a work of serious aspect and one too which exacts great musicianship in its successful interpreter.

Mr. Dolejsi met the test brilliantly and proved himself the possessor of a broad and rich tone as also much sincerity of interpretative thought, these assets carrying him through the difficult work with great success.

Later he presented an "Andante Sostenu" of Goldmark with much savvy and the "Holka Modrooka" of Cevcik with brilliancy. This bizarre work demands great facility in harmonics and in every technical trick of the violinist's gamut, all of which requirements were successfully met by the young violinist who was unanimously conceded to have made a most successful appearance.

WARREN PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

C. E. W.

PATTERSON PUPILS IN RECITAL

Miss Helen Newhall, contralto, assisted by Mr. Frank Millershen, pianist, gave a recital on April 15 in the Fine Arts Building. Miss Newhall displayed a voice at once rich and colorful, and Mr. Millershen acquitted himself with distinction at the piano. Both soloists are pupils of Grace Dickinson Patterson, who officiated as accompanist. The following program was given:

My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice (from Samson and Delilah)	 Saint-Saens
Sonata in A Flat, Op. 26	 Beethoven
Indian Songs—
Crow Maiden's Prayer	 Finden
Aooah-Lieurance
Temple Bells
Less than the Dust
Valtz, A Flat	 Chopin
Mazurka, A Minor	 Chopin
Morning	 Speaks
Nothin' but Love	 Bond
Minuet	 Paderewski
Tears and Smiles	 Prothero
To You	 Speaks
On the Road to Mandalay	 Speaks

SYMPHONY CONCERT

A program of such completeness and rounded out beauty that it leavened some of the leaner ones of the season was that offered last week. The supreme enjoyment came in the Franck "Symphony," and it won for Mr. Stock such applause as is not often offered to a conductor.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

ORA PADGET-LANGER IN RECITAL

Ora Padget-Langer, contralto, of Lyceum Arts Conservatory, sang the following program on Tuesday evening, April 20, 1915,

ORA PADGET-LANGER

in Thurber Hall, Fine Arts Building, with Mrs. Charles Orchard as accompanist:

Recitative—Armida, dis pietata colla forza d'a bisso
Aria—Lascia ch'io pianza (Rinaldo).....Handel
O'er the Fresh Green Fields.....Chaminade
Good Day, Susanne.....Delibes
Habanera (Carmen).....Bizet
Russian Folk Songs—
Der Kosack und das Madchen
Der Post Wagen
Vespergesang
Floods of Spring.....Rachmaninoff
Allerseelen.....Strauss
Madchenlied.....Brahms
Widmung.....Schumann
Sacrament.....MacDermid
Sing to Me, Sing.....Homer
To Night.....Salter
Spring's Singing.....MacFadyen

Mrs. Langer's voice is one of great richness and depth. Her enunciation and expression are admirable, and her manner is so confident and pleasing that one gets the impression as she sings that she is enjoying herself thoroughly.

The Handel recitative and aria, which opened the program, was delivered with tragic intensity.

The group by French composers came with sparkling vivacity. The quaint Russian folk songs were beautiful and appealing, "Vespergesang" even approaching the sublime.

The singer's presentation of "Floods of Spring" was brilliant indeed, bringing forward her vocal resources to fine advantage.

The German classics were beautifully interpreted, "Widmung" being especially enjoyable.

In the group by American composers, which closed the program, Mrs. Langer gave herself up to her task in such an irresistible manner that the audience demanded two encores before it would be satisfied. The program was pleasing from start to finish, and proved the singer to be one of Chicago's most gifted and versatile contraltos.

Mrs. Orchard at the piano, was, as usual, a strong factor in making the event a success.
C. J. B.

MISS RICHARDSON AND MR. PLATZ SING FOR THE ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION

The last concert of the season by the Chicago Artists' Association was a notably good one, a fine program of songs and duets being offered by Isabel Richardson, soprano, and Artur Platz, tenor, as also piano solos by Belle Tannenbaum, these latter not being heard by this writer.

Mr. Platz has a most ingratiating style and his voice is of beautiful quality.

The two singers were heard also in several duets, the most delightful being the "Volkslied" by Berger, which is truly a charming bit and was done with very exact musical values.

Mr. William Lester played beautiful accompaniments.
C. E. W.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Conservatory Ensemble, organized under the Messrs. Bernard Sturm and Julius Sturm, gave its first concert at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Tuesday evening, April 20. Associated with the Messrs. Sturm in this new organization are Edwin Ideler, Edwin Memel, Clare Yarwood, Peter Froehlich, Hubert Endres and Leonard Watson.

The Conservatory Ensemble gave the less-known compositions for strings, outside the realm of trio and quartet music, forms in which many of the masters have written some of their finest works, unfortunately seldom performed, owing to the difficulty attached to finding six or eight artists able to give the necessary time for adequate rendition of such works.

The Tuesday evening program consisted of the Brahms "Sextette in B Flat" and the Mendelssohn "Octet," both works of rare charm and beauty, written in the early periods of the respective composers' activities.

Mr. Edgar Stillman Kelley's "New England Symphony," which is occupying the interest of a wide circle since the announcement of its performance by the Symphony Orchestra at this week's pair of concerts, was analyzed by the distinguished composer in a lecture-recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Kelley was assisted in his piano illustrations by Mrs. Kelley. This genuinely American work, written by a descendent of the Mayflower Pilgrims and inspired by certain characteristic entries in the Mayflower log book, justly attracts Americans who are looking toward a national American art.

Oak Park—Stuart McCombs, boy soprano, will be soloist at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park next Sunday evening.

Davis—Ernest J. Davis will be the soloist at the West Side Sunday Night Club, singing "Arise, Shine" (MacDermid), Sunday evening, April 25.

Rankl—Mr. John Rankl, baritone, will sing in "The Rose Maiden" at Monticello, Ill., on Monday evening, April 26.

SUMMER SCHOOL Study the
Effa Ellis Perfield
Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

Miss Richardson has a superb vocal development and remarkable technical accuracy. She sings with very great ease and just as positive results.

Her temperament is remarkable and her taste in presenting songs is unfailingly good. The German classics and moderns find in her a most authentic interpreter and her rendition of English text songs is admirable to the last degree.

Speaks' "Elysium," Spross' "Will o' the Wisp," and Lester's "As a Perfume Doth Remain" were especially delightful and the Tuesday audience endorsed them unreservedly.

Mr. Platz also gave some classics and he again repeated the three Boyd songs which he has made so much a part of each of his recitals and which he sings inimitably.

With Miss Boyd at the piano, an ensemble has been established between the two artists that is remarkable and the fruits of which are pure delight.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANISTE
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

ERIE, PA.

The last concert of the 1914-15 series of the Erie Symphony Orchestra was given last Sunday afternoon in the Park Theater to a capacity audience. In the last two concerts the orchestra has made wonderful progress over previous appearances and there is no question now but that our orchestra will stand comparison with similar organizations of any of the smaller cities. The playing of the strings Sunday afternoon was a delight, the brasses and wood winds are greatly improved and in the matter of attacks and shading the orchestra is showing surprising results of Mr. Kohler's earnest coaching. The program included two Tschaiakowsky numbers, the "Andante" from the Fifth Symphony and the "L-812" Overture which were given with fine effect. Probably the most finished playing of the afternoon was heard in the "Sylvia" Ballet music of Delibes. In the "March and Processional of Bacchus" Mr. Kohler built up a climax that was positively thrilling and brought forth the most spontaneous applause of the afternoon. Mrs. Virginia Heinrichs-Carter, contralto, was the soloist and gave intelligent interpretations to the familiar "Don Carlos" aria and a group of songs which included the Schumann "Ich Grolle Nicht," in which she revealed her well grounded musicianship. Mrs. Carter's voice is especially pleasing in the upper register, a quality not usually noticeable in the contralto voice, and her charming stage presence adds materially to the enjoyment of her work. The orchestra will give an extra concert on Sunday afternoon, April 25, the program to be made up of "request" numbers.

While not coming under the head of musical news, the excellent work that is being done by the Majestic Theater Stock Company, which is just now completing its fifteenth week in Erie, is of such a high quality that it deserves mention as being an important part of the artistic development of this city. The class of plays presented and the careful manner of their presentation have been a source of delight to the theatergoers of Erie. While, almost without exception, the members of the company are unusually fine artists, especial mention should be made of William Courneen, the talented leading man. Mr. Courneen is scarcely more than a boy, but his work is of such a high character that it stands out pre-eminently as the finest work ever done by a stock actor in Erie. Combining a good stage presence with intelligent regard for the most subtle phase of every character he interprets, his sincere acting has received well-deserved commendation throughout the entire season of the stock company. He is a young man whose career should bear watching.

Miss Gertrude Delano presented her most advanced piano pupil, Miss Edith Seib, in a recital given in the First Unitarian Church last week. The program contained works by Beethoven, MacDowell, Rheinold and Mendelssohn, and the young lady was warmly received by a large audience of friends. Mr. Bruce Morrison, tenor, and Miss Marion Bryce, soprano, assisted Miss Seib, and the work of both of these young singers was very enjoyable. Miss Delano should feel proud of the accomplishment of her young pupil.

A. D. H., JR.

OMAHA

Mme. Gadski will appear at the Fontenelle Hotel, April 6, in the beautifully appointed ball room, and Omaha musicians and society folk in general are anticipating a pleasure in meeting the famous soprano at the close of the program, when a reception will be given by Miss Hopper, who is presenting Mme. Gadski.

On April 6 Omaha musicians and society in general was out to hear Mme. Gadski at the Fontenelle Hotel. The concert was in the beautiful ball room and was delightful from every standpoint, the tendering of an informal reception by Miss Hopper, who presented the singer, gave the large audience an opportunity to meet the famous soprano.

The Elks Glee Club gave a most satisfactory concert at the Brandeis Theater on Friday evening, April 9. This organization under Alexander Emslee certainly gave a good account of itself and will surely be a boost for the local lodge when they represent it at the Grand Lodge in Los Angeles in July.

We wish to correct the statement that Gustave Holmquist was announced for the attraction at the Boyd Theater for society night, March 30. Holmes Cowper of Des Moines appeared on that date and greatly delighted the large audience by singing compositions by Ethel M. Springer, an Omaha musician, who has achieved considerable reputation as a song writer.

The "Passover," by Ashford, was sung with excellent effect at the Temple Israel on Easter Sunday evening by a double quartet under the direction of Vernon C. Bennett, organist at the temple.

Tuesday evening, April 6, a quartet concert company from the Hampton Institute gave a concert at the Y. W. C. A., demonstrating the work of educating the negroes musically. The plantation songs were especially well received.

The opening of the piano department at the Brandeis Store was participated in by students of a number of the piano and voice teachers of Omaha and a series of concerts twice daily was given throughout the week. The new department is very handsomely fitted up and does great credit to Mr. Robinson, the genial manager, whom we understand is responsible for the excellent arrangement of it.

The management seems to have hit upon a very popular idea in presenting a musical comedy, last week. "Manselle" was a drawing card and next week they will present George Cohan's "The Talk of New York," which promises to be a huge drawing card.

GOODWAL DICKERMAN.

###

A. G. O.—There will be a service of the Illinois Chapter of the A. G. O. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on Sunday afternoon, April 25, at 4:30. The three choirs of St. Paul's will sing, under direction of John Allen Richardson, and the solo organists will be Mason Slade. Mrs. George Nelson Holt and Mr. Allen Bogen.

###

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan, tenor, (on tour) has sung during April at Chillicothe, Ill.; Wellington, Kas.; Wynoka, Okla.; Amarillo, Tex.; Albuquerque, N. M.; Prescott, Ariz.; Eureka and San Francisco, Cal.

180.5 Stack
MUN

WISCONSIN STATE CONVENTION AT LA CROSSE

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

MUSIC NEWS

APR 15 1915

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Valparaíso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.
Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.

64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 6790

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

An exquisite little song."—D. A. Clippinger.

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST

HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO

5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, APRIL 30, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business
Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and
Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK

Abbie S. Fridenberg
110 Carnegie Hall
For sale at Bretano's
27th st. and 5th av.

BOSTON

Lester S. Butler
Steinert Hall
DETROIT, MICH
Margaret Mulford
871 Ferry Park Ave.

OMAHA

Goodwal Dickerman
Arlington Block
CINCINNATI
L. Drew Mosher
137 W. Fourth av.

On sale Geo. B. Jennings
105 Fourth av. W.

CLEVELAND

George Emerson
616 The Arcade
INDIANAPOLIS
Gaylord Yost
Indianapolis Cons.

KANSAS CITY

Mary H. Flagg
311 Studio Bldg.
DENVER
R. Jefferson Hall,
St. Mark's Church

ST. PAUL, MINN.
Myrtle Weed
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.
WICHITA, KAN.
Ralph Brokaw

WORCESTER, MASS.
Lester S. Butler
441 Day Bldg.

COLUMBUS, OHIO

George G. Whitehead
Redpath Lyceum Bureau

MILWAUKEE

Iva Bigelow Weaver
Mack Block

PHILADELPHIA

Walter St. Clare Knodle
1523 Chestnut St.

LINCOLN, NEB.

Sidney Silber
Univ. School of Music
NASHVILLE, TENN.

C. J. Schubert

Schubert Cons. of Music
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
S. W. Mountz
1651 6th Ave.

ERIE, PA.

Albert H. Dowling Jr.
456 E. Seventh St.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

J. Henry Francis
St. John's Church

WASHINGTON

Horace D. Hitchcock
2224 F St., N. W.

MINNEAPOLIS

Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
109 Marlborough Hotel
St. Paul, Minn.

DRESDEN, GERMANY

Anna Ingman
Franklinstrasse 20
Papers on sale
J. Ries' Music Store
Seestrasse 21

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages,

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence

400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsbürger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, April 30, 1915

No. 18

Editorial

PERSONALS FROM THE ORCHESTRA (Contributed.)

Mr. Emmeran Stoeber, for the past year second 'cello, asked, months ago, for his release, feeling that personal interest—as pupils, solo and ensemble engagements—conflicted with his duties to the orchestra, especially the part which required him to “go on the road” so frequently.

Mr. Stoeber will be missed by a host of “musikfreunde,” to whom his fine personality and good musicianship have endeared him. However, much of his time will still be passed in Chicago, while he has flattering prospects for a large clientele of pupils in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mr. Joseph Hartl has also taken leave of his comrades of the trumpet section, and his place will be filled by Mr. George Ziehm, one of the best men on his instrument in Chicago.

It was a heavy train that carried away the sixty-odd men of the orchestra to Omaha on Sunday night; heavy in more senses than one, for the true musician loves his home, and has no fancy for “life on the road.”

But they bore the parting (it's only for a week) bravely, and so did the wives and daughters who had come to the big Northwestern terminal to wish them “gluckliche Reise.” It takes three big Pullmans to hold the party.

TO THE ILLINOIS MUSIC TEACHERS (From The Bulletin.)

The annual meetings of “The Illinois Music Teachers' Association” are of the greatest delight to all who “have the habit” of attending them. Always of much interest is the review of the music of the State throughout the year, the comparing of present standards with those of the past, and the look into the future to catch a glimpse of what may be expected to transpire in the musical world. All of these things are greatly worth while, but the one feature which welds all of these various links together and gives a real fraternity spirit is the glad-to-see-you handclasp. No one can fully appreciate the life and work of a musician unless it be a “fellow sufferer,” and the social part of the convention, not the dress-up affairs, but the quiet chats in the hotel lobbies where the personal exchange of ideas is the main feature of the conversation, this alone repays one many fold for the time and money expended. I

*Who little is, doth little seek,
Him trifles satisfy;
The brave ascend the mountain peak,
The highest need the high—
—EMILY TOLMAN*

have been a member of the Association since the meeting at Ottawa in 1894, when H. S. Perkins was our beloved president, and the lamented Frederick Grant Gleason was the secretary. Only a few years have come and gone that I have not attended at least some of the sessions, and when impossible for me to be there, I have regretted it deeply.

As vice president of Knox County, I shall do all in my power to awaken the interest here, for I know that the Centralia Convention will be most attractive. If you have not the habit of paying your annual dues and attending whenever possible, get it now, and prepare to be at Centralia May 4, 5, 6 and 7. Sincerely yours,

WM. F. BENTLEY.

(Galesburg, Ill.)

HE SHOULD BE PENSIONED (Contributed.)

To the Editor: With the close of the Chicago concert season, and the departure of the orchestra for its usual concert tour of the “provinces,” comes an announcement of supreme interest to several members of the orchestra, and of hardly less interest to every other member—the discharge, on a week's notice, of three members, one of them after a service of nearly twenty years.

Common regard or fairness would have recognized these men's right to a longer notice—indeed, it is not many years since the present conductor made the statement, in the presence of every then member, that no member having a yearly contract would ever be discharged upon less than eight weeks' notice.

Is a contract fair, which permits a musical director to discharge a man the very last week of the season, when vacancies in other orchestras have all been filled?

“It's a poor rule which doesn't work both ways.”

But a remedy is at hand: Put on the pension list this man of nineteen years' service, and hand to the other men, so summarily discharged, a lump sum of money!

But if the trustees wait for the fund to reach $300,000, half the veterans who make our orchestra one of the four great ones of the world, will be in their graves. “Do it now.”

The pension fund has reached an amount which, invested at 4 per cent will produce over $6,000; at 4 1-2 per cent, $6,750; at 5 per cent, $7,500. Let the trustees issue bonds for the amount of the debt on Orchestra Hall, and invest the pension fund in those bonds, thus keeping the money “all in the family.” The members of the orchestra desire to contribute to that fund, and thus be relieved of the feeling that in accepting its benefits (on the other plan) they would be accepting alms.

Supposing the annual dues be fixed at $30 per man; this would produce $2,500 per year, and, added to the interest on the amount invested, would make at least $9,000 per year, which would pay more pensions and more sick benefits than are likely to be required for years to come.

But, more important than all else, these musicians—these servants of the great public of music-lovers—deserve to be treated like men and brethren—not like mere cogs in a machine.

The trustees are trustees not merely of the forty "big" members of the Orchestral Association, whose names are printed in every week's program, but also of the nearly 8,000 smaller contributors who saved the Theodore Thomas Orchestra to Chicago.

SIMEON F. NEWHALL.

"INFORMATION WANTED"

(Contributed.)

To the Editor: The fine, thoughtful article of your "Elderly Person," in your issue of the 25th, has started a train of thought which has, no doubt, occurred to others of your readers: Whose are the profits of the annual tours of our great orchestra? For surely there must be profits, otherwise these tours would not be an annual event—a "regular thing."

And if the tours are profitable, why does the "debt" of the Orchestra Association stand, year after year, at $200,000?

The contracts with the men (I have this from one of the musicians) are for a season of 28 weeks, October to April, but outside of this contract, they play, or travel nearly 20 weeks more, leaving them barely a month of real vacation. And because it is the dull season the men must (?) accept a reduced salary for doing the hardest work of the whole year!

Are the men of the orchestra—its reputation of 25—aye 40 years—merely "farmed out" for the dull season, for the benefit of three or four individuals?

If the dull season is profitable, the Association should reap the profits, and pay the men full salary, and reduce the debt on Orchestra Hall.

OLD TIMER.

PASSING COMMENT

Under the circumstances that Harrison Wild is still not well and under instruction from his physician that the California trip will not be possible for him, the Apollo Club management has done the absolutely best thing possible in engaging Mr. Frederick Stock to direct the chorus during the coming trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

There is keen disappointment over the fact that Mr. Wild cannot go, but every one is satisfied and pleased with Mr. Stock as a substitute.

Meantime, all of the Apollo Club and in fact, all Chicago musicians in general are very much concerned over the illness of Mr. Wild. There is general rejoicing every day when his condition is pronounced "favorable" and likewise there is constant sympathy for him.

The Musical Courier stated this week that when Mr. George Hamlin sang with the Chicago Grand Opera the "house was invariably sold out." The Courier neglected to state, however, that Mr. Hamlin usually appeared on Saturday nights and that these performances, given in English and at half the regular prices, drew "sold out houses" throughout the season regardless of what stars were announced.

The Illinois Theater program at the concert of last Sunday afternoon was in error in stating that the "Ascension" Sonata of Burleigh was being given at that concert for "the first time in Chicago," as it was played on April 10 at the Ziegfeld Theater at the concert of the Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority and was mentioned in Music News, issue of April 16.

Music News reprinted last week an article from a Des Moines paper in which Mrs. Frederick Heizer was named the president of the Music Teachers' National Association. As a matter of fact the item should have read president of the Iowa State Association. In writing to us calling attention to the error Mrs. Heizer says: "Do what you think best about correcting the error—I haven't time to sue you for libel."

The engagement of Miss Henriette Weber to lecture on music for the University Lecture Association is a direct compliment to an artist who very well deserves the honor. Not many musicians have found time or inclination to do the necessary research work to fit themselves for such position and still fewer have the requisite personality. Miss Weber has both personality and fitness and the University is to be congratulated upon securing her services.

A LETTER

Flushing, L. I., April 17, 1915.

Music News: Enclosed you will please find check for papers duly received. Your paper is surely the most progressive of its kind in the U. S. A., and I am proud to be one of your advertisers. If at any time I have the honor to appear in your city, I will avail myself of the pleasure of calling on you.

Again thanking you for all your past favors. Yours very sincerely,

MARIE NARELLE.

A LETTER

To the Editor of Music News,

Dear Sir: Will you kindly announce in your valuable magazine whether the competition for the best song at Los Angeles, Cal., inaugurated by the Boosters' Club, and announced in your issue of August, 1914, has been decided yet, and if the decision was published in your magazine, and what means is there of obtaining the MSS. sent there. Yours etc.,

ORGANIST.

Will someone please answer this inquiry? Editor Music News.

JOHN W. NICHOLS' ITINERARY; SPRING TOUR

April 19—Buffalo Saengerbund Society.
April 20—Chicago.
April 22—Brownsville, Tenn.
April 23—DeWitt, Ark.
April 24—Haynesville, ..
April 26—Georgetown, Tex.
April 28—(aft) Emporia, Kas.
April 29—Chicago Mendelssohn Club.
May 1—Kansas City Oratorio Society.
May 3—(This week to be filled in between Kansas City and New York—dates so far not definitely settled, although several under consideration.)

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SO PRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Concerto Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA OLIN

VOICE
403 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drevel 5079
318 Oakenwald Avenue CHICAGO

Music in Chicago

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB CONCERT

Each year the Sunday Evening Club at Orchestra Hall offers its splendid choir and choice quartet in a concert. Presumably this is one way of meeting what must be a heavy expense of maintenance. But it has another suggestion as well, namely, that the people who crowd to hear these singers on Sunday nights may have a chance to show in a substantial way how much they appreciate what is given to them so generously. There was a good audience present on last Thursday night, but nowhere commensurate with the obligation inferred, and not worthy the excellent music prepared by Mr. A. Gordon Erickson for the event.

The offerings were quite out of the ordinary and to be commended because of their inherent variety and interest. They reached a climax in a truly fine giving out of two excerpts from Bossi's "Paradise Lost." This required a big body of tone to surmount the brilliant moments when orchestra and organ piled on masses of color. And the work of the choir in this section was ample and forcible. They even reserved enough volume to be ready for the exactions of the final "amen" which rolled and surged with an opulence of musical splendor. They were less convincing in the more esthetic Debussy setting of the still further esthetic poem of Rossetti, "The Blessed Damozel." There is a good deal of fustian in the language of the ballad, but it has undeniable power and Debussy is fitted to add yet more mystery and glamor in his veiled harmonies and half lights. It is simply exquisite, however, and a sense of gratitude goes to Mr. Erickson for the favor of a hearing.

Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon and Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdien had the solos in this and met the shades of meaning, some intense, some introspective, with understanding and a sense of the mystery so all pervading. In Humperdinck's "Pilgrimage to Kevlaar," Mrs. Gannon was fully in her element, and the music of the mother was particularly grateful to her, by reason of the sympathy voiced both in text and music. Mr. John B. Miller sang the tenor solos capitalily, with certainty and feeling, and with Mrs. Gannon made the duet portions of real moment. This was his largest offering of the evening, but the audience seemed glad of the opportunity to make him welcome.

In the "Paradise Lost" there are several quartet portions, in which Mr. Gustave Holmquist joined the other singers mentioned. These sections were merely incidental, and regretfully there was no further chance to hear this unusually efficient quartet. The brunt of the solo work in the "Finale" fell to Mrs. Herdien and Mr. Holmquist, and there was a long duet of beautiful form which they did with charm and richness of musical diction. The voices blended perfectly, and there was such a nice sense of proportion that they in a measure visualized the great happiness as well as the great sorrow of our very first lovers and parents. Mrs. Howard-Ward and Mr. Edgar Nelson contributed effectively to the accompaniments whenever the organ was called into requisition, Mr. Nelson being in service frequently in the "Paradise Lost."

For many reasons this concert was a notably good one and not least in the works presented. They were well worth while and of real value. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

A PIANO AND SONG PROGRAM

In spite of the fact that last Monday was an intolerably hot evening and the further circumstance that there were all sorts of outdoor attractions on the lake front there was yet a splendid audience at Kimball Hall to hear a piano and song recital given by Miss Marion Lower, pupil of A. Alfred Holmes, and Elmer Hallberg, tenor, pupil of Mrs. Agnes Leist Beebe.

Miss Lower makes a good appearance on the stage and she plays with firmness and with accuracy as well as with a very goodly amount of finish and interpretative value.

Her numbers included a "Prelude" (E Minor) by Mendelssohn, the Bach-Liszt "Toccata and Fugue" in D Minor, three pieces by Debussy, three by Chopin and the D Flat "Etude" and the E Major "Polonaise" by Liszt.

All of these were well done, the Bach-Liszt being virtuosic and the "Polonaise" possessing all that youthful virility and abandon which it so eagerly demands from its interpreter.

This writer, however, liked best of all the "Prelude" by Mendelssohn, for it was played with remarkable clarity and good tonal quality and Miss Lower seemed to have made its musical content very peculiarly her own property.

Also, the Chopin "Butterfly" etude was made to glisten in unusually attractive style and it proved the young pianist to be the possessor of unusual facility and much budding virtuosity.

Mr. Hallberg has a good voice which he uses with entire freedom. His style is manly and vigorous and his musical feeling is very correct.

The "Faust" aria was so well done as to give promise of unusual excellence in that line of work a little later on and in his group of short songs there was much to commend and much to bring lively satisfaction to his audience.

White's "Spring Has Come" was sung with great spirit, Tours' "Mother o' Mine" was thoroughly effective and Cadman's "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" proved to be a very gem in Mr. Hallberg's reading, while numbers by Puccini and Massenet were also well done.

Sylvia Jackson Wahlstrom was again the accompanist and again did she prove herself a valuable assistant. C. E. W.

Northwestern—It is rumored that a new Music Building is to be built at the Northwestern University in Evanston. This is much needed, for the School of Music, under direction of Dean Peter C. Lutkin, has grown to very great proportions and is now of vast importance in the work of the university.

MRS. LURA SCHULER SMITH PRESENTS PUPIL IN GRADUATE RECITAL

Herbert Schmidt, a young and very talented pianist, student with Mrs. Lura Schuler Smith of the University School of Music, Lincoln, Nebr., gave a recital for graduation before a very large and thoroughly representative audience at the Temple Theater last Thursday evening, April 22.

Though only nineteen years of age, Mr. Schmidt has made most excellent use of his time, and is now far advanced in his pianistic career as was well evidenced by the highly artistic delivery of a most serious and pretentious program. He is richly endowed by nature with temperament, a strong individuality, keen sense of rhythm and deep musical feeling; all of which have been wisely guided and developed into most distinctive interpretative powers during the past seven years of serious study with Mrs. Smith, who may well feel proud of her gifted pupil's brilliant achievement.

The Nebraska State Journal commented as follows:

A remarkable pianoforte recital for graduation was given in the Temple Theater last night by Herbert Schmidt, a pupil of Mrs. Lura Schuler Smith of the University School of Music. Much has been heard of this pupil for some time. He became known among musicians as a boy prodigy several years ago. His progress has been made evident in numerous public appearances, including several recitals. When he reached graduation at the age of nineteen therefore great interest was felt in his performance and his program was heard by a crowded house.

The expectations of his friends were more than realized. He played an artist's program, such as the big men in music perform. Many of his hearers remarked that they forgot that a boy was at the piano and thought they were listening to a mature artist. Bach and Beethoven were played with intelligence and appreciation for nuance, beauty and dignity. With Brahms came an added spontaneity which grew steadily until his Chopin group was reached. This was perhaps the finest of all. The mazurka, etude and waltz were particularly delightful in their grace and delicacy, while the scherzo and ballade received the broad dramatic treatment they deserved.

The young player showed the fine tone, rhythm, dynamic force and good pedaling that go with the mastery of technique, but he was able to go beyond these into the thoughts and feelings of the composer. Mr. Schmidt is also gifted in composition. He is to make music his profession. Musicians who have watched his development as a student predict that he will go fast and far in this career. The audience, made up largely of the friends of the well-known Schmidt families, gave him an ovation. This praise with personal liking as its basis was no more enthusiastic, however, than that given by the musicians to the young man and to his teacher.

The program was as follows:

Prelude and Fugue in B Flat	Bach
Sonata in F Minor, Op. 57	Beethoven
Allegro assai
Andante con moto
Allegro ma non troppo
Rhapsody in G Minor	Brahms
Intermezzo in A Flat
Prelude in B Flat
Scherzo in C Sharp Minor
Mazurka in A Flat, Op. 50, No. 2	Chopin
Etude in B Sharp Minor
Nocturne in D Flat
Waltz in A Flat, Op. 42
Ballad in G Minor

—(Advertisement.)—

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone, will appear as soloist with the Schubert Club at Grand Rapids, Mich., Tuesday evening, April 27. He will be heard in recital with Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, and James Whittaker, pianist, before the Indiana State Music Teachers' Association at Greencastle, Ind., Thursday evening, April 29, and will also read a paper on the subject of "Artistic Enunciation" on Friday morning.

"THE CREATION" AT NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The united choirs of the New First Congregational Church, two hundred voices, H. Augustine Smith directing, gave a splendid performance of Haydn's "Creation" on last Sunday evening before an audience which nearly filled the great auditorium of parts, is also well known as an oratorio singer, whose work needs no extensive comment here.

It is enough to say that he sang with ease and confidence, and repeated the success achieved at a recent performance of this oratorio by the Haydn Choral Society, reviewed by Music News.

The basso, Howard E. Preston, has but recently returned from an extended sojourn in Europe, and his work as a soloist is not so familiar to Chicago audiences.

Mr. Preston seems to be well equipped for the work of an oratorio soloist. Given a voice of excellent quality and ample quantity he has developed it by a first-class method until it responds to the demands made upon it with entire consistency. His reading of "Creation" on Sunday evening was along broad and dramatic lines.

The recitatives were spoken convincingly and the arias delivered with great spirit and dramatic power, and through all the enunciation was thoroughly good. Rich tone quality was maintained by Mr. Preston at all times, but if there is a place where he is more effective than at others, it is on the high tones requiring the pianissimo. Never have we heard the "Softly purling" passage more exquisitely rendered in this respect. His work throughout was manifestly successful.

The organ was handled in masterly fashion by Alice R. Deal, thereby contributing generously to the success of the production, and at the same time maintaining her excellent professional reputation.

The same oratorio will be sung by the united choirs on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week. C. J. B.

—###—

Northwestern University—On Thursday evening, May 6, at Music Hall of the University, Mr. Day Williams, 'cello, and Mrs. Harold Knapp, piano, will give a program. On Friday, May 7, at the Northwestern University Gymnasium the School of Music Symphony Orchestra of seventy players under direction of Harold E. Knapp will give a concert, Miss Julia Marshall, violinist, being the soloist.

MARIE SIDENIUS ZENDT

this popular west side church. That every seat in the church was not occupied was probably due to the weather, which was unusually warm, for April, in this part of the country.

The weather did not seem to affect the spirits of the singers, for they attended strictly to business, with excellent results, responding loyally to the conductor's ever varying demands upon them. As on former occasions, there was the prompt attack, clean release, sustained and beautiful pianissimo, plenty of power and brilliancy when needed. There was also great beauty of tone, especially in the soprano section.

Then, how the children did add to the impressiveness of the event, as their young voices mingled with the voices of the more mature singers. A happy thought on the part of the director, to have the little ones sing alone the phrase, "A new created world springs up at God's command."

All the choruses were well given, and the last, "Achieved Is the Glorious Work, Hallelujah!" was a fitting climax.

Marie Sidenius Zendt, the soprano soloist of the evening, again proved herself to be a fine oratorio singer, and "Creation" seems to be especially grateful for her voice. She has sung it many times, and knows its tonal possibilities and difficulties thoroughly. On this occasion she sang the soprano recitatives and arias with consummate artistry, and her customary rich clear tone quality, and supported the trios in a highly satisfactory manner.

Edward Walker, who sang the tenor solo

HOWARD E. PRESTON

RUTH RAY IN RECITAL

Miss Ruth Ray gave a violin recital at the new Central Music Hall on last Wednesday evening which certainly had the effect of advancing her in public esteem many degrees.

There was a splendid audience, the program was wonderfully well selected, and good accompaniments were played by Mr. Edward Collins.

The very greatest of enthusiasm reigned, and flowers were plentifully bestowed upon the young artist.

All this was not without its very good and sufficient reason, for Ruth Ray showed herself to be today one of the most potent of Chicago's young artists, and proved that the high hopes which have been built upon her career are exceedingly well founded.

RUTH RAY

Tone is hers in abundance—tone not only possessing volume, but also distinct and individualistic quality.

Technic she has in full degree—technic, in fact, so thoroughly developed that it has become merely the medium through which her interpretative thought flows with the greatest of freedom.

But, more important than all this, she has now grown to an artistic stature where she actually interprets what she plays, and in this interpretation she displays musicianship as well as temperament and a strong feeling for poetry of music.

Her program on Wednesday was a model of excellence. The Handel "Sonata" (A Major) and the Bach "Prelude" (in E) were played with crisp phrase, clear tone and definite musical feeling.

The Tchaikowsky "Concerto," a veritable war horse for concert artists, was so well done as to prove beyond any question that the most difficult items of the violin repertoire are now well within Miss Ray's grasp and that even in so colossal a work she can hold constant attention and win whole-hearted approval.

The closing group was beautiful in arrangement and in presentation. A Chopin "Nocturne" (the one in E Minor), in a ravishingly beautiful arrangement by Auer, was novel and potent; the Schumann "Vogel als Prophet," adapted by the same cunning pen, is one of the most delightful trifles ever devised for the violin (Miss Ray plays it exquisitely); "Am Springbrunnen" (Schumann) was just of the character to make instant appeal, and the Wieniawski "Tarantelle" showed the virtuosic powers of the player, as well as the rare skill of the writer in this sort of endeavor.

The accompaniments provided by Edward Collins were of such superior quality and so thoroughly in accord with the soloists' personalities and intentions as to be very notable.

Mr. Collins has excellent technical equipment—nothing of the violin repertoire could cause him a moment's uneasiness, and coupled with this he is musical to the last degree and in the best possible sense. Miss Ray was fortunate in having him play for her.

C. E. W.

MISS JOHNSON AND MR. WANIECK
PRESENT PUPILS

Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson and Mr. Kurt Wanieck presented a fine program at Kimball Hall on Thursday evening, the piano numbers being mostly in the "Concerto" form and, on account of illness of the third singer announced, the vocal part of the program consisting of two groups of songs.

Miss Elsa Ahlgren, a young soprano with a clear voice and pretty manners, sang "Will o' the Wisp" (Spross) and "An Open Secret" (Woodman) with good style and a voice quality which shows that her study is being carefully done, while Mrs. Charles B. Ayers, contralto, in "Lullaby of an Indian Chief" (Grant-Schaefer) and "Spring Is Here" (Foerster), showed qualities and achievements which were distinctly professional in character and which proved that this singer is one who has made splendid use of her gifts and of her study with a fine teacher. She will rank high in local musical circles.

The program was opened by Maude Winfield, who played the Chopin "Ballade," in G Minor, with conviction and power, the other piano numbers being "Concerto" movements by Arensky, Liszt, Mendelssohn, MacDowell, Moszkowski and Grieg.

Without entering into personal detail of this work, it is entirely correct to say that on the whole it was done with surprising skill and finish. There was in evidence the fact that Mr. Wanieck knows how to develop technic and that he is a stickler for careful musicianship, besides which he insists on individuality, as well as artistry, in the interpretation of concert numbers.

The young ladies who appeared—and every one of them deserves special praise and each one may go on to fine professional work if she but elects—are Viola Kerber, Ruth Hall, Aletta Tenold, Esther Kittilsby and Harriet Shaffer.

An incident of more than passing interest was the playing of a Mendelssohn "Concerto" movement by Philip Warner, a lad still in knickerbockers, who yet has developed fine technic and considerable style. He was roundly applauded for his work, as indeed was the case throughout the program.

C. E. W.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of Mrs.
MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST

1403 E. 68th STREET

Mezzo-Soprano

PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park

426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method

815 WILSON AVENUE

TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES

Soprano

HERBERT M.

Baritone

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO

522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER

Just returned from abroad

Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET

LAWSON

MULFORD

CONCERT

871 FERRY PARK AVENUE

CONTRALTO

PUPILS

DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE

FENLON

BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO

STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG.

Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW

MABEL

ORATORIO

3958 Drexel Boulevard

CONCERT

CONTRALTO

RECITAL

Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST

Concerts Recitals Receptions

Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater

Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

OPERA

849 LAKESIDE PLACE

TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts

Miss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

M
A
B

Doelling

Pianist
Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE

509 S. WABASH AVENUE

Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART

PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Ninth Floor Auditorium Building

Chicago, Illinois

The Artist's Piano

THE most convincing demonstration of the superiority of the Mason & Hamlin Piano is found in its continued use by those whose judgment is authoritative. The supreme test lies in the fact that so many artists who have played all other leading pianos have finally turned to the Mason & Hamlin as the instrument best suited to their exacting requirements.

Mason & Hamlin

Pianos are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago
Write for beautiful illustrated catalog

SPECIAL A. G. O. SERVICE

On Sunday, April 25, a special and impressive service of the Illinois Chapter of the American Guild of Organists was held at St. Paul's Church.

Mr. Mason Slade opened the service with a group of organ solos that gave genuine pleasure. He gave the Handel "Fugue in F Minor" a masterful and musicianly reading. Sibelius' "Romanze" was played with a variety of effects in color and shade, that left nothing to be desired.

Mrs. George Nelson Holt chose numbers by Saymova, Guilman and Andrews, proving herself to be a very resourceful organist. "Meditation" was very beautiful as she played it. The "Adagio Sonate," in A Minor, was given with a good display of technic and a fine understanding of the musical content that made it very impressive and effective.

The three choirs of St. Paul's, John Allen Richardson, organist and director, were heard in anthems by Stanford and Fehrmann. They have attained a good degree of finish under their most capable leader. The shading, attacks and releases are well taken, and their renditions of the anthems and hymns reflected great credit upon themselves and their director, for they sang with a fine spirit and great sincerity of purpose.

Allen W. Bogen gave a very refined and musicianly reading of Lemare's "Hanover Variations." He gained a wide variety of effects and displayed much resource in organ manipulation.

AT THE MUNRO STUDIOS

On Saturday evening, April 24, Mr. George W. Munro presented a number of his pupils in a recital at the commodious Munro Studios on the fifth floor of the Athenaeum Building, the usual large and appreciative audience being in attendance.

With perhaps one exception, those who sang on Saturday night were making their first formal public appearance and are just now completing their first year of study, and for these reasons the recital was a remarkable success.

There is always a mark of distinction to the singing of Munro pupils, and the affair of Saturday evening was no exception to the rule. This distinction is found to be in the voice production of these singers. It seems to make no difference as to the experience the individual has had in study and public performance or the difficulty of the song being offered. He or she, as the case may be, knows that the voice is coming out full, free and to the best advantage in every phase of the work at hand, even if interpretation and musical expression is not of the most finished type. Mr. Munro assumes that these latter points will be attained in due time, and cannot be accomplished until the voice is correctly produced and under full control, which is correct indeed.

About twenty numbers were divided between eight singers on this occasion, and each of these sang with sincerity and assurance at all times.

Mr. Virgil Marrs, the possessor of a rich baritone voice of good range and who has already gained good concert style, opened the program with "Israfil" (King) and "Honor and Arms" (Handel).

"A Burden" (Ronald), "The Captive Lark," by the same composer, and "O Dry Those Tears" (Del Riego) comprised a group sung by Miss Inez Snider, a soprano who should be heard from. She has the personality and stage presence, as well as a voice of much power, richness and great range, all of which should combine in making her a success.

Mr. Alfred Wilken, tenor, sang "Morning" (Speaks) and "'Tis Not True" (Mattei) with a splendid flow of tone and good enunciation. He received the unstinted approval of his audience.

Another soprano, who gave a splendid account of herself, was Mrs. Elizabeth Bliss, who sang "An Open Secret" (Woodman), "My Lover Comes" (Parker) and "The Year's at the Spring" (Beach).

Miss Mabel Drach pleased her hearers immensely by her charming singing of "O! Lovely Night" (Ronald) and "Love Song" (Haesche). Her voice is beautiful at all times, and there is a certain tone of appeal in her work which is truly attractive.

Mr. Thorwald Reigstad offered "The Evening Star," by Wagner, and Schumann's well-known "The Two Grenadiers" in a manner which displayed his vocal abilities in a fine light, and he was enthusiastically applauded for his efforts.

Miss Anita Ray helped raise the evening to artistic heights by her excellent singing of two excerpts from "Carmen" and the always enjoyable "Villanelle" by Dell'Acqua. Her voice is a soprano of much beauty and very intelligently produced. She acquitted herself and teacher with great credit.

Mr. Clarence Woodward, who has at his command a rich, resonant high baritone voice, closed the program with his splendid singing of "Good-bye" (Tosti) and "Rose of My Heart" (Lohr).

Mrs. Elsa McMynn was at the piano throughout the evening and played wholly satisfactory accompaniments for every singer. H. M. B.

— # # —

DURNO-KRUM PUPILS IN JOINT RECITAL

Miss Thyra Ruhland, a pupil of Miss Jeannette Durno, and Miss Klea Orschel, a pupil of Mrs. Charles Krum, were heard in a piano and song program at Thurber Hall last Sunday afternoon, and there received the plaudits of a goodly audience of their friends, the commendation being well deserved in both cases.

Flowers were plentiful, recalls were numerous, and both young artists had to respond to encore demands.

Miss Ruhland has splendid technic; in fact, her technic is much more developed at present than her interpretative ability and was displayed excellently in her program, which was well chosen as to variety and effectiveness.

All the numbers were played with taste and much display of musicianship, and if none rose to any great emotional heights, all were yet definite in conception and clear in execution.

Bach and Mozart, in juxtaposition, were delightful, and the Chopin group disclosed many graces and charms, while the bravura pieces at the close showed Miss Ruhland at her very best.

Miss Orschel has a soprano voice of rich quality, though somewhat uneven as yet in the way it is used in concert.

The "Mignon" aria disclosed good musicianship and adequate technic, while the short songs by Spross were given with much facility and corresponding effect, while the Strauss "Zuignung" had a fine show of passion to recommend it.

The German folk song "Spinnenlied-schen" was the gem of Miss Orschel's program, and in it she was able to display much vocal charm, as well as considerable ability along the line of characterization. Mrs. Frederick Lewis was the able accompanist. C. E. W.

— # # —

Chicago Piano College—Miss Irene Greider gave a piano recital at the lecture rooms of the college on last Saturday afternoon which was a model of excellence. This young pianist has technic in abundance and much style in presenting her work, while at the same time she is gifted with a keen and discriminating interpretative sense. A well-selected program of Bach, Moussorgsky, Pugno, MacDowell, Chopin and Liszt was closed with the Grieg "Concerto," Op. 16, which was played with great brilliance and effect.

— # # —

Devries Pupils for Opera—Mrs. Maurice Devries and Hazel Eden Mudge, pupils of Mr. Herman Devries, in the Fine Arts Building, have been engaged as members of the Chicago Grand Opera Company for next season.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }

Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

MISS WEBER IS HONORED WITH AN IMPORTANT COMMISSION

Henriette Weber has been engaged to lecture on music for the University Lecture Association of the University of Chicago. Under the general head of "Social Aspects of Music," the following six subjects will be discussed:

HENRIETTE WEBER

- "Folk Song and Its Relation to Nationalism in Music."
- "The Origin of Music: Its Legendary Lore" (with stereopticon views).
- "Shakespeare in Music."
- "Dance Forms."
- "The Union of the Drama with Music as Exemplified in the Opera."
- "Modern Tendencies in Music."

In addition to her own piano illustrations, Miss Weber will have the co-operation of some one of the following artists for each of her lectures: Miss Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade, contralto; Mr. Arthur Kraft, tenor; Mr. Marion Green, bass; Mr. Fritz Itte, violin.

Harris—Next Tuesday night, in Kimball Hall, Miss Ruby Saaf, soprano, will be the soloist at the Vilim American Violin School commencement. Among other selections is "The Salutation of the Dawn," by Kursteiner, new and not sung in Chicago before. The piano part is equal to a solo, and in the hands of Miss Helen Gallup this number will be of special interest. Miss Saaf will also sing "Sacrament," by MacDermid, and "June," by Downing (Chicago composers). Miss Saaf has had all her training with Milon R. Harris.

Mendelssohn Conservatory—Miss Otilia Stennerson, pianist and Rose Larson, vocalist, pupils in the Mendelssohn Conservatory of Music, gave a program at the residence of W. Harold Simons, a member of the faculty, last Monday evening.

RECITAL AT BUSH TEMPLE

On Friday evening, April 23, a recital was given by Mme. Justine Wegener, soprano; Robert Yale Smith, pianist, and Edgar Nelson, accompanist.

That Mme. Wegener is a general favorite with the people of Bush Temple cannot be doubted, if one may judge from the hearty applause that greeted her.

She gave as her first group songs by Schubert and Schumann, singing them with a fine breadth of style and fine grasp of interpretative thought. She has perfect control of her splendid voice, and her personality is such as to immediately ingratiate her with the audience.

In her second group Woodman's "An Open Secret" was sung with great vocal charm, as was Homer's "Way Down South." Two French songs by Massenet and Dalcroze were delightful, and were sung with a fine display of artistry. She was accorded much sincere applause, and it is safe to say she will be given a royal welcome should she choose to appear again.

Mr. Smith is a young pianist with much musical ability and a well-developed technic. He offered as his first group two numbers by Schumann. "Des Abends" was a fine

MISS VIVIAN SCOTT PRESENTS PUPIL

Marie Evans will give a piano recital at the branch studio of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, 1339 East Forty-seventh

MARIE EVANS

EDWARD WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
TENOR 1118 E. 65th St.

example of legato playing. He was at his best in the Chopin group, played with great abandon and breadth of interpretative thought. His final group, comprising numbers by Grieg, Phillip and Moszkowski, were negotiated with much skill, which won him much merited applause, and he should gain a fine place for himself among the young artists.

Mr. Nelson furnished artistic accompaniments for Mme. Wegener. H. W. P.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

At the annual business meeting of the Amateur Musical Club the following officers were elected for the season 1915-16:

President—Mrs. Rossetter G. Cole.
First Vice President—Mrs. George W. Dixon.
Second Vice President—Mrs. C. A. Whyland.
Directors—Mrs. George E. Shipman, Mrs. Frank M. Smith, Miss Tina Mae Haines, Miss Agnes Lapham, Mrs. Alexander Rietz, Mrs. Edna M. Trego, Mrs. J. W. Vokoun, Miss Lois Adler, Mrs. John M. Smulski, Miss Alice F. Merrill, Mrs. Lillian White Freyn, Mrs. Hyde Wallace Perce.

Gale—Mrs. Permelia Gale left Chicago on Sunday night for a four weeks' concert trip in the west, which was arranged for her by Alma Voedisch. She will sing at Los Angeles and San Francisco, besides giving recitals at cities along the Pacific coast.

street, on Friday evening, April 30. Miss Marie is twelve years of age and a pupil of Miss Vivian Scott. She will be assisted by Miss Lillian Wilhelm, contralto.

International College—The International College "Scholarship Fund," to which the Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings Bank made the initial donation upon its opening day of its new bank building, and has been added to from time to time by patrons of the college, has received recently, through the death of a relative of the president of the college, another donation. This "fund" is kept in the bank and has already proved of assistance to deserving pupils. Mrs. Lois Dunning, an artist with international reputation, is a recent addition to the faculty and will give lecture tours through the Art Institute during the college season. These are among the free advantages offered the students of the college. Some notable additions to the faculty are being made for next season. Mrs. Clark-Mottl, the president, has recently been re-elected as director of the Chicago Press League. She is writing a musical story for a syndicate of papers of the middle west, and arranging for a lecture recital in New York and Brooklyn.

International Eisteddfod—The International Eisteddfod, one of the really great events of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, is dated for Festival Hall on July 27, 28, 29 and 30.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Isabel Richardson

MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg.,
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera. Chicago

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY
300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Phone O. P. 3619-R

THE CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The last night of the orchestra season is no time for experimenting with untried repertoire; neither is it the time for critical contemplation of what is offered.

Mr. Stock sensed the proprieties as to the first of the above items last Saturday evening perfectly, and gave a program which was popular in the very best sense of the word and which was received with the greatest pleasure and long continued applause by the audience which was bound to be happy even had the program furnished less cause for happiness.

The Goldmark overture, "In Springtime," and the "Leonore" overture (Beethoven) were the least enjoyable of all because the most commonplace and also, they were played more or less perfunctorily.

FREDERICK STOCK

Not so with the "Ride of the Walkuries," "Siegfried's Death Music" (Die Gotterdammerung) and the overture to "Tannhauser" (Wagner), for these three were played with superb swing and exquisite beauty of detail.

The Tschaiakowsky "Pathetic" may easily be called the prime favorite among symphonies in Chicago and at this time it was played superbly and was accepted with full measure of appreciation.

Last week Mr. Felix Borowski discoursed most amiably and with the greatest authority on the Orchestra season, in his column in the Chicago Herald. With thanks to him for his splendid work we take the liberty of quoting his article entire:

On Saturday evening the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will bring to a close the twenty-fourth season of its concerts. In view of this circumstance a review of the activities of Mr. Stock and of his musicians will be instructive and interesting.

Compositions to the number of 159 have been set forth in the series of twenty-eight concerts. It is remarkable how large a number of this totality have been novelties. Owing to the war the importation of new music practically has ceased; very little is being composed in Europe, and what there is is not of the order which would be likely to satisfy the tastes of audiences at symphony concerts. The new works that the Chicago Symphony Orchestra has offered this season to its listeners have been in its possession for some time—most of it, indeed, lying in the library long before the peoples of Europe engaged in the stupendous struggle that still staggers the imagination.

No fewer than forty-five works were interpreted for the first time at these concerts, but these were not all recent compositions. Some of them—like Mozart's overture to "Der Schauspieldirektor" or the same master's serenade for woodwind instruments—were novelties only for the reason that their strains never had echoed in Orchestra Hall, and a few—like Reger's Ballet Suite and Mr. De Lamar's Overture to a Fantastic Comedy—had been previously performed at other concerts.

The most important of the new or unfamiliar compositions were the following: Boyle, concerto for piano; Busoni, Indian fantasy for piano and orchestra; Carpenter, "Adventures in a Perambulator"; Chabrier, overture to "Gwendoline"; Glazounow, Poeme Lyrique and Scene Dansante; Converse, symphonic poem, "Ormazd"; Debussy, "Gigues," and the two nocturnes, "Clouds" and "Festivals"; Hadley, symphony, "North, East, South and West"; Loeffler, "La Mort de Tintagiles"; Mahler, Symphony No. 1; overture to a Gascon chivalric drama; Mozart, concerto for oboe (the authenticity of this is exceedingly questionable); Oldberg, "June"; Pfitzner, overture, "Kathchen von Heilbrunn"; Ropartz, symphony No. 4; Scriabin, "Prometheus"; Sinigaglia, suite Piemontesi; Smith, overture, "Prince Hal"; Stephan, music for orchestra; Strawinsky, "Fireworks"; Weidig, symphonic suite, and Wolf, prelude and entr'acte from "Der Corregidor."

Some interesting music was discussed in the unfolding of this scheme of novelty. There were, indeed, some works—Pfitzner's "Kathchen von Heilbrunn," for example—which were not worth rehearsing or performing, but for the most part Mr. Stock's new productions were worthy of their representation. Perhaps the largest interest lay in Carpenter's suite, "Adventures on a Perambulator," Hadley's symphony, Debussy's nocturnes, Mahler's symphony and Scriabin's "Prometheus."

Those who pin their faith to the classics can find no fault with the representation given to them upon the season's programs. Bach has been drawn upon seven times, Beethoven ten times, Brahms five times, Mozart seven times, Schumann four times, and Wagner, whose popularity never diminishes, was represented by twenty works or excerpts from works. Mr. Stock accomplished the difficult feat of presenting a composition by Bach—it was the fourth suite—which never had been heard in its entirety before. At least three works by Mozart—the overture to "Der Schauspieldirektor," the Serenade in B Flat Major for wind instruments and the oboe concerto—had not been played before.

Considering the programs from a statistically racial point of view, it may be mentioned that Teutonic art has been represented to the extent of ninety-two works; the French come next, with twenty-one; of Russian compositions there have been heard fourteen and of American twelve. Compositions by British writers have numbered six and by Italian composers five. Only one Scandinavian creation has been offered. An interesting feature to discuss would be the composers whose works have not been played at all, or who have been sparsely represented. Probably it is a matter of some significance that in the course of the season only one composition by Richard Strauss has been set forth. It is a matter, at least, that might give the master food for thought.

Twenty-one soloists have played or sung in the series of concerts. Only six of the twenty-eight performances have been without a singer or player to bless them. The pianists have been Rudolph Ganz, Harold Bauer, Arthur Shattuck, Ferruccio Busoni, Tina Lerner, Josef Hofmann and Olga Samaro. The violinists: Fritz Kreisler, Frank Gittelsohn, Hugo Kortschak, Albert Spalding, Harry Weisbach and Alexander Kukowsky. Three vocalists have appeared—Madames Louise Homer, Alma Gluck and Julia Claussen, Pablo Casals, Emmeran Stoeber and Brun Steindel have been the violoncellists. The first named artist proved to be so remarkable a performer that he was engaged for two concerts. Of the other instrumentalists Enrico Tramonti was the solo harpist and Alfred Barthel the solo oboist of the season.

The praise which so often and so deservedly has been lavished upon Mr. Stock and his performers must again be given to them for the labors which they have accomplished during the season. The playing has been of beautiful perfection. Not only have the musicians of the orchestra kept to the high standard of technical finish which long has distinguished their playing, but they have made lovely tone and poetic feeling unflinching features of their art.

One of the most satisfactory accomplishments of the season has been the impetus which has been given to the establishment of an adequate pension fund. As the permanence of the orchestra and not a little of the excellence of its performers must hinge upon the solution of the pension problem which has occupied the minds of the trustees for many years, it is certain that the Orchestral Association and the public which loves fine music has rejoiced in the generosity of Mrs. Coolidge, Bryan Lathrop and others who have given much money to the cause.

A BENEFIT CONCERT

The concert for the benefit of the Methodist Episcopal Old Peoples' Home, given at Grace Church, on the afternoon of April 21, proved an extremely interesting program, demanding many encores. Numerous artists appeared, the best-known being Mrs. Katherine Howard Ward, organist, and Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto.

Mrs. Ward was heard twice on the program, first giving the "Concerto in B Minor," by Rogers, an interesting work, in which Mrs. Ward revealed command of technic and a clear presentation of the brilliant climax at the close. In her second appearance she sensed an appropriate contrast between the "Berceuse" of Dickenson, quiet and appealing in its character, and the flashing, glittering "Caprice Heroique" of Bonnet, in which Mrs. Ward was very fortunate in the choice of stops for the bringing out of pleasing effects. Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" was played beautifully as an encore. Mrs. Ward has long been a performer of merit and intelligence, and her playing was deeply appreciated on this occasion.

Miss Johnson also appeared twice, singing in her first group "Blossom Time," by Needham, a tuneful song of worth; the sweet "May the Maiden" of Carpenter, and "Floods of Spring," by Rachmaninoff. In the latter number Miss Johnson showed an especially easy high voice and vibrant volume of tone. As an encore she sang Nevin's "A Necklace of Love," with great expression and feeling. In the second group an appealing sacred song, "Sheep and Lambs," by Homer, was first given, with a clean-cut enunciation which was particularly commendable, and later the well-known "Ecstasy" of Rummel. This number was given an exquisite rendition, and well deserved an encore. Miss Johnson's singing shows the ease and individuality of long experience, which when added to a voice of much quality and fullness creates a pronounced impression. Diction, phrasing, style—all were of equal artistic perfection.

Others on the program were Miss Lela Lowe, a violinist of considerable poise and fluent technic, who played two groups of compositions; Miss Lawlor, who gave two charming flute numbers, and Miss Esther Mayes, a reader of talent.

Mrs. Daisy Heist Jones and Miss Addie Lawson were appropriate accompanists for Miss Johnson and Miss Lowe respectively.

Tiffin, Ohio—The Heidelberg University Glee Club, Frank W. Gillis, director, has just returned from a very successful trip giving concerts in the following cities: Miamisburg, O., Dayton, O., Indianapolis, Ind., Terre Haute, Ind., Lafayette, Ind., Mulberry, Ind., Fort Wayne, Ind., Bluffton, Ind. The program is a much heavier, more dignified one than is usually given by the ordinary glee club. Heidelberg is proud of her club.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES OF CONCERTS

Suye Ogura, Japanese pianist, and Grant Hadley, baritone, will give the following program at the Auditorium Hotel, ninth floor, Sunday afternoon, May 2, with Al Meda Wadhams as accompanist:

Organ Fugue in A Minor.....	Bach-Liszt
Ein Schwan.....	Suye Ogura
Vision Fugitive (air from Herodiade).....	Massenet
Etude in A Flat.....	Grant Hadley
Berceuse.....
Ballade in G Minor.....	Chopin
O Komm im Traum.....	Suye Ogura
Ein Schwan.....	Liszt
Zueignung.....	Grieg
Heimliche Aufforderung.....	Strauss
Variations on an Original Theme, Op. 21.....	Grant Hadley
Time Enough.....	Suye Ogura
Life and Death.....	Nevin
I Plucked a Quill from Cupid's Wing.....	Coleridge-Taylor
Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes.....	Henry Hadley
The Eagle.....	Old English
Au Bord d'une Source.....	Grant Hadley
Sarabande.....	Liszt
Prelude.....	Debussy
	Suye Ogura

HELENA BINGHAM NOTES

On Wednesday, April 15, Helena Bingham appeared at a private musical in Leadville, Col., given at the home of Mrs. Howard E. Buxton. Other assisting musicians were Miss Nona Campbell, mezzo-soprano, of Salida, Col.; Mr. Leopold Duval, cellist, of Paris, France, and Mrs. Verne Sinclair Burton, accompanist.

On Friday, April 17, the same musicians appeared in recital at the residence of Mrs. H. Gallaher, much comment being made upon the excellence of the program presented.

On April 20, at Lolden, Col., Mr. Leonard L. White, tenor, sang "Remember Now Thy Creator," by Helena Bingham. In a letter to the composer, he pronounces it "a grand song," thus again voicing the sentiments of all who hear it and of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Bergey, to whom, as firm friends of the composer, it is dedicated.

Pillsbury-Lund—Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury, pianist, and Madame Edla Lund, soprano, will give a joint recital at Rock Island, Ill., on May 10.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto—Fermelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto—Haze Hunt
Director—Accompanist
TINA MAE HAINES

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

MR. and MRS.

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

ARTHUR OLAF ANDERSEN COMPOSITION CLASS IN RECITAL

A composition recital by advanced pupils will be given by Mr. Andersen at Kimball Hall, under auspices of the American Conservatory, on Saturday afternoon, May 1, at 3:30. The program follows:

- Forest Suite for Piano.....Alice Margretha Olsen
In the Forest
Berceuse
By the Brook
Forest Sprites
Miss Olsen
- Songs Fred Hart
My Bed Is a Boat ('cello obligato)
Foreign Children
Where Go the Boats
In an Old Garden ('cello obligato)
Miss Clara Schweinfurth and Mr. Hart
Mr. Pietro Angelo, 'cellist
- Prelude and Fugue.....Cora Anderson
Humoresque
Miss Anderson
- Berceuse for Violin and Piano.....Gertrude Steinkraus
Miss Steinkraus and Mr. Sowerby
- Nocturne for Piano.....Gustav Dunkelberger
Mr. Dunkelberger
- Sonata for Piano in C Minor.....William Wuthenow, Jr.
Allegro
Andante
Scherzo
Rondo
- Mr. Sowerby
- Aria for Soprano and Piano with Violin Obligato
.....Alice Margretha Olsen
Mrs. William Lester, Miss Olsen, Miss Steinkraus
- Songs William Wuthenow, Jr.
The Sun's Travel
When I Kissed You
A Widow Bird
I Saw Thee Weep
Miss Clara Schweinfurth and Mr. Hart
- Suite for Piano.....Fred Hart
Through Field and Wood
Petite Romance
Meadow Breeze
Dance of Pan
- Mr. Hart
- Suite for Violin and Piano.....Leo Sowerby
Romance
Capriccio
Melody
Scherzo
Poem

Ruth Ray, violinist
Composer at the piano

THE VILIM COMMENCEMENT

As usual, the first of the commencements is that of the Vilim American Violin School. It will take place at Kimball Hall, on Tuesday evening, May 4, and the program reads as follows:

- Trio for Two Violins and Viola (manuscript).....Just Edward Roeder, George Kaiser, Hattie Kovarik
- Gavotte for Violin Alone.....Bach
- Seventh Concerto (first movement).....De Beriot
Helen Shorna
- Caprice Excentrique (dedicated to Joseph Vilim).....Bornschein
- Schoumka—Danse Cosaque Borowski
- Dances Bohemes, Op. 3.....Ondricek
George Kaiser
- Summer Chaminade
- Madrigal Chaminade
- Cuckoo Clock Grant-Schaefer
Miss Ruby Saaf
- Romanze, Op. 12.....Brueschweiler
- Zigunerweisen Sarasate
- Hattie Kovarik
- Concerto, Op. 61 (first movement).....Beethoven
(Cadence by Joachim)
Edward Roeder
- The Salutation of the Dawn (new).....Kurstainer
- Sacrament MacDermid
- June.....Lulu Jones Downing
Miss Saaf
- Awarding of Diplomas and Certificates by the Director
- Bagatellen—Two Violins—Violoncello and Piano.....Dvorak
Edward Roeder, Hattie Kovarik, George Kaiser,
Ernest McClung
- Helen Gallup and Mark Vilim, accompanists

THE GLEN ELLYN MUSICAL CLUB

Starting out with the slogan "Good music at cost," the residents of Glen Ellyn, Ill., are working out the problem of community music through an organization known as the Glen Ellyn Musical Club.

The club operates in a village of about 2,000 inhabitants, located about 25 miles west of Chicago. It has been controlled by the people from the beginning and this is considered a vital point because controlled by the people naturally involves interest in the organization, and without a lively general interest no movement of this kind can hope to succeed.

Memberships, including admission to all the club's concerts, are sold at $1.50. Every member has a vote at the annual meeting, upon which occasion the officers for the ensuing year are elected and the general policy of the organization fixed.

The club's work is divided into three departments—vocal, instrumental and children's—each managed by a committee of three under the general direction of an executive committee composed of the regular officers and the chairman of each department committee.

Through the efforts of the Children's Department a series of lecture-recitals has

ROBERT MAITLAND

BARITONE

Available Season 1915-16

Management Haensel and Jones Aeolian Hall, New York

been given by local musicians in co-operation with the school authorities.

Six concerts were given during the season of 1914-15 as follows:

October 30—Artists' concert. Mrs. Eric DeLamarter, soprano; Mr. Sherman Orwig, tenor; Mr. Eric DeLamarter, organist and accompanist.

December 10—The Glen Ellyn Musical Club Chorus, assisted by Grant Kimbell, tenor.

The chorus owes its existence to the activity of the vocal department and is ably directed by Mr. August Steinberg, one of the enthusiastic promoters of the club.

January 21—The Beethoven Trio. Mr. Otto Roehrborn, violinist; Mr. Carl Brueckner, 'cellist; Miss Jennette Loudon, pianist.

February 15—The A Cappella Choir of Fourth Presbyterian Church, under the direction of Mr. Eric DeLamarter.

The personal interest in our effort to promote the cause of good music prompted Mr. DeLamarter and his splendid choir to render this musical treat possible.

March 18—The Chicago Concert Ensemble. Ten members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Walfried Singer.

April 22—The Glen Ellyn Musical Club Chorus, presenting the "Bride of Dunkerton," by Henry Smart, assisted by Lucia May Smith, soprano; Julian S. Mogenson, tenor; Fred W. Frank, baritone.

Hanapel—Miss Rose Hanapel presents Myrtle McFadden in piano recital at the Recital Hall on the fifth floor of the Grant Park Building this evening.

FULLERTON HALL

"The Quarreling Lovers" seems to belong to Chicago in quite exceptional way. Its composer now lives here. The opera was first produced here, and it has been used by a number of chautauqua quartets sent out from this city.

In fact, it is a distinct "find" for quartet purposes, and will be used very often in the future, where "Martha" was considered the only available work in the past.

It is cunning as to story, very pleasing as to music, and wholly agreeable in ensemble.

Miss Henriette Weber did well in placing it on her closing Sunday night at Fullerton Hall, and she certainly chose a splendid quartet to assist her.

The work was unusually well thought out, Miss Weber was witty and facile in her storytelling, the players were wholly alert with their scores, and the singers gave of their very best.

Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, an established favorite, sang her big solo as Rosaura with great distinction, and in the abounding ducts with Mr. Arthur Kraft (Florinda) she scored heavily also. Mr. Kraft has a pleasing voice and a charming personality, and at once stepped into great favor.

Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade proved again to be adept in holding up a difficult ensemble, and in the few solo moments falling to her lot (Donna Angelica) showed lovely voice and fine musicianship. Dr. William Carver Williams, as Fulgenzio, showed himself adept in characterization and, wherever he had opportunity, proved also that his voice is of superb quality and that his musicianship is more than ample to cover the Parelli ensembles.

As a matter of fact, there was unusual musicianship shown by all the singers, and the quartet numbers were given with especial charm.

Flowers were presented to Miss Weber, great enthusiasm prevailed, and the audience went away fully determined to crowd the hall on every one of the Sunday evenings of next season, as they have done this year.
C. E. W.

ENGLEWOOD METHODIST CHURCH

The chorus choir of the Englewood Methodist Church, organized within the last year, is doing some good work, and it is safe to predict many musical treats at their musical services. In the near future they will present Gaul's "Holy City," with the regular quartet, Marian Hobbs, soprano; Elsa Staud Denton, contralto; Charles W. Leigh, tenor and director, and Robert Karper, bass, as the soloists, and Mrs. M. H. Dugger, organist.

Mrs. Denton's splendid contralto voice was heard to fine advantage in "Come unto Me" (Coenen). She has a good church style and much musical feeling, which makes her singing very effective and a pleasure to hear.

The choir, under Mr. Leigh's direction, gave Stebbins' "O, Come, Let Us Worship" with a fine spirit and a good volume and quality of tone. Mr. Leigh sang the solo part in an authoritative and convincing manner. Mrs. Dugger gave good support at the organ.

ELLA DAHL RICH AND HUGO KORTSCHAK IN PROGRAM

A charming musical occurred on Thursday evening, April 22, in the beautiful assembly hall of the Evanston Woman's Club building—an ideal place for such an event.

The stage was a delight in itself, with the setting of garden scenery, augmented by a generous array of palms. The program was given by Mrs. Ella Dahl Rich, pianist, of Evanston, and the well-known violinist, Hugo Kortschak, for the benefit of the Visiting Nurse Association of Evanston, under the direction of Rachel Busey Kinsolving.

Judging by appearances, it was a success socially and financially, as well as from a musical standpoint, for most of Evanston's social leaders were back of the enterprise. The names of the artists presented would guarantee its musical worth.

The program was opened with "The Ascension Sonata" of Cecil Burleigh, for piano and violin. The composer of the sonata is connected with the musical department of the State University of Montana, a musician who has ideas of his own, judging by the structure of the work. It is decidedly modern and, on first hearing, novel, which statement is in no way a disparagement of its musical value, for it is entirely worth while and a composition that one would wish to hear several times before passing final judgment. It was given a skillful and thoroughly beautiful reading on this occasion.

Mr. Kortschak played as his solo number "Larghetto" (Nardini), "Menuet" (Mozart) and "Zapateado" (Sarasate), and an exquisite performance it was. The flowing melody of the Nardini composition, the daintiness of the "Menuet" and the witchery of the Sarasate "Spanish Dance" were interpreted with a skill that rendered them most intoxicating. Reger's beautiful "Wiegenlied" was Mr. Kortschak's offering for the encore which was demanded.

"Praeludium," by Arne Oldberg, and Chopin's "Scherzo," in B Flat Minor, comprised Mrs. Rich's solo offering, performed with utmost skill and musicianship. Mrs. Rich is one of the few excellent pianists who seem equally efficient as an accompanist. She is so tasteful, appreciative and fully satisfactory in either capacity that one would hesitate in choosing. Her playing is musically in every particular.

The "Suite in D Minor," Op. 44, by Edward Schuett, four movements, allegro risoluto, scherzo-vivace, conzonetta con variazioni and rondo a la russe closed the program. What a well-contrasted and altogether likable composition this is anyway, and in such capable hands as on this occasion it was irresistible.

The whole program was an unalloyed delight. Both individual work and ensemble were ideal, and one encored not merely to express approval of the artists but for sheer exuberance of the joy in the whole evening's program. C. J. B.

— # # # —

Clippinger—Mr. C. A. Clippinger will present Mrs. Anna C. Binnix, soprano, and Mrs. George A. McGaw, contralto, (with Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist) in a program of "The Songs and Duets of Mendelssohn" at his studios in Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon at 3.

MR. HOLMES PRESENTS A PUPIL IN PIANO RECITAL

Mr. A. Alfred Holmes gave the first of a series of weekly piano recitals at Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening, when he presented Miss Ruth Franzen in piano recital, assisted by Alice Geer Ferguson, soprano, a pupil of Agnes Leist Beebe.

Miss Franzen has a well-developed technique, coupled with good natural musical feeling, and her program was one well selected to show her gifts and her attainments to the best possible advantage.

Rhythm she has and a good clear style of playing, while her interpretative thought is definite and often touched with poetry and imagination.

The Beethoven "Sonata," Op. 57, was, to this writer, the very best thing on the program. It was played definitely and clearly, and was made to carry a truthfully classic message.

The Schumann-Liszt "Spring Night," a piece seldom played, proved very attractive, and a Chopin "Valse" and the Schubert-Tausig "Military March" were also greeted with much applause.

The closing number was devoted to Liszt and disclosed the fact that Miss Franzen is

One of the finest tenors ever heard here
—Rockford (Ill.) Republic.

Grant Kimbell

TENOR

Oratorio Recital Concert

730 Fine Arts Building
309 E. 49th St. (Drexel 8519)

Beautiful voice, well schooled—South
Bend (Ind.) Tribune

quite capable of virtuosic technical display.

Mrs. Ferguson has a splendid presence, fine concert style and a good technical development. Her voice is rich and full and her facility is much beyond the average.

She has a truly definite musical feeling, and is able to invest each number with individual thought and interest.

The "Adieu, forests," from Tchaikowsky's "Joan of Arc," was sung with much breadth and spirit, and in a group of shorter songs there was displayed a great variety of graces and musical values.

Altogether her work was a very distinct credit to her teacher. Excellent accompaniments were provided for her by Sylvia Jackson Wahlstrom. C. E. W.

— # # # —

SUCCESS OF A DEVRIES PUPIL

Miss Maude Roberts, a young singer who has been studying for three years with Mr. Herman Devries, was one of the soloists in the concert given at Orchestra Hall on April 23. She gave as her number a song by Miss James, a pupil of Felix Borowski, which was so well liked that she had to repeat it. All the critics singled her out for special commendation, and her brilliant and well-schooled voice won immediate favor with the large audience.

A FINE ENSEMBLE PROGRAM

Bach, D'Indy and Schumann! this certainly comprising a magnificent list and wide range of contrast, was the bill of fare provided by Leo Sowerby and Hermann Felber, Jr., in their piano and violin recital program at Central Music Hall on last Tuesday evening.

Bach, in his "Sonata No. 2," A Major, provided the solid meat of the repast, and he was presented with musical beauty and clarity of technical detail.

D'Indy, in his "Opus 59" (C Major), provides a rich and varied feast—one comprising every musical possibility, both technically and musically speaking. Great breadth of thought is apparent and great delicacy in detail development.

All these points were conserved in charming fashion by the two players, and the "Sonata" was set forth in such completeness and such beauty as to make it a glowing, living thing.

The "Opus 105" (A Minor), by Schumann, likewise proved to be a wonderful inspiration to the players, and its interpretation was a musical joy which has not been surpassed many times this season.

The ensemble maintained by the two young artists was excellent at all times, and the piano playing of Mr. Sowerby rose on occasion to technical heights which were of astonishing beauty—always, also, being marked by the greatest possible sanity and definiteness. C. E. W.

— # # # —

THE DOLLY VARDEN QUARTET

The Dolly Varden Quartet, Ethel Connely Cutler, first soprano; Margaret Lester, second soprano; Clare Livingstone, first alto; Agnes Hansel-Harter, second alto, and William Lester, coach and accompanist, gave a splendid concert at the Memorial Church of Christ on Tuesday evening, April 20.

The quartet sings in a very refined and finished manner. They all have fine solo voices, and they offer a widely varied program in song literature. The blending of the voices is well high perfect, and it is safe to say they have few equals and no superiors among the quartets in the middle west.

Their renditions of the "Spring Song" (Mendelssohn) and "Little Papoose" (Sherwood) left nothing to be desired in artistic ensemble singing.

Mrs. Lester's group of solos, "Rose Kissed Me Today" (Harling) and "Apple Blossoms" (Lester) won the enthusiastic and merited approval of the audience, for she sang them with consummate artistry.

The last part of the program comprised some "Old Time Songs." They appeared in colonial costume, presenting a glowing picture that is unique and attractive. Their singing of "The Low-Backed Car," "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "Old Black Joe" will long be remembered with unalloyed pleasure by all who heard them.

Mr. Lester, as coach and accompanist for the quartet, may well feel proud of the success they have achieved under his direction.

— # # # —

Allen—Leonora Allen has been engaged to sing in Rossini's "Stabat Mater" and Elgar's "Light of Life" at Kansas City on May 1.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist 4820 Kimball Ave. Tel., Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford M. Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe SOPRANO
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgcomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
Pone Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

THE COFFEY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The Coffey School of Music, located at 122 South Waller avenue, with a branch at 521 Kimball Hall, gave a concert at 454 North Parkside avenue, Austin, last Friday evening, which was attended by a very large audience and which afforded ample proof that many talented young people are studying in this school and that they are gaining a varied knowledge of repertoire as well as having training in the essential details of music.

The piano works chosen for the young pupils were of varied kinds and all of good salon or concert style, with occasional glimpses of the classic, while the very little children, who had been excellently trained by the Misses Coffey, played bits from Bohm, Liehner, Lynes, Durand and other writers of that class with much careful technic and good style.

The pianists were Clara Ryan, Joseph Maloney, Lillian Luedtke, Marie Gallery, Bernadine Smith, Janet Miller, Gladys Robinson, Samuel Lancaster, Regina Byrne, Charlotte Stell, Elizabeth Petridge, Margaret Prendergast, Dolores Gallagher, Alice Byrne, Florence Boyle, Frances Tighe, Marie Coens, Helen Petridge and Everett Ingalls, all of whom were roundly applauded, in every case being recalled to the platform to receive applause.

The singers were also many and of various ages, four little girls, Margaret Prendergast, Marion McDonough, Alice Byrne and Regina Byrne, doing a neat ensemble by White, and others appearing as follows: Marie Gallery, "Summer" (Chaminade); Gordon Solberg, "O Holy Night" (Adam); Dorothy Glenn, "The Swallows" (Cowen); Mrs. John L. Gallagher, "Waiting" (Millard); Marie Phelan, "Spring Song" (Lynes); Leila Booker, "Staccato Polka" (Mulder); Dr. Joseph Woolf, "A Dream" (Bartlett), and Robert Winter, "A Little Pink Rose" (Carrie Jacobs Bond). In most of these numbers the enunciation of text was good, and much musicianship was displayed, besides, in general, a correct interpretative thought.

Some readings were also scheduled by Marie Lancaster and Eleanor Kavanaugh, and the program extended to undue length because of the prevalence of encores, for no matter how much the friends of any singer may desire to honor him in this way, the practical result is always, in a pupils' concert, to make the program too long, and this was true last Friday evening.

On the whole, however, the audience was vastly pleased with what was heard, the young pupils showed much skill and the results of careful study, and the Coffey School must have profited in public estimation through the giving of so varied and so praiseworthy a program. C. E. W.

Weber—Henriette Weber will give her lecture on "Modern Tendencies in Music" at Columbus, Ohio, May 3. The points of the lecture will be illustrated by the playing of piano pieces by Wolf-Ferrari, Debussy, Schoenberg, Reger, Korngold and George Schumann. This is the same lecture that Miss Weber is to give before the Indiana State Music Teachers' Association at Greencastle, April 30.

CHICAGO TEACHERS' CHORUS

The Chicago Teachers' Chorus, under the direction of Mr. O. E. Robinson, gave its second annual concert Tuesday evening, April 20, at Orchestra Hall.

The chorus numbers about 100, and is an organization of school teachers. A large and enthusiastic audience came out to hear this second concert, and they must surely have felt repaid for the effort, for the program was planned to give pleasure. Besides a generous list of chorus numbers, solos were given by Mrs. Luella Chilson-Ohrman, soprano; Mr. Edward Clarke, baritone, and Miss Laura D. Earnist, soprano, and Miss Mary M. Farrell, soprano, who are members of the chorus.

The vocalists were assisted by twenty-two members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Walfrid Singer. Mr. William Underhill presided at the organ and Miss Kathleen Louise Grant played accompaniments on the piano.

O. E. ROBINSON

The orchestra opened the program with an overture, "Il Guarany" (Gomez). Following this was a group of part songs by the chorus, "Sic Vita" (Damrosch), "To Daffodils" (Foote), "Nymphs and Fauns" (Bemberg) and later "Beauteous Morn" (German), "The Little Brown Bee" (Beach) and "The Criss-Cross Baby" (Lynes). Enjoyable readings of these compositions were given and the chorus went on to larger and more difficult things. "Ave Maria" (Lorelei), by Mendelssohn, was given with Miss Earnist singing the obligato. This was so well done that the audience demanded a repetition, which was graciously given. Miss Earnist displayed a most pleasing and well placed voice and a good stage presence. The other numbers of the group were "The Lord Is My Shepherd" (Schubert), "A June Rose" (Colebridge-Taylor) and "'Tis Spring" (Weidig).

Of these the Schubert work was the most successful. "Italian Serenade" (Stevenson) was sung by Mr. Clarke and the chorus, and "List! the Cherubic Host," from Gaul's "Holy City," was given by Miss Farrell, Mr. Clarke and the chorus, with piano, organ and harp accompaniment. It was very effective. Mr. Clarke's well schooled voice filled all the requirements, demonstrating his artistic ability. His solo group comprised "Invictus" (Huhn), "Duna" (McGill) and "Morning" (Speaks).

The orchestra was a well chosen body of players, and their numbers added not only variety but much enjoyment. Mrs. Ohrman sang the "Polonaise" from "Mignon" and the solos in the short cantata "Death of Joan of Arc," which closed the program. This was interesting and for the most part well sung.

Mr. Robinson, in his work with this chorus, is doing splendid things for the teachers. His enthusiasm is inspiring to them and his dignified manner and musicianly interpretations must call forth best endeavors.

M. K. W.

BUSH CONSERVATORY

Friday afternoon, April 23, students of the Bush Conservatory presented a program at the Robert Waller High School, Orchard and Center streets. Those appearing were Miss Helen Nelson, Miss Marietta Livengood, Miss Gertrude Benner, Miss Lillian Fox, Mr. Clay Hart and Miss Vivian Stoik.

Friday evening, April 23, the following students of the Bush Conservatory gave a program at the Kinzie School: Miss Alice Calvert, soprano; Miss Lora E. Williams, reader; Mr. Clay Hart, tenor, and Miss Georgie Dowell, accompanist.

Saturday afternoon, April 24, at 3 o'clock, a studio recital was given by students of the Expression Department of the Bush Conservatory, under the direction of Mae Julia Riley.

Friday evening, April 30, students of the Expression Department of the Bush Conservatory will present "Cupid Wins," a comedieta in one act, by Frances Seymour Mathews, at the Armstrong School in Rogers Park.

Friday evening, April 30, students of the Piano, Violin and Vocal Departments of the Bush Conservatory will give a concert at the Clarke School.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

On Saturday afternoon, May 1, Arthur Olaf Andersen's composition class will present a program of original compositions at Kimball Hall. The program will include a number of meritorious efforts by Alice Margarethe Olsen, Fred Hart, Cora Anderson, Gertrude Steinkraus, Gustave Dunkelberger, William Wuthenow, Jr., and Leo Sowerby.

On Thursday evening, May 6, advanced pupils of Henriot Levy will appear in a concerto recital. Mr. Levy will play the orchestral parts on a second piano.

On Saturday afternoon, May 8, the pupils of Lucy D. Hall will give a public demonstration of their work in Dalcroze Euhrythmics in Kimball Hall.

A COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL RECITAL

Another of the many excellent recitals presented by pupils of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art took place in the Auditorium Recital Hall on Saturday afternoon, April 24.

Many are the recitals we attend, where people part with their perfectly good money to gain admission, which are far inferior to the one heard at Recital Hall on Saturday.

Several of the performers and singers which appeared are almost ready to break into the ranks of the professional musicians, and it was indeed a delight to hear and note the ease and assurance with which each offered the work at hand.

The program opened with the playing of the Sonata, Op. 1, in A Major (allegro giocoso), by Converse, for piano and violin, with Mildred Meents and Wilna Baines, members of the ensemble class as interpreters. Their work received the hearty approval of all present.

Alma Bunch, pianist; Wilna Baines, violinist, and Alexander Spiegel, cellist, also of the same class, closed the program with a performance of the first movement of the "Trio in C Minor" by Foote.

Mrs. Ella Pickel sang "Mighty Lak' a Rose" (E. Nevin) and "Who Knows?" (E. R. Ball) in a very meritorious style, and E. Bernice Ruggles, pianist, played with deep musical expression and excellent finish the first movement of Schumann's "Sonata in G Minor."

A singer who will surely be heard from and already worthy of great tribute is Miss Grace Hunter, soprano and pupil of Mrs. Bracken, president of the school. Miss Hunter possesses a voice of undeniable sweetness and has the interpretative insight and poise to make her songs wholly effective. She sang "Queen of the Mulberry Garden" and "Lady Moon," both by Salter.

Another pupil of Mrs. Bracken who appeared was Lillian Wilhelm, and she likewise gave a splendid account of herself in "Tiny Moccasins" (Lehmann) and "Il segreto per esser felice" (Donizetti). There is refinement in her stage presence and style of delivery, and her voice is in accord to this charming asset.

Miss Lillian Hall, a highly gifted pianist, who has already attained a high point of proficiency, played in a praiseworthy style "Two Caprices," by Sinding, and a "Study in C Sharp Minor," by Chopin.

Mr. Gavin Williamson played Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccio" in a clean, musicianly manner, and proved to be one of the most satisfactory young pianists heard recently.

Gertrude Farrell, soprano and pupil of Miss Stevenson, sang two of Grieg's delightful and always welcome songs, "In the Boat" and "Solvcig's Song," with a fine control of her vocal resources, and interpreted in a convincing manner.

Miss Agnes Bodholdt played accompaniments for the singers which were sympathetic, musicianly and commendable from every viewpoint.

H. M. B.

Owens—Mr. H. W. Owens will conduct "The Creation" at Plymouth, Ind., on May 6. Mr. Palmer Christian will be the organist.

Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam 1B. Carlton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

Musical Festival and Wisconsin Music Teachers at La Crosse

Reviewed by HERBERT M. BAILEY

With the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra giving two superb concerts, the Normal Choral Society rendering "The Messiah," and the Wisconsin Music Teachers' Association in session for three days with its usual quota of high class concerts, the beautiful and entertaining city of La Crosse was the musical mecca of Wisconsin for the four days of April 17, 19, 20 and 21. All concerts and meetings being given and held at the splendid State Normal School, which is established in that city. An auditorium is therein found which proved wholly satisfactory, not only for the larger orchestra and oratorio concerts, but for the recitals as well. The city and Normal School belonged to the musicians during the four days and a very enjoyable and profitable time was the result.

The Symphony Concerts

Under the managership of Mr. Wendell Heighton the Minneapolis Orchestra with its great conductor, Emil Oberhoffer, which is now on its annual spring tour, was brought to La Crosse for the afternoon and evening of Saturday, April 17. No greater musical attraction could have been brought in to open the four days of music than the Minneapolis organization with its list of eminent soloists.

The program for the afternoon, as announced, follows:

- Overture to Rosamunde Schubert
 Music to Midsummer Night's Dream.....Mendelssohn Nocturne.
 Scherzo
 Fantasy for Harp and Orchestra Dubois
 Henry J. Williams
 March and Evening Prayer of the Pilgrims, from Symphony No. 3, Harold in Italy.....Berlioz
 Three Hungarian Dances Brahms
 Arioso—Che gelida manina, from La Boheme.....Puccini
 Albert Lindquist
 Suite—Woodland Sketches, from Op. 51.....MacDowell
 In Autumn
 To a Wild Rose
 From Uncle Remus
 At an Old Trysting Place
 To a Water Lily
 Told at Sunset
 Under the Linden Trees from Scenes Alsaciennes..... Massenet
 'Cello, Cornelius van Vliet
 Clarinet, Pierre Perrier
 Invitation to the Dance.....Weber-Weingartner

The evening program brought forth the following:

- Symphony No. 5, in E Minor, Op. 64.....Tchaikowsky
 Andante—Allegro con anima
 Romanza—Andante cantabile con alcuna licenza
 Valse—Allegro moderato
 Finale—Andante maestoso—Allegro—Allegro
 vivace
 Michaela's Aria, from Carmen Bizet
 Madame Sundelius
 INTERMISSION
 Concerto for Violoncello, No. 1, in A Minor..... Goltermann
 Mr. Van Vliet
 Romanza, from Suite, Op. 19 Dohnanyi
 Theme and Variations from String Quartet in A Major Beethoven
 For String Orchestra
 Aria—Depuis le jour, from Louise Charpentier
 Madame Sundelius

- Caucasian Sketches Ippolitow-Iwan
 Dance in the Mountain Village
 Viola, Karl Scheurer
 English Horn, Gustav Boehler
 March of the Sardar

Homer E. Cotton Directs "Messiah"

On Monday evening the large Normal auditorium held a great and enthusiastic audience when Mr. Homer E. Cotton, head of the music department of the Normal School, mounted to the platform to conduct the Normal Choral Society of over two hundred members, accompanied by the Normal Orchestra through a rendition of Handel's immortal work, "The Messiah." Miss Anna Hickisch, soprano; Miss Alma Beck, contralto; Mr. B. F. Forster, tenor, and Marion Green, bass, were the soloists.

ANNA HICKISCH

When the facts were learned, that the Normal School at La Crosse is only in its sixth year, that Mr. Cotton, the present director of the music department and chorus as well as the orchestra, has only been with the school a year, that the chorus is a volunteer body and made up almost wholly with students of the school as is the orchestra and that "The Messiah" had never been attempted by these singers before there were indeed many remarkable points in reference to this performance.

Great credit is due Mr. Cotton for the smoothness and precision with which the orchestra and chorus delivered its many numbers. This student orchestra was a big point in the success of the evening. An organization which can play movements from Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony," Haydn's "Fifth Symphony," as well as that composer's "Military Symphony" and Elgar's "Serenade" for Strings, Op. 20, is wholly capable to play "The Messiah" score. The above numbers, among many others, have been played by this orchestra this season under Mr. Cotton's direction and it was surprising, enjoyable and very commendable the way the "Overture" and "Pastoral Symphony" were played on Monday night. The accompaniments for all chorus numbers were likewise capital.

HOMER E. COTTON

The chorus sang eleven of the better known numbers, a fact well worthy of mention, in that most choruses do not render that many at their first performance, and they sang them with enthusiasm, sincerity, fine blending of tone at times and considerable expression. "And the Glory of the Lord," "O Thou, That Tellest Good Tidings" and "Glory to God" was especially fresh and inspiring. "Behold the Lamb of God" was taken at a tempo which displayed a great amount of sustaining power on the part of the singers, as did "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs." "Lift Up Your Heads" received a meritorious production and as usual the "Hallelujah Chorus" was the high point in the chorus' achievements of the evening. "Worthy Is the Lamb" closed the performance in stirring style. After seeing and hearing this part of the performance the

SEASON 1915-16
ALBERT
 1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist Steinway Piano

SPALDING

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago

Summer Term Begins June 30

The School for Serious Students

LA CROSSE NORMAL CHORAL SOCIETY IN "MESSIAH"

high attainments of Mr. Cotton as a director was well proven. He directed as one who knew the work at hand extremely well and carried out his fancies and ideas of interpretation with a strict, intelligent and of the war, took a large place in the hearts of the audience on this occasion. There was the atmosphere of a genuine artist thrown out when she arose to sing the first recitatives and "Rejoice Greatly," which are allotted the soprano voice. She possesses the grace, poise and authoritative manner which convinces and brings pleasure to an audience, and while she was not in the best of voice, perhaps, there nevertheless was a beautiful display of tone quality always in evidence and rare musical thought. "Come Unto Him" was very satisfactory and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" found Miss Hickisch at her best. Her voice flowed smooth and free in this well known number and her interpretative insight was a bright spot in the artistic moments of the evening.

It was indeed fortunate that Miss Beck could be present to sing the alto solos. She is now on tour with the Minneapolis orchestra for the second time and wins a host of admirers at her every appearance. Her voice is one of the most beautiful on the concert and oratorio stage at present and she is graced with a personality and stage presence which is wholly charming and her interpretative gifts are of the highest type. Many were the beautiful compliments paid her following this performance of "The Messiah." Elegant indeed did she sing "He Shall Feed His Flock" and "He Was Despised," which proved especially gracious to her admirable artistic gifts.

Mr. Forster was brought down from the Twin Cities to sing the tenor role and he accomplished his task with great eclat. He is one of the leading singers of the northwest and is well known through his position at the "House of Hope," Presbyterian Church of St. Paul, and he won a host of new admirers at La Crosse on this occasion. Mr. Forster possesses a rich powerful tenor voice which should take him far in the oratorio field if he chooses to branch out extensively in that class of work. The beautiful solos given this voice in "The Messiah" are seldom heard to better advantage than this singer offered them. "Comfort Ye" and "Ev'ry Valley" were sung with excellent tone quality, ideal phrasing and deep expression, and "Thou Shalt Dash Them" was given with great dramatic intensity and displayed the sonorous, ringing quality of his voice in a most meritorious style. "Thy Rebuke" as well as "Behold, and See" were also sung in admirable fashion and went far graceful beat. The La Crosse school may well feel proud over having him connected with the school.

ALMA BECK

Miss Hickisch, a former La Crosse girl, who has spent many years abroad singing in opera, and like many other musicians have had to return to America on account toward making the performance an artistic success. Mr. Forster will be welcomed back to La Crosse should he return and the cities of the middle-west will make no mistake by engaging him for their oratorio performances.

B. F. FORSTER

Mr. Green's singing of the bass solos of "The Messiah" is well known. They are no doubt the best things he does. He was in great form at La Crosse and sang with transparent ease. However, the performance would have been more enjoyable at times had Mr. Green refrained from whispering and smiling while others were performing, a well known fault of his, by the way.

All accompaniments for the soloists were played by Miss Edna Roberts, who had a splendid piano at her disposal. She played the difficult music in a very commendable manner and well deserves a place among the responsible persons of the evening.

W. M. T. A. Hold Profitable Meetings

The city of La Crosse proved ideal for a convention of the Wisconsin Music Teachers' Association from the following points of view: It furnished splendid surroundings for meetings and recitals and ample hotel accommodations, the famous Stoddard being headquarters. The populace offered the glad hand to all visitors and entertained in great style from first to last. From another point of view La Crosse was not ideal. Its location in the state failed to bring out an attendance worthy of the important convention held this year. However, if the attendance was small, enthusiasm was great and apparently all who came were determined to make the 1915 meeting the greatest ever held. If accomplishing big tasks go to make up a great convention the La Crosse meeting was a success. The first session of the teachers was scheduled for Monday afternoon, April 19, at which time appointment of committees took place and an informal social hour was held. Tuesday morning at 9:30 Mr. F. A. Cotton, president of the State Normal School at La Crosse, delivered the address of welcome. After gladly extending the hand of welcome to the visiting musicians he spoke in part as follows:

* * *

Teachers and supervisors of public school music and teachers of instrumental music need to be as well educated as the physicians, lawyers, preachers and teachers in the communities in which they work. This can be accomplished only by the state's fixing standards of qualifications for teachers of public school music, and some such organization as yours, fixing the standards of qualifications for teachers of instrumental music. It is now generally conceded that one must have special aptitude and training to succeed in law, medicine, the ministry and school teaching. This concession, on the part of the public, has been slow, and in some places long deferred. These callings are by no means upon the same plane professionally, and in some states some of them can scarcely claim professional dignity at all, so far as legal requirements are concerned. The order of professional rank the country over would probably put medicine first, law second, the ministry third, and teaching last. This order likewise indicates to the average person what is held to be the relative importance of body, property, soul and mind.

When it is remembered that teaching comes fourth in the scale of required qualifications, and that music teaching must be classed with the regular teaching profession, it will be seen how low in some localities are the standards of qualifications for music teachers of all kinds.

There must be better preparations on the part of music teachers everywhere. This organization can do nothing that will accomplish so much for music as to insist upon a standard that will protect the public from the poorly prepared teachers now attempting to teach instrumental music. It is not my purpose to say how this work shall be improved. This is your problem. But, in fixing the standards, it will be necessary, while ferreting out the incompetent teachers, to protect the thousands of conscientious, hard working teachers who are doing good work. The good ones may be endorsed by this organization by certificate or diploma. For all new teachers, something larger and more definite in the way of general scholarship and training in music should be demanded. This organization could set a date after which no new teacher will be recommended by the association who does not meet these new conditions. Some such action as this would protect communities from incompetent young teachers of instrumental music.

Upon organizing this normal school I decided to put the music department upon the same basis as all of the other departments in the school. I decided also to have as a regular part of our work, each year, a study of some one of the oratorios. I did this, not because it was thought that our students could do this work artistically, but because I wanted them to become familiar with the masterpieces in music. Our students have sung Gaul's "Holy City," Rossini's "Stabat Mater," Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," Handel's "Messiah," in order that they might see something of the beauty in these masterpieces, and take in all unconscious their message.

Music in the Public Schools

Educators are just beginning to realize the importance of music in the public schools, and to give it the proper place in the course of study. There was a time when it had the relation of something that was just added to the course. We did not see clearly where it belonged. Now it is recognized that it is an essential phase of the development of character. It has a part of its own in the development of the individual, and furnishes an element in the child's training that nothing else can fill.

Literature has long been recognized as essential in the course of study, and its masterpieces have long been conceded to be part of every child's rightful heritage. Furthermore, we have not stopped with bringing into the child's life these masterpieces that through them he may come in touch with the great heart throbs of humanity and in this way come to an appreciation of beauty, but we have long ago learned that it is just as essential in his education for him to express his own thoughts artistically in connected discourse.

Now music has the same psychological reason for being in the course of study that literature has, and we must give it just as rational treatment. Its masterpieces must be brought into the lives of the children just as early as those of literature. It can bring harmony into their lives and can help them to appreciate beauty.

But it has a technique side, too—a science side. The child must be taught this side, and in this way given another medium for the expression of truth as it comes into his life. So every course of study in music must have three phases:

First, there must be constant presentations of the world's masterpieces that the child may take in all unconsciously the message of music. Second, there must be a rational development of the art. Third, there must be systematic work in musical expression.

In addition, this work should be so skillfully developed from the kindergarten through the high school that every community will constantly have large chorus classes in all stages. So conducted, the music work in the schools can be a direct aid to every phase of community life. Sunday schools, churches and entertainments of all kinds.

Supervisors of music cannot do anything better for the community than to establish a custom of giving, annually, at least, a high grade musical entertainment in which the entire musical talent of the school and the community shall be engaged. This is being done successfully in many communities over the state, and is commendable. As an example of the work that may be done, I call your attention to the presentation by the La Crosse High School last Friday evening of "The Mikado," to a capacity crowd in the La Crosse Theater.

There should be a system of credits worked out and recommended by this association for all work such as that outlined above.

* * *

President Semmann's Address

Following the address of welcome, Dean Liborius Semmann of Marquette Conservatory, Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin Music Teachers' Association, and also president of the Association of Presidents and Past Presidents of all Music Teachers'

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

Associations in the United States, which, by the way, includes sixteen states at present, gave the following splendid address:

Ladies and Gentlemen, Members of the Wisconsin Music Teachers' Association:

Yesterday we entered upon our sixth annual convention. Again the members of the Wisconsin Music Teachers' Association came from every direction of the state. They did not mind the inconvenience brought forth by the time of the convention, which in some cases is very great, as we have exceedingly busy teachers among us; they did not mind the loss of time and the expense incurred by attending the convention, and let me tell you, this also is an item with a good many members. Yes, I know that some of our younger teachers began saving from last October on so as to be able to attend the convention.

What is it that, like a magnetic power, draws the members of the association to the convention and makes them willing to sacrifice time and money? Is it probably a desire to meet old friends, or the wish to make new ones? Is it an anticipation of the exquisite time the good people of La Crosse have provided for us?

We certainly all enjoy meeting our old friends and we are glad to welcome new ones; and we certainly do expect to have a good time, for we are not such hardened pedagogues that we cannot accept and enjoy the pleasures offered us. Yes, we are in it for all it is worth! But as much as we do hope to enjoy the company of every one present, it is not that which is drawing us to La Crosse. It is something better, something nobler; it is something reaching deeper into our lives. It is the inspiration we derive from mutual exchange of thoughts and experiences, and from the exquisite concerts we expect to hear; it is the desire to learn from experienced men and women who so kindly consented to speak on subjects which confront our profession today; it is a feeling of patriotism which brings us to La Crosse so that we may discuss means and ways to elevate musical conditions in Wisconsin.

Musical conditions in Wisconsin confront us in two closely related problems. The first one we had under consideration for several years; high school credits to be granted for lessons given by private teachers and music schools; and the other, which must necessarily follow, a standard of attainment for music teachers.

There is an awakening going on throughout our country in regard to music as an educational factor. The study of music was ignored by the high schools and universities, and leading educators ridiculed the idea of music possessing educational values. The fact that music is the best medium we have to develop the finer senses in man was disregarded entirely. Today, conditions are changing. Universities are beginning to recognize the power of music as an educator and are willing to accept it as a study for entrance credit if the high schools will give it the necessary attention.

This movement is not new. It began when Dr. Lowell Mason, in the early forties, transplanted the ideas of a singing school into the public schools of Boston and made the children sing. From there it spread and grew until today the singing in the public schools is under the special supervision of a trained supervisor of music. Nevertheless, the public school music course as we have it today is not satisfactory, as it is incomplete. It does not correspond with our idea of building a musical nation. It is one-sided, for it confines itself only to one branch of music, to singing. Consequently, the greater musical forms expressed in instrumental music are omitted. The study of an instrument has as yet no place in our schools.

School authorities admit that every child has a right to learn how to sing, and that in school. But I ask, has a child not the same right to learn to play an instrument? I believe every child has a right to demand it, yes, that such study be credited by the schools. And why should it not? Music is a greater educational force than most people surmise. It is a worthy companion of any study in the curriculum of the high schools and universities. Its power as a developer of the mind is gradually being recognized by leading educators. The schools are awakening to the fact that music is a necessary study. I ask, is there a more difficult study in any school or university than theory and its various branches? Or is there anything in their courses which can surpass musical analysis in intellectual value? Permit me to quote from an address by Superintendent Collins of St. Louis on the value of music as a study in high schools:

"The claim of any subject to a place in the scheme of study depends in degree and in fact on—

1. Its intellectual and spiritual reaction.

"What other study in this respect transcends the study of music? The control of the body, the exercise of all the forms of mental activity, memory, judgment, observation, historical and biographical sympathy, literary, artistic, mathematical understanding; all of these are involved in it and should be recognized by those who set the seal of approval on the value of so-called courses of study.

"The same number of hours spent on the earnest study of music should receive the same academic recognition as an equivalent number of hours spent on chemistry, literature, history, or political science, in so far as these latter are expected to minister to culture."

Therefore we maintain that music has a right to demand recognition in the curriculum of our high schools, and that not only as a subject in a regular musical course, but also as an elective, so that any pupil may elect certain branches of the music course, meeting his own particular needs. Every pupil, immaterial as to which course he pursues, has a right to the refining influence of music.

Certainly it would be impossible to satisfy the demand of the public by giving lessons in the schools; therefore, as you know, the idea is to gain recognition from the schools for lessons given by private teachers and music schools. We have worked along this line for several years. Different committees have been busy gathering material, so that we are now ready to formulate courses with music as a major study. Our present committee has been very active, and conferred with school authorities in different parts of the state, so that it is now able to present a practical course to the association.

This is well and good. A course with music as a major study, sanctioned by well known school authorities, will be accepted, without a doubt, by the school board. Some schools will begin and others must follow. The Racine high school, by the way, will open a course in applied music in September. But considering the situation in general, will the school boards accept the general music teacher as competent? Here is the difficulty. We all know that there are good as well as poor teachers, and that there is no way of discriminating between them. We all know that there are among those commonly known as first-class teachers, some unworthy of this distinction. Teaching of music is as free as the air we breathe. There is nothing to prevent anyone teaching music, for there are no requirements. Can we expect the school authorities to accept the services of a profession which has no distinction as to proficiency? There is the barrier which separates the schools and the musical profession, and it is up to us to remove it. How can we do this? By standardizing the profession.

A standard of attainment is what we must strive for. It must be an academic standard. An academic standard implies a few studies which are not generally recognized as necessary by musicians. Without the study of musical history and theory of music, an academic standard is out of the question. How many musicians are there who have even a fundamental knowledge of theory? How many are there who can give good definitions of even the rudimentary symbols pertaining to our art? How many are there who know that music has a history closely related to the history of the world? And that the changes in it are so intimately interwoven with the different periods of world's history that we cannot fully understand it unless we know the history of the world? How necessary the study of these two subjects is, the theory and history of music, is proved by the fact that one of the principal ideas of an academic standard is the study of the classics.

If we examine the curriculum of the higher schools we shall invariably find that a knowledge of the classics is necessary in acquiring a good education. A musician cannot be considered a thoroughly educated musician unless he is at home in the classics. Not only in one branch, as for instance in the vocal, but in all branches, the vocal and the instrumental. Let me give you an example of what is often considered a study in the classics. A new pupil enters our studio. Upon the question, What have you studied? He answers, "Only classical music." Oh, is that so? we reply. What, for instance? I play (or sing, as the case may be) selections from different operas, as for instance, Il Trovatore, Bohemian Girl, Poet and Peasant, and the like. If you should ask a piano student if he played anything besides opera selections, he may answer, "Yes, I play the Maiden's Prayer and Convent Bells." This shows that a good many in our profession have no idea of what constitutes a study in the classics. I doubt whether the teachers from whom such pupils come, ever heard the name Bach, Beethoven, Handel, Haydn or Gluck, not to mention Scarlatti, Heinrich, Schuetz and the like. It is certainly not to the credit of the profession that such conditions are found in all departments of music, in voice as well as in the instrumental. It is surprising that school authorities never considered music as a principal study in the schools? It is up to us to better these conditions.

The acceptance of a standard along rational lines and its subsequent recognition by the schools, will be a protection for the music teacher against the charlatan. If music is an accredited study then parents will wish their children to receive the credit and will naturally be very careful in the selection of a teacher. Furthermore, there will be no more missed lessons, for if the course reads 80 lessons a year, eighty lessons will be required, and not sixty or seventy. Missed lessons will have to be made up. What a blessing that will be for the private teacher! Poorly prepared lessons cannot be accepted, as a report of the nature of the lessons must be presented to the principals, and unprepared lessons would mean a loss of credit. Consequently the certified teacher will be greatly benefited and will receive the support of the public and the schools.

But how shall we standardize? Some states are for legislative action, others are against it. On February 3 of this year, there was organized in Chicago, as you all know, an Association of all Presidents of Music Teachers' Associations in the United States. There was a unanimous vote cast for standardization, and a uniform standard outlined which is to be presented to the different associations for adoption. The sentiment of the majority present at that meeting was not in favor of legislation, at least not for a while. Several state associations had a bill before the legislature and although it was well drawn and the best and foremost members of the associations appeared before the committee to fight for its adoption, the measure was lost. Why was it lost? Because in the first place, its feasibility was doubted, and then the musicians who sought this measure were looked upon as meddlers, as people who try to take away the bread of possibly some hard working mother in the country districts, whose sole means or earning a livelihood for herself and her children depends upon the music lessons she gives for a very small remuneration; again, through such

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stouy Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
300 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

a measure the rural districts would be without music teachers as it is impossible for an accredited teacher to live in the country on the small amount they would receive for their service. These are the main reasons, as I understand it, why the bill was lost. Other states which at first favored legislation have, after earnest deliberation, decided that it is unwise to standardize by legislation. And why? Because this issue must not fall into the hands of politics, and because the association is the only body capable of appointing a board of examiners. Therefore, it is desirable at first to standardize the association. That means to standardize, not by elimination but by elevation.

I think we also ought to follow this course. My friends and colleagues, let us standardize by elevation and not by elimination! We will gain more if we standardize through friendliness than through severity. After we have proved to the satisfaction of the superintendent of public instruction that standardization of music is possible, and after we have given all teachers a fair chance to qualify, then let us approach legislative action. But this action must be in a measure which will take the power of appointing the board of examiners out of the hands of the governor and the superintendent of public instruction, and place it with the association. The association would then have to vouch for the proficiency of the board of examiners. In this way the issue would be protected against political graft.

If we follow this course, we will have something better than any immediate legislation could give us. Or don't you think it will mean something to possess a certificate of proficiency of any degree or degrees given by the association? Especially if we do it together with all music teachers' associations in the United States? Remember that means our certificate will be recognized by all state music teachers' associations. I believe that if we standardize the association, and do it right, a certificate issued by our association will bear the same weight with the music teachers as that of the American Guild of Organists does for the organists. You all know what that means.

In concluding I wish to give you a little information of what other state associations are doing in this matter.

Minnesota has three grades of licenses, the licentiate, the associate and the fellow. It has had examinations for several years with good success. The high schools recognize the certificates of the association and for the last three years have given credit for music lessons taken from outside teachers. One full credit is allowed, each term, or about one-quarter necessary for passing.

Kansas. Through the urgent calls from high school principals of the state, who demanded better teachers in music and a systematic plan whereby they could issue credits to high school students for music study outside the school, the Kansas Music Teachers' Association devised its courses and standards. It has three grades, like Minnesota. Virtually all of the large cities of Kansas issue credits to the high school students for music study outside the school. The high school principals will demand that students receive instruction from state accredited teachers only.

Ohio has four grades. It is very active and is at present seeking legislation.

Illinois has three grades and will have its first examinations in May for the licentiate degree. The University of Illinois will grant entrance credit for music from September, 1915, on. Superintendents and principals may apply to the High School Visitors Office for entrance credit on the following basis: "Music may receive one or one and one-half or two credits—nothing less than one or more than two credits will be allowed." That places music on the same basis as other studies.

Missouri has only one degree. It has had examinations for several years, and is now considering high school credits.

New York adopted in 1913 an "Essential Standard" which requires that all teachers who wish to be recognized by the association must satisfy the examiners that they are able to teach the essential things of their branch. Michigan, Louisiana, Indiana, the Northwestern Music Teachers' Association, comprising the states of Washington, Idaho and Oregon; California, Iowa and North Carolina are discussing standardization.

Nebraska has no association, but nevertheless there is a bill before the legislature to standardize the profession.

My friends and colleagues, we have the experience of a good many associations before us. Let us follow their example and standardize our association. declare our independence in music and in harmony with all other music teachers' associations make this our beloved country a musical nation second to none!

"The Association Standardizes"

After hearing the above address it was plainly evident that "Standardization" was the big issue of the 1915 convention. At 10:30 on Tuesday morning Dr. Charles H. Mills, director School of Music at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, read a splendid paper on this subject which was followed by a discussion led by Miss Lillian Watts of Racine. The business meetings of Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, which consumed many hours, were exceedingly thrilling for the many lively debates and discussions which took place. However, it was at these sessions where big things were accomplished. The association voted in by a large majority "Standardization" identical to that passed by the state music teachers of Illinois one year ago. Music News hopes to print in the next week or so this act of standardization and the Wisconsin board of examiners.

The election of officers disclosed the following: Dean Liborius Semmann of Milwaukee was re-elected president; Professor F. A. Parker, Madison, was elected honorary president; Mrs. Estella Hall Reade, Ripon, vice president; Georgia C. Hyde, Madison, secretary; Mrs. Anna S. Heilmann, Merrill, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles E. McLenagan, Milwaukee, auditor.

Papers, Recitals, Amusements

On Wednesday morning the report on credits for public school music was given. The committee which had this work in charge was composed of Miss Lillian Watts, Racine; Professor F. F. Churchill, Platteville, and Mr. Theodore Winkler, Sheboygan. The report was followed by a discussion by members of the association.

Another paper on voice by Miss Elizabeth Harding and read by Estella Hall Reade in the author's absence furnished an enjoyable hour. The subject was "Articulation and Its Betterment," and was indeed handled in an intelligent manner.

On Wednesday afternoon a paper on "Community Service," which had been beautifully written by Mrs. J. S. Morris, president of the Philharmonic Club, Waupun, was read by Mrs. Elizabeth Battle Bintliff, School of Music, Ripon. A discussion followed this led by Professor Peter W. Dykema of the University of Wisconsin. He is one of the state's greatest educators along musical lines and not only at this particular hour did he make the convention interesting but at all other times as well. His views on music for the masses are broad and have been obtained only after years of study and experience. He is indeed a great man for the state and for the W. M. T. A.

On Tuesday night a good sized audience assembled in the Normal Auditorium to hear Arthur Shattuck, a Wisconsin pianist, who offered his services for the good of the cause and give a splendid recital. He created unusual comment.

Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 Miss Wilna

Soverhill, a brilliant young Wisconsin violinist, with Miss Luella Mae Treat, accompanist, and Mr. Theophil Jenny, pianist, of Monroe, gave a short and very enjoyable recital for the teachers.

A pleasurable portion of the convention came at 11:30 Wednesday noon when a long line of automobiles furnished by the citizens of La Crosse took the visiting musicians for a merry spin over several miles of the city's paved streets and through its beautiful parks. At 5:30 on the same afternoon a very enjoyable social time was indulged in by the association at the banquet held at the city Y. M. C. A.

h h h

The Closing Concert

Florence Bettray, pianist; Karl Schulte, violinist, both of Racine; Elgia Wittwer, contralto, and Georgia C. Hyde, accompanist, both of Madison, closed the convention with a splendid recital in the Auditorium on Wednesday evening. The program opened late with Miss Bettray and Mr. Schulte giving a brilliant rendition of the four movements of Schutt's "Suite in D Minor," Op. 44. Mr. Schulte, who is well known in the concert field, especially Chicago, through his connection with the Chicago Musical College, proved to be one of the most satisfying artists heard during the four days of music.

His personality, style of playing and musicianship reminds one very much of Albert Spalding. He has the poise of a much older performer and he has the technic and interpretative gifts with which to play the most difficult compositions in the most finished and praiseworthy manner. Especially notable was his playing of the five delightful "Indian Sketches," by Burleigh. To Mr. Schulte fell the task of closing the program at which time he played with beautiful tone and excellent phrasing a "Song on the G String," by Mendelssohn-Kreisler; "Allegretto," Boccherino-Kreisler; "Pierrot-Serenade," Randegger, and a "Mazurka" by Valpe.

Miss Wittwer, who possesses a rich well schooled voice of the pure contralto type, made a complete success with her part of the program. She sang songs in German by Rubinstein, Wagner and Hildach at her first appearance, and at her second sang the well known aria from "Samson and Delilah," "Mon Coeurs' Ouvre la Voix." Her last group contained songs by Buck, Salter, Del Riego and Cowen. Her singing was much enhanced by the sympathetic and finished accompaniments furnished by Mrs. Hyde.

Miss Bettray was indeed a welcome addition to the program. She is a fine pianist and aroused great applause by her playing of a "Concert Etude," by MacDowell, and two of her own compositions. It would have been a pleasure to hear more from her.

Announcement of the place for next year's meeting of the W. M. T. A. will be made in the near future.

Thomas N. MacBurney
Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
 608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

HAROLD HENRY PUPILS IN RECITAL

Mr. Harold Henry presented several pupils in a program of piano music at Thurbur Hall last Saturday afternoon and again won the approval of all who know what absolutely artistic piano pedagogy means and at the same time he proved again the fact that his class contains several pupils who, if they but persevere in the good way they are now traveling will certainly arrive at points of excellence which will be discovered and admired by the great public.

Miss Agnes Lee Smith played the Bach-Liszt "Fantasy" in G, with spirit and certainty, Miss Lenore Wood was cool, decisive and exact in a Beethoven "Sonata" and quite virtuosic in the Mendelssohn "Hunting Song."

Miss C. Bess Bennett disclosed good tone and fine artistic ideals in the Schumann "Concerto" and Miss Clara Harsh proved herself already an artist to be reckoned with in her powerful work in the "Eroica" sonata by MacDowell and her brilliancy in the "Waldestrauchen" of Liszt.

Mrs. C. E. Buckley, who is professional in every sense of the word, closed the program with a reading of the tricky E Minor "Concerto" by Chopin which disclosed an abundance of technic, a great variety and virility of tone and a musical sense which permits her to introduce a wealth of shading and tone color. C. E. W.

CHAMBER MUSIC

The Society of American Musicians will present a series of chamber music concerts, under direction of Ludwig Becker and Hugo Kortschak, at Fullerton Hall, on Sundays at 3 p. m., at popular prices. The dates and programs follow:

May 2—Tschaiakowsky "Trio," Boccherini "Minuet" and Schumann "Quintet." Assisting artists: Miss Lillian Price, soprano; Mr. Frank McNellis, baritone; Miss Florence Schöhl, pianist; Mr. Sidney Arno Dietch, pianist.

May 9—Mendelssohn "Trio," Dvorak "Quartet" and Franck "Sonata." Assisting artists: Chicago Artists' Quartet; Miss Nellie Sturtevant, contralto; Miss Florence Hedström, soprano; Mr. Carl Craven, tenor; Mr. Alonzo Morsback, baritone; Miss Nina Nessirow, pianist; Miss Julia Rebeil, pianist; Mr. Clinton Fahrney, pianist; Miss Marie Bergersen, pianist.

May 16—Beethoven "Septet," Grieg "Sonata" and Mozart "Quintet." Assisting artists: Miss Lucia May Smith, soprano; Mr. Alexander Gray, baritone; Mr. William G. Hill, pianist.

May 23—Godard "Trio," Dvorak "Terzetto," Brahms "Sonata" and Arensky "Trio." Assisting artists: Miss Margaret Messer, soprano; Mrs. Edna Swanson Ver Haar, contralto; Miss Irene McClung, pianist; Mr. Harold Yates, pianist.

May 30—Schubert "Quintet" (The Trout) and Dvorak "Quintet." Assisting artists: Miss Ellen Loveless, soprano; Miss Bess Beyer, soprano; Miss Marie Bergersen, pianist; Miss Marion Lychenheim, pianist.

Art galleries open free. Admission to Fullerton Hall, 10 cents.

Hamilton—Mrs. Jessie Mack Hamilton will present Miss Ada Williams in a fine song recital program at her residence studio, 5057 Winthrop avenue, on next Sunday afternoon at 4. Miss Williams will sing a long list of standard numbers and Mrs. Hamilton will close the program with a well-selected group, including songs by Jeanne Boyd, with the composer at the piano. Grace Keesler will be the accompanist for the balance of the program.

A RECITAL AT OGDEN PARK

Once each season, Bertha Smart Iredale, who maintains a very busy studio at 357 West Sixty-third street, gives her large class of vocal students the opportunity of public performance by presenting them in recital at one of the many south-side assembly halls. This year the splendid concert room found in the field house of Ogden Park, Racine avenue and Sixty-fifth street, was chosen, and the recital took place on Friday evening, April 23, before a large and appreciative audience. An even dozen hopeful and aspiring young singers appeared during the evening and furnished a real treat to those present, and at the same time gave a splendid account of the work being done in this particular studio. With one or two exceptions, each singer offered two numbers, well chosen, apparently, for the vocal, interpretative and musical abilities of each. The songs were all of a bright and inspiring nature and delightful to hear. Several splendid voices were heard in various stages of development, but there was noted in all the true ring of sincerity and a desire to learn and do something worth while in this difficult art.

Mrs. H. A. Gilkison, the Misses Hamilton, Schleyer, McAbee, Easterly, Michenfelder, Schultz and Kappelman, and Messrs. William Wrath, I. S. Kassel, H. A. Kilgison and Robert Riendeau furnished the fore and greater part of the program, the last portion being given by Mrs. Iredale, who sang "Hark, Hark, the Lark" (Schubert) and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah" (Saint-Saens), in a style which displayed her voice in a fine light and drew from her hearers a great burst of applause.

Miss Connel was the only pianist who appeared, though several were previously announced. She played the "Cascade du Chaudron" (Bendel) in a brilliant manner, and thus closed the program. The audience demanded her return to the platform several times. Miss Easterly played admirable accompaniment throughout the evening. H. M. B.

NORTH SHORE SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The North Shore School of Music, Charles J. Haake, director, presents a program this evening, under direction of Hilda B. Brown, when the following numbers will be given:

Carmina	Wilson
Pilgrims' Chorus	Wagner
Glee Club
Happy Birds	Holst
Gladys Inglis, Clare Brinkman, Marjorie Gallagher
Deep River (Negro Melody)	Coleridge-Taylor
Miss Soverhill
Fly, Singing Bird, Fly	Elgar
Glee Club
Somewhere a Voice Is Calling	Tate
Make Believe	Bond
Clare Brinkman
A Hong Kong Romance	Hadley
Wanted, a Husband	Warner
Glee Club
The Soul of the Violin	Merrill
Shepard Kelley
How Lovely are the Messengers	Mendelssohn
Medley, American Airs	Hilton
Glee Club
Doris Trafford, accompanist for Glee Club

Donath—Kurt Donath is rehearsing the Von Suppe "Lovely Galatea" with his opera class, the work to be given in Chicago in the near future.

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Av., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert
Pupils Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

MR. JOHN A. HOFFMANN
Tenor

CHEVALIER PIER ADOLFO TIRINDELLI
Violin, Ensemble and Orchestral Conducting

MR. FREDERIC SHAILER EVANS
Pianist

MR. THEODOR BOHLMANN
Pianist

MR. EDGAR Counterpoint

MR. KARL OTTO STAPS
Organist

MR. JULIUS STURM
Cellist

MR. LOUIS SCHWEBEL
Pianist

MRS. THEODOR BOHLMANN
Pianiste

MR. HUGO SEDERBERG
Pianist

MISS HELEN MAY CURTIS
Elocution and Expression

Cincinnati College of Music

Conducted according to the advanced methods of
A FACULTY of INTERNATIONAL REPUTATION department with special

Literature, Expression, MUSIC

Special Features: Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate
Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, Musical Instruction

*All Departments open throughout the Summer.
Exceptional opportunities for Public Work.*

STUDENTS ENROLLING

For Catalogue Address MISS BERTHA BAUR

EDGAR STILLMAN KELLEY
Composition and Musical Analysis

M. MARCIAN THALBERG
Pianist

DR. FERY LULEK
Baritone

MR. WILHELM KRAUPNER
Pianist

MR. BERNARD STURM
Violinist

Conservatory MUSIC

48th Year

the most progressive European Conservatories LOCATION. Location ideal. Residence prior equipment.

IC Language, Dramatic Art

ate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.
cial Summer Courses in Public School Music.
essional Engagements for Graduates.

AT ANY TIME

Directress, Highland Av. and Oak St., CINCINNATI, O.

MRS. MORRIS C. C. C. C.
Pianist

M. ALFRED NOVAK
French Language and Diction

MR. LEO PAALZ
Pianist

MR. HAROLD BECKET GIBBS
History of Music, Boy Choir,
Gregorian Chant

MRS. EDGAR STILLMAN KELLEY
Piano and Applied Harmony

MRS. KATE HAWKINS
Piano and Harmony

GEORGE W. MUNRO

This season has been a very busy one at the Munro Studios in the Athenaeum Building. Mr. Munro's teaching time has been fully occupied with his usual large class, while the regular weekly rehearsals of the two choruses, the Munro Singers and the Ladies' Club, have added a varied and consistent interest to the studio work.

Mr. Munro is a strong believer in the value of experience in concerted singing for all who expect to make music a profession. He has organized these clubs solely for the benefit of his own pupils, though they are open to others upon invitation and after the voice has been tested and accepted by Mr. Munro.

The Munro Singers have just passed their first anniversary as an organization. The club has a membership of sixty. It has made three public appearances during the past year, the soloists on each occasion being chosen from the club members.

The music taken up has been of a miscellaneous character, it being Mr. Munro's idea to confine the work to no one particular style of composition. Dudley Buck's "Legend of Don Munio" has been the piece de resistance of the season. Added to this have been some good part songs, a choral fantasia from "Lohengrin" and a concert version of "The Chimes of Normandy," which is just now under rehearsal.

The work Mr. Munro is doing with this club is truly remarkable.

The general mechanics of concerted singing, accuracy of pitch, precision of attack and release, rhythm and the common dynamics are being grasped satisfactorily, but those are things we take for granted in any chorus that aspires to serious and worthy work. It is in the exceptional tonal values he secures, the spontaneity of interpretation that Mr. Munro's unique qualities of directorship are evidenced. Under his baton bravura passages have an incisive brilliancy of tone that is stirring, legatos ripple and purl, broad, dignified movements take on a ringing sonority, while lighter bits are delivered with a grace and delicacy that is a delight. There are no machine-like effects of loud and soft, fast and slow, stereotyped and arbitrarily built up climaxes; instead the music flows out with all the unstudied variety of one great voice reflecting a master mind.

This singing club is only in its infancy, just giving promise of what may be expected of it, but already it is making a place for itself.

The Ladies' Club has a personnel of twenty picked voices. It has been organized two years and is doing work of an exceptional character. The precision, finish and charm of their singing is a splendid tribute to their director.

Next season Mr. Munro expects to feature this club in all of his public work, and to offer them for professional engagements.

In June Mr. Munro will graduate four of his pupils. By this he means he has completed his work upon their voices. Each one has a free, spontaneous tone production, correct breath support and an even scale throughout her legitimate range. These graduates are Misses Minnie Lang, Vesta Marrs, Charlotte Kimball and Alice Hammond.

Miss Lang has a broad, dramatic, soprano voice of exceptional quality and splendid range. Mr. Munro has prepared her particularly for Wagnerian opera, though she is well equipped for any sort of singing within her voice. She brings to her work fine temperamental gifts, good style and splendid poise.

Miss Marr's voice is a coloratura soprano of remarkable flexibility and purity. The perfect evenness, depth and soft texture of her tone are exceptional in a voice of this type. Sincerity and thorough musicianship are evidenced in all her singing.

Miss Kimball has a lyric soprano voice of distinctly dramatic coloring; brilliant, full and telling throughout its entire range. She sings with much individual charm and is well equipped for concert or church work.

Miss Hammond's is a genuine contralto, that rarity among women's voices. Her quality is peculiarly suave, sonorous and beautiful. She has all the splendid depth of tone so much to be desired in the contralto voice, with none of the loginess usually associated with it—a distinctive feature of Mr. Munro's work with this type of voice.

In January Miss Lang gave an evening recital in the studio. On February 27, Miss Marrs appeared. Both programs were splendid expositions of the work and musical gifts of these two singers.

Miss Hammond will offer her recital May 8; Miss Kimball May 22. On June 12 Mr. Munro will present his four graduates in a joint program, marking the formal conclusion of their student work. They will then be ready for their professional work, with or without special coaching for it, as they may choose.

Miss Ethel Grow, contralto soloist of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Mr. Munro's graduate of last year, has been spending the past season in London, coaching with Sir Henry Wood, preparatory to beginning her public work in England.

Each year, now, Mr. Munro expects to present one or more such graduates. Some especially promising voices are coming on among his younger pupils.

Last Saturday evening, April 24, a program was given by eight of these first and second year pupils, disclosing several young singers of exceptional promise and ability.

Beginning with December, informal studio recitals have been given the second Saturday of each month by pupils of all grades. Some fifty voices have been heard on these programs. The fourth Saturday of each month there has been an evening recital. From now until the conclusion of the season, in June, there will be a program every Saturday evening.

The social events have been no small factor in the studio life of the year. Nearly every month has seen some sort of jolly gathering in Mr. Munro's big, home-like rooms. An evening just of games or cards and dancing—something for everyone to enjoy, and everyone thoroughly enjoying it. A studio party has come to mean a royal good time, no matter when or under what circumstances.

At Christmas time the singing clubs surprised Mr. Munro with a box of gold pieces. He was also presented with a fine life-sized picture of himself, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Down, and a handsome mahogany platform with velvet drape and electric lightings, made and given to him by Winfield Dunlap.

The members of the singing clubs now have a handsome lyre-shaped gold pin, lettered with M. S., an emblem of good work, good time and good fellowship for all who wear it.

The season's work will be formally ended with the graduating recital, June 12, but Mr. Munro will continue his weekly club rehearsals and will do a limited amount of teaching throughout the summer.

—###—

FLORENCE I. LANG, LOUISE LINDER AND HOWARD VAN SWERINGEN IN RECITAL AT THURBER HALL

On Tuesday evening, April 20, a fine recital was given by Florence I. Lang, soprano; Louise Linder, pianist, and Howard van Sweringen, tenor.

Mr. van Sweringen, tenor, has made rapid strides in his art, and as a teacher and singer he has gained a fine place for himself. His voice is of good quality, and he uses it with much skill in the interpretation of songs. His stage presence is attractive and his personality very ingratiating. He was heard in the opening group, comprising Mendelssohn's "Nachtlied," "Unge duld" (Schubert) and Grieg's "Johannisnacht." He uses the rarest sort of intelligence in the presentation of songs, and his musicianship is of a high order. The interpretations of the Grieg and Mendelssohn numbers were thoroughly artistic and effective.

Miss Linder is a young pianist with much musical ability. Her technic is very reliable, enabling her to meet all difficulties with apparent ease. She played the Brahms "Capriccio," B Minor, and "Rhapsodie," G Minor, in a masterful way, with fine tonal qualities and interpretative thought, which bespeaks a thorough musicianship. The Chopin "Preludes" were also played with much fluency of technic and good rhythmic values. She should go far in her chosen work.

Miss Lang has a voice of good quality and range, over which she has good control, enabling her to express to a nicety the sentiments involved in a varied list of songs. She speaks the French text in a delightful manner, and her singing of numbers by Ferrari, Chaminade, Massenet and Gounod will be remembered as an artistic joy. Notably good were her renditions of "Le Mirior" and "The Srenade." Handel's "Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me" was sung with a good breadth of style, showing the singer in a favorable light.

Mr. Hermann Schubert was the accompanist.
H. W. P.

—###—

Western Conservatory—The Western Conservatory of Music announces a recital by the pupils of Margaret Dahlström (voice) and E. H. Scott (piano), at the Conservatory Parlors in the Mallers Building, this (Friday) evening.

—###—

Hayes—Miss Lucy Hayes, soprano, and Charles Mixer, violinist, were soloists at a sacred concert at the First Baptist Church—direction of John Allen Richardson—on last Sunday evening.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

SENIOR RECITAL OF HEINRICH ANDRE SCHMIDT

Mr. Heinrich Andre Schmidt, a Grant-Schaefer pupil, sang the following program before a musically appreciative audience on Friday evening, April 20, at the Northwestern University School of Music:

German Songs—
Salomo (Heine)	G. Henschel
Gott ist mein Hirte (Biblische Lieder)	Dvorak
Herr nun sing ich (Biblische Lieder)	Dvorak
Songs from "Dichterliebe" (Heine)	Schumann
Im wunderschönen Monat Mai
Aus meinen Thränen sprissen
Ein Jungling liebt ein Mädchen
Ich hab im Traum geweinet
Ich grölle nicht
O! du mein holder Abendstern (from Tannhauser)	Wagner
(Cello obligato by Mr. Defty)
Mr. Schmidt
Etude in F Major	Mendelssohn
Ballade, Op. 10, No. 1	Brahms
Gavotte in A Flat Minor	Sgambati
Mr. Wessel

English Songs—
Little Fleur-de-Lys (Eardley-Wilmot)	Martin
Who Can Keep a Secret? (Byron)	E. Cowdell
I Know a Hill (H. Boyer)	B. Whelpley
Song of Provence (M. L. Baum)	d'Ozanne
Red Haired Girl (A. Bunten)	C. Milligan Fox
Since You Went Away (Johnson)	J. R. Johnson
Wind Song (A. H. Fischer)	J. H. Rogers
Celeste (Macy)	Newcomb
Mr. Schmidt

Mr. Schmidt sang all of his songs in a musicianly and finished manner, the German numbers being especially commendable. Mr. Dwight Defty played the 'cello obligato well, and Mr. Mark Wessel made a good impression in his group of piano numbers. Mr. Grant-Schaefer played the accompaniments. That the School of Music can present programs of such merit by its students is worth noting.

BUSH TEMPLE

David Baxter, basso, and Guy Herbert Woodard, violinist, will give the following program at Bush Temple this (Friday) evening, with Edgar Nelson and Lucille Wallace, accompanists:

Suite, D Minor, Op. 44	Schuett
Allegro risoluto
Canzonetta and variations
Miss Wallace and Mr. Woodard
Si tra i ceppi	Handel
Infelice	Verdi
Mr. Baxter
Caprice, Op. 7	Herbert Butler
(Dedicated to Mr. Woodard)
Hungarian Dances, 7th and 8th	Brahms-Joachim
Mr. Woodard
Der Doppelgänger	Schubert
Ein Schwan	Grieg
Stille Sicherheit	Franz
Morgen	Strauss
Zueignung	Strauss
Mr. Baxter
Gypsy Airs	Sarasate
Tambourin Chinois	Kreisler
Mr. Woodard
Sing Me a Song	Old Scotch
Leather Bottle	Old English
The Three Fishers	Cruikshanks
Invictus	Huhn
Mr. Baxter
Symphonie Espagnole	Lalo
Allo- non troppo
Andante
Rondo
Mr. Woodard

IN BRIEFER FORM

Bachman—Miss Leah Marks and Miss Charlotte Noell, pupils of Miss Ella Bachman, sang with great success last Saturday at the Auditorium Club Room, before the New Jersey Society.

Little Theater—The current attraction at the Little Theater is "Puppets." The "Trojan Women" company during the past week has played in Ann Arbor, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Oberlin.

Longman—Marie White Longman gave the Schubert "Maid of the Mill" cycle at Aurora recently with pronounced success. The Beacon-News of that city devotes a two-column review to the function.

Cosmopolitan—The Cosmopolitan School of Music announces a summer term from June 28 to July 31 at their rooms in the Auditorium Building. The courses offered will be comprehensive and valuable.

Indiana Music Teachers' Association—The annual meeting of the I. M. T. A. is now in session at Greencastle, Ind. No program was received, but a report will appear in the next issue of Music News.

Sherwood School—The Sherwood Music School presented Mabelle Church Van Alstyne, G. Magnus Schutz and George Ralph Kurtz in a Liza Lehmann program at Thurber Recital Hall last evening.

Northwestern University—At Music Hall of the School of Music, Miss Bianca Marvin gave a violin recital on April 22 and Miss Helen Buck, pianist, and Mr. Miller Callahan, baritone, appeared on the 27th.

Miller—Reed Miller, tenor, and Nevada van der Veer, contralto, are in the south giving joint recitals. They will appear at Morgantown, N. C., Selma, Ala., Milledgeville and Macon, Ga., and in various other cities.

Herdien—Mabel Sharp Herdien, soprano, sang at a Masonic installation in Chicago April 21, Sunday Evening Club concert, 22, and Madison, Wis., 23. She will leave on April 26 to give a recital at Amarillo, Tex., and to appear in "The Messiah," returning to Chicago May 1.

Proctor—Warren Proctor, tenor, has been engaged for the tenor role of "The Lay of the Bell," by Max Bruch, which will be sung in German by the Singverein, under the direction of William Boeppler, at the Auditorium, May 30, accompanied by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

The Strollers—The "Old Friends," a theatrical-social organization has changed its name, very appropriately, to "The Stroll-ers," as it embraces all sorts of public performers, including musicians. The annual "Strollers' Revel" will be held at the Studebaker Theater on May 7 (matinee).

Dufau-Devries—The benefit concert by Mlle. Jenny Dufau and pupils of Mr. Herman Devries will be one of the big events of the spring season. It is scheduled for the Blackstone Theater, on Sunday afternoon, May 2. An act of "Lakme" will be given, as well as a splendid miscellaneous program.

Sturkow-Ryder—Mme. Sturkow-Ryder announces the fourth of the five classical recitals held in the Sturkow-Ryder studios for Saturday afternoon, May 1, at 3 o'clock. The program will consist of compositions by Hummel, Weber, Wagner, Saint-Saens and Mme. Sturkow-Ryder will play the Grieg Sonata in F Major for piano and violin with Mme. Jessie de Vore.

Russell—The Russell Quartet, under the direction of Estelle L. Russell, will appear at the colonial minstrel given by the Austin Athletic Club, April 30 and May 1. They will give twenty minutes of opera. Mr. Glenn Sherwood sang a group of songs at the annual banquet of the Adult Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church of Oak Park on Friday, April 23. He was accompanied by Frederick Persson, who also played solo numbers. Miss Pauline Solomon will sing at Douglas Park Auditorium Sunday, May 2, for the benefit of the Nathan Marks, Jr., Orphans' Home. Miss Louise Trietz will furnish the accompaniments. Miss Borghild Nostwick and Miss Pauline Solomon will sing at Erie Chapel May 6.

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
 Phone Midway 6536

MONICA GRAHAM STULTS WALTER
SOPRANO BASS ALLEN
 Columbia School of Music 303 KIMBALL HALL

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts - Dramatic Soprano - Teaching
 61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
 NEUBAU
 WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, - - ST. LOUIS

People & Events

MACBETH CHARMS IN DIFFICULT PROGRAM

Coloratura singer displays voice of compass and purity with style and artistry.

(By Isidor Tippmann)

All the elements which woman has in her nature—love, pathos, passion, poetry and religion—combine to perfect her song and give fitting expression to the ideas of the great musical creators. That which generally goes under the name of artistic personality is very complex in its organization and for the average person difficult to comprehend and appreciate. La Crosse musicians and music lovers have had the pleasure to make the acquaintance of a vocal artist who exhibited all the above enumerated elements of an artistic womanly nature in a high degree of perfection. Miss Florence Macbeth, in her recital at the theater last evening charmed her audience in the delivery of a most exacting program, which was a bouquet of vocal beauties, plucked in the musical gardens of the most musical countries of the world.

FLORENCE MACBETH

Miss Macbeth's voice is a high soprano of great compass and absolute purity. The ease with which she sings, her artistic repose, the classic style and a faultless intonation are only some of the most prominent attributes of this charming singer. Her voice may be likened to a fine Amati violin in its captivating and penetrating purity and bewitching sweetness. Miss Macbeth's singing also resembles the playing of a violinist with brains, as her tones were free of the detestable wabbling called tremolo, and her phrasing was that of a true musician.

The program contained some of the most celebrated show pieces of coloratura singing, such as the "Shadow Song," (Myerbeer), "Bell Song," (Delibes), "Mignon Polka" (Thomas), and even the "Staccato Polka" (Mulder), the old war horse of concert singers of many years past, made a fine number by the charming way in which it was sung.

The three groups of German, French and English songs were happily chosen and showed the versatility of style which Miss Macbeth commands. For encores the German song, "Sah ein Knab ein Roeslein stehn," the "Last Rose of Summer" and "Annie Laurie" were performed with becoming artistic chastity of style and genuine warmth.

The piano accompaniments of Miss Carrie Zumbach Bliss were most praiseworthy and gave the singer very fitting artistic support.

Miss Macbeth's success with the audience was established from the start and the hearty discriminating applause spoke well for the genius of Miss Macbeth and also for the intelligence of her audience even if the number of auditors left something to desire. Miss Macbeth has endeared herself to all who had the good fortune to hear her.—La Crosse, (Wis.) Tribune. (Advertisement.)

BUFFALO ENTHUSIASTIC OVER CHRISTINE MILLER

As soloist at the symphony concert of the Buffalo Orchestral Society, Christine Miller added another great success to her long list for this season.

The praise of the press was unanimous, as the following from the Buffalo newspapers of March 12 prove:

Miss Christine Miller, contralto, was the soloist, singing with orchestra the Tchaikowsky aria, "Adieu, Forests," and as encore, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah," also with orchestral accompaniment. Later the singer gave a group of songs, Brahms' "Staendchen" and "Der Schmied," and "Zueignung," by Strauss. Miss Miller has broadened much in her art since she last sang in Buffalo, and her rich, beautiful voice has gained in fullness and volume. She gave the arias a forceful dramatic delivery, which aroused much enthusiasm, the Saint-Saens number, sung in English, being especially admirable. In arias and songs alike, she showed the splendid musicianship which enables her to gain her artistic effects without ever going outside the boundary of metrical and musical laws. She has acquired the art of the lieder singer, the ability to emphasize the lines of her songs by subtle touches, and she sings with such fine rhythmic feeling, such variety of lovely tone color, and such versatility, that it is a delight to listen to her. The Brahms "Der Schmied" was given with fine swing and spirit, and she had to repeat it before the audience would let her go on. As encore, she sang Carpenter's Dorsetshire dialect song, "Don't Ceare," with such captivating style as to necessitate another encore, "My Star," by Spross.—Miss Mary M. Howard in Buffalo Express.

CHRISTINE MILLER ADDS TO HER LAURELS.—Christine Miller is a great favorite with Buffalo music lovers, and was accorded a warm reception. Her personality, ripened musicianship and spontaneity have won her high place on the concert stage. Her first number, the aria "Adieu, Forests," from "Jeanne D'Arc" by Tchaikowsky, was delivered with superb dramatic and vocal utterance, to which her fine French diction added further charm. Her ability to depict the poignant feeling in the air was as artistic as the authority with which she gave the recitative. The singer was recalled amid continued applause and sang as an encore "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saens. In a group of German songs Miss Miller scored a triumph. "Der Schmied," by Brahms, was sung with such stirring force and virility it had to be repeated. "Zueignung," by Strauss was exquisite in its plastic beauty. Not until she had sung two extra numbers, a Dorsetshire dialect song by Carpenter, and "The Star" would the audience let her go. She was given a handsome floral tribute.—Buffalo Courier.

Miss Christine Miller, contralto, with the Buffalo Orchestral Society, scored a musical triumph at the Elmwood Music Hall last night. Miss Miller has been heard favorably here before, and her singing last night was quite up to the standard which Buffalo music lovers expect when she is to appear. Delightful was the singing of Miss Miller, with orchestra in the Tchaikowsky aria, "Adieu, Forests," and as encore, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" from "Samson and Delilah." Brahms' "Staendchen" and "Der Schmied" and "Zueignung" by Strauss were sung with great coloring and expression. Miss Miller gave Carpenter's Dorsetshire dialect song, "Don't Ceare." The audience insisted upon another encore and received "My Star," by Spross.—Buffalo Enquirer.

Miss Miller sang here several seasons ago and created a favorable impression as she also did last evening. Her voice is of good range, rich in quality and voluminous in tone. These assets, in conjunction with her dramatic temperament, enable her to attain fine emotional effect. Her number with orchestral accompaniment was "Adieu, Forests," from Tchaikowsky's "Jeanne D'Arc," after which she received a large bouquet of roses. The last group of songs included "Staendchen" and "Der Schmied" by Brahms, and "Zueignung" by Strauss. The second of these was repeated. Miss Miller added as encores

Carpenter's Dorsetshire song, "Don't Ceare," and "My Star," by Spross.—Buffalo Evening Times.

Christine Miller, contralto, more than justified her reputation by her songs, opening with the aria, "Adieu, Forests," and, in response to most enthusiastic encore, giving "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah," with orchestral accompaniment in both cases. For her second appearance Miss Miller gave a group of songs by Brahms and Strauss. She also gave a Saint-Saens song, "Der Schmied" by Brahms had to be repeated before the audience would allow her to go on, and for an additional encore, she sang Carpenter's dialect song, "Don't Ceare," and for further encore she sang "My Star," by Spross. The mere recital of this list of songs shows the profound impression made by the artist and the glory of her magnificent voice and rendition of her numbers. She has every quality of the great singer and that means in addition to her technical perfections an almost overwhelming eloquence in feeling.—Buffalo Evening News.

Miss Christine Miller, one of the most successful of the young American singers, was the soloist and she won the audience immediately. She possesses a contralto voice of a warm, sympathetic character and she sings with much ease. Her voice is of uniform quality throughout its entire compass and her charming personality matches her voice. It is easy to understand her rise to supremacy. Miss Miller is a sincere artist and her singing besides being beautiful is intellectual. "Adieu, Forests" from Jeanne d'Arc by Tchaikowsky was the singer's first selection. This was given with such lovely tonal volume and dramatic power that it established her at once in the hearts of the audience. Miss Miller gave as an extra number "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice." "Staendchen" and "Der Schmied" by Brahms and "Zueignung" by Strauss were admirably sung by Miss Miller. She was recalled after this group of songs and she graciously responded with two extra numbers.—Buffalo Commercial.—(Advertisement.)

FRANCES INGRAM
MANAGEMENT
SHAW & TUCKER
ORCHESTRA BLDG. CHICAGO

GEORGE MILTON LIPSCHULTZ
Teacher Violinist Soloist
1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

Howard E. PRESTON
5434 Woodlawn Av BARITONE Telephone Midway 4175

ANN A. HICKISCH Soprano
RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE
Personal Address, LA CROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Henriette Weber
Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School. Auditorium Bldg.

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

RHYS-HERBERT'S "THE BO'SN'S BRIDE" AND "BULBUL" PERFORMED IN NEW YORK CITY

There are comparatively few composers of extensive works in the United States who can boast of as many performances of their compositions within a given period and in so many different parts of the country as can Dr. W. Rhys-Herbert, the well-known American writer of operettas, cantatas, part-songs and now a resident of Minneapolis.

Dr. Rhys-Herbert's most recent operetta for mixed voices, "The Bo'sn's Bride," is winning new laurels for the composer almost every week. We are told that over 100 performances of "The Bo'sn's Bride" have been arranged for since day of publication, which was some time in December, 1914.

On April 30th the new operetta will make its initial bow to the New York audience. The performance will be given in Hunt's Point Palace, under the auspices of St. Philip Neri's Church Choir, of Bedford Park, Bronx.

"Bulbul," the third of the Rhys-Herbert operettas, was once more sung in Manhattan on April 21 at the Turn Hall to a record-breaking house, by the chorus of St. Joseph's Church, under the direction of Emil Reyl, conductor of the well-known Beethoven Maennerchor of New York. Mr. Reyl promises a repetition of "Bulbul" in the fall of the year.

G. B.

CAROL ROBINSON

Press notice of piano recital for Vandalia (Ill.) Woman's Club:

In addition to a splendidly masterful technic, Miss Robinson possesses a warmth of interpretation and a richness of personality which immediately endears her to all her listeners. One is also forcibly impressed with the breadth of her style which makes her equally at home with the music of the many different nations and periods, and enables her to speak with equal freedom in the idiom of each.

The interest and enjoyment of the program was greatly augmented by very comprehensive remarks given by Miss Robinson at different times throughout the program. The arrangement of the program was admirable in that it gave a complete panorama of the growth of music from the time of Robert Schumann to the present day.

"Impromptu," Op. 36, by Chopin, was played with exceptional delicacy and taste. Its technical difficulties were great. Two other numbers completed this group, the exquisite "Mazurka," Op. 17, No. 4, by Chopin, and the "Capriccio," Op. 76, No. 2, by Brahms. Too much cannot be said in praise of Miss Robinson's playing of the "Mazurka." All the tender pathos and melancholy of this appealing composition were brought out with expressive eloquence.

In Liszt's arrangement of the song "Widmung" by Schumann, the complex counterparts were played with such skill and ease that they served merely as a setting for the beautiful melody of this favorite song.

The last group, confined to the works of American composers, was played in a manner which showed that especial pride on the part of the performer in interpreting the music of composers of her native country. The subtlety of her tone shading and the poetry of her interpretations were especially noticeable in these pieces; indeed, throughout the entire program Miss Robinson gratified the cravings of an artistic nature. The applause of the audience was so enthusiastic and insistent that she responded with two additions to her already generous program, a "Prelude" of Otterstrom, and the familiar E Major "Etude" of Chopin.—Vandalia Union, April 8, 1915. —(Advertisement.)

Musicians' Club Monthly—A very interesting—albeit, thoroughly slangy—little publication is the Musicians' Club Monthly, the first issue of which has just been received. Success!

LAMBERT MURPHY IN BOSTON

Following is some press comment on the work of Lambert Murphy with the Apollo Club in Boston:

The fourth concert of the Apollo Club, Mr. Moltenhauer conductor, took place last night in Symphony Hall. This was the last concert of the 44th season and the 227th given by the club.

The club was assisted by Mr. Lambert Murphy, tenor, late of the Metropolitan opera company; Mr. Alfred F. Denghausen, baritone; retired and past active members of the Apollo, the Harvard Alumni Chorus, the Harvard Glee Club, and an orchestra, Mr. Crowley, concertmaster. M. Warren A. Locke also served as a conductor. Mr. Frank H. Luker was the pianist, and Dr. A. T. Davis the organist.

Mr. Murphy sang the air from "Romeo and Juliet" with much taste. His voice has broadened and gained in power since he left this city, but it still preserves its fine and pure quality.—Philip Hale in Boston Herald.

Mr. Murphy added much to the program by his artistry. He has a lyric tenor voice of beautiful quality and at the same time full and resonant when occasion demands. His higher notes have the true tenor characteristics, free ringing and clear. His solos were very much enjoyed and appreciation was shown by vigorous and enthusiastic applause after each number.—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Mr. Murphy sang Romeo's air of admiration to Juliet and the balcony from Gounod's opera, and a group of songs. His voice and style have now rounded to a fine and full maturity. He sings with beauty of tone, with excellent taste and with skill in interpretation.—Boston Globe.—(Advertisement.)

Williams—The song recital given by Evan Williams at Witherspoon Hall in Philadelphia last week was one of the most successful of the entire season in the Quaker City and the tenor, long favorite there, won a big circle of new friends as well as the commendation of the entire press for his beautiful singing.

YEATMAN GRIFFITH MUSICALE

A program provided by Florence Macbeth and Frederick Fradkin:

Mr. and Mrs. Yeatman Griffith, who moved their studios to New York from London at the beginning of the war and who have brought to this city many of their pupils from foreign countries, gave a musicale and reception at their home, No. 318 West Eighty-second street, on Sunday afternoon, April 11.

The musical program was provided by Florence Macbeth, coloratura soprano, who received her instruction at the Griffith studios, and Frederick Fradkin, violinist. Miss Macbeth was heard in several operatic arias, among them the aria from Thomas' "Mignon," and in groups of songs, including one by Marion Bauer. Miss Macbeth was in excellent voice and was especially happy in the "Mignon" aria, which she sang with fine technical display and purity of tone. The Bauer songs, which were well suited to her voice and style, and the last of the group was heartily encored.

Mr. Fradkin was heard in the "Zizeunerweisen," the "Prelude and Allegro" by Pugnani-Kreisler, and other numbers. He showed a tone of fine breadth and quality, excellent musicianship and facile technic. He was enthusiastically applauded.

There were many guests prominent in the musical field, among whom may be named Elena Gerhardt, Giovanni Martinelli, Mme. Van Endert, Eleanor Spencer, John Powell and Aline Van Barentzen.—Musical America.

Tufigno—Mr. S. Victor Tufigno, whose studio is located at 3322 Polk street, is a violinist and musician of rare talent. Mr. Tufigno began his musical studies at the age of seven years, under the tutelage of his father. At the age of twelve he entered the Musical Conservatory of Paris and later completed his training under the best masters in Europe. At a very early age he filled many important concert engagements in London, Paris, Barcelona and all the most prominent cities of Europe.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE CONCERT ORGANIST COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR
We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract. (26th Year)

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago, Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

ISABEL HAUSER AND HER ACTIVITIES AND PLANS

Miss Isabel Hauser as usual has had a very busy season, making more solo appearances than heretofore; a consummation postulating the gratitude of her many admirers and friends as an artist of fine gifts, and a woman of striking personality, and one who even fulfills Mme. Germaine Schnitzer's standards of a faultlessly-gowned personality. Mme. Schnitzer has said so, and Mme. Schnitzer knows, for she is a virtuoso sartorially as well as in the field where her Queenship is beyond cavil or question.

At those concerts, eagerly looked forward to, where Miss Hauser is the cynosure of all eyes, and the center of all attraction, one can hear a whisper running round the auditorium to this effect: I wonder what she will wear; she always surprises us with such exquisite clothes.

And clothes, messieurs et madames, have much more than a relative place in the scheme of a civilization which still regards the outside of the platter as being more important than the inside; unless the platter brims over. Which sometimes happens; but not so frequently as to upset the balance of things; making an outpouring a world-wide happening.

Since Mother Eve donned the fig leaf, garments have made the man. Shakespeare and Pope to the contrary, notwithstanding—at least my conclusions are made after observation—post factum, and upon this point I shall forever disagree with both English poets. The "rest may be leather and prunella," according to small Alexander (Pope I mean, the cynical, caustic English versifier), but Paterfamilias, who is paying the bills this season will hardly be inclined to agree with Alexander nor will mother, who watches the reports of lightning-change fashion variations sartorially.

And to return to our lamb, Miss Hauser, thank heaven, rejoices in a sane and artistic taste in gowns, and she carefully avoids drawing the odium of the community—and perchance its snickers—upon herself by eschewing the loud, the masculine, the bizarre, or the ridiculous.

Miss Hauser has devoted much of her precious leisure to the discovery of a country home. One which shall be her very own, to do with as she lists to improve upon; landscape garden if so she wills; Pergolize (note that this is a verbal improvement of my very own), dot over with sunken gardens; build a small version of an utilitarian Dionysion (with apologies to Isadora Duncan) or any other improvement, certified or uncertified, which may take hold upon her prolific fancy.

Her New York apartment is a spot where one can enjoy an exceptional repose of soul, it is so very inviting. It will now remain for her friends—if they are so fortunate as to receive invitations—to sit in judgment—a simple task in these premises (the definition legal or old English as you prefer, gentle reader), upon the retreat she has chosen in the Connecticut valley.

Miss Hauser informs me that there is a delightful studio in her country residence and that she has no intention of abandoning the performance of her daily musical tasks, and that she expects to keep her professional engagements in the winter to come.

On April 14, Miss Hauser was soloist with the Browning Society, and she gave great satisfaction in her poetic interpretation of a piano opus so rarely played because of the great powers it demands—those of deepest sentiment and tragic passion—Rubinstein's "Kammenoi Ostrow."

Miss Hauser was also heard in a group of soli by MacDowell, beautifully elaborated.

Miss Hauser was the soloist at the musicale of the MacDowell Club on April 13, when among other numbers she gave great pleasure by her excellent performance of the less well known but equally admired Rachmaninoff Prelude in G Minor.

h h h

Arkady Bourstin Plays for the New York
Editor of Music News

Mr. Arkady Bourstin, whose personality makes his prenomens singularly appropriate, has treated himself to a new violin. A Guadagnini, whose richly mellow tone might have been drawn from a simon pur "Strad."; and he is delighted of course with his good fortune in having been able to seize upon such treasure trove.

G
I
O
V
A
N
N
I
Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

Part of his delight and pleasure traveled over to me when he kindly suggested that as mine was such a very spacious studio (whatever faults it owns, this atelier is the largest in Carnegie Hall, 30 by 32 and 24 feet high), he would let me have a taste of the violin's perfections and of his own playing. Truly a pleasure doubled if not trebled, for his accompanist, young Mr. Elmer Zoller, was in attendance, and enhanced the joy of the occasion by his magnificent work in conjunction with the young virtuoso of the violin.

Bourstin started the ball rolling by playing a Porpora-Kreisler "Menuet," and he played it in a way to make Kreisler happy—had he but known—to have so delightful an exponent of his charming opus.

Indeed there was a Kreisler group, for close upon the heels of the "Menuet" came: "Chanson Louis XIII," Couperin-Kreisler; "La Precieuse," (Couperin-Kreisler); "Liebesfreud," "Tambourin Chinois," Kreisler.

At my request Mr. Bourstin played a prime favorite, the Bach "Chaconne," which renders all violinistic bijouterie rather insipid in the contrast.

The "Chaconne," dreadful test for the man with the big fiddle and the small tone, is the Sphinx problem of the violinist. Played with a thin and wiry technic, it can prove itself an ear-splitting torment. Eventuated by an artist of soul and spirit and the power to feel the big poetic masculinity of Bach, it reminds one of those graven images in Egypt which Kipling tells us in the moment when Dawn is at her rosiest, appear to take upon their gigantic selves the semblance of life—to become for a moment sentient and filled with the flame of existence.

I hope to hear Mr. Bourstin play the "Chaconne" often. He feels Bach the poet as he recognizes in him the builder.

This young violinist surprises by the bigness of his tone, and disarms by the ingratiating sweetness he can draw from his bow. Brio, verve, joy in the doing are his, and the music lover will put his name high among the great ones in his book.

□ □ □

Mr. Maitland Sings Again

Mr. Robert Maitland, the young baritone, is very much in evidence.

He was heard on the evening of April 18 in the Auditorium of the MacDowell Club on West Fifty-fifth street, by a very intelligent assemblage of persons who really love music, and who followed his singing with every evidence of pleasure and respect for his artistic abilities.

Notwithstanding his numerous engagements, Mr. Maitland was in the freshest of voices and again he showed his skill in discovering to his audience the text beauties the composer had enshrined in his musical framings of appealing verse.

His numbers were: Three Sonnets of Michel Angelo (Hugo Wolf); Recitative and Aria, "Acis and Galatea" (Handel); "O'er the Moor," Highland Scotch Melody; "Myself When Young" (Liza Lehman); "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind" (Sarcant). He was applauded again and again for his really remarkable interpretations. Among engagements he will fill in the near future are appearances in Olean, in Gambier, on April 29.

He will also sing the baritone role in

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

Management M. H. HANSON

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

GERMAN

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABE

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Reberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927
at Gorton Scho

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superler 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEBORN, Viola
BJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Swenkerud, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
435TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR

ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium BM

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Music in America

PHILADELPHIA

Organists in Pennsylvania in particular and lovers of organ music generally are interested in the forthcoming celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the American Organ Players' Club. Founded in 1890, this organization is the peer of its kind in the United States. At the time of its inception organ recitals were so few and organs of such caliber and resources as to make recital work a success were indeed scarce, that the work of the club against such odds was little short of marvelous. Over 500 free recitals have been played, a series each year, in the various churches of the city of Philadelphia.

The membership increased rapidly, and now comprises all of the qualified organ players of the city, with a large percentage of nonresident members. The Board of Education, on the completion of the auditorium in the Central High School, installed a large organ for concert purposes. The club was chosen by the committee to take entire charge of the musical work of the school, and gives a series of concerts there annually, in addition to the regular series offered to the public.

The anniversary celebration will last over one week, the first night being devoted to a choral and organ recital, to be given in St. Clement's Church, of which the vice president is organist and choirmaster. The choir will be a picked male chorus from the choirs of the various churches, and the choral and organ selections have been specially composed for the occasion. Each composer will play his own work, as follows:

Grand Chorus.....	Ralph Kinder
Siciliano.....	Henry S. Fry
Benedictus.....	S. Wesley Sears
Minuet in E.....	D. E. Crozier
Meditation (Sonata Religieuse).....	Irvin J. Morgan
Grand Choeur.....	Frederick Maxson
Wedding Song.....	H. J. Banks
Baritone—For All the Saints.....	May Porter
(In memorium of departed members.)
Sketch.....	Stanley Reiff
Processional and Office Hymns.....	John M. E. Ward

A combined banquet of the club and the Pennsylvania Chapter of the guild will conclude the week's events. Prominent speakers will address the diners. Among the guests invited and who will be present are: George Alexander West, Dean A. G. O., Pennsylvania Chapter; Theodore Presser, music publisher; Rev. Floyd Hopkins, clergy; Arthur Scott Brook, president N. A. O.; Andrew Wheeler, Philadelphia Orchestra; Ralph Waldo, Philadelphia Press; Francis Cook, editor of Etude; William L. Austin, music lover and philanthropist; E. N. Williamson, New York Evening Post; S. E. Gruenstein, editor of Diapason; A. L. Tubbs, Musical America; Hugh A. Clarke, music director, University of Pennsylvania; Hans Kindler, cellist.

All the club members will be present to greet the guests, and Dr. John M. E. Ward, president of the club, will act as toastmaster.

J. M. E. WARD.

COLUMBUS AND CENTRAL OHIO

Marcus A. Kellerman, dramatic baritone, who sang recently in his former home city, Cincinnati, will appear in recitals this summer on sixty Redpath Chautauquas in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky. He will be assisted by his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Siegmund Herzog, of New York City, pianist and violinist, respectively.

Miss Loretta Sheridan and Mr. Bernard Miller appeared in a Columbus concert at the Knights of Columbus auditorium April 13. Miss Sheridan's vocal numbers were well arranged with the piano program by Mr. Miller, and the affair was one of the season's best.

The Sousa band has just given concerts in Columbus, Delaware and other central Ohio cities. Afternoon and evening programs were given in Columbus April 17.

The Ohio Wesleyan Glee Club recently returned from a successful tour under the management of Dean Ricketts. A home concert was given in Delaware, O., Friday evening, April 23.

Mr. Charles Lurvey, who has been touring with Jenny Dufau, is under contract for a Chautauqua circuit this season with Alfred Bergen in Pennsylvania.

On May 3 the Hamilton Choral Society will present "Elijah." The leading parts will be interpreted by four Cincinnati soloists, Joseph Schenke, tenor; John W. Dodd, baritone; Ethel Irwin Rendigs, soprano, and Amanda Maull, contralto. A large orchestra will assist, under the direction of Professor Mayer of Hamilton.

"The Chimes of Normandy" was presented Thursday evening by the Newark Choral Society. The principal male part was sung by Carl E. Myers. His duets with Miss Anna Reigger, as Germania, and with Miss Blanche Trost as Serpolette, were well received.

The Columbus May Festival program, May 3, 4 and 5, includes three appearances of the Oratorio Society, a concert by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and such featured artists as Grace Hamilton Morrey, Olive Kline, Margaret Keyes, Lambert Murphy, Clarence Whitehill, John Dodd and Whitney Maize.

Mr. Powland W. Dunham, assisted by Miss Alice Speaks, appeared in a recital Tuesday evening. Mr. Dunham is the First Congregational Church organist. In her list of selections Miss Speaks presented three numbers by her brother, Oley Speaks.

At the public library Thursday evening a concert was given by Small's Conservatory Orchestra, under the direction of Bellisario Cicchinelli. The soloists were H. Godfrey Flux, pianist, and Miss Mildred Ebert, violinist. Mr. Ralph Canny was concertmaster.

At the Gaines Studio recently Miss Hazel Redman, soprano; Miss Winifred Dickson, soprano, and Mr. Chauncey Hawthorne, tenor, appeared in a students' recital. Mr. Warren Park, flautist, assisted.

Recently the Ziegler-Hower Concert Company, headed by Franc Ziegler, violinist, and Charles T. Howe, flautist, have filled

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

A capacity house greeted Fritz Kreisler and the Symphony Orchestra for the eleventh symphony concert, March 19. Kreisler, one of the most delightfully fascinating of artists to observe, was in his usual form, which needs no halo of hero to make us enjoy his wonderful singing tone. His two numbers with the orchestra, the Brahms "Concerto and Introduction" and "Rondo Capriccioso" (Saint-Saens), were followed by a "caprice" of his own.

The orchestra numbers were "Choral and Fugue" (Bach), "Overture to Rosamunde" (Schubert), and "Symphony in C Major" (Ropartz). The Bach number is a magnificent setting for orchestra of the Prelude in C Sharp Minor and Great Organ Fugue in G Minor by Johann Albert, the Bohemian composer.

The beautiful Schubert overture was a delight and it seems a shame that it should belong to an unsuccessful opera.

Ropartz's "Symphony" is played without pause. Philip Hale writes that "this symphony clearly shows the composer as a pupil of Caesar Franck," and we are also inclined to believe he drew from some of the same sources as Debussy and other French moderns. The entire symphony is brilliant and extremely interesting.

Sunday, March 21, the program was varied but contained no unusual thrills outside of the very novel and splendid double bass solo by Frank Kuchynka, leader of that section of the orchestra. Mr. Kuchynka made his big instrument fairly sing and it was tremendously interesting to note that this big fiddle really has a place among solo instruments when in the hands of a real virtuoso. His numbers were "Caprice" for double bass and orchestra (Geisel), and a Bohemian "Polka" arranged from themes of Smetana's by Mr. Kuchynka's brother. The other interesting feature of the program was "A Joyous Prelude" for orchestra, by Stanley Avery, the Minneapolis organist and composer, a melodious and well built composition. A "Lyric Suite" (Grieg) and "Caucasian Sketches" (Ivanow), with viola and English horn solos, were well received.

Clara Williams, local soprano, was given a big welcome by her many friends, but she does not appear to advantage in operatic arias with the orchestra. Nothing could be more artistic than Miss Williams' recent recital at which time her voice met all requirements. She lacks a certain emotion necessary in arias like "Ernani Involami" (Verdi) and the Michaela aria from "Carmen," to "get over" impressively.

The Minnesota College Oratorio Society gave its fourth rendition of "The Messiah" at the Auditorium, March 24. This chorus numbers 300 and is very well balanced, the soprano section probably having a little the best of it. They all did very good work, lacking a trifle in working up some of the climaxes, more noticeable, perhaps, because of the very excellent solo parts by Albert Lindquest (tenor), Esther Osborn (soprano) and Gustav Holmquist (basso). The latter with his big voice and breadth of style, bringing out the bass solos to the front of the picture.

Ada Dahlgren (alto) was a decided disappointment. Her tone production was throaty and muffled and her articulation was miserable. She was certainly not in the class with the other soloists. The Auditorium was well filled and the audience showed appreciative attention for the grand old "Messiah."

Sunday, March 28, the symphony program contained only one new piece, "Drapa," by Alfvén, a composition full of big effects and wonderful coloring. This is the third composition by this composer given this year and everyone has been more than gratifying. Two old favorites, Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" and the "Zampa" overture by Herold, were followed by Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding Symphony" divided into four parts—"Bridal Song," "Serenade," "In the Garden," "Dance." It is exquisite program music, melodious, catchy, alluring and received hearty appreciation.

Cornelius Van Vliet, first 'cellist, as soloist gave us the "Concerto in A Minor" by Goltermann and for encore "Widmung" (Popper). The concerto was not only showy, but gave us the deep and mellow effects we enjoy so much in the 'cello and the Popper number was equally pleasing.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

JOHN DOANE AT COLORADO SPRINGS

The following is taken from the Colorado Springs Chieftain:

The organ recital by John Doane, Jr., proved to be one of the most enjoyable musical events of the season. Local lovers of organ music were given a favorable opportunity on this occasion to become acquainted with the performances of a gifted and promising young organist.

Although handicapped by the somewhat limited possibilities of the instrument at his disposal, Mr. Doane, nevertheless, succeeded in presenting most of his numbers in a finished and convincing manner. His technic is often astounding, and his varied and intelligent registration worthy of special comment. He is, moreover, well versed in the art of pronouncing and coloring his themes and allotting them to stops which yield the tone quality best suited to their character. Clean, dexterous pedaling, which is so necessary to superior playing, is likewise one of Doane's strong points, and was perhaps most advantageously displayed in his performance of Bach's famous "Toccatina and Fugue" in D Minor.

Mr. Doane gave admirable interpretations of such works as Lemare's "Marche Heroique," Liszt's "Spasmo," "Romanze in D Flat" by Sibelius, and Cole's "Fantasie Symphonique."—Colorado Springs Chieftain.—(Advertisement.)

SPECIAL OFFER

Through the Year in Melody

Twelve Easy Instructive Pieces for the Pianoforte

By CARL MILLEGRAM

THIS set of teaching pieces will be found exceedingly valuable for first grade work. It is unique and characteristic; the pieces are carefully fingered and phrased and will strengthen and develop the feeling of musical rhythm, so essential in training of beginners.

Complete set in one volume 45c, regular price $1.00.
Separate Numbers 10c each, postpaid.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN
Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY Associate Vocal Instructor
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. Residence 5433 Harper Av. Tel. Midway 8963

GRACE BRUNE WORTHE
MARCUSSON FAULKNER
SOPRANO ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly TENOR
609 Fine Arts Building Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

Bruch's "Cross of Fire," on April 27, with the Newark Oratorio Society, and he will sing the baritone's part in "Quo Vadis" with the Springfield festival forces in May.

Roderick White, a Violinist of Great Talent

Among the artists who gave variety to the general array of artistic talent in the field musical, and to the record of fine program-making of the present season, was Roderick White, a tall and dignified young American who made his debut here at the Princess Theater (an impossible auditorium for anything but a midgeet movie drama) and proved to an admiring audience of intelligent concertgoers that he is the possessor of that most essential thing in violinists, a full, round tone.

It is a thousand pities that Mr. White was not heard in an auditorium of befitting dimensions for that excellent volume of sound he is enabled to give to his hearers, who, notwithstanding the restricted size of the hall were enraptured with the musicianly character of his playing and his program.

His work showed the conscientious care of the painstaking artist, who understands the almost limitless capacity of his instrument for the production of sweet and beautiful tones.

He played with intelligence, enthusiasm and fire, and that authority, betraying familiarity with instrument and audience, and the experience of the various schools of the violin and its literature.

His intonation was impeccable; not a deviation of a hair's breadth from the pitch; his cantilena vocal and finished; his pianissimo silken and soft; almost whispered in faultless gradation.

To sum up, Mr. White possesses the essentials which go to the making of a great artist in any field of endeavor—heart, spirit, brain and the power of patient and intense concentration.

We shall look forward to hearing him again next season with pleasurable anticipation of good things to come.

Notes

Mr. Arkady Bourstin will add Mrs. Celeste D. Heckscher's delightful opus, "To the Forest," to his repertory of choice compositions for violin and piano.

Mme. Marie Narelle was heard in recital at Great Neck on the evening of April 23.

Among the numbers on her program was the scene and aria from "Der Freischütz" (a request number); Miss Minnie Breid's charming little ballad, "Major and Minor," and Mrs. Heckscher's "Norse Maiden's Lament." This last as an encore.

Miss Kathleen Coman, who has added several of Mrs. Heckscher's piano solos to her repertory, was the assisting artist.

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST

Management
Haensel and Jones

IDA GARDNER

CONTRALTO

Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

ETHEL LEGINSKA PRESS COMMENT

Some comment from the New York dailies reads as follows:

Miss Leginska, the English pianist, who has swept like a meteor across the musical firmament, gave another recital last night in Carnegie Hall. This young pianist has made her way into artistic recognition unheralded and alone. It was evident from last night's audience that popular recognition is now hers as well.

There will undoubtedly be many who will not approve of all Miss Leginska hazards. She is not a scholastic, and she plays frankly to the emotions, though always with a remarkable technical mastery.

ETHEL LEGINSKA

Her reading of the Schumann "Sonata" in G Minor was poetic, delicate and sincere. There could be no doubt of the interest her interpretation aroused.

Her first group, including Scarlatti's "Cat's Fugue," Daquin's "Le Coucou," and Borodine's "Au Convent," she gave with a clarity of utterances, a richness of tone, a verve, and a subtlety which were alike admirable. In short her playing throughout was individual and alive. In this very life and individuality there is a real danger if they are not controlled by an intellect and a will. Miss Leginska has both, and it is to be hoped that she will continue to realize their importance.—New York Tribune, March 20.

Ethel Leginska gave a convincing exhibition as a pianist in Carnegie Hall last evening.

Her skill was of an exalted and unaffected character. She is a conscientious and sincere artist. It may be safely said that of the younger generation of pianists now before the public Miss Leginska ranks highest.—New York American, March 20.

When Miss Leginska is playing she commands attention. She has qualities of real worth, and while her performances always show certain idiosyncrasies, not to say whimsies, they have an artistic individuality. She has a fluent technic and a command of varied and beautiful tone. Her feeling for rhythm is good and her employment of the pedals is usually judicious. Her chief numbers last evening were Schumann's "Sonata" in G Minor and MacDowell's "Keltic" sonata, the latter one of the best products of American composition.—The Sun, March 20.

Two pianists invited public approval last night, one being Ethel Leginska of the jet-black locks, playing in Carnegie Hall with lights dimmed to create a Paderewskian atmosphere.

Miss Leginska always offers something for the eye as well as for the ear. In a black dress of the simplest design, seated at an unusual distance from the piano, with her body bent far forward and her face close to the keyboard, she presented a most unusual picture.

She was heard at her best in classical pieces by Scarlatti, Daquin and Rameau, among which Borodine's "Au Convent" seemed in strange company. Here her crisp finger technic stood her in good stead.—New York Press, March 20.—(Advertisement.)

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Conservatory Opera club is bending all its efforts towards making its first appearance, scheduled for Friday evening, May 7, at Emery Auditorium a complete success. Scenes from three operas will be given under the baton of Signor Tirindelli, who has taken up the operatic work with great zest, after the lapse of some years, previous to which he had devoted his efforts to this line of work, having made a wide reputation for himself as conductor of the opera at Venice and Milan for a number of seasons. The soloists for the occasion will be drawn from the classes of Dr. Fery Lulek and Mr. John A. Hoffmann and will be cast as follows: "Manon" church scene—Manon, Miss Etta Mastin; Chevalier des Grieux, Mr. Elwin Smith; Count des Grieux, Mr. Chester Moffett. "Faust," prison scene—Marguerite, Miss Helen Portune; Mephisto, Mr. Chester Moffett; Faust, Mr. Emil Rosen. "Aida," boudoir scene—Aida, Miss Marguerite Stegemiller; Amneris, Miss Emma Noc. A chorus of fifty voices drilled under Mr. John A. Hoffmann, and ballet trained by Miss Dorothy Schmidt will be important features of the evening, while the Conservatory Orchestra, whose capacity needs no comment, will form the basis and background of the performance.

—###—

SPRING CONCERTS FOR MARIE STAPLETON-MURRAY

After an Eastern season of gratifying successes, which include appearances in Boston and New York, Marie Stapleton-Murray, the American soprano, began a southern tour with a concert at Memphis, Tenn., April 30, and concludes in Oxford, Ohio. At Oxford this talented artist will sing the role of "Aida" in Verdi's opera, at the Miami University's Spring Festival.

At the Memphis recital Mrs. Murray will be assisted by the distinguished violinist, Katharine Seay Falls. The following program will be featured:

Deh Vieni (Le Nozze di Figaro).....	Mozart
Ave Maria	Schubert
Der Nussbaum	Schumann
Niemand hat's gesehen.....	Loewe
Widmung	Schumann
J'ai pleuré, en Reve.....	Hue
La Pluie	Georges
Psyche	Paladilhe
Mandoline	Debussy
Aria—Depuis le jour (Louise).....	Charpentier
Berceuse	Gretchaninow
A Rondel of Spring.....	Bibb
The Rose and the Lily.....	Minetti
The Bird of the Wilderness.....	Horseman

—###—

Frazer—Music News is in receipt of two splendid recital programs given by Arthur Frazer, pianist, at Indianapolis and Muncie, Ind. Mr. Frazer was also accompanist for Helen Ware, violinist, in her Bloomington, Ind., recital.

DIRECTOR'S ASSISTANT WANTED

The director of one of Chicago's most successful smaller music schools, wishing to ease up, seeks pianist-teacher, 25-40, ambitious to secure interest in or control of such an institution. Must be fully experienced, a success, capable of managing school and teaching director's class in his absence. To such a one with some money to invest a liberal proposition will be made. This is not a bankrupt sale, March being the banner month in our 10 years' history. Give experience and qualifications. "A-100," Music News.

FREDERICK PRESTON SEARCH

Mr. Frederick Preston Search has just dedicated his Op. 21, "A Festival Overture" to Mr. Max Bendix, and the work is to be presented at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in May. The following comment is from the pen of Redfern Mason in the San Francisco Examiner:

Max Bendix, director of the Exposition orchestra, has accepted the dedication of an overture written for the Panama-Pacific Exposition by Frederick Preston Search, and it will probably be played before long. Mr. Search is a 'cellist and composer of artistic sincerity and, after a long Wanderjahr, he has decided to make his home in California, where he lived as a boy. He spent six years in study in Europe, devoting himself to composition under Gustav Schreck at Leipsic and to orchestration under Richard Hoffman. Mr. Search was also for a couple of years a member of the Gewandhaus Orchestra under Nikisch. His native state is Colorado, and his father was for several years superintendent of the public schools of Los Angeles.

FREDERICK PRESTON SEARCH

When the convention of the National Music Teachers' Federation is held at the southern city, in July, there will be a concert devoted to the works of Mr. Search, Jeannette Durno and Carrie Jacobs Bond. The overture which Mr. Search has written for the exposition has two basic ideas, first, rejoicing over the completion of the great undertaking which the fair is held to celebrate, and, second, the ideas of seriousness and high moral purpose. It is classic in form. Mr. Search loves his Bach and Beethoven, but describes himself as a modernist and eclectic.

EDWARD WALKER SINGS IN NASHVILLE

Last year Mr. Walker sang at the Louisiana State Normal School. This year this musical director is located at the Ward-Belmont College, Nashville, Tenn., and re-engaged Mr. Walker to sing the role of Lionel in "Martha" (by Flotow), April 16.

Here are the press criticisms:

In Edward Walker, Nashville had a rare treat. Mr. Walker ranks high among the stars of Chicago, and his beautiful voice last evening more than justified the expectations concerning his ability.—Nashville Tennessean.

Mr. Walker is admirably equipped to sing the beautiful part of "Lionel." His pleasing personality is a contributing factor to his never-failing popularity.—Nashville Banner.

In addition to a voice of rare beauty, Mr. Walker possesses a magnetic and delightful personality.—The Ward-Belmont Hyphen.—(Advertisement.)

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

A large representative audience assembled at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music yesterday afternoon to hear one of its distinguished faculty, Edgar Stillman Kelley, speak on his "New England Symphony," to be performed at this week's Symphony concerts. Mr. Kelley's exposition of this, his second symphony, was brimming over with unique points of interest, and such was the enthusiasm of the audience that the major portion remained afterwards to have an intimate chat about various points which had made particular appeal. That the work is by an American who traces his ancestry to the first New England settlers, and is the natural expression of a decedent nearly three hundred years later, must lend special value to the work in the eyes of those who are looking towards a national American art. The mottoes of the great work—duty and the love of the beautiful—are the dominant features, and appear throughout the symphony in one form or another. Those who are looking for American compositions untrammelled by old world inspiration, subject matter or thematic material, will rejoice particularly in the Scherzo movement, which is built upon bird themes taken down in Mr. Kelley's sketch-book from time to time during his wanderings through the New England woods. Mrs. Kelley assisted SANDOR S.

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE
419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

Mr. Kelley in presenting the symphony, and excerpts from the four movements were given in a two piano arrangement. The distinction of having in our midst a creator of a symphony and that a genuinely American work, is keenly appreciated, and Mr. and Mrs. Kelley were the recipients of an extraordinary demonstration of enthusiasm.

A LAZY SINGER

Albert Borroff was once called a lazy singer. Mr. Borroff always welcomes any kind of criticism. He knows that every one sees and hears things differently, is entitled to their opinion and therefore should be given consideration. Whether the comment is just or not does not matter, the point for the artist to consider is whether or not the criticism can be turned to account. Upon investigation, Mr. Borroff found that the reason he was called a lazy singer was because he stood still and sang. Is it better to do this than to be the temperamental kind of singer, who rolls the eyes, makes faces and sways the body to and fro to depict great emotion and feeling? Real artistry in singing consists of the completeness of the suggestion of moods and experiences as portrayed in song. This can easily be done by just the ordinary things of musicianship, which are natural tone production, good rhythm, clear enunciation, tone color, nuance and the use of accents. The realists, faddists and poseurs come and go, but the ones who express the genuine and true in music are still in the active work of singing.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—In Haydn Choral Society for the California trip, few low alto and deep bass voices. Apply to H. W. Owens, 1516 Mallery Building.

TO RENT—All or part time in studio; telephone, electric lights and fan; 516 Kimball Hall.

TIME TO RENT in fine Auditorium Studios; connection with good school if desired. Address S, Music News.

FOR SALE—Virgil practice clavier; address V. P., Music News.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

ALL FOR 10 CENTS

4 New PIANO SOLOS

1. Fussin' Around
Slow Drag or Fox Trot
2. DOLORES
March by NEIL MORET
3. Young April
Novelette by GEORGE L. COBB
4. Parade of the Puppets
Marche Comique

MANDOLIN ORCHESTRA

5. DREAM FACES Reverie Arr. HILDRETH
6. Parade of the Puppets Marche Comique Arr. JACOBS

Each Number for

1st Mandolin or 1st Violin	Mando-Cello or Violoncello
2nd Mandolin or 2nd Violin	Guitar Accompaniment or
3rd Mandolin or 3rd Violin	Piano Accompaniment
Tenor, Mandolin or Viola

BANJO SOLO

7. Parade of the Puppets
Marche Comique. Arr. JACOBS

GUITAR SOLO

8. Posies
Waltz by A. J. WEIDT

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS FOR PIANO, MANDOLIN, BANJO, GUITAR, Etc.

And much good reading on musical
Matter in general.

TO OBTAIN the above mentioned eight (8) pieces of music, send 10 CENTS in stamps and REQUEST the May issue of

THE CADENZA

SUBSCRIPTION, Per Year

United States	$1.00
Canada, $1.25	Foreign, $1.50

PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

Address

The CADENZA

808 North Street BOSTON, MASS., U.S.A.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder.
At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST
BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College
FRANKLIN STEAD, Director
School of MUSIC Modern
Expression Language
Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI
ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

Pearle Williford
VOICE - PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

DAN S. DENTON TENOR
OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER
TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

a number of engagements under the direction of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau.

The Cleveland Singers' Club concert at Canton, O., has been postponed from April 22 to May 6 because of a previously arranged concert by the Canton Ladies' Chorus. Albert Rees Davis is director of the Cleveland Chorus of 100 voices.

GEORGE WHITEHEAD.

KANSAS CITY

The seventh and last concert of our Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Carl Busch, was given recently. The orchestra is ever improving, and with proper support from the people of our city would rapidly gain for itself the place in the musical world which it merits. The symphony played at the last concert was Tchaikowsky's "Fourth." With the orchestra appeared our own Schubert Club, under the direction of Clarence Sears, in Greig's "Recognition of Land."

The Kansas City String Quartet gave a delightful program in Grand Avenue Temple a short time ago. Three numbers were given: Dvorak's "Quartet, Op. 96"; "Trio" by Niels W. Gade, Op. 42; and Beethoven's "Quintet," Op. 29. The assisting artists were Mrs. Carl Busch, pianist in the "Trio"; and Mr. Carl Busch, viola, in the "Quintet." Although this quartet has been organized only a few months, it ranks as one of our best musical assets. Because of the character of the music played at their concerts, and the capability with which these compositions are handled, the quartet has been a source of great pleasure and pride to the real music lovers of our city. The members of the quartet are Henri Shostac, first violin; Ray Shostac, second violin; Hans Petersen, viola; and Alfred Buch, cello. A series of concerts will be given next winter by this organization.

Mme. Schumann-Heink sang to a record-breaking audience in the Schubert Theater on April 13. Ever a most popular singer—popular with musicians and the general public alike—popular whether she sings the heavy Wagnerian numbers or some little song of childhood, this magnetic and inspiring genius of song could not fail to charm her listeners. And charmed they were, as they crowded about her, literally, for the house was full and the stage was crowded, and standing room was at a premium. The songs were largely from Wagner's music dramas. "The Erl-King" was sung as an encore.

The Kansas City Conservatory of Music is preparing for a week of opera early in May. "Aida," one of the successes of last year, will be repeated. Other operas to be given are "Carmen" and "Martha."

The Kansas City Popular Concert Company Association gave a concert in Convention Hall on Sunday afternoon, April 11. The orchestra of fifty members under the direction of Julius Osier, and a chorus from our own Grand Opera Co., with two soloists, Mrs. Ella Van Huff and Mrs. Louise Collier Cranston gave a good program.

Perhaps the best offering of the orchestra was the first movement of the Schubert B Minor "Symphony," which was capably handled by Mr. Osier and his orchestra. We shall be glad to hear a symphony composed by Mr. Osier himself, which is announced for the next popular concert. Mrs. Ella Van Huff sang with splendid style, and her smooth, even voice never sounded sweeter than it did in Convention Hall, in both her songs, the one on the program and "Suwanee River," the encore. The chorus from the opera school, under the able direction of Mr. Ottley Cranston was in excellent shape. Mrs. Louise Collier Cranston sang the solo part in her usual manner. Mrs. Cranston has a remarkably beautiful voice, which never fails to charm her audience.

An interesting event was a festival given by the public school children in Convention Hall, on April 9 and 10. This consisted of eleven gymnastic events, with music furnished by an orchestra of school children from the elementary schools, one hundred and fifty little girls and boys, with their violins, viola, cello, flutes, clarinets, cornets, trombones, drums and piano. This children's orchestra was directed by Mrs. Bessie M. Whiteley, who is director of music in the public schools. She is a capable director, the sort of person who is an inspiration to the girls and boys under her baton. "Magic Fire," an overture by H. O. Wheeler, was the first number played by the orchestra, and the general public woke up to the fact that, with careful training and under skillful direction, children can really give splendid effects in shading and color. The Allegro was played with a dash and light-heartedness, such as only carefree children can put into music, and the dainty waltz movement was nice with sentiment. Eight other numbers were played, notable among which was a Spanish dance arranged from an old folk song. Mrs. Whiteley is to be congratulated. This children's orchestra is sure to be a factor in the building up of music in our city.

Mr. Carl Busch has gone to the Ozarks for a few weeks, where he can rest and recuperate after his busy season in Kansas City.

Miss Ella Schutte gave a concert in Morton's Hall on Friday evening, April 16. Miss Schutte is a dramatic soprano, and her program included many German classics. Several of her pupils were ushers at her recital.

We are looking forward with pleasure to a song recital to be given here by Mme. Hudson Alexander. This will be given at the Grand Avenue Temple.

MARY H. FLAGG.

311 Studio building.

OSAGE, IOWA

The Treble Clef Club of the Seminary, under the direction of Frank Parker, gave its second concert Tuesday, April 6, when Henry Hadley's new cantata, "The Golden Prince," was given with Ruth von Berg, soprano of Charles City, and Marion Green, the Chicago basso-cantante as soloists. Mr. Green gave also two groups of songs. Miss Florence C. Fennessy played fine accompaniments.

The regular monthly students' recital at the Seminary was given in the new Gymnasium Auditorium Monday afternoon, March 29. The following pupils of Miss Fennessy, Miss Woodard and Mr. Parker gave the program: Dorothea Bucknam, Gordon Berger, Arthur Wolf, Wilma Rucker, Carolyn Moen, Leonard Havig, Ellsworth Tibbetts, Donald Tuttle, Verna Gorder, Glee Lemon and Thelma Jones. Miss Lemon and Mr. Parker played the accompaniments.

For the first time in years the Seminary has a Boys' Glee Club, and under the direction of Frank Parker a very ambitious program was finely given March 23, with Miss Ruth von Berg, soprano of Charles City as the soloist and Miss Wilma Rucker as the accompanist. The features of the program, which follows, was Grieg's "Landsighting."

Winter Song	Bullard
Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes.....	Old English
The Glee Club
Two duets for soprano and baritone—
I Feel Thy Angel Spirit.....	Graben-Hoffman
Passage Birds Farewell.....	Hildach
Miss von Berg and Mr. Parker
Lamp in the West.....	Horatio Parker
De Sandman	Protheroe
Lullaby	Brahms
The Glee Club
Solos for soprano—
In May	Dichmont
Lullaby Lights	Dichmont
Ah! The Torment.....	Paderewski
Miss von Berg
Landsighting	Grieg
For Male Chorus and Baritone Solo
Mr. Parker and the Glee Club

Frank Parker, the director of the music department of the Seminary, gave a lecture-recital on "Rabindranath Tagore," Nobel prizeman in literature of 1913, before the Shakespeare Club and some two hundred guests Tuesday afternoon, April 13, in the Seminary Auditorium. The lecture was illustrated by four of the "Gitanjali" songs by John Alden Carpenter. "On the Day When Death Will Knock at Thy Door," "I Am Like a Remnant of a Cloud," "The Sleep That Flits On Baby's Eyes," and "When I Bring to You Colored Toys." The difficult accompaniments were splendidly played by Miss Fennessy.

Davis—Ernest J. Davis, tenor, sang at the Nicholas Senn High School for the Edgewater Catholic Woman's League on April 20. He will be soloist at the West Side Sunday Evening Club next Sunday evening.

North Shore—At the North Shore School of Music on April 22 a faculty concert was given by Alice Emmons McBride, pianist, and George Daseh, violin.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY
NOTES

Miss Frances Moses presented the following pupils in a song recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Wednesday evening, April 21: Mrs. Ruth Baur Shreve, Miss Alice Morris, Mrs. Della Eppinger Bowman and Mrs. Clara Nocka Eberle. The "Inflammatus" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater," sung by a semi-chorus, made an effective closing number to the program.

§ § §

Talent from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music gave a concert at Rossmoyne, Ohio, last Friday evening. Those taking part were Miss Helen Grace, soprano; Miss Emilie Rose Knox, violinist; Miss Emily Martin, reader, and Mr. Emil Rosen, tenor.

§ § §

Mrs. Theodor Bohlmann, pianist, and Mr. John A. Hoffmann, tenor, of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music faculty, achieved a brilliant success in recital at Westwood last Monday evening.

§ § §

Mr. Bernard Sturm's class was heard in recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Tuesday evening, April 27.

§ § §

The Conservatory Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Helen May Curtis and Mr. J. W. Pierpont, will be heard in its fourth play of the season in Conservatory Hall Friday evening, April 30.

§ § §

Miss Alice Morris, a young coloratura singer of promise, who has been a pupil of Miss Frances Moses at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music for several years past, gave a most creditable account of herself in her song recital in Conservatory Hall last evening. Miss Morris has a high lyric voice, which she uses intelligently, and she clothed her songs with telling charm. Miss Clarissa Crawford, violinist, a pupil of Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli, assisted on the program.

§ § §

COLORADO SPRINGS

The last concert of note of the season was that given at the Opera House on the evening of April 7 by the well known Zoellner String Quartet of Brussels. The concert by this group of ensemble players had been keenly anticipated by the discriminating musical patrons of Colorado Springs as the successes of the Zoellners elsewhere had given reason for the statement of their local manager, Mr. Theodore Fisher, that they were among the few truly great chamber music organizations of the world.

It is only on request that the compositions of the ultra modern musicians are included on the programs of the Zoellners, and on this occasion (for we believe only the third time in America) two movements from the Quartet by Darius Milhaud, the radical or "futurist" young French composer, were heard. With the exception of the well known Andante Cantabile of Tschai-kowsky the entire program given was by those composers who are among the foremost of the moderns.

The other numbers rendered were: The Romantische Serenade, Op. 25, of J. Brandt-Buys, and Quartet, Op. 13, of Iwanow. The daring experiment on the part of their local manager, for such it was, proved, however, an entire success. Both audience and critics keenly enjoyed every number. Only parts of the Milhaud proved at all incomprehensible to its hearers.

One of the pleasant incidents of the stay of the Zoellners in Colorado Springs was their meeting with "Frederic Ayres" (F. A. Johnson), the composer whose home is there. Members of the quartet were glad to learn at first hand of the work of this composer and to assure him that they would use his Sonata for piano and violin on their future programs. They also asked that they might have first chance to present anything he might do for string quartet, a promise delightedly agreed to by "Frederic Ayres."

§ § §

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN

Theodore Harrison, baritone, head of the vocal department of the University School of Music, Ann Arbor, scored a great success in a recital he gave recently for the Indian Village Musical Club of Detroit. Mr. Harrison possesses a voice of wide range, volume, and rare beauty of tone and he made a splendid impression upon his audience in this recital. His program consisted of old and modern Italian songs, "Der Neugierige" and "Die Stadt" by Schubert; "Biterolf" by Wolf; several Brahms songs, the great aria, "Vision Fugitive" by Massenet; Strauss' "Cae-cilie;" a Schumann song, and four English songs. Mr. Harrison's work was enthusiastically received and in response to generous applause he sang several encores. Mrs. Edwin S. Sherrill, a former member of the piano faculty of the University School of Music, played Mr. Harrison's accompaniments most successfully.

Mr. Harrison will also appear on two of the programs of the twenty-second annual May Festival, to be held in Ann Arbor, May 19-22. On the Thursday evening program he will sing the difficult baritone role in Wolf-Ferrari's "New Life," while on Saturday afternoon he will appear in a miscellaneous program. He has also been engaged to sing at two of the concerts of the Lansing, Michigan, May Festival, to be held the following week. This festival is conducted by Mr. Fred Killeen, a graduate and former member of the University School of Music and takes high rank as one of the most important festivals given in Michigan.

Miss Leonora Allen, who has been doing special work under Mr. Harrison for the past year, will also sing in the Ann Arbor May Festival, in the "Children's Crusade" and will appear at the Lansing Festival as well.

The problem of maintaining a music festival year after year of high artistic standards and of real musical worth is increasing year by year, owing to the fact that so many patrons demand the presence of spectacular celebrities and often the question of the actual program is apt to be forced into the background, somewhat, by patrons who concentrate their attention largely upon the few stars who are to appear. Evidently this trend has gone farther this year than formerly, in view of the fact that the office of the management of the Ann Arbor May Festival, during the past several weeks has been besieged by letters such as the following: "....., Texas,

April 13, 1915. Dear Sirs: Can you use airoplanes shooting battleships from the sky? We have one airoplane that will be booked with our carnival attractions and one Independent. It will be a pleasure to write you details, terms, etc.

"

From the above it is quite evident that the reputation of Hill Auditorium as one of the largest musical auditoriums in the country has reached even Texas.

C. A. S.

§ § §

The University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich., has just issued an attractive prospectus of the work of the annual summer session to be held June 28 to August 20, a period coinciding with that of the summer session of the University of Michigan.

Course of instruction in all branches of music will be offered for two distinct classes of students. First, students of the regular school year who wish to continue their study during the summer months, and second, for professional musicians who wish to do specialized work along some particular line during the vacation months.

A number of the regular members of the faculty will remain in charge of the work during the summer: Professor Albert A. Stanley, director; Albert Lockwood, head of the piano department; Earl V. Moore, head of the organ department and instructor in theoretical and historical music; Frances L. Hamilton, Edith B. Koon, Harrison A. Stevens, Nell B. Stockwell, instructors in piano; Nora Crane Hunt, Ada Grace Johnson, Kenneth N. Westerman, instructors in voice; Marian Struble, instructor in violin; Michelangelo F. Converso, instructor in band instruments.

Supplementary to the regular work of the class room and studio, a number of interesting musical events have been scheduled, which will be given complimentary during the summer in Hill Auditorium: June 30, faculty concert; July 6, Lecture by Director Stanley; July 7, Faculty concert; July 13, exhibition of the Stearns collection of musical instruments, conducted by Director Stanley; July 14, faculty concert; July 20, lecture by Director Stanley; July 21, faculty concert; July 28, faculty concert; August 4, faculty concert; August 11, faculty concert. In addition, an interesting series of daily lectures and other entertainments will be given under the auspices of the University of Michigan summer session.

For the May Festival, to Be Held May 19, 20, 21 and 22, 1915

Professor Stanley has just announced the engagement of Frieda Hempel of the Metropolitan Opera Company as soloist for the Thursday evening concert of the May Festival. The entire list of Festival artists now stands as follows:

Sopranos—Leonora Allen, Frieda Hempel, Ada Grace Johnson, Olive Kline.

Contraltos—Margaret Keyes, Margarete Ober.

Tenors—John McCormack, Lambert Murphy.

Baritones—Theodore Harrison, Clarence Whitehill.

Pianist—Harold Bauer.

Organist—Llewellyn L. Renwick.

Organizations—The University Choral Union, a special children's chorus, a special chorus of boys, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Albert A. Stanley and Frederick Stock, conductors.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICK

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET Soprano
WILLIAM Composer-Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Cholmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

LEIST-BEEBE

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wollsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Metropolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE
4051 Calo et Avenue Orotorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL TENOR
1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Willman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

RECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

DRAMATIC SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
5000 Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

THE CENTRALIA CONVENTION

The Illinois Music Teachers' Association meeting will be held at Centralia on May 4, 5, 6 and 7, with the following remarkably interesting program:

TUESDAY, MAY FOURTH

2 p. m.
High School and Public School Music Demonstration

Recital By
Frederica Downing, contralto.
Marie Zendt, soprano.
Sol Cohen, violin.

8 p. m.
Recital by
Rudolph Ganz, pianist.
John B. Miller, tenor.
Edgar Nelson, accompanist.

WEDNESDAY, MAY FIFTH

Morning
9:30 "Resume of Illinois Composers"—W. D. Armstrong.
10:30 "Psychology and Pedagogics of Teaching"—Frederick Lillebridge.

Afternoon
2:30 Recital by Gustav Holmquist, basso.
Edgar Nelson, pianist.
4:00 Lecture on "Teaching Principles as Applied to Rhythm, Melody and Harmony, and Lesson with Raw Material"—Effa Ellis Perfield.

Evening
8:00 Address by Mrs. David Allen Campbell.
8:15 Recital by Glenn Dillard Gunn, pianist; Van Garden, contralto, of Chicago Grand Opera.

THURSDAY, MAY SIXTH

Morning
9:00 "The Practical Man"—Kenneth Bradley.
10:00 "Experiences in European Studios, with Some Observations on Teaching"—D. A. Clippingier.
11:00 Illustrated lecture on "Parsifal"—Maurice Rosenfeld.

Afternoon
2:30 Recital by
Leonora Allen, soprano.
Herbert Miller, baritone.
Allen Spencer, pianist.

Evening
7:45 Recital by Hugo Kortschak, violinist.
James Whitaker, pianist.
8:30 Address by John C. Freund.

FRIDAY, MAY SEVENTH

Morning
9:00 "What the State Board of Education Can Do for the Standardization of Music Teaching"—R. G. McCutchan.
10:00 "The Teacher and Standardization"—J. Lawrence Erb.
11:00 Talk on Teaching Harmony—Adolf Weidig.
12:00 Business meeting.

Afternoon
3:00 Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra—Emil Oberhoffer, conductor.

Soloists
Marion Green, baritone.
Rudolph Reuter, pianist.
Evening
8:15 Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.
Soloists
Marie Sundelius, soprano.
Richard Czerwonky, violin.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, PA

Following a winter of rehearsals in the Chapel of the Moravian Seminary and College for Women in Bethlehem, the Bach Choir of the Bethlehems will practice on Sunday afternoon in Packer Memorial Church, Lehigh University, where the tenth Bach festival is to be held on May 28 and 29. Dr. J. Fred Wolle, conductor, who has been ill for several weeks, has entirely recovered and is in charge of all rehearsals. Time and attention is being put principally upon the first day's program, the "St. John Passion," which the choir is to sing this year for the first time. The work for the second day is the "Mass" in B Minor, which will be rendered for the eighth time in the Bethlehems.

CLARENCE EDDY AT MADISON

The following is from the Madison (Wis.) Democrat:

The event in musical circles last evening was the formal opening of the new pipe organ in Christ Presbyterian Church by Clarence Eddy, one of the world's greatest organists. It was indeed a memorable occasion, denoting as it did the possession of one of the largest and best organs in the state, at a cost of $10,000, the completion of a new church edifice, at an outlay of fully $60,000, and the presence of a world-famous organist to introduce the king of instruments to an appreciative and delighted audience.

The organ contains 101 speaking stops and many mechanical accessories, all of which are electrically operated and controlled. The new organ was built after the plan of Professor F. A. Parker, who also drew the specifications of the old Marshall organ, which was damaged at the time of the fire and replaced by the present instrument.

Professor Parker, who was at the head of the music department of the church and also organist for a period of thirty years or more, was present and introduced Mr. Eddy, who also opened the old organ some twenty years ago. That Mr. Eddy is master of the organ must be admitted, and under his manipulation the great instrument showed its possibilities.

It is not alone his technic which is prodigious, but his knowledge of the possible combinations of the stops that enables him to produce the most delicate expression or bring out when needed the full power of the great organ. His program was well chosen to demonstrate the possibilities of the magnificent instrument in the hands of a master performer, containing as it did some selections full of charming tonal effects, and others abounding in majesty and power.

The enthusiasm of the audience increased as the program progressed and Mr. Eddy was compelled to respond to an encore after the closing number. (Advertisement.)

WARREN

PROCTOR

CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
419 Fine Arts Building. Phone Maywood 1615

GLADYS HAWKINS IN BROOKLYN

Two hundred persons enjoyed a musical treat last night in the ballroom of the Hotel St. George, where a young American pianist, Miss Gladys Hawkins made her first Brooklyn appearance in a private concert under the patronage of a number of well-known women prominent in Brooklyn and elsewhere. With a varied program, containing numbers that would tax the most experienced musician, she acquitted herself in a masterly manner and was often greeted with enthusiastic applause.

Miss Hawkins combines a wonderful technic with a delicacy and perfection of expression which make her equally effective in the brilliant Liszt "Rhapsodie" and the dreaminess of Chopin's "Nocturnes." One of her numbers was the "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor," by Bach-Tausig, which Miss Hawkins played last winter at the American embassy in Vienna at a piano recital for Ambassador and Mrs. Penfield, and for which she won high praise. One of the charms of the pianist's work is her apparent unconsciousness of her audience. From the time she begins to play she loses herself in her music. Being large and strong, with a magnetic physique, Miss Hawkins is untiring, and after the long and difficult performance last night she responded to two encores.

In addition to the numbers mentioned above, Miss Hawkins played Beethoven's "Sonata," Op. 28; the "Melodie" of Gluck-Sgambati; "Eccossaises" (Scotch dances) by Beethoven-D'Albert, and "Les Abeilles," by Dubois, the latter being particularly brilliant and effective.

The second part of the program was devoted to Chopin and Liszt, the "Etude in C Minor" and "Ballade in G Minor" being given in addition to the "Nocturne in G Major" and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie." "Liebestraum" and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" were the encores. Miss Hawkins received many beautiful flowers, and a supper was given in her honor after the performance. She lives in Potsdam, N. Y., and she spent three years in Vienna studying under Leschetizky. She is passing through Brooklyn on her way to her studio in Chicago, after a concert tour in northern New York.—Brooklyn Eagle.—(Advertisement.)

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF TEACHERS' AGENCIES

(Affiliated with N. E. A.)

For some years there has been a growing desire on the part of the managers of teachers' agencies to standardize their work, thus making it possible for one to distinguish between agencies. The time has long gone by when an "educator" out of a job could print a few letter heads and embark in the agency business. Yet, until quite recently, such an "agency" could go before the teachers and schools as being ready for efficient work. Although "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," such agencies have done much to discredit the work in general and to harm the good name of the business as a whole.

In February, 1914, at the Richmond, Virginia, meeting of the N. E. A. (Department of Superintendence) was established the National Association of Teachers' Agencies. During the year, the membership grew and at the Cincinnati meeting of the N. E. A. last February, there was elected to membership sixty teachers' agencies, comprising practically all such agencies doing a reputable business with teachers only. The association cannot admit commercial agencies nor teachers' agencies which are in any way combined with commercial agencies.

The ultimate aim is to have membership in the association stand for character and quality so that any teacher from the most humble to the highest, or any school officer may feel safe in placing business in the hands of any member.

The membership of the National Association of Teachers' Agencies has for years been found in the membership of the N. E. A. Almost every agency manager has been taken from the ranks of successful educators so that it is eminently fit and proper that the great and valuable work of teachers' agencies should be under N. E. A. auspices. At the Cincinnati meeting we appeared in the N. E. A. program, and gave several most excellent papers and had an audience very respectable in numbers. The National Association of Teachers' Agencies came into its own. It secured the recognition it deserved and its work was definitely cut out.

Everything possible will be done to keep the teachers' agency business on a high professional standing. The best interests of the school will be considered first, last and all the time. Conflicts of any sort between agencies themselves or between themselves and teachers will be adjusted by our executive committee fairly and promptly. The use of lawyers and courts to settle such differences is discouraged and even now is necessary only in very rare instances.

During the short period of its existence, the National Association has brought about a wonderful spirit of harmony and good will which augurs well for the future. Any officer of the association will be most glad to give information about the N. A. T. A. The president is Mr. A. F. Pease, 6 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.; vice president, Joshua Richmond, St. Louis Co. Bank building, St. Louis, Mo.; Secretary-Treasurer, B. F. Clark, 64 E. Van Buren street, Chicago.

Miller—Miss Alta Miller will present her pupil, Frances Arnold, in song recital at Music Hall, Northwestern University, this (Friday) evening.

NEW ALBANY, INDIANA

The annual spring concert of St. Cecilia Club was given at the Grand Theater on Tuesday evening, April 29, under the direction of the president, Miss Harriet Compton Devol.

The club is composed of well known young women of the city, and its popularity was attested by the presence of an audience that filled the theater.

Each number of the program received the approbation of the music lovers, and applause was generously bestowed throughout the evening on the various members of the club, who also were the recipients of a profusion of beautiful floral offerings which were passed over the footlights.

The introductory part of the program was given in a garden scene, and the songs and choruses had reference to the spring season.

A minuet was one of the pleasing numbers.

In the second part instrumental numbers were given with the choruses and vocal solos and duets.

The club was assisted by Miss Margaret Rowe, harpist, and Jesse Palmer, of Georgetown, violinist, harpist, and Jesse Palmer of Georgetown, violinist. Miss Ruth Garrison and Miss Ella Gardner were Miss Devol, the efficient director for the artistic effects attained by this body of young singers.

The Treble Clef Club gave its last concert of the season on Thursday evening, April 15, at Music Hall. A thoroughly enjoyable program was given by the club, which is under the direction of Mrs. Henry Terstegge, who has been at the head of this musical organization for many years.

Besides the choral numbers, solos were given by

SUMMER SCHOOL Study the Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to lead Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

the originator

Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers. Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

Miss Elizabeth Hedden, Mrs. Herman Rockenbach, Mrs. H. Kannapell and Mrs. Schrader.

Miss Ruth Jones of Louisville, the young violinist, contributed several numbers on the program. Miss Ruth Brown was the accompanist.

The May Music Festival Association of New Albany has announced the completion of its program for the annual concerts to be given on Monday and Tuesday nights, May 17 and 18, at the Grand Theater.

The choral works to be given are Max Bruch's "Fair Ellen" on the opening night, and Mendelssohn's "Elijah" on the closing night.

The soloists for "Fair Ellen" will be Mrs. Douglass Webb, soprano, and Vinton Nunnemacher, basso.

For "Elijah" the soloists will be Miss Flora Marguerite Bertelle, soprano; Mrs. R. K. Van Pelt, contralto; Dr. Noble Mitchell, tenor, and John Peterson, basso.

On the opening night Miss Ruth Brown, accompanist for the association, will play Mendelssohn's "Concerto" in G, for piano, with orchestral accompaniment, and on Tuesday night, Earl Hedden will play Molique's "Concerto" in G on the 'cello, with the orchestra.

The orchestral numbers will include Weber's overture to "Freischutz," Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," and other light numbers. The concerts are under the direction of Anton H. Embs, supervisor of music in the public schools.

New Albany, Ind. JOHN PETERSON,

Columbia School of Music—The Summer Normal Session at the Columbia will be held June 21 to July 24. Circulars on application, Ohio Building, Chicago.

Tollefson—Maude A. Tollefson, violinist and contralto, gave a recital at the Ashland Church of Christ Wednesday evening, April 21.

MARIE EVANS PROGRAM

Following is the program to be given by Marie Evans at the Cosmopolitan Branch School this evening, as noted elsewhere in this issue:

Minuet	Bach
Bagatelle	Haydn
Cradle Song	Grieg
The Swan	Grieg
The Avalanche	Heller
A Dream of Angels
The Rope Dancers
A Morning Prayer	Kullak
The Nightingale
Slumber Song	Dennee
Waltz	Lynes
Mifanwy	Forster
Norwegian Song	Loge
A Fairy Tale	Seeböck
Miss Scott at Second Piano

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.

The following program was given at the Unitarian Church by George H. Normington, organist, assisted by Miss Hazel Dickover of Chicago, soprano, Sunday afternoon, April 4.

Third Organ Concerto	Handel
Adagio
Moderato
Allegro (with cadenza by W. T. Best)
Gavotte and Musette	Bach
O Divine Redeemer	Gounod
Wiegenlied	M. Hansen
Fest Marsch	Franz Lachner
An April Song	John Hyatt Brewer
Angels' Serenade	Braga
Violin Obligato by Mrs. A. L. Ferguson
Eventide	F. Flaxington Harker
Old Easter Melody ("O Filii et Filiae" with variations)	John E. West

GARY, INDIANA

Dr. Arthur B. Oren, tenor, sang a program of songs at Library Hall, Thursday evening, presenting each number in an interesting and intelligent manner. Special mention should be made of his splendid tone shading and exquisite overtone work, correct phrasing and clear enunciation. Dr. Oren is an artist student of Madame Agnes Leist Beebe.

Oak Park—Sunday, May 2, at 4:30 p. m., Mr. Arthur Randolph Fraser, organist and choirmaster, will give a short organ recital, assisted by Mr. Charles Rouse, baritone, of Chicago, at Grace Church, Oak Park.

Lipschultz—Mr. George Milton Lipschultz, violinist, and Miss Loula Schneidt, pianist, appeared in program before the Germania Masonic Lodge at the North End Hall last week.

Christ Church—The special monthly music service at Christ Church, Woodlawn, under direction of Mason Slade, will be given next Sunday at 7:45. Amy Emersen Neill will be soloist.

Butler-Orchard—Mrs. Hanna Butler and Mrs. Charles Orchard furnished music numbers at the Majestic Theater last Sunday morning.

Cosmopolitan—Miss Dorothy Pelck will be presented in piano recital at Auditorium Recital Hall by the Cosmopolitan School of Music, Tuesday evening, May 4.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Rm. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals

4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Ziesler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
410 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

ALFRED GOLDMAN Violinists
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

Music Abroad

DRESDEN, GERMANY

(Delayed Correspondence)

At the Royal Opera three one-act operas achieved striking successes, Pergolesi's "La Serva Padrona," Mozart's "Bastien and Bastienne" and Haydn's "Apotheker." They were the first of a series of historical performances which are planned for the near future. The stage mounting was specially charming, also the costumes and the soloists; above all, however, the musical director, Fritz Reiner, our new conductor, who seems eminently fitted for this kind of music.

"Tannhauser" was produced with an American singer, Vernon Stiles, in the title role. His fine stage presence was immediately noted as a preference. As for his acting and singing, they did not quite meet the demands of a first force in Dresden. Mr. Stiles some days later appeared as "Manrico" in "The Troubadour," in which role he was more successful.

Laura Rappoldi-Kahrer gave a recital to celebrate her fiftieth jubilee as a concert giver. She played the same program that she did fifty years ago in Vienna, while a child of ten, on which occasion quite a number of musical celebrities were present, and from which moment her fame began to rise until Liszt accepted her as his pupil. She further studied with Hans von Bulow, Henselt and others. After having married the Dresden royal court-master, Rappoldi, she settled for good in the Saxon capital, to continue her activity as a concert pianist and teacher. In her Dresden recital this year Mrs. Rappoldi also played Draeseke's "Grand Sonata," Op. 6, which nobody certainly can do in a more broad, spiritual and altogether grand style than she does. Needless to say, the celebrated pianist achieved ovations such as are only rarely witnessed here.

In another concert some interesting novelties were produced, such as "A Melodrama," by A. Trenkler, orchestra leader, of Cologne. It is headed "The Iron Cross" (Das eiserne Kreuz) and is immensely effective. The poem treats a true episode from the present war, and the music most convincingly pictures the dramatic situations. A chief feature, greatly in favor of the work, is its concentration (short and impressive), its musical color and its passionate tints. The composer was a remarkable interpreter of his own opus. His wife did the poem with great success.

The program further comprised some new songs by the American composer, August Sieberg, among them the "Liebesleid" counts as one of his very best creations. The songs were impressively given by a local singer, Margarete Bruck, a niece of George Henschel, whose vocal means are exquisite; her interpretative powers, as well, being worthy of great attention.

The young and charming American coloratura singer, Miss Effie Volkmann, further contributed the "Gilda" aria from the "Rigoletto" in a brilliant fashion, also adding Sieberg's effective coloratura waltz, "In Sylvan Shade." The composer Tieberg was applauded to the echo. A violinist, Miss Gertrude Matthaes, performed various selections by Mozart, Drdla and a "Rondo" by A. Sieberg.

The examination concerts at the Royal Conservatory have been concluded by a schlusconcert, which displayed quite remarkable results. It opened with "A Concerto for Clarinette," by Weber, very well given by Herr Nagel. Fraulein Hess did the Grieg "Concerto" with great power of interpretation. Fraulein Frankenberger, of the Orgein School, excelled in the highly artistic presentation of Verdi's "Violetto Arie," E strano. Herr Schiebold, as a 'cellist, proved his ability in the profession. He played Klughardt's "Concerto." A pupil of Mrs. Rappoldi-Kahrer, Fraulein Huebler, distinguished herself as an interpreter of Brahms' piano "Concerto in D Minor." Fraulein Ernster sang the aria from "Mignon" and last, but not least, Adrian Rappoldi's gifted pupil, Herr Polant, surprised everybody by his fine reading of Mendelssohn's "Concerto." Two young orchestra leaders, pupils of Hofkapellmeister Striegler, displayed their gifts as conductors of the conservatory orchestra.

In the previous recitals, two pupils of the singing teachers Elisa Sievert and Mary Wollen attracted due attention as operatic and lied singers. Of course a large number of pupils from other teachers were heard, with more or less success, though space forbids details.

The People's Singing Academy gave a "Jugend recital," attended by about 3,000 children. The chorus sang beautifully choruses from Brahms, Hugo Wolf, Nicode ("Deutsches Geheh") and Bach.

The Royal Opera singer Gertrude Saehse presented lieder (songs) by Reinhold Becker, Schumann and others. The children evidently enjoyed the concert beyond description.

A. INGMAN.

Dresden, March 28, 1915.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE

Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA

For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements

Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Malters Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

KORTSCHAK QUARTET

There was no uncertain tone in the reception of the new string quartet which made its first public appearance on the 21st inst. at cozy Thurber Hall, a place, by the way, that is just about ideal for such things in its compact intimacy of players and listeners: The acoustics were not fully understood on this occasion, and perhaps a broader tone and spirit were used than were desirable at all times.

These four men seem almost choice in their fitness to do what it is to be hoped they have set out to do. Mr. Hugo Kortschak is schooled, experienced, widely read in violin literature for so young a man, and yet he has intensity and enthusiasm without stint to illuminate his splendid technical equipment. Herman Felber, Jr., is young and talented, with the stimulant of several successful solo appearances in a large way to add to his severe training as a member of the violin section of the orchestra. Emanuel Stoeber has readily and with a certain quiet authority, taken possession of a place waiting for him here in Chicago by reason of his notable gifts of talent and personality. In George Dasch the real key to the situation is found, in one way. For he does not regard the viola part as a plain case of sawing wood, as is quite often found but by the use of a lovely, tone, so pure and mellow as to compel attention, he lifts it into its proper place as a vital integer in the music making. Before the Haydn Quartet in D Minor had gone very far, the audience realized that these four players were doing something quite unusual, and accepted the organization as one of decided present worth and inestimable future value. There is a wide open place for the quartet and they will find favor.

They played the Haydn with a bit more of excitement than we expect in his serene moods, but they were sincere and impulsive and the music was beautiful.

The Caesar Franck D Major was the other number, and the players found his spirit and made the movements to glow with lines of color and charm. Somehow everything the fine old Frenchman did was touched with loveableness, and to those who listen aright there is ever new and fresh pleasure to be found in his creations. The quartet played this work with such abandonment to its influences and their own enthusiasm, that, if for no other reason, they give a good motive for their being.

There was an audience present of good proportions, and the best sort of quality and the launching of the new endeavor may be said to be auspicious in large degree.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Hostetter—Hildred Hanson Hostetter, soprano, is substituting at the Church of the Redeemer and was special soloist at the First Presbyterian Church of Oak Park last Sunday. On April 26 she was soloist before the Parent-Teacher Association of the Hawthorne School in Oak Park and made a fine success in a well chosen group of songs.

Layfield—Mrs. Mabel Layfield, contralto, sang at a reception in Hyde Park, April 23. On April 30 she sings at a reception in Plymouth Congregational Church, and on May 6 sings for the Western Drawing Teachers' Association at Fullerton Hall, Art Institute.

RADANOVITS STUDIO

Thursday evening, April 22, Mr. Sandor S. Radanovits presented his artist pupils, Mina Katherine Hager, contralto, and Princess Wa-Tah-Wa-So, mezzo-soprano, in a program of songs.

Miss Hager has a thoroughly fine contralto voice of a very appealing quality, and her personality is such as to ingratiate her with any audience.

She has much musical temperament and a keen dramatic instinct. She has ad-

MINA KATHERINE HAGER

anced far in artistic graces, and she gave the audience an exposition of interpretative powers and technical finish that were very attractive and convincing. Miss Hager chose as her opening group of songs from Schumann's Dichterliebe, making them thoroughly delightful from a vocal standpoint, and the variety of expression employed.

Her second offering was Homer's tensely dramatic "Song of the Shirt" and she rose to great heights in artistic singing, by the broadly dramatic and finished manner in which she presented it. In her final group she chose songs by Carpenter, Lester, Rogers. In these Miss Hager displayed the lighter phases in vocal art that were irresistible, and a fine appreciation of the English text.

The many touches of tonal color and musical graces, which she also employed in this last group, will long be remembered as an artistic joy.

Princess Wa-Tah-Wa-So, whose work was recently reviewed in Music News, was also heard with great pleasure. She makes a direct appeal to her audience by her charming stage presence and winning personality. She uses her pleasing voice with much skill, gaining some fine effects in any of the tribal songs or melodies she chooses to present. Cadman's "The Moon Drops Low" and two groups by Lieurance were sung with great intelligence and much musical feeling. Especially effective were her renditions of a "Crow Maiden's Prayer Song," "Her Blanket," and Bergen's "The Manitou Curse Thee" was drawn along broadly dramatic lines in a thoroughly convincing manner.

Mr. William Lester, as always, furnished musicianly accompaniments that added greatly to the success of the evening.

SOUSA'S BAND AT MEDINAH TEMPLE

The current week finds Sousa (the March King) and his famous band playing eight concerts at Medinah Temple, Cass and Ohio streets, under whose auspices the great organization appears.

The series of concerts, which will close this Saturday night, opened in brilliant form last Monday evening. The large auditorium in the temple makes an excellent place to hear a band and the audience on opening night, while it did not tax the seating capacity of the room, it nevertheless was one of the most enthusiastically appreciative noted for a long while.

The distinguished conductor, Mr. Sousa, led his musicians through a long and varied program, which offered such compositions as the Overture "Carnival Romain," Berlioz; the "Prelude" and "Love's Death," from "Tristan and Isolde," the "Scherzo," from Svendsen's Symphony in D Major, and many of Sousa's works, such as his suite "Impressions at the Movies," and a new march, "The Pathfinder of Panama," as well as several of his famous marches, including "The Stars and Stripes," which brought down the house as usual. The band is as great as ever and an inspiration to hear.

Herbert S. Clark, the world's greatest cornetist, was heard in one of his own solos, which was greatly enjoyed, and Virginia Root, soprano, sang with considerable artistry two numbers. Miss Margel Gluck, violinist, proved to be an artist of the first rank and had to add an encore to her programed numbers. Medinah Temple should hold greater crowds for such concerts.

H. M. B.

MAC BURNEY STUDIOS

On Monday evening, May 3, Madeleine St. Claire Blachly, soprano; Florence Pettinger, soprano, and Grace Grove, accompanist, will give the following program:

Scheiden und Meiden	Cornelius
Notturmo	Herman
The Gypsies	Brahms
Miss Blachly and Miss Pettinger
Die Mainacht	} Brahms
Maendchen
Wiegenlied
Feldensamkeit
Meine Lie' e ist gruen
Miss Blachly
Fussreise	Wolf
Zueignung	Strauss
Miss Pettinger
Flower Duet—Madame Butterfly	Puccini
Miss Blachly and Miss Pettinger
Since We Parted	Manney
The Star	Rogers
Spring Is at the Door	Quilter
Separation	Ward-Stephens
Miss Pettinger
Je suis Titania—Mignon	Thomas
Miss Blachly
Sous le dome epais—Lakme	Delibes
Miss Blachly and Miss Pettinger

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan sends Music News greetings from San Francisco.

ORGANIST AND VIOLINISTS' GUILD SERVICE AT ST. PETER'S

A long desired coalition of forces came about at St. Peter's Church on the 20th inst. and gave especial pleasure to Mr. Walter Keller and Mr. Bernard Listemann, who were important agents in bringing it about. The Guild of Organists and the Guild of Violinists have much in common in the way of interests, and a great deal to give to one another when it comes to musical amalgamation. If the initial joint public service is to serve as an example there is much joy ahead. For it is to be said that no more satisfactory musical moment has come to the reviewer during the season than the performance of the Bach Concerto or two violins, which Miss Mabel Woodworth and Miss Wally Heymai played and Mr. Herbert Hyde supplemented with an organ part that was ideal. The occasion became notable by that one effort alone, and the highest praise belongs to the fortunate participants.

But there were other delightful features in the program, one of which was the Dohnanyi string quartet, played with good style, tone and ensemble by the University String Quartet, which is made up of such experienced players as Harold E. Knapp, Charles Elander, Alfred G. Wathall and Day Williams. This work is a contribution to modern chamber music and has some of the incoherent moments that are apt to obtain, but for the most part is graphic in its mood delineation and engaging in its elusiveness. It has not the square definition of theme and development of Haydn, for example, and thereby fails to readily reach a certain accepted line of thought. The men did it with much nice attention to color and expression, and it gave distinct pleasure.

Mr. John Doane was the visiting organist and, making himself well at home after once he got under way, he gave a good account of himself in the Debussy "En Bateau," which belongs peculiarly to him, the "Lullaby" of Lemarc, which suited the restricted resources of the organ better than any number offered, and the Rosseter-Cole's "Fantasie Symphonique," which really got over very well when the organ is again remembered.

Mr. Hyde plays a beautiful service, singularly quiet, restrained, but polished to a rare degree. He used for his choir the Cruickshank Canticles, which are churchly in their varied phases and which lacked only the inspiring under-current of power which the organ simply does not possess. The choir sings with a rich, always musical tone and in the Maunder "O Come, Let Us Sing" the first chorus of "Song of Thanksgiving" they showed also that they could do things in the more palpably brilliant way. It was a bit of tact to insert this simple number into an elaborate service. There are people who are beginners, in every gathering. Too often they are overlooked.

In this epidemic of new organs in Chicago churches let us pray, brethren, that St. Peter's may be hit hard and Mr. Hyde be given the energizing stimulant of an organ worthy his work.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Oak Park—The Oriental Male Quartet will sing special numbers at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on Sunday evening.

A RECITAL AT THE CLARENCE EDDY HOME

The delightful and congenial home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Eddy was the scene of an enjoyable hour of music on Sunday afternoon, April 25, when Mrs. Eddy presented her pupil, Miss Laura A. Bitter, soprano, in a song recital, assisted by Miss Ruth Miller, violinist; Miss Dorothy Pound, pianist, and Mr. Eddy, accompanist.

A splendid gathering of appreciative friends heard the program, which was opened by Miss Bitter singing "One Fine Day," from "Madame Butterfly," and "I Know a Lovely Garden," D'Hardelot. The soprano disclosed a voice of rare beauty, used with that intelligence which denotes the very best of training and her charming personality adds greatly to the enjoyment derived from her offerings. She held her hearers completely through the singing of these opening numbers and was no less successful when she appeared later in the afternoon and sang "Schlupfwinkel," La Forge; "Im Kahne," Grig; "The Robin Sings in the Apple Tree," MacDowell; "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind," Arne, and "Ecstasy," by Mrs. Beach.

Miss Bitter enters into the spirit of each song with unusual abandon and her assurance in delivery is convincing and worthy of high praise. She should indeed find success in the future and her teacher, Mrs. Eddy, well deserves commendation for the present attainments of the singer.

Mr. Eddy was at the piano during the singing of Miss Bitter and consequently accompaniments that were ideal as to sympathy, finish and artistry were the result.

Excellent violin playing was heard through the appearance of Miss Miller, a pupil of Hugo Kortschak. The "Allegro" and "Andante" from the Concerto in G Minor, by Max Bruch, was the young violinist's offering and she displayed in every phrase a beautiful tone, ample technique and splendid musicianship. A very satisfactory accompaniment to support her playing was furnished by Miss Pound, who brought further pleasure to the afternoon's musical activities by her playing of the "Fantasie" in F Minor, by Chopin. Miss Pound is a pupil of Walter Spry and by her brilliant playing on this occasion brought forth not only praise for her own splendid proficiency as a pianist, but added to the laurels already attained by Mr. Spry as a teacher.

H. M. B.

ORGAN RECITAL

An organ recital will be given by Mr. Albert Riemenschneider, dean North Ohio Chapter American Guild of Organists, under the auspices of the Illinois Chapter, American Guild of Organists, in St. Vincent de Paul Church, Webster and Sheffield avenues, on Thursday, May 4, at 8 p. m.

PROGRAM

Allegro from Sixth Organ Symphony.....	Widor
Adagio from Sixth Organ Symphony.....	Widor
Gavotte	Martini
Prelude B Minor	Bach
Benedictus, Op. 59, No. 9.....	Reger
Prelude, Op. 59, No. 1.....	Reger
Allegro Moderato from Sonata, Op. 98.....	Rheinberger
Clair de Lune.....	Karg-Elert
Caprice	Lemaigre
Salute d'Amour	Federlein
Toccata from Fifth Organ Symphony	Widor

THE DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS

Sunday evening a newly organized choral society under the direction of Palmer John Clark gave their first concert at the Hyde Park Presbyterian, presenting Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus," with the following assisting artists: Ethel Connelly Cutler, soprano; Robert Quait, tenor; G. W. Christopher, bass, and B. E. Ballard, organist. Mr. Christopher was heard to a good advantage in a special solo number, and in the cantata he sang with authority.

Mrs. Cutler gave a very effective rendition of Rholfe's "Teach Me to Live" that made a direct appeal. Her singing in the cantata was highly enjoyed, for she sang with great sincerity of purpose and fine understanding of the musical content. Mr. Quait also did his share in making things go smoothly, and his solo number very well done.

The chorus under Mr. Clark's direction did much commendable singing. Their shading attacks and releases were well taken, for the most part. They sang with a fine spirit, their fresh young voices giving the lines with telling effect. Mr. Clark deserves much credit and commendatory praise, and it is safe to predict that if they continue the work so well begun that they will gain a fine place for themselves, and will be heard again with great pleasure.

Mr. Ballard at the organ gave solid support.

KARL RECKZEH'S PUPILS' RECITAL

Wednesday evening, April 21, Mr. Karl Reckzeh presented his pupils in recital at the Chicago Musical College. Mr. Reckzeh chooses only the best in piano classics, a fact so well known that many professions as well as music lovers and friends take advantage of the splendid programs given by his pupils, who on this occasion displayed good technical equipments and well founded musicianships in the interesting program, comprising numbers by Mozart, Beethoven, Chopin, Schubert-Heller, Chaminade, Sinding, Scott, Liszt, Saint-Saens, Schubert-Tausig, played in a thoroughly commendable and praiseworthy manner, by Clemens Storch, Mabel Rippe, Eitel Brosseit, Edith Randolph, Mamie Thilo, Agnes Casserie, Jenny Murrin, Esther Kolste, Anna Alberti, Margaret Wilson, Ethel Colem, Julia Kryll. Mr. Reckzeh brought the program to a brilliant close by playing with superb mastery two Etudes and Rhapsodie No. 12, by Liszt.

He has temperament, musicianship and imagination, all of which he conserved in a most effective way in his solo group, receiving the enthusiastic endorsement of the audience.

Federation Contest Winners

The winners in the Middle District were Wallace Grieves, violin; Alexander Gray, voice, and Carol Robinson, piano. Mr. Grieves lives in Lacon, Ill.; Mr. Gray at Evanston, and Miss Robinson, originally from Springfield, has been for some years the assistant of Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler in Chicago. Miss Robinson is a wonderfully good player, and has everything to commend her. No young artist from Europe who has visited Chicago the past ten years can excel her in any way. Here's hoping that all these young people will make a great success at Los Angeles and get many engagements therefrom!

780.5 Stack
M 22 N
INDIANA STATE CONVENTION AT GREENCASTLE

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

America's Most Versatile
Song
Reciter

CECIL FANNING
BARITONE

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.

64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

An exquisite little song.—D. A. Clippinger.

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST

HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO

5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908, at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MAY 7, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company, Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application. Changes in advertisements must be ordered one week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK

Abbie S. Fridenberg

110 Carnegie Hall

For sale at Bretano's

27th st. and 5th av.

BOSTON

Lester S. Butler

Steinert Hall

DETROIT, MICH

Margaret Mulford

871 Ferry Park Ave.

OMAHA

Goodwal Dickerman

Arlington Block

CINCINNATI

L. Drew Mosher

137 W. Fourth av.

On sale Geo. B. Jennings

105 Fourth av. W.

CLEVELAND

George Emerson

616 The Arcade

INDIANAPOLIS

Gaylord Yost

Indianapolis Cons.

KANSAS CITY

Mary H. Flag

311 Studio Bldg.

DENVER

R. Jefferson Hall,

St. Mark's Church

ST. PAUL, MINN.

Myrtle Weed

802 Pittsburgh Bldg.

WICHITA, KAN.

Ralph Brokaw

WORCESTER, MASS.

Lester S. Butler

441 Day Bldg.

COLUMBUS, OHIO

George G. Whitehead

Redpath Lyceum Bureau

MILWAUKEE

Iva Bigelow Weaver

Mack Block

Frank E. Percival

PHILADELPHIA

Walter St. Clare Knodle

1523 Chestnut St.

LINCOLN, NEB.

Sidney Silber

Univ. School of Music

NASHVILLE, TENN.

C. J. Schubert

Schubert Cons. of Music

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

S. W. Mountz

1651 6th Ave.

ERIE, PA.

Albert H. Dowling Jr.

456 E. Seventh St.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

J. Henry Francis

St. John's Church

WASHINGTON

Horace D. Hitchcock

2224 F St., N. W.

MINNEAPOLIS

Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk

109 Marlborough Hotel

St. Paul, Minn.

DRESDEN, GERMANY

Anna Ingman

Franklinstrasse 20

Papers on sale

J. Ries' Music Store

Seestrasse 21

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital, Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Super-vises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz School of Languages,

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence

400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Bollado Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.

and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Music News

Vol. 7.

Chicago, May 7, 1915

No. 19

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

In the latest "I am holier than thou" editorial in Musical America the statement is made that "no arrangements have ever been made with the managers" by that paper.

This sounds big, but sifted down it means nothing. "Arrangements" are made with managers, artists and teachers by all papers, musical and otherwise. Perfectly legitimate "arrangements," covering advertising and publicity.

If Musical America means to infer, however, that illegitimate "arrangements" are sometimes made it should offer specific proof. Music News, for one paper, has never even heard that such "arrangements" are possible.

If some manager has been trying to seduce the virtuous Musical America he should be exposed.

□ □ □

In discussing the value of the weekly music papers recently the statement was made by the representative of a monthly (house paper) that the value of the former was nil because "the same terms are used in writing about a pupils' concert as are employed in discussing a really great artist."

Of course they are, for the words in the English language are strictly limited in number and it is not possible to have an exclusive set of words and phrases for use with each individual strata of the musical profession.

But it should be recognized that there is such a thing as a "different" use of the same word and also it should be recognized that a really good reviewer has always a STANDPOINT from which he is writing.

This standpoint should be kept in mind by the reader as well, for it is important.

For instance, if a writer states that "Madame Schumann-Heink sang excellently," he means that the concert under consideration was of really wonderful status, for, when Madame Schumann-Heink is "excellent" there is something worth listening to, even for the most blase. For her "excellence" is of superb quality.

When, however, a pupil's recital is called "excellent" in a review, quite a different thing is meant.

The reviewer has in mind the fact that the singer is young, inexperienced and perhaps frightened. When then, he says she is "excellent," he means that she has done credit to her teaching, that she promises

*Chearefulness doth expresse a settled, pious mynde,
Which is not prone to grudging, from murmuring refined—
ANNE COLLINS.*

well for the future and that she is, in his opinion, entirely worthy of encouragement.

There is a great difference, therefore, in the meaning of the same word as applied to the two cases, and, we believe that the ordinarily intelligent general public sees and knows this difference even if some carping musicians do not.

□ □ □

Frances Ingram is being called "the American Clara Butt" in many papers. This is a distinction to be sure, but does not carry so much weight as it might after all, for Miss Ingram is an infinitely better singer than Clara Butt, even though in some respects of the art she is similar to the English singer with the big voice. In the matter of real artistry, however, she possesses something which Clara Butt never had.

□ □ □

The reprinting in another column of the report in an Omaha paper of the fiasco of the recent orchestra engagement there serves to emphasize the statement made about Omaha in Music News recently. Several people have objected to our statement, but it was a true one nevertheless.

— — —

THE ORCHESTRA RESUME

(Contributed.)

Editor Music News: It was very broad gauge in you to republish Felix Borowski's summing up of the accomplishments (?) of the Chicago Orchestra's season. I do not accuse you of any intention to contrast its careful avoidance of saying anything at all, with the very direct utterance of several contributed editorials you have published, as well as your Elderly Person's pretty thorough canvass of the situation, and your own candid utterance, but if you had tried to make such comparisons you could not have made them more forcibly. For Mr. Borowski's careful use of many words which lead nowhere leaves the impression on a thinking mind that he is avoiding the very thing he apparently set out to do—namely, to voice approval of the orchestra's season. It is only another straw to indicate the wind's direction, but unfortunately it is only a straw, by reason of its lack of decision and its evident trimming to evade any real responsibility. It lays stress anew on the doubtful value of the reviews of the daily press.

C. A.

Civic Music Association—A Spring Festival will be given at the Carter H. Harrison High School on Sunday afternoon, May 23, by the Civic Music Clubs of Sherman Park, Hamilton Park, First Baptist Church, Deutsche Frauen Volkslieder Verein, Bohemian Domestic Girls Chorus, Seward Park and Armour Square.

EDNA GUNNAR PETERSON

The young pianist who has achieved such a notable success on this season's transcontinental tour. writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

June 1, 1914.

CABLE PIANO COMPANY, Chicago.
Gentlemen:

The Mason & Hamlin Piano is an inspiring friend to the performer and a real teacher of tone to pianists and students of piano. Every imaginable quality of tone can be produced on this wonderful instrument.

Very sincerely,
EDNA GUNNAR PETERSON.

Mason & Hamlin

Pianos for sale only at the
warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

Write for beautiful illustrated catalog

GROFF-BRYANT NEWS ITEMS

Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant announces a series of May musicales, at which she will present a group of advanced students of the Vocal Art Institute of Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill. The students to be heard are the Misses Viola Elma Graber, dramatic soprano; Mae Anna Ross, lyric soprano; Ruth Evelyn Brown, contralto; Margaret McCarl, lyric soprano; Ruth Estelle Heilmann, dramatic soprano, and Alexandriene Chabrisson, lyric soprano.

The forthcoming musical will be the first group of Mrs. Groff-Bryant's singers to be heard since the removal of the Anna Groff-Bryant Institute of Vocal Art and Education of Chicago to Lombard College, a few seasons ago.

Mrs. Groff-Bryant was a prominent leader in the musical life of Galesburg this season, and conducted the Grand Opera Artist Course, including Alma Gluck, Mme. Schumann-Heink, John McCormack, David Bispham, Jane Osborne-Hannah and Clarence Whitehill.

The series of musicals announced of her own pupils has aroused much interest in Galesburg and vicinity. The first recital took place May 3, and was given by Viola Graber, the popular soprano.

Anderson—Walter Anderson announces the management of Miss Laeta Hartley, pianist, for the coming season, who among other engagements, is to appear twice with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, November 23 and December 7.

Music in Chicago

ARTUR PLATZ IN SONG RECITAL

Central Music Hall was the scene of a charming song recital on Tuesday evening of last week, Mr. Artur F. Platz being the concert giver and his talented and artistic assistants being Karl Schulte, who played two violin obligatos most beautifully; Miss Patricia Abernethy, who accompanied most of the program, and Miss Jeanne M. Boyd, who played for Mr. Platz when he sung five of her songs.

The first of these was "At Morning," which is from "Trio of Spring Songs" and is simply delightful in its outlook on a dainty subject and its musical and poetic style. The "Canzonetta" which followed was like the "Spring Song" new, and it was equally effective. A most beautiful accompaniment it has, and a vocal line which would be a joy to any artistic singer.

The "Wind from the South," "La Tarantella" and "In Italy," which followed, have been heard frequently of late, but they grow none the less magnetic with repetitions, and their reception on Tuesday was, as in every other case where they have been heard, most enthusiastic.

The recital opened with the sedate "Total Eclipse" (Handel), which was well managed, and was followed by a splendidly chosen and equally well presented list of old classics—Schumann, Abt, Jensen and Grieg numbers—all sung with great beauty of tone and in fascinating style.

Later some modern Germans—Reger and Strauss—were equally well handled, and altogether Mr. Platz showed a fine knowledge of German text, as well as a keen insight into the musical thought of the German composers, both old and new.

An English text group was composed mostly of love songs, and was presented with effect and proper feeling.

Clough-Leigher's "Possession" was extremely well done by Mr. Platz, as also "When Soft Winds Blow," by Guedy.

"Compensation," by Lester—a gem of a song—proved most acceptable, and "Their Rose Immortal," by Radanovits, proved also to be a delightful song, well conceived, well built up and beautifully polished. This and "The Song" (Merten) had the advantage of the Schulte obligato—a very distinct advantage, by the way, and a keen pleasure to the audience.

Miss Abernethy is a dainty player—refined and charming to the last degree. She has, however, much power and virility in reserve, and gave the singer adequate support at all times and proved herself equally a most finished and musicianly pianist.

C. E. W.

Little Theater—Madame Borgny Hammer presents "Rosmersholm" at the Chicago Little Theater on Tuesday evening, May 4. Acknowledged as the leading actress in Christiania, Norway, Madame Hammer made her American debut last season at the Little, and charmed Chicago playgoers as Hedda Gabler. Her bearing displays the quiet elegance and easy emphasis that indicates thorough mastery of her art.

THE MENDELSSOHN CLUB

Without any fuss or trouble Mr. D. A. Clippinger successfully assumed the directorship of the last Mendelssohn concert, in place of Mr. Wild, who is still indisposed, and this proved his own great abilities as well as the adaptability and the good musicianship of the singers themselves.

Only the last half of the program was heard by this writer, this affording, however, great variety and much musical delight.

"Before the Dawn" (W. F. Harling) proved to be somewhat monotonous as to the vocal line, but it was sung with assurance and ease. The solo parts were intelligently done by Mr. John W. Nichols and a 'cello solo and obligato were presented with ravishing beauty of tone and in very correct musicianship by Mr. Hans Hess.

"Mammy's Lullaby" (Spross) must be regarded as an awkward perversion of the Dvorak "Humoreske" rather than a clever arrangement, but it was much liked, nevertheless, and encored.

Dudley Buck's keenly musical as well as whimsically satirical "Vocal Combat" was excellently managed by the club, and Dregert's "Flowret Blue" was a gem of vocal purity.

Saar's "Cradle Song" and Sullivan's "Lost Chord" ended the program with good musical values and in great musical delight to the audience.

In the "Cradle Song" a very attractive violin obligato was played with great skill and musical feeling by Mr. Frank P. Mandy.

Mr. Calvin Lampert was at the piano as usual and Mr. Allen W. Bogen gave splendid support at the organ in the more massive musical moments.

Mr. Clippinger conducted with skill and authority throughout and had to respond to many demonstrations of popular favor.

Mr. Nichols (who sang Debussy, Brahms and Strauss earlier in the evening) was heard in a group of beautifully chosen and contrasted songs.

Kroeger's "The Stars Shine in Their Radiant Glory" proved to be thoroughly fine. Mrs. Beach's "The Year's at the Spring" was brilliant and the Campbell-Tipton "Spirit Flower" has never been heard to better effect.

Mr. Nichols' great success, however, was scored in "The Banks of Allan Water" (Horn) in which his work was exquisite. John McCormack at his prime could equal Mr. Nichols in this, but never could he excel him.

Mr. Nichols showed in this simple song such utter purity of tone and such beauty of sentiment as to place it in a class by itself.

The audience gave every proof of entire enjoyment of Mr. Nichols' work and his acceptance as a Chicago favorite is now an accomplished fact.

C. E. W.

Sturkow-Ryder—Mme. Theodora Sturkow-Ryder gave a studio musicale last Saturday afternoon, being assisted by Mme. Jessie De Vore, violinist.

A DELIGHTFUL CHORAL CONCERT

For the last concert of the season, Mr. C. A. Hutter chose only well-known and thoroughly liked works for his chorus—the Chicago Choral Society—and the audience at Kimball Hall on Wednesday evening last was immensely pleased with the program offered, and readily voted Mr. Hutter a successful director and his singers as thoroughly effective and charming in their response to his baton.

The "Bridal Chorus," from "The Rose Maiden," opened the program brilliantly, and the "Hallelujah," from "The Messiah," ended it with dignity and power.

"For unto Us" ("Messiah") was also sung splendidly, and a variety of smaller works proved all sorts of musical values in this popular chorus.

The absolutely most effective number of the whole program was, however, "Behold, God, the Lord," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and this was sung with surprising power and unction, there being present also exceptionally good text enunciation and valuations.

The soprano section seemed unusually full and clear, and the tenors were a joy indeed. The basses were not so strong, and the altos needed reinforcement at times, but there was present throughout all sections a splendid musicianship and such a ready response to the conductor's baton that very much of finish was possible, and not only were the numbers indicative of musicianship on the part of the leader and the society, but also there was plenty of evidence of the good taste of the first named factor and the ready intelligence of the other.

The Columbia Quartet, composed of William F. Madden, John M. Long, Frank J. McNellis and Waldo J. McCabe, appeared in many numbers, and brought forth most enthusiastic applause. In Tosti's "Good-bye" they were very effective, as also in Buck's "In Absence," but in "Doan yo Cry, Ma Honey" and Carrie Jacobs Bond's "Perfect Day" they were irresistible and carried the house by storm.

The blend of voices is good, the finish is quite extraordinary, and the musical feeling is strong and free—altogether a quartet which will make a fine reputation.

The assisting soloist was Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, who created a sensation in the big aria from "Natoma" and who, in a group of songs, was wonderfully fine also, and thoroughly successful in rousing her audience to enthusiastic expression of approval.

Coleridge-Taylor's "Life and Death" was beautifully sung, and in "Down in the Forest" there were quiet effects which but few sopranos could approach.

Mr. Hutter conducted with grace and vigor, as the music indicated, and had his forces absolutely in hand at all times. Bessie Devlin McNeill played the piano accompaniments, and the organ was also well handled.

The audience was very friendly, and more than glad to show appreciation of the fine chorus work, as well as of the good quartet singing and the splendid efforts of Mrs. Warner.

Miller—Reed Miller, tenor, made a very successful appearance in Minneapolis on March 31.

JOHN RANKL PRESENTS PUPIL

Mr. John Rankl presented his pupil, Mr. Herbert Carothers, in a song recital at the MacBurney Studios last Thursday evening with great success, showing the young baritone to be the possessor of a beautiful voice and at the same time proving himself a conscientious and artistic teacher.

Mr. Carothers is young and he has some of the diffidence of youth in his bearing and appearance, but he also has the vitality and the brilliance which belongs to this period of life and this is backed up by a fine physique and a well balanced mentality.

His voice is produced easily and musically, and each song was presented on Thursday in a way to prove that it had been carefully thought out and well polished.

The musical effect was always good and to this end he was admirably aided by Miss Grace Grove, who, at the piano, seconded his every endeavor and artistically reinforced his every interpretative thought.

The program contained much of merit and considerable material which was far from being hackneyed.

A "Faust" aria opened the program pleasantly and "Is Not His Word," from "Elijah" (Mendelssohn) brought it swiftly to a vivid climax, this number being exceptionally temperamental and brilliant in the Carothers reading.

Cadman, Tours and German were well read and Clough-Leigher's "Possession" was sung with quietly telling intensity.

Wilson G. Smith's "Thou Art Like a Flower" was well done and Eleanor Smith's "The Quest" in Mr. Carothers' sympathetic reading, proved to be the gem of the evening.

Hubert Hyde's "Long Ago" and "At Twilight" again proved to be thoroughly fine works and the program ended dramatically with the Damrosch "Danny Deever."

C. E. W.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Thursday evening, May 6, advanced pupils of Henriot Levy will appear in a piano concerto recital at Kimball Hall. Henriot Levy will play the orchestral parts on a second piano.

Saturday afternoon, May 8, the children's classes in Dalcroze Eurythmics will give a public demonstration at Kimball Hall under the direction of Lucy Duncan Hall. Miss Dorothy Hackett will sing a group of French children's songs, composed by Jaques Dalcroze. About 30 children will take part in the exercises.

The Conservatory students' orchestra will give a concert Tuesday evening, May 11, at Kimball Hall under the direction of Herbert Butler.

The annual examinations of the American Conservatory will begin Wednesday, May 13, with the normal department, and continue to the end of May.

Little Theater—Route list of "The Trojan Women": Monday, May 3 and 4, Pittsburgh (three performances), Nixon Theater; Wednesday, May 5, Baltimore, Albaugh Theater; Friday, May 7, Washington, Columbia Theater; Monday, May 10, Columbus, Ohio, Southern Theater; Saturday, May 16, Indianapolis, Murat Theater.

Chas. E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Gorton School
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
43 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR

ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Roeder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium 301

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director
School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language
Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDNOWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seely 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
310 Lakeside Place

Pearle Williford

VOICE - PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

DAN S. DENTON

TENOR
OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

CLINTON FAHRNEY PLAYS AT THE SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL

The fourth of a series of interpretation classes in honor of the tenth season of the Walter Spry Music School in the Fine Arts Building took place on Wednesday morning, April 28, with Mr. Clinton Fahrney, pianist, playing the program, and with Mr. Spry, his teacher, giving a short, interesting and much to the point talk on each number of the program, and giving his ideas of the good derived from assembling such classes, which, by the way, are a great part of the piano students work in this school, and a visit to one of the classes reveals in a great measure their value.

On Wednesday morning one almost envied the members of Mr. Spry's class, so thorough is their schooling, through his guidance, advice and interesting way of presenting the work at hand.

Mr. Fahrney, a graduate of this school and now a member of its eminent faculty, proved by his playing on this occasion that he well deserves a noticeable place among Chicago's teachers and concert pianists. A point in reference to this program which well deserves mention in Mr. Fahrney's favor was that he gave the entire recital. Heretofore a Spry Interpretation Class program has been divided between two or more performers.

Mr. Fahrney's program was intensely interesting, and made up as follows:

Songs Without Words, Nos. 18 and 21.....Mendelssohn
Rhapsody, F Sharp Minor.....Dohnanyi
Nocturne, Op. 46, No. 1.....MacDowell
Reflets dans l'eau.....Debussy
Concerto.....Grieg
Adagio-allegro
Moderato

(Second piano, Miss Curtis)

His musicianship and technical equipment, which is exceptionally well schooled, proved ample at all times to master in a most commendable manner the difficulties and musical thought found in each number. As the mood demanded, so did he play. There were moments and phrases of the most brilliant playing, and again the soft, smooth, legato playing, which is always satisfying and is only heard when one who knows the music at hand thoroughly is at the piano.

Mr. Fahrney will be heard again with pleasure, and he should play often.

H. M. B.

KENWOOD EVANGELICAL CHURCH

An organ recital will be given by Palmer Christian Sunday afternoon, May 9, at 4 o'clock, assisted by the quartet of the church: Marie Sidenius Zendt, Jennie F. W. Johnson, William Clare Hall, Dr. Carver Williams.

PROGRAM

Prelude and Fugue in E Minor.....Bach
Scherzo.....Shelley
Prelude to La Dame Blanche (The Blessed Damsel).....Debussy
Chorale Prelude on Rejoice Ye Pure in Heart.....Leo Sowerby
The Twilight Falls.....Schreck
Quartet—By the Waters of Babylon.....Coleridge-Taylor
Liebestod (Tristan and Isolde).....Wagner
Rhapsodie Catalane.....Bonnet
Intermezzo.....Bonnet
Nocturne.....Ferrata
Cajrice de Concert.....Archer

This is the last recital of the regular monthly series for this season. The first one for next season will be on October 10.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

Effa Ellis Perfield spent Friday and Saturday in St. Louis holding examinations for teachers who are studying feeling, reasoning and drill under her system. She also went especially to attend a recital given by her normal teacher, Mrs. Frank Henniger. Eight pupils were examined in harmony by Mr. Ernest Kroeger and Mr. Nathan Sack, who constitute the board of examiners for the Missouri State Music Teachers Association, these pupils passed on an average of 95 per cent.

Mrs. Frank Henniger is the first teacher in the United States to have pupils under 12 years of age pass this examination which is designed for music teachers.

Friday evening the pupils gave a modern artistic recital, several ensemble numbers were given by pupils under 10 years of age, in which five pianos were used with two and three pupils at each piano accompanied by an orchestra of thirty-two pieces. It was a fine demonstration of pulse and rhythm. Blackboard drills and playing drills in harmony were given, the audience called for scales, chords, cadences, modulations, etc., and pupils wrote them and played them. One small boy, 10 years old, played his own composition with the orchestra. Twelve hundred people were in attendance. Effa Ellis Perfield gave a short talk on feeling, reasoning and drill through the eye, ear and touch.

Diplomas and class pins were awarded. Mrs. Henniger will help Mrs. Perfield in her Summer School which will be in session in Chicago during July.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SO PRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1097

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING

CONTRALTO
Oratorio - Concert - Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN

VOICE
403 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

VIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

MYRTLE MCFADDEN

ROSE HANAPEL'S PUPIL

Miss Rose Hanapel is a young artist, teacher with a serious attitude toward her art, and it is a pleasure indeed to hear a recital given by one or many of the talented young people under her guidance. On last Friday evening she presented Miss Myrtle McFadden in a program at the recital hall of the Grant Park Building. Miss McFadden is very talented, her sense of rhythm is good, and her musical feeling is also very fine. She has an abundance of interpretative ability, and added to this is a very engaging personality and attractive stage presence and has poise that should carry her far, if she continues the careful study so well begun, and Miss Hanapel deserves much praise and commendation for the work so well done.

The program opened with a "Gavotte," played with much clarity and with good musical values.

A Haydn "Sonata," in G Minor, was played with surprising breadth and a technical display that was very interesting, and proved beyond doubt her very unusual musical talent. She gets a tone from her instrument that many mature players might well wish for, and she uses it in a very distinctive manner in the variety of musical expressions employed in the presentation of a program. An "Etude" by Cramer was delightful, and the Chopin number was very musical as she played it, as was the rhythmic "Polish Dance" (Scharwenka).

Other works not heard were numbers by Raff, Liebling and the "Finale" from the Mendelssohn "Concerto in G Minor."

Miss Helen Brown, a youthful violinist, assisted, and displayed much musical ability and gave great pleasure in the "Allegro Brillante" (Pen Haven). Miss Emma A. Miller was her able accompanist.

H. W. P.

SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL

On Thursday evening, April 29, the Sherwood Music School presented Mabelle Church Van Alstyne, reader; G. Magnus Schutz, baritone, and George Ralf Kurtz, accompanist, in a Liza Lehmann program. Mr. Schutz's fine voice is always heard with great pleasure, and on this occasion he surpassed himself in the interpretations of the Lehmann songs, "Thoughts Have Wings," "If I Built a World for You Dear" and "Myself when Young." He has caught the spirit of the songs to a nicety, and is so well equipped, both vocally and musically, that he can draw his interpretations along broadly dramatic lines with such great ease as to be thoroughly convincing and artistic in conveying the many moods and meanings of the text to the audience in a vital and effective manner, that won him the sincere approval of all who heard him.

Mrs. Van Alstyne, a beautiful woman, with an engaging personality, was heard in the first part of Oscar Wilde's poem, "The Happy Prince," the musical setting by Liza Lehmann. The part heard was made very attractive and enjoyable.

Mr. Kurtz, at the piano throughout the evening, left nothing to be desired in musicianly and artistic accompaniments, which merited the highest praise.

H. W. P.

Death of Scriabine—Alexander Scriabine, composer, died in Russia last week.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio-Recital-Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST
1403 E. 68th STREETMezzo-Soprano
PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST---Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163ANNA AGNES
Soprano
HERBERT M.
Baritone

BAILEY

JOINT RECITALS-ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET
LAWSONCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE
FENLONCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.Doelling Pianist
Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Ave

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Have You Seen

Our New Catalog of Educational Sheet Music?

LITTLE WHIMSIES FOR LITTLE PIANISTS

By Carrie Bullard

Four interesting and melodious pieces in the first grade from which the little folks will derive pleasure and profit.

Barcarole

Carrie Bullard

My Pony Trots

Carrie Bullard

Copyright, 1914, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge
International Copyright Secured

OTHER NEW FIRST GRADE PIECES

First Buds of Spring, by E. J. Biedermann

Six easy recreative and instructive compositions for pianoforte—graded, fingered, and marks of expression carefully indicated.

Five Little Dances, by J. F. Zimmermann.

The little folks always love dance music and the exquisite melody of these little gems will render them no exception to the rule.

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES

E. R. Kroeger. Op. 82. No. 1-10

Ten second grade teaching pieces embodying modern educational principles. The introduction of an illustrated story of each "Tale" quickens the student's interest and creates a desire to play with expression.

The Golden Bird

E. R. KROEGER

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--------|
| 1. Little Red Riding Hood..... | $0.40 |
| 2. The Enchanted Stag..... | .40 |
| 3. The Frog Prince..... | .30 |
| 4. Little Thumbkin..... | .35 |
| 5. Snow White and Rose Red..... | .30 |
| 6. The Three Spinning Fairies..... | .35 |
| 7. The Dancing Shoes..... | .40 |
| 8. The Sleeping Beauty..... | .30 |
| 9. The Golden Bird..... | .40 |
| 10. Hansel and Gretel..... | .50 |

FOR SALE AT ALL MUSIC STORES

Thematic Catalogue mailed free on request
HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE, Publishers
30 Irving Place, New York City

GUY HERBERT WOODARD AND DAVID E. BAXTER IN RECITAL

At Bush Conservatory, on last Friday, the joint recital of Mr. Guy Woodard, violinist, and David E. Baxter, baritone, was provocative of pronounced enjoyment and unstinted enthusiasm. The keen interest which Mr. Kenneth M. Bradley, the president, infuses into the entire organization manifests one of its many phases in the way fellow students and teachers applaud and stimulate one another on public occasions. There seems such an unbounded loyalty and support right in the ranks that it draws out and reveals all powers in a good light.

It was learned that Mr. Woodard had set for himself the difficult task of presenting the works he chose for his share of the program for performance by him for the first time in public. As these included the elaborate "Spanish Symphony" of Lalo, two "Hungarian Dances" of Brahms-Joachim, the intricate "Gypsy Airs" of Sarasate, the "Tambourin Chinois" of Kreisler, and an ornate and brilliant "Caprice," which a fellow violinist, Mr. Herbert Butler, had dedicated to Mr. Woodard, it will be seen that the strain was pretty severe. The exactions were met with a splendid vigor of tone and style, tense and brilliant and appealing, and fine grained by turns, and even muttering surlily in the Hungarian excerpts. There was no let-down of spirit until the bristling working out of the mule-tee's song, which makes the finale of the Lalo symphony such a tax, when the tone lost some of its purity and sureness. The slow movement was a concentration of feeling, and the Sarasate number a fiery network of pyrotechnics. Mr. Butler's "Caprice" is something new and stunning for the violin, with an intermezzo of simplicity and grace to contrast its more involved moments. He writes with a sure hand, and asks for an equally competent one to deliver his message.

DAVID BAXTER

Mr. Baxter was a distinct surprise for the reviewer. The lines heretofore have not crossed, but the desire is strong that they may do so often, for Mr. Baxter brings with what he offers the finest of musical flavor—the best traditions of English training. When he began to sing the aria "Si Tra i ceppi" one knew at once that he came from the school which produced Charles Santley, Plunkett Greene and David Bispham. It has back of it poise, authority and distinction, and what it does has a character to command attention. It enabled Mr. Baxter to take this aria from a forgotten Handel opera and yet make it delightfully illustrative of a period. And he followed it with the "In-felice" from Verdi's "Erani" and made its stilted form convincing and acceptable. When it came to the German group, the requisite style to make it leader singing of the first water was at once in evidence. After many unsatisfactory hearings, Grieg's "Swan" was at last revealed in its true colors. The Old English songs were of course inimitable, the text made so lucid and the quaint melodies so alluring that a repetition was demanded. The Cruickshank setting of Kingsley's "Three Fishers" came to a first hearing, and it had the expected dramatic quality that was atmospheric and forceful. Mr. Baxter added two encores, and his entire offerings were of unalloyed pleasure. He had effective and sustaining support from Miss Wright, who substituted for Mr. Edgar Nelson. Miss Lucille Wallace served in like capacity for Mr. Woodard. Together they gave most acceptably two movements from the Schuett "Suite" for violin and piano. Each rehearsing of this meritorious work increases its value, and on this occasion there was a fine ensemble and an artistic sense of proportion and use of color that freshened the music anew.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MUSICALE AT SINAI SOCIAL CENTER

The Fortnightly Musical Club at the Sinai Social Center is a very active organization, if one may judge by the enthusiastic audience that assembles to hear the splendid programs that Dr. J. B. Sonnenschein arranges for their meetings throughout the season.

Messrs. Alfred Goldman, violinist, and A. L. Shynman, pianist, gave a delightful Brahms "Sonata" an excellent reading, proving beyond doubt that they have done their share of ensemble playing.

Miss Naomi Nator, soprano, always a welcome singer, gave a very effective rendition of the aria from "Aida," which won her much merited applause. Miss Ludgen gave a reading that was much enjoyed, and Mr. Pierce was heard in a piano solo.

Devries—Musie News last week stated, incorrectly, that Mrs. Maurice Devries, who has been engaged for the Chicago Grand Opera Company, is a pupil of Mr. Herman Devries. She received her entire musical instruction from the late Mr. Maurice Devries.

Mossberg—On April 8 Mr. Joel Mossberg sang in a concert at Wicker Park Hall, Chicago; on the 11th at Rockford, Ill.; 16, Sioux City, Ia.; 23, Immanuel Lutheran Church, Chicago, and May 1, Omaha, Neb.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }

Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

WESTERN CONSERVATORY

Vocal pupils of Miss Margaret Dahlstrom gave a fine account of themselves in a recital at the conservatory rooms in the Mallers Building last Friday evening, and reflected much credit on her careful and artistic teaching.

Many were appearing for the first time, but each one, measured according to the time spent in study, gave evidence of careful work, and many numbers were sung with fine effect.

The young singers were Hazel McLean, Pearl Andresen, Vera Guedtner and Catherine Gerlin.

The English enunciation of all the singers was good, and musical style was constantly in evidence.

Miss Gerlin's number was the "Leite Signor" from "Les Huguenots," and this was admirably done in Italian.

The piano numbers covered a wide range of repertoire and were given by pupils in various stages of development, all showing, however, training and in some cases decided talent. The players were Harriet Schnitker, Pearl Fountain, Hazel Desherow, Edna Uthes, Ethel Erickson, Irene Keeler, Charles L. Bourrie, William Luckow, Adeline Eriksen, Hazel Manauso and Rae Christie.

DRAKE SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The light opera, "The Mite and the Mighty" or "The Suffragettes," music by Earl R. Drake, text by Howard Hodgkins, received its first presentation at Elburn, Ill., April 20 last. It was well received. Miss Blanche Blood also appeared on the program as viola soloist. Mr. Drake plays May 4 at Woodstock, Ill., May Festival, Miss Blood appearing as viola soloist.

"The Mite and the Mighty" is to be given at Central Music Hall, Chicago, on Monday evening, May 10, under direction of Mr. Drake, the accompaniments to be furnished by the Drake School Orchestra.

Those taking principal parts are Fannie De Tray, Walter Olson, Winnefred Lafayette, Louis Lamm, Margaret Wiley, Ernst Klein, G. F. Chase, Maurice Lipshultz, Richard Wilson, Otoy Mizuki and A. Shafer.

The chorus will also be made up from the vocal classes in the Drake School of Music.

ROSE LUTIGER GANNON TO APPEAR WITH THE CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA IN THE EAST

Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon, the popular Chicago contralto, is to appear in "Mors et Vita" (Gounod) in the Central New York Festival, appearing also at an afternoon concert as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

VIVIAN SCOTT PUPIL IN RECITAL

Miss Vivian Scott presented one of her piano pupils in an interesting recital on Friday evening, April 30, at the South Side Branch Studio of Cosmopolitan School of Music.

Miss Scott is in charge of this branch studio, and specializes in the instruction of children—a line of work in which she is very successful, judging by the playing of some of her young pupils.

Marie Evans, twelve years of age, was the pupil presented last Friday evening, and her playing reflected much credit upon her teacher, as well as upon herself. She played "Minuet" (Bach) and "Bagatelle" (Haydn), as her first numbers; a group—"The Avalanche" (Heller), "A Dream of Angels" (Kullak), "The Rope Dancers" (Kullak), "A Morning Prayer" (Kullak), "The Nightingale" (Kullak), "Slumber Song" (Dennee) and "Waltz" (Lynes)—was her second number, and the program was concluded with "A Fairy Tale" (Seeböck), with Miss Scott at the second piano.

WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1118 E. 65th St.
EDWARD TENOR

During the entire program little Miss Evans manifested conscientious application to her work. Her technic was careful and smooth, her touch good, and the intelligent manner in which contrasts were brought out presage good things for her future, musically. The applause which was awarded her was acknowledged with a grace of manner that many more mature performers might well copy.

Miss Lillian Wilhelm, contralto, also a pupil of Mrs. Bracken of the Cosmopolitan School, sang during the evening "Cradle Song" (Grieg), "The Swan" (Grieg), "Mifanwy" (Forster) and "Norwegian Song" (Loge), displaying a voice of fine quality, and excellent training. C. J. B.

MAC BURNEY STUDIOS

At Assembly Hall, fifth floor Fine Arts Building, on Monday evening, May 10, Ethel Geistweit Benedict will sing the following program of songs, with Mr. John Doane at the piano:

Lascio ch io piango.....	Handel
Dubita pur che crillino.....	Faccio
In Waldeinsamkeit.....
Verrath.....
Nachtigall.....	Brahms
Aeolsharfe.....
Auf dem Schiffe.....
Gloaming Shadows.....	MacDowell
The Swan Bent Low.....	MacDowell
The North Wind.....	Salter
Ritorna vincitor---Aida.....	Verdi
Israfil.....	Kelly
Snake Charmer.....	Lehman
Cradle Song.....	Lehman
Thistle Down.....	Cadman

MRS. MAC DONALD'S CONCERT

Nelle Damuth MacDonald, soprano, gave the third of a series of four spring recitals at the Church of Christ, Sheffield avenue and George street, Thursday evening, April 29, to a very enthusiastic audience.

Mrs. MacDonald was in splendid voice and gave her numbers admirably, infusing musicianship and finish in a decidedly satisfactory way. Her tones are sweet and pure and she gives all her programs without any musical score or the assistance of written words.

Mrs. MacDonald responded to but one encore, which she gave after her second group of songs, singing MacDowell's "A Maid Sings Light," not only a charming song in itself, but it was sung with such beautiful enunciation as to be an object lesson in that respect.

She was assisted by R. Clare MacDonald, a tenor with an excellent voice and pleasing personality; Miss Maude Langlois, whose readings were much enjoyed, and Miss Edna L. Whitmore, the usual MacDonald accompanist, who was again at the piano and brought added enjoyment to the evening by her splendid accompaniments. She also played her solo numbers so very well as to receive a hearty encore.

The following was the program:

Soprano Songs—
Dreamy Days (A winter-spring song).....	Ashford
Slumber Song.....	MacDowell
Duet—Maying.....	Smith
Reading—Laureame.....	Anonymous
Soprano Songs—
Mariquita (Bolero).....	Marzo
The Moon Drops Low (Indian tribal melody).....	Cadman
Because I Love You, Dear.....	Hawley
Piano—Selected
Tenor Songs—
Love's Sorrow.....	Shelley
Little Gray Home in the West.....	Lohr
Soprano Songs—
The Star (A fragment from Plato).....	Rogers
Tears and Smiles.....	Protheroe
Waltz song from the opera, Princess Bonnie.....	Spencer
Reading—Her First Pudding.....	Marjorie B. Cook
Soprano Songs—
An Open Secret.....	Woodman
The Birth of Morn.....	Leoni

WEST SIDE SUNDAY NIGHT CLUB

The following program was given at the West Side Sunday Night Club on May 2:

Offertory—Love Never Filleth.....	Case
Mr. Charles La Berge
Anthem—There Is a Land.....	Smieton
The Chorus
Solo—With Verdue Clad (from Creation).....	Haydn
Miss Helen Protheroe
Anthem—Fierce the Wild Billow.....	Noble
The Chorus
Solo—By the Waters of Babylon.....	Howell
Mrs. Edna Swanson Ver Haar
Anthem—Sanctus (from Holy City).....	Gaul
The Chorus
Solo—How Long Will Thou Forget Me, O Lord.....	Dudley Buck
Mr. Ernest J. Davis
Anthem—The Heavens Resound.....	Beethoven
The Chorus
Duet—The Lord Is My Light.....	Dudley Buck
Mrs. Ver Haar and Mr. La Berge
Anthem—Holy, Holy.....	Stewart
The Chorus

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Isabel Richardson

MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY

800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Con-tral-
to
Concerts Oratorios Recitals

ALTA MILLER PRESENTS PUPIL

The School of Music at Northwestern University, Evanston, is in a most flourishing condition and the closing weeks of the year are marked by a succession of students' recitals which are of infinite variety and such excellent quality as to prove over and over again the worth of the school and the excellence of the teachers.

On last Friday evening, Miss Alta Miller's pupil, Miss Frances Arnold, gave her graduating recital and not only pleased her audience at Music Hall very much but proved also that she has made good use of her time under the careful instruction of Miss Miller.

Her voice is of exceptional sweetness and although not large it has fine resonance and carrying qualities and it is manipulated by Miss Arnold with great skill and corresponding effect.

The first of her program, consisting of a "Messiah" aria and songs by Nevin, Massenet and Reiman, was not heard by this writer.

Grieg's "Ein Schwan" was sung with unusual suavity and his "Zur Johannisnacht" was also well thought out.

A Schumann group showed discriminative taste and the vocal charm in "Vissi d'Arte" (Puccini) was great.

"Daisies Picad and Violets Blue" (Arne) was even more charming than usual and children's songs by Rogers and Wassell were captivating.

Metcalf's "Absent," with violin obligato, was very beautiful and the program ended with a well contrasted and colored reading of "Nobles Seigneurs" from "Les Huguenots" (Meyerbeer).

Alternating with the song groups, Miss Bianca Marvin played a group of violin arrangements by Kreisler and two movements from the Vieuxtemps "Concerto" No. 4.

She was particularly good in the "adagio" movement of this great work.

In her obligato to the Metcalf song she was not particularly sympathetic.

C. E. W.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

Pupils of Miss Hedwig Brennenman sang with great success at the School of Music, Evanston, on last Wednesday afternoon, as follows: "For a Day" (Hewitt), "The Robin Sings in the Apple Tree" (MacDowell), "Over the Hills of Home" (Garnett), Miss Leonore Rideout; "Rose Dreamed She Was a Lily" (Brown), "Thy Beaming Eyes" (MacDowell), "Down in the Forest" (Ronald), Miss Ada Haukole; "If I Built a World for You" (Lehmann), "Gae to Sleep" (Fisher), Miss Luella Rime; "Snow Flakes" (Ruifrock) and "Love the Pedlar" (German), Miss Frances Bray. Alternate with the songs, groups of piano numbers were played by Miss Gertrude Lynch, Miss Clarissa Dunham, Miss Clara Cissna and Miss Gertrude Nerbovig.

Granville Avenue M. E. Church—The splendid program given at this church on a recent Sunday, under direction of Francis Mackay, was repeated at the Old Peoples' Home last Tuesday evening with great success. Miss Ruth Eppling played all accompaniments and, by special request, closed the program with the Liszt "Sixth Rhapsody."

A BENEFIT CONCERT

Last week a fine concert was given as a benefit for the Beulah Home and the unemployed by a splendid array of artists. Mr. Oscar Deis opened the program with the "Liebestod" (Wagner), played in a very pleasing manner. He also furnished fine accompaniments for Mr. Alexander Sebald, violinist and artist, whose playing has won him a high place in the musical world.

Mr. Sebald played a group by Sarasate, with a great breadth of style and artistic finish, that won him the enthusiastic approval of the audience.

Mrs. Hanna Butler, always a great favorite wherever she appears, sang numbers by Quilter, Bishop and Bachelet. She is an artist of great merit. Particularly beautiful and artistic were her interpretations of "Chere Nuit" and "Lo! Hear the Gentle Lark."

Miss Emma H. Osgood gave much pleasure in a number for harp by Pierne.

Mr. Kirk Town's resonant baritone voice was heard to a fine advantage in the "Prologue" (Leoncavallo) and "Macushla" (Mendurrough). Very effective and refined was his singing of "A Perfect Day" (Bond). It was so well done that an encore was demanded.

Mrs. Grace Keesler, at the piano, left nothing to be desired in artistic accompaniments.

Lagertha Nielsen Traver sang a group of songs by Wilson, Gilbert and Molloy that was much enjoyed.

Mr. Antonio Sala is a newcomer in the musical life of Chicago, but he is an artist and 'cellist of great ability, and his renditions of numbers by Chopin and Popper left nothing to be desired in beautiful playing.

The concert was given under the auspices of the School of Musical Arts. H. W. P.

CHICAGO COLLEGE OF MUSIC

A pupils' concert with a fine program was given by the Chicago College of Music at Kimball Hall on last Sunday afternoon, a very large audience being in attendance.

The early part of the program introduced young players in a good variety of pieces, the list including Adele Mandelson, Sylvia Lipsky, Myrtle Friedman, Lulu Glass, Rae Bernstein, Esther Swiren, Evelyn Yedok, Theresa Cohen, Helen Ginsburg, Jeanette Stein, Della Blum, Marion Gettelson, Dinah Rosenberg, Frances Schwartz, Ruth Sax, Dora Omansky, Rose Golden and Minnie Lipsky.

Pupils of more advanced grades were also heard, and the work of these was of especial interest. These included Libbie Brasnick, in "Water Nymph" (Schuytte) and "Indian Summer" (Stoye); Morris Kowsky, "Reve du Coeur" (Bendel); Miriam Kiefer, "Butterfly" (Lavellee); Ruth Messe, "Seguidilla" (Bohm); Etta Blonstein, "Twelfth Rhapsody" (Liszt); Mary Sternberg, "Hexentanz" (Paganini); Gertrude Weinstock, "Rondo Capriccio" (Mendelssohn); Josephine Harrison, "Second Rhapsody" (Liszt), and Henrietta Herfurth, in the "Rigoletto Fantasia" (Liszt).

The program altogether reflected much credit on the college and its teachers.

C. E. W.

ELSIE EIDAM GIVES RECITAL

Miss Elsie Eidam, pianist and pupil of Mr. Clarence Eidam of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art, played an elegant program in Auditorium Recital Hall on Tuesday evening, April 27, which was heard by a large number of appreciative friends and admirers.

Miss Eidam well deserved the many rounds of applause which greeted her every effort; also the numerous bouquets of beautiful flowers which were showered upon her during the evening.

She possesses in large measure all the requirements necessary for great success in her chosen work. Not only is she a pianist who has been exceptionally well schooled in technical and musical study, but her stage deportment and personal appearance at the piano is a rare delight and will have much to do with making her appearances in the future a welcome.

Gracefulness, refinement, seriousness, assurance and genuine musical expression adorned her offerings throughout the program, which opened with a brilliant rendition of "Sarabande," by Rameau-MacDowell; the "Sonata in E Minor," by Haydn, and a "Caprice" by Gluck-Saint-Saens.

The "Sonata in G Minor," Op. 22, by Schumann, furnished the middle portion of the program, and gave Miss Eidam ample opportunity for the display of her enviable powers over the piano in a most commendable light.

Her fingers were sufficiently fleet to make MacDowell's "Moto Perpetuo" a smooth and polished point in the group of numbers closing the program, which also contained the "Romance d'Amour" and "Pizzicato Valse," both by Ed. Schutt, which were delightfully delicate and melodious in the hands of this pianist, and the brilliant "Caprice espagnol," by Moszkowski, rounded out the evening in a glorious manner.

The splendid Mason and Hamlin grand piano which was at the disposal of Miss Eidam deserves a remark of commendation in the list of enjoyments derived from the evening. The recital was indeed a successful achievement for both Miss Eidam and her well-known teacher-pianist. H. M. B.

Roney—The well-known "White House Chimes," after ten years in storage, will be heard again next season, at the hands of the Cheney Concert Company, who have purchased them of Henry B. Roney, who had them made for "Roney's Boys" Concert Company, and were used by them for two seasons. They are the largest organ chimes ever made, having a scale range of six octaves. President and Mrs. Roosevelt delighted hundreds of their guests by bringing "Roney's Boys" and the big chimes to Washington to give a Christmas concert in the east room at the White House. These chimes have four pipes for every tone, are rich and mellow, and have come to be known as the "White House Chimes."

Root—Mr. Frederick Root is giving a series of Saturday morning recitals at his Kimball Hall studios, extending till May 22. The hour is 11:30. Next Saturday Miss Bernice Schalker will sing, assisted by Miss Marian Pilsbury and Miss Mildred Wayman.

MRS. JESSIE MACK HAMILTON PRESENTS MISS ADA WILLIAMS IN RECITAL

That Mrs. Jessie Mack Hamilton is a teacher with an excellent method for the training of voices was again demonstrated on last Sunday afternoon, when her pupil, Miss Ada Williams, sang the following selections on a recital program at Mrs. Hamilton's home, 5057 Winthrop avenue:

Aria from Oesteria.....	Lalo
The Lass with the Delicate Air.....	Old English
Wiegenlied.....	Humperdinck
Air from Romeo and Juliet.....	Gounod
When Soft Winds Blow.....	Claire Guedy
Mifanwy.....	Dorothy Forster
The Fairy Pipers.....	Herbert Brewer
Spirit Flower.....	Campbell-Tipton

Miss Williams has a beautifully clear, light soprano voice, which, thanks to the afore-mentioned excellent method of her teacher and to her own persistent endeavors, she has under good control. Her tones are of the liquid, flowing nature, well placed and produced with no apparent effort, while her interpretative ability is of a high order. This singer has also self-possession and pleasing presence to further recommend her to public favor.

Mrs. Hamilton sang as the second part of the afternoon's program "With Verdure Clad" (Haydn), "Allerseelen" (Strauss), "Reverie" (Reynaldo Hahn), "Before My Window" (Rachmaninoff), "May Day" (Walthew) and "At Morning," from "Trio of Spring Songs" (Jeanne M. Boyd), thereby again proving herself to be a versatile and thoroughly artistic musician. The Hahn "Reverie" was given an especially beautiful reading. The closing number, "At Morning," by Jeanne M. Boyd, a young Chicago composer whose productions are rapidly gaining favor among the builders of recital programs, was sung from manuscript, printed copies not being on the market at this time. It proved to be a charming little composition, and so skillfully rendered that it must needs be repeated.

Grace Keesler, at the piano, was a prime factor in making this recital a success, and by her skillful accompaniments strengthened the good impressions made on previous occasions.

A delightful social hour followed the recital. C. J. B.

Erb—Mr. J. Lawrence Erb has been giving a series of very fine organ recitals at the University of Illinois. Music News has received many attractive programs, some of which will be printed later.

Salvi—Alberto Salvi, harp, was soloist in a concert given by the Military Band at the University of Illinois on March 6.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

ONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

THE FRENCH BENEFIT CONCERT

An audience as distinguished as it was vivacious filled the Blackstone Theater on Sunday afternoon and not content with having bought tickets for the good of the "Secours National de France," also decked itself with flowers and French emblems, paying the pretty young sales ladies liberally therefore—and it also filled itself with candy for the benefit of the cause and uttered not a murmur even when programs could not be had except on liberal payment therefore.

HERMAN DEVRIES

The Honorary President of the Committee of Arrangements was the Baron de St. Laurent, French Consul, and among its members were Herman Devries, noted vocal teacher and coach of Chicago, and Mlle. Jenny Dufau of the opera, the charming song bird who on more than one occasion substituted for Tetrizzini before a sold out house at the Auditorium and on each occasion made the audience promptly forget the plump prima donna.

MARIE YAHN

Mlle. Dufau herself is slim and girlish, but she is the very epitome of artistry, and sang on Sunday with such beauty of coloratura effects as have been heard in Chicago very seldom of late years.

Her program consisted of songs by Carey, Loehr, Huhn, Delibes, Maillart and "Chanson de Paques," written by A. Parelli (of Chicago) and dedicated to the petite Miss Dufau, and also the wonderful "Air d'Ophele," from "Hamlet" (Thomas), which, with an encore number was all that was heard by this writer, owing to the extraordinary length of the program.

The aria was a perfect marvel of roulades, trills, staccati and chromatic scales, all of which were given with such perfection as to dazzle the audience and evoke a perfect storm of applause.

Signor Antonia Sala, the distinguished

JENNY DUFAU

Spanish 'cellist, who has just completed a remarkably successful tour with the C. W. Best Artist Series, and who will spend the summer in Chicago, played the brilliant "Concerto," by Saint-Saens, which was heard from him early in the season and commented upon in Music News.

Sala is the equal of any 'cellist before the public today, not excepting the much advertised Casals, and his tone is the very acme of 'cello beauty.

His control of shading possibilities is remarkable, for while he has ample power on occasion he is also master of a pianissimo which very few players have equaled. It is to be hoped that he will be heard often in Chicago.

Mr. Beecher Burton, tenor, contributed an aria from the Massenet "Herodiade," and at once stepped into full favor.

LEMUEL KILBY

His voice is big and resonant and is also imbued with an unusually attractive quality.

His musicianship is of superior quality and his enunciation of the text (in English) was of such remarkable excellence as to place him in a class apart from most singers. An encore was enthusiastically demanded.

Appearing also was Mr. Hamilton Hopkins, a Chicago teacher of voice, who has had a career abroad in opera and who, at this concert gave a strikingly dramatic and original reading of the "Prolog" from "I Pagliacci."

BEECHER BURTON

Mr. Hopkins has a splendid method of voice production and an excellent style. The enunciation of the text (in Italian) was fine and each phrase was colored and finished in a very remarkable way.

The audience was so very much pleased with this performance that an encore was necessary, and to the delight of the audience Mr. Hopkins repeated the last part of the aria, giving an even more ringing tone at the climax than on the first singing.

Thoroughly fine and absolutely authoritative accompaniments were played for both Mr. Burton and Mr. Hopkins by Mr. Herman Devries.

Mr. Emile De Rochat and Mlle. Lily Lenora gave some dances which were more or less diverting and which fell just a little short of being professional in effect.

The accompanist for Mr. Sala (not programmed) was superb. Mr. Charles Lurvey played for Mlle. Dufau and was also scheduled for some piano solos which were not heard by this writer.

A chief asset of the afternoon was an act from "Lakme," given by Devries' pupils, with much the same cast as earlier in the season at the Fine Arts Theater.

There was a fine chorus, the dressing was beautiful and Mr. Devries at the piano proved a tower of strength and not only provided good accompaniments, but showed also that the training of his pupils had been of the very best possible kind.

Mrs. Thomas Prindiville repeated her beautiful singing as Lakme, looking the part also to perfection. Mrs. Marie Yahr as Malika again demonstrated the fact that her voice is one of rare beauty and that her style is distinctly professional.

Miss Dorothy Cannon was as cunning as it would be possible to imagine as Ellen and sang her little solo with great effect. Mr. Huntington B. Henry proved himself an actor and a singer in the very grateful part of Gerald, and Lemuel Kilby was again an ideal Frederick, proving also that his voice is of unusual beauty and caliber and that his musicianship is of fine quality.

Other parts were well done by Anna Polleschek, Margaret Gaffey, Raymond Gifford and Richard Davis, the various ensembles of the act being particularly creditable to all the principals as well as to the chorus and the director.

The list of patronesses was a very large one and, as stated before, the audience was big and thoroughly enthusiastic.

C. E. W.

###

ROBERT LOUIS BARRON

Robert Louis Barron, violinist, appeared before the Temple Sholom's Women's Club April 7, and before the Town and Country Club on April 30. He has given joint recitals with Mr. Clayton Lunham, tenor:

April 6—Lake Forest, Ill.

April 10—Deerfield, Ill.

April 23—Mudlavia Sanitarium.

April 24—Mudlavia Sanitarium.

May 2—Moraine Hotel, Highland Park.

On May 19 he will give a joint recital with Mr. Lunham and Earl Victor Prah, pianists, in the Auditorium Recital Hall.

###

Kimbell—May 10 Grant Kimbell, tenor, will make his second appearance with the Berwyn Choral Society when they give the "Swan and Skylark," under the direction of Phelps Cowan. May 12 he will make his third appearance on the Annual Spring Festival at Algona, Ind. On this occasion he will sing the tenor role in the "Messiah."

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW'S PUPIL IN RECITAL

On Friday evening of last week Mr. H. B. Bartholomew presented his pupil, Lawrence B. Reeder, tenor, in recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall. Mr. Reeder has a voice of fine quality and, under the direction of Mr. Bartholomew, he has learned to present songs in a very effective and artistic manner.

The first portion of the program, comprising numbers by Schubert, Beethoven, Grieg, Mendelssohn, Wolf and Strauss, was not heard.

Mr. Reeder proved himself to be an exceptionally well equipped young artist in a group of folk songs, comprising Old English, Scotch, German and Irish, vesting them with many touches of tonal color and displaying a fine breadth of interpretative thought, that was very convincing and effective.

As a closing group he sang numbers by

ALBERT BORROFF accepts pupils in all branches of singing. He shows the beginner how to use the voice properly, the amateur how to sing better, and the professional to add finish and style to interpretation.

Special Announcement

Mr. Borroff expects to be in Chicago during the summer and will accept pupils for the summer term.

Studio 504 Kimball Hall

HOURS 10 TO 3

Phones Wabash 8021, Kenwood 837

Elgar, Haynes, Homer and Logan, with great finish. Very beautiful indeed were his renditions of the "Banjo Song" and "Pleading."

Mr. Bartholomew furnished musicianly and sympathetic accompaniments throughout the evening, adding much to the pleasure of the program.

Mr. Harold Simons, violinist, and Mrs. Simons, accompanist, assisted. H. W. P.

###

Van Dusen—Miss Idorna Newmark, pianist, a pupil of Frank Van Dusen, was one of the soloists at a musicale given for the Fort Henry Dearborn Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the Florentine Room of Congress Hotel on Tuesday, April 26. Miss Newmark will be pianist at a lecture-recital given in Kimball Hall, Wednesday evening, May 5, and will appear in recital with the Newmarzel Trio at M. E. Church, La Grange, on May 10.

###

Spencer—Following are the engagements of Mr. Allen Spencer for April and May: April 19, Kemper Hall, Kenosha, Wis.; April 28, Tiffin, Ohio; May 6, I. M. T. Assn., Centralia, Ill.; May 12, Academy of Our Lady, Longwood, Ill.; May 17, Alma, Mich.

A SPLENDID RECITAL GIVEN BY MACBURNIEY SOPRANOS

Madeleine St. Claire Blachly and Florence Pettinger, two admirable sopranos from the MacBurney Studios, gave a recital on Monday evening in the Fine Arts building which was largely attended and greatly appreciated.

The program contained songs and duets by a varied list of composers and was one of the most interesting and enjoyable heard in the MacBurney series of song recitals this season.

Miss Blachly possesses a voice of the pure lyric type, while that of Miss Pettinger is of a darker dramatic character, and the two combined proved a rare delight in their numerous joint selections. "Scheiden und Meiden" (Cornelius), "Nottwino" (Herman), and "The Gypsies" (Brahms), were duets made of excellent material for opening the program. The first two were sung in German and interpreted with skill and beautiful tone quality as was the bright, joyous Brahms' composition. The music of this number is better known in orchestra and band concerts than in song recitals.

The "Flower Duet" from "Madame Butterfly," which came in the middle of the program, was a bright and artistic point in the achievements of the evening, and the sopranos closed their musical activities for the night with a brilliant and praiseworthy rendition of "Sous le dome epais" from "Lakme."

Miss Blachly's first solo appearance gave to the audience a group of five Brahms songs, all sung in German. She was especially good in this composer's "Wiegenlied." "Feldeinsamkeit" was given with great feeling and beautiful display of voice, as was the charming "Meine Liebe ist gruen." Later in the program when Miss Blachly sang "Je suis Titania" from "Mignon" the audience found her at her best. The delightful, yet difficult music of this aria proved especially grateful to her voice and she received vigorous applause from the audience for her commendable efforts.

Miss Pettinger shows decided improvement at her every appearance. Her voice is rich and full and there is a rare degree of intelligence shown in her usage of it and the interpretations of her songs are convincing to the last degree. She sang the gay "Fussreise" by Wolf, and the beautiful "Zueignung" by Strauss in a manner which brought great credit to both herself and teacher, and her singing of a group of songs in English, which included "Since We Parted," by Manney; "The Star," by Rogers; "Spring Is at the Door," by Quilter, and "Separation," by Ward-Stephens, would be a welcome addition to any program.

Accompaniments of the most finished and artistic type were played by Miss Grace Grove, whose connection with a concert of any style always brings added pleasure.

###

Mossberg—The "Bohemian Girl" was given last evening at Bjorgvin Hall (in English) and is to be repeated this evening (Friday) and Sunday evening. The cast includes Louise Burton, Mildred Smith, Andrew McCallum, James Hamilton, C. P. Schulz and Joel Mossberg. The performances are under the direction of Mr. Mossberg.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.
A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe
SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
Pone Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

MENDELSSOHN PROGRAM AT THE CLIPPINGER STUDIOS

Mr. D. A. Clippinger, who is responsible for a great number of worthy, commendable and enjoyable hours of music during each season in Chicago, added to his long list of laurels on Saturday afternoon, May 1, when he presented a lecture-recital of the songs and duets of Mendelssohn at his studios in Kimball Hall, before an interested and appreciative audience.

No more appropriate music could have been offered on "May Day" than the bright, cheering and beautiful compositions of Mendelssohn. Mr. Clippinger was unusually enthusiastic in his remarks on the beauties to be found in this composer's works, and after an hour and a half in these studios, amidst Mendelssohn music and Mr. Clippinger's discourse on the life of the composer, the point came forcibly home to those present that the music-loving public, which has gone almost mad over the harsh, startling music furnished by present-day composers, can well afford to spend some time occasionally listening to the simple, charming and understandable music of such composers as Mendelssohn.

Mrs. Anna C. Binnix, soprano; Mrs. George A. McGaw, contralto, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist, offered the program, which contained eight of the more choice Mendelssohn duets, sung with beautifully blended voices and fine musical expression by the soprano and contralto; in addition to groups of solos for both voices, which, by the way, have been heard in previous recitals in these studios.

Mrs. Binnix, whose soprano voice is of a rich quality and produced very intelligently, sang with true intent for the mood of each song. Her two groups contained a "Spring Song," "Witches' May Song," "The First Violet," "On Wings My Fancy Ranges," "New Love," "Travelers' Song" and another "Spring Song," of which Mendelssohn wrote many.

Mrs. McGaw was very successful in her presentations of this composer's songs. Her first group was made up with "Afar," "In Autumn" and a "Spring Song," each seeming especially grateful to the smooth, well-developed voice of this singer, and her ideas of interpretation were carried out in a manner which made her offerings of strong appeal. "The Garland," "Lullaby" and "Morning" also formed a splendid group for Mrs. McGaw, and she again sang with charming ease and simplicity throughout the three.

The accompaniments for a large portion of the songs offered on this occasion were tremendously difficult, and only the accompanist of undeniable ability and experience could have succeeded in playing them with true accord to the vocal power and musical thought of the singer. Mrs. Orchard accomplished the task of playing the piano score in true sympathy with the singers, and finished to the highest artistic degree. Mr. Clippinger and those who appear in his many studio recitals are indeed fortunate in having Mrs. Orchard at the piano.

H. M. B.

Bingham—Helena Bingham-Burton has been visiting at Leadville, Col., for a few weeks and was given a fine reception at the public library last Saturday afternoon.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY RECITAL

Of a very high average were the numbers which made up the program of a recital given at Kimball Hall on Tuesday, April 27, by members of the post-graduate class of the American Conservatory, assisted by advanced vocal students. These students had already won their spurs by meeting the exacting requirements which precede a diploma, but chose to still further prepare themselves for professional life. Naturally, then, their playing possessed all the requisites of accuracy, abounding good tone, power and fleetness, to which were added the enjoyable ones of abandon, enthusiasm and very much of interpretative intention. In some cases this valuable faculty had reached an enviable state of proficiency, which made for much ease and poise for the players and pleasure for the listeners. When one begins to put himself freely and surely into his work, something "gets over" that never did before.

In each case the young artist had the assistance of the sponsoring teacher. Mr. Silvio Scionti presented Miss Cora Anderson in the Beethoven-Saint-Saens "Air and Variations" and the Liszt "E Flat Concerto," both of which had splendid variety of tonal effects, as well as dash and brilliancy for contrast. Mr. Victor Garwood accompanied Mr. Delos Owen in that fine old war-horse, the Weber-Liszt "Polacca," which is still something undeniably sterling, even if Weber be regarded as of a fading standing. To compass its exactions in the Liszt dress requires abilities of a rare good order, and when it is well done it is of fine force. Mr. Garwood also played the second piano part of the second and third movements of Tschaiowsky's unfading "Concerto," the solo portion being done with care and understanding by Mrs. Emma Grant Holmes. An effective and well wrought out finale came in the first movement of the Moszkowski "E Major Concerto," in which the solo part was in the capable hands of Miss Katherine Kittelsby, and an admirable accompaniment was contributed by Mr. Kurt Wanieck.

Mr. T. Paxton Spink, a young singer with a high, well-placed baritone voice and a tip-top enunciation, sang the Homer "Requiem" and Huhn's "Invictus," and Mr. Charles La Berge's very promising and interesting pupil, Miss Ethel Tamminga, made more than good work of three songs from the Carpenter "Tagore" cycle, the "Life" being particularly well thought out. Miss Maude Tollefson, the possessor of an intense musical spirit and voice of large compass, found in the dramatic "Song of the Shirt" of Homer an agreeable vehicle. The song is not well constructed, however; somehow a modern does not always obtain the atmosphere of men of other days.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

###

Oberlin—The Oberlin May Festival will take place on the 17th and 18th. Among the artists will be Mabel Sharp Herdier, Margaret Keyes, Clarence Whitehill and Lambert Murphy.

###

Hahn—Carl Hahn's "Tis All that I Can Say" was sung by Mr. Rafael Diaz at a concert at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York on April 26.

MR. ANDERSEN'S COMPOSITION CLASS

It was an embarrassment of riches that was spread out before a large audience at Kimball Hall last Saturday afternoon and, since very much of the program was novel and some of it distinctly bizarre, it would be impossible for anyone, on a single hearing of so many new works, to do more than give an impressionistic sketch of what was really presented.

Such indeed this review must be considered. A second and third hearing of any one of the works might modify opinion materially.

The occasion was the annual concert given by the Composition Class of Mr. Arthur Olaf Andersen, and there was an absorbing interest in the program and in the young artists presenting it.

Most important work of all, probably, was the "Suite for Violin and Piano" by Leo Sowerby, in which the composer played the piano and Miss Ruth Ray displayed great technical finish and much musical intelligence in the violin part. The ensemble was a thoroughly well balanced and sympathetic one.

The work is not particularly obtrusive, nor is it of infantile ease. It was so well done technically as to give the impression of no towering difficulty, and yet this impression was probably very much of an illusion.

Constructively it pleased this writer better than some other Sowerby works, particularly ingratiating being the "Capriccio" and the "Poem." The first was dainty and elusive; the last was beautifully legato for the most part, but rose to one rugged climax which was very telling.

The "Melody" seemed unduly elaborate, as also the "Romance," in a somewhat lesser degree, and the "Scherzo" was not so altogether distinctive as the "Capriccio." On the whole the work proved to be very fascinating, however, and it will gladly be heard again.

Second in beauty of effect, if not in composition values, was the "Forest Suite," for piano, which was composed by Alice Margaretha Olsen, and was also played by her, with fine pianistic values.

"In the Forest" and "Forest Spirits" were original and charming. The "Berceuse" suggested that of Iljinsky, but in saying this it is not intended to convey the thought that there was any imitation. On the contrary, Miss Olsen gave the impression in unusual manner of being thoroughly original, but the Iljinsky spirit and a little of his idiom was present, even as "By the Brook" reflected something of the naivete of a piece of something like the same title by Gade.

This "Suite" was beautifully played, and was received with much acclaim.

Not so successful was Miss Olsen in her song (no title given on the program), with violin obligato, which was sung by Mrs. William Lester, to the accompaniment of Miss Olsen and Miss Gertrude Steinkraus (violin).

The vocal line did not lie well for Mrs. Lester, and failed utterly to show her lovely quality.

Nevertheless, she showed great musicianship, and succeeded, with her colleagues, in making a good impression.

Mr. Fred Hart was represented on the program by some children's songs, which were sung in appealingly beautiful voice by Miss Clara Schweinfurth, but failed of their proper effect, simply because none of the cunning words could be heard.

Mr. Hart displayed his duo-talent for composition and piano playing in a "Suite for Piano," which was very good and reasonably coherent, though a good many styles were introduced in a short space of time.

William Wuthenow, Jr., although he did not sing or play, was also represented by two numbers, the first a "Sonata" for piano, admirably played by Mr. Sowerby, and the second a group of doleful love songs, which were invested with exquisitely graceful vocal charm by Miss Schweinfurth, but which, like her other group, lacked in clarity of enunciation.

The "Sonata" at first sounded like a set of Chopin "Etudes," but as it progressed developed Lisztian and Debussian tendencies, sometimes disquieting. There was a lot of virtuoso piano playing in the piece, but not a very distinct adherence to what one might expect of a "Sonata."

Small piano works composed by Cora Anderson and Gustav Dunkelberger, in each case played by the composer, were sane and logical. Both were well received.

Miss Gertrude Steinkraus, violinist, presented her own "Berceuse" in good style, and Mr. Pietro Angelo contributed some good 'cello obligatos. Altogether a very interesting and suggestive concert—one, indeed, about which a much longer review could be written, did space permit.

C. E. W.

EDWARD V. EHRHARDT PUPILS IN RECITAL

Mr. Edward V. Ehrhardt presented a goodly number of his piano pupils in recital at Kimball Hall on Thursday evening, April 29. That Mr. Ehrhardt is a thoughtful teacher and one who has high ideals in his own artistic work and that of the many pupils who come to him for instruction cannot be doubted if one may judge by the list of numbers that are representative of the best in classic piano literature. It is impossible to give individual mention of the pupils' work, for the program was of great length, but viewed as a class they displayed good musicianship and well developed technical equipments, and they played with considerable surety and understanding.

Mr. Ehrhardt may feel justly proud of the entire class, for they acquitted themselves in a praise-meriting manner.

Marian Kunze, Mindelle Annenberg, Benedict Saxe, Walter Burger, Juliet Goldenberg, Lester Lesterman, Rhoda Rice, Vivian Smith, Sybil Goodman, Emelie Voltz, Joe Pick, Sidney Adler, Herbert Lewis, Alice Borchardt, Robert Kunz, Rose Strauss, Mildred Bergling, Viola Burkart and Lucille Frank Goldsmith were those on the program, and they played numbers by E. Bach, Gurliitt, Ellmenreich, La Fontaine, Heller, Grieg, Schumann, Beaumont, Massenet, Schmoll, Schubert-Leschetzky, Pieczonka, Tschakowsky, Chopin, Strauss-Schuett, Liszt, MacDowell, Von Weber, Chaminade, Sinding, Mendelssohn, Godard, Beethoven, Ed. Schuett, Grieg, Moszkowsky, Arthur Whiting and Poldini.

FRANK W.

Van Dusen

PIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANOEdna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary STEELE
Hinman TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR ChicagoHarriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSICClarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Fifth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland AvenueGaylord American Violinist
YOST Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYMarie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Carlton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd FloorSilas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. Monzel MUSICAL
KIMBALL HALL COLLEGE
CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS McGRANAHAN SINGS IN EVANSTON

Sunday evening, the popular orchestra concerts of the season under the direction of George Dasch in Evanston, came to a close with Thomas McGranahan, tenor, as the soloist.

THOMAS McGRANAHAN

Mr. Dasch has been very successful in his efforts to give the people something that they can enjoy, and at the same time feel they are getting something worth while.

Sunday evening the orchestra gave numbers by Elgar, Auber, Godard, Herbert, Strauss, and Weber with great sincerity of purpose and a fine appreciation of the musical content of the varied programmed numbers. Particularly delightful were their renditions of the Berceuse, "Joselym," "Al Fresco," "Roses from the South," and the overture, "Jubel," Weber.

Mr. McGranahan's beautiful tenor voice and ingratiating personality have won him a host of friends and admirers wherever he has chosen to appear.

His first group comprised numbers by Clay and Rubinstein. "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby" was given with a fine breadth of style, and in the Rubinstein number, "Be Not So Coy, Beloved Child," he added many touches of tonal color and musical graces that were a joy to hear.

In his second group Mr. McGranahan excelled himself. Rarely does one hear "Then You'll Remember Me" (Balfe) sung with greater beauty of voice, and Tours' "Mother o' Mine" was so thoroughly well done that many recalls were made and two encores demanded, and graciously granted, and artistically sung. H. W. P.

Plymouth—Mr. H. W. Owens will present "Elijah" at Plymouth, Ind., on Thursday evening. The soloists will be Lillian Landwer, Ethel Stout, Harlan Haines and Carl Brown. Palmer Christian will be the organist.

"CREATION" AT THE NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The three performances of "The Creation" given by the vested choirs of the New First Congregational Church under the able direction of Mr. H. Augustine Smith have been a splendid achievement and more honor is added to previous successes of Mr. Smith and his faithful singers.

Mr. Smith's intense musical feeling coupled with his spiritual interpretation and excellent judgment brought forth gratifying results. The singing of the chorus, "A New Created World Springs Up at God's Command," by the sweet, childish voices of the little girls' choir was most lovely and has been much commented on.

WARREN E. PROCTOR

The performance as a whole as it was given on Sunday evening was reviewed at length in last week's Music News. On Thursday and Friday evenings there was a different list of soloists. Thursday evening Mr. Warren Proctor, tenor, and Mr. Gustaf Holmquist, bass, sang with Mrs. Marie Zendt and Friday evening Dr. William Carver Williams sang the bass role.

Mr. Proctor did praiseworthy work on both evenings. His clean enunciation and clear, true tones are most satisfying and his singing of the aria, "In Native Worth," was most graceful and beautiful.

Mr. Proctor has, this season, proven his great value in many diverse environments and has shown artistic finish in many kinds of work.

To his other achievements must now be added a "Creation" interpretation which is both forceful and beautiful and which should put him in line for many engagements in the part.

Mr. Holmquist and Dr. Williams each scored a splendid success in the elaborate part given the bass voice. The engagement of these two artists was a distinct success and both were voted fine by the audiences.

Mrs. Zendt received much applause from both audience and choir and many times had to bow her acknowledgment of the appreciation.

Sunday evenings during May, Mr. Smith has elaborate music programs arranged which will bring into the services much variety. There will be a mixed quartet, male quartet, adult choir of 60 members, boy choir of 20 voices, men's choruses, a processional each evening and beside the splendid organ the singers will have the assistance of a piano and orchestra.

The New First church is to be heartily congratulated on the possession of so energetic and enthusiastic a music director.

M. K. W.

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer will be soloist at the La Salle Hotel Thursday afternoon, May 6, at a tea given by the senior class of Starrett School for Girls. May 14 she will sing at the Bismark School. Miss Cramer leaves early in June for a several months' trip to the coast. She will give several recitals and attend the Biennial Federation of Woman's Musical Clubs in Los Angeles.

Bollman-Ludwig — Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, and Marie Ludwig, harpist, gave a very successful joint recital at the Sheridan Club rooms in Clinton, Ia., on April 29.

Bush Temple—A children's concert was very successfully given last Saturday morning at the Bush Temple.

SEASON 1915-16
ALBERT SPALDING
1439 Aeolian Hall
Andre Benoist, Accompanist Steinway Piano

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART
MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago
Summer Term Begins June 30 The School for Serious Students

Herbert J. Wrightson 20 E. Jackson Boul.
PIANO AND HARMONY Chicago Suite 1404 Phone Wabash 6293

PRUDENCE NEFF Address ROBERT DOLEJSI
PIANIST SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF MUSICAL ART VIOLINIST
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

PALMER CHRISTIAN

Mr. Palmer Christian will leave Chicago on May 10 and is to play an organ recital at Cedar Rapids on the 11th.

On the 20th he appears at Los Angeles and on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 24, 25, 26 and 27, will play the following remarkable programs at Festival Hall, Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco.

PALMER CHRISTIAN

Mr. Christian will be absent from Chicago three weeks.

PROGRAM, MONDAY, MAY 24

Allegro con fuoco	De Boeck
Reverie	Debussy
Gavotte	Wesley
Prelude	Saint-Saens
Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor	Bach
Scherzo
Idylle	Bossi
Intermezzo	Hollins
Toccata	Mailly

PROGRAM, TUESDAY, MAY 25

Dithyramb	Harwood
Romanza	Sibelius
Fugue in C	Buxtehude
Sonata No. 6	Guilmant
Allegro con fuoco
Meditation
Fugue
Adagio
Intermezzo
Reverie	Bonnet
Rhapsodie Catalane
Cradle Song	Dreyschock
Caprice (The Brook)	Dethier

PROGRAM, WEDNESDAY, MAY 26

Concert Prelude and Fugue
Barcarolle	Faulkes
Capriccio
Phantasia and Fugue in D	Karg-Elert
Berceuse	Spinney
Toccata	Mereaux (1791)
Allegro (Tenth Concerto)	Handel
Nocturne	Ferrata
Finale (First Symphony)	Vierne

PROGRAM, THURSDAY, MAY 27

Rhapsodie	Cole
Lohengrin Vorspiel	Wagner
Caprice de Concert	Archer
Scherzetto	De Lamarter
Toccata, Adagio and Fugue C	Bach

Summer Sketches	Lemare
Dawn
The Bee
Twilight
Evening
Rondo Capriccio	Lemare
Berceuse	Dickinson
Overture in C	Mendelssohn

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY
SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Miss Erma Hoag, soprano, artist pupil of Miss Alta Miller, gave her graduating recital at Northwestern University School of Music on Friday evening, April 16, in such a commendable manner as to reflect great credit on herself and her successful teacher.

By 8 o'clock Music Hall was well filled by her many admiring friends. Her program contained the usual groups of contrasting style and showed a taste for program making of the best.

To a very sweet voice Miss Hoag brings a simplicity of manner and a wealth of sympathetic understanding seldom heard in student recitals. She has a command of the technical side of her art, much display of vocal facility and a good musical style. Her fine enunciation was shown in her diction.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
TEACHING SYSTEM
is a Normal Training Course for Mothers and Teachers on how to develop music through Inner-Feeling Reasoning and Drill and how to blend.

KEYBOARD HARMONY and MELODY BUILDING.
Discriminate between melody writing and melody building. A "building" must have a foundation. "Not a Correspondence Course nor a Kindergarten System." Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with Effa Ellis Perfield. Send One Dollar ($1.00) for the Constructive Drill Book. Designed to inspire creative work. Certificates sanctioned by State of Illinois.—Accredited by the Chicago Board of Education.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
Director of Children's Constructive Music page in the Musical Monitor. Official Organ for the National Federation of Musical Clubs.
950-955 McCLURG BLDG. CHICAGO, ILL.

Every word in the four different languages could be distinctly heard in the furthest exits.

All her work was a pleasure because she sang with great confidence and ease, with sincerity of purpose and a surprising power of tone. Her chief effort was the taxing composition, "Michaela's Aria," from "Carmen," arranged for her third appearance. This she delivered true to the dramatic intent of the composer. The "Lorelei" of Liszt was equally well done and to this she brought warmth and fervor and an abundance of musical interpretative thought.

An unusually interesting feature of her program was the group of old French game songs which were given with appropriate gestures and so pleased the audience that an encore was demanded. "One Spring Morning," by Nevin, with additional accompaniments of violin and cello by Miss McDonald and Mr. Defty, also had to be repeated.

Much of the credit of the success of the evening must be given to Mrs. Nina Shumway Knapp who, in her usual splendid way, furnished accompaniments.

Rankl—Mr. John Rankl will be soloist with the Strand Theater Company at Orchestra Hall next week.

PUPILS OF A. ALFRED HOLMES AND
AGNES LEIST BEEBE IN RECITAL

A recital of much merit was given by Martha M. Johnson, pianist, pupil of A. Alfred Holmes of the Mendelssohn Conservatory, and Esther Henrietta Anderson, soprano, pupil of Agnes Leist Beebe, at Kimball Hall last Monday evening. The following program was presented:

Prelude and Fugue in D	Bach-Busoni
Martha Johnson
Prelude in C Sharp Minor	Rachmaninoff
Concert Etude, Op. 35, No. 2	Chaminade
La Papillon	Lavellee
Rustle of Spring	Sinding
Martha Johnson
Il est doux, Il est bon (from Herodiade)	Massenet
Esther Anderson
Fantasia in C Sharp Minor
Waltz in A Flat, Op. 42	Chopin
Etude in D Flat (Butterfly)
Martha Johnson
From the Land of the Sky-blue Water	Cadman
Last Night I Heard the Nightingale	Salter
Anathema (from Eliland Cycle)	Von Felitz
The Rose's Cup	Stephens
Surrender	Niewiadomsky
Esther Anderson
Military March	Schubert-Tausig
Martha Johnson

The talent displayed by these young ladies is of a high order, and the manner in which they presented the program on Monday evening should be gratifying to their instructors.

Miss Johnson in her playing shows skill, brilliancy, an excellent sense of tone values, and an entirely commendable thoroughness. She also has poise and self-possession.

Miss Anderson's voice is one of beauty and richness, and she uses it with considerable ability. Her enunciation is distinct, and her interpretation of the numbers on Monday evening's program was good indeed, the singing of the compositions in the groups being especially praiseworthy in this respect.

Miss Sylvia Wahlstrom, who played Miss Anderson's accompaniments, deserves favorable mention for the way in which she acquitted herself. C. J. B.

FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Anthem schedule for May:

May 2—Morning, *Tschakowsky, "Hymn of Praise"; afternoon, Elgar, "Doubt Not Thy Father's Care"; evening, Chadwick, "Thou Who Sendest."

May 9—Morning, West, "Sing a Song of Praise"; afternoon, *Ippolitof-Ivanof, "Bless the Lord, O My Soul"; evening, Mendelssohn, "O Praise the Lord" (S. S. A.)

May 16—Morning, *Bortnyanski, "Cherubim Hymn"; afternoon, Elgar, "Psalm 48"; evening, *Wood, "Sanctify, O Beatific Lord."

May 23—Morning, Schubert, "The Lord Is My Shepherd"; afternoon, *Palestrina, "I Will Magnify"; evening, *Noble, "O Wisdom!"

May 30—Morning, *Rachmaninoff, "Glory to the Trinity"; afternoon, Eric DeLamarter, "As He Wills" (cantata); evening, Foote, "God Who Madest Earth and Heaven."

Numbers marked with * a capella.

NORA LORRAINE OLIN

During the period of rebuilding Miss Olin may be found at 524 Kimball Hall.

She will teach up to the first of August, preparing artist pupils for engagements for next year.

Miss Olin's pupils are filling good positions in Chicago and near by suburbs and are making a reputation for themselves and their teacher.

Indiana Music Teachers Convene at Greencastle

Reviewed by HERBERT M. BAILEY

The thirty-eighth annual convention of the Indiana Music Teachers' Association, which convened at De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., Thursday and Friday, April 29 and 30, was greeted with ideal weather and a high degree of hospitality on the part of the populace of that charming city and institution. Delegates from cities in every part of the state began to arrive early Thursday morning and registered at the De Pauw School of Music, which was headquarters for the convention. All sessions and concerts were held in the De Pauw Chapel, "Meharry Hall." The meeting on Thursday morning was devoted to getting acquainted and renewing old acquaintances as well as registration.

The Indiana Music Teachers' Association was organized in 1877 by a few earnest and devoted musicians. It has pursued an honorable career uninterruptedly since that time, holding its meetings annually and visiting all parts of the state. Since 1900 the meetings have been held as follows: 1900, South Bend; 1901, Terre Haute; 1902, Marion; 1903, Richmond; 1904, Fort Wayne; 1905, Kokomo; 1906, Frankfort; 1907, Noblesville; 1908, Washington; 1909, La Fayette; 1910, Princeton; 1911, Shelbyville; 1912, Elkhart; 1913, Marion, and 1914, Logansport. The presidents during this period were: Oliver Willard Pierce, Arthur W. Mason, W. J. Stabler, S. Hamilton Nussbaum, Alexander Ernestinoff, Clark Leaming, J. J. Black and Percy L. Nussbaum.

During the past year Milton B. Griffith passed away, his death occurring March 31, 1915. The official program contained this "In Memorium."

"The Indiana Music Teachers' Association has sustained a severe loss in the death of Milton B. Griffith. In the few years that he has been a member of the Association, he not only served very efficiently as chairman of the Program Committee and made his influence felt as a valuable member, but also won the liking of all with whom he came in contact for his honesty, frankness and genial spirit. It is all the more sad that he should have passed away just before the convention, while engaged at the task of building the program. His loss will be felt by all."

The program for the two days was valuable, interesting and consumed every hour available. The papers and lectures were all on vital subjects and pertained to points that are uppermost in the minds of the music teachers of the state. The concerts, which were wholly artistic throughout, were given by musicians from Chicago, New York and De Pauw University. At 1:30 Thursday afternoon the preliminary opening of the convention occurred when Percy L. Nussbaum of Marion, President of the Association, gave his address. This was not heard by the writer and consequently cannot be reviewed. However, we have heard Mr. Nussbaum address the Association heretofore and know that he has the work of the music teachers of the state wholly at heart and has strived at all times to better all conditions for them. His broad experience gained from years of work in the musical world makes his advice of great value to the association. A tribute is due Mr. Nussbaum this year especially in that he has been confined in the hospital until very recently and it was through great courage and effort that he could attend the 1915 meeting at all.

h h h

Standardization Discussed

While the Indiana Association did not adopt standardization this year, it nevertheless was one of the chief topics of discussion during the convention and received a great force toward the goal already reached in many states by Mr. Lynn B. Dana's paper and remarks on that theme which he delivered at 3:30 on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Dana is President of the Dana Musical Institute at Warren, Ohio, also President of the Ohio State Music Teachers' Association, and his address therefore carried tremendous weight with all present. He spoke in part as follows:

I might present to you a long drawn out essay on music and its important place in all human life, but to do so would be to tell you only what we all already know. I may touch on the subject in the course of my remarks, but I want to speak directly on some of the things we know (or at least think) very little about.

A present-day sage has hit conditions as they exist now, in 1915, by saying that "Those who can, do; those who can't do, teach." Ponder over that remark. Of course, all rules have exceptions, and I am glad to say that there are teachers who do teach; but, seriously, honestly, as regards and directly concerns the musical art or profession today, was our sage far wrong? I, for one, am willing to agree with him.

Where we hear of one great success in the musical profession, there are thousands of failures of which we never hear; and what of these failures? Many of us may say, "Tis the fault of the pupil." Is it? True, there are many pupils who lack the necessary things that make for success, but I do believe they are in the minority. After a thorough and searching investigation, I believe that in nine-tenths of the cases of failure, the teacher is the one at fault.

You ask me why I say that the majority of our music teachers are unfit to follow the vocation which they have chosen, and I reply by asking you to look about you and compare the preparation of our public school teachers for their work and the preparation of the music teachers for their work. What do you find in the majority of instances? The public school teacher has been receiving instructions almost daily for, say twelve years at least, and after leaving high school, has gone to college or some school for special preparation for teaching. Lo! the music teacher, well, if he gets four continuous years of two thirty-minute lessons a week he feels that his musical education is complete, and then, he only studies one or two musical subjects, but, the saints preserve us! he teaches everything from tom-tom to pipe organ at most any price. The study is just as vital as any other profession and takes just as many, if not more, years of diligent study as any other profession. Of all persons who study music in our music schools, less than one per cent of them ever graduate, or even take a four years' course, yet over sixty per cent of them teach music as a profession.

What is the remedy? The same that has been applied to doctors, lawyers, chemists, druggists or practitioners of a like sort—standardization.

The belief that young teachers of small experience and learning are good enough to instruct children is a fallacy. Not only is the money thus paid a financial loss, but the injury to the pupil is everlasting. A teacher who is good enough to teach a child is good enough to teach the greatest artist. "As the twig is bent, the tree's inclined," and many failures are directly due to the first teacher.

We want the best teachers in our public schools, why not the best in our music life? We would not think of entrusting the public schooling of our children to mediocre teachers, but in music teaching, it seems that any kind of a teacher will do, especially if their price is low. The music profession has more followers than any other of the professions, but I verily believe that there are fewer seriously minded people as teachers in it than in any other profession. Too many people who take up music study as an accomplishment, turn to it as a profession without further study. "Tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis, 'tis true."

For these reasons and because of existing conditions, standardization of music teaching has become a necessity.

Standardization means the best pupils, the best teachers, the best schools, the best conservatories, the best musicians, the best in all that goes to the making of the larger musicianship. By elevating our music, our morals will likewise rise, and jealousy among the "so-called" musicians of today will give way to the fraternalism of the real musician of tomorrow. "Watchman, will the night soon pass?" comes the cry, followed by the jubilant chorus in answer, "The day is approaching."

h h h

A Lecture on "Tristan and Isolde"

Mr. Carl W. Grimm of Cincinnati, Ohio, furnished one of the educational and enjoyable features of the first day by his lecture (illustrated at the piano) on Wagner's masterpiece, "Tristan and Isolde." Being well known for his treatises on harmony, it was but natural for Mr. Grimm to comment upon the harmonic texture of this great opera and being extremely well versed on the Wagner form of writing certain melodies, motives, etc., as well as incidents in the life of the great composer which are interesting the hour allotted him was very

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

valuable. He gave a very comprehensive discourse on the entire opera and played the leading motives and various selections of the music in a masterful and musicianly manner.

"Formal Opening" and "Concert"

Thursday night the formal opening of the convention took place with Judge James P. Hughes, presiding. President Grose of De Pauw University gave a short, complimentary address of welcome in which he told the visitors it was a pleasure to welcome them to the city and a school wherein music is given credits in the course of the liberal arts department. He also assured the visitors that they would receive the very best of attention and invited them to visit chapel exercises the next morning.

President Nussbaum responded in his usual appropriate, witty and happy manner, saying the music teachers were glad to come to Greencastle for they knew of it as a highly developed music center. He said further: It is a custom of the association to meet at different points from a geographical basis for they felt that a session of the association with its discussions and programs did good in any community and added to the interest and left an impression that was for the advancement of the cause.

The remainder of the evening brought to the large audience a splendid concert given by Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, Edward Clarke, baritone, and James Whittaker, pianist, all from Chicago, and Helen Wood Barnum, accompanist, of Greencastle.

Mr. Clarke opened the program with singing the well known and always welcome "Vision Fugitive," from Massenet's "Herodiade," in French. He prefaced its rendition with a few well chosen words concerning this aria. His singing brought great pleasure to the audience and they demanded an encore to which he responded with an ideal and convincing rendition of Homer's "Unele Rome." Mr. Clarke's was no less successful later in the evening, when he appeared and sang a group made up with "Soft Footed Snow," Lee; "Smuggler's Song," Kernoehan, and "Song of the Flea," Mousorgsky. His rich, resonant and well controlled voice was a delight in every line of his songs and his clear enunciation was a rare model of excellence and worthy of high praise.

Mrs. Clark always gains hosts of admirers at her every appearance and had much to do with making the evening an enjoyable and artistic success. She played the "Adagio" and "Finale" from the Bruch G Minor Concerto in a masterful and memorable manner and pleased even more, later in the program, when she played "The Little Shepherd," Debussy; "Liebeslied," Kreisler, and the "Caprice Viennois," by the same composer. Mrs. Clarke brings a beautiful tone from her instrument, especially when muted, and her technique is clean, sound and sure. The Clarkes will no doubt be welcomed with enthusiasm should they appear again in Greencastle. They closed the program with the "Hindu Lament," by Bemberg, which gave to both voice and violin an opportunity for a fine display of artistry, and the Clarkes made again a deep impression. The versatility of Mr. Clarke was well shown at one point in the program where he offered as an encore a delightfully realistic reading, entitled "Little Brown Baby," by Dunbar, which was much enhanced by the violin obbligato played by Mrs. Clarke.

Mr. Whittaker is well known to De Pauw and Greencastle through his connection with the music faculty of the university last year and he was given a royal welcome by his many admirers.

His portion of the program was divided and gave to the audiences hearings of "Variations" in G Major by Camille Chevillard; "Nocturne" in E Flat Major, and "Impromptu" in F Minor, both by Faure; "Fenillet d'album," Chabrier, and the "Tarentella, Venzia e Napoli," by Liszt. A list of numbers, by the way, which are unhaekneyed and thoroughly delightful when played in the finished and artistic style of this pianist.

Mrs. Barnum gave a good account of herself during her playing of the accompaniments for Mr. and Mrs. Clarke. She was in full accord with the soloists at all times.

Officers for the Ensuing Year

The business meetings of Friday morning and afternoon accomplished several tasks, notable among those was the election of officers for the coming year, which is as follows:

President—Edward Nell, Indianapolis.

Secretary—L. M. Tilson, Franklin.

Treasurer—Mrs. Myra Gordon, Logansport.

The following committees were named to serve for next year:

Program Committee—R. G. McCutchan, Greencastle; Max Miranda, South Bend.

Executive Committee—Percy L. Nussbaum, Marion; Laura Gaston, Richmond; S. T. Meigs, Indianapolis.

Public School Committee—A. W. Mason, Columbus; Mr. Alexander, Sullivan; W. E. Moore, Florida.

South Bend was selected as the place for the 1916 convention.

Special Music at Chapel

Meharry Hall was packed on Friday morning by students and teachers when the De Pauw School of Music gave a half hour program of special music at the regular chapel exercises. Dean McCutchan, who by the way was an exceedingly busy man during the entire convention, was in charge of the music of the morning and led his forty piece orchestra through splendid renditions of "The Military Polonaise," by Chopin, and "Sarabande," by Bohm. Mr. McCutchan indeed proves to be the proper man for the head of De Pauw's music school; he not only is doing wonders with that, but is a conductor of splendid ability, which was proven by the fine work of this amateur orchestra. The Girls' Glee Club of twenty-five voices also were heard in two delightful selections under the leadership of Mrs. Degner, who was heard to good advantage in some obligato soprano work with the club. The orchestra was heard in another number and the musical climax of the morning was reached when the orchestra, piano, organ, Glee Club and entire audience joined in a rendition of the inspiring University song, "In Praise of Old De Pauw."

Osborne McConathy Gives Address

At 10:30 Friday morning Osborne McConathy of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., gave an address on "Public School Music," which received rapt attention from the large audience. Mr. McConathy is a fine speaker and he knows this subject thoroughly. He spoke in part:

There has been an unfortunate lack of co-operation between the general music teacher and the supervisor of public music. Although the two fields of endeavor are in many respects closely identified; although their interests are mutual, and their purposes similar in many respects there has not been the close association of effort which would best further the purposes of both kinds of musicians. The reasons for this lack of unity is probably largely due to misunderstandings. I realize that the school music teacher very frequently is blameful. Too often his musicianship does not win the respect of the other musicians in the community in which he lives. Frequently his personality is not of that commanding kind which would lead the other musicians of his city to look upon him as a leader. Frequently he has not the tact to bring about the close associations which ought to exist between himself and the private music teachers. On the other hand, very often the private music teacher is so engrossed in his own work that he does not look about him to learn what is being done in the public schools of his community. Too often he feels that the school music teacher is not his professional equal and, therefore, does not deserve his support. Not unfrequently he looks upon the work of the school music teacher as merely a dabbling in the subject of music, which he cannot recognize as professional.

The private music teacher seldom is willing to give the time to study the problems of the public school music teacher. Were he to do so he would realize that the public school music teachers of the country, taken as a body, are a group of exceedingly well versed, thoroughly educated and extremely enthusiastic workers. The public school music teachers believe in their calling; they believe that the music development in this country must in a large measure spring from their work in the schools. To this end they are bending every energy to the development of

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Soloist, First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director
501 KIMBALL HALL

the kind of music instruction which will cover the largest amount of ground in the least time.

I wish to urge upon the music supervisors the importance of keeping in active touch with the private music teachers, and other musicians in the community in which they live. On the other hand, I wish to urge equally strongly that the private music teachers get into touch with the work being done in the public schools.

If there is a strong music teacher in your community, learn what he is doing and help him to do it better. If there is a weak teacher, either help that teacher to grow stronger or insist that the school committee engage a competent instructor. Just as soon as our school committees realize that the musicians of their cities are sincerely working together to develop a musical atmosphere in the community, and that the private music teachers and public school teachers are in accord, and striving after the musical welfare of the whole body of citizens, just that soon will music in the public schools be given its rightful place in the school curriculum.

Already in a great many cities recognition of the place of music in a liberal education has been shown by giving ample time to the subject in the primary, grammar and high schools.

One of the more recent moves has been the accrediting of outside work in voice, piano or other instruments done by high school students under private teachers. Pupils have been allowed to substitute their outside music study for certain of the high school subjects and thereby given more study periods during the school hours in order to relieve their afternoons and evenings—thus they may give the necessary daily time to the practice of their instruments.

This is a matter in which all musicians are vitally concerned and it is a matter which, in the course of time, will become more or less general.

We print the greater part of Mr. McConathy's address because it should be of value to not only the private music teachers but public school teachers as well.

□ □ □

Conferences

Among the delightful and instructive sessions of the different sections of the association were the conferences at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. The Supervisors' Conference was presided over by W. A. Mason, ex-president of the Supervisors' Section of the N. E. A. The Piano Conference was presided over by Laura B. Gaston of Richmond, and discussions were led by James Whittaker, Chicago; Van Denman Thompson, Greencastle, and others. The Voice Conference was presided over by Edward Nell, Indianapolis; W. H. McHenry, South Bend, and others participating. In these meetings much of the practical work of the departments was discussed.

□ □ □

Henriette Weber Talks on "Modern Music"

A feature of the entire convention which had been looked forward to with expectancy and pleasure was the address on "Modern Tendencies in Music," to be given by Henriette Weber, director of the Sunday Evening Opera Concerts at the Art Institute, Chicago; lecturer for the University Lecture Association in co-operation with the University of Chicago. She does not have to write her addresses, as is well known, but keeps her ideas developing continually and gives them straight to the point. Her illustrations, which are many in this address, are likewise to the point and wholly convincing. Miss Weber said:

That modern tendencies were not so new as they seemed but the striking features sometimes make us forget the close connection with the old. It is very necessary, she said, to know this old thoroughly in order to make a comparison that is worth while. In trying not to be superficial there is also danger of becoming too precise in the sense of paying too much attention to minor details and thereby losing sight of the significance of the whole. The new is invading the sanctified portals of the old and the change keeps us busy adjusting our standards. Sometimes when we are left behind, said the speaker, we lose our sense of perspective and we find ourselves either laughing at the new or having our aesthetic sense shocked morally and orally.

Modern music is developing in three general deductions; program music, in the direction of newer romanticism as a reaction, towards the new classicism. Characteristics are common to all modern music but subject to national treatment. Miss Weber then spoke of the development in France and Germany and also in Italy, and in summing up her admirable paper she said that art fluctuates continually from romanticism to classicism, and back again, the two movements representing radicalism and conservatism. It is the return to the newer classicism that is going to save modern music.

□ □ □

New York Organist Gives Recital

At 4 o'clock Friday afternoon Mr. Edward Rechlin, organist of Immanuel Church, New York City, who has been making an extensive concert tour through the middle-west during the past month, played a grand program on De Pauw's magnificent ten thousand dollar pipe organ, which has recently been installed in Meharry Hall by the successful and well known organ builders, Casavant Brothers of South Haven, Mich.

Mr. Rechlin is a pupil of Guilman and Widor of Paris and paid his respects to those masters by playing a composition from each during the afternoon, namely "Noel," by the former and the latter's well known "Toccata." Mr. Rechlin's own "Caprice" was indeed a bright point in the program as was his "Improvisation," which followed his first group. In this he displayed to the fullest extent his mastery over the king of instruments, bringing out in a beautiful light the organ's thrilling chimes. Numbers by Bach, Corelli, Rameau, Jadasohn and F. Reuter gave ample opportunity to Mr. Rechlin to test the many unique and beautiful combinations of this splendid organ and this he did with telling effects. He used no score and therefore gave his whole soul, thoughts and movements to the instrument and music at hand. Great were the results attained and we can easily say it was one of the best organ recitals heard in many a day.

Assisting Mr. Rechlin was Miss Bernice Pafford, soprano, and Mr. Van Denman Thompson, composer-accompanist. Three delightful and very singable songs from the pen of Mr. Thompson were Miss Pafford's offerings and they did great credit to both soloist and composer.

□ □ □

Chicago Artists Give Closing Concert

The 1915 convention of the Indiana Music Teachers' Association was brought to a brilliant close on Friday night when the well known and much admired Chicago artists, Hazel Eden Mudge, soprano; Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; John B. Miller, tenor; Burton Thatcher, baritone, and Edgar Nelson, organist, accompanist, gave a concert in Meharry Hall to a very enthusiastic audience.

The "Quartet" from "Rigoletto" opened and the "Sextet" from "Lucia" in four part form closed the program, both being sung in the heights of artistic excellence by these singers of rare attainments. The four of them are successful church singers in Chicago, and it was wholly appropriate and really to be expected that they sing a sacred anthem. This came in the form of "Fear Not, O Israel," by Spicker, and was a meritorious display of religious song in beautiful form and from a musical standpoint was likewise excellent. This number was much enhanced by the splendid organ accompaniment furnished by Mr. Nelson.

Mrs. Gannon and Mr. Miller sang "Home to Our Mountains," from "Il Trovatore," in a style which proved their powers in operatic music to the fullest extent and drew from the audience a great round of applause.

Mrs. Mudge sang a group of songs which contained "Pastoral," Veracini; "O Let Night Speak of Me," Chadwick, and "Time of May," Salter. This singer is fast taking a place among America's leading singers and after hearing her splendid voice and noting her personality and interpretative gifts, again, in this concert the success is understandable. She covered herself with glory on this occasion.

Mr. Thatcher created unusual applause and high commendation by his elegant vocal display, interpretative thought and assurance in "Even Bravest Hearts," from "Faust." His voice is one of rich, powerful quality, yet sympathetic and authoritative and deep artistic musicianship adorns every phase of his offerings.

Mrs. Gannon with the beautiful contralto voice which adapts itself to the artistic thoughts of its owner in charming effects is a welcome addition to any program and she easily shared the honors of the evening in her excellent singing of "O Mio Fernando" from "La Favorita." She possesses the poise and confidence in her resources which is convincing and restful to the lover of good singing and she was especially at home with her share of the program on this occasion.

Mr. Miller's solo offering was that charming aria from "Carmen," the "Flower Song." His broad musicianship and full, resonant tones stood him in good stead again as usual and his excellent concert style, combined with his rare skill and feeling in interpretation, was thoroughly appreciated by his hearers who gave him vigorous and enthusiastic applause.

Mr. Nelson, the accompanist of the evening, was, as ever, perfect. He not only gave to each soloist and ensemble faultless support, but really added greatly to the artistic successes of the evening through his masterful playing of the piano scores, several of which he did not even bring to the piano, so experienced and well equipped for this style of work is he. Mr. Nelson consented on very short notice to play one organ number, this being the "Fantasie Symphonique," by Rosseter G. Cole of Chicago. Although having no time to try the organ he nevertheless played with his accustomed skill and artistry and added new laurels to those already gained at the piano from this musical audience.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

The Artist and His Art

By KATHARINE S. BROWN
(Copyright by K. S. B.)

X—Other Arts

"To be a great artist one must be a great man or woman. As such the artist must share the vision of the people. . . . The great raff of American artists . . . have little or no interest in anything out of their line of work. They are . . . wrapped up in their trade and filled with a petty, exaggerated self-importance and jealous rivalries. . . . Great men are great because of the breadth of their interests; the greatest have been helpful and useful aside from their artistic pursuits—in the intellectual activities of their age. Michael Angelo was a capable writer, engineer, and an architect of such ability that he was put in charge of the building of St. Peter's. Da Vinci was an inventor, engineer, writer and brilliant speaker. Velasquez, while doing his best work . . . was household keeper of the palace of Philip IV. Sir Frederic Leighton, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Reubens, Watts, to name only a few, were all men who would have been equally great as statesmen, men of letters or scientists."—Gutzon Borglum.

The artist ever has been high priest in man's temple of noble desire. Art in all its expression is the inevitable manifestation of man's ideal; and as there never was a time when man was without ideal, there likewise never was a time when poetry, painting, sculpture, music, drama, did not exist as scientific facts in the mind of man and consequently in the expression of man's life.

The history of all art is the psychic history of man. It is the story of man's emotional emergence into freedom and light. It is the revelation of darkness dispelled, of brutality vanquished, of materialism dissolved at the sweet coming of beauty. And the history of art in man is the individual artist's experience as he reaches out through his own gifts toward infinite beauty. His emotional emergence into freedom and light records the conquest of self—the self men see and know—by the self that is possessed of that all-gift, his art, the masterful one gift! It recounts all poesy of vision, all drama of majestic conflict, all harmony of merited hopes, all sculptured dreams well-wrought and builded into being and consummated at last—"in that most lovely hour when the light gentles and the wind is soft and beauty in the heart breaks like a flower."

His own art-work, his own art-ends are no longer his craft and his trade. They are himself expressed; himself consummated, added up, completed so far as may be. He is now one with the world to live, to love all beauty, to minister and be ministered unto together with his kinsmen in other arts, high priests like himself. He stands in the lightened gateway of celestial vision to call all waiting, thirsting hearts to drink with him of beauty everlasting; to drink of this enduring substance of joy, pure, quiescent, radiant; that joy which lifts the tired mind to calm and rest and from that rest awakens it to a realization of its own eternal youth. In the reaches of himself he has touched the fingers of the eternal. He takes commands from the Eternal Law. The master artist, contained, aware, is supremely conscious that there is not anything of power in his work which he can lack if he would manifest the power of the Eternal Truth and Beauty.

What wealth of beauty is at the call of the true artist for his sustenance. The fine arts, sculpture and architecture, painting, drama, poetry and music, compose each a world in itself, infinite in its capacity for beautiful expression, each contributing in an individual way a distinct message that no other of the arts can contribute, and yet all relying upon the same great fundamental truth of art. That which sculpture expresses of majesty, of spiritual might, of lofty nobility, no other art can equally well express. It has its own uncompromising and unyielding place upon which no other art can successfully trespass and toward which none can, in truth, even approach. If then an artist fails to receive through sculpture what it has to give all artists he has utterly missed something that can not be supplied him in any other way or through any other channel. It is true, equally, of painting. A good musician can not be so good that he would not be better

WARRE
PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
419 Fine Arts Building. Phone Maywood 1615

for the sudden rush of glad, colorful feeling a great painting inspires; and there is every reason why a good artist, if he be such in any line whatever, should know a great painting from a near-great one. Yet too often is he not only unable to discern a picture's technical worth—which is somewhat excusable—but he is unable to discern its quality of feeling—to receive its message of loveliness and to regard it merely as good to look upon—or worse to "look at!"

Music, the most sensuous of the fine arts is naturally the most popular, although the youngest of them all. It has the simplest and quickest appeal to the human heart and in that sense is the most necessary. Wrote Lanier: "To make a home out of a household, given the raw materials, to-wit: wife, children, a friend or two and a house—two other things are necessary. These are a good fire and good music. And inasmuch as we can do without the fire for half the year, I may say music is the one essential. . . . Late explorers say they have found some nations that have no God; but I have not heard of any that had no music. Music means harmony, harmony means love, love means—God!"

Of the five arts none is so little understood and appreciated by other artists as poetry. They have less comprehension and regard for poetic form than of any other art form—that is, of versification—and they straightway deprecate poetry because they so completely fail to know "poems," as such. Denunciation of poetry is insufferably common among artists of other persuasions, while the true poet at heart, even if he be not a poet by trade, recognizes poetry as "the first and best of all arts"—the most natural of all arts, the one which earliest found expression, because it welled up in passionate beauty at the first touch of truth. So it sprang first and then simultaneously to rhythmic dance and dramatic action and thus to song. Without the poetic quality creative vision is well-nigh impossible. That evanescent loveliness of rare, great works in all the arts is invariably poetic, whatever else it may be as well. Because the poetic is the most evanescent and transcendent quality of the arts it is the least understood and that frequently by artists who have in their own work a poetic "feeling," so to speak, to a high degree. On the other hand, the dramatic quality is of the widest appeal and therefore the most misused of any quality of the arts. It is always easier to develop a dramatic feeling than a poetic sense—a simple and mathematically correct reason for the spurious and sensational attempts at dramatic quality in many artists. While the true dramatic quality is as rare as the true poetic quality, the sensationally dramatic is universally attainable and one can not be sensationally poetic. Therefore the poetic as a quality in art has a small, rare, true following indeed.

Again poetry as an art and as it appears as a quality in other arts, is the only one of the fine arts that is independent of the physical senses. All the others can be heard and seen and felt and handled with men's hands. Poetry alone of all rests utterly upon the individual capacity of imaginative discovery—of purely visual thought and this again is the reason of its incomprehension. "Poetry turns all things to loveliness: it exalts the beauty of that which is most beautiful and it adds beauty to that which is deformed. It transmutes all that it touches and every form moving within the radiance of its presence is changed by wondrous sympathy to an incarnation of the spirit which it breathes. . . ." (Shelley). What can an artist more desire than to partake of the loveliness of all the arts that he may the more happily serve his own? And what more fatal to that spontaneous joy of his art than to live forever on one diet? One kind of food loses its taste to him and he is then no judge of other viands.

—♦♦♦—
Adams—Mr. and Mrs. Crosby Adams have sent out an attractive little booklet announcing their summer classes, which this year will be held as follows: First session, June 17 to 30, at the Adams home studio, The-House-in-the-Woods, Montreat, N. C. Second session, July 15 to 28, Whitton-Carlisle School, corner Twentieth and D streets, Lincoln, Neb. Third session, August 5 to 18, the Loring School, Forty-sixth and Ellis avenue, Chicago. For information about any of these courses address Crosby Adams, Montreat, N. C.

—♦♦♦—
North Shore School—On Friday evening, April 30, the Girls' Glee Club of the North Shore School, under the direction of Hilda B. Brown, gave a concert. Wilma Soverhill, violinist, and Shepard Kelly, reader, assisted Doris Trafford, accompanist for the club.

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 | Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and
Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-
Violinist Meyer
Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel
3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert
Pupils Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

People & Events

CECIL FANNING AND H. B. TURPIN

The history of music has never before offered such a combination as Cecil Fanning and H. B. Turpin. The critics everywhere are comparing Mr. Fanning to Georg Henschel, David Bispham, Plunkett Greene and Dr. Wullner, but a Fanning-Turpin recital offers a unique feature—which these great artists never gave to the public—that is an absolutely perfect ensemble. Mr. Fanning's singing is not merely fine vocal art assisted by a finished accompanist, but the combined work of these two musicians has been brought to such a degree of perfection, by years of combined work, that the voice and accompaniment are as one.

Some fourteen years ago, when Cecil Fanning was but sixteen years of age, he came to H. B. Turpin for vocal instruction. At that time Mr. Turpin was the leading vocal teacher of Columbus, Ohio, and in that city had guided so many singers to a high proficiency of vocal artistry that even now Columbus is a stumbling block for many singers of note. After four years of careful vocal studies Mr. Fanning showed such great promise that Mr. Turpin gave up his class, and for the past ten years has devoted himself entirely to Mr. Fanning and to the development of his own ability as an accompanist.

To understand the background of Mr. Fanning's interpretations one must know something of his unusual mentality. As a child he showed a budding literary ability, and great love for literature, and at fourteen decided that to accomplish his ends it was necessary to specialize on languages and literature. He developed great love for Shakespeare and the classics, and at sixteen thought of becoming a romantic actor, and it was this that prompted him to study the science of the voice. A few years of application to vocal art demonstrated to him that his best talent was that of a song reciter, so his efforts have been expended along that line, and now at thirty he is considered the most versatile song interpreter of the day, and he has been pronounced by many of the foremost critics to have no superior as an exponent of pure vocal art. To be an interpreter of songs one must appreciate poetry. The fact that Mr. Fanning is able to appreciate the best in poetry, and so express himself, has been proven by Constable and Co., the principle publishers of London, in their willingness to bring forth his book of poems, entitled, "The Flower-strewn Threshold." G. Schirmer of New York has recently published two very successful cantatas, "Sir Oluf," by Harriet Ware, and "The Foolish Virgins," by Marshall Kernochan, the librettos for which were written by Mr. Fanning. Many of the prominent song writers are making settings of Mr. Fanning's short poems, and his two melodramas, "The Pipes of Pan," music by Lulu Jones Downing, and "La Princesse Lointaine," music by Guy Bevier Williams, have met with such success that they are being used on the programs of the best readers in England and America.

"The Pipes of Pan" was recited by Mr. Bispham in Chicago.

Mr. Fanning is entirely a product of America, and so great a product that at the age of twenty-seven he and Mr. Turpin went abroad and successfully gave recitals in Germany, Italy, France and England, and still Mr. Fanning has kept himself a product of America in that he studied with no one abroad. What the foreign critics thought of him may be gleaned from the following short extracts from his many encomiums:

All in all, the world of singers has found in Mr. Fanning a superior interpreter, in whose blood seems to be the true essence of song.—Allegemeine Musikzeitung, Berlin, October 4, 1912.

Mr. Fanning, however, is not merely an interpretative singer of the acquired or even the spontaneous type. He is more; namely, the happy owner of a very beautiful and very even baritone voice, great purity of diction, and a perfectly clear enunciation and sense of style.—Daily Telegraph, London, England, April 9, 1913.

As program makers Messrs. Fanning and Turpin are par excellence. Research for novelties is one of their strong points, and they have already presented to the American public many classics which have never before been heard in this country. Their programs can but serve to raise the standard of music in any community where they are known. Mr. Fanning's unusual dramatic ability has made it possible for him to keep green the memory of some of the great ballad writers who have found very few interpreters able to cope with the difficulties of their compositions. Mr. Fanning and Mr. Turpin never descend to the common or commonplace in music with any desire to become popular, and they have thoroughly convinced the unmusical and unthinking public that they are able to entertain with compositions that cannot but elevate. It can be truthfully said that no singer before the public can sing from memory such a repertoire as Mr. Fanning. A short time ago he gave four programs, four days in succession, singing from memory eighty-two songs, and these songs comprised but a small part of his repertoire, which embraces the best of German, French, Italian and English song literature. His knowledge of languages is such that one of the London critics said: "His pronunciation of foreign tongues seems to show that he has a real speaking knowledge of the languages, and not merely a coldly nodding acquaintance with them."

It is the universal comment that Mr. Fanning should go into opera, but in spite of the fact that he has had several offers from the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera Companies he has not been attracted by an operatic career, and for years to come hopes to continue his work as a song reciter.

Saint-Saens—Camille Saint-Saens sailed from France on Saturday for New York, from whence he will go direct to the San Francisco Exposition, where he is to appear in a series of concerts and one lecture.

Pawloska—Miss Irene Powloska, late of the "Sari" Company, has been engaged for the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

AN ILLINOIS ORGAN AT PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION

The organ recitals being given twice weekly in the Recital Hall of the Illinois State Building at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition demonstrate the increasing popularity of organ music. The Illinois Commission writes that large and enthusiastic audiences gather for every recital that is announced and that the Recital Hall could be filled a dozen times over on every such occasion. The Hinners Organ Co. have received many favorable comments on the instrument. Mr. Clarence Eddy, who gave the inaugural recital, writes:

"Accept my congratulations upon the excellence of your organ upon which I had the honor of giving the inaugural recital at the dedication of the Illinois State Building in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco."

The Illinois Commission has engaged Dr. Maurice W. O'Connell of San Francisco as official organist of the Illinois State

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY

Violin talent and proficiency much beyond the usual was exhibited at the recital given by advanced pupils of Mr. Bernard Sturm at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Tuesday evening, April 27. The program opened with a beautiful presentation by the Messrs. Ralph Weil and Philip Dreifus of that great favorite, the "F Major Sonata" of Grieg. Clare Yarwood proved himself an earnest young musician in his playing of the Bruch "Concerto," G Minor, which he gave in its entirety. Miss Lucile Blakely gave the "Air Varié," D Major, of Vieuxtemps an artistic, thoroughly capable reading. Oliver Kilb, whose warmth and beauty of tone, direct manner of presentation and musicianly understanding mark him a student of decided promise, played "La Folia" of Corelli; Miss Ruth Ritchey was much applauded for her brilliant playing of DeBeriot's "Air Varié," No. 12, and Mr. Philip Dreifus brought the program to a close with Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen," playing with that temperamental abandon which carries an audience. The recital was in the nature of a splendid tribute to the ability of both the participants and their master, Mr. Sturm.

The Misses Clarissa Crawford, violiniste,

OMAHA FESTIVALS TO CEASE

The annual spring musical festival of the Mendelssohn Choir, assisted by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, ended forever with last night's concert at the Auditorium, killed, in the opinion of Thomas J. Kelly, director of the choir, by the indifference of the Omaha public. The five years' contract between the choir and the orchestra, which closed with last night's concert, will not be renewed. This is certain unless something unforeseen prevents.

Frederick Stock, director of the orchestra, is willing to try again, but Mr. Kelly declares that he is through. He says that the choir will continue its work, but will attempt nothing in the way of a festival again. He declared Tuesday that Omaha people will not support home talent.

"The business men will boost for Omaha in everything except music," he said indignantly.

To Mr. Stock's suggestion that the Commercial Club be asked to get behind a music festival for next year, Mr. Kelly exclaimed indignantly, "All the Commercial Club likes is cabaret singers."

"The trouble with Omaha, it is so material," said Mr. Stock. "Like all towns of its size, it is still all commercial. Art is at a standstill."

"The choir is deserving not only of united support of the Omaha citizens, but of state-wide support," said he. "The material in it is splendid. It compares with the finest in the country. Mr. Kelly has a special talent for that kind of work and is a fiend for work."

"With this choir you should have a big three days' festival—instead of two—with the whole state subscribing to its support. You could bring the best orchestras and soloists here and have a big festival as in other places."

As it is, according to Mr. Stock, he was obliged to leave thirty of his orchestra behind because of the expense of bringing the full 100 men. From here he goes east on a five-weeks' spring festival tour with the full orchestra, appearing with choirs in many cities before returning to Chicago.

"Why, I have never heard anything like the Mendelssohn choir tonight from an organization of this kind," said Miss Margaret Keyes, the beautiful contralto soloist, after the performance Monday night. "It was a remarkable achievement." Miss Keyes has sung in the most important cities of the country. Her remarks were echoed by others who heard the concert Monday night. The audience itself was very appreciative and gave the choir and orchestra enthusiastic greetings.

During the closing rehearsals of the choir, it developed that the sale of tickets was not proceeding as it should. Conductor Kelly was indignant at the difficulties with which the members of the choir coped in disposing of them.

"As a matter of fact we should not have to sell these tickets at all," he said. "You come here and rehearse faithfully most of the winter and prepare a fine performance. In addition to that you have to push the ticket sale. That would not be so bad if you met with friendly appreciation. But this indifference of Omaha people is depressing. I am coming to the conclusion that Omaha does not want a spring festival, after five years' trial of it."

It is still hoped by music lovers that some way may be found to assure easier sailing for this organization, and that a contract may yet be made with the symphony orchestra.

At the close of last night's concert Thomas J. Kelly said he would have to wait for the box office returns before he could state whether or not the concert had been financially successful. He was under the impression, however, that it was not.—Omaha World-Herald.

ROBERT LOUIS BARRON

Robert Louis Barron, violinist, has appeared in joint recital with Clayton Lunham, tenor, and Catherine Reid Martin, pianiste, as follows:

April 6—Lake Forest, Ill.
April 10—Deerfield, Ill.
April 24—Mudlavia Sanatorium.
April 25—Mudlavia Sanatorium.
May 2—Highland Park, Moraine Hotel.

They will appear in Chicago during the month of May.

Stead—Mr. Franklin Stead of Peoria, president of the Peoria Musical College, gave an organ recital at Fairbury, Ill., on April 20, being assisted by Sol Cohen, violinist.

Leginska
PIANIST

Has been engaged for FIVE appearances as soloist with the
NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Walter Damrosch, Orchestra
Exclusive Management of Haessel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York City.

Flora Rabe, pianiste, Eva Rosser, contralto, and Martha Craver, soprano, pupils of the artist department of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, gave a concert for the blind at the Public Library last Tuesday evening.

Robert Schenk, violinist, Mrs. Blanche Hauer, soprano, and Miss Naomi Lowe, mezzo-soprano, of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music gave a musical program for the "open house" ceremonies at the Salvation Army Industrial Headquarters last Tuesday evening.

GALESBURG, ILLINOIS

The following program of organ music was played April 19 at Knox Conservatory, Galesburg, by Miss Laura L. Leard, a member of the class of 1915, and a pupil of John Winter Thompson:

Sonata in D Minor	Merkel
Allegro risoluto
Andante
Allegro risoluto; Fuga
Romanza	Chas. A. E. Harriss
An Autumn Sketch	Brewer
Pilgrims' Chorus	Wagner
Prelude and Fugue in G Minor	Bach
Communion in G	Batiste
Scherzo in D Minor	Faulkes
Evensong	Johnston
Marche Religieuse	Guilmant

Arizona—The Arizona School of Music, Phoenix, Ariz., direction of Mrs. Shirley Christy, gave a fine program on April 22, the artists being Claude Gotthelf, piano; Frank Lloyd Stuchal, violin, and Mary Edna Styles, reader.

HINNERS ORGAN AT THE EXPOSITION

Building, and recitals are being given twice weekly as announced in the official program. The following letter from Dr. O'Connell was received by the builders:

"Hinners Organ Co.,
Pekin, Illinois.

"Gentlemen: I am delighted with the beautiful design and sweet tone as well as effective action and convenient appliances of your organ. The immense audiences attending the recitals bear witness to the great success achieved by you in organ construction."

The Illinois Commission has been greatly pleased over the success and popularity of the organ, and feel gratified in having made this a part of the equipment of the building, which, with the interesting "Lincoln Room," displaying a statue of the martyred president and prized relics of his life, are proving magnets which draw thousands of people to the beautiful Illinois Building. The San Francisco representative of the Illinois Commission gives this expression concerning the organ:

"Every organist who has played on the magnificent organ erected by your company has praised most highly the merits of the instrument. It has proved to be one of the real features of the Exposition."

There is no question but that the popularity achieved by this organ will encourage the installation of organs in many other buildings of like character in the future.

Boston Orchestra in San Francisco

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will play at San Francisco from May 14 to 25. The following programs will be given:

Program No. 1, Friday Evening, May 14

Symphony No. 3, in E Flat Major, Op. 55
"Eroica".....Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Marcia funebre: Adagio assai
Scherzo: Allegro vivace. Trio
Finale: Allegro molto
Variations on a Theme by Josef Haydn, Op. 56a
(Chorale Sancti Antoni).....Brahms
"Don Juan," Tone Poem (after Lenau), Op. 20
.....Richard Strauss
Overture to the Opera, "Euryanthe".....Weber

Program No. 2 Saturday Afternoon, May 15

Overture—Sea Calm and Prosperous Voyage, Op. 27
.....Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
Symphony No. 6, in G Major, "Surprise".....Haydn
Adagio cantabile e vivace assai
Andante
Menuetto
Allegro di molto
Suite, No. 2, in E Minor, "Indian," Op. 48
.....MacDowell
Legend: Not fast; with much dignity and character. Twice as fast; with decision.
Love Song; not fast; tenderly.
In war time; with rough vigor; almost savagely.
Dirge: Dirge-like, mournfully.
Village Festival: Swift and Light.
Hungaria, Symphonic poem, No. 9.....Liszt

Program No. 3, French Program No. 1, Sunday Afternoon, May 16

Symphony in D Minor.....Cesar Franck
Lento: Allegro non troppo
Allegretto
Allegro non troppo
"L'Apprenti Sorcier" (The Sorcerer's Apprentice),
Scherzo (after a ballad of Goethe).....Dukas
Suite, "L'Arlesienne," No. 1. Music to Alphonse
Daudet's play.....Bizet
Prelude
Minuetto
Adagietto
Carillon
Rhapsody for orchestra, "Espana".....Chabrier

Program No. 4, Monday Evening May 17

Symphony No. 1, in C Minor, Op. 68.....Brahms
Un poco sostenuto: Allegro
Andante sostenuto
Un poco allegretto e grazioso
Adagio: Allegro non troppo, ma con brio
Suite for Flute and Strings in B Minor, No. 2.....J. S. Bach
Overture
Rondeau
Sarabande
Bourree
Polonaise
Double
Badinerie
(Solo Flute, Mr. Andre Maquarre)

Symphony (Shepherds' Music) from the Christmas
Oratorio.....J. S. Bach
Overture to Goethe's "Egmont," Op. 84.....Beethoven
Wagner Program—Program No. 5, Tuesday Evening,
May 18

Overture to "Rienzi"
Overture to "The Flying Dutchman"
Introduction and Bacchanale from "Tannhauser,"
Act I (Paris Version)
Prelude to "Lohengrin"
Prelude to "Tristan and Isolde"
Prelude to "The Mastersinger of Nuremberg"
Funeral Music from "Dusk of the Gods"
Prelude to "Parsifal"

Program No. 6, Wednesday Evening, May 20

Overture to the Opera "Der Frieschutz".....Weber
Symphony No. 8, in F Major, Op. 93.....Beethoven
Allegro vivace e con brio
Allegretto. scherzando
Tempo di menuetto
Allegro vivace
Symphonic Sketches: Suite for Orchestra.....Chadwick Jubilee
Noel
Hobgoblin
Vagrom Ballad

"Karelia," Overture for full orchestra, "The Swan of Tuonela," Legend from the Finnish
Folk-Epic, "Kalevala," Finlandia": Symphonic
Poem for orchestra, Op. 26, No. 7.....Sibelius

Program No. 7, Thursday Evening, May 20

Symphony No. 2, in D Major, Op. 73.....Brahms
Allegro non troppo
Adagio non troppo
Adagietto grazioso, quasi andantino
Allegro con spirito
Symphonic Poem No. 3, "Les Preludes" (after Lamartine).....Liszt
Tone Poem, "Death and Transfiguration," Op.
24.....Richard Strauss
Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg".....
Wagner

Program No. 8—Italian Program—Friday Evening, May 21

Symphony No. 1, in D Major, Op. 16.....Sgambati
Allegro vivace, non troppo
Andante mesto
Scherzo: Presto: Trio; Un poco meno
Serenata: Andante
Finale: Allegro con fuoco
Overture to the opera "Anacreon".....Cherubini
Intermezzi Goldoniani, Op. 127.....Bossi
Preludio e Minuetto
Gagliardi
Coprifuoso (Curfew)
Minuetto e Musetta
Serenatina
Burlesca

WANTED: A teaching position for 2 days a week, in or out of Chicago, by an experienced teacher and one of the most prominent Church, Oratorio and Recital singers (tenor) in Chicago. Absolute control—freedom of vocal method, is the key-note of his success. Gentlemanly habits and character guaranteed.

Address "A. B. C." 1

MUSIC NEWS

Overture to Goldoni's "Le Baruffe Chiozzote," Op.
32 (The Squabbles of the People of Chiozza).....
Sinigaglia

Program No. 9, Saturday, Afternoon, May 22

Symphony No. 2 in G Minor (K. 550).....Mozart
Allegro molto
Andante
Minuetto (Allegro)
Finale: Allegro assai
Concerto in D Minor, for Two Violins and Orchestra of Strings.....J. S. Bach
Vivace
Largo
Finale (Allegro)
(Solo Violins, Messrs. Anton Witek and Sylvain Noack)

Overture to "Sakuntala," Op. 13.....Goldmark
"A Siegfried Idyl".....Wagner
Overture, "Carnival," Op. 92.....Dvorak

Program No. 10—French Program No. 2—Sunday Afternoon, May 23

Symphony No. 3, in C Minor for Orchestra and Organ, Op. 78.....Saint-Saens
Adagio; Allegro moderato, poco adagio
Allegro moderato. Presto. Maestoso. Allegro.
Overture to the opera "Gwendoline".....Chabrier
Three Pieces from "The Damnation of Faust," Op.
24.....Berlioz
Menuet of the Will o' the Wisp
Dance of the Sylphs
Hungarian March (Rackoczy)
Symphonic Poem "Viviane," Op. 5.....Chausson

Program No. 11—Russian Program—Monday Even- ing, May 24

Symphony No. 6, in B Minor, "Pathetic," Op.
74.....Tchaikowsky
Adagio: Allegro non troppo
Allegro con grazia
Allegro molto vivace
Finale: Adagio lamentoso
Overture Solonelle, Op. 73.....Glazounoff
On the Steppes of Central Asia, Orchestral Sketch,
Op. 7.....Borodin
Caprice on Spanish Themes, Op. 54.....Rimsky-Korsakoff
Alborada

Variations
Alborada
Scene and Gypsy Song
Fandango of the Asturias
(Played without pauses)

Program No. 12, Tuesday Evening, May 25

Symphony No. 1, in E Minor, Op. 39.....Sibelius
Andante ma non troppo; Allegro energetico
Andante, ma non troppo lento
Allegro
Finale (quasi una fantasia) Andante: Allegro molto Tone Poem, "Thus Spake Zarathustra" (freely after Friedrich Nietzsche) Op. 30.....Richard Strauss
Overture, "Leonora," No. 3, Op. 72.....Beethoven

SOUTH BEND, IND.

Max Miranda, one of the best known musicians and teachers of music in Indiana, has succeeded the late Milton B. Griffith as director of the South Bend Conservatory of Music, the leading institution of its kind in this section of the country. Mr. Miranda will have full charge of the institution. Since the death of Mr. Griffith, Mr. Miranda has been regarded as his logical successor, having been more closely associated with him and the affairs of the conservatory than any other person. For more than two years he has been the assistant director of the institution and one of the most valued members of the faculty.

MAX MIRANDA

In taking over the directorship Mr. Miranda announces that he realizes that Mr. Griffith has accomplished much since the institution was established, but he is determined to bring about even greater results during the next few years. Friends of Mr. Miranda are confident that the public will come to his support, morally and financially, and thus enable him to keep South Bend firmly fixed in the musical firmament of the middle west.

Mr. Miranda, who will teach on the organ, piano and harmony, has associated with him all the former members of the faculty, including Max R. Wald, piano; Dora Hershenow, piano and harmony; Valeiria Bon Durant, piano; Hazel Harris, voice; Gerald Hunt, voice; Frank E. Kendrie, violin; Miss Marie Boles, reading; Miss Jane White, dramatic art. Arrangements are also made for the study of band instruments and guitar.

The State Music Teachers' Association, which will convene here next year, will give a new impetus to South Bend's musical interest. The local association just started will do much to bring all teachers closer together.—South Bend Tribune.

Stein Conservatory—Wednesday evening, May 19, in Central Music Hall, the Stein Musical-Dramatic Conservatory will present the comedy, "His Model Wife," Bagg, the opera, "Olivette," Audran, and Ada O'Donnell, danseuse.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction

Wolfsohn Musical Bureau

1 W. 34th St., New York

In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.

Steinway Piano Used

COVENANT CHORUS GIVES "THE CREATION"

Monday evening, April 26, the Covenant Chorus of 100 voices, under the direction of John B. Trowbridge; Helen Axe Brown, soprano, M. J. Brines, tenor, Charles Lutton, bass, George S. Schuler, organist, and Mrs. Charles Davidson, piano, gave a fine performance of Haydn's "Creation." Mr. Trowbridge has built up a fine chorus at the Covenant Church, and on this occasion they proved themselves equal to the demands he made upon them. There was a certainty of attack, a clearness of pronouncement seldom heard in church choirs, and the manner in which they responded reflects great credit upon themselves and the director, Mr. Trowbridge, whose alert directing might well be taken as an example by many.

Miss Helen Axe Brown did some beautiful singing in the very grateful score assigned to the soprano. She sang with great poise, intelligence and her interpretations reached a high point in artistic and finished oratorio singing. "With Verdure Clad" was superbly sung.

Mr. Moses J. Brines again proved himself a thorough oratorio singer, with a fine style and great intelligence. The "Native Worth" aria was a masterful piece of vocal work that will long be remembered.

Mr. Charles E. Lutton excelled himself by the superb and artistic readings he gave the bass score.

He sang with telling effect, rare intelligence and vocalization the elaborate bass role. His "Rolling in Foaming Billows" aria left nothing to be desired in fine oratorio singing.

Mrs. Davidson, pianist, and Mr. Schuler, organist, gave a good account of themselves for the most part in the accompaniments throughout the evening. H. W. P.

WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL

The series of interpretation classes given by former graduates was brought to a close last Wednesday by Mr. Clinton Fahrney. He gave a splendid account of himself, playing works by Mendelssohn, Dohnanyi, MacDowell, Debussy and Grieg.

The last pupils' recital of the season will take place in the Literary Club Rooms, Fine Arts Building, Friday evening, May 7, when advanced pupils of Walter Spry, Hugo Kortschak, Cedric W. Lemont, Bruno Steindel, William Beard and Jessie Curtis will take part.

Columbia School—On Saturday at 2:30 a pupils concert will be given at the School Recital Hall. On Friday, May 14, at 8:15 in Assembly Hall, Fine Arts Building, a program will be given by pupils of Clare Osborn Reed and George Nelson Holt.

Sturkow-Ryder—Madame Theodora Sturkow-Ryder will play a piano solo at the Strollers Club benefit performance this (Friday) afternoon at the Studebaker Theater.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN MUSICIANS

The first of the series of Chamber Music concerts of the season, under the direction of the Society of American Musicians, was given on May 2, in Fullerton Hall at 3 and 4:15 o'clock. The Society of American Musicians is doing a very desirable thing that has created so much interest that two concerts are given each Sunday.

The purpose is to give a public hearing to many of the worthy young musicians in the city.

The concerts are under the direction of Ludwig Becker and Hugo Kortschak, both artists of the first rank.

Ludwig Becker, violinist, Franz Wagner, cello, Sidney Arno Dietch, pianist, gave a splendid performance of the "A Minor Trio" (Tchaikowsky).

Particularly fine was the vital and artistic playing of Messrs. Becker and Dietch. The "Andante Cantabile" (Tchaikowsky) was given with a wealth of tonal color and a fine appreciation of the musical content, by Messrs. Becker, H. Linden, C. Linden and Wagner.

Miss Florence Schmoll presided at the piano in the performance of the Schumann "Quintet," Op. 44.

Mr. Frank McNellis, baritone, sang at the first concert, and Miss Bess Beyer, soprano, also disclosed a voice of much beauty, that she uses with fine effect in the presentation of songs. Mr. Phelps Cowan furnished splendid accompaniments.

NEWS ITEMS

Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant, the well-known Chicago vocal teacher, who for the past year and a half has been director of the Vocal Art Institute of Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill., and has personally instructed a large vocal class in both cities each week, gave the first series of student recitals at the college May 3. She presented Miss Viola Elma Graber, dramatic soprano, in a song recital, who was heard in the following program:

Hear Ye, Israel (Elijah).....	Mendelssohn
Zueignung.....	Richard Strauss
Traum Durch Die Dämmerung (Dream in the Twilight).....	Richard Strauss
Love and Music, These Have I Lived For (Tosca).....	Puccini
Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind.....	I. Sargeant
Songs My Mother Taught Me.....	Antonin Dvork
Mr. Hodson

Summer.....	Chaminade
The Lark Now Leaves His Watery Nest.....	Horatio Parker
When Love Is Kind.....	A. L.
Cry of Rachel.....	Mary Turner Salter
Love Is a Bubble.....	Allitsen
Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes.....	Old English
Trottin' to the Fair.....	C. V. Standford
Mr. Hodson

A Spirit Flower.....	Campbell-Lipton
The Cuckoo.....	Lehmann
My Laddie.....	Thayer
Supposin'.....	Joan Trevalsa
Joy of Morning.....	Harriett Ware

The second series of May Musicals will be given by Miss Mae Anna Ross, lyric soprano, May 10.

CARL E. CRAVEN AT HEMINGTON RECITAL

The stormy weather of Monday evening put a damper as well as dampness on the attendance at Francis Hemington's current recital at Epiphany. But he did exactly the right thing, and played his best for the few who showed by their presence that they cared much for his music.

His programs are always varied and catholic, and this time he gave place to our Quincy friend, Roland Diggle, who is writing freely in these days. His "Song of Joy" is a cheerful fragment, better in its leading themes than the rather sentimental middle section. A conventional "Grand Chorus" of Georg MacMasters, also was heard, as well as several better-known things like Holbrook's "Souvenir of Spring" and Stebbins' "In Summer." The largest work was Mr. Hemington's own "Sonata," the last movement, only, being heard. It is intensely cheerful and bright, with a sort of lofty purposeful movement of sedateness, and straightforwardness in the development of its C Major voices.

Mr. Carl E. Craven was the soloist, using Alfred Wooller's "Hear My Cry," a not really illuminating setting, and the ever welcome "Then Shall the Righteous" from "Elijah." Mr. Craven has the natural equipment of a mellow tenor voice of good range, fairly well placed and obedient. To these he adds the healthy, youthful traits of enthusiasm, earnestness, real depth of feeling, a good musical sense and much intensity, perhaps, at times, too much for the repose he seeks for. He presents everything with unaffected sincerity, yet with careful and studied endeavor, and gives genuine pleasure to those who hear him sing. The "Elijah" excerpt was very well done, indeed, with a search for the exalted spirit which animates both text and music, and a large measure of success as a resultant.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Neff—Miss Hazel Dell Neff sang a solo at the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church last Sunday morning, at the Chicago Athletic Association in the afternoon, and at the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Austin in the evening—a very busy day.

CHARLOTTE BURTON
"VIOLINIST"
1105 E GROVE ST.
BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

MONICA GRAHAM
Columbia School of Music

STULTS
SOPRANO
BASS

WALTER ALLEN
303 KIMBALL HALL

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUHAUS
WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, - - ST. LOUIS

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER IN BOSTON

Following is some comment of the Boston press on the recital given recently in that city:

Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler, one of the great pianists of whom America has reason to be proud, and who was called by Leschetizky in her student days "my electric wonder," gave a recital before a very enthusiastic audience of good size. Her program included the Beethoven "Appassionata" sonata, and other compositions by Schubert, Mendelssohn, Weber and Chopin—a program decidedly romantic in its general character, and interpreted in that vein. Mme. Zeisler's musicianship, her splendid technical equipment, the virility and yet the womanly refinement of her art, need no extended description at this time.—Boston Post.

Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler's piano recital was one of the most artistic events of the current musical season.

It would be no special compliment to Mrs. Zeisler, to say that she plays the piano like a man. She plays it better than all but a few men who have been heard in this city in the last quarter of a century, and it is a question whether she has any equal among the women pianists, now that Carreno's sun is setting. Mrs. Zeisler's art is today at its zenith. It has grace, strength, fire, and, above all, a poetic cast that lends rare merit to her interpretations. The audience was grateful for the fine pleasures dispensed by this poetess of tone.

The program comprised Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata," and selections from Schubert, Mendelssohn, Weber and Chopin.—Boston Journal.

Mme. Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, not heard in Boston in recent seasons, returned for a recital of music from Beethoven, Schubert, Mendelssohn and Chopin, in which he showed that the fires of impassioned feeling still burn within her, and speak eloquently through a technic as brilliant now as a dozen years ago.

Mme. Zeisler played a "Menuet (G Major)" and a "Sonata" by Beethoven, which traversed a wide range of feeling. There are qualities in Mme. Zeisler's playing that make it like that of no woman since Mme. Carreno in her late prime, a sense of rhythm, majestic, imperious, yet plastic and spontaneous in its gradations; an emotional fire that vitalizes repose even as it intensifies passion. She played the "Menuet" with a fine sense of its formal elegance, its courtly grace, as a dance written for the pleasure of those of patrician minds and gentle birth.—Boston Globe.

Mme. Zeisler had not played here for a long time, much to the regret of her admirers. The years pass quickly, but time has not quenched her flame. It is not necessary to quote Mr. Huneker's characterization of her. It is familiar to all and holds good today.

The program was an agreeable change from the conventional and eccentric ones that have been put before us this season. There was no thunderous disarrangement of one of Bach's organ pieces; there was not a formidable row of Sonatas without relief; there was no choice of composers whose names all begin with an "A" or a "B" or a "C." It was a delightful idea to open the concert with Beethoven's little "Minuet"; it put the hearer in a receptive mood instead of encouraging him to make a hasty retreat; and it at once revealed a pianist with a charming touch and poetic fancy. The pieces by Schubert were welcome. The chosen "Songs Without Words," which are too often under-rated as other works of Mendelssohn, "Elijah," for instance, are over-rated, brought up pleasant memories, the first of Gertrude Hoffmann and other rude children of nature bounding and leaping over the stage. And then there was an admirable performance of Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," a performance in the chivalric manner of Weber. There was also the joy of hearing the "Invitation" interrupted by applause. And this in Boston, the "center of musical culture!" In the recent adoration of Debussy perhaps Weber is forgotten.

The characteristics of Mme. Zeisler's playing are unchanged. That she could still be tempestuous and tumultuous, even without consideration of the size of the hall, was shown by her reading of Beethoven's "Sonata," which for once was passionate and did not belie its name. But with what verve and gusto she played the allegro movements! Her mechanism is as polished and brilliant as ever, but the polish has warmth and the brilliance is not metallic. Her sense of rhythm is still marked. She is a mistress of tonal gradation, dynamic contrast that are significant and romantic. There was at times as of old a curious and tantalizing succession of passages now played with a certain imposing inflexibility and now with ravishing temporal freedom. All in all a concert to be enjoyed and remembered without the labor of analysis, criticism and hyper-criticism on the part of the hearer.—Boston Herald.

The years are kind to Mrs. Bloomfield-Zeisler. They have merely and graciously matured her aspect and left undiminished her technical and temperamental qualities as a pianist. Indeed, so far as they have ripened it and her playing yesterday afternoon was still full and alive with the individuality that differentiates her from every other pianist that comes to our concerts. The most orthodox and exacting sponse to the music deliberately makes it so. She commands an exceeding amplitude and power of tone that is harsh only when for an instant her emotional response to the music deliberately makes it. She commands now the softer, the lighter and even the whispered voice of the piano. Between, her tone is unfailingly elastic and shrewdly controlled in its force and sensitively and expertly shaded in its coloring. She is mistress of the resources of her pedals; she has plumbed the whole range of the dynamics of her instrument. She can summon it to eloquent and proclaiming declamation; she can sustain and modulate it through instrumental song; she can whirl it through swift runs and tumbling arpeggi; she can make it scintillate with ornament and arabesque and she can hush it to the voice of echoed melody or gentle musing. The range and the elasticity of her playing on its technical side remains its unfailing distinction. Even now her technical accomplishment is not routine to her. Zest for it enkindles her; yet not for a moment does she forego her clear and supple control of it.

Range and elasticity, again, distinguish Mrs. Zeisler in her response to her music and her imparting of both to her hearers. She happened to begin her concert with a little minuet of Beethoven. She played it with tranquil clearness and crispness, with finely clear and communicating sense of the gentle brightness of its melody and the gentle beat of its rhythms. She was wholly serene and suave with the music. Its manner as well as its matter pervaded her tones. A little later in the concert she wove gossamer-like Schubert's intertwining web of melody and rhythm in the "Moment Musical" that is dear to many dancers. They might have envied the pianist her lightness of touch and her softness of line. Further on, Mrs. Zeisler revived, as it seemed, two of Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words." She led the melody of one lightly and rhythmically through her streaming and iridescent tone; she kept the other moving in swift and undulating phrases to rhythms that never lost their quick, clear beat and with accent that now and then struck bright fire. She revived, too—as again it seemed—Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," beginning in clear and warm sonorities, artfully leading the suggestion of the dance into the full expansion of it, sustaining it yet diversifying it with as artful play with pace and rhythm; giving it its romantic glamor and its ardent voice, touching in the Weberian flourishes and then at the end vaporizing it like vision away.—Boston Transcript.—(Advertisement.)

CONSTANCE PURDY IN GREAT DEMAND

Constance Purdy brings to a close a most interesting season with an appearance at the Hotel McAlpin on May 4, when she will sing two groups of songs by Marion Bauer. This will be Miss Purdy's tenth public appearance this season in New York City. Miss Purdy is widely known as the American singer of Russian songs, and though a glance at her numerous programs of these past months shows a preponderance of the Russian songs, it shows a surprising number of American names. For Miss Purdy has always been one of the singers who could be counted on to give the American composer encouragement and practical support. On her programs this year are to be found compositions by Marion Bauer, Mrs. Beach, Gena Branscombe, John Carpenter, Farwell, Wm. Armes Fisher, Fay Foster, Henry F. Gilbert, Victor Harris, Charles F. Manney, Walter Rummel Stillman-Kelley and Ward-Stephens. Next season she plans to place more French songs on her programs and in carrying out this plan she will merely place herself again in touch with a field in which she is peculiarly at home. French was familiar to her even before she learned English, and her years of study with such masters as Charles Clark, Oscar Seagle and Jean de Reszke, with the continued background of Paris, have given her an accent which has all the purity of the born Parisian. Miss Purdy has indeed a rare linguistic gift, for few not born in Russia could so master the intricacies of that language that the Russians themselves, who are an exceedingly plain speaking race, would be moved to approve. Yet this is just what has happened to Miss Purdy, not once only but many times.

From the number of inquiries that have already been received next season promises to more than double the past one. Two tours, for November and January have already been arranged. The latter opens with a recital before the Woman's Music Club of Columbus, Ohio, on January 4. Miss Purdy appears in this series in company with such artists as Kreisler, Julia Culp, Maud Powell, Frieda Hempel and Mr. Scotti. At all her appearances she will have the assistance of Mabel Hammond. Miss Hammond has recently been elected President of the Radcliffe Club of New York City, the largest of the many clubs composed of graduates of Radcliffe College. Miss Hammond was a pupil of MacDowell for three years.

Bollman—Maude Fenlon Bollman is to be a soloist at the Lansing May Festival.

Arthur Uhe PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBORG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Henriette Weber
Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

FRANCES INGRAM
MANAGEMENT
SHAW & TUCKER
ORCHESTRA BLDG. CHICAGO

GEORGE MILTON LIPSCHULTZ
Teacher Violinist Soloist
1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

Howard E. PRESTON
5434 BARITONE Telephone
Woodlawn Av Midway 4175

HICKISCH Soprano
RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE
Personal Address, LACROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

CLARENCE EDDY IN FLORIDA

On the occasion of his recent organ recital at St. Augustine, Fla., the Evening Record of that city commented as follows:

Those who had the good fortune to hear Clarence Eddy's recital at Memorial Presbyterian Church Thursday night must have come away with the feeling that they had indeed heard a prince of players on the king of instruments. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to say that this wonderful exponent of organ music left his hearers in a state of stupefaction and intoxication at the multitude of marvelously contrasted and combined melodies and harmonies, so skillfully controlled and interpreted as those with which Mr. Eddy both delighted and astonished his hearers.

To these realizations must be added the consideration of the difficulties which always attend the recitalist. Together with the varied types of organs now-a-days to be found all over the country are the equally varied methods of operating the instruments—a circumstance to be reckoned with—and while the Flagler organ does not perhaps present the complexity of the modern electrically operated instrument, yet the prodigious nature of this organ and the individual qualities of the stops call for a wealth of control, insight and experience, and here again did Mr. Eddy manifest his absolute mastery of the instrument, and add more than wonderment to the listeners who knew the organ on which he played. Glancing over his program, one could not help but realize the vast field of expression from which Mr. Eddy compiled his program. The very varied nature of the pieces—both technically and expressively—gave to his listeners an experience that will be appreciated the more as they realize that the many types of sentiment that were interpreted for them, and the many classes of tone pictures so skillfully painted, were the outcome of years of patient study and untiring energy, with undoubtedly a natural and deep power of introspection and comprehension.

To analyze the program faithfully would be the work of a critic as far advanced in musical culture as Mr. Eddy and yet not to mention in passing—certain of the more outstanding features of the evening would be to withhold natural admiration of those things which especially called for praise of the highest order.

Commencing with a prelude on a German chorale by Faulkes, we were treated to a noble theme, powerfully constructed, with interest never flagging—indeed, increasing to the very end—and reproduced in a truly masterly manner.

Next came a wonderful pair by Nevin and those who listened with rapt attention to the wailing and pathetic strains, so wonderfully produced, of the "Song of Sorrow," were fascinated immediately after with the brilliantly fantastic rendering of "Will o' the Wisp," the florid and complex difficulty of which both electrified his hearers and yet left them with a new sense of extreme daintiness which the organist brought from the huge instrument in his hands.

A massive work was the "Sonata in E Major" by Becker, in which we have the construction of a sonata reproduced with the most modern ideas of composition, and from the flowing prelude—at once noble and yet not heavy—the beautiful adagio forming the second movement to the brilliant and complex "Toccata" taken at tremendous speed, Mr. Eddy took his hearers through almost every form of modulation and tone coloring conceivable.

Possibly the most pleasing memorable melody of the evening was heard in the "Russian Boatmen's Song on the River Volga," in which Mr. Eddy reproduced with striking effect the plaintive chantlike song of the boatmen, together with the realistic sounds of the oars striking water, which effect moreover was gained by purely legitimate chord construction, ably construed and not by any mere mechanical contrivance.

In the "Vorspiel" to "Lohengrin" Mr. Eddy presented to us the well known themes with his own construction and we heard fresh interest and color from the mind of this master organist infused into the noble tones originally built up by the great Wagner.

Undoubtedly the most popular item was the Fantasia on "My Old Kentucky Home"—which to dwell at length on or to give full justice to would take far too much space. Suffice it to say that in the hands of the exponent this striking old melody was subjected to more changes of character and tone than would have been conceived possible.

The great "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor" of Bach was, of course, heard to perfection, and in Mr. Eddy's hands the gigantic theme with its equally wonderful exposition and contrasting of tone colors was worked out as only the hand of a master could do.

Certainly no sweeter piece than Faulkes' "Nuptial Song" could be imagined and throughout the charming flutes kept pace with the dainty melodic theme, which comprised the principal part of this beautiful piece to which a fitting climax was heard in the "Nuptial Benediction" dedicated to Mr. Clarence Eddy and who portrayed for us the dying strains of the organ, after the more brilliant musical portion of the marriage service.

Lastly came the brilliant "Toccata in F" by Crawford, and Mr. Eddy's treatment of this difficult and florid piece was indeed a marvel of execution and a wonder of contrasted effects.—(T. Morley Harvey.)—(Advertisement.)

MRS. CHARLES ORCHARD'S ENGAGEMENTS FOR APRIL

April 3—Jessie Nichols Baldwin, Brahms program.

April 5—Mrs. Hanna Butler, Dorothy Meadows Club.

April 6—Ora Padget Langer, contralto, Charles Mixer, Violinist, at Rogers Park Woman's Club.

April 7—Ora Padget Langer, Ridge Woman's Club.

April 8—Mrs. E. M. Layfield, contralto, Grant Kimbell, tenor "Dejanire," Chicago Dramatic Society.

April 10—Mrs. Anna Butler, soprano, Miss Mary Hansen, violinist, New England Woman's Club.

April 14—Ora Padget Langer, contralto, Charles Mixer, violinist, Chicago Heights Woman's Club.

April 17—Miss Berger, contralto, Grieg program, Clipping lecture recital.

April 20—Ora Padget Langer, recital Lyceum Arts Hall.

April 22—Charles Mixer, soloist, Auditorium; Nicholas Senn High School.

April 25—Mrs. Hanna Butler, soloist, Majestic Theater.

Haydn—The Haydn Choral Society, under direction of Mr. H. W. Owens, gave a concert at the Chicago Athletic Association on last Sunday afternoon, being assisted by the Haydn Sextet, the Haydn Male Quartet, Messrs. Theodore Phillips, Charles Burch and Carl Brown, Misses Hazel Dell Neff, Augusta Collson and Lillian Landwer, soloists, and Haydn Owens and H. R. Vail.

AGNES LEIST BEEBE PUPILS

Following is a list of some appearances of artist pupils of Mme. Agnes Leist Beebe, recently:

Madame Agnes Leist Beebe's students in recital—Alice Geer Ferguson, soprano.

Recital, Kimball Hall, Chicago, April 20—Elmer Hallberg, tenor.

Recital April 26, Kimball Hall.

Recital May 11, Cheltenham.

Recital May 13, Pullman.

Recital May 17, Bethlehem Church.

Concert, May 14, Nebo Lutheran Church.

Concert, May 15, Deerfield, Ill.

Concert, May 18, Broadway M. E. Church.

Concert May 20, Saxon Church.

Concert May 21 Messiah English Church.

Several joint recitals with Sylvia Jackson Wahlstrom, pianist, and Esther Henrietta Anderson, dramatic soprano:

Recital May 3, Kimball Hall.

Bessing Gilbert Collingwood and Lina Levine, recital May 18, Kimball Hall.

Dr. A. B. Oren—Recital, Gary, Ind.

Ina Pegan, Concert, Shelbyville, Ill.

AUGUSTA MEEKER

Some press comment:

Mme. Meeker of Chicago was the soloist on this occasion. She has an evenly developed contralto voice of much power and a resonant and smooth quality, which she uses with dramatic skill. "The Cry of Rachel" Mme. Meeker sang particularly well, and her impression on the audience was so positive for appreciation that she appeared again and sang "My Native Land." At the close Mme. Meeker sang a group of German songs, with freedom and sympathy. She makes an attractive stage appearance, and is free from stage mannerisms.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

All of Mme. Meeker's numbers were calculated to show the range and quality of her superb voice, but the difficult "Cry of Rachel," by Salter, held the large audience spellbound. Mr. Lester's sympathetic accompanying added much to the pleasure of the audience.—The Weekly Reminder, Auburn Park, Chicago. (Advertisement.)

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - - - 'Cello

MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - - - Soprano

LOIS BROWN - - - - - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - - - Violin

ALBERTO SALVI - - - - - Harp

FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract. (26th Year)

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal

Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG

110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSEMAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago, Philadelphia, Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfson Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall

NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

THE THURSDAY MUSICAL CLUB

The Thursday Musical Club is an organization which may be justly proud of its results achieved in so many directions; not the least of these being the impulse given to its members, belonging in the main to what is called the "Leisure Class" (a sad misnomer in these days of stirring times and unceasing activity for society people as well as the rest of the unsubmerged, to continue their studies in whatever branch of the divine art they may elect to employ themselves, as artists in feeling and accomplishment; not as dilettantes.)

Mrs. John MacArthur, the president of the club, is a woman of heart and brain, personal assets that are not always found in happy conjunction. Hers is a ravishing form of activity; invariably upon the heights; invariably achieving results the most creditable.

In almost every field of civic or philanthropic endeavor her name heads the list as devoted adherent and participator.

She is identified with almost every organization of importance in the city. The Thursday Musical Club is a sort of very darling of her heart, and she looks upon what it has accomplished with pardonable pride.

This season the Scholarship Concert of the Thursday Musical Club will be held in the spacious music and drawing rooms of the MacArthur mansion, and Mrs. MacArthur, a musician of high standards and finished accomplishments, will be the pianist of a distinguished ensemble—the Kneisel Quartet.

The Kneisel Quartet has been most generous in the past in donating its services, and this year again it will shine resplendent upon the program which holds as soloist that remarkable young violinist, Sascha Jacobsen, one of Franz Kneisel's favorite pupils who has won the admiring encomiums of nearly all the world-renown violinists who have visited these shores these last few seasons.

Sascha Jacobsen has for several years been the recipient of the Thursday Musical Club scholarship at the Institute of Musical Art, and this year he graduates.

In all probability he will be under distinguished management next season, and will tour the United States.

The club, which has been so eminent a factor in the ripening of his remarkable talents, has the greatest confidence in the unusualness of his gifts, and will, of course, be justly proud of what promises to be a wonderful career.

Sascha Jacobsen has already made 14 records for the Victor, and very complimentary things are said about his performances in their catalogue.

Young Herman Eisenberg, 'cellist, and pupil of Mr. Willike, will also appear in a group of solos.

□ □ □

Zenatello Acclaimed in Havana

My own special correspondent in Havana of the doings of the Opera in that city (my correspondent is one of the leading violinists of the orchestra, and an artist and man well known throughout the country), writes me a long letter from Havana, not the least interesting bit of information being the news of the torrential success (torrential meaning the wild applause of the delighted audience in "Pagliacci," of Giovanni Zenatello.

He informs me that the people fairly rose at Zenatello, and in their Latin enthusiasm shrieked their bravos.

"It seemed like the old times at the Manhattan Opera House," writes Mr. Vonderheim, "only Zenatello has grown so greatly as actor and singer. He was superb."

Mr. Ruffo also had a genuine triumph in the same opera. It will be seen that Havana is getting the cream of things; what with Ruffo and Zenatello in the same cast.

□ □ □

Celeste Heckscher Will Go to California

These are busy days for Mrs. Heckscher, who is identified with so many movements for the artistic and musical uplift, will make her California hegira somewhat late in the spring or beginning of summer.

Aside from her artistic endeavors, her plans for compositions of varying order, Mrs. Heckscher as a grande dame of society (writ large), has found her time well filled.

I imagine that in the program of music prepared for the Biddle-Duke wedding, at which Mrs. Heckscher and her daughter were distinguished guests among a list of notables from New York, Boston and other cities with high and aristocratic affiliations, one at least of Mrs. Heckscher's works was not missing.

It is still a matter of doubt whether or not Mrs. Heckscher will be able to carry with her to the coast her amiable and intellectual secretary, Miss Emilie Moyle, whose devotion to the talented composer's interests is so marked.

It is to be hoped that the Californians

G
I
O
V
A
N
N
I

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

M
A
R
I
A

will not miss the opportunity of producing some of Mrs. Heckseher's works while the composer is in their midst.

In a world of little people with trite things for the telling, Mrs. Heckseher looms large as a composer who anticipates the effects of her ideas. Calculates the settings of her symphonic schemes down to the very last notelet in the score. Has heard her musical designs a thousand times in her mental ear, before putting them down upon paper, and has something forceful and big to give in the scope of her broadly-drafted symphonic works.

I am informed that her latest composition, "The Slav," is an opus of magnitude, breadth and vitality; that its message is as unusual as its treatment is virile and forceful.

Mme. Marie Sundelius in the West

The Minneapolis Orchestra has been fortunate in securing the services of so pleasing and competent a soloist as Marie Sundelius, one also of so much modesty and charm, who is bound to take her place in the front rank in a shorter time than is given to most singers of her youth and modesty.

Not the least conspicuous and desirable of assets in the soprano's repertory of good and desirable things (I should modify the noun or rather expand it into a pronoun) is her manager, Mrs. Gertrude Cowen, reliable, efficient and an excellent musician, who might be trusted to tour in her capacity of pianiste, so much is she a virtuoso of the instrument.

Much success for Madam Sundelius and her bright-eyed impresario.

A Maitland Note

Robert Maitland pleased the good people of Newark when he sang there very recently as soloist with the Schubert Society in Bruch's "Cross of Fire." And this is what the Evening News of that burgh had to say about his singing of the lines of Norman.

"Mr. Maitland is well equipped with voice, skill in using it, and temperamental energy for the role of Norman. So artfully did he attune his tones to the sentiment in the air, 'My Bed Tonight Is the Heath Alone,' that his singing of it happily mingled the tenderness of love's young dream, the joy of anticipated happiness, and the feeling of resignation to whatever fate might have in store for him.

"Elsewhere in the cantata he was equally satisfying."

Mr. Maitland has very many other appearances before the close of the season, notably the creation of a role with the Springfield Oratorio Society.

Mr. Thuel Burnham's Popularity Assured

Mr. Thuel Burnham, America's favorite pianist, as some of his doting admirers term him, has surely made good since his plans for doing America as a virtuoso (so acclaimed and beloved by European audiences) of the piano were first germinated in that fine mind nature has given him.

His present season—the season almost, but not quite past, for Burnham has re-engagements to consider and fill—under the admirable management of Harry Culbertson, has been in every particular a success.

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

COLORATURA SOPRANO. Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America

Exclusive Management

Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABEL

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

CLEVELAND BOHNETConcert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240LESTERMARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8868ELSA STAUD DENTONCONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASERChoirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749Grace E. KeeslerSong Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569LEIST-BEEBEAGNES
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue
ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILSLambert MurphyRecital
Oratorio
Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New YorkRaoul S. BonannoConcerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts BuildingMARVIN HINSHAWCONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer ChristianConcert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium BuildingLOUIS KREIDLERConcerts BARITONE
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627H. WILHELMBaritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIOJ. PARNELL EGANCONCERT ORATORIO TENOR
RECITAL 1351 Granville AvenueW. Otto MiessnerDir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.H. B. BARTHOLOMEWPIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SORECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463ELLA LA FORGE MURPHYDRAMATIC
SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
5000 Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042Music Abroad*DRESDEN

Laura Rappoldi-Kahrer celebrated her fiftieth jubilee as a concert-giver by a pianoforte recital, on which occasion she repeated the program she played when a girl of ten, fifty years ago. The famous pianist further added Draeseke's big "Sonata," Op. 6, in the performance of which she has no rivals. Mrs. Rappoldi was feted beyond description.

At the Royal Opera three one-act operas were given a brilliant presentation, under the distinguished lead of Court Conductor Fritz Reiner. They were "La serva padrona," by Pergolesi; "Bastien und Bastienne," by Mozart, and "Der Apotheker," by Haydn. The fine stage mounting and the soloists are something to remember.

"Tristan and Isolde" also achieved due attention, with two Isolde's alternating, viz., Eva von der Osten and Helena Forti. Both were new in their parts. Those remembering Schuch's presentation of Wagner's love drama could not, of course, easily accommodate themselves to Herr Kutzschbach's solid conducting.

The Vincentius Society's annual big concert, which also used to be a triumph for Schuch's lead, was trusted to Herr Kutzschbach's care. Two soloists, Eva von der Osten and Herr Plaschke, introduced some new musical literature, among which Frau von der Osten's interpretation of Miss Evelyn Faltis' songs won high favor with the audience. Miss Faltis appeared as a pianist. She played Liszt's "Dante Sonata." Several other Dresden artists, Wunderlich (flute), two violinists from the Royal Orchestra, and others contributed selections.

The Schluss concert (final examination concert) of the Royal Conservatory displayed exquisite results. Herr Nagel, a finished scholar of the institution, performed Weber's clarinet concerto. Fraulein Hess played that of Grieg. Fraulein Huebler, a master pupil of Mrs. Rappoldi, distinguished herself as an interpreter of Brahms' "Concerto" (M. Minor). Two singers of the Orgein School displayed their teacher's method to utmost advantage. They were Fraulein Frankenberger and Fraulein Eruster. The former sang the big "Traviata" aria exquisitely. A cello player, Schiebold, a pupil of Wille, gave high satisfaction by his reading of Klughardt's "Concerto." A mere boy-violinist, Tolant, a pupil of Herr Rappoldi, surprised everybody by his fine tone and musicianly reading of Mendelssohn's "Concerto." Two future orchestra leaders, Levin and Dettmer, did their teacher, Herr Striegler, much credit. In the preceding four concerts some pupils were very good, some less so; all of them, however, evincing serious aims. Among very successful teachers were, as mentioned above, Frau Rappoldi, in first line; further, Herren Feigler, Vetter, Gabler, Wille and the ladies Sievert and Wollen, singing teachers; also Zimmermann, Braunroth, and others.

The People's Singing Academy scored in presentations of big choral works by Brahms, Mozart and others. Johannes Reichert is the gifted leader. Two great novelties by Kauffmann Jassoy and by George Schumann ("Tränenkruglein") will be brought out this month.

A novelty composition, "Das eiserne Kreuz," a melodrama by Albin Trenkler, made a great impression when produced before invited connoisseurs the other night. The composer of the music (which is exceedingly descriptive and musically interesting) was attached to the Cologne Opera. He is now in Dresden to recuperate from overwork. On the same occasion the gifted American singer, Miss Effie Volkman, sang a Verdi aria brilliantly; also the coloratura waltz by A. Sieberg of New York, "In Sylvan Shade," for which she was strongly applauded. Miss Marga Bruck interpreted effectively a fine lied, "Liebesleid," by Sieberg, and songs from George Henschel.

A. INGMAN.

— # # # —

Heyman—Miss Dora Heyman gave a piano recital at the Little Theater on Monday evening of this week.

SOLOS and QUARTETS

FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By

HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONECECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARKBoth Numbers may be had at all Dealers
Ask to see themGAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGOJulia ClausseniusTEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years LeschetizkyThe Brooks-Evans
Building

Mioneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Reumann and SeavickCLEOPHASHave Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Music in America

BOISE, IDAHO

The recital by the students of the Boise Conservatory of Music at Carnegie Hall last evening was a delightful affair, so largely attended as to tax the seating capacity of the hall to the utmost with a deeply appreciative audience of musicians and music lovers. Koelling's "Hungary," (eight hands) by Mrs. William Healy, Miss Ina Fry, Miss Frances Walker and Miss Ruth York opened the pleasing program very satisfactorily.

Miss Marion Antisell followed with three vocal numbers, sung very sweetly and with expression. (a) "Es War Ein Traum," Lassen. (b) "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," Haydn. It was in "My Sweet Repose," (Schubert), that Miss Antisell's voice reached its best and won for her a delighted meed of praise from the audience.

"Berceuse," (Chopin), Miss Marie Cain's number, was charming as is everything this talented pianist does. The two numbers by Miss Lundgren, (a) "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own," "Oratorio St. Paul," (Mendelssohn), and (b) "On the Shore," Neidlinger, were sung in a big, rich contralto, almost alto voice, which suited the words and music perfectly and was warmly applauded. "Hark, Hark the Lark!" (Schubert-Listz) was played with wonderful sweetness by Miss Meryl Kellerman. "Autumn" (Chaminade), and "Valse Brilliant," (Chopin), played by Miss Hazel Greenlee, discovered a pianist of rare ability for a young girl and the enthusiastic applause accorded her was well deserved.

George Brewster's Verdi number, "The Tempest of the Heart," from "Il Trovatore," was sung with a dramatic quality of voice, attended by a depth of feeling and harmony which impressed one with a sense of having listened to something unusually good and full of the romantic thought demanded by the words of the famous opera. Mr. Brewster's second number, "I Hear You Calling Me," was fully as pleasing.

Each musician was heartily applauded and several responded to encores.

The "Concerto" in G Minor, Mendelssohn, "Allegro con Fuoco and Presto, Allegro e Vivace" by Miss Inez Woerner, with Miss Cain playing an orchestral accompaniment on second piano, was one of the best offerings of the evening, and Miss Cain herself, probably, the best musician on the program.

Miss Alta Elmer of Nampa was also, as always, an excellent accompanist—especially excellent when the youth of this young pianist is considered.

While Mr. Cook pleasantly assured the audience in the beginning of the evening that the recital was a "pupils' recital only, the audience found to their great pleasure that it ranked beyond even the "advanced students' recital" stated on the program, and warm praise was given to both Miss Lilian Smith and Mr. Cook for the high order of accomplishment exhibited.

ERIE, PA.

The month of April promises to be a record breaker for musical events in Erie. Beginning with the final symphony concert by the Erie Orchestra, on Sunday afternoon, April 11, concerts and recitals followed in rapid succession. Alma Gluck closed Mrs. McCoy's splendid artist series with one of the finest song recitals it has ever been my pleasure to hear, on the following Tuesday night. On Thursday evening, April 15, the Apollo Club gave its final concert of the season, with Alice Nielson as soloist. Miss Nielsen had not been heard in Erie for several years, and was given a most enthusiastic welcome. Last Sunday afternoon the Erie Symphony Orchestra gave an extra concert of "request" numbers, made up from programs of the year. This concert proved to be the best of the year, and the poise and finish of the playing, under Franz Kohler's masterful direction, were a source of delight to every local Erieite. The program was as follows: "Coronation March," from "Folkung" (Kretschmar); Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony"; "Under the Linden" (Massenet); the ballet music from "Sylvia" (Delibes); "Blue Danube" waltzes (Strauss); the "Nut Cracker" suite (Tchaikowsky), and "Rhapsodie Hongroise," No. 2 (Liszt).

Nor is all the music over for the month. On Thursday night of this week the recently organized ladies' chorus, the Rubinstein Club, will make its bow to the public, and on Friday evening Joseph Erhart, Erie's own operatic tenor, will appear in recital at the Masonic Hall, with Fritz Goerner, cellist, assisting.

Early in May, or to be exact, May 8, we have John McCormack in recital at the Majestic Theater; also a song recital by U. S. Kern, the basso-cantante; not to forget the performance of Coleridge-Taylor's beautiful "Hiawatha" by the Erie Choral Society, with Ludwig Meyer, baritone, and Joseph Erhart, tenor, as assisting soloists. Then, with the May Festival following shortly, Erie can scarcely be accused of being an unmusical city. Truly, things have changed wonderfully in the past five years, for time was not so long ago when two or three concerts a year constituted Erie's musical season, and the best part of the musical progress of Erie is that all of these musical events have been well attended, notwithstanding the unusual financial conditions of the past year.

A. H. D., Jr.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Mr. Frank Olin Thompson was heard in a most unusual program last evening. Bach, Liszt, Brahms and Tausig are something to reckon with, and Mr. Thompson acquitted himself in a most musicianly manner. Never sensational in his playing, his technique is of such a certain and satisfying quantity that the listener is only conscious of the message being given, which on this occasion was exacting from start to finish. Mr. Thompson is assistant director of the Wisconsin Conservatory, and spends so much time teaching that he is especially to be commended for having gone so far from the beaten path in selecting his program.

Mr. Albert Boroff was the assisting soloist at the last Lyric Glee Club concert. Press and public alike especially commended his work as an artist.

Miss Alice Johnston gave a pupils' recital recently in Mack Block Hall.

The A Capella Chorus, William Boeppler, director, closed its season with the Beethoven "Missa Solennis," April 25. This is as difficult as anything written for chorus, and the splendid results attained were only brought about through the most persistent work on the part of both chorus and director; in fact, three rehearsals a week were demanded part of the time. This energy is the secret of Mr. Boeppler's never-failing success in this work. The soloists were Mabel Corlew Smidt, soprano, Mrs. Gannon, alto; Mr. George Tenney, tenor, and Gustav Holmquist, bass. So little solo work was demanded by the score that these singers were heard mainly as a quartet, and paid good attention to the detail work in hand.

ELMIRA, NEW YORK

Academy Students in "The Drum Major"

With every number a treat in itself, "The Drum Major," a light opera in two acts, by Maude Elizabeth Inch and Edward F. Johnston, produced on April 15 by the students of the Elmira Free Academy, under the direction of Charles X. O'Brien, was given before a capacity audience at the Academy Auditorium.

This is the first year in the history of academy entertainments that the students have deviated from their usual custom of presenting a minstrel show. Heretofore the program has consisted of various numbers of stunts and other features, much less difficult to interpret and execute than were the parts in "The Drum Major."

Without a doubt the production eclipsed any previous effort on the part of the academy students in the entertainment line. The show would be acceptable with a professional cast, and last night the students did credit to themselves and Mr. O'Brien by carrying the parts with a poise and an ability that thoroughly pleased the big audience.

There is talk of repeating the performance of "The Drum Major" for the benefit of the Elmira College Endowment Fund.

G. B.

Mt. Pleasant—At Mt. Pleasant, Mich., the Minneapolis Orchestra will play on May 11 and 12, giving two orchestral programs and two artists' recitals, with the addition of some interpretative dancing.

La Belle—Guy Armand La Belle, pianist, is to give a recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Friday evening, May 14.

A few words to the Progressive Piano Teacher relative to Fillmore's Modern Graded Course for the Pianoforte in Eight Grades.

THE remarkable success this course has attained in the short time of its publication testifies to its intrinsic merits.

It has now proven by actual experience to be a Course which meets successfully the needs of both teacher and pupil, and this work has gained so good a foothold for itself as to justify its wider expansion. It is carefully graded and comprises the best teaching material from the time of Bach to the present era. Miniature copies of Grade I will be sent gratis upon request. Hundreds of Music Schools, too numerous to mention, are ordering regularly and we know that you will do the same when you become acquainted with our Course. We therefore offer for the next 30 days the 8 grades at the very special price of 30c, each grade, postpaid. Regular price of which is $1.00 each grade.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO. Milwaukee, Wis.

P. S.—When ordering please mention the name of this magazine.

Why
Not Use
The Best
?

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

So successful indeed that Mr. Burnham has signed a contract for next season with the indefatigable western manager—a contract which means higher fees and an increased number of appearances, more than a hundred already booked, with quite a number of others in sight.

Very fine, for Burnham (whose modesty is almost a fault in one so gifted), came here, at his own desire almost unheralded, with the intention of being judged upon his own merits, as he asserted, and with but a modicum of that flamboyant and spectacular press-agenting those artists with a passion for notoriety crave and must have.

There was indeed a question of Burnham coming here at all this season though his plans were in part made, for just before the beginning of the much to be regretted outbreak in Europe, he had a flattering offer (one which might have tempted the most blase of artists) to make an extended European concert tour.

The war upset the possible culmination of these projects as it has that of so many other artists of the first rank, and what was Europe's loss was indeed America's gain.

It was a foregone conclusion that the handsome young pianist with the delightful personality would make a hit in this country, where apart from his other valuable pianistic gifts, his originality of treatment and conception of compositions of universal renown and those less well known in this extreme of the occident, his own self, had so much with which to charm and interest.

Mr. Burnham has abundantly proved his versatility in his craft, made clear that he is a master craftsman in technic, freedom of artistic expression, breadth, temperamental effusion, clarity and beauty of tone; gripping energy. And withal an appealing and sympathetic poetry is the verdict of the unbiased critic wherever he has appeared.

Burnham has not been idle in New York. He has appeared in concerts as well as recitals in the city, its environs, in Boston and in several cities of New Jersey.

He has been the soloist at a number of private functions. He has also been heard in the salons of Mrs. Stewart Woodford, widow of the late Spanish Ambassador, General Woodford; in the home of Mrs. MacArthur, and he has played for Mrs. William A. Clark, wife of the senator.

Burnham has no sympathy with those troglodytes in his art, who insist upon elingling with barnacle-like adhesive powers to the so-called classical school, with no powers to see, feel and reveal the beauties of more modern schools, and those remote and, in a sense, untried.

His propaganda includes the teachings of wider truths. He esteems composers for their powers of impressing him without reference to the plane upon which their contemporaries sit in judgment. He would fain try them out himself and pass judgment after such trial.

Naturally then young Burnham is an earnest and consistently painstaking student of the almost endless literature of the piano. He has given and plans still oftener to give programs which shall have the charm of novelty as well as the educational value inseparable from great works intended to satisfy the ear as well as broaden the viewpoint of the listener.

The world must acknowledge with gratitude the efforts of this ardent disciple of the older masters, and the jubilant prophet of the new, the sound, the delightful.

* * *

Mme. Narelle Sings

On two occasions Mme. Marie Narelle has sung the compositions of Minnie A. Breid, the young ward of Mr. R. E. Johnston, recently, especially her song, "Major and Minor." This song achieved an instant success, and will doubtless be asked for by the young singers who heard Mme. Narelle sing it in New York and Flushing.

Mme. Narelle also sang songs of Celeste D. Heckscher in Great Neck and New York. Her songs of Hungary and the "Aria of the Rose" were redemanded in Great Neck. At the Chickering Hall recital on April 27 the "Aria" was given as an encore after Mme. Narelle had been greatly applauded for her superb rendition of Tchaikowsky's "Adieu Forests," and seemed immensely to please the audience.

Mme. Narelle was also heard in Flushing, N. Y., and Great Neck in an appealing ballad by Victor Despommier, entitled "A Rainy Day," a little gem of song whose triumph with the audience must not go unrecorded.

The diva has also had many requests for the Irish ballads, especially the "Ballynure Ballad," which McCormack is making popular.

The soprano sang it in rollicking style with the relish of acquaintanceship, and the brio of intimacy.

* * *

Gustav Becker Busy as Pianist and Pedagogue

Gustav L. Becker, indefatigable, energetic, up to date, will, as usual, give a summer course for professionals and teachers during June and July, which means that this busy artist will give himself small leisure for repose or recreation.

To see Mr. Becker, invariably cheerful and smiling, one would hardly conceive how arduous are his self-imposed duties, for he is a writer on musical and kindred topics, a lecturer, a composer of serious and pleasure-giving works for voice as well as piano and ensemble, and a pedagogue who is always in demand, and whose studios—one in Steinway Hall, the other on the west side—are invariably the scene of bustling activity.

Mr. Becker has been giving a series of pupils' recitals that has attracted much attention. The last one given in the Lord and Taylor music room brought forward among other interesting pupils Miss Mabelle Sniffen, who played in charming style two taxing Chopin numbers, and the difficult Saint-Saens-Liszt "Danse Macabre."

* * *

Notes

Miss Mabel M. Hammond and Miss Constance Purdy, who have ably sustained their parts in entertaining the music-loving public this season, will leave for their charming country home in Maine some time during May.

* * *

Durno—Miss Josephine Rogers, a young Chicago pianist, pupil of Jeannette Durno, won the Lake View Muscial Club's $100 tuition prize contest on Saturday, May 1, at Martine's Hall. There were seventeen contestants. Miss Rogers has been trained entirely in Chicago, for the past three years by Miss Durno, and is eighteen years of age. She played at the Olivet Institute on May 5, and is to give a recital at Thurber Hall on Sunday, May 16.

* * *

Wheaton—Thursday evening, April 29, Miss Marguerite Dresser presented her pupil, Mrs. Maude Smith, in a piano recital at Wheaton, Ill. She was assisted by Mrs. S. W. Plumb, contralto.

* * *

Murphy—Ella La Forge-Murphy was the soloist at the Soeial Economics Club meeting on Tuesday, May 4, singing numbers by Salter, Carpenter, Sanderson and Boccherini.

* * *

Spry Music School—On Friday evening, May 7, a recital will be given at the Literary Club Rooms, Fine Arts Building, by pupils of the Walter Spry School.

* * *

Lyceum Arts Conservatory—Pupils concert, 522 Fine Arts Building, Saturday afternoon at 3.

IN ITALY

"THE GALA SONG OF MY ALL AMERICAN PROGRAM"

WARREN PROCTOR

Published
in two keys

Price
60cents usual discount

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.-CHICAGO

Director's Assistant Wanted

The director of one of Chicago's most successful smaller music schools, wishing to ease up, seeks pianist-teacher, 25-40, ambitious to secure interest in or control of such an institution. Must be fully experienced, a success, capable of managing school and teaching director's class in his absence. To such a one with some money to invest a liberal proposition will be made. This is not a bankrupt sale, March being the banner month in our 10 years' history. Give experience and qualifications. "A-100," Music News.

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

IDA GARDNER

CONTRALTO

Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

EDGAR STILLMAN KELLEY'S NEW SYMPHONY

The following is copied from the Cincinnati Enquirer and is only a sample of what was said by all the Cincinnati press in reference to the new symphony by Edgar Stillman Kelley:

The fifteenth program of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra's season in Emery Auditorium, under the direction of Dr. Ernst Kunwald, was given yesterday afternoon. Efreim Zimbalist, violinist, was the soloist. The program follows:

Symphony, New England.....Kelley
Concerto.....Mendelssohn
Zimbalist

Overture—Fantasie, Romeo and Juliet....Tschaiowsky
The symphony concert yesterday commanded more than general attention from the fact that the principal feature of the program was the first performance here of a new symphony by Edgar Stillman Kelley, who, on account of his association with local musical affairs, is looked upon with a feeling of home pride. And, that a prophet may also be with honor in his own country, was shown by the fine performance Dr. Kunwald and the orchestra gave of the work, and the profound impression the composition left on the hearers, and especially on the musicians. In the first burst of enthusiasm one is constrained to say that it was the most important novelty that has yet been heard from the pen of an American composer, and second thought merely serves to substantiate this impression. Surely there has been nothing more characteristically American than Kelley's "New England" inspirations, and the manner in which he has translated them into music makes for a score that is at once remarkable for its constructive excellence, its poetic conception, its cohesion, its appeal to the senses and its idiomatic expression.

EDGAR STILLMAN KELLEY

One may readily admit that New England is not all of America, but it is truly American in its history and in the character of those men and women who struggled in the pioneer days for the establishment of life, culture and happiness on the new continent. The Puritan spirit, the ruggedness of the lives of those early settlers, their religion and their conquest over conditions that tried the souls of men are so typical of the new continent that their ideals and their spirit have found their way into all parts of the country as the descendants of these first Pilgrims moved forward to new and more western settlements.

This is what Kelley has sought to portray in his "New England" symphony, not by any slavish adherence to detailed painting, but by a broader record of impressions and aspirations. In thematic material the work is rich and yet its unity is exceedingly well preserved by a recurrent use of the underlying motives upon which the composition rests. Chief among these is a theme which represents the New Englander's conception of duty—rugged, firm, vigorous and noble, and a second theme expressive of the joy of living, though this enjoyment of life is bought at the cost of much suffering, many trials, deep sorrows and earnest striving. These two themes form the basis of the first movement, but they appear a number of times in the subsequent movements, and, with a splendid change of the duty theme to the major key in the final movement, indicate that the joy of life is achieved by the fervent pursuit of duty.

The second movement, which is in the nature of an improvisation, is founded on bird themes. The bird calls are stated in a sort of introduction and then are employed as musical themes. The scoring in this movement is most striking, with charming effects, with a variety of color and daintiness and with such a command of the orchestral resources as to bespeak the composer's intimate knowledge of the apparatus of the modern orchestra and his full appreciation of Berlioz. The movement makes the most direct appeal to the senses of the four and will therefore be the most popular. The very austerity of the joy of life theme in the first movement is characteristic of the New Englanders' idea of pleasure, for they took these things very seriously. In the woods and hills they found their sweetest pleasure, for nature spoke to them with great meaning, and the singing of the birds was the finest music to their ears. The joy of life theme, woven in with the bird music, indicates this.

The third movement reflects deeply their religious feelings. Here the composer has used a fine hymn, "Why Do We Mourn Departed Friends," composed by Timothy Swan in 1757. The tune is a noble one, rich both harmonically and rhythmically. After its statement it is given in variations. In their religion was bound up the sorrows, the pleasures and the daily struggles of this people. The five variations reflect these various moods, from the grave to the gay, as in the third variation—and including the combat with foes, as the fourth variation in the sharpness of its figures attests.

The final movement is again strong and rugged. Work is to be done and difficulties overcome. The menace of the Indians is suggested by a chant and a warlike dance, the happiness in religious devotion is suggested in a return of the hymn, beautifully scored for strings and harp with the roll of the tympani as the bass, and the final triumph of duty in the glorious statement of that theme mounting to an aspiring climax.

Throughout the work is one of sincerity, extremely fine in workmanship, musical beauty and lofty inspiration. The composer has earnestly sought to portray the spirit of New England, and has succeeded in doing so most effectively, and most impressively. It is American music in the highest sense of that expression, the most important contribution that has yet been heard here.

Dr. Kunwald, who evidently regarded the symphony with great affection and sincere appreciation, gave it a magnificent reading, as if it were a genuine labor of love, and the orchestra played it in a manner that must have realized the fondest anticipations of the composer. Mr. Kelley was called to the platform at the conclusion of the symphony, most enthusiastically and spontaneously applauded and fittingly remembered with a great laurel wreath.

S. AND O. R. S. RADANOVITS VOICE CULTURE 419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

While the symphony was naturally the foremost feature of the concert, the soloist was also one to command admiration. Zimbalist is a fine, clean, healthy player. The Mendelssohn concerto was given a very beautiful performance, if not exactly a sweeping one, and he too was very kindly considered by the public. Tschaiowsky's fantastic "Romeo and Juliet," one of his less important work, though full of color, was the closing number.

The concert will be repeated tonight, and the audience ought to tax the capacity of Emery Auditorium, for it is an occasion which Cincinnati should celebrate with justifiable pride. J. H. T.

———*—
Mixer—Charles Mitchell Mixer, violinist played before the Kenwood matinee musicale at the residence of Mrs. W. W. Hodgkins on Greenwood avenue last Tuesday afternoon.

———*—
Derdiger—Mrs. Ella Jane Derdiger has removed her School of Vocal Art from that part of the Kimball Building which is being torn down to 512 in the part of the building which is to remain standing for the present.

———*—
Saint-Saens—Camille Saint-Saens sailed from France on Saturday for New York, from whence he will go direct to the San Francisco Exposition where he is to appear in a series of concerts and one lecture.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Gentleman to represent exclusively an artist for tour; good proposition. Address "Five," Music News.

TO RENT—All or part time in studio; telephone, electric lights and fan; 516 Kimball Hall.

TIME TO RENT in fine Auditorium Studios; connection with good school if desired. Address S, Music News.

FOR SALE—Virgil practice clavier; address V. P., Music News.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

IN BRIEFER FORM

Death of Scriabine—Alexander Scriabine, composer, died in Russia last week.

h h h

Miller—Reed Miller, tenor, made a very successful appearance in Minneapolis on March 31.

h h h

Brokaw—Henry Leben, violinist, pupil of Ralph Brokaw, has won the prize in the interstate contest at Wichita, Kas.

h h h

Pawloska—Miss Irene Pawloska, late of the "Sari" Company, has been engaged for the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

h h h

Lake View Musical Society—The annual meeting and luncheon of the Lake View Musical Club will be held at the La Salle Hotel on May 10 from 11:30 to 1:30.

h h h

Warner-Ware—Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano, and Miss Helen Ware, violinist, appeared before the Arion Club at Webster Groves, St. Louis, on April 30.

h h h

Matteson—Maurice J. Matteson, baritone, presented his pupil, Miss Celeste Cochran, before the Rogers Park Dramatic Club last Monday evening. She was very well received.

h h h

Little Theater—Madame Borgny Hammar, distinguished Norwegian actress, is presenting "Rosmersholm" at the Chicago Little Theater.

h h h

Sioux City, Iowa—April 29 Miss Grace White, violinist, gave a recital under the auspices of the Whitfield M. E. Church. Ethel Collier, soprano, and Albert Morgan, accompanist, assisted.

h h h

Oak Park—At the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on next Sunday, Mrs. Helen Bright Bengel will sing the offertory solo at the morning service and in the evening Miss Lucille Stevenson will be special soloist.

h h h

Chicago Normal—The Glee Clubs, under direction of H. W. Fairbank and Miss Alice Garthe, will give their spring concert at the Normal School on May 10 at noon. Helen Axe Brown, soprano, Margaret Shirley and the Leviton Trio will assist.

HIGH SCHOOL CHORUS IN "THE GONDOLIERS"

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

Mr. J. Henry Francis, choral and orchestra conductor, presented the High School Chorus in "The Gondoliers" (Gilbert and Sullivan) recently at Charleston, and scored a very great success.

There were more than ninety people on the stage, and the orchestra also was recruited wholly from the high school. We take pleasure in reproducing a scene from the opera and also quote what was said about the singing in two Charleston papers:

"The Gondoliers," the light opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, which was staged at the Burlew Theater last night by the Charleston High School chorus, under the direction of Professor J. Henry Francis. Of all the playlets that have been reproduced, this attraction outclassed all others in every respect. The leading characters were very good and their numbers repeatedly brought appreciative encores from the largest audience that every attended a play of like nature.

Miss Jessie Heizer, as Casilda, the leading lady, was easily the attraction of the evening. The petite little miss had an exceptionally charming voice and went through her scores with ease. Miss Pearl Burgwinn as the Duchess of Plaza-Toro, mother of Casilda, was also good. This young lady carried herself with a dignity that alone made a hit for her. Harold Jones and Clinton Faudre in the roles of the Duke of Plaza-Toro and Don Alhambra del Bolero (the grand inquisitor) were very good, and Jess Thomas as Luiz, the attendant of the Duke, who was later found to be king of Baratania, went through his lines easily, and a duet sung by Miss Heizer and he made a hit with the audience. Misses Carrie Morris and Ruth Sevy as Venetian maidens were very good. Each possessed good voices. Frederick Lively and R. Paxton as the Venetian Gondoliers, who were on the throne of Baratania, and who had been married by proxy to the queen of that kingdom, were good.

The musical numbers of the opera by the chorus were good and showed thorough training in the parts. Following the climax of the show the theater resounded with the staccato bark of the high school yell that brought many cheers from the audience. Many gorgeous bouquets were tendered the leading characters by enthusiastic friends.—Charleston Gazette.

When the curtain went up at the Burlew Theater last night every seat on the lower floor, the balcony and boxes was occupied by friends and alumni of the Charleston high school, who turned out to witness the presentation of the school play, "The Gondoliers," in which appeared students of the high schools as the performers.

In addition to the cast being made up of the pupils, the orchestra also was composed of pupils of the high school.

To the initiated, one need not explain that the piece was by Gilbert and Sullivan. The music and plot of the piece was so typical of the work of the Englishmen that it could be identified before looking at the program.

Probably the feature of the performance was the chorus. It was well drilled and while individual voices are naturally lost in the ensemble, and chorus work don't stand out like solos, yet the chorus seemed to do the best singing except in the case of Mr. Thomas, who had one of the leading roles. It would be difficult to find a better voice possessed by a young man. He also has good stage presence, lacking in some of the other members of the cast.

Miss Heizer, as Casilda, was a delightful bit of femininity, who looked the part and sang well. Miss Pearl Burgwinn, as the Duchess, was well cast and looked very much a Duchess at all times.

As a straight dramatic performer, Mr. Faudree probably excelled.

Miss Morris has a very sweet voice, a great deal of vivaciousness and looked probably more the part of a Spanish girl than anyone in the cast. She also sang very well. Miss Sevy also deserves mention for her work, a sister part to that of Miss Morris.

Others who had leads in the cast were Harold R. Jones, Roderick C. Paxton, Frederick Lively, Edward Craig, Julian Patterson, Dallas DeVinney, Charles Warner, Vernon Jones, Mary Slotnick, Grace Herne, Caroline Martin, Kathleen, Anderson, Eva Black, Vernon Strachley, Helen Carpenter, Jessie Reber and Miss Annie Morton.

The costumes were beautiful and the blending of colors while the chorus was on the stage reminded one of a public square on a Spanish fete day.—Charleston Post.

Chorus Gives Loving Cup to Prof. Francis

The members of the High School Chorus which took part in "Gondoliers" held an informal reception and social evening last night. The important feature of the evening was the presentation by the chorus to their able leader, Professor Francis, of a beautiful loving cup. This came as a complete surprise to Professor Francis. The presentation speech was made by Ed Craig, in which he expressed, on behalf of all the members of the chorus, their appreciation of what he had accomplished in guiding them to fame through the successful performance of "The Gondoliers."

Principal McKee was present, as also were Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, of Huntington; Mr. J. H. Bowen, the manual training teacher, and Miss Elizabeth Gray of the English Department. A few of the principals of the play also lent their aid in making the evening a pleasant one.—Charleston Gazette.

ANN ARBOR, MICH.

Director Albert A. Stanley of the University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich., has just announced the names of the prospective students who will receive diplomas and certificates in June of this year, as follows:

PIANO DEPARTMENT

Artist Diplomas

Ethel Brodby Grant, Topeka, Kansas.
Mary Louise Rowlands, Wooster, Ohio.
Helen Josephine Malcomson, Detroit, Mich.
Helen Marguerite Derfus, Salem, Ohio.

Normal Diplomas

Myra Dorothea Moon, Ann Arbor.
Florence Alma Clark, Ann Arbor.
Louise Lydia Gaylord, Ann Arbor.

VOCAL DEPARTMENT

Normal Diploma

Hannah George Cochran, Grass Lake, Mich.

ORGAN DEPARTMENT

Artist Diplomas

Frank Albion Taber, Grand Ledge, Mich.

PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC AND DRAWING CERTIFICATES

Mary Helen Angel, Oakfield, New York.
Bess Ada Adgate, Ionia, Mich.
Ruby Bigelow, Detroit, Mich.
Gladys Sarah Chubb, Howell, Mich.
Flora Eulalia Peterson, Bergland, Mich.
Bessie Oaks Purvis, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
Flora Mae Skidmore, Fenton, Mich.

PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC CERTIFICATES

Lucy Mae Cannon, Rochester, Mich.
Gertrude Nina Davis, Grass Lake, Mich.
Mildred Louise Kellan, Marquette, Mich.
Odra Otis Patton, Hartford City, Indiana.
Marion Janes Wooley, Ann Arbor.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DRAWING CERTIFICATES

Phyllis Gay Smith, Saugatuck, Mich.
Bessie Belle White, Ann Arbor.

C. A. S.

OMAHA NOTES

The musical season is rapidly coming to a close in our city, the coming week will be given over to a number of local recitals by students and teachers. In looking back over the list of musical attractions presented here during the past season we find many prominent soloists and three great symphony orchestras, viz., Minneapolis, Chicago and New York Symphonies, organizations, all of which have given much delight to the music lovers.

It is a source of much regret and disappointment to many that Mr. Thomas Kelly, director of the Mendelssohn Choir (which did such creditable work in connection with the Chicago Orchestra), has announced very decidedly through the press that the contract with the orchestra would not be renewed because of lack of support on the part of the Omaha public. It is said that the choir will continue to exist, but give no large affairs in the future.

Loretto Delone, harp soloist, who has opened a school for harp in the Lyric Theater building, gave a recital at the Creighton Auditorium May 2, before a representative audience, that seemed greatly pleased with the work.

Ethel Preston, monologist, gave a very successful impersonation of the seventeen characters in "A Mennonite Maid" at the Plymouth Congregational Church May 6. She was assisted by Mildred Stepp, soprano, who is the possessor of an unusual voice, ranging from A-flat to below middle C to E-flat in alt. Her numbers were "Once On a Time There Was a Prince," from "Ill Guarany," ending on a sustained high E flat. "Sunset," by Dudley Buck, with a low A flat; "The Return," Care Roma, and "The Wind Speaks," Shafer.

Ruth Flynn, local pianist, who is a student of Sigmond Landsburg of this city, and who has also studied in Chicago, gave a recital at the First Christian Church May 6.

Laura Wessel, mezzo contralto, well known in Nebraska and neighboring states, is drilling the local musical people of Wisner for the presentation of "Sing Bad" in the near future. In addition to Miss Wessel's popularity as a soloist, she is recognized as an excellent choral director, and it is expected that this operetta will have a splendid presentation.

May 13 is the date set by the North Side Christian Church for their rendition of "Queen Esther." This is looked forward to with much interest by friends of the choir which is giving it.

May 7 is the date of the New York Symphony Orchestra with Corinne Paulson as piano soloist. She has not appeared in Omaha since her return from Germany, after several years of study, and many are anxious to hear her.

James Goddard, American baritone, who has achieved an enviable reputation abroad, is announced for a recital at the Y. W. C. A. in the near future. He is said to possess an unusually good voice, and music lovers are expecting a treat.

GOODWAL DICKERMAN.

Little Theater—The Chicago Little Theater Company's production of the "Trojan Women" of Euripides now touring the United States under the auspices of the Woman's Peace Party is being eagerly welcomed by large audiences. Splendid performances were given in Grand Rapids on April 20. Ann Arbor on April 22, and three performances in Detroit on April 23 and 24, in each case the audience proving most enthusiastic.

Cosmopolitan School—Miss Margaret Middleton, a very talented young singer, pupil of Lucille Stevenson of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, has arranged a cycle of songs which she has named "L'Internationale," to be given by Miss Stevenson's pupils, on the evening of May 24, in the Auditorium Recital Hall. Miss Middleton is also a very clever actress and linguist, playing various roles with the Little Theater Company all last winter.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS

Spring Concert

Scarcely standing room could be obtained in spacious Normal Hall Tuesday night, April 27, when the Choral Society and orchestra of the Southern Illinois Normal University, under the direction of Mr. G. C. Bainum, presented a program in a manner that merits worthiest praise and that dispensed genuine pleasure to the audience.

The phenomenal growth of the department of music under Mr. Bainum's direction seems to be as substantial as it is meteoric, and now amounts to such proportions as to be of vast importance in the work of the university.

One could sincerely say that each offering on this program was of true worth, but certain ones among them deserve especial mention for their exceptionally good execution, ensemble, shading and marked understanding of the message of the composition. These were MacDowell's plaintive "From an Indian Lodge," the fierce, fascinating "Dagger Dance," from "Natomas," the charmingly original "Henry VIII. Dances" by German, and Greig's stirring "Huldigungsmarsch." Of the choral work, Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave," the "Pilgrims' Chorus" (requested), and "Music When Soft Voices Die" (Shelley-Dickinson) were commendable from several standpoints.

Encores completely doubled the attractive and varied program.

By request, Mr. Bainum delighted the audience with an xylophone solo, and was obliged to respond to the insistent encore.

A unique number (not programmed) that contributed much charm and merriment, was the well-played "Ghost Dance," with its striking accessories in electrical effects and weird wails.

One important phase of the excellent fundamental work being done in the department was shown to advantage in a selection by the violin classes of Mrs. Julia Chastaine. It is of interest to note that this is, perhaps, the only school in the country which is at present teaching violin in this unusual manner.

As a director Mr. Bainum is authoritative and inspiring. To an observer, it is immediately apparent that he will obtain the results he seeks. The continued development of these organizations, numbering over two hundred people, he will doubtless pursue, and he is assured of having even greater satisfaction in the further attainment of his purpose.

The Tuesday Music Club will very soon announce to the public their plans for the coming concert season.

The many admirers of the Imperial Quartet were deeply disappointed over the recently canceled appearance of this well known quartet. It is understood that, in truth, it is only a postponement, and music lovers will be pleased to see the definite date announced.

Rechlin—Edward Rechlin, organist of Immanuel Church, New York City, made a tour during April in the middle west, covering the following cities: Philadelphia, Pa.; Evansville, Ind.; Detroit, Adrian, Mich.; Omaha, Seward, Lincoln, Pierce, Columbus, Neb.; Denver, Col.; Winfield, Kans.; Quincy, Ill.; Milwaukee, Stoughton, Wis.; Cleveland, Ohio; St. Joseph, Mich.; Columbus, Ind.; Hamilton, Ohio; Indianapolis and Greencastle, Ind.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN
Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY Associate
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. Residence 5433 Harper Av. Vocal Instructor
Tel. Midway 8963

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON
SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE
FAULKNER
TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS 516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO TECHNIC
PHONE WABASH 4805

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Phone Drexel 8183

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOM
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICK

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR

CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conducted according to the advanced methods of the most progressive European Conservatories.

JOHN A. HOFFMAN, Tenor

A Faculty of INTERNATIONAL REPUTATION. Location ideal. Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art

Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, Most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time

For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR
Directress

Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

HUGO GOODWIN'S PROGRAMS

Mr. Hugo Goodwin intends to continue his service organ recitals at the New England Congregational Church, 7:30 to 8:00 Sunday evenings, until he has played one thousand numbers without repetition, after which time he will issue them in a booklet, featuring the American composers.

The accompanying list includes his program from the 201st to the 400th pieces—the first 200 having been printed in Music News some months ago:

- Archer—Noel; Caprice de Concert.
Becker—Adoration (from Sonata in E).
Bach—Prelude B Flat; Xmas Pastoral; Prelude B Minor.
Buck—Sunshine and Shadow.
Bonnet—Variations; Etude de Concert; Epithalame; Chaconne; Lamento; Consolation; Revery; Poeme du Soir; Toccata; Nocturne; Paysage.
Batiste—Offertory in F; Communion in F; March in E Flat.
Bridge—Fanfare.
Brewer—Indian Summer.
Bairstow—Nocturne in D.
Bossi—Finale, Op. 118, No. 10.
Borowski—Adagio (Sonata in C); Finale (Sonata in C).
Beethoven—First Movement from Moonlight Sonata.
Best—Festal March in D.
Becker—Adoration (from Sonata in E).
Barnes—Toccata B Flat.
Battishill—Lenten Prelude.
Cole—Symphonic Fantasy, Op. 28; Rhapsody, Op. 30.
Cutler—Toccata in G.
Couperin—La Fleurie; Soeur Monique.
Coern—Nocturne.
Capocci—Toccata in E Flat; Finale in F.
Cadman—Eddy—From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water.
Cappelin—Postlude in F; Postlude in C.
Chopin—Funeral March; Nocturne in E Flat.
Calkin—Postlude, A Minor.
Chauvet—Grand Choeur in C.
Claussmann—Easter Dawn.
D'Evy—Canzona Della Sera; Serenade E Flat.
Dubois—Chant Pastoral; March of the Magi Kings.
Delbruck—Berceuse in A.
Demarest—Thanksgiving.
Darcieux—Noel Bressan.
Deshayes—Easter Offertory.
Debussy—Choisnel—The Good Shepherd.
Demereaux—Toccata d'Oedipe.
D'Aquin—Noel.
Eddy—Prelude and Fugue on Old Hundredth.
Franck—Fantasy in C; Andantino in G Minor; Andante in B (from Symphonic Piece).
Fuller—Meditation, Op. 3, No. 1; Alla Marcia, Op. 12.
Foerster—Prelude D Flat; Epigram; Nocturne, Op. 77.
Foote—Improvisation, Op. 54; Quasi Minuetto, Op. 54.
Fryfinger—Toccata in F.
Frescobaldi—Passacaglio.
Faulkes—Solemn Prelude.
Frost—Postlude, A Flat.
Gigout—Marche Religieuse; Sortie.
Gade—Moderato, Op. 22, No. 2.
Grieg—Elegie, Op. 38, No. 6; Poem Erotique; Berceuse; Vogelcin.
Gossec—Gavotte in D.
Gluck—Andantino in F.
Gabriel-Marie—La Cinquantaine.
Garrett—Andante con Moto, A Flat.
Guilmant—Prayer and Cradle Song; Allegro (from Sonata 5); Adagio (from Sonata 5); Duo Pastorale; Postlude, Op. 46, No. 2; Allegro Assai (from Sonata 4); Andante (from Sonata 4); Finale (from Sonata 4); Offertory in B Flat on Xmas Hymns; Meditation, A flat.
German—Torch Dance; Morris Dance.
Horsley—Solemn March.
Hartmann—Hosannah.
Handel—Pastoral Symphony.
Jores—En Cadinette Cradle Song.
Kramer—Chant Negre.
Karg-Elert—Harmonies du Soir.
Kinder—In Springtime.
Lemmens—Pontifical March; Postlude in D.
Lemare—Evening; Twilight; Chant de Bonheur.
Leschetizki—Impromptu (Le Doux Reve).
Lange—Christmas Pastoral.
Lemaigre—Offertory in F; Pastoral in G.
Liszt—Prelude and Fugue on Bach.

- Liszt—Lemare—Sposalizio.
Loret—Easter Day.
Mendelssohn—Andante from Sonata 1.
Maquaire—Finale Symphony 1.
Merkel—Trio in F; Pastorale, Op. 56; Postlude in G, Op. 134; Allegro Molto (from Sonata in D Minor; Andante (from Sonata in D Minor); Fugue (from Sonata in D Minor); Andantino, Op. 100; Con Moto, Op. 100.
Mozart—Allegretto in D.
Macfarlane—Caprice.
Malling—Bethlehem; Christmas Eve; Gesthemene; Golgotha; Easter Morning.
Nevin (G. B.)—Will o' the Wisp.
Noble—Melancolique.
Prout—Postlude, C minor.
Polleri—Fantasy in F.
Piuetti—Sonata, G Minor, Movement 1.
Rosa (Salvator)—Canzona.
Ropartz—Postlude, B flat.
Rameau—Gavotte.
Rogers—Andante Quasi Fantasia; Christmas Pastoral; Allegro (from Sonata in E); Adagio (from Sonata in E); Scherzo (from Sonata in E); Finale (from Sonata in E).
Renaud—Cantilene in A Minor.
Ritter—Sonata, A Minor.
Reger—Benedictus.
Schumann—Abendlied, Op. 85; Prophet Bird.
Saint-Saens—Rhapsody in E, on Breton Melodies; Rhapsody in D, on Breton Melodies; Finale of Fantasy in E Flat; Finale of Noel; Nuptial Benediction; March Heroique.
Soderman—Swedish Wedding March.
Silas—Melody in C.
Sibelius—Finlandia; Romance in D Flat.
Shelley—Fanfare in A.
Salome—Offertory in A Flat.
Strang—Pensee d'Automne.
Simonetti—Madrigal.
(Traditional)—Song on the Volga Boatmen.
Thomas—Gavotte from Mignon.
Tartini—Larghetto, G minor.
Thome—Allegretto, Op. 109.
Tenegaglia—Aria.
Tours—Postlude in D.
Tschalkowsky—Marche Caracteristique (from Nutcracker Suite).
Volkmann—Postlude, B flat.
Vodorinski—Prelude, C Sharp Minor.
Vierne—Finale (Symphony 1).
Widor—Adagio (from Symphony 1); Marche Pontificale (from Symphony 1); Adagio (from Symphony 3); March (from Symphony 3); Scherzo (from Symphony 4); Allegro Cantabile (from Symphony 5); Adagio (from Symphony 6).
Wright—Highland Scene.
Wely—Hymn of the Nuns; Elevation in A Minor.
Wagner—Evening Star; Album Leaf; Traume.
Wagner—Karg-Elert—Prelude to Lohengrin; Good Friday Spell; Prayer from Rienzi.
Wagner-Rogers—Waldweben from Siegfried.
Whiting—Gradual; Choral and Variations.
Wilkes—A Norse Ballad.
Wolstenholme—The Question; the Answer.
Walder—Easter Alleluia.
Von—Toccata in D; Fantasy on Adeste Fidelis.

Butler—Mrs. Hanna Butler will sing this week at Medinah Temple for the Independent Order of Vikings. Miss Genevieve Berry, a pupil of Mrs. Butler, sang last Wednesday for the Ambrose Club.

Dorothy Wagner—On Tuesday evening a concert was given at the Sheridan Road Methodist Church. Mrs. Dorothy Wagner is the soprano soloist and director of the choir at the church.

De Lamarter—Mrs. Ruby De Lamarter, soprano, and Eric De Lamarter, organist, gave a splendid program for the Music Study Club of Ft. Atkinson, Wis., recently.

North—Dorothea North, Olive C. Parker and Miss Marie Pierik were hostesses at the Blackstone for Rudolph Ganz on Monday evening.

Eppling—Pupils of Ruth Eppling will give a recital at 1259 Early avenue this Friday evening.

A Gala Event at Aurora

Mrs. Theodore Worcester has had a great dream about the possibilities for a musical future in Aurora and on last Monday evening she set in motion a machine which is planned to bring a regular series of orchestral concerts to that city for the coming years.

The inaugural event was also the first concert in the new Sylvandell, a charming auditorium, and the fact that every one of its 2,300 seats was sold in advance seems promise enough that Aurora proposes to back up the effort of Mrs. Worcester.

The event was gala in every sense, and although the evening was raw and wet, there was present as much style and "full dress" as at a premiere of an opera season in Chicago.

There was much enthusiasm also and a very genuine appreciation of the fine program presented.

The factors of this program were the Chicago Apollo Club and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, both under direction of Mr. Frederick Stock and with Lambert Murphy and Clarence Whitehill in incidental solos in the "Meistersinger" excerpts with which the program closed.

The surprise of the evening was the great success of Mr. Stock as a choral conductor, for he has not heretofore been regarded as a brilliant success in that respect. At this concert, however, he seemed to hold the Apollo Club in the hollow of his hand and was able to evolve effects at once colorful and artistic.

In view, perhaps, of the coming California trip, when an orchestra will not be available, a group of a cappella numbers was given and not only did the Apollo Club prove that it has not forgotten an art in which it formerly excelled signally, but also Mr. Stock, through the skill and finish of his work as conductor, proved that on the California trip he will be a success.

The best of the songs in this group was Stewart's "The Bells of St. Michael's Tower," which was sung with very great style and finish indeed.

"Hail Bright Abode" from "Tannhauser" (Wagner), was sung with splendid zest, and the "Epilogue" from "Caractacus" (Elgar) was again delivered with that great intelligence which made it so popular last fall.

The second half of the program consisted of "Meistersinger" excerpts which, in so far as the chorus is concerned, were done beautifully.

Mr. Lambert Murphy in "The Prize Song" was of exceptional value, singing with unction and extreme finish. He won the greatest ovation of the evening.

Mr. Clarence Whitehill in the "Hans Sachs Monolog" was superb as to vocal quality and in interpretative thought, but in the second number assigned him was not so successful, the ensemble with chorus and orchestra being far from perfect.

The orchestra played excellent accompaniments and in its own numbers upheld the fine reputation it has gained and gave Aurora a taste of splendid orchestral endeavor.

The "Academic Overture" of Brahms was played with classic surety, and the "Meistersinger" music was a revelation of color and effect. While the Stock "Symphonic Waltz," Op. 8, was being played, my neighbor said, "I wish it were the 'Blue Danube,' instead," and so wished many other people as well. A crown of delight to the whole event was the "Star Spangled Banner," which although unprogrammed, was used to end the concert with great brilliance and enthusiasm.

The jolly singing and story telling in all the cars of the special train on this trip and the splendid amount of good fellowship displayed presaged a fine time for all who can manage to take the California trip with the Apollos. C. E. W.

FORMER LA GRANGE GIRL

Elaine Louise Burgess, 11 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Burgess, Evanston, Ill., formerly of La Grange, Ill., was an assisting artist in the entertainment arranged for "Ladies' Night" of the Membership Conference of the Chicago Association of Commerce. This event took place Thursday evening, April 15, at Fort Dearborn Hotel, Chicago.

Miss Elaine played the following piano numbers:

Venetian Love Song, Op. 25.....	Ethelbert Nevin
Veil Dance—Japanese Ballet, Op. 77.....	Rudolph Friml
Caprice Viennois.....	Fritz Kreisler
Humoreske, Op. 101, No. 7.....	Anton Dvorak
The Skylark.....	P. Tchaikowsky

Her interpretation of these numbers was simply astonishing, considering her age. Under the artistic guidance of Miss Jessie King, distinguished exponent of Leopold Godowsky's method, Miss Elaine has made wonderful progress in the last three years.

She received many sincere congratulations and the good wishes of an appreciative audience.

On May 15 Miss King's pupils will give a recital at La Grange, and Miss Elaine is eagerly looking forward to the opportunity of playing for a La Grange audience, which of necessity will include many of her former schoolmates and their parents.

Radanovits Studio—Miss Rosemary Pfaff, a young girl with a remarkable voice, is called the ten-year-old Tetrassini, and whose home is in Indianapolis, has arranged to pursue her vocal training with Mr. Sander S. Radanovits.

Maverick—Mme. Laura Maverick, mezzo-contralto, with Carl Hahn, accompanist, appeared in concert at the Hotel Astor in New York on May 1.

CHICAGO LEHRERCHOR GIVES FINE CONCERT

Wednesday evening the Chicago Lehrerchor, Hans Biedermann, director, gave its annual concert in Orchestra Hall with Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano, and Grant Hadley, baritone, as soloists.

Mr. Biedermann, during his long term of directorship, built up a chorus that can sing. The orchestra was of goodly numbers, and under the baton of Mr. Biedermann they gave splendid rendition of "Les Preludes," (Liszt), "Jubel Overture" (Weber), and the "Andante" from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony."

Too much can scarcely be said of the excellence of the chorus work throughout the evening, for there was a surity and clearness of attack, brilliance of accent, and almost perfect pronouncement of the text. There was not only power of tone, but they sensed the meaning of the many songs presented and delivered them as a message in a sincere and earnest manner that won them the enthusiastic approval of the splendid audience. Special mention must be made of the excellence of the a cappella singing that was true to pitch in both the men and women's chorus, for they offered wide choice of numbers, a cappella and with orchestra accompaniment. Mr. Hadley's resonant baritone voice was heard to a good advantage in the Wittekind "Podbertsky," sung by the men's chorus with fine effect.

Miss Kaufman's fine soprano voice gave great pleasure in the soprano solo with the chorus in Goudy's very difficult "Fruehlings Ermachen," and the closing number, also in the "Der Freischuetz" aria, did she sing with great finish and a fine display of artistry. Mr. Biedermann has every reason to feel proud of the work of all who did their share toward making the concert a success under his masterful direction.

H. W. P.

A. G. O. SPECIAL SERVICE

In St. Patrick's Church, Adams and Desplaines streets, on Thursday evening, May 13 (Ascension Day), there will be a special vesper service at 8 o'clock, which will be attended and participated in by the Illinois Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. The organists of the evening will be Wilhelm Middleschulte, Walter Keller and J. Lewis Browne. Mr. Middleschulte will play his own arrangement of the Bach "Chaconne," recently given with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra; Mr. Keller is to present Herbert J. Wrightson's first "Sonata," and Dr. Browne will play the service, which will comprise full vespers, solemn benediction, and the singing of important motettes by the combined choirs of St. Patrick's church (150 voices). This occasion will mark the completion of the new organ. There will be no admission charge.

Robinson-MacDermid—Miss Carol Robinson, pianist, and Mrs. Sibyl Sammis, MacDermid, soprano, will appear before the Lake View Musical Club at the La Salle Hotel on May 10.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebbling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANISTE
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

NASHVILLE, MICH.

Mr. Forrest Glenn Fiebach presented his pupils in the following program, assisted by Miss Lorena Austin, reader, of Jackson, Mich., and the piano students from Jackson, Mich.:

FORREST GLENN FIEBACH

Duet—Raymond Overture	Thomas
Miss Waters, Miss Sisson
Taps (Military March)	Engelmann
Emery Morris
Dance of the Honeybees	Greenwald
Hazel Van Orsdal
Trio—Rosebud	Hofmann
Misses Helen and Margaret Pratt, Robert Townsend
Brooklet in the Woods	Werny
Miss Copeland
Les Bohemiens	Brown
Omer Ward
Gavotte	Pirani
Marguerite Wood
Reading	Selected
Miss Lorena Austin
Amaryllys (Louis XIV. style)	Ghys-Rolle
Caprice	Irish
Marguerite Wood
De Vaux
Rhodora
Lois Shipley	Gobbaerts
Marche Heroique
Omer Ward
Impromptu	Thome
Miss Sisson
Reading	Selected
Miss Austin
Intermission
Vogel Caprice	Blatterman
Marguerite Wood
Sonata, E. Major	Beethoven
Allegro
Allegretto
Maggiore
Fantasia	Lysberg
Miss Waters
Piano Quartet—Valse Venetian	Rinquet
First piano—Robert Townsend, Margaret Pratt
Second piano—Lois Shipley, Omar Ward
Marche du Concert	Wachs
Miss Waters
Piano Quartet—Sunflower Dance	MacClymont
First piano—Marguerite Wood, Helen Pratt
Second piano—Margaret Pratt, Robert Townsend
The Nashville Journal-Herald comments as follows:

The second springtime recital of a series of recitals by the pupils of Mr. Forrest Glenn Fiebach, teacher and pianist, was given Sunday, April 11, at 3:30 p. m., in the Howe Photo Studio rooms in the Stebbins block, city.

Mr. Fiebach was assisted by Miss Lorena Austin, reader of Jackson, and the following pupils of the Nashville class: The Misses Margaret and Helen Pratt, Hazel Van Orsdal and Masters Emery Morris and Robert Townsend.

The program was well chosen and splendidly rendered, to the gratification of the many musical friends and interested parents of the pupils who attended this recital.

The two-piano ensemble playing that has been a distinctive feature in Mr. Fiebach's work, showed artistic endeavor.

The four young people playing at two pianos was an innovation of much merit.

Miss Waters' dignified reading of the Beethoven "Sonata" met the hearty approval of all listeners, as well as her other numbers.

Little Miss Wood, one of the younger pupils, was certainly at her best, playing her numbers from memory. Her playing brought out the musical and rhythmic thought and good tone work equal to that of persons much older.

Little Miss Austin, the reader for the occasion, entertained the audience delightfully, displaying talent of unusual worth and favored with an encore in her usual happy mode. She proved a great favorite. A beautiful bouquet of flowers was presented to her by the class.

Mr. Fiebach's success in teaching lies in the clearness of explanation personally to each pupil, combining musical talent practically, thereby stimulating musical interest, together with talent bringing out practical results. Much credit is due pupils as well as teacher.

PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE

A senior piano recital was given by Elsa Reichett, pupil of Mrs. Stead, on April 19, the program being as follows:

English Suite G Minor	Bach
Prelude
Sarabande
Gavottes I and II
Spinning Song (from Flying Dutchman)
Wagner-Liszt
Mazurka, Opus 33, No. 4	Chopin
Ballade, F Major	Chopin
Oriente	Cui
Mazurka	Hubay
Improvisation	MacDowell
Elfin Dance	MacDowell
Eroticon	Sjogren
Concerto, E Flat Major	Liszt
Allegro Maestoso
(Orchestral parts on second piano and organ)

Mary Frances Read, pupil of Franklin Stead, played the following program on April 12:

Prelude, E Flat Minor	Bach
Sonata, Opus 14, No. 1	Beethoven
Allegretto and Rondo
Haiden Roslein	Schubert
Geheimes	Schubert
Ungeduld	Schubert
Polish Song (Maiden's Wish)	Chopin-Liszt
The Juggleress	Moszkowski
Etude, Opus 25, No. 7	Chopin
Rhapsodie, No. 8	Liszt
Aria—Roberto, o tu che adoro	Meyerbeer
Concerto, D Minor	MacDowell
First Movement
(Orchestral parts on second piano and organ)

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN HATTSTAEDT PRESIDENT CONSERVATORY

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC

Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivaled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mailers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

An opportunity, which comes all too seldom of hearing Brahms' "Requiem" was taken advantage of at Westminster Presbyterian Church recently. It is a sublime thing, and if the choir had been larger or better equipped vocally it would have been a great success. Either the acoustics are to blame (which we doubt as the address by the minister was very distinct) or the singers were too intent in producing tones to pay any attention to words for outside of a very few lines by Harry Phillips, basso, and director of the choir, not a single word was distinguishable all evening and in work of this character poor diction is unpardonable. Mr. Phillips' directing might have been fully as efficient if a little less energetic, and would have been less distracting to observe. Neither Miss Clara Williams or Mrs. Alma Proteous came up to expectations and every section of the choir, tenors notably, was weak. Mr. Campbell at the organ did very creditable work, and we at least heard the music if we understood no word.

The Minnesota Chapter of American Guild of Organists was responsible for a rare treat given St. Paul and Minneapolis when they brought Edwin Arthur Kraft up here for a recital. His Minneapolis appearance was at Gethsemane Episcopal Church. Several numbers he played were dedicated to him, among which was a very excellent arrangement of Beethoven's "Minuet" by E. S. Ender, organist of this church, a "Symphonic Prelude" by Stanley R. Avery of Minneapolis, and a beautiful "Persian Suite" by R. Spaulding Stoughton. The "Prelude to Die Meistersinger," "Overture to Rienzi" and "Ride of the Valkyries" (Wagner) were most effective in orchestral coloring and exceptionally well suited to the organ. "Springtime" (Ralph Kinder) and two compositions by Gaston Dethier, "The Brook" and a "Scherzo" were among the most exquisite numbers he played. Mr. Kraft's technique is good, his pedal work surprising in rapid and sure execution, and we surely hope Atlanta will loan him to us again.

Wednesday afternoon, March 31, and Thursday evening, April 1, the Symphony Orchestra and chorus from Philharmonic Club presented the following program for the finale for both the Beethoven Cycle and the evening Symphony concerts:

Overture, "Lenore," Op. 72, No. 3.....Beethoven
Song with Orchestra, "Adelaide".....Beethoven

Reed Miller

Symphony No. 9 in D Minor, Op. 125.....Beethoven
Allegro ma non troppo un poco maestoso
Scherzo; Molto vivace
Adagio Molto e cantabile

Choral Finale: Schiller's "Hymn to Joy"

The assisting soloists were Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Genevieve Wheat, contralto; Reed Miller, tenor, and Harry Phillips, baritone.

The Lenore "Overture" was given a notable reading, as was also the "Chorale Symphony" with its paean of joy and hope. The chorus and quartet did splendid ensemble work with the orchestra and it was a most adequate finale to the two courses of concerts. Reed Miller's rendition of "Adelaide" was intelligent and musically with well sustained, legato

A correspondingly artistic finale to the series of Sunday popular programs was the last Sunday concert, with Bruno Labate, our exceptionally fine solo oboe, as principal soloist, and Miss Hannah Hoiby, a young local soprano. Besides the "Legende Pastorale" (Godard) for oboe and orchestra, Mr. Labate gave the exquisite "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn" to harp accompaniment. Hearing Mr. Labate in so many beautiful solo passages this winter, we were pretty well prepared to appreciate his consummate art. The beauty of the oboe as a solo instrument was never before brought so forcibly to us.

The orchestra program contained repetitions of three of the most beautiful numbers heard during the winter, the "Overture" to Schubert's "Rosamunde," Schumann's "Spring Symphony" and Mr. Oberhoffer's orchestration of MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches" and three excerpts from the masterpiece of comic opera, Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." Miss Hoiby sang aria "Giunse Alfin" from "Figaro's Hochzeit" (Mozart) and "Solveig's Song" (Grieg) as encore.

April 8 the Orchestral Art Society with Grace Chadbourne, soprano; Edwin Towler, violinist, and Myliux Wilcox, violinist, as soloists, gave a very excellent program under the direction of William McPhail at Gethsemane Guild Hall.

The Thursday Musical gave its annual evening program at First Baptist Church April 9. The program was presented by Apollo Male Quartet of St. Paul, Carrie Zumbach Bliss, pianist, and the club's own chorus of women's voices. The honors of the evening fell easily to the Apollo Quartet as was expected, after the reception they received at the final meeting of the vocal section, and the chorus was ably assisted by this quartet and violins, violas, and organ, in the presentation of "Hail, Bright Abode" from "Tannhauser," which was a most delightful ending to a splendid program. Mrs. W. P. Remington acted as accompanist and Mrs. Harry W. Crandall as organist. Members of the string section who assisted were Miss Marion Bearman, Miss Blanch Sheffield, Mrs. Edna Williams, Miss Arline Folsom, Miss Winifred Lind and Miss Grace Workman.

George Schumann's "Ruth," which was given by the Philharmonic Club last year, was repeated by the club this year with the assistance of the Symphony Orchestra under direction of Emil Oberhoffer. It is Schumann's masterpiece and a very beautiful and dramatic offering. Although given in the form of an oratorio, it is more operatic in form. The choruses especially lacked any tiresome repetition, such as often falls to their lot in oratorio. The beauty of the final chorus in the first part carried us to the realms of melodius as well as "Starry Splendor." The exacting solo parts were excellently handled by Marie Sundelius, soprano (Ruth), Alma Beck, contralto (Naomie), Marion Green, bass (Boaz), and Vincent MacGregor, bass (The Priest).

From an artistic standpoint it has been a wonderfully successful season that the orchestra has closed in Minneapolis, and if we could judge by attendance it should be highly successful financially. The orchestra has a splendid quota of men; it probably will not be many years before it numbers a hundred members. The growth in twelve years has been phenomenal, and is without doubt due to the personality of its leader and the loyalty of the backers of the organization. Mr. Oberhoffer gives so much of himself that he cannot but be an inspiration to all who come in contact with him, so it is no wonder he holds his men from year to year, which is the only true way to build up an orchestra for substantial results. The orchestra left for an eight weeks' tour April 11, which is the longest tour booked by any orchestra this season, and it is due to the tireless and indefatigable energy of its business manager, Mr. Wendell Heighton, who is personally supervising the tour now.

The Thursday Musical gave its annual "Frolic" at the Schubert Theater Wednesday afternoon, April 14, and the writer regrets very much having been unable to be there. The proceeds of the "Frolic" will be used to further the settlement work done by the club, and it is its desire to in time have a settlement house, where all talented youngsters can receive a free musical education. The club has done in enormous amount of work along these lines and one and all are ready to do more.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

###

LOS ANGELES

The fifty-first concert of the First Congregational Church Orchestra was given under the directorship of their organizer, Mr. William H. Mead, who has had charge of it for twenty years. It has half a hundred players, and up to the demands of a good program work. Schubert's "Rosamunde" overture, Mozart's "G Minor Symphony," Chopin's "Grande Valse Brillante," and Massenet's "Fantasie Mosaique," were the best selections by the orchestra.

Mrs. Molly Byerly Wilson, contralto, was the soloist in a group of three solos with orchestrated setting, "My Heart is Weary," by Thomas; "O Golden Sun," by Grace Adele Freely, and Secchi's "Lung dal Carobene." She sang in her usual good style and won an encore in which "Golden Sun" was repeated. The frequent demand for appearances is marked evidence of the growing popularity of Miss Wilson.

The Trinity M. E. (South) Church was musically prominent during Eastertide, presenting six or more organ recitals by its organist, Mr. Arthur Blakeley. The cantata, "Darkness and Dawn," by Fred W. Peace, with chorus of 75 voices, and quartet of soloists, also the oratorio, "Athalie" (Mendelssohn) with 200 voices of the Los Angeles Choral Society, with Mr. Boneschwetter at the baton and Mr. Blakeley at the organ, and Miss Byerly in the leading role.

The last concert of the season by the Ellis Club was full of interest. The choral selections were well chosen in contrasts, and splendidly interpreted with due light and shade in tone power and quality. Brewer's "Endearing Charms" (Alla Cappella) and Protheroe's "Castilla," words by Dr. Gumsaulus, were greatly enjoyed in the first part.

W. Frank Harling's "Before the Dawn," a cantata of excellence, in which Mr. G. Haydn Jones, tenor, won a hearty recognition by his splendid singing of the solo and obligatos, with the assistance of the cello in the hands of Mr. Axel Simonsen, a master artist.

The four "Hungarian Songs," arranged by Homer B. Hatch, were gems, and so vivid in style and character as to incite intense pleasure.

Mrs. Constance Balfour was the soprano soloist, and gave a fine presentation of Liszt's "Lorely," "Prayer" from "La Tosca," the "Willow Song" by Coleridge-Taylor, and "Adoration," by Ray Lamont Smith, a local composer.

The program closed with Wagner's "All Praise to God in Light Arrayed," with Mr. Edmund S. Shank in the bass solo, and Mr. Ray Hastings at the organ. The 100 male voices made a fine showing in volume and attack under the leadership of Mr. J. B. Poulin, Miss Mary L. O'Donoghue being all sufficient in all lines of accompanying.

The appearance of Mrs. Thilo Becker (Otie Chew) by stage name in a violin recital the past week was a local effort of high merit. The program included Cesar Franck's "Sonata in A Major" for violin and piano. In this number she was happily supported by her husband at the piano, whose accompaniments were most charmingly delivered in due accord with the composer's genius and the temperament of the solo artist, both being our most worthy musicians and teachers of their respective instruments and have to their credit a score or more of artists of national fame and international recognition. There is nothing effeminate or common in the material of the composer's concepts.

The group of dances arranged by Fritz Kreisler from Francoeur, Couperin, Pugnani, and the Mozart "Minuet in D" were most entertaining and daintily expressed, covering a wide field of contrasts. The Mendelssohn "Concerto" in three movements was no less pleasing.

A Goldmark "Aria," Debussy "Valse," and Dvorak-Kreisler "Slavonic Fantasie" closed the two hours of great artistry. Mr. Will Garroway's piano playing, with the exception of the Franck number. No greater artist has drawn crowded houses, from foreign talent, but it was a home artist.

A unique performance of Sullivan's "Iolanthe" was given by the Polytechnic High School Boys and Girls' Glee Clubs and their orchestra, under the directorship of Mrs. Gertrude Parsons, who is at the head of music in this high school. In staging, acting and singing, they made a fine showing of the training in all lines required in the attractive work, embracing nearly 100 in the presentation, all told.

An indoor performance of Mr. Carl Bronson's "California," a tableaux or pageant of the early days of settlement, was given. It is presented in six scenes. The music, as well as the words, were by Mr. Bronson. The Orpheus Club, under Mr. Joseph Dupuy, who in the play was Father Jumpero Serra. This play had its premiere in the open a year ago, under the native oaks of the San Fernando Mission, 20 miles from Los Angeles, with great pomp and ceremony, with a midnight feast, or barbecue, for a thousand guests. It is very ceremonious in its outline, the time not being conducive to the amusing and joy-making, hence it impresses as highly religious. The acolyte, who was to be a priest, fell in love with "Anita," which changed the dial of the play to a new aspect of the order of priests.

At the last meeting of the Matinee Musical Club a cycle, "Divan of Hadiz," by Franke-Harling, was sung by Mrs. Eugene E. Davis, who gave it a good rendition. The piano performance of Mrs. Edith Lillian Clarke in Beethoven's "Variations, Op. 34 in F Major," with a prelude of verbal analysis, was a performance of excellent merit and artful interpretation. In the second part the "Scherzo in B Flat Minor," Chopin, and MacDowell's "Concert Etude, Op. 36," was equally well delivered by Mrs. Clarke. Perhaps the most real pleasure was in the reading, with music, of Von Wilderbusch's "Dos Hexonlied," or (Witch Song), with the setting of music by Max Schilling. The president of the club, Mrs. Lillian Ballagh, in priestly robe, gave from memory the verbal text in good style and delivery and Mrs. Hernandez Lee skillfully rendered the Schiller music.

A decidedly unique concert closed the Philharmonic Behymer course in the Barrere Ensemble of wood wind instruments of nine pieces. It is a very unusual group, and for a change in effects it was very enjoyable. The music is of the serenade order. Their solo work was artistic on each division. Oboe, clarinet, French horn, bassoon and the flute. The last was in the hands of the conductor, Mr. George Barrere, who is an artist of the first rank. The ensemble effects was unlike any concerted music heard in or outside the orchestra, as the selections from Schubert, Mozart, Prilhou, Debussy, Delibes and MacDowell were especially suited to such an orchestra. Manager Behymer is to be congratulated on the talent and art grade of the artists who made appearances this season.

The Brahms Quintet closed their season in two piano quintets, the first Saint-Saens "A Minor," and Scharwenka's "Op. 118." Their playing reached a higher standard (if such were possible) than any time before. Mr. Roland Paul, tenor, gave Italian, German and French songs, good songs in form, melody and accompaniment adjustment, but uninteresting in foreign text. On urgent recall he sang in English, "I'll Sing Thee the Songs of Araby," which the audience heartily received. The Brahms chorus is an annual event to the music lovers.

Miss Mary L. O'Donoghue was the accompanist for the tenor solos.

A joint recital, piano and soprano song, was given by Miss Lillian Amalee Smith and Miss Jessie McDonald Patterson.

The piano selections were up to the usual great playing of Miss Smith in Mozart's "E Minor Sonata," Gounod-Liszt's "Faust Valse," and a group of gems, Chopin, Rosenthal, Leschetizky and Lamont Smith. Miss Patterson gave a group of Schubert's songs, and a second group, using "Charity," by MacDermid, and four by Mr. Colby—"Sunbeams," "The Cloud," "Black Eyed Susan" and "Jack in the Pulpit," real chic songs with fancy accompaniments. A third group from Woodman, Bronson, Ronald and Spross were given in the English text.

Mr. Jamie Overton, violinist, made his premiere in a fine recital program with Will Garroway as the accompanist. Mr. Overton has had the advantages of study abroad, and in this country, and has attained a proficiency of high grade merit. His selections were of the solo artists' repertoire, and he will compare in artistry with the best, and being in the early part of a career, experience will show an artist worthy of renown as the years follow.

The "E Major Concerto, No. 2," by Bach opened the program very impressively, with ten choice numbers between, and closing with Saint-Saens' "Andante and Rondo Capriccioso." A good audience attended.

The Julia Culp recitals since my last letter were more cordially welcomed than the others given. Bring us more like her, but all have been excellent in their own field, and we must not discriminate. We want to hear all, the really great, and we can detect the qualities and the differentiations.

The Woman's Orchestra Course is well programed and very interesting, as well as the soloists, but the sunshine on a Sunday p. m. invites to the open, among the flowers and merry round of the beaches, hence small audiences.

Mrs. Henrietta Hawley Cole, soprano, sang "Folk-song" from Humperdinck; "Jennesse," aria from "Tosca" and encore, "Absent."

Miss Frances L. Flint, pianist, gave "Impromptu," Chopin, and the "G Minor Prelude" by Rachmaninoff, in good solo style and effectiveness. She is just lately from Europe in study with the master artists and teachers. The "Fairy Land" opera is in daily rehearsals, going on to perfection and a successful performance in the early days of July.

Beethoven's "Ninth" will be the closing of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra season with 200 in the mixed chorus from the Lyric and Ellis Clubs. Some preparation is being made to have the work given at the exposition in San Francisco on the July or August programs. Also our Male Chorus Clubs will be represented in the prize contests in July.

S. W. MOUNTZ,

1651 Sixth Avenue, Phone, West 1024.

WINONA, WISCONSIN

The Conservatory of Saint Cecilia at Winona gave the following program of operatic and oratorio selections last Thursday. The artists were Madeline Fogarty, soprano, and Clara Schad, contralto:

Aria—Voi Che Sapete.....Mozart
From "Figaro"
Recitative and Aria—Adieu ye Forest.....Tschaiowsky
From "Joan of Arc"
Miss Schad
My Heart at Thy Voice.....Saint-Saens
From "Samson and Delilah"
Recitative and aria—With Verdure Clad.....Haydn
From "The Creation"
Miss Fogarty
Quist est Homo.....Rossini
From "Stabat Mater"
Miss Fogarty, Miss Schad
Faust, Act II. Garden Scene (in costume).....Gounod
Miss Fogarty, Miss Schad

Cosmopolitan School—Mr. Henry Purmort Eames, director of the Piano Department of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art, directs three performances of "The Chimes of Normandy" in Bloomington next week, and is musical director of the pageant given by the women of Bloomington the 21st of May.

WICHITA, KANSAS

No little local interest has been added to the New York Symphony Orchestra program given at the Festival, May 3 and 4, by the announcement of the engagement of two local artists, Zetta Campbell Stanley and Mrs. Frederic Hellar, both prominent sopranos.

Edgar P. Carver, director of the recently organized Wichita Union Band, will leave Wichita in May for Dublin, Ireland, where he announces he will study music. The Beacon aptly comments in editorial column that it can't be such "A long, long way to Tipperary" when Carver goes there to study music.

The Friends University Glee Club was heard in concert at the First Methodist Church last week, under direction of Lucius Aedes. The club was assisted by Paul Brees, reader, and the Dodson Saxophone Quartet.

Edward Baxter Perry gave a lecture-recital during the past month at Mt. Carmel.

Ralph Mason Hix, piano; Georgella Lay, piano, and Isabel Gareissin, voice, are the new faculty members for the music department of Fairmount College, as announced for next season. Charles Davis Carter and Madame Carter have resigned and will conduct private studios in the city. It is planned to build up the conservatory and extend its work.

Otto L. Fischer, pianist, assisted by Elsie Randall, contralto, gave a lecture-recital on Edward MacDowell as an interpreter of nature, before the Wichita Musical Club April 13. The public was invited. The following program was presented:

- I.—Andantino and Allegretto (Per amica silentia lunae), from the "First Modern Suite," Op. 10 (1883).
- II.—Silver Clouds, from "Idyls after Goethe," Op. 28 (1887).
- III.—Scotch Poem, from "Poems after Heine," Op. 31 (1887).
- IV.—The Eagle, from "Four Little Poems," Op. 32 (1888).
- V.—Songs for Contralto—The Sea.
"The West Wind Croons in the Cedar Trees," Op. 47 (1893).
- VI.—Will o' the Wisp.
By a Meadow Brook, from "Woodland Sketches," Op. 51 (1896).
- VII.—To the Sea.
From a Wandering Iceberg.
Starlight.
From the Depths.
Nautilus.
In Mid-ocean, from "Sea Pieces," Op. 55 (1898).
- VIII.—Songs for Contralto—
The Swan Bent Low.
The Maid Sings Light, from Op. 56 (1898).
- IX.—Of Salamanders.
A Haunted House, from "Fireside Tales," Op. 61 (1902).
- X.—Midsummer.
Midwinter.
In Deep Woods.
Indian Idyl.
To an Old White Pine.
The Joy of Autumn, from "New England Idyls," Op. 62 (1902).

Lucy Marsh was the last attraction on the Wichita Chorus Course. She gave her program April 23, and owing to the popularity of her records, drew a large house. It was her first appearance in Wichita. The Wichita Girls' Band will attend the San Francisco Exposition in July. It is planned to have this band on the Kansas Day program. Myron Hull of the Metropolitan School of Music is the band director.

At the Lucy Marsh concert the "Inflamatus" from "Stabat Mater" was given with the Wichita Chorus singing the choral part, mention of which was omitted in the above report of the concert. The next season's list offered by the Chorus Course as it stands now is as follows: Mme. Louise Homer, Miss Anna Case, Tina Lerner, pianist; Brick Church Quartet, Reinald Werrenrath, Ada Sassoli and the Zollner Quartet.

The Men's Glee Club of Fairmount College give a minstrel Thursday, April 29.

The program of the musical festival follows:

MONDAY, MAY 3

Morning—Preliminary contests in downtown churches.

1 p. m.—Chorus contest in Forum.
3 p. m.—Matinee by New York Symphony Orchestra.
8 p. m.—Orchestra concert, assisted by chorus of 1,000 voices.

MAY 4

Morning—Glee Club and quartet concerts.
1 p. m.—Finals for soloists in the Forum.
8 p. m.—Concert of prize winners in every department in Forum.

NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT

New Haveners have enjoyed the Jepson recitals given on the big organ in Woolsey Hall. The programs have been made up largely by American and English composers. An especially good one had for its numbers the technically difficult new finale in A Major by Prof. Humphrey, another by an American composer, Russell King, Miller's beautiful "Nocturne." The program also included the "Prelude" from the first suite of Felix Borowski, a very beautiful and much appreciated composition. The composer and his works are well known in Chicago and the west. Professor Jepson gave some very lucid renderings to all of the music so well chosen in regard to edifying and educating the musical public.

A big concert by the Harugari Singing Society gave a testimonial concert to celebrate the twenty-fifth year of leadership by Professor Max Dessauer.

A well arranged program was executed by the society in fine style. One of the most pleasing events of the occasion was an appropriate presentation by the society to the leader who had been untiring in his efforts for so many years, thus showing the esteem in which he is held by the Harugari's. Speeches followed and many were the congratulations that Professor Dessauer received.

Mr. Arthur Whiting has been giving a series of chamber music concerts at Lampion Lyceum, the last one being held on Monday evening, April 12. He had the able assistance of a quartet of singers, consisting of Mrs. Charles Rabold, soprano, Mrs. Anna Taylor Jones, contralto; Mr. Wheeler, tenor, and Edmund A. Jahn, basso. The series has given great enjoyment, as Mr. Whiting has performed his numbers in a most scholarly and painstaking manner.

The New Haven String Orchestra, conducted by Professor Isidore Troostwyk of the Yale Music School gave its annual concert on Tuesday evening, May 4, at College Hall. Professor Troostwyk had the assistance of Miss Mabel Beddoe, the well-known contralto soloist of New York.

Musical people hereabouts are looking anxiously forward to the initial production of Professor Horatio Parker's prize American opera, "Fairyland," to be given at Los Angeles, July 1, under the auspices of the American Opera Association, which will provide $10,000 for a high standard of operatic works to be brought out every fourth year. Dr. Parker's opera, "Fairyland" is the first one to have taken the prize since the American Opera Organization was formed, and it is the second prize opera competed for by an American composer, Dr. Parker having taken both prizes, the first one having been given, as is well known, by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York. Los Angeles is well equipped musically to assist with its fine organizations to be of valuable help in producing "Fairyland." It is thought that the opera will have a run of a few weeks, thus affording an opportunity for all who are deeply interested in the work and consequent encouragement of the American composers in the future.

MADAME TEALDI.

South Bethlehem—The geographical range of applicants for the 1915 Bach Festival tickets was reported today to extend from Massachusetts to Michigan, to Illinois, to Kentucky, and to North Carolina. At earlier festivals as many as twenty states and two foreign countries were represented. This year it appears that all records in this respect and in total of attendance will be broken.

The tenth Bach Festival, to be held at Lehigh University on May 28 and 29, will include the "St. John Passion," to be given in two parts on the first day, and the "Mass in B Minor," to be similarly rendered on the second day. The Philadelphia Orchestra has been engaged to furnish the accompaniment.

Peterson—Helen Edith Peterson, contralto, was the soloist at the annual spring luncheon of the Woman's Organization of the Chicago Retail Druggists, April 27, in the Hotel La Salle.

Potter—Miss Grace Potter gave a very successful piano recital at Oberlin, Ohio, on April 14.

180.5
MUN

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS LIBRARY

FESTIVALS AT VALPARAISO, IND. AND MT. VERNON, IA.
ILLINOIS MUSIC TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION, CENTRALIA, ILL.

NEW YORK LETTER, PAGE 26

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

Originator of Teaching Music Through Inner Feeling, Reasoning and Drills

CHICAGO, AMERICA

MAY 14, 1915

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO
CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER
HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.
Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store)

TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.

An exquisite little song.—D. A. Clippinger.

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST

HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St.

NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO

5132 Kenmore Av.

Tel. Edgewater 7252

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MAY 14, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business
Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and
Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrass 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, May 14, 1915

No. 20

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Every time the editor goes to Valparaiso the impression grows more and more strong that here is a very remarkable educational development. Beginning with four instructors and thirty-five pupils in 1873 the school now has five thousand pupils every year and a faculty list numbered by the score.

As the advertising matter of the school truthfully states, a "pleased and loyal alumni" is their best advertisement, and it is very certain that, increasingly so year by year, young students from all parts of the country are being attracted to Valparaiso.

This is due to a combination of causes, first of which is a splendidly developed course along many lines, including music.

Another cause lies in the extreme economy of living possible in Valparaiso. The prices of rooms and board as quoted in the University catalog are unbelievably cheap, but the accommodations are very good, nevertheless, and the streets and classrooms at Valparaiso show continually crowds of jolly, contented and very intelligent looking young people.

Henry Kinsey Brown, business manager of this great institution, is a very remarkable and thoroughly efficient young man. To his will and energy may be attributed much of the success of the past few years and especially in the great Annual May Festival, which is almost wholly under his direction and care.

h h h

And, apropos of Valparaiso and the name of Brown, one instinctively thinks of Miss Helen Axe Brown, daughter of the president of the university, and a favorite teacher of voice in the School of Music. But Miss Brown is much more than a local celebrity and is heard very often in Chicago. She also has been very fortunate in securing appearances throughout the country and her beautiful voice has been heard in many cities during the season just passed. Indeed, it was the one disappointment of Festival Week in Valparaiso this year that Miss Brown could not be present, she being under contract to appear in a Kentucky May Festival on the parallel dates.

h h h

The Valparaiso Festival brought to at-

THE WORLD will prepare you for your tasks. Any information in the possession of society is available for the ambitious, but instruction will carry you only part of the way.

If you can't progress beyond the point to which you have been led, relinquish all hope for distinction. Any man who is content to accept the past for a future quickly loses identity among the mass of other commonplace people.

—Herbert Kaufman in Chicago Tribune.

tention a quartet which had not been heard before—the Zoellners.

This remarkable family gave a very strong program last Thursday night and scored a great success. This writer has no hesitation in ranking them with the very best string quartets heard in the country, and in the matter of personal attractiveness the Zoellners excel all others.

h h h

Musical Courier is having a lot of fun with the critics of the New York daily press, or at least, it thinks it is having fun and that answers the purpose quite as well, probably.

A challenge has been made to the critics and a prize offered to those who can reach, a certain per cent of efficiency in answering a set of requirements.

All this might be very well were the plan a reasonable one, but it happens that the requirements are entirely unreasonable.

To be able to live up to them the critic must needs possess (1) the sense of absolute pitch, (2) a practical and artistically working knowledge of every instrument, including the voice; (3) a knowledge of repertoire which is superhuman, (4) a knowledge of theory which none but a man who has devoted his life to the one subject could possibly be expected to have, (5) a knowledge of orchestration and of orchestral repertoire which no one short of a life-time conductor could possibly have, (6) a knowledge of languages which would constitute each critic a master linguist, (7) a knowledge of history, repertoire for all instruments and some other details which would presuppose a wideness of knowledge wholly unbelievable.

Music News does not believe that there is a single musician in New York or in Chicago who could make all of the "points" asked by the Musical Courier, and the statement that one of the Courier critics would be offered as a candidate were others available, we consider a pure bluff. If the Courier has any men on its staff so all-knowing as these requirements would typify why does he not write something for the Courier to prove it?

As the old farmer said when told of the wonders of a certain circus attraction, "There ain't no such animal."

NORTH SHORE FESTIVAL

The Chicago-North Shore Festival is dated for May 24, 25, 27 and 29. The artists are Peter Christian Lutkin, Frederick Stock, Frieda Hempel, Florence Hinkle, Mildred Potter, Sophie Breslau, Margaret Keyes, Evan Williams, Paul Althouse, Clarence Whitehill, Pasquale Amato and Henri Scott.

EDNA GUNNAR PETERSON

The young pianist who has achieved such a notable success on this season's transcontinental tour, writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

June 1, 1914.

CABLE PIANO COMPANY, Chicago.
Gentlemen:

The Mason & Hamlin Piano is an inspiring friend to the performer and a real teacher of tone to pianists and students of piano. Every imaginable quality of tone can be produced on this wonderful instrument.

Very sincerely,
EDNA GUNNAR PETERSON.

Mason & Hamlin

Pianos for sale only at the
warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

Write for beautiful illustrated catalog

WILLIAM BEARD

On Wednesday of last week, Mr. Beard gave a recital before the assembly at Hyde Park High School, with Miss Charlotte Johnson at the piano.

Mr. Beard sang some ten or twelve songs and was greeted with thunderous applause from the 2,500 students assembled, after which, under the direction of Mr. Parks, who is official leader, both he and Miss Johnson were given a succession of cheers, the like of which, Mr. Beard reports he has never heard before. Mr. Beard prefaced each song with a few words of explanation and held his audience in a manner which was unprecedented at this school.

After the recital Mr. Beard was the guest of Mr. Loomis, the principal, and listened to a rehearsal of an operetta which is soon to be given at Hyde Park High School under the direction of Mr. Robinson and in which Mr. Beard has three pupils who are singing leading parts.

Mr. Frank McNellis, who took part in the first program of chamber music given in Fullerton Hall under the direction of the Society of American Musicians, on May 2, is a pupil of Mr. Beard, and he, as well as the critics on the daily papers, predict a fine future for this young man.

Another pupil, Miss Margaret Messer, a charming young soprano from Hamilton, Ont., will appear on these programs on Sunday, May 23. Miss Lucile Dunton, another young soprano, appeared in the last monthly recital given by the Walter Spry Music School on Friday, May 7, with much success, singing Gena Bainscombe's song cycle, "The Sun Dial."

Music in Chicago

FINAL CONCERT BY VILIM AMERICAN VIOLIN SCHOOL

The commencement concerts for this season began on Tuesday, 4th inst., when at Kimball Hall, the Vilim American Violin School presented its graduates in concert, and awarded diplomas and certificates. A note at the foot of the printed program announced the closing of the school for an indefinite period, the director stating his intention of going to the Pacific coast.

The pupils appearing were Edward Roeder, who chose for demonstration of his abilities the first movement of the Beethoven "Concerto," with the bristling difficulties of the "Cadenza" of Joachim to further enhance its obstacles. It is wonderful music and calls for unusual facility, breadth and an acute delving into the mysteries of technic, which qualities were supplied in full measure. Hattie Kovarik used the Bruchweiler "Romanza" and Sarasate's brilliant "Ziguenerweisen" to reveal good touches of tone and taste as well as other equipment. Helen Thoma played very well indeed the Bach "Gavotte" for violin alone, and was heard in a movement of a DeBeriot "Concerto," which called for much detail in the way of staccati and pizzicato. George Kaiser, a promising lad in knickerbockers, played a "Caprice," by Bornschein (dedicated to Mr. Vilim), Borowski's "Schoumka" and Ondricek's "Dance" and did them all with briskness and energy and won many plaudits. Mr. Mark Vilim was the accompanist for all these numbers and is entitled to hearty approval for the merit of each one, for they were sympathetic and musicianly.

Assisting, vocally, was Miss Ruby Saaf, a pupil of M on R. Harris, who had Miss Helen Gallup at the piano for capital aid and supplement. Miss Saaf has the natural gift of a good voice, and her teacher has seen to it that it is well placed, pure and true, and has taught her many definite and enhancing accomplishments to make the talents of larger value. She sang two of Chaminade's pretty songs and Grant-Schaefer's "Cuckoo Clock," Mrs. Downing's ever lovely "June," MacDermid's glowing "Sacrament" and a new setting of fine quality of the Eastern "Salutation of the Dawn," by Kuxsteiner. These all had taste, discretion and poise.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

SOME OF GRACE KEESLER'S RECENT ENGAGEMENTS

April 4—Recital, Mrs. Hamilton's home, Chicago.
April 7—Concert, Commandery Hall, Rogers Park.
April 12—Concert, Kenosha, Wis.
April 18—Concert, Grand Opera House, Chicago.
April 21—Concert, Wicker Park Hall, Chicago.
April 27, Afternoon—Benefit concert, Congress Hotel.
April 27, Evening—Concert, Racine, Wis.
May 2—Recital, Mrs. Hamilton's home.
Will appear May 12, at Mark Nathan home, and May 20 at Central Music Hall.

Thurber Hall—Mrs. John D. Trelease, contralto, and Miss Josephine Rogers, pianist, will appear at Thurber Hall on next Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

BUSH CONSERVATORY NOTES

On Sunday afternoon, May 9, Mary Thomas, the wonderful child violinist, and pupil of Guy Herbert Woodard of Bush Conservatory, gave a program at Seward Park. She also appeared at the LaSalle Hotel, Monday afternoon, May 10, on a program given by the Lakeview Muscial Society. Miss Vivian Stoik, pupil of Madame Julie Rive-King, was at the piano.

Miss Grace Stewart Potter, pianist, has just returned from her eastern concert tour and has resumed her teaching.

Mr. Earl V. Prah, pianist, pupil of Madame Julie Rive-King, will appear on the program at the Auditorium Recital Hall, Wednesday evening, May 19.

On Saturday evening, May 8, the following students of the Bush Conservatory gave a program for the Royal Arcanum; Miss Alice Calvert, soprano; Miss Lora Williams, reader; Miss Marietta Livengood, violinist; Miss Georgie Dowell, pianist; Miss Gertrude Benner, reader; Mr. Frank Brantley, baritone, and Miss Lillian Fox, reader.

A former pupil of Madame Justine Wegene, Miss Clara Schweinfurth, soprano, was awarded the honors at the contest which took place Wednesday, May 5, at the Lakeview Muscial Club.

Mr. Frank Brantley, baritone, and Mr. Eugene Musser, pianist, have been engaged to give a joint recital for the Columbia Damen Circle at Germania Hall.

On Saturday evening, May 15, the following students will give a concert at the Church of Christ of Elmhurst: Miss Alice Calvert, soprano; Miss Georgie Dowell, pianist; Marietta Livengood, violinist.

Mr. Arnold G. Beckman, pianist, pupil of Madame Julie Rive-King, and Mr. Clay Hart, tenor, pupil of Mr. David E. Baxter, have been engaged for a number of joint recitals throughout Illinois and Indiana, commencing Saturday, May 8.

From the present applications, Bush Conservatory promises to have the largest summer school in the history of the institution. The artist teachers will all be in charge of their various departments during the summer session.

Mr. Robert Yale Smith, pianist, is at present on a concert tour to the coast, where he has been booked for many engagements.

Nichols—Mr. and Mrs. John W. Nichols, tenor and pianist, are having a most successful tour this spring, in spite of the heavy floods in Texas, through which they are obliged to pass. Their itinerary is as follows: April 19, Buffalo Saengerbund Society; April 22, Brownsville, Tenn; April 23, DeWitt, Arkansas; April 26, Georgetown, Texas, S. W. University; April 28, Emporia, Kansas, Kansas State Northern; April 29, Chicago Mendelssohn Club; May 1, Kansas City, Elgar's "Light of Life" with the Oratorio Society; May 5, Jamestown, N. Y.; May 7, Muncy, Pa., and May 9, East Orange, in Hadyn's "Creation."

HENIOT LEVY'S ADVANCED PUPILS IN RECITAL

On Thursday last the American Conservatory of Music offered a recital of piano music of such a high order of collective and individual merit, that the inclination to speak in general and unqualified terms of approval is hard to resist. These promising exccutants were the advanced pupils of Mr. Henriot Levy and they had, as support and stimulus to their endeavors, the encouragement of Mr. Levy himself at the second piano for each number. He is so artistic and temperamental in his playing that it is to be taken for granted that he infused much of his own strength, vigor and poetry into the work of his pupils and enabled them to give an unusually clear reading of the works undertaken. The program was interesting in itself, by reason of its contrast. There was, first, the pianistic concerto of Paderewski played by Miss Alvina Busse (which unfortunately was not heard by the reviewer). Then came the involved and teasingly elaborated "Burlesque" of Strauss, which makes simply alarming demands on all the forces of a player and does not always repay the energy. Strauss seems determined to shake every particle of life out of any theme before he leaves it and every moment tingles with cleverness. Following was the "A Major Concerto" of Liszt, embodying every variety of effective nuance from the ponderous chords up and down the piano (suggesting remotely that Tschaikowsky may have found a hint in this work for his own smashing introduction) to the most elaborate and lace like embroidery and scintillant brilliancy. Then came the always stunning Tschaikowsky (first movement only) with its daring modernity and endless variety of rhythm to trip and perplex any but the bravest. And, as a climax, the beautiful Saint-Saens "C Minor," with the charming treatment of its chorale-like first theme, the dashing scherzo and the fascinating dance movement used as a finale. It is a fine example of Saint-Saens' elegance and polish of style, and yet it is sensuous enough to make quick appeal for its tune-fulness alone, a trait it has in common with the Liszt, which seldom loses an obvious melodic idea, no matter how involved it becomes.

To each of these varied numbers the players presenting such, brought a rarely adaptable mood and a technical equipment that could supplement and illuminate. Miss Hazel Johnson assumed the Strauss, Mr. Harris R. Vail the Liszt, Morris Kottler (a lad in knickerbockers) the Tschaikowsky and Miss Vierlyn Clough the Saint-Saens, and a talented group they were who did well by themselves and their teacher.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Artists' Association—The Junior Club of the Chicago Artists' Association met on Saturday afternoon in their rooms in the Athenaeum building. There was an art talk, "Music and Color," by Mr. deVoll, and a musical program. The club attended the exhibition and reception at the Academy of Fine Arts afterward.

Beard—William Beard is singing "Illumination" by M. Hartmann on all his recital programs.

MRS. BOLLMAN IN AUSTIN

From The Austinite, Austin, Ill., (suburb of Chicago). Program given before the Edward MacDowell Memorial Association of Austin.

Those who were fortunate enough to hear Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, who sang for the MacDowell Association, Monday, certainly enjoyed a great treat. Her voice, a full, rich dramatic soprano, seemed especially adapted to the two MacDowell numbers of her first group of songs, "Bluebells" and "Constancy." From her first note the audience was with her.

Her charming personality added not a little to the enjoyment of her songs.

After Mr. Graham's talk, she sang a second group of songs by American composers as follows:

At the Spring	Mrs. Beach
The Birthday	Huntington Woodman
Legacies	Mildred Hill
The Star	James Rogers
Ghosts	Frances Wyman
The Cuckoo Clock	Grant Schaefer
In Italy	Jeanne Boyd

In response to an encore she sang "In the Dark," by Jeanne Boyd.

Her interpretation of children's songs was simply marvelous. After she sang "Ghosts," by Wyman, two or three voices broke out with "Sing it again, please, sing it again!" She responded with her usual charm.

Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman, coloratura soprano, who has appeared with the Apollo and Mendelssohn Clubs and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, rendered two groups of songs, the first group comprising two songs of MacDowell's, "The Bluebell" and "Constancy," the second group, songs by other American composers.

The press speaks very highly of Mrs. Bollman's work, saying she is possessed of a voice whose brilliancy and unusual range are striking, and whose purity, clearness and warmth of tone leave nothing to be desired. She appeared this season with the lyceum courses, being one of the three following artists chosen, viz.: Madame Schumann-Heink, Madame Maude Fenlon Bollman and David Bispham.

Jeanne Boyd was Mrs. Bollman's accompanist. Miss Boyd is also a composer, having recently dedicated a group of her songs, called "The Child World," to Mrs. Bollman. Mrs. Bollman sang one of her songs.

— # # # —

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The following program will be given this (Friday) evening at Kimball Hall by pupils of Mr. Allen Spencer:

Capriccio Brillante	Mendelssohn
Concerto in A Minor (second and third movements)	Miss Schaper
Concerto in C Minor (first and third movements)	MacDowell
Concerto in F Minor (first movement)	Miss Masley
Concerto in E Major (second and third movements)	Miss Baum
Fourth movement	Miss Ginsburg
Concerto in G Minor (first movement)	Mr. Roberts
Polacca Brillante in E Major	Mr. Kinney
Orchestral parts played on second piano by	Mr. Spencer

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Gorton School
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkerud, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
4375TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR

ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 18988

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Roeder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBORG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDNOWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO

CONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE

WARNER
Soprano
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

Pearle Williford

VOICE - PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

DAN S. DENTON

TENOR

OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

MR. RONEY'S ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. Henry B. Roney has reached the acme of elegance in the green and gold illuminated booklet announcing his Summer Camp and Nature Study School for boys 9 to 16 years of age, at his summer place, "The Antlers," on Lake Gogebic, upper Michigan. This will be held for eight weeks, July 1 to August 26. This elegant brochure is filled with engravings of rustic log cottages, boating scenes, wild deer, trophies of rod and gun, waterfalls and other scenery of the north woods that give anguish of spirit to a man chained to a desk during the hot months.

A rarely attractive program is outlined, including a fancy dress party, a water carnival and pageant and illumination of the lake, a "ragamuffins" masquerade and bal masque, and every Saturday night a festival night of stunts and "goodies." Mr. Roney's assistants are ladies and gentlemen prominent in church and Y. M. C. A. work, and "a thousand things every boy ought to know" will be taught by experts in the line of boy training, and there will be pleasures galore of fishing, boating, hikes, and sports of all kinds. Mr. Roney's long and varied experience as hunter, fisherman, woodsman, nature lover, world traveler, teacher, pianist, vocal trainer, manager, etc. will be put to use in all directions for the benefit of the boys who will be from the very best class of families and careful home training.

Vocal classes and nature study will be daily features besides instruction in swimming, boating, running launches and automobiles. This enterprise combines more fascinating features and practical benefits than were ever compressed in a summer outing, as far as memory serves. Mr. Roney's references by special permission comprise many of the most prominent names in this country, including governors, bishops, presidents of universities, judges, educators and clergymen in the foremost rank, all of whom have been personally familiar with his work for boys for many years. Only about twenty boys can be received.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Pupils of Allen Spencer will appear in recital Friday evening, May 14, in Kimball Hall. The program will consist entirely of piano concertos, with Mr. Spencer playing the orchestral parts.

Saturday, May 15, the annual contest for playing at the commencement concert will take place at Kimball Hall. There will be sixteen contestants, playing movements from the Tschaikowsky, Moszkowski, Saint-Saens, MacDowell, Paderewski and Liszt "Concertos." Three of Chicago's most prominent musicians will act as adjudicators.

"A Single Man" by Hubert Henry Davies, author of the "Outcast," will be presented by pupils of the Walton Pyre School of Expression, affiliated with the American Conservatory of Music, at Central Music Hall, on the evening of June 8.

Quincy—At Quincy, Ill., the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, a new organization, under direction of Emil Reinhendorff, gave its first concert at the Empire Theater in that city on last Thursday evening, the program being semi-popular in character.

GUY LA BELLE IN RECITAL

Guy Armand LaBelle, pianist, assisted by Arthur C. Merz, baritone, will give this program Friday evening, May 14, at Auditorium Recital Hall:

Toccata und Fugue, D Minor	Bach-Tausig
Mr. LaBelle
Lasciatemi Morire	Monteverde
Aufenthalt	Schubert
Ein Jungling liebt ein Madchen	Schumann
O casto fior del mio sospir	Massenet
Mr. Merz
Prelude, E Minor	Mendelssohn
Intermezzo, Op. 116, No. 2	Brahms
Etude, G Flat	Chopin
Mr. LaBelle
The Dew Is Sparkling	Rubinstein
The Pretty Creature	Wilson
Play On, Gypsy	Korbay
Hopak	Moussorgsky

Concerto, First Movement	Grieg
Mr. Merz
Mr. LaBelle
Miss Schada at second piano
###

CAROLYN WILLARD

Miss Carolyn Willard announces that she will teach, for the third summer, at Union City, Mich., on the St. Joe River, from June 22 to August 14, accepting pupils for part of the session if they so wish.

Good village board at reasonable rates is obtainable and the vacation features of Union City are well worth consideration. A circular may be had by addressing Miss Willard at the Fine Arts Building, Chicago.

Miss Willard will present Miss Geneva Chacey in piano recital at Thurber Hall on Friday evening, May 21.

Buchhalter—Mr. Simon Buchhalter will give a pupils' recital at the Fine Arts building on Sunday afternoon, May 23, at 3:30.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO

Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

NORA LORAIN OLIN

VOICE

524 Kimball Hall, 321 Lake Street, Oak Park. Tel. O. P. 2724

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

LYCEUM ARTS CONSERVATORY

Another splendid recital was given the public by pupils of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory in the Fine Arts Building on Saturday afternoon, May 8.

The program contained numbers for pianists, violinists and singers; therefore sufficient variety was found to make the hour one of unusual interest, and the manner in which each pupil delivered his or her portion of the program was wholly on a par with those offered heretofore by pupils developed for public performance by members of the eminent faculty of this conservatory.

Each pupil that appeared well merited the applause and recognition accorded by the large audience present.

Marion McElheny, Virginia Ghee, Hazel Brown, Elsa Zeitler and Marguerite Kelpsch were heard in well chosen and splendidly prepared piano numbers, while Bertha Seelye, Marguerite Farrell and Kathleen Lightford pleased immensely with the vocal part of the program.

Robert Louis Barron, violinist, on short notice took the place of Gertrude Symmonds, who had been announced, and not only played "A Memory," by Branscombe, and "Mazurka," by Borowski, in a most masterful style, but weaved a beautiful violin obligato into the charming "Elegy," by Massenet, which was one of the numbers sung by Miss Lightfoot.

Accompaniments for the afternoon were played in a splendid manner by Miss Patricia Abernethy. H. M. B.

SLEZAK and the Hardman Piano

Founded 1842 in New York

Messrs. Hardman Peck & Co.,
433 Fifth Ave., New York.

Dear Sirs—Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

Sincerely yours, (Signed)

LEO SLEZAK

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic
Bldg., State and Adams Street

HINSHAW CONSERVATORY

Miss Blanche Gardner, the talented young soprano of La Grange, and a pupil of Mr. Marvin Hinshaw, has just been engaged by the Hugh Anderson Company to appear in chautauqua, beginning the middle of June. The season will last for ten weeks. Miss Gardner possesses a beautiful soprano voice, and has been making rapid progress since taking up her study with Mr. Hinshaw. The company in which she will appear is a mixed quartet, giving scenes from grand opera in costume.

Mr. White, who possesses a beautiful baritone voice and who has been pursuing the study of vocal music under the direction of Mr. Kennard Barradell of the Hinshaw Conservatory, has been engaged by Mr. John Arno Hinshaw, manager of the Hinshaw Light Opera Singers, to appear in chautauqua during the coming summer, beginning about July 1. This is an important engagement, and will mean much to a singer so new in the field. Mr. White will sing the leading baritone roles in the operas "The Mikado" and "The Bohemian Girl."

###

GUY LA BELLE IN RECITAL

A piano recital will be given by Guy Armand LaBelle, assisted by Arthur C. Merz, baritone, with Miss Agnes Bodholdt, accompanist, Friday evening, May 14, at Auditorium Recital Hall. Program:

Toccata and Fugue, D Minor.....	Bach-Tausig
Mr. LaBelle
Lasciatemi Morire.....	Monteverde
Aufenthalt.....	Schubert
Ein Jungling liebt ein Madchen.....	Schumann
O Casto fior del mio sospir.....	Massenet
Mr. Merz
Prelude, E Minor.....	Mendelssohn
Intermezzo, Op. 116, No. 2.....	Brahms
Etude, G Flat.....	Chopin
Mr. LaBelle
The Dew Is Sparkling.....	Rubinstein
A Pretty Creature.....	Wilson
Play on, Gypsy.....	Korbay
Hopak.....	Moussorgsky
Mr. Merz
Concerto, first movement.....	Grieg
Mr. LaBelle
Miss Schada at second piano

This recital is under the auspices of Miss Marie Schada of the Cosmopolitan School of Music.

###

NORTH SHORE CONGREGATIONAL

On Sunday morning the double quartet of the North Shore Congregational Church did some splendid hymn singing, and also in West's beautiful anthem, "The Woods and Every Sweet Smelling Tree" was their work and proved very effective. The solo parts were sung in a very artistic manner by Marjorie Dodge Warner and Elmer J. Crabbs. Other members of the choir are Juliette Dashiell, Mrs. George A. McGaw, Mrs. John A. Mossen, Glen Wood, James F. Seiler and George Shaw.

Mrs. Warner and Mrs. McGaw gave a splendid rendition of "The Sabbath Morn," by Mendelssohn. Mrs. Irene Zaring, the organist of the church, gave splendid support to the singers, and in the prelude and offertory she gained some splendid effects, proving herself to be a resourceful and musicianly organist.

###

Pangbourne—Miss Annette Pangbourne, soprano, was soloist with the Eleanor Ensemble Club in their concert at the central Eleanor assembly room on Tuesday evening.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST Care of MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST Mezzo-Soprano
1403 E. 68th STREET PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

BAILEY

ANNA AGNES Soprano
HERBERT M. Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET MULFORD

LAWSON CONTRALTO PUPILS
CONCERT 671 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling Pianist Teacher

2912 Burling Street

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and
Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-
Violinist Meyer
Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel
3469)
FIBERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA SMITH
MAY
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert
Pupils Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

CUYLER AVENUE M. E. CHURCH,
OAK PARK, ILL.

Cuyler Avenue Church will celebrate the first anniversary of the dedication of the new church building on Sunday, May 16. There will be special music at both services which will be in charge of Miss Marie Edwards, organist and director.

The chorus choir (forty voices) will be assisted at the morning service by a solo tenor who will take the solo parts in Gounod's "Sanctus" and in "Fling Wide the Gates," from the "Crucifixion," by Stainer.

At the evening service the choir will be assisted by Mrs. Gertrude DuVigncaud, soprano, who will sing "With Verdure Clad," by Haydn, for the offertore, and will take the soprano obligato parts in the "Inflammatus," by Rossini, and "The Silent Sea," by Neidlinger, these anthems to be sung by the entire choir.

On Friday evening, May 14, there will be a reception and social at the church and the following program will be given by Miss Theo Bird of the Illinois College of Music faculty, Miss Grace Morrice, reader, also from the College, and Mrs. Emma Sollitt-Sherman, soprano.

Piano—
Etincelles Moszkowski
Concert Etude MacDowell

Vocal—
The Island where Babies Grow Ford
A Japanese Lullaby Edwards
Summer Ronald
Mrs. Sherman

Reading—
Miss Morrice

At the church services last Sunday the choir sang "O God, the Rock of Ages," Mr. Carl Anderson and Mrs. George Hart-rick, soloists; and "Mothers' Day" by the male chorus of twenty voices.

In the evening the male chorus sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "In Heavenly Love Abiding," the last number being sung by a double quartet, Mesdames Hart-rick, Crouse, Transom, Miss Dustin, Messrs. Barker, Wise, Dangel, Schustek.

The solo and duct parts were taken by Mrs. Hart-rick, soprano, and Mr. Barker, tenor.

A CORRECTION

Music News in its report of the benefit concert given recently at the Congress Hotel inadvertently stated the fact that this function was under an auspices which in reality had nothing to do with it.

The work of arranging the concert was done wholly by Mrs. Estella Transom and it was under the auspices of the American Academy of Music and Art, an institution of which she is the president.

The concert was a very good one indeed, culisting, as it did, the artistic services of Oscar Dies, pianist; Alexander Sebald, violinist; Hanna Butler, soprano; Emma H. Osgood, harp; Kirk Towns, baritone; Grace Keesler, accompanist; Lagertha Nielsen Traver, soprano; Antonio Sala, 'cello, and Madame Josephine Hatlanck, dancer.

Votaw—The "Hansel and Gretel" company, consisting of Margaret Tarrant, soprano; Layravine Votaw, contralto; Alice Kent, dramatic reader, and Martha Lathrop, pianist, gave their interpretation of Humperdinck's fairy opera at the Y. W. C. A. Hall, May 1, and at the Second Congrega-tional Church of Oak Park, May 11.

PUPILS' RECITAL, WALTER SPRY
MUSIC SCHOOL

An interesting pupils' recital was given in the cozy rooms of the Literary Club, in Fine Arts Building, on last Friday evening. The program might readily and with accuracy be pronounced as entertaining to a marked degree, for the reason that while piano playing occupied a prominent place there was the variety which creates much enjoyment in the presence of numbers also for voice and for violin and violoncello. There was very definite contrast, too, in the offerings, in the various stages of progress evidenced by the pupils, some being far on the road, so far as equipment and confidence are concerned, and some not so sure of themselves in the latter particular. There does not seem to be any way to overcome embarrassment save by continued appearances, and the schooled reviewer expects to encounter this in the presence of the best sort of previous training and endeavor to be ready for public appearance. There was high grade material on the list of music used, and all manner of purpose and well designed method to bring it out. In many instances this training reached a real eminence in the pupils' endeavor and carried conviction without limit.

The pupils in piano were from the classes of Mr. Spry himself and in two cases he contributed splendid second piano parts, Mr. Cedric W. Lemont, who also made himself a capital foil and sustaining mentor, and Miss Jessie M. Curtis. These pupils were the Misses Bernice Hannan, Isabel Gardner, Elsa Selz, Susan Wilbur, Edith Hasselquist, McClung, Frederica Toenniges, Ernestine Rood, Dorothy Pound, Kathleen Whitfield and Eleanor Leeming. Mr. Stein-del's pupil was Miss Elsa Toenniges. Mr. Hugo Kortschak sponsored the Misses Miller, Trumbull and Amy Neill in violin, while Mr. William Beard offered Miss Lucille Dunton in song cycle. It was all delightful music and thoroughly well enjoyed by the large gathering which filled the rooms.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

TIFFIN FESTIVAL

The annual Music Festival, under the auspices of the University Oratorio Society, Tiffin, O., was given in Rickly Chapel, April 27 and 28.

Tuesday, April 27, "The Messiah" was given by the University Oratorio Society, Frank W. Gillis, director; Helen M. Tarr, organist and accompanist, assisted by the Heidelberg Conservatory Orchestra, Prof. Steurmer, director, and the following soloists: Mr. and Mrs. John T. Read, bass and soprano; Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson, alto, and Grant Kimbell, tenor, from Chicago.

Wednesday, April 28, at 3:30 Allen Spencer, Chicago, gave a piano lecture-recital.

Wednesday, April 28, at 8:15 the soloists in "The Messiah" gave a vocal recital. In the second part of the program "The Persian Garden" was sung.

Bolger—Sunday morning, May 9, Mayine E. Bolger was the pianist at a great mass meeting of men held in honor of Mothers' Day at the First Presbyterian Church of Elmira, N. Y. Besides playing a solo number, Miss Bolger accompanied Mr. Fred R. Orcutt, violinist, and Mr. Robert E. Fish, tenor, both of Elmira, N. Y.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

MR. MOSSBERG PRESENTS "THE BOHEMIAN GIRL"

The Bjorgvin Singing Society, under the direction of Joel Mossberg, presented "The Bohemian Girl" (in English) at Bjorgvin's Hall on Thursday, Friday and Sunday evenings last.

On Sunday evening there was a large audience present, and the applause amply demonstrated that the smooth performance was much appreciated.

The chorus was made up largely from Mr. Mossberg's own pupils, and both because of that fact and also through his splendid drill it showed to great advantage at these performances and reflected much credit on his musicianship and good vocal style.

Some of the better known numbers were very well done indeed, the dressing was attractive, and the stage deportment all that could possibly be expected of a body of amateur singers.

Accompaniments were furnished by Mr. Wilmot Mossberg, who disclosed a good sense of rhythm and proved to be very helpful to the singers. The piano, however, not a good one at best, was too far away from the singers, with the result that considerable off-key singing was noticed.

Miss Louise Burton had the part of Arline, and sang it extremely well, looking the part to perfection also. Her "I Dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls" was unusually well done, and brought her a hearty meed of applause.

James Hamilton, as Thaddeus, the opposite part to Arline, sang exceedingly well in the latter part of the performance, scoring the biggest success of the evening in "Then You'll Remember Me," in which his tonal quality was very beautiful.

Miss Burton and Mr. Hamilton, in the many duets of the score, showed fine ensemble and good musicianship, and proved that they had been well chosen for the parts.

Miss Mildred Smith, a pupil of Mary Peck Thompson, was the Gypsy Queen, and at once attracted attention by the remarkable breadth and fine quality of her voice. In spite of the fact that she was just recovering from an illness, she gave her solos with great power, and in all the ensembles was fine also.

In "Bliss Forever Past," one of the strongest solos of the attractive "Bo Girl" score, she was ideal.

Mr. Joel Mossberg, besides being represented by the good work of several pupils (including Andrew McCallum and C. P. Schulz in name parts), showed himself not only a notably fine singer in the sonorous music assigned to "Devilshoof," but also again proved his histrionic ability in no uncertain terms. He was apt and strong at each point of the opera, and in the opening of the last scene was distinctly professional in his buffo work.

Andrew McCallum, in the part of Florestein, had but little singing to do, but did that little acceptably, and in his impersonation was remarkably easy and effective. The part is not an easy one to do, and this young tenor may feel certain that his effort was far beyond the ordinary and wholly as it should have been.

Mr. Schulz, as the Count, carried the part well, and sang the "Heart Bowed Down" in a way to win much applause.

There are many tricky ensembles in "The Bohemian Girl," and these without exception were well done. Particularly agreeable to the audience was the quartet, "From the Valleys and the Hills," in which Miss Burton sang charmingly and Mr. Hamilton added a beautifully ringing high note at the end, Miss Smith and Mr. Mossberg filling in the other parts with distinction.

Altogether a performance much above amateur standards and reflecting much credit, especially on Mr. Mossberg, Misses Burton and Smith, and Mr. Hamilton.

C. E. W.

WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1118 E. 65th St.
EDWARD TENOR

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, gave two students' recitals last week, one on Tuesday evening and the other on Friday. Those giving the program on Tuesday were Jessie Donaldson, Sadie Rawitch, Lucille Linneman, Emil Stumm, Edith Creighton, Fred Braeske, Elmer Schweikle, Arthur Moritz, Helen Doud, Olive McCulloch, Ethel Seavey, John McArthur. On Friday evening the program was given by students from the piano, violin and vocal departments. Those taking part were Leonard Smith, George Rezanka, George Stuhlfauth, Harold Peet, Archie Schwartz, LeRoy Schoberg, Emmett Vance, Myrtle Reuschelle, Frances Klassen, Hilda Miller, Margaret Weimer, Vernon Welge, Helen Rissman, Katherine Austin, Ralph Merrick, Jennie Simon, Bertha Goldberg, Ada Markson, Irma Schoewe. The last two are from the dramatic department.

These are the twenty-ninth and thirtieth recitals of the season to be given at the college.

Last Friday evening a concert was given under the direction of the college at the Methodist Episcopal Church at Wilmette, Ill. The first part of the program was devoted to students, mostly children under 12 years of age, who did excellent work. The last half was given by Mabel Peterson, reader; Emma Sollitt-Sherman, soprano; Theodosia Bird, piano, and Maude Tollefson, violin (the last two being members of the faculty), all of which were very well received.

ALEXANDER VON FIELITZ EVENING

A Von Fielitz evening was given by the Musical Culture Club at Masonic Temple Hall, May 11, at Streator, Ill. The program follows:

The Lily Maid Song Cycle—

Elaine Singing
He Comes
The Call of Love
In the Tower
The Return
Rejected
Friend Death

Miss Ruby Smith

Romance for Violin

Mr. Paul Vernon

Fair Jessie Song Cycle

Mrs. W. G. Foster

Songs for Soprano—

'Twas Lovely Springtime
Tief Blaue Veilchen
Grief
The Herb Forgetfulness

Miss Lenna Landes

Eliland Song Cycle—

Silent Woe
Frauenworth
Sprays of Roses
Secret Greetings
By the Strand
Child Voices
By Moonlight
Dreams of Roaming
Anathema
Resignation

Mr. Paul Vernon

Cleveland Bohnet at the piano

###

'Augusta Meeker—Mrs. Augusta Meeker, contralto, and associate teacher in the Radanovits Studio, has been engaged to sing "Elijah" at the May Festival with the LaFayette Oratorio Society at LaFayette, Indiana, May 18.

FRANCES INGRAM

MANAGEMENT

SHAW & TUCKER

ORCHESTRA BLDG. CHICAGO

GEORGE MILTON LIPSCHULTZ

Teacher Violinist Soloist

1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

Howard E. PRESTON

5434 Woodlawn Av. BARITONE Telephone Midway 4175

ANN A. HICKISCH Soprano

RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE

Personal Address, LA CROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO

Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Isabel Richardson

MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
32 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY
300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Contralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals

Hanna Butler

SOPRANO Pupils Recital Oratorio
512 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wabash 4870

CIVIC MUSIC ASSOCIATION

On Tuesday evening, May 4, occurred the annual meeting of this society, beginning with a dinner at the City Club, attended by about one hundred members.

Reports of officers for the past year were read and approved. The five executive officers were elected by unanimous vote. They are Mrs. George B. Carpenter, president; Mrs. Burton Hanson, vice president; Charles L. Allen, secretary; John F. Smulski, treasurer, and Miss Frances F. Brundage, superintendent.

Mrs. George Benedict Carpenter spoke first, laying stress upon the great need for more members and a wider co-operation among such, in order to carry out to the greatest possible extent the prime object of the association—the putting of good music within the reach of the masses.

Mrs. Carpenter gave unstinted praise and thanks to the artists who during the past year have given so lavishly of their time and talents, and called attention to the fact that with a larger membership, and therefore with larger income, not only could more concerts be given in centers where they have already been started, but new neighborhood centers of civic music could be established, with untold benefit to the residents of the same.

She also stated that artists stood ready in such numbers, to give their services without compensation, that if funds were in hand for mere expenses of administration, the number of concerts could easily be doubled.

Other speakers were John D. Shoop, assistant superintendent of schools; Karleton Hackett, of the Evening Post; Mrs. Frank Jerome; Mr. Campbell, superintendent of Fuller Park; Miss Frances Brundage, superintendent of the association, and Rossetter G. Cole, the well-known choral director.

The burden of all remarks was the uplifting power of music and the duty of the body politic to furnish music to those unable to secure it for themselves.

Miss Albie Sladek told of her experiences as leader of the Neighborhood Choral Club at Dvorak Park, and no speaker of the evening claimed closer attention than she.

Superintendent Shoop urged the association to bring about a larger use of the auditoriums of many of the public schools, and expressed gratification that arrangements had been perfected for a gathering of several local choruses into a mass chorus or saengerfest, to take place Sunday, May 23, at the Carter Harrison High School, corner Twenty-fourth street and Marshall boulevard.

Annual membership in the association costs but $2, club membership $10, and sustaining membership $50. S. N.

American Conservatory—A concert was given on Tuesday evening by the Conservatory Students' Orchestra, under the direction of Herbert Butler, at Kimball Hall. The soloists were Helen Carney, Stella Roberts, Nesta Smith and Nathan Herzhoff. The orchestra played numbers by Gluck, Mozart and Elgar.

Pillsbury—Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury will present her pupil, Miss Rohloff, in piano recital at her studio, Fine Arts Building, this (Friday) evening.

ROOT STUDIO

The second of the series of musicales at the Frederic Root Studio was given Saturday morning, by Miss Bernice Schalker, contralto, assisted by Misses Marian Pillsbury and Irma Nickel. Miss Schalker has a contralto voice of good quality, and she uses it to a fine advantage in the presentation of songs.

She was heard in a group by Schumann and Schubert, sung in a very artistic and attractive manner. As her closing group, songs by Schmidt and Hildach were sung with a fine breadth, but F. W. Root's "In Summer, When the Days Are Long" was received with much acclaim, and it is a gem and Miss Schalker sang it well.

Miss Pillsbury used her fine voice in a very effective and artistic manner. She gave a group by Ferrari, Ronald and Wekerlin that were well worth hearing, for her style is fine and her interpretations good.

Miss Nickel, who is to appear in the recitals that follow, sang on short notice a group by Cowen and Marziales that won her much sincere and merited applause.

Mrs. Violet Martens Hughes was at the piano throughout the program, playing accompaniments that added much to the enjoyment and success of the program.

H. W. P.

HANNA BUTLER'S PUPILS IN RECITAL

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Hanna Butler presented pupils of her class in a recital at the spacious studio in the Fine Arts Building. Mrs. Butler is so widely known as a singer and teacher that it was not at all surprising to find a splendid crowd in attendance to hear the work of her pupils.

She has many fine voices under her guidance, and the persons heard on this occasion gave a good account of themselves, both vocally and interpretatively, reflecting much credit upon themselves and their teacher.

Misses Irma Bliss, Sara Hillis, Marion Gross, Edna Ellison, Genevieve Barry and Mrs. Mary Harris Holmes, Mrs. Henrich, and Misses Burleigh and Rothlesberger were those on the program, singing numbers by Stern, Puccini, Schumann, David Brachelet, Rogers and Verdi.

Lilly Wadhams Moline's delightful song, "In Slumberland," was greatly enjoyed, and proves beyond doubt that another attractive song must be accredited to an American composer.

Mrs. Butler's singing of a group of songs won her the sincere and hearty applause of the audience for she is an artist that is most welcome.

Mrs. Lilly Wadhams Moline furnished splendid accompaniments, that added much to the pleasure of the afternoon.

H. W. P.

Winona—At the Conservatory of St. Cecilia, Winona, Minn., a fine program was given on May 6, by Helen Kirschstein, piano; Helen Sklenar, piano, and Clara Schad, voice. Music News last week published a program of this splendid school, inadvertently locating Winona in Wisconsin instead of Minnesota, where it belongs.

CHARLES J. HAAKE PUPILS IN RECITAL

Charles J. Haake presented three piano pupils, all young men, in a recital at North Shore School of Music, Broadway and Leland avenue, on Tuesday evening of last week.

The playing of these young gentlemen, Mark Wessel, Russel V. Morgan and Leon L. Iltis, was decidedly interesting. It was a study in contrasts, for they were as different in their manner of performance as were the compositions presented. And notwithstanding the difference in temperament, each one's work was meritorious and enjoyable. There was smooth finger technic, good touch and praiseworthy display of interpretative ability and musicianship.

Mr. Wessel opened the program with "Prelude and Fugue, B Minor," by Mendelssohn, and "Nocturne, B Major," and "Impromptu, F Sharp Major," by Chopin, and proved himself to be a sympathetic and careful player. The Chopin numbers were his best efforts.

The group including "Sonata, D Major" (first movement), by Beethoven; "Barcarolle," G Major, by Rubenstein, and "Etude Fantastique," by Friml, Mr. Morgan carried through with fine show of finger technic and most commendable style.

Mr. Iltis contributed two "Etudes," C Minor and C Major, by Chopin, and "Polichinelle," by Rachmaninoff, playing them with skill and brilliance. He also deserves most favorable mention for the manner in which he played accompaniments for the cellist, Mr. Dwight Defty, who was the assisting musician at the recital.

Mr. Defty played two groups, "Scherzo," by Van Goens; "Minuetto," by Beethoven; "Andantino," by Martini-Kreisler; and "Sonata," Op. 36 (allegro—andante), by Grieg, and "Arlequin," by Popper, and thereby proved himself to be a skillful performer. His work was thoroughly enjoyable.

C. J. B.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

On Friday evening, May 7, the students' orchestra of Northwestern University School of Music, Harold E. Knapp, conductor, gave their tenth concert, before a large and enthusiastic audience, at the university gymnasium.

The School of Music certainly deserves a great amount of credit and praise for the excellent opportunity they are giving the students in the string department. Ensemble and orchestral playing are great factors in the general musical education.

A splendid program was given, comprising numbers by Mendelssohn, Mozart and Beethoven, and it was a pleasure to note the enthusiastic and sincere manner in which the eighty members gave of their best, to make the concert a success. The "Symphony in D" (Prague), by Mozart, and the Beethoven "Symphony No. 7" were played with a fine quality of tone, a good understanding of detail and an excellent swing, that won the admiration and commendation of the audience.

Miss Julia Marshall, violinist, played two movements of the Mendelssohn "Concerto," Op. 64, displaying a good violin tone and much musical ability.

H. W. P.

FULLERTON HALL SUNDAY CONCERT

That there is a great demand for classical concerts on Sunday afternoon was proven at the second of the series given by the Society of American Musicians last Sunday, when, at 3 o'clock and again at 4:15, Fullerton Hall was crowded to the last place, and intense and enthusiastic attention was accorded a distinctly high-grade concert of chamber variety.

The program itself was rather severe, but great interest was given it, through the appearance of a large number of artists, most of whom are as yet unknown even to local fame, but each one of whom proved himself the possessor of musicianship and artistry.

The Mendelssohn "Trio in D Minor" was the gayest instrumental work of the afternoon, and was correspondingly popular. The Cesar Franck "Sonata" (piano and violin) was the most serious, and the Dvorak "Quartet," Op. 87 (piano and strings) proved to be most colorful, all of these numbers being received with great acclaim.

Not only did Mr. Hugo Kortschak lend beautiful violin tone and great musical charm to all these, but also he played superbly the "Indian Lament," by Dvorak, with Mr. Clinton Fahrney displaying much skill at the piano.

In the other three numbers the pianists were Marie Bergersen, Julia Rebeil and Nina Mesinow, all showing ample fitness for their tasks and much sincerity of musical purpose.

The only vocal number was furnished by the Chicago Artists' Quartet, a well-balanced and thoroughly artistic ensemble, composed of Florence Hedstrom, Nellie Sturtevant, Carl E. Craven and Alonzo Morsback, who gave a fine account of their abilities in Herbert J. Wightson's setting of the "Bedouin Love Song" and Elgar's "The Snow." The last named is rather an ungrateful quartet task, but in the Wightson piece there was shown to be originality and good musical style, and the audience liked it uncommonly well.

C. E. W.

— — —

Bonanno—Raoul S. Bonanno, baritone, was soloist with the Sprague Warner Chorus in a concert at the Industrial Home for the Blind on Friday evening last, delighting the audience with one operatic selection and a group of English text songs. On Sunday Mr. Bonanno was soloist at the Mangasarian lecture at the Majestic Theater, scoring great success in an operatic selection and two English songs.

— — —

Peterson—Miss Edna Gunnar Peterson played a piano recital at the Newton, Kans., Festival last week.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and 2831 Washington Boul.Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

IVY SCOTT SOPRANOST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITYBertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, EvanstonTENOR
SOLOIST

MR. and MRS.

Karl Buren SteinDRAMATIC
READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDTSOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREETCarlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

Mary Ann Kaufman in the West

Some press comment of the very successful Chicago soprano reads as follows:

Great Chorus Is Heard by Big Audience—Haydn's "Creation" Has Fine Production with Big Orchestra—Soprano Wins Honors—Oratorio Is Sung by Pacific Choral Society Directed by Warren D. Allen

Last night's performance of Haydn's immortal "Creation" at Festival Hall was an occasion of surprising thrills and the regal appearance of a new soprano. The thrills came with the tremendous tone of the male department of the Pacific Choral Society, which sang under the auspices of the College of the Pacific, and the baton of Warren D. Allen. The noble singer was Mary Ann Kaufman, who restores to the homely name of "Mary Ann" its queenliness.

Miss Kaufman sang the roles of Gabriel and Eve. Her voice has tenderness, flexibility and smoothness. It is not so brilliant as it is sympathetic; its brightness does not dazzle, but its warmth penetrates. She sings with utmost delicacy the florid phrases of "With Verdure Clad," or offers the devotional and sublime "The Marvelous Work Behold" with such big fervor, enthusiasm and released vocalism as to bring tears to the eyes and thrills to the heart. I hear the lady comes from Chicago. I hope to hear she never goes back.—San Francisco Chronicle, Sunday, April 11, 1915.

At 8:15 p. m., Haydn's oratorio, "Creation" was given by the Pacific Choral Society of 250 voices and orchestra of 80 pieces. Miss Mary Ann Kaufman was the soprano soloist of the evening. She has a luscious, sympathetic, true-steel and divinely melodious voice and sang her solos and concerted numbers in captivating style, winning golden applause in "With Verdure Clad," and "On Mighty Pens."—San Jose Mercury-Herald, April 12, 1915.

The rehearsal Saturday morning was great. It was then that the students heard Miss Kaufman's voice for the first time, and talked about her all day long, and waited to hear her again at night with eager anticipation. It was then that they first realized the magnitude of Mr. Allen's task—the orchestra of eighty pieces, the big pipe organ, the chorus of 300 voices, the dimensions of Festival Hall, the beauty of it all impressed everyone. But it was Mary Ann Kaufman as Gabriel, who won the laurels of the evening. Musical critics have written all sorts of flowery descriptions of Miss Kaufman's voice, and we shall not try to describe it. We only know that her tones are pure and beautiful and that her interpretation is exquisite. Her beauty, her charm of manner, her frank delight at her reception, endeared her to the students' hearts. No one will ever forget Miss Kaufman's soft "With Verdure Clad," or her marvelous interpretation of "On Mighty Pens."—The Pacific Weekly, April 14, 1915.

Miss Kaufman in Indiana

Miss Kaufman's voice was at its best and sounded clear and true for the highest notes as well as the lowest notes in her repertoire. The singer possesses a lyric soprano voice of unusual charm and sweetness. The ease with which Miss Kaufman interpreted the difficult selections to a nicety was a delight.

Unusually pleasing was her singing of "Vissi D'Arte, Vissi D'Amore," from Puccini's "La Tosca," and "One Fine Day," from the same writer's opera, "Madame Butterfly." Miss Kaufman was called back to repeat both songs. The intense emotion of the first selection and the delightful imaginative charm of the Japanese lyric were brought out fully in the singer's interpretation. The selection from Verdi's "La Traviata," with its ornate musical effect, introduced the evening's program and caught the appreciative ear of the audience from the very first.—The Evening Item, Richmond, Ind.

Miss Mary A. Kaufman is a young musical artist of whom Richmond is proud. Her appearance here was a notable musical event. Miss Kaufman is the real thing.—From Esther White's Little Paper, Richmond, Ind.

CHICAGO NORMAL COLLEGE MUSICALE

Monday of this week the Senior and Junior Glee Clubs of the Normal College, assisted by Helen Axe Brown, soprano, Margaret Shirley, soprano, the Leviton Trio, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, Mrs. A. M. Wadsworth, accompanist, gave a concert at Normal Hall.

The Senior and Junior Glee Clubs, under the direction of Miss Aliee L. Garthe and Mr. H. W. Fairbank, did some spirited singing that won the enthusiastic approval of the audience. The Junior Club opened the program with Randegger's "Weaving Song," and B. F. Gordon's "The Squall," sung with a fine volume and quality of tone, also in their second group was their work very effective. "Angela Mia," by Bertina F. Gordon, is a delightful song, and the club gave it a splendid reading. "'Tis Spring," by Weidig, and "Birds Are Singing," by Thomas, were given with an abandon that was very satisfying, effective and praise meriting throughout.

The Senior Club gave as their opening group numbers by Lester, Scott, Cowles. Very fine indeed was the singing of "The Tryst" and "Enchantment Waltz," for they gave them with a swing that was very catching. The second group comprised the Bach-Gounod "Meditation," Tchaikowsky's "God of All Nature," from the "Fifth Symphony," and they acquitted themselves in a manner deserving much commendation.

Miss Brown, who is always a welcome singer on any program, gave a group of songs by Delibes and Campbell-Tipton that were an unalloyed pleasure to hear. She is an artist and a singer well worth hearing, and she was accorded applause in such a sincere and continued round it is safe to say her return to the Normal College in the future would be cordially welcomed.

Mrs. Charles Orchard, as always, furnished very refined and artistic accompaniments.

The Leviton Trio (Mr. Leviton, violin, Mr. Klammssteiner, cello, Mr. Knackstedt, piano) did some highly enjoyable work, from any standpoint. Their ensemble work is fine and the tonal quality very appealing. Mr. Leviton gave a violin solo that won him much sincere applause. H. W. P.

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

May 3, 1915, at the Woman's Club, a joint recital was given by Miss Fanny Cole and Mr. John Sample, two local artists, who have recently returned from a three years' stay in Italy. Their program was devoted mainly to compositions from the Italian school, as both have been trained especially for the leading roles in the modern Italian operas. They were greeted by a large and appreciative audience.

JOHN PETERSON,
New Albany, Ind.

Hamilton Club Chorus—The Hamilton Club Chorus, under direction of W. M. Clark, with Eugene Kammerer, accompanist, gave a successful concert on last Saturday evening at the club.

Groff-Bryant—Miss Ethel Bell Reeves, assistant to Anna Groff-Bryant, presented her pupils in studio recital on last Saturday evening.

MR. DRAKE'S NEW OPERA

The gayety of the spring season may always in Chicago be confidently expected to be enhanced by the appearance of a new opera by Earl R. Drake, who, in times past, has tried his clever hand at various forms of composition but who, this year, decided to show what he could do in the way of an opera comique—one indeed which might easily be used as a musical comedy with all the frills and fluff of such a venture.

"The Mite and The Mighty" is the name of his latest effusion and it is written to decidedly clever libretto provided by Howard Hodgkins.

It is a satire on the suffraget movement

LOUIS LAMM
As Duke John

and includes in its list of characters a King, Queen, College Girl, Duke, Woman Professor, Oil Magnate, Street Arab, Executioner, Japanese Ambassador, High Chancellor, Dancing Girls, Villagers and various other kinds and degrees of man and womankind.

It will be seen at a glance that all this allows much color and action, and the company recruited from the Drake School of Music certainly made the most of these opportunities at Central Music Hall on Monday night.

The dressing was kaleidoscopic in general effect, though perfectly proper and good in each individual instance and the stage movement and pictures were all that could have been asked.

The histrionic abilities of the various participants was very good also for the most part, and occasionally rose to points of excellence.

Everybody knew his lines (with a few trifling exceptions) and the whole work was presented with vim and vigor; considerable distinction being added by the dancing of Adaline Hodkins and Hazel Nichols.

Especially comical and wholly original was the suffraget parade and some decidedly good comedy points were scored by Maurice Lipschulz, Richard Wilson and A. Schaffer.

MARGARET WILEY

The chorus was alert, well dressed and well trained, singing also persistently on the key, a feat which was not always managed by the principals.

The orchestra was made up wholly from the ranks of the students in the Drake School and played very well for the chorus numbers, where full scoring had been provided, sometimes falling a little short of adequate support in the solo numbers, however.

OTOYA MIZUKI

Fannie De Tray made a fine appearance as the Queen, and Walter Olson had a good make-up as the King.

Winnefrede La Fayette as the College Girl was very pretty, acted well and sang well, while Ernest Klein, as the Oil Magnate, did a clever bit, and G. F. Chase, as Iky Cohen, was distinctly good in his characterization and knew just when to be funny and when to subside.

Otoya Mizuki, who, as his name indicates, is a Japanese, played the part of the Japanese Ambassador to perfection.

He has absolute presence and grace of action, and he knows the Japanese manner and tradition perfectly.

His singing voice is very agreeable and in his solo he was both musical and effective and in all the ensembles in which he was concerned proved also that he has good musicianship.

"Margaret," a College Professor was played by Miss Margaret Wiley, who looked very handsome, dressed well, and sang her parts with discretion and style. Miss Wiley was certainly well prepared in her work, and gave evidence that she has much talent for the stage.

Mr. Louis Lamm was also well made up for his part, i. e., that of Duke John, and kept himself well in the picture at all times.

His singing was very good also, and showed the fact of careful study.

In fact, all the solo singers proved to chestra was again a proof that in this school a very unique and unusual opportunity is afforded young orchestra players of making actual appearances in opera and in other musical functions, which means practical and invaluable training to them.

The chorus and orchestra, totaling about seventy people, were made up wholly from the Drake School forces. Earl Drake was the conductor, and Miss Blanche Blood the assistant conductor. C. E. W.

LESTER HUGO CASTLE

Sunday afternoon, May 16, Lester Hugo Castle, baritone, Pearle La Roche, accompanist, gave a fine recital at the home of the latter before a goodly audience of friends and admirers.

Mr. Castle has a voice of a quality that is very appealing, and he uses it with discrimination in the presentation of songs. He opened the program with a group of songs by Tours, Allitsen, Wood and Huhn. From "Mother O' Mine" to the broadly dramatic "Invictus," there was much to be admired, for he sang with a fine breadth of style and a good grasp of the meaning of the songs. In the second group Speaks' "To You" was a gem as he sang it. In the closing group Buck's "Sunset" was given with a good breadth of vocal style, and a keen grasp of interpretative thought.

Mr. Castle should be very successful in his work, for he has a good musicianship, a winning personality, and an easy stage presence that should carry him far, and he will be heard again with pleasure.

Miss Pearle La Roche did her share toward making the program a success by playing accompaniments that were highly artistic and musicianly. H. W. P.

WHITE-SOWERBY

Roderick White and Leo Sowerby gave a joint violin and piano program at Grand Rapids, May 6, the Grand Rapids Herald commenting as follows:

An important and successful sonata recital was presented last evening before a large audience in the St. Cecilia auditorium, by Roderick White, violinist, and Leo Sowerby, pianist.

Grand Rapids has reason to be proud of two such distinguished sons. Mr. White has just experienced his formal New York debut, where foremost musical criterions called his successes triumphs and predicted for him a career that would fulfill his fondest hopes.

The creative and interpretative work of Leo Sowerby in Chicago has attracted no end of favorable comment and encouragement, to this gifted young pianist. He has espoused the cause of the ultramodernists particularly and is himself a composer whose radical ideas are apparent in all his work.

The young collaborators substantiated the report that they were in fine form and presented a program last evening, unique for its divergence of interest and projecting the contrast of the old and new schools. The first number was Brahms "Sonata in A Major, Opus 100," allegro amabile, andante tranquillo vivace and allegretto grazioso. This was performed with admirable deference to its spirit and rendered beautiful by excellent technical ground work and artistic finish and the perfect unity of instruments. The selection of Brahms served to illustrate the established forms of the long accepted school, the solidity of the appreciation of both players for this particular master and further illustrating the maturity of their musicianship, the necessary firm foundation for a well ordered advent into the new school.

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE

419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

It is to be remarked that both players possess vital energy (a wholesome product of youth), highly specialized technic and unquestioned eloquence of expression, all of which requisites have gravitated to them by reason of their serious, studious attitude and of their natural gifts. Each has attained that prime requisite taste, and in tone production, elasticity, warmth and beauty without prolix temperamental evidence.

The performance of the Caesar Franck "Sonata in A Major," found the audience in an attitude of breathless attention. This sonata has never been given here before. The first movement with its beautiful melodic values, stirred the auditors to an enthusiastic demonstration, likewise the succeeding movements; the allegro with its imagery, its intensity and illusive charm; the recitativo-fantasia, reaching splendid heights and finally the allegretto poco mosso, a most exquisite treatment of the motif.

The third number was a group of piano pieces by Mr. Sowerby. Beginning with the Chopin Etude, Opus 10, No. 3 in E major, he played "Grillen" from "Frantasiestucke" by Schumann, and "My Lady Dances," three waltzes by Eric DeLamarer, who has taken his position with the exponents of the ultra modern musical progress. The first two, with their unwavering regard for melody and symphonic succession of tones proved very artistic renditions. The latter is a typical illustration of the new arrangements of consecutive fourths and resulting dissonance, but indicative of the innovation. The composer succeeds in presenting through the interpreter, three tone pictures, or rather creates three moods in the mind of the listener; joy, languor and caprice in the movements of the dancer.—(Advertisement.)

Murray—Mrs. Marie Stapleton Murray, soprano of New York, was the soloist at the Sunday evening service at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on May 9. She sang "The Lord Is My Light," by Marsh, as the offertory number.

"Trojan Women"—The Little Theater "Trojan Women" Company played in Washington on May 7, Columbus, Ohio, 10, and will play in Cincinnati the 17th and in Indianapolis 18.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.
A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo. Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Axe

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
one Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

ELEANOR HAZZARD PEOCK

Eleanor Hazzard Peacock, one of the busiest of the concert artists in the central west, has booked a number of splendid engagements for the coming year. Besides being in demand for recital work, Mrs. Peacock's time is taken up with a large class of earnest and interesting pupils.

ELEANOR HAZZARD PEOCK

On May 5 she presented fourteen pupils in the following program:

An Arcadian Lullaby.....	Krogman
Love Me if I Live.....	Foot
Miss Mary Sparling
Aria—Una voce poco fa (from the Barber of Seville).....	Rossini
Miss Maybelle Heying
Gute Nacht.....	Franz
O that We Two Were Maying.....	Nevin
Mr. Russell Reader
Volksliedchen.....	Schumann
An den Sonnenschein.....	Schumann
Miss Gertrude Jones
Aria—Hear Ye, Israel (from Elijah).....	Mendelssohn
Miss Eda Clark
Melisande in the Wood.....	Goetze
Miss Flora Saunders
On the Shore.....	Neidlinger
Mr. Harold Lamb
Summer.....	Chaminade
Miss Josephine O'Brien
Aria—O ma Lyre Immortelle (from Sapho).....	Gounod
Miss Etta Glauser
Aria—With Verdure Clad (from the Creation).....	Haydn
Miss Shirley Foster
Ah, Love, but a Day.....	Gilberte
A June Morning.....	Willeby
Miss Mary Flint
Villanelle.....	Dell Acqua
Miss Maude Bissel
Aria—My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice (from Samson and Delila).....	Saint-Saens
Miss Cora Vandewater
Aria—Roberto tu che adoro (from Roberto il Diavolo).....	Meyerbeer
Miss Alice Bivins

The program was given in a way to show the most thorough and painstaking training. The voices were fresh and mellow, the diction in every case exceptionally good, and the fine feeling of each pupil for musical and dramatic values quite unusual.

On May 15 Mrs. Peacock will present in a program of characterizations one of her pupils, Miss Maude Bissel, who will give "A Life Cycle in Song," accompanying herself in some of the songs upon the harp.

On April 21 Mrs. Peacock gave a program of English and German songs for the Drama League convention, and under the same auspices a program of Shakespeare songs, on the anniversary of Shakespeare's death, April 23.

On April 29 Mrs. Peacock filled an engagement at the Michigan Agricultural College in Lansing, Mich.

On May 8 she gave a recital of songs and arias at Ann Arbor, Mich., under the auspices of the Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority, of which chapter Mrs. Peacock has been made an honorary member, as is also Mme. Schumann-Heink. Her program included arias from "Madame Butterfly," "Hérodiade" and "The Marriage of Figaro"; also German lieder, French and English songs and a group of her inimitable children's songs.

AT THE MUNRO STUDIOS

Mr. George W. Munro presented Miss Alice Hammond in song recital at his studios in the Athenaeum Building last Saturday evening, accompaniments being furnished as usual by Mrs. Elsa McMynn.

Miss Hammond, who has studied for several years with Mr. Munro, gave at this time her graduating recital, and it is understood that she is now a finished product of the Munro studios, that her voice has been properly placed and thoroughly developed, and that all her future study is to be along the line of interpretation.

It is certainly a comforting thing to know that a studio can have so definite a course, and it is equally gratifying to a pupil to know when the actual work of voice development is finished.

There is no end (except of life itself) to the growth and unfoldment of any musical personality, but to have a definitely placed voice and an absolutely smooth scale at command is surely achievement enough to be cause for much congratulation.

Miss Hammond is gifted with a contralto voice of unusual timbre, and in her program of Saturday night she showed absolutely that every tone of her range is equally strong, pliable and resonant with every other. Such things as are within her range she can handle without difficulty, and her program therefore became a very great delight to all listeners, for it was presented with much ease and perfect assurance, and there was present—in addition to the perfected voice—a goodly amount of interpretative thought.

To this writer the sacred songs seemed best of all, "Love not the World," by Sullivan, and "O, Rest in the Lord," by Mendelssohn, being sung with so much ease and authority as to clearly point to oratorio as a likely field for Miss Hammond.

The German text songs, three or four in number, by Tschaiakowsky and Schubert, proved that this young musician has the true feeling for this class of song, and the smaller French works were also given with effect, while "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix," by Saint-Saens, was sung with style and finish thoroughly worthy of the studio and of Miss Hammond's voice.

Many English text songs were admirable, also Ware's "Boat Song" being particularly suave and the "Perfect Day" and "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, developing the really finest musical feeling of the whole evening.

C. E. W.

Myrle Tyler Irons—Phineas Cohen, a young boy under instruction by Myrle Tyler Irons, played at the Holy Angels concert last Thursday and at the Mandel tea room on Saturday, with much success in both instances. Mrs. Irons will present this young pianist in recital at Kimball Hall on Friday evening, May 21.

PALMER CHRISTIAN IN RECITAL

Palmer Christian gave the last organ recital of the regular monthly series for this season at Kenwood Evangelical Church, Forty-sixth street and Greenwood avenue, on last Sunday afternoon. He was assisted by the quartet of the church, Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano; Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto; William Clare Hall, tenor, and Dr. Carver Williams, bass.

The following program was offered:

Prelude and Fugue in E Minor.....	Bach
Scherzo.....	Shelley
Prelude to La Demoiselle elue (the Blessed Damsel).....	Debussy
Chorale Prelude on Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart.....	Leo Sowerby
By the Waters of Babylon.....	Coleridge-Taylor
The Twilight Falls.....	Schreck
The Quartet
Liebestod (Tristan and Isolde).....	Wagner
Rhapsodie Catalane.....	Bonnet
Intermezzo.....	Bonnet
Nocturne.....	Ferrata
Caprice de Concert.....	Archer

These recitals have been favorably commented upon in Music News from month to month, and justly so, for they have been models as to intelligent selection and musicianly performance.

This last recital was no exception. Each number was interpreted with a skill and fine regard for effect that is habitual with Mr. Christian and has given him his high rank among the organists of the country. He knows just how to utilize to the best advantage every resource of his instrument.

The church quartet includes four of Chicago's best-known singers, and their work, always of high order, was on this occasion especially beautiful. The dramatic possibilities of the Coleridge-Taylor number were skillfully and forcefully presented and "The Twilight Falls" was a charming piece of unaccompanied singing. C. J. B.

ALBERT BORROFF AS A TEACHER

A striking example of a good singer who is a successful teacher is Albert Borroff. Always a student, he has constantly worked to perfect his knowledge of the human voice. By applying the results of his study and observation to his own singing, he is able to demonstrate to his pupils what it means to sing with understanding.

Mr. Borroff has a number of pupils singing in church and concert who gratefully acknowledge that by following the principles and practices as taught by him they have been able to do successful work. One pupil, after a season of eighty concerts, said that his voice was in better condition than when he began his tour. Another pupil said: "I have learned more and more to appreciate the work I did with you. Besides helping me vocally and musically, you taught me to think." No greater satisfaction can come to a teacher than to know that his pupils are going before an audience to sing intelligently. They will do this if they are taught to know their instrument, how to use it properly, and use their brains when they sing.

Mr. Borroff's voice is so well placed and handled and he has such a perfect style in singing that every pupil of his is marked with that surety of emission of tone and fine interpretation which has made Mr. Borroff one of the foremost singers before the public.

SENIOR RECITAL OF MISS MARGERY A. MITCHELL, SOPRANO

A large and appreciative audience greeted Miss Margery Mitchell in her graduating recital on Tuesday evening, May 4, at Northwestern University School of Music. The singer, though very small of stature, disclosed a large and resonant voice of unusual quality and range. The group of songs with violin obbligati, tastefully played by Mr. David Jacobs, was admirably rendered, "Der Spielman," by Hildach, being especially lovely.

The Gounod "Cavatine," from "La Reine de Saba," was given with an authority and finish rare in so young a singer, and the lighter numbers which concluded the program were sung with delicacy and taste.

Miss Mitchell is a Grant-Schaefer pupil, and one of the most interesting heard this season. Mr. David Jacobs played Leonard's "Fantasie Militaire" in a brilliant manner, and he was ably assisted by Miss Catteral, who accompanied him.

The following was the program of songs:

Schlafliedchen (Carl Busse).....	Hans Hermann
Marchen (Carl Busse).....	Arnold Mendelssohn
Fruhlingzeit (Carl Busse).....	Reinhold Becker
Songs with Violin Obbligati—
Unto Thy Heart (Victor Hugo).....	Frances Allitsen
Der Spielman (Hans Schmidt).....	Eugen Hildach
Fruhlingslied (Bodenstedt).....	Oscar Weil
(Violin, Mr. Jacobs)
Cavatine (from La Reine de Saba).....	Ch. Gounod
If You Have a Sweetheart (Martens).....	C. B. Hawley
Three Little Girl's Songs—
Up There! (Teschemacher).....	Ivor Novello
Daddy and Babsey (Levey).....	Levey
Daddy's Sweetheart (Burnley).....	Liza Lehmann
An Open Secret.....	Huntington Woodman

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT PRESENTS A PUPIL

Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant, director of the Lombard College Vocal Art Institute at Galesburg, Ill., and the Anna Groff-Bryant Studios of Vocal Art, Fine Arts Building, Chicago, presented Miss Mae Anna Ross, lyric soprano, in song recital on Monday evening, assisted by Miss Rose Palmer, violinist, a pupil of Dr. Cooper, and Winifred Thompkins, accompanist, in the Alumni Hall college campus in the following program:

Recitative and Aria—Farewell to the Forests (Jeanne d'Arc).....	Tschaikowsky
Staccato Polka.....	R. Mulder
Sally in Our Alley.....
Mermaids' Song.....	Haydn
When Myra Sings (words by Lord Lansdown).....	A. L. Andante—Finale from Concerto.....
Miss Palmer
Polonaise (Mignon).....	Ambrose Thomas
Hungarian Dance.....	William E. Haesche
Miss Palmer
Love, I Have Won You (words by Harold Simpson).....	Landon Ronald (Cycle of Life)
A Maid Sings Light, and a Maid Sings Low.....	MacDowell
The Chrysanthemum (words by A. B. Brown).....
Mary Turner Salter
My Lover He Comes on the Skee (words by H. H. Boyeson).....	H. Clough-Leigher
A Child's Prayer (words by Herbert Brandon).....
J. Harold
Summer Time (words by William Allingham).....
Ward-Stephens

MAC BURNEY STUDIOS

Mr. Walter A. Diederich will present his pupil, Nina Hoover Cummings, in a song recital in the MacBurney Studios on Monday evening, May 17.

FRANK W

Van Dusen

PIANO-ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELLI
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American Violinist
YOST Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

ETHEL GEISTWEIT BENEDICT SINGS AT THE MACBURNÉY STUDIOS

Mrs. Ethel Geistweít Benedict, dramatic soprano, sang a remarkable program at the MacBurney studios on Monday evening, and easily placed herself among the best of local singers.

Mrs. Benedict has voice aplenty, and she very evidently has method in such perfection that it has become merely the means to an end and, with her, this end is dramatic interpretation of songs of the widest import and significance.

Her voice is round, clear and smoothly produced and her musical feeling is always of a quality to thoroughly imbue whatever she presents with beauty.

But she has much more than this and beyond any question it is her dramatic impulse and her skill in climax building and coloring that will single her out in the future as a singer who will go far beyond the average.

ETHEL GEISTWEIT BENEDICT

The program given on Monday was a model of strength and elegance. "Lascio ch'io piango," by Handel, will distinguish any program on which it serves as opening number, while "Dubitia pur che brillino," by Faccio, is at once unusual and effective.

"Ritorna vincitor" (Aida) is better known, but is also extremely dramatic and wholly forceful. All these being done with great ease and full control over powerful forces, Mrs. Benedict proved in them her sincerity and her worth.

An entire group devoted to Brahms was full of intensity of feeling as well as of real vocal graces and served still further to solidify the good impression made, while two groups of English text songs provided the soprano with many opportunities to prove that she has wide variety of vocal equipment and an equally broad outlook upon the poetic as well as the dramatic side of life.

MacDowell was beautifully represented with his "Gloaming Shadows" and "The Swan Bent Low," Jeanne Boyd by two very recent and wholly beautiful settings of Iris text, i. e., a "Canzonetta" and a "Spring Song," Kelly's "Israfil" and Cadman's "Thistle Down" lent fine charm, and Lehman's "Snake Charmer" and "Cradle Song" added other and varied bits of color and sentiment.

Altogether a wholly worthy program as well as one of most unusual make up and one in which Mrs. Benedict's fine work was amply seconded and splendidly upheld by the artistry of John Doane at the piano.

C. E. W.

AT THE THEATERS

The Little Theater

A treat of the rarest kind it was to hear Mme. Borgny Hammer in "Rosmersholm" at the Little Theater on Tuesday evening, and every lover of the purely classic should make certain to have the same delight before her engagement there ends.

Mme. Hammer is very distinctly foreign and it requires considerable effort to follow her pronunciation of English text, but so wonderful is her facial expression and so marvelous her acting, that it would be possible to know what she were presenting even if her native tongue (Norwegian) were employed.

"Rosmersholm" is a hideous play, for, while its diction is elegant and its workmanship undoubtedly fine, it yet leads nowhere and teaches nothing whatever that is worth the effort to learn.

But this does not change the fact that Mme. Hammer is marvelous in her acting and that the entire production as given at the Little Theater is one of the utmost beauty and finish.

Mme. Borgny Hammer understands to a nicety the art of repression and she knows also how to build up climaxes which fairly glitter at the apex. She has certainly made a careful study of the part of Rebecca West and presents her with rare skill.

All other parts were well done, and the play held the breathless attention of a typical "Little" audience.

C. E. W.

Strand Theater Company

There is, emphatically, something new on view in Chicago, and those who go to the transformed Orchestra Hall to see and hear the Strand Theater Company are destined to find great enjoyment.

The basis of the program is moving pictures, but these are wonderfully "different" from most of the kind, and vastly better. Some "Kitten" pictures shown the first week were exquisite, a "Comedy" was thoroughly engaging, and "The Woman," the longer piece on the extensive bill, was really a marvel of effectiveness.

This feature of the program, however, is more or less like what may be seen in many other theaters, but at Orchestra Hall the Strand Company has inaugurated many novelties, and it is these which will attract much and growing attention.

The larger item of the music program, which is interspersed most artistically with the pictures, is an orchestra of twenty-five pieces, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Dunham, which played very attractive incidental music for the "Plays" and also gave a list of fine solos, including the Weber "Jubilee" overture, and the "Bal Scene" by Meyseder-Hellmesberger.

Mr. Alexander Krauss was also scheduled for a violin solo, but was not heard by this writer.

The quartet, engaged for this program, is one in which the individual singers are of solo excellence, and the ensemble also is of unusual value.

Miss Llorá Withers, soprano; Miss Hazel Huntley, alto; Mr. Victor Downer, tenor, and Mr. John Rankl, bass, would be difficult to excel, and their program number was presented with beautiful balance and an entirely satisfactory artistic finish.

The encore given was Carrie Jacobs Bond's "A Perfect Day," and this very popular number has very seldom received so fine a reading or been so well received by any public which has heard it.

The members of the quartet are to be soloists in alternation, and for the first week Miss Withers was chosen to sing Forster's "Mifanwy" with orchestral support, and this she did in a way to show her beautiful voice to perfection and to prove conclusively that her musicianship is beyond cavil.

She was enthusiastically recalled and graciously added an encore number, which she also sang beautifully.

The stage setting at Orchestra Hall for this engagement is something to talk about. No one could possibly have believed it possible to so transform the dingy old interior.

But with flowers, vines, fountains, etc., the place has been turned into a veritable fairyland.

C. E. W.

EVAN WILLIAMS IN THE FAR WEST

Some comment on the work of the favorite tenor:

There are no words in the ordinary vocabulary of sufficient breadth and sweetness with which to faithfully describe a voice so beautiful that it reaches the heart and soul of every person who heard it.

Such a voice is that of Evan Williams, who sang at the Pinney Theater Friday night. A wonderfully clear and sweet voice it is, beautifully cultivated. Mr. Williams' head tones are clear and bell-like with every note of music. The deep throat tones were vibrant with strength and power. His enunciation was splendid and his expression, coupled with his most pleasing manner, was beyond criticism.—The Idaho Statesman, Boise City, Oct. 31.

Evan Williams, the Welsh-American tenor, is a delightful singer, and yesterday afternoon entertained at the Heilig a large audience. Mr. Williams charmed particularly in "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Knapp, which he sang with magnificent volume and remarkable clarity. In it he struck the climax of the concert. In "My Pretty Jane" he made exquisite use of the half voice, as he did in the old favorite, "When the Bloom Is on the Rye," which he gave as an encore. Another beautifully rendered number was the aria from "La Bohème."—Oregon Daily Journal, Portland, Nov. 9.

Evan Williams, the tenor whose career as a singer has covered a period of eighteen years, made his first appearance in Tacoma last night, and to judge from his enthusiastic reception he more than filled expectations.

Mr. Williams possesses a powerful voice, typical of the Welsh singer in its sympathy and sentiment, and with an uncommon range. With the exception of a group of Welsh airs, his program was entirely in English and his enunciation is at all times pleasingly distinct. Last night the singer's voice was brilliant in the climaxes, in which the full power was displayed and the numbers sung mezzo-voce were beautifully shaded.—Tacoma (Wash.) Daily Ledger. (Advertisement.)

Warner—Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner will be soloist with the Clinton (Ia.) Choral Society on May 19 and has been re-engaged to sing at Hinsdale College (Mich.) in June, the work to be given being "Cavalleria Rusticana," by Mascagni.

TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH

On Sunday afternoon, May 30, at 4 o'clock, there will be held in Trinity Episcopal Church, the last festival service of the season. This festival will employ the services of the choristers from three of the largest boy choirs in Chicago, viz., 50 men and boys from the Church of the Redeemer, Francis A. Mackay, choirmaster and organist; 50 men and boys from Christ Church, Woodlawn, Mason Slade, choirmaster and organist, and 50 men and boys from Trinity Episcopal Church, making a fine chorus of 150 voices, under the direction of Irving C. Hancock, choirmaster and organist of Trinity, who will also play the service.

The clergy from the three churches, the Rev. John Henry Hopkins, D. D., rector of the Church of the Redeemer, the Rev. Charles H. Young, B. D., rector of the Christ Church, Woodlawn, and the Rev. John M. McGann, B. D., rector of Trinity Church, will be in the procession. Dr. Hopkins will be the preacher.

Mr. Robert Birch, the new organist and choirmaster of St. Albans Church, will play a half hour organ recital, beginning at 4 p. m. A full church greeted these choirs at their last festival service, and an early arrival is advised, if a good seat is desired.

Following is the program in full:

ORGAN RECITAL

Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor.....	Bach
Harmonies du Soir.....	Karg-Elert
Caprice Heroique.....	Bonnet
Oriental Sketch, No. 3.....	Bird
Romanza, D Flat.....	Sibelius

SERVICE

Processional Hymn, Ancient of Days.....	Jeffery
Anthem—The Heavens are Telling.....	Haydn
Evening Service in G.....	Cruikshank
Anthem—Jerusalem.....	Gounod
Hymn—All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name.....	Holden
Address.....	Rev. John Henry Hopkins, D. D.
Ascription Gloria in E Major.....	Vogrich
Anthem—Hallelujah Chorus.....	Handel
Orison Hymn—How Sweet the Name of Jesus
Sounds.....	Reinagle
Recessional Hymn—Holy Father, Great Creator.....	Smart
Postlude—Processional March.....	Whitney
The incidental solo work will be done by the soloists from the three choirs.

CAROL ROBINSON

Some recent comment:

Recital for Centralia (Ill.) Woman's Club, April 6, 1915.

Miss Carol Robinson of Chicago pleased an appreciative audience of music lovers last night with her piano recital. Miss Robinson is a musician of exceptional ability, having won several prizes by her playing. Her technic is almost faultless and her musical interpretation is good. Besides her brilliant playing, her personality won the admiration of her audience.—Centralia (Ill.) Evening Sentinel.

Cello and piano recital, Aurora, Ill.

Walter Unger, 'cellist, a prominent member of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and Miss Carol Robinson, who is rising fast to a prominent place in the piano world, gave an interesting and brilliant program.

The opening sonata for piano and violoncello was a revelation of poetry, intelligence and technic to the audience. The perfect ease with which the most tremendously difficult passages were executed and the fine interpretation of melody stamped these two as artist performers.

In the numbers for piano alone, Miss Robinson produced a wonderful variety of tone color and the contrasts of sharp staccato and singing legato were very great.—Aurora Daily Beacon-News. (Advertisement.)

IRVING C. HANCOCK

A JOINT RECITAL

Myrtle Friel, soprano; Carlile Tucker, baritone, and Antonio Sala, 'cellist, gave a recital at the Fowler M. E. Church on Monday evening, May 10, that was heard with pleasure by a large and appreciative audience.

To Mr. Tucker, the well-known Auditorium voice teacher, fell the greater part of the program. He opened with the operatic arias, "Even Bravest Hearts," from "Faust," and "Toreador Song," from "Carmen," and made a deep impression by his dramatic vocal and interpretative display in these well known and always welcome arias.

His second appearance brought to a hearing "Lungi Dal Caro Bene," by Secchi; "Heimliche Aufforderung," by Strauss; "Ich Grolle Nicht," by Schumann; "Printemps," by Vidal, and "A Fool's Soliloquy," by Campbell-Tipton. It was in these numbers that the baritone did his best work. He apparently was equally at home in the singing of Italian, German, French and English and his voice came forth with unusual smoothness, color and resonance. In closing the program Mr. Tucker sang a group of Homer's songs, namely "How's My Boy?" "Sing Me a Song" and "The Last Leaf." The first being especially convincing in that the singer used his powers of interpretation with telling effect. The last one of the group was sung in a unique and interesting manner. There abounds throughout the singing of Mr. Tucker a rare degree of musicianship, assurance in his gifts and an artistic stage presence.

Miss Friel sang a group of three songs made up with "Love is the Wind," by MacFayden; "My Shadow," by Hadley, and "Little Gray Home in the West," by Lohr, and was a welcome addition to the evening's list of good things. She has first of all a very clear, sweet voice, which is produced with fine intelligence, and her stage presence is very much in her favor. She is highly gifted in the art of making her songs wholly realistic, especially in children's songs. This was especially noticeable in the Hadley number and "Mammy's Song," by Ware, which had to be added to her program list. She was accompanied in excellent style by the versatile Mr. Tucker, who is a finished product in this art.

Mr. Sala pleased the audience immensely by his splendid playing of numbers by Saint-Saens, Chopin and Popper, to which encores were added. He is no doubt one

ROBERT MAITLAND

BARITONE

Available Season 1915-16

Management Haensel and Jones Aeolian Hall, New York

of the best solo 'cellists in America today.

Miss Wallace accompanied for the baritone and 'cellist. H. M. B.

ROY DAVID BROWN

Mr. Roy David Brown, who has just returned from a very successful recital trip in the south, will play the following piano recital at Thurber Hall on Thursday evening, May 21:

Sonata, No. 7, F Major.....	Mozart
Intermezzo, Op. 119, No. 1.....	Brahms
Rhapsody, Op. 79, No. 2.....	Brahms
California Suite.....	Friml
An Old Monastery
Mountain Cascade
Orange Blossoms
Spanish Dance
Etude in C Major (New).....	Carl Beutel
Albumblatt.....	Emil Liebling
Florence Waltz.....	Emil Liebling
Nocturne, Op. 37, No. 2.....	Chopin
Waltz, Op. 34, No. 1.....	Chopin
Prelude, Op. 10.....	MacDowell
Concert Etude, Op. 36.....	MacDowell

Music Festival and I. M. T. A. at Centralia

With comment by HERBERT M. BAILEY

The Illinois Music Teachers' Association held its twenty-seventh annual convention in conjunction with an excellent music festival at Centralia, May 4, 5, 6 and 7. This down-state city entertained the association four years ago and through that experience knew just what the musicians of the state and country would appreciate in the way of accommodations and entertainment during its 1915 convention.

It was a profitable, instructive and enjoyable four days for not only Centralia but the musicians who came from every part of the state.

A magnificent program had been prepared by the committee, which had that work in charge, and was offered with scarcely a hitch to large and enthusiastic audiences from Tuesday noon till Friday night.

EDGAR NELSON

Deserving of special praise is Mr. E. R. Lederman, president of the association during the past year, and head of the Centralia Conservatory of Music.

He was not only a very busy man during the convention, but it was largely through his untiring efforts during the past year that the Centralia meeting was completed successfully. However, there is Herbert O. Merry, John B. Miller and many chairmen as well as members of committees, who did their work faithfully and well, but space forbids going into details on their various duties.

Edgar Nelson, "Official Accompanist"

Mr. Edgar Nelson, the accompanist "par excellence," who is an ex-president of the association, and is heart and soul for the good of the cause, and takes a leading part in the life of every convention, was present throughout the four days and appeared on every program where an accompanist was needed and performed his duties with great eclat. He is a great musician, skillful accompanied, and an artist of the highest type. His connection with the many concerts added greatly to the pleasure derived therefrom. No better choice could have been made for official accompanist.

Tuesday Afternoon

At 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Mayor C. F. Lender tendered the address of welcome to the visitors, and President E. R. Lederman responded in behalf of the association.

A demonstration was then given by choruses from the grade and high schools of Centralia, under the direction of Margie Gerlach and Lydia Lee.

The important concert of the afternoon was given by Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano; Frederica Gerhardt Downing, contralto, and Sol Cohen, violinist. The artists were in splendid form, furnished a varied and enjoyable program and were vigorously applauded by the large audience present.

Mrs. Zendt was attractive from a personality standpoint, and her delightful soprano voice and rare interpretative style were disclosed in a most commendable style in two groups of songs made up with "Ein Traum," by Grieg; "L'Incredula," by Parvis; "Depuis Le Jour" (Louise), by Charpentier; "Her Love Song," by Salter; "When I Bring You Colored Toys," by Carpenter, and "As a Bird," by Hyde. The latter being dedicated to this singer.

Mrs. Downing sang "Women of Inver," by Longborough; "Soft-Footed Snow," by Sigurd Lic; "Heimlich Aufforderung," by Strauss; "Down in the Desert," by Ross; "Don't Cease," by Carpenter, and "Spring's Singing," by MacFayden. Her voice was rich and full, powerful as the moods demanded, and used at all times with artistic intelligence.

Mr. Cohen was very successful in his playing of a group composed of "Twilight," by Massenet-Hubay; "Pantomime," by Mozart-Franko; "Von Ihrem Bild," and "Hejre Kati," both by Hubay. He appeared later in the program with the "Adagio" and "Allegretto" from the "Concerto in E Major" by Vieuxtemps, which were played with splendid tone, brilliant technical display and rare finish. Mr. Cohen deserves many hearings in the best concert halls.

Tuesday Evening

A great crowd turned out to hear Rudolph Ganz, pianist, and Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano, (who took the place of John B. Miller on short notice) in an elegant recital on Tuesday night. Mr. Ganz, with all his consummate ability in both great and smaller tasks, which has won praise in all parts of the musical world, played "Variations on a Theme by Bach" (Liszt) in opening the program and closed it with a group of numbers by the same composer. In the middle of the program he played a group by American composers which included "The Night" (Huss), "Exotic Fragrance" (Hendricks), "Humming Bird" (Fruttchey), "Serenade" (Campbell-Tipton), "Country Dance" (MacFayden) and "March Wind" (MacDowell). There was beautiful tone and expression revealed in every phase of his offerings and only an encore would quiet the applause which followed his every appearance. Mr. Ganz was a notable attraction for the convention and the association was indeed fortunate in obtaining his services.

RUDOLPH GANZ

Mrs. Warner, who is already considered one of the most satisfactory sopranos in America today, did not suffer in her appearance with Mr. Ganz and easily shared the honors of the evening. She sang two groups, the first being an aria from Massenet's "Herodiade" and the MacDowell numbers, "Long Ago," "The Swan" and "The Maid Sings Light." Her second group contained "The Lass With the Delicate Air," by Arne; "Down in the Forest," by Ronald; "Little Gray Dove," by Saar, and "Life and Death," by Coleridge-Taylor. Two encores were added to this list. Her stage presence created commendable remarks on every side and a display of beautiful tone, excellent enunciation and deep musical thought adorned each and every song.

Wednesday Afternoon

Madame Sturkow-Ryder, pianist, and Herbert Miller, baritone, appeared in recital at the Opera House Wednesday afternoon and presented a charming program.

Madame Ryder wins her audience at once by a congenial stage presence and holds them completely by a few well chosen words concerning her offerings and the artistic manner in which she plays them. She created unusual enthusiasm and praise by the technic of a virtuoso which is hers in abundance and the individuality and charm of her playing the "Fantasie in F Sharp Minor" by Mendelssohn, a group of numbers by Russian composers, and "The Deserted Sands," by Rhene-Baton, and an "Etude" by Saint-Saens. The pianist was compelled to add several encores.

Mr. Miller sang "Die Mondnacht," by Brahms; "Minnelied," by Brahms; "Erlkoenig," by Loewe; "Drinking Song," by Pitt; "May the Maiden," by Carpenter; "Twas Long Ago," by La Forge, and "A Fool's Soliloquy," by Campbell-Tipton, these being divided into two groups. His rich, resonant voice was heard to best advantage in the German numbers perhaps. The Loewe was especially effective, because of unusual dramatic intensity.

MME. STURKOW-RYDER

Wednesday Evening

The program of Wednesday evening was opened by a short address read by Mrs. David Campbell, editor of Musical Monitor. The National Federation of Musical

HERBERT MILLER

Clubs, which the speaker represented, was the chief topic of her paper, and she told in a concise and interesting manner about the work being accomplished by this great organization.

The musical part of the evening's program was given by Cyrena Van Gordon and Allen Spencer, the well known Chicago teacher and pianist. Miss Van Gordon sang two opera arias by Verdi, which displayed her resources to better advantage than her songs by Carpenter, Ganz, MacDermid, Anderson, Bohm and Franz, which came later in the evening.

Mr. Spencer was the bright and artistic star of the evening. "The Three Hands," by Rameau; "Sonata in E Minor" (in two movements), by Beethoven; "Scherzo, E Minor," by Mendelssohn, and the "Rhapsodie, in E Flat Major," by Brahms, formed material for his opening group. "Prelude, Fugue and Variations," by Franck, and Debussy's "Minstrels" and "Fireworks" were his offerings at another appearance and a "Polonaise Americaine" (yet in manuscript), by Carpenter, and two "Etudes," by Liszt, were his final numbers. Mr. Spencer plays with that sureness, intelligence and finish which denotes a complete understanding of the composer and music in question. There is refinement and sincerity in every phase of his playing and his mastery of the keyboard and pedals was disclosed in praiseworthy style on this occasion. His haste to catch a train kept him from adding the encores which his hearers demanded.

EMIL OBERHOFFER

Thursday Afternoon

Leonora Allen, soprano; Edgar Nelson, pianist, and Gustaf Holmquist, basso, gave one of the most enjoyable recitals of the convention on Thursday afternoon and were greeted by a large and appreciative audience.

Miss Allen's charming personality, splendid vocal equipment and powers of interpretation are always a welcome addition to any concert and she well merited the high praise bestowed upon her singing of a group of three Brahms songs and "O Thou Bilowly Harvest Field," by Rachmaninoff; "Night and the Curtains Drawn," by Ferrata, and "Gallie," by Mokerjs, with which she closed the program.

Mr. Holmquist was heard in the beautiful "Where'er You Walk," by Handel, and "O Ruddier Than the Cherry," by the same composer. No better singing was heard during the convention than that of Mr. Holmquist in these arias. His tone was full, smooth and free and his interpretative gifts were never used with more skill. He later sang several songs in Swedish, which were greatly enjoyed, these being "Krug Heimer och Astog," by Sodermann; "Behagen," by Korling; "Till Mitt Lyertes Dronning," by Backer-Grondahl, and "Hos-tong," by Peterson-Berger.

Mr. Nelson made his only solo appearance at the convention during this recital and was given a greater ovation than that bestowed upon any artist who appeared at Centralia. After hearing his excellent accompaniments at previous recitals the music-loving people wanted to hear him in a solo performance. He evidently gave full satisfaction in the playing of the "Holberg Suite," by Grieg. He not only received the most enthusiastic applause but a beautiful bouquet of flowers as well for his efforts.

Thursday Evening

At 7:45 Thursday evening Hugo Kortschak, violinist, and James Whittaker,

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Engaged for Chicago Grand Opera Co.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupil
712 Fine Arts Building

MILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANIST
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

pianist, gave a short program. The sonata for piano and violin called "The Ascension," by Cecil Burleigh, was their first number and received a magnificent performance. Mr. Whittaker played numbers by Faure, Chabrier and Liszt in his usual characteristic style and Mr. Kortschak, a violinist, who has few equals on the concert stage of today, brought rare enjoyment to the evening's activities through his artistic renditions of a "Nocturne," by Noren, and the exquisite "Havanaise," by Saint-Saens.

At 8:30 John C. Freund, editor of Musical America, gave an address which had been looked forward to with eagerness by all who attended the convention. His paper contained, among many stories and praise for Centralia and several individuals, those topics which within the past two years have made him one of the most talked of men in the musical world. The fact that Mr. Freund has been identified with the musical life of this country for so many years naturally makes his advice and declarations of considerable weight.

Minneapolis Orchestra

The custom of bringing the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra with its distinguished conductor, Mr. Oberhoffer, to the seat of the annual convention for the closing concerts was again followed out this year.

This organization attracts music lovers from all parts of the surrounding country for the last day and brings about a true gala festival appearance to the convention. Rain on Thursday night, however, cut down the attendance somewhat for the closing day.

The program of Friday afternoon was of considerable interest because of the first production of Henry Albert Lang's "Symphony in C Minor," the prize composition of the I. M. T. A. orchestral contest for American composers.

Mr. Oberhoffer and his body of musicians did nobly in its performance. There was no one of the four movements which created any enthusiasm on the part of either orchestra or audience. There are portions of the two inner movements which should live, but we doubt seriously if the work as a whole will stand the test of many productions.

The orchestra was heard further in elegant renditions of the various movements which make up the suite, "Woodland Sketches," by MacDowell. One movement from a symphony by A. Tregina of Washington, which had been entered in the above named prize contest, was played and proved well worthy of a place in the repertoire of the Minneapolis Orchestra.

Marion Green sang a group of Carpenter songs and was well received, and Rudolph Reuter, pianist, created vigorous applause and unusual praise for his magnificent playing of the "Concerto in D Minor," by Rubinstein. Mr. Oberhoffer, with the orchestra, furnished the accompanying score in splendid style.

Marie Sundelius with Orchestra

The concert of Friday night was a genuine festival treat. Mr. Oberhoffer led his musicians through masterful readings of the overture, "In Springtime," by Goldmark; the symphony from "The New World," by Dvorak; "Romanza," by Dohnanyi; a movement from Svendsen's first symphony and the tone poem, "Finlandia," (Sibelius). Great was the appreciation shown on the part of the audience for this excellent music. Mr. Oberhoffer was recalled repeatedly during the evening and finally added an encore to the program.

Richard Czerwonky, violinist, and Cornelius Van Vliet, cellist, offered solo portions to the program which were greatly enjoyed. They, too, had to give encores.

Marie Sundelius, the charming Boston soprano, who is now on tour with this orchestra and winning unstinted praise from both public and press wherever she appears, was a welcome and enjoyable addition to the evening's program. With a beautiful accompaniment played by the orchestra, Mme. Sundelius sang the aria, "Depuis le jour" (Louise) Charpentier, with a clear, rich tone volume, distinct enunciation and intense feeling for both music and text. To this number she was compelled to add the charming Indian song by Cadman, "The Sky Blue Water." This concert brought to a brilliant close the 1915 convention of the I. M. T. A.

MARIE SUNDELIUS

Lectures, Papers, Etc.

On Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Effa Ellis Perfield, who is widely known throughout the country as the originator of teaching music by the basic principles of inner feeling, reasoning and drills, gave an interesting lesson with "raw material," in other words, pupils who have not studied with private teachers. A large audience attended this demonstration and was as usual very enthusiastic over the success Mrs.

Perfield had with this class of about twenty-five children.

Principle features of every convention for the members of the association are the many interesting and instructive lectures, addresses, papers, round tables, discussions, etc., which are given due space on the convention program.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings were given over to this line of work. Many of the most prominent musicians and lecturers of Illinois and surrounding states appeared.

Prof. E. V. Tubbs talked on "Music in High School." W. D. Armstrong read an intensely interesting paper on "Illinois Composers"; Frederic Lillebridge gave a talk on "Psychology and Pedagogics of Teaching," which should prove of immense value to all who heard him. Victor Bergquist likewise read a paper of great educational worth on "Music, Musicians and Public Opinion." His subject was handled with unusual intelligence.

D. A. Clippinger prepared a paper on "Experiences in European Studios," with some observations on teaching that was greatly enjoyed by the audience present.

Kenneth Bradley found his lecture on "The Practical Man" had been almost the same subject of a former speaker, so disclosed his ability as a speaker and knowledge of the music situation by delivering a splendid lecture impromptu.

Maurice Rosenfeld read the story of "Parsifal" which was very interesting and valuable to those who have never seen or heard the opera. Illustrations of some of the principal music was given by Zerlina

JOHN C. FREUND

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

Muhlmann, pianist, and Edwin Martin, baritone.

R. G. McCutchan of De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., told in a concise and much to the point manner what the state board of education can do for the standardization of music teaching. This was followed by J. Lawrence Erb of the University of Illinois, who talked on "The Teacher and Standardization." Considerable discussion on this important topic was indulged in and some points both for and against standardization were clearly brought out.

Adolf Weidig, another eminent Chicago musician, discoursed at length on teaching harmony and this proved one of the most interesting and instructive talks of the series.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

Effa Ellis Perfield applied these same principles to the much talked of "Standardizing of Music Teaching." Her philosophy gives one something to think about.

The following is what she said:

Does "standardizing" mean that music teaching will be raised to a certain fixed quality when teachers and students are able to answer questions, play certain pieces in a certain way prescribed by law, hold a certain certificate from some certain school, system or series?

What is the standard in the medical or healing profession? Is it allopathy, homeopathy, osteopathy, Christian Science, etc.? No, it is the result that standardizes. Bring the patient into his own. Is standardizing of music different than the standardizing of anything else? Teachers are all in favor of "standardizing," but they do not give it enough thought to know what it really means. "Commercial standardizing" is certainly not the thing wanted. The only objection that has arisen against "standardizing" is a pretended fear that some teachers' work would be below "quality" and they would be crowded out of business. The real difficulty is that promoters of certain systems of technic, etc., are not willing to be examined and standardized by another system, and they are right. Why should allopathy, homeopathy, osteopathy or Christian Science be the standard for all healers?

How can music be standardized? Only from a principle, not from a law. The thing itself must arrive before it can be recognized. First, the teacher must be able to diagnose himself and know that he works from inner-feeling. This means a combination of several things—feeling through experience or previous knowledge, feeling through the ear, feeling through the eye, feeling through the touch, feeling of discrimination and a power to choose. Next the teacher must know that he is able to reason and he must "allow" the pupil to reason and not present "excuses" in such a definite and forcible way as to lead the pupil to think they are "reasons." It is one thing for the teacher to reason, but an entirely different thing to know when the pupil is reasoning. Another important thing is for the teacher to feel and reason for himself and always be on the alert to create, not depending on the established prestige of a former teacher, and avoid a condition expressed by a well known teacher that he had taught for 25 years in the same way and no improvement could be made. Perhaps he was beyond help (interpret "beyond" as you please). If results are not in evidence why quote another? Finally, the teacher must be able to give drills that will develop the pupil into skillful reasoning and performance. This means "action" from many different standpoints. Why do a thing always in one way? It should not be necessary for teachers to buy a system in order to understand inner-feeling, reasoning and drills. It is broadening, however, to really know what others are doing.

How shall the "examining board" give unbiased judgment? By inner-feeling, reason-

He should only be tested on knowledge, pedagogy and psychology. An examination, however, should not be compulsory, because if the teacher shows inner-feeling and reasoning results, these should be enough. If the board is examining students no question should be asked as to the "system." The true test of the pupil's development should be his own work. An honest statement from the teacher as to the grade of the pupil's work when he came to him, what grade he is now studying, and how long he has studied with him is all the information the board needs. Then proceed as outlined in the article on "Credits for Music Studied Outside of School."

There is one thing that can be done that will bring about "standardizing" sooner than anything else. Believing that standardizing cannot be brought about by law but must first fully "arrive." I feel that if all teachers would state on their recital programs the nature of the performance, whether they are presenting pupil's work of the grade in which they are studying or work prepared without aid from the teacher, pupils, parents and public would soon feel and reason for themselves, and the standard would be established. Both recitals are helpful, but "self-reliant" recitals are the only recitals that show the pupil's real growth and independent development. The other recitals usually show the method. It is only fair that the public, to say nothing about the parent and pupil, should know what a recital means. If the teacher would state how long a time each pupil had taken to prepare his piece, how long the pupil had studied with him, at least give statements which would establish a basis from which all could judge through feeling and reasoning for themselves.

All teaching principles are classified and summed up in the terms of inner-feeling, reasoning and drill. These are tangible and really establish a principle for the "standardizing" of music and music teaching.

When all teachers become awakened to the fact that teaching is a science and does not depend altogether upon what they know, nor upon the "system," but upon what they are able to make the pupil know and do independently of their efforts, and are willing to make public statements in regard to their pupil's work, then will music be "standardized." Then proceed as follows:

Test the pupil's reading, rhythm, time, tempo, phrasing, pedaling, tone and interpretation by having him play at sight two, three or more pieces at least one grade easier than he is studying. Test his harmonic knowledge by having him analyze all or part of the chord structure of the piece given him to read at sight and by having him modulate from any key into any key. Test his ear by giving him rhythmic, melodic and harmonic dictation according to his grade. Test his reasoning and independence by giving him a piece a little easier than the grade he is studying and asking him to play it three or four weeks later without receiving instruction on it.

Do not stipulate the number of hours he is to practice it; let him be the judge as to how much time he must put on it in order to satisfy himself as to whether it is ready

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
TEACHING SYSTEM
is a Normal Training Course for Mothers and Teachers on how to develop music through Inner-Feeling Reasoning and Drill and how to blend

KEYBOARD HARMONY and MELODY BUILDING.
Discriminate between melody writing and melody building, a "building" must have a foundation. "Not a Correspondence Course nor a Kindergarten System." Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with Effa Ellis Perfield. Send One Dollar ($1.00) for the Constructive Drill Book. Designed to inspire creative work. Certificates sanctioned by State of Illinois.—Accredited by the Chicago Board of Education.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
Director of Children's Constructive Music page in the Musical Monitor, Official Organ for the National Federation of Musical Clubs.
950-955 McLURG BLDG. CHICAGO, ILL.

ing and drill. What other standard can there be? Each may use his own vocabulary to express inner-feeling, reasoning and drills. Analyze these words and you will find you are well acquainted with them. The railroad uses stop, look, listen. Stop is the feeling, look and listen are the reasoning, and the drill is the action; or, in other words, which way you walk. The church uses the terms spiritual, mental, moral. The Bible is holy, wise, safe. We all use the terms heart, head, hand—faith, hope, charity—love, wisdom, action—to be, to know, to do. Pianists use the terms ear, brain, fingers. Study advertisements and you will find the ones that attract are those that appeal to you through inner-feeling, reasoning and action or drill. It may be necessary that the teacher pass an examination in order to hold a certain grade certificate, although I doubt it, but there should be freedom in this. How easy for an examining board to handle even this with fairness. If the teacher is not a concert pianist, why require the performance of pieces. He is spending his life work in the developing of others, hence test him along this line, not on how rapidly he can play the scales, arpeggios, velocity studies and pieces. The teacher has a definite way of presenting the ordinary musical subjects.

to play for the examining board. Let's have "freedom," at least. It has been well said, "In things certain, let's have unity; in things uncertain, freedom."

Is it fair to grade a pupil or give a pupil credit for so many hours' work. Certainly not. The pupil who feels and reasons out for himself will work out a piece in much less time than a pupil who leans on the teacher.

There is an instance where two pupils were given same credits for the required number of hours' work. One pupil put in the time, but his work did not "arrive" because he used neither feeling nor reasoning; the other worked independently of a teacher and his work was much better, but he received only the same credits. Place the pupil on his own responsibility in a test and see what he can work out for himself.

Some time ago two recitals were given. If the playing of the pupils had been judged from a technical standpoint or by a system, the decision would have been in favor of the one which presented pupils with fine fingers, but inner feeling and reasoning gave favor to the one in which the pupils had tone, interpretation, freedom and independence, although their hand and finger positions could be criticized. Personally, I have never been able to get results without paying a great deal of attention to position and fingers, so I honestly say, "I take off my hat to the teacher who produced results without it." Use inner-feeling and reasoning and decide when the result is a matter of development and individual expression.

If the pupil expresses the "method" instead of himself and the music, then change the "method." System, method, in other words, that which develops order or good housekeeping in the heart, head and hand, is a system or method which works from a principle, and no one should attempt to teach without it. The only caution is, be careful the system or method is based on principle. For example: A teacher studies with a great pianist and teacher "abroad" who recognizes a great fault and at once presents a drill that will correct that fault. This teacher returns to his pupils and gives all the same work, no matter whether or not they are suffering from the same difficulty. This same teacher advertises that he teaches such and such a method when he only received one kind of drill and did not take in the principle. Why not use inner-feeling and reasoning?

Officers Elected

At the business meeting held Friday noon John B. Miller was unanimously elected president. Mrs. W. C. Paisley, Ottawa, was re-elected vice president and Herbert O. Merry, Lincoln, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Edgar Nelson, Chicago, and Frank Snead, Peoria, were elected on the program committee for the next convention.

The following were elected on the board of examiners:

Violin, Edward J. Freund, Chicago; organ, Rosseter G. Cole, Chicago; piano, Harry Detweiler, Aurora; voice, William F. Bentley, Galesburg. E. R. Lederman, Centralia, retiring president, was put on the public school committee.

The 1916 convention city is yet to be announced.

People & Events

CHARLOTTE BURTON

Charlotte Burton, a young violinist, is rapidly winning a name for herself among the young artists of the day. She is a St. Louis girl and a great favorite among the musicians of that city, having studied with the eminent Victor Lichtenstein and Hugo Olk, the well known concert master of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

About a year ago she came to Bloomington,

CHARLOTTE BURTON

ton, Ill., with her parents, a stranger, and as such she stepped before a large audience preparatory to giving her first program. From the first note drawn from her violin she played her way straight to every listener's heart; music lovers, mere concertgoers and critics alike. The deafening applause that broke at the end of her first number continued until it seemed that the very echoes themselves would tire, and after each subsequent number the greatest enthusiasm reigned, and all the praise and recognition that this young girl has received, not only in Bloomington, but in all the other cities where she has appeared is well merited, for she possesses a fine technic, a smooth tone and there is a surety and depth in her playing that convinces one that this little violinist is not to be classed with the hosts of violin players that are crowding our concert stages.

"She plays with the skill of one who has had the opportunity of many more years of study than she could possibly have had," says one paper, for she is a mere slip of a girl barely sixteen and quite as petite and pretty as she is gifted."

Not long ago she appeared before the Amateur Musical Club of Bloomington, Ill., giving the following program:

Concerto, Op. 42.....Bazzini
Pregiera
Andante con moto
Finale
Allegro vivace
Legende Wieniawski
Pierrot Serenade Randegger
Lieberfreud Kreisler
Hungarian Dance Haeshe

In speaking of the above program, one paper said, "She is a born artist and plays from her soul and her playing brought forth a demonstration at the hands of the audience."

Since her arrival, Miss Burton has appeared on every program of musical worth that has been given in Bloomington (which city prides itself on being one of the most musical cities in the middle west), and on the programs given by surrounding cities, and in every place she has appeared she has been enthusiastically received, highly praised and wanted again. Just tributes to her work, her worth, and her charming personality.

— # # # —

FRANCES INGRAM IN ST. LOUIS

Three St. Louis critics write as follows of the work of Frances Ingram, contralto:

Miss Ingram has been a member of the Chicago Opera Company. She musically is an American product, having obtained all her musical education in this country. She possesses a rich and powerful contralto voice, having the usual long compass demanded by modern opera composers, and is able to shade and inflect it with much greater skill than some more experienced contraltos we have had the pleasure of hearing recently.—St. Louis Republic.

Intensely emotional and dramatic was Miss Ingram, who possesses an opulent and finely trained contralto. In the aria, "J'ai perdu mon Eurydice," by Gluck, and in Salter's "Cry of Rachel." In a lighter but charming vein, she sang such lyrics as Cottonet's "Red, Red Rose," MacDowell's "A Maid Sings Light," and "Good-day Susanne," by Delibes.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Frances Ingram's rich voice was heard to advantage in the ever-pleasing aria from Father Gluck's pseudo-opera, "Orpheus," in which "Eurydice" laments the loss of her lover, who, according to Shakespeare, "with his lute made trees and the mountain tops that freeze, bow their heads when he did sing." "J'ai perdu mon Eurydice," says the text, set to quaintly old-fashioned tonal strophes. Few classic arias are better known, few so well adapted to genuine contralto intonation. Miss Ingram captured the house with this number, and after that her group of songs, including MacDowell's ever popular "A Maid Sings Light," gained this fine singer much deserved applause.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.—(Advertisement.)

— # # # —

Walker—Next week Tuesday evening, May 18, Edward Walker gives a song recital at the State Normal College, Wayne, Nebr.; May 19 (afternoon), Luther College, Wahoo, Nebr., "Celeste Aida" and duets with Mme. Zendt; May 19 (evening), Luther College, Wahoo, Nebr., "Messiah."

THEODORE BOHLMANN

Theodore Bohlmann, one of the most popular teachers of piano at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, has been connected with that institution since 1890.

Walter Chapman, a talented pupil of Mr. Bohlmann, who played the Liszt E Flat "Concerto" with the Damrosch Orchestra recently, sent him the following telegram:

Oxford, Miss., April 30, 1915.

Mr. Theodore Bohlmann,
Care Cincinnati Conservatory of Music,
Cincinnati, O.

Had enormous success. Five recalls after "Concerto" with Damrosch, who was highly delighted with performance. Played without rehearsal. Concert last night in Oxford, Miss. Promptly re-engaged for Saturday night.

(Signed) WALTER CHAPMAN.

Mr. Theodor Bohlmann was born in 1865, the son of the lawyer, Dr. Otto Bohlmann, in the little city of Osterwick, near Halberstadt, in the Harz Mountains, Germany. In the course of time he evidenced great musical talents, and was taught piano, violin, and theory by excellent teachers in Berlin and Leipzig, where his parents then resided. His father was opposed to making him a professional musician, intending him for a scientific career, and insisted that he prepare himself for the university. In 1884, after passing the examinations at the State Gymnasium, in Leipzig, he entered the University of Berlin, and at the same time the Klindworth Conservatory of Music, devoting himself more especially to music, however, and his father, seeing the great results achieved, became reconciled to his son's chosen artistic career. After three years of study Mr. Bohlmann gave a concert on the 3rd of March, 1888, assisted by the Philharmonic Orchestra, F. Kogel, director, that immediately placed him in the front rank of the young pianists of the day. From that time on his career has been a series of uninterrupted successes. Klindworth, Moszkowski, and d'Albert are the masters who took the greatest interest in Mr. Bohlmann, and through their influence he has become what he is.

Dr. Hans Von Bulow was one of the most enthusiastic applauders at a concert at the Berlin Philharmonic, when Bohlmann played the Rubinstein "Concerto in D Minor."

Since he came to America Mr. Bohlmann has also devoted a great deal of attention to chamber music, and has performed, in connection with other great artists, almost all classical duets, trios, quartets, and quintets, besides a tremendous list of novelties in this line. His analytic remarks in both solo and ensemble programs have won for him a reputation as one of the first lecturers of the country. Mr. Bohlmann has concertized extensively, and has been appointed visiting director in many of the leading schools through the South. His appearances with orchestra in this country have been with the Theodore Thomas and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestras in Chicago, Cincinnati, and other cities.

CHRISTINE MILLER'S BOSTON SUCCESS

Some newspaper comment on her appearance as soloist at the Centenary Festival of the Handel and Haydn Society, April 14, 1915:

Miss Miller sings with a quick intelligence and a just feeling that heighten the beauty of her tones.—Evening Transcript.

Miss Miller, a contralto, for some reason heard too little in this city, had the place of honor on the program. The voice is a beautiful one, used with true skill and artistic sense. It possesses color admirably suited to this music. The singing indicated interpretative perception of a high order.—Globe.

The chief honors go to the baritone and the contralto, who sang their arias with great vocal and interpretative command. Miss Miller gave a full-voiced and brilliantly phrased study of the "Joan of Arc" aria. Her reading of the text had dramatic attractiveness, and her performance of the melody had great technical interest.—Christian Science Monitor.

Miss Miller, who has a contralto voice of extensive emotional range, sang the famous aria with a sweetness and strength of tone seldom heard.—Daily Advertiser.—(Advertisement.)

Scofield—Mrs. Harriet Buck, a pupil of Mrs. W. C. Scofield, will give a song recital at Kimball Hall on Wednesday evening, May 19.

HARRISON'S STUDENTS MAKE GOOD

Mr. Albert Lindquest, the distinguished Swedish tenor, who for the past year has been a student of Professor Theodore Harrison, head of the vocal department of the University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan, is now on tour with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on its spring festival tour, during which time they will cover about nine thousand miles, and appear in about sixty different cities.

Mr. Lindquest has been making a wonderful name for himself, and everywhere is winning the admiration of patrons and critics. The Des Moines (Iowa) Register and Leader, under date of April 22, in an article concerning the festival at Drake University, singles Mr. Lindquest out as follows:

Albert Lindquest, the tenor soloist, was the sensation of the evening. Though he had sung with superb voice and good interpretation the Puccini aria, "Che Gelida Manina," from "La Boheme," and followed with the much loved "La Donna e Mobile," from "Rigoletto," the audience would not be satisfied and the applause sounded louder and louder as Mr. Lindquest came forward a half dozen times or so and bowed his thanks. The program was practically held up until the young tenor sang the translation of his encore. Even then another outburst on the part of the audience seemed imminent.

Mr. Lindquest sang in Des Moines for the first time several weeks ago and created quite a furore. His triumph was repeated last evening. His superb tenor voice, strong, clear and full of the freshness and fire of youth, seemed to sweep his audience before him.

The tremendous success which Mr. Lindquest is making in this public way reflects great credit upon his distinguished maestro, Mr. Theodore Harrison.

Miss Leonora Allen, the distinguished soprano, another Harrison student, who is to be heard at the Ann Arbor May Festival, and who at the present time is giving a series of concerts through the west, is also meeting with great success, and is fully living up to the splendid reputation which she has already made. (Advertisement.)

GAYLORD YOST IN RECITAL AT INDIANAPOLIS

Gaylord Yost, the composer-violinist of Indianapolis, appeared here in a recital given in the sculptor court of the John Herron Art Institute, Sunday afternoon, April 25. That Mr. Yost has faith in the American composer may be seen by the program below. He was one of the first violinists to play the John Alden Carpenter violin and piano "Sonata" and introduced it for the first time to Indianapolis music lovers three years ago. Mr. Yost is also responsible for bringing to the notice of our musical public for the first time the Spalding and Burleigh numbers which were most enthusiastically received and so well liked that he was recalled a half dozen times by the large and appreciative audience. Mrs. Frank Henry was the accompanist. The program follows:

Sonata, A Minor (1675-1750).....Veracini
Six Pictures (dedicated to Mr. Yost).....Cecil Burleigh Distance
Rocks
Ripples
Hills
A Mirage
Murmurings
Prelude
Musical Period No. 1
Scherzo giocoso

}.....Albert Spalding

SIBYL SAMMIS-MAC DERMID IN RECITAL

Some comment from the Cairo Evening Gazette:

No more absolutely satisfactory musical entertainment was ever given in Cairo than the performance of Sibyl Sammis-MacDermid, Tuesday night, under the management of the Fortnightly Musical Club. Mrs. MacDermid's beautiful voice, exquisite interpretations and magnetic personality won the audience from the first moment she began to sing and every number rendered added to the conquest. The versatility of this wonderful artist is remarkable. She gave the simplest melody and the most difficult operatic scenes with equal ease and charm, from the thrilling Massenet number, "Scene du Miroir," from "Thais," to Liza Lehman's delightful "Guardian Angel." Probably the most popular songs on the program were those composed by her husband, James G. MacDermid, who also played the piano accompaniments.—(Advertisement.)

— # # # —

Strand Theater Company—At the Strand performance this week, at Orchestra Hall, Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto, is the soloist, singing "My Heart at Thy Dear Voice," from "Samson and Delilah." Next week John Rankl will be the soloist, using the big aria from "Le Cid," by Thomas.

"WILL O' THE WISP"

Scherzo-Toccata for the Organ
By Gordon Balche Nevin

has been given the strongest testimonials of any organ number published for years. It takes splendidly with the public, and is a most grateful piece to play.

Price, 75c

subject to sheet music discount.
Procure through your dealer or

CLAYTON F. SUMMY CO.
PUBLISHERS

64 E. VAN BUREN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

For a Summer Festival!

Why Not an Operetta for Male Voices?

Try

"Captain Van der Hum"

Book and Lyrics by

MAUDE ELIZABETH INCA

Music by

W. Rhys-Herbert

Vocal Score $1.00

If, however, you prefer, rendering an operetta for ladies or mixed voices send for our list.

J. Fischer & Bro. New York
7, 8, 10 and 11 BIBLE HOUSE (Astor Place)

May Festival at Valparaiso

The annual May Festival at Valparaiso, given during the past week, was a distinct success and not only offered the thousands of students of the University and the townspeople a fine list of artists of national and international reputation, but also served to prove very conclusively the immense value of the school of music of the university itself.

The work accomplished by the local chorus on the opening night was of the finest

"The Messiah"

Tuesday evening, May 4, the annual May Festival in Valparaiso, under the direction of the Conservatory of Music of Valparaiso University, opened very successfully with a superb performance of "The Messiah" under the direction of O. E. Weaver. Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; Gustaf Holmquist, basso; David Dunbar, tenor; William Zeuch, organist;

HENRY B. BROWN
President Valparaiso University

description and the other attractions of the week were varied and valuable.

"The Messiah" soloists were wholly acceptable. Miss Lucille Stevenson has long since gained the reputation as being second to none in the soprano solos, Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon has a lovely voice, and style and great authority in oratorio, as also has Mr. Gustaf Holmquist, who at Valparaiso scored an unqualified success and raised the hope that he would soon be heard there again. Mr. David Dunbar completed a satisfactory quartet.

The engagement of Myrtle Elvyn for the second night also proved to be a good choice, while the Zoellners on Thursday scored one of the greatest artistic triumphs ever recorded in Valparaiso, and the Paulist Choiristers on Friday night made hosts of friends with their agreeably arranged and vividly contrasted program under the suave direction of Edward Collins.

Anna Ward Morony, pianist, were the soloists.

Mr. Weaver is a conductor well worth while, and a distinct credit to the school, of which he is a faculty member. His directing is forceful, magnetic and musicianly. He gives his singers the greatest attention and gains splendid results, for he knows what he wants and gets it.

The chorus of two hundred fresh, young voices taken from the student ranks, sang the difficult "Messiah" music with telling effect, not only did they sing with power and finish, but they gave out the message of "The Messiah" with great sincerity. The shading, attacks and releases were well taken, and under the baton of Mr. Weaver, they brought out all the finer touches of light and shade, and with a unanimity of feeling that was most harmonious and beautiful to hear throughout the evening in the many fine numbers allotted to the chorus.

Mr. Weaver merits only the highest praise for the splendid work accomplished, and his resourceful directing can be long remembered. Miss Stevenson, Mrs. Gannon, and Mr. Holmquist are oratorio artists of the first rank, and they each brought to their solos superb intelligence, vocal artistry, unfailing charm of interpretation, and a thoroughly convincing oratorio style that is vital and might well be taken as an example by many. Mr. Dunbar did some commendable singing during the evening.

Mr. Zeuch was a tower of strength at the organ, and the support he gave was a model of elegance in organ accompaniments. Anna Ward Morony, at the piano, left nothing to be desired, and her work deserves the highest praise. H. W. P.

h h h

The Second Night

On Wednesday evening Myrtle Elvyn gave a piano recital—Music News not finding it possible to be present.

She is reported to have made a success in the following program, adding also many encores:

Caprice (from Alceste).....	Gluck-Saint-Saens
Minuet G Major (originally for the violin).....	Beethoven
Rhapsodie, E Flat Major.....	Brahms
Sonata Appassionata.....	Beethoven
Allegro assai
Andante con moto
Allegro ma non troppo
Lotus Land.....	Cyril Scott
Etude de Concert.....	MacDowell
Caprice Viennois.....	Kreisler
Schoen Rosmarin.....	Kreisler
Rigoletto Paraphrase.....	Verdi-Liszt
Twelfth Hungarian Rhapsodie.....	Liszt

h h h

The Zoellner Quartet

Thursday evening threatened rain (which indeed came down in torrents after the audience was safely in Festival Hall), but in spite of this a remarkable audience came together to hear the Zoellner Quartet, an organization which has often been written about most favorably in Music News and which consists of Joseph Zoellner Sr., his two sons, Joseph Jr. and Amandus, and his daughter, Miss Antoinette.

The ensemble (two violins, viola and cello) is a magnificent one, and the program offered was of the very highest type of excellence.

This writer has attended many music functions at Valparaiso and, knowing full

THE ZOELLNER QUARTET

UNIVERSITY PLACE, VALPARAISO, IND.

THE CONSERVATORY, VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY

well the fine standard maintained at the School of Music at the Valparaiso University, has not marvelled at the fine degree of musical intelligence displayed by the festival audiences.

The audience of Thursday evening, however, was so altogether exceptional as to cause distinct surprise, and it was likewise—and just as emphatically—a great credit to the town and the university.

For, in spite of the fact that the Zoellners offered a program of pure music in absolutely classic style, without one single hint of sensationalism, this audience listened with concentrated attention, absorbed with avidity, every movement and applauded the whole with sincere enthusiasm.

The program was indeed an artistic delight. In the Beethoven "Quartet," Op. 18, No. 2, there was perfect ensemble and such touches of individual excellence as proved the Zoellner Quartet and each of its individual constituents to be of superb calibre.

In the "Humoresca" and "Intermezzo," from the "Quartet," Op. 13, by Ippolitof Iwanow, there was, of course, more color than in Beethoven and more virtuoso display. The two numbers were brought into effective and artistic contrast, and served to complete the captivation of the audience.

In the "Andante Cantabile" (Tschai-kowsky) Mr. Joseph Zoellner Jr. had opportunity to show how beautifully he can make his 'cello sing, and Miss Antoinette had some grateful opportunities for individual display of violinistic graces.

The "Scherzo," from the "Suite," Op. 35 (Glazounow) proved ensemble virtuosity in abounding measure, and the "Orientale," took the audience off its feet with its barbaric brilliance and unique charm.

Two encores were allowed, (1) a "Minuet," written in the sixteenth century, by Vallusin, and which was played with exquisite charm by the Zoellners; the final number being "Genius Loci," by Thern, a work still in manuscript, but one of infinite delight and most beautifully suited to the powers of the Zoellners.

No solos were offered, except by Mr. Amandus Zoellner (violin), who played the "Canzonetta," from the Tschai-kowsky "Concerto," Op. 35, with the most ravishing beauty of tone and with display of artistry, Mr. Joseph Zoellner Jr. playing an equally effective accompaniment.

As an encore he played the "Liebesfreude," by Kreisler, this being the nearest approach to popularity of the evening and being done with brilliant display of virtuosity.

After hearing the Zoellners in this concert, one does not wonder at their all-season success through the west, and it is a pleasure to know that they will again tour the west next year.

O. E. WEAVER

They left Valparaiso on the 11:30 train for the east, their next concert being in Buffalo, and the summer is to be spent in the vicinity of New York.

The Closing Night

A great audience was attracted on Friday night to hear the Paulist Choristers from Chicago, with a goodly array of soloists.

These singers have not been heard since the baton had been assumed by Mr. Edward Collins, and it is a pleasure indeed to record his great success.

The exquisite tonal quality always distinctive of this choir is still very much in evidence, and one will wait long and travel far before hearing more beautiful work than was done on Friday night in "Drink to Me Only," "Oft in the Stilly Night" and "Last Night the Nightingale Woke Me," while the "Sanctus and Benedictus," from the Gounod "St. Cecelia Mass," were true examples of churchly style and musical finish.

The program was largely—and most appropriately and beautifully—made up of sacred music, and it required but the opening number, "Ave verum," by Gounod, to put the audience thoroughly en rapport with the director and the singers, and this sympathy was maintained until the last number, which was the "Hallelujah," from "The Messiah," when much technical virtuosity was displayed, but which was sung so fast as to destroy its usual religious aspect.

Brahms and Tschai-kowsky were also represented on the program, and Mr. Collins had to bow acknowledgements for the choir repeatedly after every number, and might easily have added many encores.

Mr. Collins, at the baton, is easy and graceful. He gives the visual impression of perfect control, and the singing of his "boys" certainly was eloquent proof of his musicianship.

To his other gifts must be added the fact that he is a wonderfully good accompanist, and on Friday evening all the soloists reaped the benefit of this accomplishment.

EDWARD COLLINS

The first soloist was Frank Dunford, whose splendid basso voice was heard to unusual advantage in "Fear Not, Ye, O Israel," by Dudley Buck, a number he sings with unction and power. In his broadest tones and most dramatic moments he electrified the audience, and in the gentler passages he gave a fine display of what may be done in mezzo, piano and even beautifully maintained pianissimo by a well-schooled voice. For encore he sang the

THOMAS McGRANAHAN

Homer "Banjo Song," giving an especially fine illustration of intelligent text enunciation and coloring.

The fine tenor voice of Mr. Thomas McGranahan at once riveted attention on his solo appearance and won for him a very great outburst of enthusiasm at the close of his number, the "Cujus Animam," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."

Mr. McGranahan has appearance, voice and musicianship, and to these he adds unusual grace and intelligence of musical expression.

Tours' "Mother o' Mine," used as an encore, showed him at his very best, and was extremely well liked. The very best number of the evening was the duet "Watchman, What of the Night," by Sargent, sung with immense virtuosity and finish by Mr. McGranahan and Mr. Dunford. It secured a great number of recalls.

Mr. W. H. Owen, a tenor with beautiful voice and good musical intelligence, gave great pleasure in the Stainer duet "Love Divine," sung with Master James Warren, soprano.

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School Auditorium Bldg.

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV TEL. IRVING 5710

Master Warren sang as a solo "Angels Ever Bright and Fair," by Handel, with much musical feeling, but a very peculiar vocal display. He has two voices, evidently, a soprano and a contralto, using the first quality skillfully, but "swallowing" the other, just like many mature singers of the type.

Stuart Macomb, whose voice is a beautiful one and who showed much skill and taste in "Teach Me to Pray," by Jewett, and "My Redeemer and My Lord," by Buck, pleased the audience very much for the most part, but had the misfortune to go off key considerably. This may have been due to the bad placing of the piano, and was observed in other solo numbers also.

The best liked of the boy soloists was Jack Lafebre, who displayed a very sweet voice and prima donna accomplishments in "The Lass with the Delicate Air," by Arne. In "The Last Rose of Summer" he had the misfortune to mix up his text rather badly, but when he repeated the last verse, on encore demand, he showed his pluck and his skill by completely rectifying the error, and he thus won a storm of applause.

FRANK DUNFORD

The attendance throughout the festival was excellent, and its financial success was probably commensurate with its artistic joys.

The School of Music

Valparaiso, always beautiful and just now at the height of vernal loveliness, is very much a city of "down dale and up hill."

As you climb the last one, toward the University Office (called College Hill), there is heard in the distance a mighty humming, as of a giant bee hive.

If you follow this up, you may presently discover that individual tones out of the mass are made by cornet, cello, voice or piano and, coming still nearer, you will find that these tones proceed from Music Hall.

This well-built place is the home of the School of Music, and Kimball Hall in Chicago, at its best (or worst), could never hope to vie with this industrious music center.

There are upwards of seventy practice rooms in the building, and fully seventy-five pianos. To carry the Kimball simile further, it may be stated that every piano ever used at Valparaiso University has been of the Kimball manufacture.

In Music Hall all of the teachers are to be found also, and it is indeed an interesting place.

Frank Kendrie, violinist, was seen for a moment, just previous to his weekly flitting to South Bend, where he spends his weekends; a glimpse of Mr. E. W. Chaffee, engaged with a harmony class, was had through a glass door, and visits were made with Mr. O. E. Weaver and Mabel Spooner-Schuldt, the latter remaining in the building through the lunch hour because she was too busy to go out.

Mr. Harry B. Hite, a piano pipil, was interviewed and was appointed representative for Music News at the university.

President and Mrs. Brown, with their daughter Ruth, were cordial, as always, and Mr. Kinsey again said how glad he was to welcome Music News. Fanny Amstutz-Roberts, history of music teacher, and Mr. H. B. Roberts of the Vocal Department were visited and, like the other teachers, told of the wonderful prosperity of the school.

On every side, at Valparaiso, was heard extremely laudatory comment of the fine chorus which appeared in "The Messiah," under direction of Orlee E. Weaver. Mr. Weaver certainly demonstrated his musicianship in a great way, and his intelligence and artistry were admirably reflected in the work of his chorus.

There are many unusually good voices studying at the School of Music this year, and their work in "The Messiah" chorus is acknowledged to have excelled anything heard at former festivals.

The Conservatory, besides the chorus mentioned above, maintains a Chapel Choir, the University Orchestra, the University Band, the Mandolin and Guitar Club, the Lyric Club and the Glee Club.

The faculty list is as follows:

Henry B. Brown, A. M., President of the University.

Oliver P. Kinsey, A. M., Vice President of the University.

Josephine Gilmore, Ph. B., Registrar of the Conservatory.

Edmund W. Chaffee, Piano, Harmony.

Fredrik Nelson, Piano.

Mabel Spooner-Schuldt, Piano.

Harriet Bruce-Roe—Piano, Voice.

Clarence Loomis—Piano.

Orice E. Weaver, Voice, Public School Music.

Helen Axe Brown, Voice.

Hugh R. Roberts, Voice.

Frank E. Kendrie, Violin, Viola, Violoncello.

Charles Quinn, Clarinet, Flute, Cornet, Saxophone, etc.

Mrs. J. E. Roessler, Guitar, Mandolin, Banjo.

Fannie Amstutz-Roberts, History of Music.

O. E. Robinson, Public School Music.

C. E. W.

Hastings, Mich.—Cowen's cantata, "The Rose Maiden," will be given in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Hastings, Mich., May 14, by high school chorus of one hundred and seventy-five voices, assisted by the following quartet: Mrs. Maude Stewart Tucker, soprano, and Miss Leva Castelein, contralto, of this city; Mr. P. A. Lenhoof, baritone, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mr. Stanley Perry, of Kalamazoo, will sing the tenor part.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY
NOTES

On May 6 a piano recital was given by Miss Louise Bundschu, a talented pupil of Frederic Shailer Evans.

At the opera performance on May 7, acts were given from "Faust," "Aida" and "Mignon" by talented pupils from the classes of John A. Hoffmann, Dr. Fery Lulek, with an orchestra under the baton of Pier Adolfo Tirindelli.

On Wednesday evening, May 12, at the conservatory, Mr. Kraupner presented his two talented pupils, Bess Maxfield and Allie Grant, in pianoforte recital.

Mr. Bernards Strum's violin class was presented in an exceedingly interesting program recently, those appearing being Clare Yarwood, C. Ralph Weil, Philip Dreifus, Lucile Blakely, Oliver Kilb, Ruth Ritchie.

This Friday evening, Chester Moffatt, baritone, a very talented pupil of John A. Hoffmann, will give an unusually attractive program of songs.

Miss Carol Perrenot, pupil of Mr. Theodor Bohlmann, will give a pianoforte recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music next Saturday evening, May 15. She will give an attractive program, which should assure her a large audience.

The regular Saturday students' recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music presented the following students from the classes of the Messrs. H. Ray Staater, Hugo Sederberg and Marcian Thalberg, Robert Eschenbach, Catherine Theising, Robert Childe, Virginia Lord, Janet Watt, Helen Atchison, Elizabeth Barbour and Mary Doser.

Miss Bess Maxfield and Miss Allie Grant, pupils of Mr. Wilhelm Kraupner, gave a joint piano recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Wednesday evening, May 12.

The Lexington (Mass.) "Pageant of Peace," which, as one of the most considerable projects of its kind ever given in New England, is attracting widespread attention, has a personal interest for Cincinnatians, since the music is from the pen of Chalmers Clifton, the gifted Cincinnati Conservatory of Music alumnus, who recently renewed his local ties on the occasion of his conducting "Pan and the Star" at Emery Auditorium under the auspices of the MacDowell Club. Mr. Clifton was commissioned to compose the music for this notable New England occasion during the winter and wisely arranged for an out-of-doors orchestra, with an array of wind instruments to replace the indoor strings. He himself will lead the orchestra and chorus, which will be of heroic proportions to suit the occasion. The date of the pageant is announced for June 21, 22 and 23.

The Cincinnati Conservatory of Music presented Miss Louise Bundschu, pupil of Mr. Frederic Shailer Evans, in her graduation recital last Thursday evening. Miss Bundschu proved herself a pianist of excellent attainments and considerable individuality in the facile manner with which she gave her program. She commands a fluent technique, is thoroughly musicianly in her interpretations and exhibited gifts well worth cherishing.

Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli presented in recital three of his talented pupils Monday evening, May 10, Mr. Eldon Murray, accompanied by Miss Inez Gill, was heard. Tuesday evening, May 11, was assigned to Miss Emilie Rose Knox, niece of Miss Emilie McVea, Dean of Women at the University. Miss Knox is very favorably known to Cincinnati audiences through successful concert work for several seasons past. She had the able assistance of Mr. Jos. W. Clokey, at the piano. On Thursday evening, May 13, Mr. Robert Schenk gave his graduation recital. Mr. Schenk's most recent success was scored as soloist with the Conservatory Orchestra at Emery Auditorium.

Sprague Warner Employees—The employees of the Sprague Warner Company have formed a male chorus, which has attained much proficiency under the direction of Mr. L. J. Thiele. A concert is to be given by this ensemble at the Central Y. M. C. A. Auditorium on May 20.

Thompson—Miss Vera C. Ward, an artist pupil of Frank Olin Thompson of the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, Milwaukee, gave a piano recital before the Fond du Lac Music Extension Society, April 28, scoring a decided success.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

The last number in the Philharmonic course, under the local management of Mrs. C. F. Herbert, was given at the Potter Theater, April 23. This consisted of the Barrere Ensemble of wind instruments, a group of artists under the leadership of George Barrere.

In spite of the fact that chamber music of this style is unfamiliar to the average concertgoer, a large and appreciative audience greeted these nine players, and while at no time was there an enthusiasm such as has been shown on other occasions, the tense and breathless attention, which accompanied everything the players did, gave evidence of the highest kind of appreciation of their beautiful and refined playing. It was an evening of pure tone, free from all the frictional sounds which accompany the strings and heavier instruments of a full orchestra, and although the lack of a heavier backing for this tone was noticeable at first, the attention was immediately drawn from it by the delicacy of effect and the perfect unison of attack which characterized even the most difficult passages. The program contained compositions from Mozart, Lefebvre, Beethoven, Chadwick, Pfeiffer, deWailly, and Gouvy.

Mr. Howard Edward Cavanah presented his pupils in an interesting and enjoyable vocal recital at the Congregational Church, April 30. Those who appeared were the Misses Genevieve Carle, Natalie L. Beach, Zetta Duval, May Duval, Lucy Ruiz, Nana Sentell, Grace Grubb, Mrs. C. E. Phoenix, Mrs. Hazel L. Hummel, Messrs. Paul Brooks and Edward J. Hummel. The program closed with the tenor aria from "La Boheme" by Mr. Cavanah.

A. B. BARRETT.

Owens—The soloists for the successful "Elijah" performance at Plymouth, Ind., last week were all from the H. W. Owens Vocal Studio in Chicago. They were Lillian Landwer, Ethel Stout, Harlan Haines and Carl Brown.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS--NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING--608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency 28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - 'Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

Chicago: 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore, Md.: Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y.: Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo.: New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.: Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago, Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfson Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

CONCERT OF THE THURSDAY MUSICAL CLUB

A cordial reception and an interested audience was given the participants in the program offered at the special function of the Thursday Musical Club, held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John R. MacArthur on West Eighty-fourth street, on the evening of May 6.

The Thursday Musical Club in general—its members and admirers—and Mrs. MacArthur, its amiable and interesting president, may be congratulated upon the outcome of the affair.

The program was upon a high plane generally as to choice of numbers and excellence of execution and interpretation.

The star attraction, of course, was the appearance and playing of the Kneisel Quartet—a steller group indeed—of the fascinating Quintet of Schumann, Opus 44, in which Mrs. MacArthur presided well at the piano, and the Richard Strauss Quartet, in which Mrs. Bennett distinguished herself.

I am informed that three weeks before the concert it was a moot question as to who would be the pianist of the Quintet—Mrs. MacArthur had with her accustomed modesty decided to be a looker-on in Venice—a part of the audience. However, several ladies to whom the opportunity was offered of distinguishing themselves as Schumann exponents, decided that discretion was the better part of valor (at least I am forced to conclude that such a state of affairs existed), and turned a backward, fleeting glance upon the prospect.

It behooved the president to step into the breach and with a brief three weeks or less for preparing a serious and difficult work of art, make possible the performance of this grateful and appreciated and well known composition.

Notwithstanding her many duties and cares, Mrs. MacArthur was not found wanting, and on Thursday evening she officiated at the piano, looking like a very delectable, celestial yet altogether human angel in a gown of sheerest white maline, with touches of pale blue in glittering broderie.

She acquitted herself nobly of her task, playing with that assurance and authority which is in itself one of the most precious and desirable of qualities for the performing artist.

Mrs. MacArthur plays without self-consciousness. One feels her absorption in the work engaging her attention. It is also a happy asset of the musician. On this occasion she entered into the spirit of the work, and her conception of the attitude of the ensemble virtuoso helped admirably in sustaining the level upon which the performance of this quintet maintained itself.

Her efforts were magnificently supplemented by the celebrated quartet which has long enjoyed the enviable reputation of being one of the leading ensemble aggregations of the world.

An organization so perfectly balanced, with that grave, amiable, adorable disciplinarian, Franz Kneisel, zealously animating its endeavors, and lifting it higher and higher in the realm of perfect achievement, must perforce have supplemented the pianist's offering with an atmosphere ideal and satisfying.

Schumann demands much in the setting forth of his ideas. His counterpoint is never so elaborate as to overbalance and overshadow the high significance of his theme. His is a genius at once sane and lofty; a relief in this day of overmuch straining after effect, and destruction of musical perspective, and due respect was accorded his noble and notable masterpiece by the earnest artists engaged in demonstrating its exquisiteness to the assembled music lovers.

The Second Movement, the "Modo d'una Marcia," so superbly idiosyncratic of its creator, is truly a sonorous, impressive funeral march; and one which renders the ever popular Chopin March somewhat tawdry in its conception—somewhat sugary and banal in fact.

The first and last of the five movements into which Schumann has divided his Quintet were rendered with all deference to the brio, sparkle and brilliancy demanded, and as a whole it left little to be desired in interpretation, style and development.

Mrs. Bennett was the pianist who aided the Kneisel Quartet in making the performance of the Richard Strauss Quartet a significant achievement.

The work itself is eventuated in brilliant style—the style of a decidedly anti-conservative, and a brilliant treatment was accorded it.

Mrs. Bennett plays with the authority of a serious student of her favorite instrument, and proved an admirable balancing factor in the dashing Quatuor. She appears to have an innate feeling for the quasi fantastic, dazzling atmosphere of the Strauss opus. She takes her composer very seriously and brings much of her own undoubted gifts to her somewhat daring yet wholly delightful viewpoint, as exemplified in her Strauss reading.

The strings were at one with her; richly emphasizing the wide reaching glitterings

G
I
O
V
A
N
N
I

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay M
A
R
I
A

of the "Allegro," "Scherzo" and "Vivace" movements, and poetically painting without sentimentality, yet with more than a touch of honeyed sweetness, the conspicuously melodic "Andante," with much more than a hint of its original form as written by Camille Saint-Saens in his dramatic "Deluge."

Strauss has all the resources as well as the experiences of the versatile and learned contrapuntist and harmonist; yet with all his cunning the melodic theme of the "Andante," so often recurring, now in one signature, now in another; varying its harmonic dress with a deftness not altogether Teutonic; has been adroitly appropriated, yet not sufficiently to conceal altogether the course of its inception. The field of the diligent searcher is wide indeed, but not so magnified that it eludes occasional discovery in spots, as it were.

However, while lacking the homogeneity of the Schumann Quintet, this number of Strauss has much in it which rewards study and rehearsals.

The soloist of the occasion—par excellence—was young Sascha Jacobsen, protege and artist, pupil of Mr. Kneisel, who gave an altogether—an unexpectedly—admirable reading of that marvelous masterpiece for the violin, the "Chaconne" of Bach.

Mr. Kneisel has concerned himself seriously with his pupil's technical and interpretative superiority, and upon both counts young Jacobsen is a credit to the musical excellence and devotion of his teacher.

Mr. Kneisel is practically the youthful violinist's only teacher, and he is a remarkable example of what can be accomplished by studying in America. In this instance Mr. Kneisel has inaugurated a felicitous departure from the traditional—a happy change in the order of educational musical happenings that will eventually stand as a precedent. At least we may hope so.

The interpretation of the Bach opus is not merely a thing of technic; there is the matter of intelligence, sympathy and comprehension. In these Jacobsen was not lacking; he showed a depth of understanding of the requirements of the great work one would hardly have expected from a being of his years.

The applause was so great that the young violinist was forced to respond with an encore in somewhat lighter vein.

A happy innovation in that it afforded the opportunity of making comparisons was the playing of a Victor record of one of young Sascha's performances for the mechanical reproducing device.

An instrument of wood and metals may have power to reproduce the resemblance—the simulacrum—of great playing; it is, however, only a makeshift, though the record will offer something to those not so fortunate as to hear the living exponent without intermediary.

Mr. Herman Eisenberg, a very young cellist and pupil of Mr. Willeke, gave an exhibition of unusual talents, receiving great applause himself, and reflecting much glory upon his teacher.

His piano accompaniments were exceedingly well played by a very youthful and pretty girl, Miss Kann, from whom we ought to hear great things in the future, if she continues to show so much aplomb.

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THU

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORKHelen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America

Exclusive Management

Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

GERMAN

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABE

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONESCHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8868

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

LEIST-BEEBE

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolffsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

Teacher of CONCERT BARITONE
LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer Christian

Greatest Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Organist of Evanston School of Music Auditorium Building

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL TENOR
1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Hittman Kelley and Alexander Heilmann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

RECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

DRAMATIC SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

Festival at Mt. Vernon, Iowa

The seventeenth annual Music Festival of Cornell College was held on April 29 and 30, and May 1. For advantages offered here, one must go to the large cities to find the equal in talent. The Festival consisted of five concerts by prominent artists, including a final concert given by the Cornell Oratorio Society, assisted by foreign soloists.

The Festivals of the past have advanced the musical interests of the community in no small degree. The following works have been given: "The Swan and the Skylark," "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" (twice), "The Messiah" (three times), "Samson and Delilah" (twice), "Elijah" (three times), "Dream of Gerontius," "Creation," "Der Freischuetz," "Birth of Venus," "Aruimius," "Olaf Trygvasson," (twice), Brahms' "Requiem" and "The Beautitudes." An artists' recital course is held annually, student recitals are given every other week, and musical organizations, such as men's and women's glee clubs and the college orchestra, give opportunities for musical advancement to all college people. "The Messiah" is given each Christmas by the Cornell Oratorio Society, assisted by noted soloists, and the Cornell Orchestra.

This year's festival talent included the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Madame Rappold, Francis MacMillen, Rudolph Ganz, Olive Kline, Margaret Keyes, Lambert Murphy, Clarence Whitehill and the Cornell Oratorio Society of over a hundred voices. This imposing array of artists swayed the populace for three days and drew hundreds from the surrounding country. Mt. Vernon can well feel proud of its festivals, made possible through faithful effort and despite many difficulties.

Rappold Opens Festival

Though a few expressed disappointment when Culp's illness was announced, this was quickly changed to satisfied enjoyment by Madame Rappold, who was secured as substitute. She proved a joy to all, as the many encores evidenced, and the universal expressions of approval expressed. Unusual enthusiasm resulted, her charming and gracious manner, her art and beautiful singing making the program a magnificent one. Songs by Schumann, Schubert, Reger, Strauss, Bachelet, Puccini, Spross, La Forge, Dvorak, Peel, Gilberte, and Woodman were given in such a convincing manner that Madame Rappold will always be sure of a welcome when she appears in Mt. Vernon. Eleanor Scheib of Chicago gave splendid support in the accompaniments.

MacMillen

Francis MacMillen, violinist, gave the second program Friday afternoon, the 30th. He is an old favorite here and added new admirers by his playing on this occasion. The numbers given were the first movement from Tchaikowsky's "Concerto"; two groups of short compositions, including a vitally impressing performance of the Schubert "Ave Maria"; and the "Introduction" and "Tarantelle," by Sarasate. MacMillen has a strong personality, abundant volume of tone and plays with the spirit and dash of a master.

Whitehill and Orchestra

Friday evening of the 30th, Mr. Clarence Whitehill of the Metropolitan Opera and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra gave the program. Under Mr. Stock's leadership the orchestra played "Liebesfruling," by George

HORACE A. MILLER

Schumann; the suite, "Piermontesi," by Sinigaglia; and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody" No. 12 in the first half of the program. A Wagner group comprised the second half, which included the overture to "Rienzi," "Voices of the Forest," from "Siegfried," and "Dreams," a study to "Tristan and Isolde," the orchestration by Theodore Thomas. The orchestra, which has been a great favorite for years in Mt. Vernon, was received with appreciative enthusiasm. Their playing was most finished and enjoyable.

Mr. Whitehill was admired for his big voice and intelligent interpretations in the aria, "Di Possenti," from "Faust," the aria, "Alexandria," from "Thais," "Evening Star" of Wagner and "Wotan's Farewell,"

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

from "Die Walkure." He gave proof of his operatic success by his feeling and power, and the orchestral accompaniment aided materially in producing striking dramatic effects. The "Alexandria" aria was Mr. Whitehill's most successful number, being given a great rendition.

Ganz and Orchestra

The orchestra and Rudolph Ganz, pianist, were heard Saturday afternoon in a program which included the overture, "Othello" of Dvorak, Mozart's "Symphony in E Flat," the symphonic poem, "Don Juan" of Strauss, Liszt's "Concerto No. 2 in A Major" for piano, and the "Scene Dansant" of Glazounow. The orchestra was wonderful in this concert, brilliant climaxes, artistic finish and the precise work of the first violins calling forth expressions of great approval. Mr. Ganz is another old favorite of Mt. Vernon audiences and was again well received. He gave a praiseworthy performance of the Liszt "Concerto" and added two encores in recognition of the insistent applause.

Final Concert

The last concert, on Saturday evening, was one of the fullest enjoyment, enlisting the services of the orchestra, the Cornell Oratorio Society, and the four soloists, Olive Kline, Margaret Keyes, Lambert Murphy, and Clarence Whitehill. "A Tale of Old Japan," by Coleridge-Taylor was first given, conducted by Horace A. Miller, director of the Cornell Conservatory. The Oratorio Society did splendid work in this and reflected great credit upon Mr. Miller, who conducted with surety and precision, fine sense of tempo and rhythm and conclusive understanding of the score. The accompaniments of the orchestra were in complete harmony, and the soloists' work was successful in all ways, making the whole a well balanced production.

Mr. Murphy's beautiful tenor voice, his refined art and histrionic skill made him the favorite and a source of much satisfaction. Olive Kline, soprano, displayed a voice of adequate dimensions and understanding of the text; and Miss Keyes' big contralto voice was commanding, especially in the upper passages. Mr. Whitehill repeated his dramatic success of Friday, singing with skill and excellent taste.

The orchestra again pleased with the selections it played in the second half of the program. "The Spinning Wheel of Omphale," by Saint-Saens; "Two Indian Sketches," by Horace A. Miller; two Morris dances by Grainger; and Brahms' "Academic Festival" overture were presented. Of especial interest were the compositions of Mr. Miller, developed from themes taken from Mesquakie Indian melodies. These were very characteristic Indian novelties and further brought to notice the versatility of Mr. Miller in being both conductor and composer. The Brahms number with its stirring conclusions was a fitting finale to one of Cornell's most successful festivals.

C. W. J.

Gannon—Rose Lutiger Gannon was one of the principal soloists at the Syracuse, N. Y., Festival last week.

FLORENCE MACBETH

J. McC. B. writes in the St. Paul Pioneer Press as follows:

One of the largest audiences that has assembled at the Auditorium this season greeted Florence Macbeth, who appeared there in recital last night. Enthusiasm ran high, and the young songstress, laden with many bouquets, graciously responded to several encores.

It is Miss Macbeth's almost impeccable art that constitutes the chief charm of her singing. Her voice is fresh and elastic, but naturally has not as yet that full-blown size which maturity alone can give. It has increased in volume noticeably, however, since her first and last appearance here upon the same stage, when she sang the role of Gilda to Titta Ruffo's Rigoletto, not quite a year ago. Her wonderful fidelity to pitch, triumphantly tested in Delibes' "Bell Song," her faultless intonation at all times, make her an artist of rare technical equipment. Combined with this is an intelligence that is not only musical but refined and broadened also by other influences of educational value.

ENUNCIATION IS DELIGHTFUL

Her enunciation of the languages, especially German and English, is delightful to hear. Not a syllable is lost by the attentive listener. This is the more remarkable when one reflects that at no time does the singer show any sign of striving after crescendo effect. Her singing is in the main of perfect balance, leaning toward the pianissimo quality. Not a note is lost. It is all crystally clear, distinct, mellow and beautiful.

SOME OLD "STAND-BYS," TOO

Of course Miss Macbeth last night sprinkled her program liberally with arias for the coloratura voice, and some of the old-time "stand-bys" were called into requisition. Dinorah's polka mazurka, "Om-bra Leggiere," with its lavish texture of vocal embroidery opened the recital. It was executed with charming facility. The "Bell Song" from Lakme, the "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto" and the "Polacca" from "Mignon" constituted the arias sung. The last two were exceptionally well given. It is in an eighteenth century Bergerette, however, that Miss Macbeth, to our thinking, is most fascinating.

Lovely beyond words was her singing of the two adaptations by Weckerlin, "L'amour S'envole" and "Chantons les Amours de Jean." The ever deservedly popular "Villanelle" of Dell' Acqua was also delightfully sung.

The fact that the singer put two of Robert Franz's songs on her program was vindication enough of her musical sense. We have never heard the pathetically beautiful "Mutter, O Sing mich zur Ruh," sung more appealingly or with more perfect legato. Schubert's lovely "Roslein auf der Heiden" was given with almost the same mature art of expression with which Julia Culp invested it when she sang here recently. As we have already said, Miss Macbeth's German has atmosphere. It does not savor of the school room.

SHOULD INCLUDE SCOTCH SONGS

Of the beautifully enunciated English songs, George Henschel's graphic epitome of woodland voices, "Spring Song" and Marion Bauer's "Star Trysts," created the most enthusiasm. Molloy's "Kerry Dances" and "The Last Rose of Summer" were exquisitely sensed. It is a pity that Miss Macbeth does not include Scotch songs in her repertoire. The dialect and nature of them are in her blood and her art would do them full justice.

Miss Macbeth by her singing last night but strengthened the excellent impression made by her operatic appearance here last year. (Advertisement.)

BERGEY STUDIOS

The following program was given very successfully by pupils of the Bergey Chicago Opera School at Grace Reformed Church on last Tuesday evening:

Overture, Der Freischutz.....	Weber
Miss Hay and Mr. Stroupe
Quand' ero paggio (from opera Falstaff).....	Verdi
Requiem	Homer
Into My Heart	Beverley
Mr. Hal Burr
One Fine Day (from Madame Butterfly).....	Puccini
Waltz Song	Robyn
Miss Mae MacMinn
Romance	Sibelius
Concert Etude	MacDowell
Mr. Clarence Stroupe
Aria (from opera Fedora).....
Aria (from opera Tosca).....	Puccini
Mr. Leslie Voigtman
Second Rhapsodie	Liszt
Mr. Irving Engel
Indian Bell Song (from opera Lakme).....	Delibes
Miss Mae MacMinn
First act from opera Faust.....	Gounod
Messrs. Voigtman and Burr
Polonaise, Op. 53.....	Chopin
Mr. Stroupe
Trio from Faust	Gounod
Miss MacMinn, Messrs. Voigtman and Burr

On May 30 (Sunday), a complimentary recital will be given by the Bergey pupils at the St. Francis First Room at the Congress Hotel at 3.30 p. m.

Diederich—Mr. Walter Diederich, tenor, is special soloist at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Evanston, this month.

SPECIAL OFFER

Hugo Kaun

Melodious Etudes, Op. 23

Highly endorsed by leading teachers in Europe and America

Price $1.00, Special Offer 45c

Postpaid

Fillmore's Modern Graded Course

For the Pianoforte in Eight Grades

Embodies every feature in line with MODERN PEDAGOGY

Price Each Grade . $1.00

Special Offer . 30c

Postpaid

ELEANOR EVERETT FREER

Lyric Studies, Op. 3

These Studies of unusual value for Teaching or Concert work

Price $1.25, Special Offer 75c

Postpaid

Bernhard Ziehn — Theoretical Works

Manual of Harmony, . . . Price $2.50
Five and Six Part Harmonies, " 1.75
Canonical Studies, . . . " 3.50

Postpaid

THEODORE THOMAS—"Ziehn is the greatest living Authority."
OTTO LESSMAN (Berlin, Germany)—"Ziehn's Manual of Harmony is the work of a genius."

HANS von BUELOW—"Ziehn is the greatest theorist of music in the world."

PROFESSOR RIEMANN—"I recommend these books of Ziehn for every teacher or pupil, every master or disciple of music."

Wm. A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from Page 27)

A long list of patronesses proved the interest of society in the event.

h h h

A Letter From Mr. Search

Mr. Frederick Preston Search writes to tell me of his absorption in the pursuit of additions to his already extensive repertory, and his endeavors to enrich the literature of the 'cello with compositions which he hopes may be regarded as the output of an earnest inspiration.

When he played in New York, Mr. Search's own compositions engaged the complimentary and flattering consideration of the music lovers who heard them.

They were pronounced charming morceaux, and prophetic souls declared that much might be expected of the young composer.

Mr. Search is making his headquarters in San Francisco. His works will probably have extensive hearings, and will doubtless figure upon the programs of the famous Bohemian Club.

Mr. Search gives little hope of a visit to the east in the near future. A matter of regret to at least one of the admirers of his talents and his amiability and courtliness—masculine traits not as abounding as one might wish or desire.

h h h

A Visit From Miss Potter

Miss Grace Stewart Potter, pianist, ran in to see me about a fortnight ago. I have not yet had the opportunity of hearing Miss Potter play, but as a Leschetizky pupil—a favorite one at that—I am sure there will be a pleasure in listening to one whose personality proclaims somewhat of the musical atmosphere and its indelible impress.

Miss Potter has apparently created favorable opinions wherever she has been heard. At least one must so conclude after reading the flattering notices and congratulatory letters comprised in her very interesting circular.

h h h

Mr. Roderick White Plays

This young violinist is surely coming to the front as the exponent of a fine style; a suave and telling technical equipment, and an unusual temperamental wealth and the breadth and authority distinguishing the master.

His recital in Grand Rapids recently was not only an artistic and educational treat; it was a society event of importance.

Mr. White has already had many successful appearances in America. His concert in Pittsburgh as co-star with Alice Neilson was one of the choice functions of the Pittsburgh season.

His concerts in various centers of New Jersey and New York have brought him ovations. His final concerts of this season will be given in California.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

IDA GARDNER
CONTRALTO
Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

George Dostal a Busy Singer

George Dostal, the Bohemian tenor whose engagements have been numerous this autumn and winter, will be soloist at the Syracuse Festival on the last evening of the festival, and he will be co-star with Madame Marcella Sembrich at the final concert of the Paterson Festival, on the evening of May 13.

Mr. Dostal will sing the great aria from Meyerbeers' "l'Africaine," and a solo and recitative (from a Donizette opera) for the lyric tenor voice.

h h h

Notes

Madame Cecile M. Behrens will leave for her Elberon home near the seashore late in the month of May.

Thuel Burnham will make a short concert tour during the spring, and afterwards proceed to Massachusetts for a well earned rest and recuperation.

Miss Leginska will spend the summer away from town, occupying herself with what promises to be a tremendous novelty in program making for the approaching season. Notwithstanding an arduous season, she is looking the picture of health, happiness and strength.

h h h

A delightful letter from that fine 'cellist and amiable gentleman, Frederick Preston Search, now located in California, was received a day or so ago. Mr. Search writes in the same happy, cheerful style that characterizes him as a genial companion and optimistic citizen, who goes on cultivating high ideals in the face of war's alarms, and the pessimisms engendered by changes in the tariff. His simplicity of character is a most delightful thing after a somewhat disheartening experience with musicians of the long-haired, self-esteeming variety. I for one hope that Mr. Search will not remain too long away from New York.

h h h

Mme. Germaine Schnitzer, who has been restricted to her room in consequence of a severe attack of influenza, has been obliged to cancel her date to appear at the great Brooklyn concert for the Federation of Charities. Miss Leginska will play in her stead.

h h h

MISS E. LOUISE KRAUSE TO SING AT AURORA

Miss Krause has been engaged by Miss Mabelle E. Minard to give a joint recital with Miss Perle Dunham at Aurora, Saturday afternoon, May 22. She will also appear on May 26 at the West Side Hospital at the graduation of nurses, in conjunction with Mr. Marvin Hinshaw, baritone.

Miss Krause also scored a decided hit at her appearance before the Traffic Club at the LaSalle Hotel on April 29.

h h h

NEW ALBANY, INDIANA

May 4, 1915, The Heddens, an unusually talented family of New Albany musicians, gave a delightful concert at the First Presbyterian church for the benefit of the Social Reform Association. The artists were Mrs. W. A. Hedden, organist; Miss Elizabeth Hedden, soprano; W. J. Hedden, tenor; D. K. Hedden, violin, and Earl G. Hedden, 'cello.

JOHN PETERSON,
New Albany, Ind.

A GROFF-BRYANT PUPIL SCORES SUCCESS

The following is from the Galesburg Daily Republican-Register of last Tuesday:

Lovers of good dramatic soprano singing were afforded a rare treat in the recital given in the Lombard College Alumni Hall Monday evening by Miss Viola Elma Graber, a pupil of Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant, director of the Lombard vocal art studio. Miss Graber sings with unusual grace and charm. Her expression is excellent and her voice is both powerful and beautiful.

Miss Graber was assisted by Mr. Earl Hodson, in presenting the difficult program and he demonstrated marked ability as a baritone singer. He also received his instruction from Mrs. Groff-Bryant. Miss Winnifred Tompkins presided gracefully at the piano.

"Hear Ye, Israel," "Elijah," by Mendelssohn, was the opening number by Miss Graber, and at this time she displayed the real qualities of her voice. Her expression was marked with much simplicity. The second number consisted of two German selections, and the third was "Love and Music, These Have I Lived For," (Tosca) by Puccini. The three were sung beautifully.

Mr. Hodson next appeared on the program his initial number being "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind," by I. Sargeant. Mr. Hodson is possessed of a beautiful baritone voice and the real qualities were shown in the singing of this number. "Songs My Mother Taught Me," by A. Dvorak, was a number that scored a big hit.

Throughout the program Miss Graber and Mr. Hodson sang with much beauty and delighted the large audience that gathered to hear them. Their efforts reflect much credit on their instructor, Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant. It can be said without hesitation that the two young people acquitted themselves in a way that singers of much more experience might envy.—(Advertisement.)

h h h

Topeka—The chief attraction at the Topeka, Kans., Festival, held last week, was the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer.

IN ITALY

"THE GALA SONG OF MY ALL-AMERICAN PROGRAM"

WARREN PROCTOR

Published
in two keys

Price
60cents usual discount

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.-CHICAGO

Director's Assistant Wanted

The director of one of Chicago's most successful smaller music schools, wishing to ease up, seeks pianist-teacher, 25-40, ambitious to secure interest in or control of such an institution. Must be fully experienced, a success, capable of managing school and teaching director's class in his absence. To such a one with some money to invest a liberal proposition will be made. This is not a bankrupt sale, March being the banner month in our 10 years' history. Give experience and qualifications. "A-100," Music News.

GALESBURG, ILLINOIS

The Galesburg Musical Union, which is in its seventeenth season, closed a successful year with a choral event of unusual interest on Tuesday, May 4. William F. Bentley, who has been the conductor of the society since its organization, again gave of his vim and enthusiasm in the presentation of two short choral works, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," by Walthew, and the ever-popular "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," by S. Coleridge-Taylor. The past season Mr. Bentley has had musical charge of the choral societies of Kewanee and Galva, neighboring cities of Galesburg. The same works have been studied and presented in both places, the soloists in Kewanee being Mr. E. L. Kellogg of Kewanee, tenor, and Mr. M. J. McReynolds of Galesburg, baritone. The chorus numbers sixty-five voices, and with a string quartet, pipe organ, and piano for accompaniment, a very smooth performance was given.

The Galva chorus is in its first season, and has an unusually strong force of men singers which help to make the work of the organization brilliant and effective. The concert at Galva was given Thursday, April 29, with an orchestra of ten pieces and piano for accompaniment. The soloists were Mr. John B. Miller of Chicago, tenor, and Mr. M. J. McReynolds of Galesburg, baritone.

The culmination of the year is the bringing of the three choruses together, and the Galesburg Musical Union is offering the greatest event in the history of a very musical little city. The soloists for the Galesburg Festival were Thomas J. McGranahan, tenor, of Chicago and our own home singer, Mr. M. J. McReynolds, baritone. Mr. John Winter Thompson presided at the great "triumvirate organ" in Central Church, where the concert was given, and the Knox Conservatory Orchestra of thirty players furnished the accompaniment, and also played between the choral works, a group of selections consisting of "The Peer Gynt Suite," by Grieg, and other numbers.

Galesburg has certainly become quite musically citified the past season, for with the Artists' Course of Operatic Stars presented by Anna Groff-Bryant and the regular Artists' Course of the Knox Conservatory of Music, together with the appearance here of a few other fine artists and "The Messiah" production at Christmas time by the Galesburg Musical Union, some weeks have been more than full.

Willett—Mr. William A. Willett will give a musicale for his pupils and the members of the choir at Grace M. E. Church parlors on Tuesday evening, May 25. On May 18, at 8:15 o'clock, Mrs. Sydnie Smith Cooley will give a song recital at 420 Kimball Hall, and on Monday evening, May 24, Miss Bertha Rusnak will sing at the same place; both Mrs. Cooley and Miss Rusnak being artist pupils of Mr. Willett.

Hastings—The article in Music News of last week in reference to the work of Forrest Glenn Fiebach should have been credited to the Hastings, Mich., Journal-Herald instead of the Nashville Record-Herald. Mr. Fiebach's home and one class are in Nashville, but his studio and another class are in Hastings.

COMING ARCANGELI CONCERT

Signor A. Arcangeli will present his students in a splendid program, consisting of favorite operatic and classical selections, at the Blackstone Theater Sunday afternoon, May 23.

In addition, two very talented students will be presented in the "Secret of Suzanne."

Signor Arcangeli will be heard in duets from "Puritani" and "Hamlet."

Nering—Mrs. Agnes Nering, soprano, was a chief attraction in a great benefit concert given by the Ladies' Relief Society for the Polish War Sufferers at the Light Guard Armory in Detroit on May 2. Mrs. Nering sang an aria from "Halka" (Moninszki) and the recitative and aria from Patten's "Isaiah," besides a number of encores. She was most cordially reviewed in all the Detroit papers, one of them comparing her voice and appearance to that of Mme. Alma Gluck, whom, it is said, she closely resembled in these matters.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Gentleman to represent exclusively an artist for tour; good proposition. Address "Five," Music News.

TO RENT—All or part time in studio; telephone, electric lights and fan; 516 Kimball Hall.

TIME TO RENT in fine Auditorium Studios; connection with good school if desired. Address S, Music News.

FOR SALE—Virgil practice clavier; address V. P., Music News.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

MONICA STULTS WALTER GRAHAM SOPRANO ALLEN --
Columbia School of Music BASS 303 KIMBALL HALL

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUHAUS
WEDNESDAY CLUB AUDITORIUM, - - ST. LOUIS

TWENTIETH YEAR
CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Earnest students developed and carried through a most comprehensive course of study, leading to a degree

HARMON H. WATT, ELEANOR F. GODFREY, Directors
304 South Wabash Avenue, Kimball Hall Chicago, Illinois

SEASON 1915-16

ALBERT

1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist Steinway Piano

SPALDING

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago

Summer Term Begins June 30 The School for Serious Students

Herbert J. Wrightson

PIANO AND HARMONY

Chicago

20 E. Jackson Boul.
Suite 1404

Phone Wabash 6293

SCENES AND INCIDENTS

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood

Paw Paw City,
Mich.

30 Miles from Lake Paw Paw

An Ideal Spot in Which to Spend the Summer

A Musicians Colony Now Forming

Lots for Sale at Low Prices on Time Payments

Cottages at Reasonable Rental

Address LOTTIE ESTEL BROWN, Paw Paw City, Mich.

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

Sunday, April 25, in Symphony Hall, the second and last concert of the season was given by the People's Union Society.

Frederick W. Wodell conducted; Herman H. Shedd was organist; Miss Grace Brown, pianist; Mlle. Mona Holesco, soprano; Miss Ida Gardner, contralto; Alfred D. Shaw, tenor; Nelson Raymond, baritone; Burton Piersol, basso, and 45 instrumentalists, were the musical ensemble.

"Samson," Handel, was the work produced, and the various city critics spoke favorably of the production.

This work had not been heard here for several years.

□ □ □

Important Work Performed

With Josef Adamowski as conductor, Saint-Saens' "Septet in E Flat Major," Op. 65, for pianoforte, two violins, viola, violoncello, contrabass and trumpet, was given as the opening number at a concert by advanced students of the New England Conservatory of Music in Jordan Hall, Monday evening, April 26. The performers were Ethel M. Smith and members of the conservatory ensemble class, assisted by Miss Virginia Stickney, A. J. Smith and Max O. Kunze of the faculty. Soloists at the concert were Fannie Levis (Dorchester); Ava L. B. Dodge (Shinglehouse, Pa.); Gerald Frazee (Wilmington); Adolph H. Vogel, Jr. (W. Orange, N. J.); Esther H. Jones (Bath, Me.); Edith M. Woodman (Grand Pre, N. S.), and Vernita C. Corbett (Melrose Highlands).

□ □ □

Liederheim Notes

The Liederheim Glee Club, Mrs. May S. Ruggles, director, has been very busy this winter. Among recent events are programs for the Dennison House College Settlement, a German song evening at Seaman's Friend Society, for German sailors interned in Boston harbor; many social gatherings, "Folk Songs of all Nations," 13 represented, and songs in eight languages were sung; vesper services at Wellesley; a composers' evening, this year Margaret Ruthven Lang, daughter of the late B. J. Lang, was chosen, she accompanying her own works. There has been an opera evening, and both of the last mentioned programs were given at Liederheim, Auburndale. Songs, ladies choruses quartets, male quartets and choruses for mixed voices added to the interest of the programs.

□ □ □

Drama Personals

Margaret Gulesian, daughter of M. H. Gulesian, the well known Armenian-American business man, and Lee Estabrook, grandson of the founder of the New England Conservatory, had the principal parts yesterday afternoon, April 30, in a dramatization of a scene from the concluding chapters of Robert Hitchens' "Bella Donna" at a recital by the dramatic department's pantomime and rehearsal class. Miss Gulesian, who played with the Harvard Dramatic Club in its performance last winter at the Garrick Theater, New York, has previously appeared in several conservatory theatricals. She took the part of Mrs. Armini, the "Bella Donna." Mr. Estabrook, who was Nigel Armini, her husband, has been seen almost weekly on the Recital Hall stage these past two years. Other roles in the piece were Dr. Meyer Isaacson, Harold Stuart; Mamoud Baroudi, a wealthy Egyptian, William Goodrich, and Ibrahim, a servant, Joseph Skinner.

At this recital seven songs from "Out-of-Doors," by Alberta Burton, were rendered for the first time in Boston, the poems by Dorothy Tremble, the songs by Julia Lenon and Emily Matthews.

□ □ □

A Worth-While Lecture

S. Harrison Lovewell, organist at the Hyde Park Baptist church, gave a most in-

One of the finest tenors ever heard here
—Rockford (Ill.) Republic.

Grant Kimbell

TENOR

Oratorio Recital Concert

730 Fine Arts Building
309 E. 49th St. (Drexel 8519)

Beautiful voice, well schooled—South
Bend (Ind.) Tribune

teresting lecture on "The Fugue and its Emotional Meaning," in Worcester last month.

In addition to a most educative and interesting text, he played Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in C Flat Minor"; Beethoven's "Adagio and Fugue, Op. 110"; and Reger's "Fugue in B Minor, Op. 81."

A list of lectures, subjects and terms may be obtained of the Boston editor of Music News.

□ □ □

A Desirable Honor

The first competition for Director George W. Chadwick's prize of $50 for superior performance in organ playing, held at the New England Conservatory of Music, Thursday evening, April 22, resulted in the judges deciding to divide the prize equally between Lelia Maybelle Harvey of Braintree, Mass., and Emmie Washington McKie, of North Augusta, S. C. There were seven contestants, all of whom played the same program, consisting of J. S. Bach's "Sonata in C Major"; the "Prelude and Fugue in E Minor" (Bach), and Saint-Saens' "Rhapsody in E Major," upon a Breton melody. Both prize winners are members of the senior class. The judges were Professor William Churchill Hammond, of Mt. Holyoke College; W. Lynnwood Farham, organist of Emmanuel Church, Boston, and Warren A. Locke, organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston.

Further evidence of the activity of New England Conservatory playwrights was seen Friday afternoon, April 23, when Fritz Mahr's original one-act tragedy, "Released," had its first appearance at a recital of the pantomime and rehearsal class. The little piece is a psychological study of conflicting emotions in a woman whose drunken brute of a husband, after a scene of violent altercation, is stricken with heart trouble. In the end she is released by his death. Mr. Fritz Mahr, who is a son of the late Emil Mahr of the Conservatory faculty, had studied pantomime with Clayton D. Gilbert and has written considerable creditable verse. Other premieres at this recital were of two original pantomimes: "The Brotherhood of Man," by Patrice Hannigan, and "The Jewels of Elaine," by Lee Estabrook.

□ □ □

The Seniors Annual Concert

The concert given annually by members of the senior class of the New England Conservatory of Music took place in Jordan Hall, last evening, April 27. Emmie W. McKie of North Augusta, S. C., lately one of the winners of the Director's prize for organ playing, was well received in Cesar Franck's "Cantabile." Saint-Saens' song, "O beaux reveux evanouis," was rendered by Gladys M. Zimmermann, and the Beethoven-Saint-Saens "Dance of the Dervishes," by Harry E. Mueller. Other performers were Charlotte L. Woodbridge in piano numbers from Cyril Scott and Chabrier; Alice Allen in Chopin's "Etude in F Minor"; C. Harold Sharp, Jr., Guilmant's "Organ Sonata in C Minor"; Ada A. Chadwick, Mrs. H. H. A. Beach's "Romance" and the "Spanish Dance of Sarasate"; May J. Frederickson, Chadwick's "Yesterday" and Robert Eden's "What's in the Air Today?" Vernita Claire Corbet, Chopin's "Scherzo in C Sharp Minor."

□ □ □

Concert for Frances E. Willard Settlement

Marie Rappold, soprano; Ada Sassoli, harpist; Lucile Orrell, 'cellist; Heinrich Gebhard, pianist, and Marguerite Burrage, accompanist, gave a program at Copley-Plaza hotel, Monday afternoon, April 26, for the benefit of Frances E. Willard Settlement here.

Brahms, Chopin, Debussy, Faure, Mendelssohn, Liszt were the composers presented by Mr. Gebhard. Mme. Rappold sang Puccini, Van der Stucken, Gilberte, Spross, Dell' Acqua. Bach, Zabel-Pierne, Perilbow, Debussy and Hasselmans were Miss Sassoli's composers, while Miss Orrell gave hearing to Cesar Cui, Popper and Gounod.

□ □ □

Voice and Violin in Worcester

An interesting, artistically presented program was given in Tuckerman Hall, Worcester, Monday night, April 12, by Nicola Oulukanoff, Russian baritone and opera singer of note, and Mrs. Ella Kalova, Ondrieck, a violinist, who has played on the concert stage in Europe, and has fine temperamental quality of violin tone, and a charming naivete which at once places her audience en rapport with her.

Mr. Onlukanoff sang with a degree of intelligence when the power of voice is considered, quite unusual with the rank and file of opera singers heard on the concert stage.

Mrs. Ondricek's principal work was Tchaikowsky's "Sonata Melancholique," after which she gave works by Sarasate and others. Both singer and violinist added to their printed program, and Miss Mabel Pierce and Mr. Edward Emmanuel Ondricek, accompanists, were very capable at the piano.

The second of a group of studio recitals was given by Miss Katherine Buck, assisted by her pupils, at her home studio, 20 Forest street, Lexington. A very interesting program was given before an appreciative audience of mothers and friends of the pupils. It opened with a piano duet, "Invitation to the Dance," (C. M. Weber), by Marion Welch and Miss Buck. This was followed by a group (a), "Christmas Bells," (Berold); (b) "Dolly Waltz," (Berold), by Hilda Rogers. Daisy Currier gave "The Life of Mozart" and played a "Minuet" by Mozart. A duet, "Evening," (Josef Low), was given by Challis Wilson and Miss Buck. Rena Manderson gave a group (a) "Birthday March," (R. Schwaln); (b) "Prelude," (J. O. Arm-and). Marion Welch played R. Schwaln's "Slumber Song," and Hilda Rogers and Miss Buck gave "Etudes No. 33 and 43" by F. Beyer in duet. Daisy Currier played "Moonlit Ocean" by Eduard Holst, and Dorothy Buck gave Donizetti's "Sextet" from "Lucia."

Havrah Hubbard and Seigfried

Havrah Hubbard, assisted by Floyd Baxter, piano, gave his second opera talk under the auspices of the Lexington Outlook Club before a large audience in the Unitarian Church vestry, April 28. Mr. Hubbard discussed "Siegfried," which is especially interesting at this time because of the production which is to be given in June at the Harvard Stadium. He touched upon this presentation and then gave a resume of Rhinegold and the trilogy of which "Siegfried" is the concluding drama. Mr. Hubbard read the opera and Mr. Baxter played the musical score. This made a most pleasing and interesting program and one which

K. B.

The last meeting of the Lexington Musical Club was held April 15, at Cary Farm, Mrs. Ralph L. Stevens, hostess. This was the guest night of the club, and a large number of members with their guests were present. Miss Mary Cressy Clavel, violin, and Miss Lilie O. Smith, piano, opened the program with Veracini's "Sonata" for violin and piano.

The club chorus, under the direction of Mr. Edmund F. Sawyer, gave three selections:

The Nightingale.....Gaul
Dreams.....Von Fielitz
It was a lover and his lass.....Edith Lang

Miss Helen Davis gave a piano selection, "La Fileuse," Raff, which was received enthusiastically, and Miss Davis responded to the applause with Debussy's "Minstrels."

Mrs. Carl Thornquist, mezzo soprano, gave a group of songs, and Miss Clavel made a very favorable impression in a group.

Two soprano solos, "The Star," Rogers, and "Ave Maria," Luzzi, were sung by Miss Frances Locke.

The program was brought to a close by the chorus with two selections:

My Little Heart Saar
Song of Spring.....Bartlett

This was the first appearance of the chorus and it was very heartily received. Much praise is due both to the director and the chorus members, also to Miss Helen B. Fay, who conducted the rehearsals in the absence of Mr. Sawyer.

Mrs. Stevens, Miss Smith and Mrs. Pierce were the accompanists. This meeting closed a very successful year of the Musical Club, and it is looking forward to a new year having as successful work and a growing membership.

MARIE SIDENIUS ZENDT

Marie Sidenius Zendt will sing a recital at Jonesboro, Ark., Friday, May 14. She then will visit her sister, Miss Pearl Sidenius, who has charge of the music at the Agriculture School, and will sing at the baccalaureate commencement, Sunday, May 17, and on May 19 in "The Messiah" at Nahoo, Neb., a return engagement.

JENNY DUFAU'S SUCCESS IN DENVER

On April 19, under the auspices of the Electric Club of Denver, Jenny Dufau made her first appearance in concert in that city. The concert was given in the great Auditorium which seats 4,000 people, and a large and enthusiastic audience gathered to applaud the unique art of the gifted coloratura soprano.

This was Mademoiselle Dufau's first appearance in concert in Denver, and with her lovely voice and charming manner she soon sang her way straight into the hearts of the audience. Bach's "Patron, das macht der Wind," was the opening number and was followed by Handel's "Oh, Had I Jubal's Lyre." The third group comprised French, German and Italian songs. Miss Dufau's voice is a coloratura of beautiful quality and flexibility. Although a resident of the United States but three years, she speaks English perfectly and sings it with extraordinary ease. In fact, her diction in all languages is markedly clear and crystalline.

Last night there was a greatly delighted audience at the Auditorium when Jenny Dufau sang beautifully and enraptured her hearers by the artistic fineness of her vocalism. The attendance was excellent and the Electric Club can congratulate itself that the concert was a musical success.—(Advertisement.)

Katzenborn—George F. Katzenborn, baritone, will sing three groups of songs at a concert in the Ravenswood Baptist Church on Saturday evening, May 15.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN
Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY Associate Vocal Instructor
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. Residence 5433 Harper Av. Tel. Midway 8963

GRACE BRUNE WORTHE
MARCUSSON FAULKNER
SOPRANO ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly TENOR
609 Fine Arts Building Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS 515 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO PHONE WABASH 4805
TECHNIC

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE,
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON
SOPRANO 520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression 1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard Director
Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES
ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE
FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON
MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICK

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR

CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conduct-
ed according to the advanced methods
of the most progressive
European
Conserva-
tories.

MR. THEODOR BOHLMANN, Pianist

A Faculty of INTER-NATIONAL REPUTATION. Location ideal. Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art

Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic Classes, Post Graduate and Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced Composition, Normal Courses, Most Modern Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open throughout the Summer. Special Summer Courses in Public School Music. Exceptional opportunities for Public Work. Professional Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time

For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR
Directress

Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

Books and Music

Reviewed by HERBERT J. WIGHTSON

Morven and the Grail, an oratorio by Horatio Parker, Op. 79. Libretto by Brian Hooker. (Boston: The Boston Music Co.)

In this work a most important addition has been made to the literature of the first-class choral society. Not only is the workmanship of the highest order in every respect, but the idea upon which it has been expended is itself a great one. There is a sense of inspiration and ever increasing illumination in the unfolding of this idea, even as Morven himself progressed step by step to the knowledge and experience of supreme attainment. Not that the music is invariably inspired throughout. Of few, if any, great works can this be said, and indeed the greatest heights only exist by contrast with the more ordinary levels.

The introduction we would designate as somewhat dry and "made." One would hardly imagine that the themes there treated in such scholarly manner could arise in the power and beauty with which they overwhelm us later. They are, as it were, the intellectual concepts only, of things which we are at last to know as living realities.

The very first chord of the work, a major seventh, prepares the hearer for the modern style of harmonic expression which the composer uses—modern, that is, as compared to the classical school, for we find little or none of those extreme methods which at once cast off all precedent and thereby render themselves unintelligible. The fascinating in art is that which presents, with the newness always born of inspiration, something to which we feel ourselves already akin. Dr. Parker's work possesses this newness. We find no stereotyped passages but continuous evidence of an inherent vitality. It is, therefore, original in the best sense rather than in a less favorable one.

The chord referred to, with the passage introduced by it, appears to represent the idea of the Grail—the Vision which, star-like, leads on. It recurs at pages 13, 55, 109, 149 and 197 of the vocal score, each time with some direct reference to the Grail, or with the sense of a high and distant ideal. The leitmotiv system is not used in a contrapuntally involved manner, or with tiresome persistency, yet the recurrence of certain themes has an obvious significance with relation to the text. There are eight or nine of these motives, some appearing only two or three times and others with much greater frequency. That one which is used the most largely throughout the work seemed to us, in its treatment in the introduction, particularly uninteresting. It consists of only four notes, the third of the scale, sustained, then moving down one step and leaping to the third in the octave below. It does not appear in the body of the work till page 154, where it immediately manifests a new quality of beauty and tenderness. Thereafter it has at least seven reappearances, and seems to denote the spiritual transformation of earth into heaven—a "new earth." The idea of awakening, "re-arisen spring, glorified in sweet green, and sunlit gold," and final rapturous attainment, is always present in some degree or form. Its apotheosis occurs on page 193, at the words, "With old love and new eyes, to the wonder of his home." The effect here is thrilling rather than forceful, the chorus and quartet forming ten vocal parts, and all, including orchestra, piano, in a most beautiful piece of contrapuntal harmony. What have the futurists to offer in place of a passage like this?

Another theme of very striking and very opposite character is that of Sigward's Song, page 44. It combines the ideas of heroism, triumph, and perhaps pride, (page 91, where it appears in augmentation in the bass). In the fanfares at the conclusion of the work it plainly denotes the triumph that finally comes by another path. This song of Sigward is a very spirited tenor solo (the voice in the key of D Sharp in one place, accompaniment in E Flat); just before its brilliant ending a peculiar harmonic passage may be noticed, the call of the Angels of the Grail being heard in the orchestra,

WARREN PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
419 Fine Arts Building. Phone Maywood 1615

involving the tonalities of A Flat and C, over tonic and dominant pedals in B.

It is not possible within the compass of a review to go into any great detail as to the remaining themes. There is a magnificent chorus in the section, "The Saints in Paradise," fragments of which re-echo through the later scenes. In this one case the theme is anticipated five or six pages previously, where Morven sings of his desire to journey as a pilgrim, seeking "Whither the tears of the world, forever calm with forgiveness, flow like a shining river of peace before Christ in heaven." The "Saints in Paradise" theme makes a brief appearance here in the orchestra.

One of the culminating themes of the work is that which might be said to symbolize "Hope," in its most exalted aspect. It contains a triplet figure and occurring first on page 167 is an important factor in the finale, where Morven learns that his is the life everlasting, and that he shall progress through "wilder joy, wiser pain, diviner peace—world without end."

If the orchestration of the oratorio is in any way commensurate with its other qualities, both spiritually and technically—which we can hardly doubt—it appears to us that it should be immediately recognized as a great art work. Dr. Parker does not require to prove his ability to write a complete fugue, which at one time was thought indispensable in a large choral work. There are several fugato movements and these evidence an equal skill; moreover the hand of the expert contrapuntist is unmistakable throughout. The beautiful text, by Brian Hooker, would be an inspiration to any

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer.
 Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

composer, and enviable indeed are the limited few to whom it could be committed for suitable treatment.

Technical Advancement: 20 studies for the piano by Albert Renaud. In two books, price 75 cents each. (Boston: Arthur P. Schmidt.)

The use of new studies is frequently a relief to the teacher which is very welcome. The old ones, no matter how excellent, become a weariness to the ear from frequent repetition. These now before us are melodious and at the same time designed to improve the facility of the hands by extended passages of certain figures. The left hand is provided for as carefully as the right. The studies belong to the third and fourth grades.

A Cycle of Love Lyrics, by Louis Adolph Coerne, Op. 73. Price $1.25. (Chicago: Clayton F. Summy Co.)

The five songs here presented form one continuous story, although each is complete in itself and may be used separately. An

WANTED: A teaching position for 2 days a week, in or out of Chicago, by an experienced teacher and one of the most prominent Church, Oratorio and Recital singers (tenor) in Chicago. Absolute control—freedom of vocal method is the key-note of his success. Gentlemanly habits and character guaranteed.

Address "A. B. C."

MUSIC NEWS

elaborate thematic plan runs through the work, there being a dozen or more definite motives, their names attached in every case, so that they cannot be overlooked by the least studious of musicians.

The music is harmonically colorful, and would possibly be the gainer if allowed to stand purely on its merits as music rather than as a discourse in motives. The text indicates a city love story, a rather unusual love theme, as few poetic efforts attempt to utilize such prosaic and sentiment shattering ideas as "cars." The effect of the whole work is, however, quite pretty and worth while, the interest always very human and the music effective.

Ditson Mandolin Folio, arranged by H. F. Odell, for First and Second Mandolins, Guitar and Piano. (Boston: Oliver Ditson Company.) Piano part, 60 cents; other parts, 30 cents.

There are eighteen compositions in this folio, sufficient for a complete repertoire for the mandolin, guitar and piano quartet, and the pieces are of excellent quality. The collection should certainly be a favorite one with the players. Paper and printing are also superior in grade.

Superior Graded Course for the Piano, in five volumes (five grades), by Gustav L. Becker. Price $1.00 per vol. (W. Witmark & Sons.)

From Volume II of this work, which we have before us, the course seems both well worked out and interesting. There are exercises in transposition, a very necessary but rather neglected study, and some duet work, with special objects, for teacher and pupil. We notice in the preface a recommendation we have always approved of but seldom seen advocated, namely, to mentally anticipate tones that are to be produced next. The author says this "will serve to make musicians of such piano players," in which we entirely concur. It might be added, from the same process of reasoning, that the practice must at present be very rare.

Five Piano Pieces for little hands, by Edythe Pruyn-Hall. Price 40 cents. (Chicago: Clayton F. Summy Co.)

These are pretty little pieces in the first grade, which will interest the child and give at the same time good practice as elementary studies.

THE GALESBURG FESTIVAL

The following comment is reproduced from a three-column review in the Galesburg Republican-Register:

With a chorus of over two hundred voices, representing Galesburg, Kewanee, and Galva, the Galesburg Musical Union gave its seventeenth season festival concert in Central church on Tuesday evening to a large audience, despite the inclemency of the weather. The organizations represented in the festival chorus were the Musical Union of Galva, the Kewanee Choral union, and the Galesburg Musical Union. The program had been rendered previously by the Galva and Kewanee societies in their respective cities, but the three unions never had had a joint recital and their combined rendition of Tuesday evening was the first time they had all sung together. William F. Bentley was director in all three concerts and added another to the large list of musical triumphs now to his credit. The chorus was one of the largest that he has ever developed, and when the concert was over he was filled with pleasure over the manner in which the program had been given, and felt that it had been very satisfactory.

The song festival therefore represented the culmination of the work done in the three cities. It was evident from the vim and the enthusiasm that marked the productions all the way through that the singers enjoyed this privilege of being together on a great occasion like this.

Accompanying the chorus were the Knox conservatory orchestra, John Winter Thompson, organist, Carrie Munson Brooks, pianist, and Thomas J. McGranahan, tenor, Chicago, and M. J. McReynolds, baritone.

The orchestra which had a large part on the program was made up of about 30 members.

Following is the program:

PART I.

Cantata—"The Pied Piper of Hamelin" by H. Walthe. The Festival Chorus.

PART II.

Organ Solo—"Storm Fantasia" by Lemmens, Mr. John Winter Thompson.

A Group of Songs—"I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby" (Clay), "To Mary" (Maud V. White), "For You Alone" (Geehl), Mr. Thomas J. McGranahan, "The Morning Ase's Death," "Peer Gynt Suite," by Grieg; "Venetian Love Song, Good Night," "Suite Romantique" by E. Nevin; "Down South," American Sketch by W. H. Myddleton, the Orchestra.

PART III.

Cantata—"Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" by S. Coleridge-Taylor. The Festival Chorus.

The great chorus exceeded expectations. When one considers that the three societies never had had the opportunity to sing together, the results achieved were remarkable. The Kewanee and Galva additions proved especially helpful along all lines and the Galesburg people appreciated deeply the opportunity to sing with them. In each of these cities the programs had been given so that the visitors were thoroughly familiar with the productions.

One of the great treats of the evening and which carried the audience quite away was the pipe organ solo, "The Storm Fantasia," by John Winter Thompson. Mr. Thompson seemed to rise fully to the requirements of the occasion and played the selection in all its moods beautifully and very expressively. With the hand and art of the master of the great instrument, he brought out all the varied sentiment and all the imitative effects of the piece. One heard the onrushing of the storm, the thunder pealing and the rattling, the introductory strains of the Shepherd's flute, delicate and delightful, the prayer for protection, and amid the final mutterings of the storm, the psalm of deliverance. It was a magnificent interpretation and at its conclusion the applause was spontaneous and of itself an ovation to the genius of the player.

The program played by the orchestra was varied, difficult, and afforded a test of their musical skill and adeptness. It would be hard to say in which the orchestra excelled most. There were smoothness and evenness, generally speaking, in their playing. Perhaps the audience enjoyed most the "Down South," American sketch, because of its movement and quaintness and the pleasantness of the closing melody.

Mr. McGranahan's group of three songs gave the listeners better chance to judge of his ability and the quality of his voice than the Pied Piper. His tenor is sweet and pleasing, and on the upper notes shows considerable brilliancy and strength. He gave the three numbers with much expression and beauty and was especially effective in the closing number, "For You Alone," into which he put much feeling.

Radanovits—Miss Rosemary Pfaff, a pupil of Sandor Radanovits in Chicago, appeared with much success before the Rushville, Ind., matinee musicale very recently. Miss Pfaff writes Mr. Radanovits enthusiastically about the improvement made in her voice by his training, and tells of her intention to resume lessons shortly.

Songs of Lassen—Mr. D. A. Clippinger will present Robert Quait Jr., tenor, in a program of the songs of Edward Lassen at his studio in Kimball Hall on Saturday at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist.

Normal Park Church Concert—At the Normal Park Baptist Church on Tuesday, May 18, the annual spring concert will be given under the direction of William Griswold Smith with Miss Naomi Nazor as special soloist.

Mabel-Helen
ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
 Phone Midway 6536

CHARLOTTE BURTON
 VIOLINIST
 1105 E GROVE ST
 BLOOMINGTON ILL.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANIST
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

Violinists

BOSC, BENDIX AND OTHER GREAT MUSICIANS AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

In the matter of music and musicians the Panama-Pacific International Exposition has been singularly fortunate. Bosc and Bendix, the two men who are to conduct the official orchestra of the exposition, have perhaps no superiors in the world of music, and each has a style peculiarly his own. Auguste Bosc, bringing from Europe the gay lightness and the swift-changing moods of the Bal Tabarin; Max Bendix, essentially "home folks," throwing into his efforts the joyous, optimistic cheeriness of America, a cheeriness and optimism which seem to culminate in the great West and strike the dominant note of the Nation's Fair at San Francisco; each man giving freely of generous good humor and good fellowship—a quality peculiar to them both.

Some time ago, Mr. George W. Stewart, the exposition's director of music, cabled Gabriel Pares, conductor of the French Band, stating that he would like to secure for the exposition the most popular orchestra conductor in France, and received the response that the man he wanted had just been drafted into the French reserves. Three days later came the welcome news that the minister of war, through the intercession of the bureau of fine arts, had given the musician, Auguste Bosc, his release, that he might come to America as the exponent of the very best in French art. Trust the Frenchman to rise to any occasion that touches his appreciation of what is due to the beautiful in life, even though he must turn aside for the moment from a struggle with death!

Bosc landed in America the other day with his violin under his arm, and so many boxes of music that he was challenged by the customs authorities who thought he must be an importer. Bosc speaks no English. "I was alone," he said later. "I did not know the tongue of these people and my beloved music was in peril. 'You are trying to take my life's blood!' I told them at last. 'These are my tools. How shall I work if you take them from me? I am a conductor of orchestras.'

"'But your violin?' they persisted. 'What does a conductor want with a violin?'

"'My violin?' I exclaimed. 'On the ship I saw life preservers. They were for the saving of life after all else became futile. Suppose my orchestra should suddenly die; I am bereft. But I have my violin. I play. I still live! Voila!'

"Then they laughed and gave me my music and shook my hand and suddenly I found they were not strangers in this land, but all friends. And I am glad to be here."

And good-natured, lovable Max Bendix—music seems to make a man eternally young or prematurely bald. It evidently keeps Max young, and makes his hair grow and keeps it from turning white. He was in San Francisco with Theodore Thomas twenty-seven years ago; but to the skeptical hearer this statement sounds incredible. For to look at Bendix you would say that twenty-seven years ago he was living at the age when the first cigaret makes the average boy sick. But history may not be denied. Max Bendix held the position of concert-master with the Van Der Stucken Orchestra in 1885. He served in the same capacity under Anton Seidl, when the famous German Opera Company toured the United States. The following year Theodore Thomas engaged him as concert-master, soon raising him to the dignity of assistant conductor. When Mr. Thomas resigned the conductorship of the World's Fair Orchestra the position naturally fell to Bendix. Since then he has wielded the baton as conductor at Hammerstein's and at the Metropolitan Opera House and has made for himself an excellent reputation in Europe.

Mr. Bendix traveled to his new post by way of the Panama Canal and was enthusiastic over the trip. Arrived at San Francisco and seeing the Exposition City he was yet more enthusiastic. Evidently there is much of the poet blended in the soul of the man. "It will be a pleasure to work here!" were the first words he said, upon entering the gates of the fair, "See—there is no glaring white, no ugly angles, no things out of drawing, no things grotesque. These structures have not been built by day laborers with no conception of things beyond the day's work; they have been raised by creatures with souls, and eyes in their souls—eyes that saw the beauty of the city before ever it was built! There is color everywhere, color that is soft and kindly, welcoming; the color of the past, when people loved beauty and proportion more than they loved ornate architecture and display of wealth. It will be a joy to work here."

America's mighty fair will be the rendezvous for many of the most illustrious in the world of music. The venerable Saint-Saens has promised to make the pilgrimage and conduct a series of concerts, using his own compositions. This remarkable performance of the aged composer will take place in June. Edwin H. Lemare, the world's most eminent organist, will give 100 recitals in Festival Hall, beginning in June. Gabriel Pares, with the French Band; Creatore, Thaviu, Conway, Mollenhauer and our own John Philip Sousa are booked for long engagements. Philip Pelz, Russian imperial court conductor, comes later; and at intervals will take place massed band concerts, participated in by about 200 performers

— # # # —

Columbia School of Music—On Saturday, May 15, at the Winnetka Woman's Club House, the Winnetka branch of the Columbia School of Music will give a pupils' concert, the program being one of great length and much attractiveness.

— # # # —

Eurhythmics—The classes in the Jacques Dalcroze Method of Rhythmic Gymnastics in the American Conservatory gave a program at Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon to a very large audience and much enthusiasm.

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

The Elderly Person

It was at the Art Institute and at the time when Jonas Lie's highly colored pictures were in one of the galleries. Every patriotic American wanted to see these pictures, because they were all drawn and painted at the Panama canal. Just because of this there were in the procession some strong individual types. The Elderly Person is no doubt a type to some other people, so he does not feel that he is forgetting himself when he studies others. There is always so much lovable human nature to be found in the observations that any disposition to dissect types impersonally quickly disappears. The rather does one rejoice to find how much we all have in common, no matter how we go about things.

Therefore when the man with his family linked hand in hand came into the room, he could be smiled at because of certain peculiarities, but not laughed at because he was any the less a man thereby. The family allowed themselves to be awed by the sketches, but they uttered no word of comment for or against what they saw or felt. Quite true was it that the motherly mouth was wide opened, but otherwise sturdy schooling curbed any expression. You find out occasionally that there are really persons who accept what is given them impartially. Of course they cannot feel intensely, but the Elderly Person will wager, mildly, that those small children went back to the little home town with an ability to tell the neighbors' children a lot of things about the canal that Mr. Elderly Person had not observed, so concerned was he with the question as to whether such colors prevailed, and whether they were desirable to preserve if they did exist.

And when he followed the children out of the room, with his eyes, he heard the voices which he knew had something for him behind them. It might be, said one of these, that you could learn to like such strange things. People who knew always said that when you grew accustomed to strange things you found lots more in them than when you saw them at first. Yes, the other voice said, it knew that was so, but it knew another thing, right then, and that was that it didn't care for this sort of thing yet. And then the voices trailed away, into another room, and for the moment the Elderly Person forgot their sound. A bit later he sat in the big room, filled with Waugh's mighty stretches of canvas, covered with the billows and surges of the never resting sea. And then just behind him, as he sat on the back-to-back seat, sounded the voices again. This time one voice said its owner just must sit down, her feet were so tired. Housework, it continued, with a collapsing sort of a sigh, was dreadful hard on the feet. There came some fluttering of garments, and then the Elderly Person felt a sense of proximity. The temptation to stay and listen was irresistible. The voices had that insistent monotony of patient sound that would be like a whine if one did not know it to be the result of self-restraint. It is the voice of the mother who has had a large family and an exacting husband, even if he did come under the caption of a "good provider." It is the voice of a woman who has simply had to do things because they had to be done and if she did not do them they would be left undone. Later on when the ladies moved about, the Elderly Person found them to be of the type he felt that they belonged to. Each was rather heavy of frame, with the stoop that comes from bending over the bread board, the crib, or the ironing table. The lines were heavy in the faces, and the eyes had a faded look. They were quite in the style as to clothing, one even going in for a hat with a gauze edge, and the other abetted a plaid skirt that was speaking. And each one wore a lace waist and carried a silver handled umbrella. At the end of the hardest work had come prosperity, and they could now have what their hearts desired. Only, the freshness to wear the handsome garments with conviction was gone. The Elderly Person found himself looking to see which one had found housework hard on the feet. Naturally there were no high heels there. He had seen just such ladies before, the wives and mothers who make those homes that are never forgotten, in the growing towns in any part of this western country. The young couples start together in a small place and grow up with it. The life is full of hard work and deprivations of certain sorts, but it abounds with wholesome sincerity and uprightness. As the children come, all thought of the mother's self disappears. She does it all, and the children, knowing nothing different, take her, and her unceasing labor and unselfishness for granted, and they impose on her until they leave home and find out just how much she has been doing for them. Then they adore her, and she gets everything back with interest. She has been practicing all sorts of economies, too, to help her husband, and has denied herself again and again the wished for personal adornment that is so much a part of woman's nature. And she has had to put aside culture and large mental development, save as it came through the church activities. In recent years the woman's clubs have made inroads into these barrens and brought stimulant and refreshment. These ladies looked as if they could bring forth from their closets endless concoctions of jellies and preserves and pickles; as if their bread and biscuit would be unassailable; as if their linen closets and bedding chests would be filled to fullness; as if they knew how to make geraniums and heliotropes bloom in winter in the house, and how to keep red spiders off the violets and sword ferns; as if the house cleaning operations in the spring were thorough and drastic; as if they could make cottage cheese that had no comparison and that cookies and doughnuts could be unearthed at any time by predatory small boys; as if a "party" would mean days of careful preparation and refreshments that would come under the head of bountiful; as if they could make boys and girls feel at home when they came into the house; as if they were the devoted slaves of their daughters and gloried in nothing better than dressing them prettily and hearing all about their social adventures; as if theirs would be the sweetest, most comforting of faces in a sick room or most serene and sincere in church service; and, too, as if their voices could be raised at times in a way to compel obedience from children and marked attention from the ostensible head of the house.

They had all these and the host of other qualities which go with them. But they had something else, as the Elderly Person discovered by keeping an ear open.

As the rest and quiet and beauty made itself felt anew one voice fluttered somewhat as it said that its owner had always wished she could paint a little; that she had just longed to try her hand at it. That she had gone so far once, as to ask Miss Baker, who taught painting, how much it would cost. But she had learned that the lessons were a dollar and a half each and then there was the cost of the materials to think about. And it took a lot of time, too, so she had given it up.

There was just a little shiver of happy hesitation in the voice which answered that its owner had felt the same way often. Then the confession slipped out that the temptation had been too great, once, that time, you know when that woman stayed at Auntie Green's. There was a quick eagerness in the other voice as it asked whether it was that woman who taught the arascene work. (The Elderly Person doesn't guarantee the spelling.) No, not that one, but the other one who stayed so long and had Mexican drawn work. Somehow her stuff was so pretty and she was such a nice kind of woman that backwardness was pushed aside and the venture made. And the voice said, with a little exultant ring, that its owner got along first rate and learned to paint real nice. Nothing wonderful, of course, you know, and she never said anything about it to anyone and the teacher kept quiet. But there were some pretty little pieces of flowers that looked real well, the branches running out easily and naturally, and not stiff. They were kept hidden, but were kind of good to look at once in a while, and always made her remember how much fun it was just to work with the paints and brushes. It sort of satisfied a longing that up to that time was always making itself felt. After the little venture she had been quite content to go on as before, but she felt more and more interest in pictures after trying to paint them herself. She felt closer to them, and could see how the artists could put a lot of affection into them. She felt as if her little sketches were just a part of herself. . . . And the other voice said that she was sure it would be so with her and that just because she had always felt as if she wanted to paint a little, she liked to go to the galleries and see the pictures when she came to the city, and she enjoyed the art lectures when they were on in the club meetings. . . . Later on the voices dissolved away, the last comment being an expressed preference, from one voice, for the good broad coloring in Gari Melchers' portrait of Mr. Hutchinson, rather than Rembrandt's "Girl of the State." The other voice severely questioned the choice, because it would not conform to the standards of accepted club authorities. But the laughing reply held out that its owner didn't care, that she knew what she liked at present and would enjoy it until she really felt different.

And on down the great staircase, their gentle monotony sounded, dropping final d's and g's unsparingly, and finally in the footfalls and movement of the main floor, they were lost. . . . The Elderly Person raised a figurative hat reverently and gratefully to the retreating backs. It seemed to him that he had not only been in the presence of something lovably human, but containing the full essence of real culture.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

MRS. MARCUSSEN IN IDAHO

Grace Brune Marcussen, who appeared with the Boise Choral Society last week, made a great success, as may be seen from the accompanying press comment:

All lovers of choral tone were delighted with the splendid recital given by the Boise Choral Society at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening when 120 voices sang Haydn's "Creation."

Realizing that the community that supports and loves its own choral organization is a growing community musically, the Boise music lovers were out in fair numbers to enjoy the concert, although the audience was not so large as had been anticipated, with the price of the tickets so low.

Mrs. Grace Brune Marcussen of Chicago sang the soprano role of the oratorio with a style that exemplified beyond all question that she was technically well founded. The interpretation of the role by Mrs. Marcussen compassed all of the intelligence and sincerity that could be demanded by the most critical auditor, and the depth of feeling displayed by the artist was a tribute to this sublime sacred oratorio.

Between parts one and two of the oratorio Mrs. Marcussen sang a little group of secular songs, in which the artist had an opportunity of taking the audience into her confidence. The charm of her personality added much to her work. These songs developed some of the most beautiful tone painting in the entire program.—Idaho Statesman.

Mme. Grace Brune Marcussen with a fine dramatic soprano was delightful, and aside from the pleasing sense of sound and rhythm was splendid in point of technique. The substantial way in which her voice seemed to be produced was restful to the listener. There seemed to be a wealth of support for the beautiful tones and in the difficult passages, such as "The Lord Is Great," the clarity of her execution was most noticeable, the heavy chorus singing forming the background. Each note came out distinctly with bird-like sweetness above the swelling wave of sound from the chorus. The wonderful volume in her upper register was a pronounced feature of Mme. Brune Marcussen's singing and her range seemed almost unlimited. The gifted singer's interpretation of Gounod's famous aria, "Plus Grand daus son Obscurité," from "La Reine de Saba"—(Queen of Sheba) proved to the audience her wide and intelligent understanding of operatic work, while her group arrangement showed her mastery of program adjustment. These musical qualities combined with a radiant personality, stamped Mme. Brune Marcussen as an artist of the highest rank.

One of the delightful personal features about the work of the talented artist, Mme. Brune Marcussen, and a fact that will bring encouragement to many young students, who long for higher culture in their musical work, is that Mme. Brune Marcussen is an American, who has never been abroad and has studied under another famous American, Thomas Noble MacBurney, of Chicago, who himself studied under a noted American in Paris.

Mme. Brune Marcussen is half French, her grace and charm in the interpretation of the French songs in her repertoire clearly indicating her ancestry on the paternal side.—Evening Capital News.—(Advertisement.)

Festival Service—St. Mark's choir from Evanston will combine in a Festival Service with St. Peters in Chicago on Sunday evening, May 16. The postludial organ recital will be given by Stanley Martin of St. Marks.

ANNA HICKISCH AGAIN IN AMERICA

Prior to "The Messiah" performance at La Crosse, Wis., recently the Chronicle of that city had the following to say about Miss Anna Hickisch, the talented La Crosse soprano, who has recently returned from many triumphs abroad:

The Normal Choral Society is fortunate in having so excellent and so popular a singer as Miss Hickisch for the soprano solos in "The Messiah" next Monday evening in the Normal Auditorium. Miss Hickisch would be an acquisition with any choral society, but peculiar interest is attached to the fact in the present instance because she is a "home" singer. At least that is the way most La Crosse people speak of her, though most of her professional career to date has been in England and the colonies, particularly South Africa.

Miss Hickisch had no intention of seeking a career abroad—in fact, after her years of study with the famous Jacques Bouhy in Paris, she returned to this country intent upon making a name for herself as an American singer. Fate, however, dealt the cards differently and she returned to London with the Bostonians as the understudy of Alice Neilson in the "Fortune Teller."

It was while singing with this company that Charles Manners heard Miss Hickisch and offered her a two years' contract with the Moody Manners Grand Opera Company. With this company she sang the parts of Marguerite in "Faust," Elsa in "Lohengrin," Nedda in "I Pagliacci," and Micaela in "Carmen," not to mention many others. Other engagements followed, notably a six-year contract with the Edwards Opera Company, which included a two-year tour of the English colonies in South Africa.

Speaking of Miss Hickisch's ability, the Johannesburg, South Africa, New Age says: "It must not be forgotten that the enactments were full of individuality, betraying not only the possession of a voice of almost incomparable quality, but a mental comprehension and assimilative power that were truly remarkable."

When Miss Hickisch sang the part of Marguerite in Dublin, the musical critic on the Times wrote: "Miss Hickisch, whose excellent work has charmed so many, is a most capable artist who seems to rise to the requirements of any role she undertakes. Her voice is fresh and pure, and she has a fine method of singing which suggests a sound continental training." (Advertisement.)

RODERICK WHITE IN NEW YORK

Some comment on the recent recital of Roderick White in New York:

A young American, Roderick White, was introduced to his fellow citizens yesterday afternoon and his ordeal resulted in a decided success. Mr. White comes back to his home with all the equipment of a great violinist—perfect technique, an absolutely true intonation, and interpretative talent of the highest violinistic quality. He also has temperament and what the fault-finders of the old school call "soul," but which, in fact, is mere "tone color."—New York Evening Globe.

Another violinist was heard. Roderick White, the younger brother of Stewart Edward White. Whether he is likely to become as prominent in music as his brother is in literature cannot be safely predicted, but he certainly made a good impression yesterday, giving proof that he has not studied in vain with some of the leading European masters. He was at his best in the familiar Tartini-Kreisler variations, a difficult work that calls for high artistry.—New York Evening Post. (Advertisement.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The following program was given by the United States Marine Band Orchestra at the Marine Barracks on April 26, the Song Suite by Hartman (published by Clayton F. Summy Co., Chicago) being particularly well received:

Grand March (Tannhauser).....	Wagner
Symphonic Fantasia (North and South).....	A. Tregina
Conducted by the composer
Minuet from Military Symphony.....	Haydn
Intermezzo (Aisha).....	Lindsey
Waltz (The Dollar Princess).....	Fall
Song Suite.....	Hartmann
Illumination.....
I Am Weary.....
Saint Cecily.....
Grand Scenes from Carmen.....	Bizet
Marine's Hymn—The Halls of Montezuma.....

JOSEPH VILIM

Mr. Joseph Vilim, long known as a violinist and teacher in Chicago, has, temporarily at least, taken up his residence in California, although it is likely that he will spend a few months out of each year in Chicago, due notice of which will be given from time to time.

Mr. Vilim, through his integrity and amiability, no less than because he is a splendid artist and musician, has made hosts of friends in this city and these will wish him unbounded happiness, health and prosperity wherever he may be.

From the Canadian Journal of Music we quote with pleasure the following article about Mr. Vilim:

Joseph Vilim, who has been identified with Chicago's musical progress since 1883, is planning a prolonged sojourn in California, according to recent reports. His has been a very interesting artistic career:

Born in Chicago, January 18th, 1861, of Bohemian parentage; studied violin with his brother Frank and William Fehl; in 1880 went to Prague, studied at the Conservatory under Bennewitz (violin) and Foerster (harmony); graduated in 1882; first appearance as soloist in Nove Benatky (Bohemia); played in the orchestra at the opening of the National Theater in Prague; and in various other cities, including Vienna, Austria; acquainted with Smetana, Dvorak, Ondricek and many other celebrated Bohemian artists; after his return, he made a short concert tour in America, and, from 1884 to 1887, taught at the Chicago Musical College; from 1887 to 1899, director of the violin department at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago, also frequent appearances as soloist; during a visit in Prague, played in an orchestral concert under Tschaiakowsky; in 1887 founded a string quartet and later a trio organization; in 1890 a student's orchestra; in 1893 brought Dvorak to conduct his compositions at the World's Fair, on "Bohemian Day"; 1894-96 first violin in the Thomas Orchestra; 1899 founded the Vilim American Violin School in Chicago, and the various Vilim concert organizations; taught also at the Conservatory of Music (Frederick Grant Gleason, president) and at the Academy of Our Lady (Longwood). Among his successful pupils following the profession may be mentioned: Harry Diamond, Richard Vilim, Joseph Halameck, Julius Brander, William Eis, Melvin Martinson, Herwegh von Ende, Edna Crum, Joseph Emanuel Vilim (nephew) and Edward Roeder. Their repertoire includes the most difficult problems of the violin literature, such as the concertos by Paganini, Ernst, Vieuxtemps, Dvorak, Brahms, Wieniawski, Mendelssohn, Tschaiakowsky, etc.

LILY WADHAMS MOLINE

Lily Wadhams Moline, who for several years was organist of Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, is now organist of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Highland Park. Her musical numbers given before the lecture, April 23, were as follows:

Grand Chorus in D.....	Guilmant
Meditation.....	Sturges
Ronde d'Amour.....	Westerhout
Gavotte (Mignon).....	Thomas
Fanfare.....	Lemmens
Allegretto.....	Lily W. Moline

At the Iowa State Convention of Music Teachers at Waterloo, Iowa, May 19, 20, 21, Miss Edna H. Ellison, artist pupil of Hanna Butler, will sing four of Mrs. Moline's songs as follows: "O God of Love," "A Psalm of Praise," "In Slumberland," "Harlekins Vag" (Love's Way).

Mrs. Moline will play a program consisting of "Fanfare d'Orgne" (Shelley), and "Allegretti," by Lily W. Moline.

Columbia School of Music—The pupils of the Winnetka branch of the Columbia School of Music will give a concert on Saturday, May 15, at 2:30 at the Winnetka Woman's Club House.

Music News

THEODORE S. BERGEY

Valparaíso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ill.
An exquisite little song.—D. A. Clippinger.

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANIST
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MAY 21, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.
Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business
Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and
Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flag	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect
Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

MUSIC NEWS

Vol. 7.

Chicago, May 21,

No. 21

Editorial

AS TO CRITICISM

"Since you do not agree with the Musical Courier's estimate of what a critic should be will you please tell us your idea?"

So run many of the letters which have been received by us. Any answer to this query must be preceded by a full knowledge by the reader of the original "requirements" as set forth by the Courier and these are therefore herewith printed:

I. Without looking at the keyboard, name three single tones and three chords (the tones in each) struck on the piano.

II. Play on any instrument or sing, from memory, one standard composition of at least two printed pages.

III. Read at sight on any instrument or sing at sight one page of music from any standard composition, to be selected by the examining board.

IV. The examiners shall show the candidate one printed page each of a standard symphony, a standard opera, a standard symphonic poem, a standard instrumental work, a standard chamber music composition and a standard vocal selection, and the candidate shall name the work from which they are taken.

V. Two standard instrumental selections and one standard vocal number are to be performed in the hearing of the candidates, with the customary phrasing, harmonies, time divisions and rhythms altered in a manner to be indicated to the performers previously and privately by the examiners. The candidates are to be provided with paper and pencil and to indicate the nature of the "mistakes" made by the performers.

VI. The candidates are to be asked to identify twelve important dates in musical history and to describe the events connected with them.

VII. The candidates are to be given a melody which they will set to four part harmony, then write as a piano or violin solo, then write as a song, and then orchestrate for full orchestra.

VIII. The candidates are to be given a few lines of text in German, French and Italian from a song and from an opera, and they are to read aloud the texts and translate them.

IX. The candidates shall, without looking at the scores, designate the orchestration of three standard symphonic works in the classical literature, to be named by the examiners.

X. The candidates shall accompany at sight on the piano two pages of a standard solo number selected by the examiners.

XI. The Welte-Mignon piano, which reproduces the exact performances of great pianists, shall play six standard selections recorded by six famous pianists (numbers which they have performed in New York), and the candidates are to name the artists who made the records; or if preferred, the same piece, played by all the six artists, shall be used as the identification test.

XII. Of twelve standard vocal arias, songs and instrumental selections performed, six shall be transposed a half tone lower or higher than their original key. The candidates are to name those done in the original and those done in the transposed keys.

While any one of these requirements might be well enough for the specialist in a given line, all of them put together presuppose a knowledge and a technic which are unbelievable and which, as Music News

Though outwardly a gloomy shroud,
The inner half of every cloud
Is bright and shining;
I therefore turn my clouds about
And always wear them inside out
To show the lining.

Our idols' feet are made of clay;
So stony-hearted critics say
With scornful mockings;
My images are deified
Because I keep them well supplied
With shoes and stockings.

My modus operandi this—
To take no heed of what's amiss;
And not a bad one;
Because as Shakespeare used to say,
A merry heart goes twice the way
That tires a sad one.

Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler.

declared last week are absurd to expect of any one person, be he critic or professional musician.

§ § §

Once, when Carl Merz, a one-time famous pedagog, was asked "how soon" a student might honestly begin teaching, he replied that any earnest young person was privileged to BEGIN teaching whenever he felt that he had ONE THING so well learned that he could teach it with authority, provided he was sincere and ambitious enough to go on with his own learning and persistently and consistently KEEP AHEAD of his own pupils.

This is open to comment and to stricture, perhaps, but on the whole it contains a true thought and it may be applied to music criticism as well as to music teaching.

All musicians are born critics in so far as speech is concerned and most of them imagine also that they can write something which is quite worth while—much better than the most that is written, perhaps.

The bare act of putting into entertaining language the impressions of a music function do not presuppose so very much in the way of special preparation. A good knowledge of language and literature being accepted nowadays to be concomitant to all well educated people.

But, if the critic is to write anything which has a permanent value—something with authority—he must have a tremendous amount of routine and experience back of him.

Music News believes that the really first-class critic must be one who has been attending concerts and hearing music in all its aspects for many years.

Anyone with the other qualifications can BEGIN writing criticisms at any time, but these will not be of any great POWER until he has accumulated great experience through much listening.

Taking these statements as a preamble, what then must the good critic really possess?

(1) He must have a practical knowledge along a reasonable number of musical lines. He must play or have played well, at least one instrument, or he must have developed his own voice thoroughly and he must have had at one time or another a good working knowledge of Theory, even though the technic of it may have become rusty.

If he can play ONE instrument he is able to judge of musical values displayed on ALL of them. Phrasing, musical expression, and many other items are the same throughout the music world.

If a man be a singer he knows definitely whether or not the piano or violin is made to sing by anyone he is criticising, and if he be a well trained instrumentalist he will know at once whether the voices he hears have been trained along the lines of musicianship, even though he may be ignorant of the special "method" of voice production used.

He can even judge whether or not the "method" be a valuable one, for, if it is, the voice resulting from it will be full, clear, ringing and easy in production; otherwise it will not.

(2) He must have discrimination and be thoroughly broad-minded. If he judges all concerts from one viewpoint, if he have no power of adaptability to circumstances, his comments will have no practical value and if he be not broad enough to listen carefully and without prejudice to works of every age and of every school his judgment will be of no avail whatever.

Criticism nowadays, in all lines of the world's work, is tinged more or less with personality and with local color.

If a man can write about anything and include in his writing such phrases as will let the reader see just what was the "atmosphere" of the event and just what impressions it made at the time, his writing will be eagerly read, and this applies to music as to all other things.

Therefore, the good music critic is one who has a keen eye for environment and effects. He must be at once amenable to the influence of good management, good lighting, good printing, arrangement of program, manner of presentation and general effect.

He must sense the poetry and the passion in all that he hears. He must know histrionic power when he sees it and must absolutely measure dramatic effects.

It may make him a good critic to be able to tell at sight from what symphony any single page has been taken, but it will make him a BETTER one to be able, on hearing the symphony to be able to sense its inner thought and meaning and to be able to tell his public the mood and color intended by the composer and actually conveyed by the players.

It might be of negligible service to know what key a great many songs had been written in originally, but in view of the fact that publishers nowadays print everything in several keys and that good singers time out of mind have felt privileged to transpose anything they chose, it would be much more to the point to be able to tell the "story" of the song as revealed in the performance.

If a critic can have been a teacher and a church organist and a professional accompanist and if he can have had such actual experience as teaching in small communities and traveling about the country with concert companies, all this will help him to a sympathetic listening to whatever may be placed before him.

But this again presupposes many years of endeavor and brings us around again to the statement that the really desirable critic is he who has years of experience back of him.

As Carl Merz said, "any one may BEGIN to teach, but he must be sure to KEEP AHEAD of his pupils." So again we say that anyone may begin to be a critic if he be sure of some essential things, but he MUST STUDY AND PROGRESS all the time, else he will fall into a rut and ruts in criticism are even more dismal than in other phases of life.

In a word, the critic must not make definite errors in his statements of fact nor must he fail to catch the spirit and the intention of what he hears, but in order to meet these two essentials he need not possess the superhuman equipment asked by the Courier requirements, although it would not hurt him at any time to feel that, by degrees, he must investigate and study every possible development of the music life.

THE BOOSTER CLUB

(A Letter to Music News)

We have received a clipping from your paper signed "Organist," inquiring of your magazine what of the competition for the best song at Los Angeles, inaugurated by the Booster Club and announced in the August issue of your paper. In answer to this, we beg to say that over 900 manuscripts were submitted in this contest by different composers throughout the United States. Three of the most prominent musicians in Los Angeles have been working on these manuscripts, going carefully over each one. This necessitates each judge personally considering each manuscript. The Los Angeles judges were appointed for the process of elimination only; it is intended when they finish this work to send the remainder of the compositions to New York city, calling on two or three musicians of national reputation to make the selection of the winning entrant. Within two weeks the Los Angeles judges will have finished their part of the work, and publication of this fact will be made very shortly, followed by the announcement of the judges appointed for the final award.

The matter has taken considerably longer than was originally anticipated, but because of the care and the sincere consideration given each manuscript, we trust this delay may be considered necessary.

Thanking you for sending us this notice, and trusting that this explanation may be pleasing to all who may inquire, we are,

Yours truly,

BOOSTER CLUB OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA,
N. Banks Cregier, Acting Secretary.

PASSING COMMENT

Whatever personal business reasons may have induced Mr. Carl Kinsey to resign the management of the Apollo Club, he will be remembered for a very long time as having been a tower of strength in that position.

He has steered the Apollo ship through many a narrow and torturous strait and he has brought it to more than one resounding victory.

His personality and his business acumen as well as his immense knowledge of men and women have made it possible for him to view affairs from a specially significant standpoint and the success he has had with the Apollo Club is a sure indication of what will follow in whatever line of endeavor to which he may now devote himself.

§ § §

In the Musical Courier account of the Aurora concert great stress is laid upon the fact that the Courier Chicago representative was on "the special train" conveying the Chicago party thither. Doubtless this was an immense honor for the Courier, but there were others on the same train also, for instance, conductors, brakemen, engineer, etc. There were even a few escorts who were forgotten in the Courier's elaborate list.

§ § §

Music News has given an unusual number of reviews of state conventions and festivals this spring, but the end is not yet. Today the editor is at Ann Arbor and will supply a full review of the magnificent festival there for next week's issue, while there is also a representative at the Iowa State Meeting at Waterloo, Ia., which will also be reported in detail. In the next few weeks there will follow the festivals at Evanston, Kalamazoo and others, besides a number of other state conventions.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

Music in Chicago

ELEANOR ENSEMBLE CLUB GIVES CONCERT

The Eleanor Ensemble Club of thirty voices, directed by Miss Martha Scott and assisted by Mildred Romsdahl and Annette Pangbourne, soprano, and Mildred Smith, contralto, gave a concert Tuesday evening, May 11, on the eighteenth floor of the Stevens Building which was greatly appreciated by a large audience and well worthy of note from several points of view. The club is composed entirely of working girls and their time for rehearsals is therefore limited, but nevertheless they prepared a program which denoted a sincere desire on their part to learn the art of ensemble singing and at the same time develop a greater interest in and appreciation of the best forms of music. They have a splendid leader in Miss Scott to guide them in this work and their first reward for faithful effort was reached on Tuesday night.

The first part of the program was of a miscellaneous character. The club sang "The Skylark," by King Hall, with a bright, fresh tone quality and considerable expression, but was heard to much better advantage in "The Miller's Wooing," by Fanning, with Miss Smith singing a solo part which greatly enhanced the work of the chorus and brought much credit to herself.

Miss Romsdahl sang "Death and Life," by Coleridge-Taylor, with great expression and beautiful tone quality and was compelled to respond with an encore, so insistent was the applause from the audience. Miss Romsdahl possesses one of the most satisfactory voices heard recently and she knows how to make her songs realistic and enjoyable to the last degree. She was indeed a welcome addition to the evening's program.

Miss Pangbourne, assisted by a double trio, sang "The Lass with the Delicate Air," by Dr. Arne, unaccompanied, in a manner which pleased the audience immensely. They were compelled to repeat the last verse of this delightful song. The main feature of the concert was the giving of the song cycle, "Hawthorn and Lavender," by Fanny Snow Knowlton, which enlisted the services of the chorus and various soloists.

This work proved to be a delightful and grateful composition for this organization to present, the several chorus numbers were sung with true intonation, inspiring volume of tone and commendable expression. Miss Scott conducted at all times with intelligence, grace and assurance.

Miss Grace Cushing sang a soprano solo with chorus that was very effective and Miss Romsdahl again brought great pleasure to the audience through her excellent singing of a solo part with chorus. Miss Smith was likewise heard again in a solo part and displayed her voice in a praiseworthy manner.

Miss Pangbourne, who always sings with delightful vocal display, clear enunciation and splendid expression, had a soprano solo in the song cycle which raised considerably the artistic attainments of the evening.

Miss Bernice Schalker was also heard in a solo portion and acquitted herself with much credit.

Miss Irene Deming was at the piano throughout the evening and furnished wholly acceptable accompaniments.

Another concert by this club will be heard with pleasure. H. M. B.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The registration to date for the summer course at the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art indicates that this will be the largest and most successful course ever conducted at this school. The summer term begins June 28 and ends July 31.

Mr. Donald Robertson, star and director of the drama players, has charge of the Dramatic Art Department during the spring and summer months.

Some of the vocal teachers available for teaching this summer are Mrs. W. S. Bracken, Mrs. J. T. Beach, Elias Bredin, S. M. K. Gandell, Marion Green, W. H. Knapp, John N. Randolph, Charles Sindlinger, Lucille Stevenson, Carl Voelcker and Dr. W. C. Williams.

Arcule Sheasby and Day Williams will have charge of the Violin and 'Cello Departments, Palmer Christian, organ, and Hubbard William Harris, theory.

Mr. Henry P. Eames will direct the Piano Department, and Clarence Eidam, George G. Lewis, Mrs. Mabel W. Osmer, Marie Schada, Vivian Scott, Henriette Weber, Guy LaBelle, Elizabeth Layman, will also teach during the summer term.

JENNY DUFAN APPEARS FOUR TIMES IN CONCERT IN CHICAGO

During the present season, Jenny Dufan, whose popularity in the concert field is increasing every day, appeared four times in concert in Chicago, where she was first presented three years ago to the American public as coloratura soprano with the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

In October, she appeared at the Illinois Theater, and this first appearance was so successful that three more followed during the season, two in the Auditorium Theater, and the last one, on May 2, in the Blackstone Theater, where she was enthusiastically received by a capacity audience.

Tallarico—Mr. Pasquale Tallarico is to give a piano recital before the Federation of Musical Clubs at the Los Angeles meeting on June 29, playing the "Sonata Tragica" and the "A Minor Concerto," (MacDowell), and a group of other American compositions. The "Concerto" will be played in conjunction with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra.

Meagley—Mrs. Mary Willing Meagley, organist at the McCabe Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church in Chicago, has just completed her third year there. She lives and teaches in Toledo, Ohio, and makes the trip between the two cities each week, not having failed in the entire three years.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

Doris Pfeiffer - Moses

VIOLINIST
1403 E. 68th STREET

Mezzo-Soprano
PHONE HYDE PARK 714

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST---Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

BAILEY

ANNA AGNES
Soprano
HERBERT M.
Baritone

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piann College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET MULFORD

LAWSON CONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONTRALTO CONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling

Pianist Teacher
2912 Burling Street

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART

PIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Av., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE, 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Engaged for Chicago Grand Opera Co.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert Oratorio
Pupils
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

EVANSTON MUSIC FESTIVAL

The seventh music festival opens next Monday night at 8:15 at the Northwestern University gymnasium (Evanston), with a performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" by a chorus of 1,000 singers and the following solo artists: Florence Hinkle, soprano; Margaret Keyes, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor; Clarence Whitehill, bass, and Fritz Haines, boy soprano. A young people's chorus of 400 voices from the Evanston and New Trier high schools, and the Evanston academy, will assist in this performance. The entire Chicago Symphony Orchestra will furnish the accompaniments, and Peter C. Lutkin will be the conductor.

Tuesday night at 8:15 will be artists' night, with Pasquale Amato, baritone, of the Metropolitan Opera as the big solo artist of the evening, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor, furnishing the entire program. Mr. Amato will sing arias from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," Massenet's "Le Roi de Lahore," and the "Prayer" from Rossini's "William Tell." Mr. Stock will open the evening with Wagner's overture to "Rienzi," and Arne Oldberg will conduct his orchestral rhapsody "June." After the intermission Mr. Stock will conduct Goldmark's "Wedding March and Variations," and the evening close with the "Midsummer Wake," a Swedish rhapsody by Alfvén.

The next concert will be Thursday night at 8:15. A performance of Edward Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius." Mr. Elgar has composed many choral works, but this is conceded by musicians to be his best writing. The solo artists engaged are Mildred Potter, contralto; Evan Williams, tenor, and Henri Scott, bass. The festival chorus of 600 singers will sing the choral parts and the entire Chicago Symphony Orchestra will play the orchestral parts, with Mr. Lutkin conducting. Preceding the "Dream of Gerontius" Wagner's "Prelude to Parsifal" will be played by the orchestra under Mr. Stock's direction.

Saturday afternoon at 2:15 the children's chorus of 1,500 voices from the Evanston, Wilmette and Glencoe grade schools, will be heard in children's and patriotic songs. Sophie Breslau, contralto, of the Metropolitan Opera will be the soloist of the afternoon. This will be Miss Breslau's first appearance in the west, and although she has had many big engagements in the east her work is little known in this territory. Eastern critics are very enthusiastic over her voice and singing. A special feature of the afternoon will be a repetition of the children's cantata by Percy Fletcher, "The Walrus and the Carpenter." Selections from the music to Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," will be given, as well as many other children's songs and choruses. Miss Breslau will sing the aria "O mio Fernando," by Donizetti, and a group of children's songs, which should be most interesting. The afternoon will close with the singing of "America" by the children's chorus and audience.

Saturday night at 8:15 should be a memorable performance in many ways, since it is termed "operatic night," and Frieda Hempel, the great coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the soloist of the evening. Miss Hempel will sing Verdi's "Ernani Involami," from "Ernani"; the "Blue Danube Waltz" by Strauss, and the following songs: Schumann's "Der Nussbaum," Wolf's "Elfenlied," and Humperdinck's "Wiegenlied." The chorus of 600 singers will also be a feature of the evening, appearing in different operatic choruses, such as "Hail to the Dance," by Tchaikowsky, "Introduction and Hymn to the Sun," by Mascagni, etc. The entire Chicago Symphony Orchestra will furnish accompaniments, and Frederick Stock and Peter C. Lutkin will be the conductors. This promises to be a "gala opera night."

EDWARD CLARKE PRESENTS PUPILS

Eight advanced and professional pupils of Edward Clarke were heard in an interesting recital at the American Conservatory of Music on Saturday evening, May 15. In spite of the terrible rain storm that evening, a good-sized audience gathered, and were well repaid for their effort. The singing was uniformly good. Each pupil seemed to have had professional experience, and sang with intelligence and expression. The feature of the program was Cadman's "Morning of the Year." This was sung by four strong voices, that were well able to make this beautiful work effective. The following program was rendered in full:

List! the Cherubic Hosts.....	Gaul
Ladies' Quartet and Baritone Solo
Miss Marjorie Greenleaf, Miss Rhea Foster,
Miss Pearl Mayne, Miss Angeline DeFreest
Mr. William Breach
Die Blauen Fruhlings Augen.....	Ries
Le Heure Exquise.....	Hahn
Mes Vers.....	Hahn
Miss DeFreest
The Night Has a Thousand Eyes.....	Foote
Hope.....	MacDermid
Mr. C. T. Eward
Wohin.....	Schubert
Fruhlingsglaube.....	Schubert
Miss Marjorie Greenleaf
Es hat die Rose sich beklagt
Fur Musik
Widmung
Mr. George Enzinger
The Morning of the Year.....	Cadman
(A song cycle for mixed quartet.)
Miss Pearl Mayne, Miss Rhea Foster, Mr.
William Breach, Mr. Walter Roberts

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

The following excellent program was given at Trinity Church, April 25, by Reginald W. Martin, organist, assisted by Mrs. Caro Clerbois, violinist, and Stephen Thaxter, 'cellist:

Overture in C Minor.....	Hollins
Intermezzo.....	Hollins
Prelude du Deluge.....	Saint-Saens
Strings and Organ
Allegro e Melodia.....	Baldwin
Andante Religieuse.....	Thome
Strings and Organ
On the Coast.....	Buck
Song Without Words.....	Mendelssohn
Strings and Organ
March Religieuse.....	Guilmant

Bartholomew—Mr. H. B. Bartholomew presented his pupils in recitals at Central Block Hall, in Wheaton, Ill., on Friday evening, May 14, and Monday evening, May 17.

Robinson—Miss Carol Robinson played for the Lake View Muscial Society in their meeting at the La Salle Hotel on May 10.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }

Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

PUPILS OF MISS MARGARET CAMERON AND MR. GRANT-SCHAEFER IN RECITAL

A program of more than ordinary interest was given Friday, May 14, at Northwestern University School of Music, by two Freshman students, Miss June Feiler, pianist, and Miss Florence Datson, contralto. Both of these young people showed a great amount of talent and rendered their several numbers in a remarkably finished manner.

Miss Feiler's playing of Chopin's "Fantasie-Impromptu" and the Rachmaninoff "Prelude" was characterized by an accurate technic and good phrasing, and indeed all her numbers gave a great amount of pleasure.

Miss Datson is blessed with a beautiful voice, in the use of which, at this early stage, she is to be congratulated. In all her work she exhibited an amount of poise

EDWARD WALKER
TENOR
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1118 E. 65th St.

and finish rare in so young a singer. She gave a surprisingly fine performance of Salter's "Cry of Rachel."

The work of both these young musicians is far above the average student-recital class. The following is the program in full:

Notturmo	Chopin
Fantasie-Impromptu	Chopin
Afterwards, Love	D'Hardelot
The Rosary	Nevin
Nocturne	Leschetizky
Hark! Hark! the Lark	Liszt
My Rose of Yester'een	Marie Rich
Soloman Grundy	Coolidge
J'ai pleure en reve	Hue
Etude	Chopin
Prelude	Rachmaninoff
Cry of Rachel	Salter

Burton—Tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at 3 o'clock Miss Louise Burton will present her pupils, Miss Maude Beyler and Miss Fromilda Young, in a program of songs at the Recital room, 516 Fine Arts building. On May 1 Miss Burton sang a recital at Lombard, Ill., and on the 6th, 7th and 9th appeared in "The Bohemian Girl" at Bjorgin Hall, Chicago.

Proctor—Warren Proctor, tenor, will be heard in recital at Cadillac, Mich., this week. Mr. Proctor was soloist at the graduating exercises of the German Hospital at the Germania Club last Wednesday evening.

Miller—Miss Alta Miller of the Northwestern University School of Music presented her pupil, Marie Howell, in a successful recital last Wednesday afternoon.

WILLIAM CLARE HALL STUDIO

A visit to the studio of William Clare Hall in the Fine Arts Building again discloses a standard of work being done second to none in the city. Mr. Hall is one of the few Chicago voice teachers who finds no time for small things. His class of pupils is made up for the greater part with the professional singers of Chicago or those who are serious and gifted enough to eventually take a leading place among the foremost singers and teachers of the country. Mr. Hall is a hard worker himself and apparently succeeds in enthusing his pupils with this same characteristic.

He has placed his ideals and standard at a mark where the frivolous student will never land and consequently he is not troubled with that style of pupil and he likewise has placed his standard high in reference to engagements and only fills those that are really worth while. He is a success on those accounts.

Mr. Hall will spend the greater part of the coming summer teaching at his studio. On June 7 he is to give a recital at Hastings, Neb., and on the 8th he will sing the tenor solos in a performance of the "Creation" in the same city.

CLEVELAND BOHNET IN STREATOR

The following comment on the Von Fielitz program is taken from the Streator newspapers:

One of the most artistic musical events of the season was the recital given by the Musical Culture Club at Masonic Temple Hall last evening. The members of the club entertained a large number of their friends at this delightful function which marked the close of the club year.

The program in charge of Cleveland Bohnet, director of the club, was an innovation which was an unqualified success in many respects. The evening was devoted to works of Alexander Von Fielitz, an eminent Berlin composer, with whom Mr. Bohnet studied several years. Mr. Bohnet prefaced the musical part of the program with an informal talk about the composer and his works.

Mr. Bohnet's thorough knowledge of musical matters impresses his hearers very forcibly in such discussions. His remarks were unusually interesting on this occasion because of his personal acquaintance with the artist.

To say that Cleveland Bohnet was at the piano during the program is equivalent to saying that the piano score in each number was given a masterly interpretation. Technical difficulties were entirely forgotten and the artistry with which he supplemented the various numbers furnished half of the success of the program.—Streator Independent-Times.

Mr. Bohnet, director of the club, was at the piano, and was, as ever, perfect. He not only gave to each soloist faultless support, adding greatly to the artistic success of the evening through his masterful playing of the piano scores, which were given with a splendid musicianship which again showed him to be an artist.—Streator Free Press. (Advertisement.)

Radanovits Studio—Last week, Ruth Virginia Lewis and Jean White, sopranos from the Radanovits Studio, scored a fine success at the Wilson Theater, in classic songs. Miss Lewis is featuring "In Italy," (Boyd), and Miss White, "April Morn," (Batten), and they were immediately engaged for a thirty-six weeks tour over the Orpheum time.

MRS. TRELEASE AND MISS ROGERS IN CONCERT

Mrs. John D. Trelease, contralto, pupil of Mrs. Charles Krum, and Miss Josephine Rogers, pianist, pupil of Miss Jeannette Durno, gave a joint recital at Thurber Hall, in the presence of a large and enthusiastic audience.

Mrs. Trelease has a contralto voice of very beautiful quality, which has been so well and carefully trained that it is even and resonant throughout its range and is produced evenly and firmly. Quality and sweetness are now fully in evidence, and power, which is not yet wholly satisfactory, will doubtless increase.

She sang a number of works, those heard by this writer being "Oh, Thou that Tell-est" (from "The Messiah") and "Che faro senza Euridice" (from Gluck's "Orpheus"), both of which were well conceived and skillfully handled.

The interpretation was also satisfactory, "The Messiah" number being best in this respect.

Miss Rogers has remarkable clarity of musical thought and purity of technic, and plays with great freedom and effect, marred, however, by disagreeable mannerisms.

The Beethoven "Sonata, Op. 2, No. 1" is not a very difficult work, but it was made to carry a strong and vital message.

The Scarlatti "Pastorale" was delightful, and the MacDowell "Shadow Dance" was so scintillant and so fine in effect that it had to be repeated.

Other numbers—all well played—were by Chopin, MacDowell, Debussy and Cyril Scott.

C. E. W.

Patterson—Miss Helen Newhall, contralto, pupil of Grace Dickinson Patterson, who has been singing with excellent success in the southern part of the state, has returned and has resumed her place in Fourth Presbyterian church choir.

GEORGE MILTON LIPSCHULTZ
Teacher Violinist Soloist
1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

Howard E. PRESTON
5434 Woodlawn Av. BARITONE Telephone Midway 4175

HICKISCH Soprano
RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE
Personal Address, LA CROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Isabel Richardson

MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, Oratorio and Grand Opera. 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY

300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Contralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals

Hanna Butler

SOPRANO Pupils Recital Oratorio
512 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wabash 4870

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

NORTH SHORE FESTIVAL

The North Shore Festival at Evanston will open with a gala performance of "Elijah" on Monday evening, May 24, under direction of Peter C. Lutkin, the soloists being Florence Hinkle, Margaret Keyes,

PAUL ALTHOUSE

Paul Althouse and Clarence Whitehill, with the A Cappella Choir, festival chorus of 600 singers, augmented to one thousand by students from the Evanston and New Trier high schools and the Evanston Academy and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

On Tuesday evening Pasquale Amato will appear in an artist program in conjunction with the orchestra.

On Thursday evening "The Dream of Gerontius" will be given with Mildred Potter, Evan Williams and Henri Scott as soloists, on Saturday afternoon, Sophie Breslau will be soloist at the children's concert and on Saturday night an operatic program will be given by Frieda Hempel, the festival chorus and the Symphony Orchestra. Full programs were printed in Music News of April 23.

MISS EPPING PRESENTS PUPILS

The pupils of Miss H. Ruth Epping, pianist, gave a recital at her home on Friday evening, May 14, that was heard with much pleasure. The very creditable manner in which they presented their program is all the more pronounced when their youth is taken into consideration, for these pupils are all under fifteen years of age. Outside the admirable instruction which these young people have enjoyed from their teacher, their own intelligence and industry are great assets in their favor. Unusually good rhythm and interpretation were noticeable, also a gratifying freedom from self-consciousness.

Those appearing were Marion Dreier, Gertrude Holbeck, Elmer Anderson, Margaret Bletsch, Dorothy Harkness and their instructor, Miss Epping, who played the "Butterfly Etude," of Chopin; "Tarentelle," by Mendelssohn; and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 12," with dash, authority and well-defined interpretations. C. W. J.

ELLA V. SNELL PRESENTS ADVANCED PUPILS*PROGRAM

Prelude	Bach
Scherzo Valse	Moszkowski
	Grace Kaiser
Gondoliera (with second piano)	Reinecke
Waltz in A Minor	Chopin
Butterfly	Lavallee
	Jarmila Hamrle
Sonata, Op. 14, No. 2 (second movement)	Beethoven
Waltz, Op. 70, No. 1	Chopin
Prelude, Op. 28, No. 3	Chopin
	Elsie Herter
Impromptu, Op. 90, No. 2	Schubert
Prelude, Nos. 15 and 22	Chopin
	Esther Reid
Gavotte und Pastorale	Reinecke
Impromptu, Op. 142, No. 2	Schubert
Polonaise Militaire	Chopin
	Viola Blair
Spring Song	Henselt
To a Water Lily	MacDowell
	Jarmila Hamrle
In the Forest (second piano)	Whelpley
Air de Ballet	Moszkowski
	Elsie Herter
Arabesque (with second piano)	Debussy
Pluto's Revels	Schmoll
The Loreley	Seeling
	Esther Reid
Dream of Love	Liszt
Concerto, G Minor (first movement)	Mendelssohn
	Viola Blair
Rondo Capriccioso	Mendelssohn
	Grace Kaiser

The above program is printed in full because it is of a quality to well serve as a model for what such functions should be.

The choice of works was admirable; there was constant value and thoroughly agreeable contrast.

Better than this, the works were well chosen with regard to the pupils' stages of advancement and there was nothing played which was beyond the capacity of the player.

This ought to be an axiom in the making up of a program, but unfortunately many times it is not.

Also, in this recital the essentials of good piano playing were constantly in evidence. A round, full tone, good pedaling, an even scale and brilliant possibilities along the bravoura lines.

Added to this every pupil had good stage presence and a thorough preparation in each piece presented as well as a good idea of the musical content in each case.

All this emphatically proves Miss Snell to be a good teacher and it proves also that her pupils are faithful and earnest in their work.

Unfortunately Miss Grace Kaiser was unable to appear, but each of the other young ladies acquitted themselves with credit. Particularly well played were "To a Water Lily," "Prelude, Op. 28, C," (Chopin), "Pluto's Revels" and "Impromptu, Op. 142," (Schubert). C. E. W.

White—Mr. Roderick White, who made a New York debut recently with the greatest of success and whose Grand Rapids concert was commented upon in the last issue of Music News, was a Music News visitor last Wednesday while on his way to Santa Barbara, Cal., where he will spend the summer. Mr. White is under the management of Charles Wagner and has many engagements for next season, among the first being a New York recital in October. Chicago hopes to hear Mr. White before next season is very old and the prospects are that this will come about.

MADRIGAL CLUB PRIZE COMPETITION

The thirteenth annual prize competition of the Chicago Madrigal Club is announced as follows:

The Chicago Madrigal Club announces its thirteenth annual competition for the best setting of the poem, "O Lady, Leave Thy Silken Thread," which appears herewith.

Recognizing the value of these competitions to American music, the W. W. Kimball Co. of Chicago in 1905 endowed the Chicago Madrigal Club with an annual prize of $100.00 to be given to the successful competitor.

Conditions of the Competition

1. The composer must be a resident of the United States of America.
2. The setting must be in Madrigal form for a chorus of mixed voices a cappella.
3. It should be remembered first of all that the composition must sing well. It should be kept within a reasonable vocal compass. Parts may be doubled at pleasure.
4. Each composition must bear a fictitious name, and the composer must enclose with his composition a sealed envelope bearing upon the outside, the fictitious name, and having inside his real name and address. Loose stamps should be enclosed for the return of Mss.
5. Each composition must be sent to the director of the club, Mr. D. A. Clippinger, 414 Kimball Building, Chicago, and must be in his hands on or before October 1, 1915. The award will be made November 1, 1915.
6. The composition receiving the prize becomes the property of the Chicago Madrigal Club. All others will be returned to their authors within thirty days.
7. The composition winning the prize will be produced by the Chicago Madrigal Club at its second concert of the season of 1915-1916.
8. In the event of no worthy composition being submitted, the Chicago Madrigal Club reserves the right to withhold the award.
9. The award will be made by a jury composed of Mr. Marx E. Oberndorfer, Mr. George Colburn and Mr. D. A. Clippinger. No member of the jury shall enter the competition.
10. All communications must be addressed to Mr. D. A. Clippinger, 414 Kimball Building, Chicago, Ill.

O LADY, LEAVE THY SILKEN THREAD

Thomas Hood

O lady, leave thy silken thread
And flowery tapestry;
There's living roses on the bush,
And blossoms on the tree:

Stoop where thou wilt, thy careless hands
Some random bud will meet;
Thou canst not tread, but thou wilt find
The daisy at thy feet.

'Tis like the birthday of the world,
When earth was born in bloom;
The light is made of many dyes,
The air is all perfume.

There's crimson buds, and white and blue,
The very rainbow showers
Have turned to blossoms where they fell,
And sown the earth with flowers.

There's fairy tulips in the east,
The garden of the sun;
The very streams reflect the hues,
And blossom as they run;

While morning opens like a crimson rose,
Still wet with pearly showers;
Then, lady, leave thy silken thread
Thou twinest into flowers.

RECITAL AT NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

On Thursday evening, May 13, G. A. Grant-Schaefer presented a gifted voice pupil, Charles Maschal Dennis, baritone, in a recital at Music Hall, Northwestern University. The program was one of unusual interest in that it was made up largely of compositions not frequently heard. This statement is true of most of the recital programs which this well known teacher has under supervision.

The program was interesting also because of the praiseworthy manner in which it was presented.

Mr. Grant-Schaefer, as is his custom with his pupils, presided at the piano and that should inspire confidence in the singer, for he is an excellent accompanist.

Mr. Dennis has a clear baritone voice of good timbre, well schooled and under fine control. He also possesses musicianly instincts which enable him to interpret songs with taste and expression. His best work is on compositions of the light character, although, as previously stated, the whole program was presented with great credit to himself and his capable instructor. "Le Chevalier Belle-Etoile," "Was Bringt der Weinachtsmann," "The Mad Dog," "A Valentine" and "A Fool's Soliloquy" were given especially good readings.

The entire program was as follows:

Le Cor (de Vigny)	Flegier
Madrigal (Old French)	Thome
Romance (Bourget)	Debussy
Le Chevalier Belle-Etoile	Augusta Holmes
Bettlerliebe (Storm)	Bungert
Was Bringt der Weinachtsmann? (Hoffman von Fallersleben)	Schlesische Volksweise
Mit Deine Blauen Augen (Heine)	Strauss
Zueignung (von Gilm)	Strauss
Chanson du Toreador (from Carmen)	Bizet
War (Burnet)	Rogers
The Ballad of the Bony Fiddler (Heine)	Hammond
Nightfall (Schutze)	Keeler
The Mad Dog (Oliver Goldsmith)	Liza Lehmann
The Wolf (Old English)	Shields
A Valentine (Richards)	MacMillan
Many a Beauteous Flower	Mitchell
A Fool's Soliloquy (Reed)	Campbell-Tipton
	C. J. B.

— # # # —

Gallagher—Miss Madeline Gallagher, soprano soloist at the New England Congregational Church, sang recently as special soloist at Zion Temple, Chicago. On May 16 she sang also at the Ninth Christian Science Church, and at Dr. Hemington's Epiphany Organ Recital on the 17th. She will have a solo part in "Joan of Arc" at the Baptist Training School on May 31, and will sing in "Rose Maiden" in Defiance, Ohio, in July.

— # # # —

Lutton—Mr. Charles E. Lutton sang in concert and in "The Messiah" at Wahoo, Neb., on May 19-20.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

MARIE STAPLETON MURRAY

Mrs. Marie Stapleton Murray has just completed a very successful spring trip, singing at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on last Sunday evening as detailed in another part of Music News.

She has been invited to sing before the coming Congress of Federated Clubs at Los Angeles in June, which engagement is still pending.

On April 30, a recital was given at Memphis, Tenn., with such success that a second one was arranged by the Century Club on the 4th.

MARIE STAPLETON MURRAY

The Commercial-Appeal of that city commented as follows on her work:

Her voice has rounded into one of remarkable sweetness and she sings with the assured authority of the trained artist. Her voice has not only a sweet, pathetic quality, but has breadth and power, and she sings with the brilliancy of the operatic prima donna. This, with the addition of her fine stage presence, accounts for the rapid recognition which she has attained in the music centers of the east and the demand for her services as a singer in all parts of the country.

On May 1st, Mrs. Murray sang with great success at Oxford, Miss., taking the place of Jenny Dufau on short notice, the latter finding it impossible to come at the eleventh hour.

The Mississippian refers to her work as follows:

The final concert of the festival was on Saturday evening with Mrs. Marie Stapleton Murray, soprano, assisted by Walter Chapman, pianist, and Mrs. Will Buck, accompanist at the piano. For this recital the Lyric Theater was filled to its capacity, the M. S. C. girls of Holly Springs being present, along with the Oxford and University people. The recital of Mrs. Murray is something long to be remembered. She took her audience by surprise with her eloquent interpretation of Italian, French and German songs. The singer seems to grow upon her audience and to charm it more and more with her selections. In voice, action and personality, Mrs. Murray is one of the most charming artists that the music lovers of Oxford have ever seen. Two of her numbers need to be especially mentioned because of their beauty and perfect rendition. Loewe's "Niemand hat's gesehen" and Puccini's "One Fine Day," (Madame Butterfly).

On May 14, Mrs. Murray sang the part of "Aida" in a concert performance of the Verdi opera by the Arion Choir at Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, where she scored a great success before an audience made up of teachers and students with a liberal sprinkling of artists and teachers from Cincinnati. (Advertisement.)

GUY LA BELLE IN RECITAL

Mr. Guy Armand La Belle, presented in piano recital by Marie Schada of the Cosmopolitan School of Music faculty at the Auditorium Recital Hall on last Friday evening, at once demonstrated his great natural musical ability and the fact that his training had been along sane and artistic lines.

His tone is excellent, amenable to a fine musical feeling and capable of obeying the dictates of a well directed musical mind.

He has brilliance of technic also and can make bravoura passages sparkle in distinctly concert style, while at the same time he is capable of the most delicate and refined effects.

His appearance is good and his mental grasp on his program was definite and convincing.

GUY ARMAND LA BELLE

His program, as printed in Music News last week, contained many works of significance.

The Bach-Tausig number was given with breadth and sincerity, while Mendelssohn, Brahms and Chopin each found at his hands adequate and artistic presentation.

The Grieg "Concerto," with which the program closed, proved to be an exposition of piano playing at its best. There was surety of rhythm, definiteness of phrase and climax and an abundance of the proper pianistic color.

Miss Schada played the second piano part and together the two pianists made of the work something distinctly engaging and wholly fine.

Mr. Arthur C. Merz, baritone, a member of the faculty of the school, showed his fine gifts and his careful training to much advantage in well selected groups of songs. C. E. W.

COLUMBIA SCHOOL CONCERT

On last Friday evening a recital was given by the piano pupils of Clare Osborne Read, when an unusually well selected list of works was well played by Ethel Ralph, Amanda Kirkeberg, Ruth Mann, Gertrude B. Bartlett, Robert Macdonald, Pearl Barker, Esther Rich, Parthenia Carmichael and William Hall.

A special feature of the evening was the singing by George Gordon Beck of a group of songs by Miss Mabel Lee with the composer at the piano.

Mr. Beck is a pupil of George Nelson Holt and displayed at this time a very attractive voice which has been trained in excellent style. Technically he was able to cover all the songs with absolute ease, and in the matter of interpretation he was also thoroughly enjoyable, infusing each with musical feeling as well as making great differences in mood and color among the individual numbers.

ARCANGELI PUPILS IN RECITAL

Pupils of Signor A. Arcangeli will give an operatic concert at the Blackstone Theater on Sunday afternoon, May 23, at 2:15, when a splendid program will be given including numbers from "I Puritani," "La Tosca," "Rigoletto," "Louise," "Faust," "Samson and Delilah," "Iris," "Il Trovatore," "O Don Fatale," "Friend Fritz," "La Boheme," "Natoma," "Manon," "Herodi-

SIGNOR A. ARCANGELI

ade," "La Wally," "Aida" and "Hamlet."

The program will close with a scene from "Hamlet" by Miss Ruth Melba Stein and Signor Arcangeli.

DIEDERICH PUPIL IN RECITAL

About fifteen songs were heard in a recital at the MacBurney Studios on Monday evening, the singer being Miss Nina Hoover Cummings, and the accompanist Miss Katherine Reiplinger, who is both clever and sympathetic at the piano.

Mr. Walter Diederich is the teacher of Miss Cummings and he may well pride himself upon her achievements, for, beyond any question she proved conclusively on Monday that she has talent and that she is on the road to fine achievement. She has mastered the rudimental things concerning voice production very well indeed, and sings with ease and also with such control over her resources as to prove that she has developed conscious power.

It is very true that no great depth of musical feeling has as yet been developed, but with the technical aspects of her work so well under way and with her inherent good taste and musical feeling the power to portray deeper and more dramatic passions will unfold itself by degrees.

A large proportion of her songs were of the gay, insouciant class and this was entirely as it should be, for in these she excels.

Two of the very best songs heard were "On Wings of Music," (Mendelssohn), and "Florians Song," by Godard, these being done in truly typical style and showing all the best qualities of Miss Cummings' voice to advantage.

The most dramatic work heard, or at least the one which was made most truly dramatic in aspect by Miss Cummings, was "Yesterday and Today," (Spross), and in this there was every evidence of the power to use many gradations of tone and to employ also skillful contrasts.

Two songs which are not at all hackneyed, at least they are not well known to this writer, were "The Mother Sings," by Sinding, and "Sweet Good Night," by Massenet, both very telling songs and the last being particularly well done by Miss Cummings.

All of her program was sung in English and she gave much evidence of great care in enunciation and she may have the satisfaction of knowing that to her audience almost every word of the texts was entirely intelligible.

Miss Cummings has good presence and, judging by the care with which this program was prepared, she is a good student.

If she therefore continues her study along the good lines already being employed it follows that she will certainly reach a place of distinction. C. E. W.

Foerster—At a program given by the Teutonia Mannerchor of Pittsburgh, a group of Pittsburgh compositions was given including the "Rhine Journey," by the club, and "Die Ablossung," sung by I. K. Myers.

Freer—Eleanor Ernst Freer's "A Child's Quest" was sung by Mrs. Furness Hatley at the Fortnightly Club in Chicago, Miss Eleanor Scheib being accompanist.

Neff—Miss Prudence Neff is the winner of the Federation Contest in the south and will appear at the June meeting in Los Angeles.

DORMER PUPILS SING

On Friday night, May 14, occurred the ninth monthly recital of the year, of the vocal and dramatic pupils of Elizabeth Guion Dormer, at her home studio, 2448 Jackson boulevard.

A brilliant and appreciative audience gathered, and most of the students acquitted themselves with the real professional poise that is characteristic of Dormer pupils.

Miss Malvia Davidson, who is completing a six months' course, shows careful study and marvelous improvement in her speaking and singing voice. The song, "Because I Love You, Dear," by Hawley, and her rendition of "Aux Italian," with the music from "Il Trovatore," played by Florence Little, was an artistic bit of work.

Mrs. A. Wahreley of Austin sang with simplicity and feeling a good solo, "Infinite Love," by Butler. Anita Weimmer sang for the first time before an audience a "Serenata" by Tosti, and showed good placement and purity of tone. Miss McCartney's voice is bordering, and her "Because" by Guy D'Hardelot was charmingly rendered, but she was not sure of herself in the "Swallows" by Bingham. Miss Lydia Ross' offering, "The Year After," showed her emotional work to advantage. Mr. John Bethun is a young singer, who has made rapid strides the past few months. He sang "The Stein Song" by Bullard very pleasingly.

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE
419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

Eugenia Thibault's rendition of a strong dramatic bit, "Two Hearts and a Spade," was given with great force and surity. This young lady's style is clear and free from all affectation.

John J. McIntyre is another young singer we have been watching. He gains in poise each time he appears, and his voice is getting more resonant and powerful. He sang "Invictus," by Huhn, with both force and comprehension and his rendition of an aria from "Faust" in Italian was excellent. We predict a successful future for Mr. McIntyre on the concert stage if he continues to improve. The closing recital of the season will be given June 29 at Central Music Hall.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sunday morning the quartet, Mrs. Jane P. Fritch, soprano, Mrs. W. S. Bracken, contralto, W. V. Downer, tenor, Arthur Merz, bass, and chorus-choir of the First Presbyterian Church, did some splendid singing of hymns and anthems.

The choir under the direction of Mrs. Francis S. Moore, sings with a fine balance, and good quality of tone. Their unaccompanied work in "In the Beauty of the Gloaming," by Havens, was beautiful indeed. The choir also lead in some rousing hymn singing that was very effective. Mrs. Fritch sang a solo that was well done. Mr. Moore furnished good support at the organ.

EDNA GUNNAR PETERSON

The young pianist who has achieved such a notable success on this season's transcontinental tour.

writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

June 1, 1914.

CABLE PIANO COMPANY, Chicago.

Gentlemen—
The Mason & Hamlin Piano is an inspiring friend to the performer and a real teacher of tone to pianists and students of piano. Every imaginable quality of tone can be produced on this wonderful instrument.

Very sincerely,
EDNA GUNNAR PETERSON.

Mason & Hamlin

Pianos for sale only at the
warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

Write for beautiful illustrated catalog

AGNES HOPE PILLSBURY PUPIL
IN RECITAL

Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury has an admirable sense of the value of accessories and therefore surrounded her pupil, Miss Elsie Rohloff, with the advantages of a soft, shaded light to intensify the warm color and elusive shadows of her beautifully furnished studio. Miss Rohloff, by the innate refinement of her musical nature, filled into the quiet, serene and well ordered scheme of things. She has talent, taste and temperament, all in quite pronounced order of development, and played her well-balanced short program with poise and surety. The Bach group showed her to be well grounded in the necessities; the Beethoven "Adagio" was done with feeling for its poetry; two Chopin "Mazurkas" had deftness and lightness of spirit, and the Mendelssohn "Spring Song" was well done also.

A group of modern compositions of real merit were done with commendable contrast of color, the Schutt "Reverie" being notably happy.

With Miss Pillsbury at second piano a Brahms "Hungarian Dance" had lots of style and fervor and then Miss Pillsbury rounded out the evening with a Mozart-like Beethoven excerpt, that was full of a fine, broad intelligence and impeccable touch and tone.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Three Arts Club—The Three Arts Club at 1300 Dearborn avenue, gave a housewarming tea and musicale on Monday afternoon, May 17.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo. Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS SOPRANO PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS

Cellist
American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Aze SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
one Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

GUILD FESTIVAL SERVICE AT ST. PATRICK'S

The series of public services provided by the Illinois Chapter, Guild of Organists, was further enriched by the elaborate one occurring on Ascension Day (13th), when the forces which Dr. J. Lewis Browne can marshal in this historical old church were heard. He had the further aid of Mr. Walter Keller and William Middleschulte as visiting organists. The latter created such a marked impression as to make the occasion notable, when he presented once more his ornate transference of the Bach "Chaconne" from violin to organ. His treatment is masterly, and he has increased the work's complexity by endless polyphony. And yet as convincing moments are in evidence when he repeats, on the organ manuals, those elaborations where, by endless bowing, the melody is carried along fluently and yet the lace-like fortitude is kept flowing as well. The beautiful Austin organ responded to his demands and there was profusion of variety in his registration.

Mr. Keller chose for his vehicle a "Sonata" of Herbert J. Wrightson, written some years ago, but still in manuscript. It is a thoroughly enjoyable work, with a certain directness of utterance that makes for freshness and continued interest. There is abundant thematic material and the writing at all times is sure of itself in mood and manner. The first movement wins its way by the use of a sort of insistent, pleading theme, contrasting with an answering one of quiet harmonic serenity. The slow movement is almost fragile in its delicate, poetic intention and calls for an unusual skill to preserve its sweet fragrance. A chromatic fugue makes up the finale. Mr. Keller was more than felicitous in the working out of the several moods, and in the lovely adagio left nothing to be desired in the way of exquisite tonal effects and the realization of the atmosphere called for.

Dr. Browne's choirs were heard in processional and recessional, some simply superb Gregorian psalm intoning, where there was infinite variety in the use of the voices and the organ and culminating, as usual, in the use of the sweet treble of the tiny boys' voices in the first strophes of the "Gloria Patri." That's one way, and a good one, to build up a stunning climax. Dr. Browne's "Ecce Sacerdos" was one of the most pre-tentious numbers included in the long list which made up the service. He knows how to write things singable and fluent, and in this he has a series of progressive "Alleluias" that carry the voices up and up to a telling finale. His own "Golden Harps" was used for offertory, and "Divine Praises" for benediction. His adaptation of Auber's "Salutares" is compellingly beautiful and a Grieg "Tantum Ergo" was done splendidly. Throughout the long and intricate service and an involved postlude, he was the controlling, dominating factor, infusing not only musical authority and sureness, but unstinted enthusiasm and high purpose. The audience was ready to accept Father McNamee's high tribute to his director. The father's address was a fine moment of cordial co-operation and welcome.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Weaver—Iva Bigelow Weaver sang in "The Messiah" at Pittsburg, Kas., on May 6.

ALLEN SPENCER'S ADVANCED PUPILS

So many are the necessary concerts at the American Conservatory at this time of the year that Saturday afternoons will not suffice for one-half of them and consequently many evening events are being given, the attendance usually being of that "capacity" kind which is always seen on Saturday afternoons at Kimball Hall.

On last Friday evening the advanced pupils of Allen Spencer were presented in a concerto program and at once demonstrated the fact of their own faithful work as well as that Mr. Spencer is a remarkable teacher.

Every pupil played with certainty of technique and great poise and finish.

The interpretations were all good, albeit the program was entirely of the "concerto" variety, a class of work which conduces more to brilliance than musical feeling.

However, the Spencer pupils not only showed admirable breadth and clarity in technical preparation, but also demonstrated musical and effective tonal values in every composition.

Those appearing, every one of whom deserves special praise, were Miss Schaper, Miss McVey, Miss Masley, Miss Baum, Miss Ginsburg, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Kinney and Mr. Jessen, with Mr. Spencer playing the second piano in each number. C. E. W.

— # # # —

MAC BURNEY STUDIOS CLUB

The MacBurney Studios Club assembled at the delightful home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. MacBurney on Thursday evening, May 13, and enjoyed one of the most pleasant evenings this club has ever held.

Mr. and Mrs. MacBurney are a complete success as entertainers and the atmosphere of their home seemed to awaken in everyone present in great measure a spirit of joyfulness and good fellowship which is the keynote of this organization. There is perhaps no studios in the city where loyalty and deep friendship abound in such abundance as in the MacBurney studios and consequently the members and friends of these studios look forward with pleasure and eagerness to the regular monthly meeting of this successful club. A very enjoyable program was given by Elsie Fern MacBurney, Arthur Westbrook, Walter Diedrich, Leon P. Payne, William G. Hay, Worthe Faulkner and Ethel Geistweit Benedict.

Other features which go to make up an evening of rare enjoyment were indulged in.

— # # # —

THE DRAKE OPERA

(A correction)

Owing to a printer's error the last part of our review of the Drake School Opera performance in last week's Music News was somewhat unintelligible. It should have read as follows:

"In fact all of the solo singers proved to have been excellently chosen for their various parts and each one of them reflected great credit on the careful teaching received at the Drake School.

"This good training and the fine work of the School Orchestra again demonstrated that in this institution unusually favorable opportunities for development are presented especially in the fact of actual vocal and orchestral appearances before the public."

STRAND THEATER COMPANY

The second week of the Strand Theater engagement at Orchestra Hall was played to larger audiences than the first week and the enthusiasm was a continually growing factor, showing conclusively that the venture is one which pleases the public very much and that Orchestra Hall will be one of the favorite places in which to spend summer afternoons and evenings.

The pictures shown are of such superior quality as to constitute a great attraction. For the second week, Mary Pickford and a well selected company were displayed in "Fanchon," an old time favorite play, but still vitally interesting. Mary Pickford plays it quite differently from the way it was played in the past by Maggie Mitchell, but she also suggests that famous actress in many ways.

"Kittens at Play" delighted the first week audiences, but "The Pups," shown the second were none the less desirable and the "Current Events," "Travelog" and "Cartoons" were again thoroughly fine.

The orchestra, under Mr. Dunham's direction, has fitted itself snugly into the niche it is expected to fill and both in accompaniments and in solo endeavor is absolutely first-class.

The quartet sang "Carmena" in excellent style and with very unusual effect. Great care must have been taken in the selection of voices for not only is each one fine, but the ensemble is of such superior blend and quality as to prove conclusively that it was not chosen haphazard. The personnel is Lora Withers, Hazel Huntley, Victor Downer and John Rankl.

The soloist of the week was Miss Hazel Huntley, who sang "My Heart at Thy Dear Voice," "Samson and Delilah," so unusually well as to rivet attention and center the applause.

Miss Huntley displayed a powerful tonal quality, thoroughly flexible to her interpretative will and presented as well a graceful and musically correct reading of the famous number.

Her encore was a model of sustained and beautiful tone quality.

During the current week Mr. John Rankl is singing solos and the musical numbers of quartet and orchestra are entirely changed.

The principal reel is one showing Elsie Janis in a popular play. C. E. W.

###

Knox Conservatory—Miss Alma Margo Pearson gave her graduating organ recital at the Knox Conservatory of Music at Galesburg, Ill., on May 13 and demonstrated great ability and fine finish in an unusually well selected program. Carl K. McKinley was equally successful in a graduating pianoforte recital on May 11, having the assistance of Miss Josephine M. Mizer, soprano.

###

Cincinnati—At the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, "Aida," "Manon" and "Faust" were given by pupils of the operatic classes under direction of Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli at Emery Auditorium on May 7, with signal success.

###

McCormack—The McCormack recital announced for last Sunday at the Auditorium was canceled.

A MUSICAL EVENING

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Dusen and Mr. Marmaduke Eide entertained at a musicale last Thursday evening, May 13, at the Van Dusen home, 6205 Langley avenue, for Miss Alma Peterson and Miss Anita De Witte Cook, organist and composer of St. Paul.

Miss Peterson, soprano, and a member of the Chicago Grand Opera Company sang three charming groups of songs. She was assisted in her recital by Miss Idorna Newmark and Kurt Wanieck, pianists, and Miss Cook and Sidney Arno Dietch as accompanists. The following program was rendered:

Gotine Gialle	Brogo
A Janta a Ja	Haag
Tagelns Visa	Soderberg
Widmung	Schumann
Standchen	Strauss

Miss Alma Peterson
Sidney Arno Dietch, accompanist
Concert de Etude.....MacDowell
Idorna Newmark

The Birth of Morn.....	Leoni
My Laddie	Thayer
Ecstasy	Rummel
Four Years Old.....	Lohr
A Spirit Flower.....	Campbell-Tipton
The Year's at the Spring.....	Beach

Miss Peterson
Mr. Dietch at the piano
Andante (Sonata).....Schumann
Toccata.....Saint-Saens
Perpetual Motion.....MacDowell
Kurt Wanieck

To You
I Need Thee So
Within a Dreaming Harbor
.....Anita De Witte Cook
Miss Alma Peterson
The composer at the piano

As an impromptu Miss Florence Hedstrum, soprano, sang a composition of Marmaduke Eide's, "On the Sea," with the composer at the piano, and Madame Luella Chilson Ohrman, soprano, sang Alice Parks' "Memory," playing her own accompaniment.

###

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Miss Lucille Stevenson, soprano, sang at the festival at Indianapolis on Sunday and Monday, May 16 and 17, and a recital at Waterloo, Iowa, with Miss Agnes Bodholdt, pianist, on Wednesday, May 19.

Miss Gertrude Farrell, soprano, will take the Norwegian role in the song cycle, "L'Internationale" to be given by pupils of Miss Lucille Stevenson on Monday evening, May 24, in Auditorium Recital Hall.

Miss Farrell will sing the Norwegian Echo Song, with the version used by Jennie Lind and other Norwegian folk songs.

The others appearing in the cast are Mary S. Atwood, prologue; Lucia May Smith, Russia; Florence Wall, Germany; Margaret Middleton, France; Edythe Rowe, England; Elizabeth Gilbert, Italy; Marion McSurely, Ireland; Martha Harris MacLeod, Scotland; Harriet Skipwith, Spain; Anna Braun, American Indian, and Louise Wotting, United States.

###

Mendelssohn Conservatory—On Tuesday evening last at the Conservatory Rooms in the McClurg Building, the following pupils appeared in an attractive program of piano music: Elsie Winter, Bernice Baur, Minnie G. Green, Mildred M. Stall, Florence Finstad, Bertha Lunde, Anna Melby, Charlotte Prohaska, Abbie Hansen, Esther Adamson, Myrtle Herrick, Wilfred Reyhl, Myrtle Andersen, Alma Kalsein and Thora Munkvold.

FRANK W. Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3656 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Carlton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

ST. LUKE'S CHOIR, EVANSTON, ILL., WILLIAM BROOKE REEVE, ORGANIST AND MASTER OF THE CHOIR

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH AT EVANSTON

Two years ago when he arrived at Evanston to assume the work as organist and master of the choir, Mr. William Brooke Reeve found a very discouraging field owing to the fact that during the previous eight years there had been so constant a change of masters that no traditions had been established and no really good singers had become attached to the choir.

After a process of weeding out Mr. Reeve begun the upbuilding of the organization along the very best traditional Episcopal church lines, and he has now evolved a choir of forty-five boys which will compare very favorably with any in the country.

Mr. Reeve's policy is not to employ many men, but to be very certain of the quality of those he does use, and through this means he has evolved a mass tone which is thoroughly balanced as to parts and is also wholly artistic in musical results.

By degrees the Evanston people have come to forget the poor work which was formerly done, and now St. Luke's is considered one of the finest musical organizations of the city, and it will be only a question of time until Chicago will acknowledge that no better choir exists within its borders or in its surrounding towns than that under the direction of William Brooke Reeve in Evanston.

The services at St. Luke's in evensong and Eucharist are fast reaching the standard of the cathedrals in England—many services the past year such as the dedication of the church, ordinations, etc., have been done in a thoroughly fine way, and in addition to the ritualistic work, the choir has given many special music services, oratorios, etc.

The 4:30 service on Sunday afternoon invariably attracts many musicians.

— # # # —

P. E. O. MUSICALE

Monday, May 17, Adah Bryant Buckingham, contralto, and Nell Bryant, soprano, gave the musical program for the P. E. O. Society at the Auditorium Hotel. Miss Bryant has a soprano voice of splendid range and power, and she uses it to good advantage in the presentation of songs. She sang as an opening group numbers by Mascagni, Speaks. The "Aria" was given a fine rendition, and "To You" given as an encore won her more enthusiastic applause, for she sang it with great charm of voice and manner.

Mrs. Buckingham has a contralto voice of a very appealing quality, used with fine discrimination and artistry. Her offerings were Smith's "The Quest," Ware's "Mammy's Song," and Cadman's "Dawning," giving them with a fine breadth of style and a good understanding of their musical values. She draws her interpretation along broad lines, both vocally and dramatically, making her singing very effective and artistic.

Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Bryant gave some duets that also won them the merited approval of the entire audience. "Tales of Hoffman" was a joy to hear, and a "Swing Song," sung as an encore, drew them added applause and commendation.

ROOT STUDIO

On Saturday morning the spacious studio of Mr. F. W. Root held another capacity audience, which came to hear the splendid program of songs that are presented by his pupils. Those taking part on this occasion were Misses Clara Schweinfurth, Irma Nickel Cullis and Mrs. G. H. Wynnkoop.

Mr. Root added greatly to the enjoyment of the program by some very neat remarks concerning the songs presented.

The presentations given the varied list of songs reflects much credit upon Mr. Root's teaching. Those appearing on the program displayed much musical talent and splendid voices, used with fine discrimination in the interpretation of the songs.

Miss Schweinfurth gave numbers by Haydn, Herbert, Beach, Schubert, Cowen and Root. Miss Nickel sang "Love Me if I Live," by Cowen, and Miss Cullis sang "My Laddie" and "Macushla," by McDunrough. Mrs. Wynnkoop offered a Strauss number, "A Late Boat," which was given a very effective reading.

— # # # —

Stead—Music News not only incorrectly spelled the name of Franklin Stead, president of the Peoria Musical College in its Centralia report, but also failed to give him credit for the fact that he was elected chairman of the program committee for next year. Mr. Stead is a man of fine executive ability as well as a good musician, and he will be sure to prepare a fine program for the next convention.

— # # # —

Willard-Bollman—Miss Carolyn Willard and Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman will present their pupils, Geneva Chacey, pianist, and Lucile White, soprano, in a joint program at Thurber Hall on this (Friday) evening.

ORGAN FOR SALE

2 Keyboards and pedals, 30 stops,
Bellows operated by electric motor. Built by Johnson & Son.
A fine instrument at a bargain.

Address Organist

3018 Vernon Av

CHICAGO

FULLERTON HALL CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT

As usual the Sunday afternoon concert sponsored by the Society of American Musicians drew two capacity audiences last Sunday, and the appreciation was at the highest point of intelligence.

The program more closely held to "chamber" music than has any other, and was made up primarily of two quintets, the first being the Schubert "Op. 163," played by strings, and the second the number written for strings and clarinet, by Mozart, in which the last named instrument was skillfully played by Antonie Quitsow.

Other artists playing in the two numbers were Harry Linden, second violin; Richard Wagner, 'cello; Cesar Linden, viola; Fred Scheld, 'cello, and Ludwig Becker, first violin, the latter playing in both quintets and in the Grieg "Sonata, Op. 13," in which a clear and vigorous piano part was supplied by William C. Hill.

Mr. Becker is an artist par excellence, and not only glorified the Grieg score, but was also the forefront and the artistic life of the larger ensembles.

At the 3 o'clock concert, Lucia May Smith, soprano, won many friends by her beautiful singing of a group by Arensky, Boradine, Salter and Ward-Stephens.

Miss Smith has a lovely voice and very correct musical style. Miss Agnes Bodholdt was her accompanist.

At the 4:15 concert Miss Lillian Price sang with Mrs. George Nelson Holt at the piano.

C. E. W.

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

The post-graduate recital of Miss Elizabeth Leitch was given at Kimball Hall, Thursday evening, May 20. She was assisted by Miss Annette Pangbourne, soprano, in the following program:

Concerto, G Minor, Op. 22 (first movement)..... Saint-Saens
Sonata, B Flat Minor, Op. 35..... Chopin
Grave-Doppio Movimento
Scherzo
Marche Funebre
Finale
O Sleep, Why Do'st Thou Leave Me (Semele)..... Handel
Graceful Butterfly (Les Fetes Venetiennes)..... Camppra
She Is So Innocent (La Fille de Madame Angot)..... Lecocq
Concert Etude, Op. 36..... MacDowell
Danse Andalouse, Op. 37..... MacDowell
Melody in E, Op. 3, No. 3..... Rachmaninoff
Danse de Elfes, Op. 3..... Sapellnikoff
Rhapsody, G Minor, Op. 11, No. 1..... Dohnanyi
The Messenger
The Rose Complained }
In the Woods } Franz
The Pine Tree }
Concerto, Op. 22 (last movement)..... Saint-Saens (Orchestral parts in Concerto played on second piano by Harmon H. Watt

LILLIAN LUDWIG

Miss Lillian Ludwig, pianist, appeared in recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall Thursday evening, May 14, with Lillian M. Speck, reader.

Miss Ludwig disclosed a very reliable technic, and she played with much abandon and a good tonal quality the C sharp minor Prelude by Rachmaninoff. She also gave a good account of herself in the incidental music of "Enoch Arden," which was presented later in the evening by Miss Speck, a talented reader.

FANNY DE TRAY IN "THE MITE AND THE MIGHTY"

Music News presents herewith a picture of Miss Fanny De Tray, dressed in the part of "The Queen," one of the characters in "The Mite and the Mighty," the new comic opera by Earl Drake which was given with success at Central Music Hall last week.

The picture was delayed in making and could not be used in the review of the work last week.

Miss De Tray, who is a long time pupil of Mrs. Beaumont at the Drake School of Music, sang the part of "The Queen" in the very first performance of the new opera,

FANNY DE TRAY AS "THE QUEEN"

given at Elburn two weeks ago and again at the Central Music Hall performance in Chicago, scoring much success on both occasions.

A competent critic at Elburn said that she was the best item of the performance and at the Chicago production she also gave a very good account of her abilities.

She sang the several solo numbers falling to her score easily and with much display of vocal ability, her dressing of the part was thoroughly agreeable and her histrionic ability was proven to be naturally good and also she showed that along this line she has had good and effective training. The work of this young singer will be watched with every assurance that she will take high rank in her chosen field.

C. E. W.

Proctor—Some of the early dates of Warren Proctor, tenor, are: June 8, at Hillsdale, Mich., in "Cavalleria Rusticana," and June 14, at Albion, Mich., in "Samson and Delilah." The date of "The Joy of the Bell," in Chicago, has been postponed until early in October.

THE MAC BURNEY STUDIOS

The MacBurney Studio Club, an organization which has been very successful in promoting a distinctive and helpful social life in the MacBurney Studios, met at the home of Mr. MacBurney on last Tuesday evening, when about fifty guests were present.

The following program was given:

In Italy Jeanne M. Boyd
Elsa Fern MacBurney
Slumber Romance (Philemon et Baucis)..... Gounod
Had a Horse (Hungarian Folk Song)..... Korbay
Arthur E. Westbrook
The Nightingale Ward-Stephens
The Call of Spring..... Daniels
Walter A. Diederich
Phyllis Is My Only Joy..... Whelpley
Uncle Rome Homer
Sweet Miss Mary..... Neidlinger
Lon P. Payne
Requiem of the Sea..... Salter
Dearest Denne
William G. Hay
The Opium Smoker..... Campbell-Tipton
Night and the Curtains Drawn..... Ferrata
Worthe Faulkner
Israfel Kelly
The Snake Charmer Lehmann
Ozean, du Ungeheuer (Oberon)..... Weber
Ethel Geistweit Benedict
Accompanists: John Doane, Grace Grove,
Mrs. William G. Hay

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN HATTSTAEDT CONSERVATORY President

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivalled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.
646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

SOLOS and QUARTETS FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUBAUER
CLEVELAND IN JUNE

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 571

Have You Seen

Our New Catalog of Educational Sheet Music?

LITTLE WHIMSIES FOR LITTLE PIANISTS

By Carrie Bullard

Four interesting and melodious pieces in the first grade from which the little folks will derive pleasure and profit.

Barcarole

My Pony Tots

Copyright, 1914, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge

OTHER NEW FIRST GRADE PIECES

First Buds of Spring, by E. J. Biedermann
Six easy recreative and instructive compositions for pianoforte—graded, fingered, and marks of expression carefully indicated.

Five Little Dances, by J. F. Zimmermann.

The little folks always love dance music and the exquisite melody of these little gems will render them no exception to the rule.

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES

E. R. Kroeger. Op. 82. No. 1-10

Ten second grade teaching pieces embodying modern educational principles. The introduction of an illustrated story of each "Tale" quickens the student's interest and creates a desire to play with expression.

The Golden Bird

R. H. A. 172

Copyright, 1914, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge

1. Little Red Riding Hood.....$0.40
2. The Enchanted Stag......40
3. The Frog Prince......30
4. Little Thumbkin......35
5. Snow White and Rose Red.....30
6. The Three Spinning Fairies.....35
7. The Dancing Shoes......40
8. The Sleeping Beauty......30
9. The Golden Bird......40
10. Hansel and Gretel......50

FOR SALE AT ALL MUSIC STORES

Thematic Catalogue mailed free on request

HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE, Publishers

30 Irving Place, New York City

A SPRING FESTIVAL AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Mandel Hall at the University of Chicago held a large and enthusiastic audience on Friday evening, May 14, when a spring festival of music and dancing was given by the children of the University High School and University Elementary School, assisted by the University of Chicago Orchestra.

Two hundred and fifty children, accompanied by the orchestra and directed by J. Beach Cragun, gave a rendition of the cantata "The Garden of Flowers," by Denza, as the first portion of the evening's activities. Nine delightful numbers formed this cantata, and Mr. Cragun succeeded in making everyone worthy of note, so well did he control the youthful singers and orchestra. It was indeed a remarkable performance, when the following fact is taken into consideration. No elimination of voices was made prior to the performance, as is often the case, but every pupil of the above named schools appeared on the platform and took part in the singing, to the best of his or her ability. There was unusually good intonation in evidence at all times, and the assurance noted in the singing of the part songs was a proof of excellent training. A majority of the children had the work memorized, and there was a beautiful display of tone blending, shading and expression in several numbers. It was a splendid exhibition of the regular class work in these schools.

Mr. Cragun knew his work and position well, and acquitted himself of the responsibilities at the conductor's stand with great eclat. He led the orchestra of twenty-five pieces through a very praiseworthy performance of the suite "The Wand of Youth," by Elgar, following the singing of the cantata. This organization is well balanced as to instruments, and consequently their music is balanced to a fine degree. The four movements of this suite were rendered with splendid finish and excellent tone quality. Mr. Cragun conducted with authority, intelligence and grace, and was rewarded by a great round of applause from the audience.

The last portion of the program was given over to the executing of about fifteen English country dances, in which 120 children took part. The participants in this work were elegantly and appropriately costumed, and brought a real thrill to the vast audience when they made their grand march through the hall. The various dances were rendered gracefully and with the abandon of everyday play time. To a great portion of the audience, the last part of the evening's entertainment was the most enjoyable.

H. M. B.

Burnetti—Mr. Kansas Stark, baritone, pupil of Sebastian Burnetti, made a great success at the opening concert at River-view, singing the "Prologue" from "I Pagliacci" and the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen."

Wing—Mrs. Louise Hilton Wing presents three sopranos in recital at Knollslea Hall, Girton School, Winnetka, this (Friday) afternoon at 3:30. These are Julia Davis, Geraldine Dennis and Gladys McQuatters.

LASSEN SONGS AT THE CLIPPINGER STUDIOS

The music lovers which assembled at the Clippinger Studios in Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon, May 15, were given a rare treat in the form of a lecture recital of the songs of Edward Lassen. The rareness of the occasion was not found wholly in the discourse of Mr. Clippinger on Lassen and his compositions or the singing of Mr. Robert Quait, tenor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Charles Orchard, but because the songs of this composer are seldom heard or rarely studied by the present day musicians. It may be they are too good. At any rate they are not satisfactory as concert songs for the present day concertgoer in that they are not dramatic and startling enough to create a sensation. However, they are well worth while to the serious student and contain valuable material for the development of a keen sense of refinement in melody and delicacy of style. From many points of view this recital was one of the most pleasant offered by Mr. Clippinger and his array of artist pupils this season.

Mr. Quait possesses one of the purest tenor voices heard recently, it is of equal power throughout its entire range and there is the stamp of intelligence in his every use of this vocal equipment. He delivers his songs with ideal expression and his concert style is wholly to be commended. His list of songs contained the richest treasures of the Lassen allotment to the world and were arranged in an order which brought variety, contrast and deep interest into the afternoon's program.

"Lily Blossom," "Thou Fairest Vision," "The Poet," "The Glaciers by Moonlight," "Thine Image," "When the Springtide o'er the Hills is Seen," "The Sun's Bright Beams," "Summer Evening," "Ah, 'Tis a Dream," "Whither," "Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender," "Gypsy Boy in the North," "Once Again," "My Lily," "Blue Eyes," "Lullaby," "Sabbath Morn" and "Romance" comprised Mr. Quait's offerings and only two or possibly three of the list is familiar to the average concert attendant, while in fact the whole lot is worthy of recognition.

A remarkable and enjoyable point in all the Clippinger recitals is the excellent accompaniments played by Mrs. Orchard. After noting her performance on last Saturday one was almost led to believe she had played nothing but Lassen songs for weeks when in reality she has played almost everything but Lassen, yet her playing was of the most finished and expressive style.

H. M. B.,

CECIL FANNING AT THE FEDERATION MEETING

Mr. Cecil Fanning has been chosen to take the place of Mr. David Bispham, who finds it impossible to attend the Federation Congress at Los Angeles in June.

On June 29 Mr. Fanning is to sing in "The Desolate City," with orchestra, this being Mabel W. Daniel's prize composition, and on the 30th, with Mr. Turpin at the piano, he will give a song recital, including works by Kernochan, Van Nuys Fogel, W. L. Rogers, Homer, Ayres, Busch, Ware and Cadman—all American composers.

The Hardman Piano

(Established 1842 in New York)

Recognized by the World's Greatest Vocal Artists and Musicians generally as the most perfect instrument to accompany the voice, and used exclusively in the homes of

CARUSO, TETRAZZINI, ZENATELLO, SLEZAK,
AND MANY OTHERS.

"A wise man profits by the experience of others"

Read what they have to say and remember that the same service and quality is at your command. Let us send you our booklet EXPRESSIONS OF OPINION, which contains half-tone pictures of the best known Operatic Stars.

Most reasonable in price among the few Artistic Pianos.

Uprights, $450.00 up. Grands, $700.00 up.

F. S. SPOFFORD, Chicago Representative
Seventh Floor, Republic Building,
State Street, Corner Adams.

COMBINED CHOIRS SING AT ST. PETER'S

Many splendid musical services have been noted at St. Peter's Church in the past, but it is doubtful if any heretofore have equaled the musical efficiency attained on Sunday evening, May 16, when the choir of St. Mark's Church, Evanston, journeyed down and joined forces with that of St. Peter's in a festival service.

Over ninety choiristers, apparently all eager to sing like they never had sung before, formed the magnificent procession which filed into the choir loft and filled it to capacity.

Herbert E. Hyde, organist and choir-master at St. Peter's, was at the organ throughout the singing portion of the service and consequently the order of worship moved smoothly and effectively.

No one knows the resources of the organ at St. Peter's better than Mr. Hyde, therefore no one could have served up the accompaniments with the sympathetic feeling and artistic finish that was noticeable during the singing of these choirs. It is no easy matter to keep the proper balance between singers and organ when the choir has been doubled all of a sudden, but this Mr. Hyde succeeded in doing in a satisfactory and praiseworthy manner.

Aside from the usual hymns, versicles, responses, etc., which go to make up the Episcopal service and which were elegantly rendered at this time the combined choirs were heard in a glorious performance of Gounod's "Unfold, Ye Portals," and a beautiful reading of the Shelley anthem, "Savior, When Night." The offertory anthem was Martin's "Hail! Gladdening Light" and it proved one of the big achievements of the evening.

An unusual amount of expression and shading was attained by the singers at times and the volume and quality of tone used at various points during the anthems was powerful, stirring and inspirational. A larger congregation should have heard this singing.

Mr. Stanley A. Martin, organist of St. Mark's Church, played "Briere a Notre Dame," by Boellmann, as the prelude to the service and a short recital at its conclusion which added greatly to the enjoyment and artistic features of this festival service.

Mr. Martin is a well equipped musician and is fast gaining a place among the leading organists of Chicago and the middle west. His recital on this occasion consisted of "Nocturne," by Ferrata; "Novellette," by Parker, and a "Choral" and "Menuet," by Boellmann, and each was played with an abundance of skill, serious intent, musicianly feeling and great breadth of control over the instrument at his disposal.

H. M. B.

MARTHA S. STEELE

Martha S. Steele's appearances in Pittsburgh during April:

On Monday, April 5, Martha S. Steele appeared before the Historical Society of Pittsburgh, at the Hotel Schenley.

Sunday afternoon, April 11, she sang a group of songs by Russian composers for the benefit of the Russian relief fund, given at the Miles theater.

On Tuesday, April 13, she sang a group of Franz songs at the Tuesday Musical Club, in honor of the centenary of Robert Franz.

Wednesday afternoon, the 14th, she sang at a reception at the home of Mrs. W. M. Carothers, Wallingford street.

Wednesday, the 20th, in a private recital given for the benefit of the Belgian relief fund, and Friday afternoon, April 30, she gave a recital before the Woman's Southern Club of Pittsburgh, at the Hotel Schenley. At this recital she sang the new song, "O Moon Upon the Water," by Cadman, this being the first time it has been used in Pittsburgh on a recital program.

HILDRED HANSON-HOSTETTER

A very pleasing song cycle was recently rendered by Hildred Hanson-Hostetter before the Hawthorne Parent-Teacher Association of Oak Park. Oak Park is a music-loving community, and it is no small tribute to Mrs. Hostetter that she completely captivated her audience, both by her personality and the quality of her singing. The following was her program:

April Morn	Batten
Sacrament	MacDermid
The Year's at the Spring	Beach
Blackbird's Song	Scott
Pleading	Elgar
The Butterfly	Woodman

GRESHAM TREBLE CLEF CLUB

On Tuesday evening, May 11, the Gresham Treble Clef Club, William Griswold Smith, director, and Louise M. Wall, accompanist, gave their eighth concert at the South Englewood Methodist Episcopal Church, assisted by Misses Helen Lampman, soprano; Margaret Ricketts, 'cello; Lily Ricketts, violin, and Grace Bourke, reader.

The singing of the club is very commendable from many standpoints. The attacks were well taken and the shading good. They sang with spirit and a good quality of tone, that won the enthusiastic approval of the audience throughout the entire program of well-chosen numbers. The Neapolitan songs were delightful, and repetitions would have been most welcome.

The "Spinning Song," by Wagner, was sung with fine effect, as was the Ardit "Waltz Song," with its rhythmic swing and glowing melodies. The closing group comprised numbers by Saint-Saens and Donizetti, and they again proved themselves equal to the demands made upon them. They gave them with a fine breadth and a surety that reflected much credit upon themselves and Mr. Smith, the efficient director, and it is safe to predict many fine programs in the future, and they will be heard again with pleasure.

Miss Lampman's pleasing soprano voice was heard in a varied list of songs, and she acquitted herself with credit. Especially good were her interpretations of numbers by Tate and Lang.

The Misses Ricketts, in violin and 'cello numbers, met with great favor, and they proved themselves to be very talented young performers on their respective instruments.

Miss Wall presided at the piano throughout the evening, furnishing accompaniments that were sympathetic and musicianly, adding much to the success of the program.

Miss Bourke read several numbers that were well done and enjoyable.

American Conservatory—At the concert given by the Conservatory Students' Orchestra at Kimball Hall last Tuesday evening, the soloists were Helen Carney, Stella Roberts, Nesta Smith and Nathan Herzhoff.

FINE CONCERT AT CHURCH OF EPIPHANY

Wednesday evening, May 12, the choir of the Church of the Epiphany, Dr. Francis Hemington, director, and the following soloists, Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano; Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto; George W. Pither, tenor; Frank H. Collins, bass; Mabel Helen Rogers, harpist; Leroy Fenton, soprano, and Herman O. Dreiske, accompanist, gave a fine concert before a large and enthusiastic audience. The men and boys choir did their share toward making the concert a success, for they sang with a fine spirit throughout the varied list of fine songs.

The shading and attacks were well taken, and the tonal quality at all times pleasant to hear.

They gave fine renditions of Balfe's "Happy and Light of Heart" and Bartlett's "A Dream," and Nevin's "It Was a Lover and His Lass." Bond's "Perfect Day" and Gounod's "Soldiers' Chorus" brought the work of the choir to a rousing close, and it is safe to predict another capacity house, should their able and musicianly director, Dr. Hemington, choose to present them again.

MABEL HELEN ROGERS

Master Leroy Fenton is without doubt the best boy soprano in Chicago today if one may judge from the splendid singing he did on this occasion.

Mr. Collins' fine base voice is always heard with great pleasure. His rendition of "The Evening Star," (Wagner), was highly artistic and finished, and in Ronald's "A Little Winding Road," he did some beautiful mezzo voce singing that left nothing to be desired vocally or musically.

Miss Johnson's splendid vocal equipment, intelligent interpretations, again won her unstinted praise and commendation, for her solos were models of elegance along every line.

Mrs. Warner scored a fine success by the delightful and artistic manner with which she presented Arne's "Lass With the Delicate Air" and "Spring's Singing," (MacFayden).

Mabel Helen Rogers is indeed one of the most satisfactory harpists that one could wish to hear. She has a clear, well developed technic at her command, and added to this is an attractive stage presence and winning personality that immediately ingratiates her with the audience. Her playing is at all times artistic and she vests her interpretations with many of the musical graces that mean so much in finished harp playing.

Cadman's beautiful song cycle, "The Morning of the Year," brought the program to a delightful close.

Mr. George W. Pither proved himself a very fine singer with a good voice, left nothing to be desired in the tenor solos of the cycle, and with Mrs. Warner, soprano; Miss Johnson, contralto; Mr. Collins, bass, who through their solo groups had won the merited approval of the audience, they gave a musicianly and very artistic presentation of the solo, chorus and quartet numbers of "The Morning of the Year." Dr. Hemington furnished the best of support at the piano, that merits high praise. H. W. P.

— # # # —

ARVID SAMUELSON IN BURLINGTON, IOWA

Arvid Samuelson, pianist of Lincoln, Nebraska, appeared recently in recital in Burlington and met with extraordinary success as is evidenced by the following excerpt from the Hawkeye:

The honors of the evening, however, were awarded to Arvid Samuelson. The people did not seem to be able to get enough of him. He proved a real artist. Of course, he has technic. Everybody who plays in public in this twentieth century has that. But that does not make an artist. Machines are built that excel in technic. But Mr. Samuelson has more than technic, for technic dwells in the fingers, but an artist plays with his head more than he does with his hands. Mr. Samuelson puts deep understanding into his music, and he does more, he plays with the heart as well as with the brains and the fingers, and thus he does not only delight the critics, but he appeals to the lovers of music, who lay no claim to musicianship. He is a real musician. And those "Messiah" people are no indifferent judges of music, either. Ever has that church nurtured the beautiful art and there are many in the organization, who perform creditably on one or more instruments and who sing well. It is no small thing to enthrall that audience as Mr. Samuelson did. They all hope to hear him again.—(Advertisement.)

— # # # —

Old Folks Concert—At the New First Congregational Church a very successful "Old Folks' Concert" was given last night under direction of H. Augustine Smith, with hundreds of singers in colonial costume, stately processional and many quaint songs. The program will be repeated this Friday and Saturday evenings.

A MODEL STUDIO

The following is copied from the Musical Critic:

Where shall we find it? Not mid the turmoil of business centers, and the ceaseless roar of street traffic; but in a quiet location, easily accessible, free from disturbing elements, and where one can absolutely rest in the enjoyment of true art. Such a studio we were invited to visit, at 3018 Vernon avenue, Chicago, by Mr. C. A. Havens, well known as one of the oldest resident organists of our city.

The building stands in the rear of his residence, and has a convenient public entrance. The studio hall is twenty-four feet square and seventeen feet high. It contains a Johnson organ of 30 registers, 1,345 pipes, 2 manuals, complete pedals and modern accessories. The bellows are operated by electric motor. A grand piano, library of choice music, seating accommodations for invited guests, and modern conveniences in electric lights, complete the outfit.

In this retired place, with his beautiful instruments, Mr. Havens has spent much time in church music composition, the results of which are well known to choirs throughout this country.

Mr. Havens' organ was built by the Johnson & Son Co. of Westfield, Mass., and has the following equipment:

Two Manuals from CC to A3, 58 Keys
Pedal from CCC to D, 27 Keys

GREAT MANUAL

		Pipes
1.	16 ft. Bourdon Bass	Wood 58
2.	16 ft. Bourdon Treble	Metal 58
3.	8 ft. Open Diapason	Metal 58
4.	8 ft. Dulciana	Wood 58
5.	8 ft. Melodia	Metal 58
6.	4 ft. Octave	Wood and Metal 58
7.	4 ft. Flute D'Amour	Metal 58
8.	2 3/4 ft. Twelfth	" 58
9.	2 ft. Fifteenth	" 174
10.	2 ft. Mixture, 3 Ranks	" 58
11.	8 ft. Trumpet	" 46
12.	8 ft. Clarionet

742

SWELL MANUAL

13.	8 ft. Open Diapason	Metal 58
14.	8 ft. Salicional	" 58
15.	8 ft. Dolceissimo	" 58
16.	8 ft. Voix Celestes	" 58
17.	8 ft. Stop'd Diapason	Wood 58
18.	4 ft. Flute Harmonique	Metal 58
19.	4 ft. Violin	" 58
20.	2 ft. Flautino	" 58
21.	8 ft. Oboe and Bassoon	" 58

522

PEDALE

		Pipes
22.	16 ft. Double Open Diapason	Wood 27
23.	16 ft. Bourdon	" 27
24.	8 ft. Viola (a new stop of soft string tone)	27

MECHANICAL MOVEMENTS

25. Swell to Great, Coupler.
26. Swell to Pedal, Coupler.
27. Great to Pedal, Coupler.
28. Pedal Check.
29. Blower's Signal.
30. Tremolo to Swell.

COMBINATION PEDALS

1. Great and Pedal Forte.
2. Great Mezzo, Double-Acting.
3. Great Piano, Double-Acting.
4. Pedal Piano, Double-Acting.
5. Great to Ped, Cop, (Reversible).
6. To operate Tremolo.

ACCESSORIES

1. Wind Indicator.
 2. Balanced Swell Pedal.
 3. Motor Regulator.
- No. of Pipes, 1,345 No. of Registers, 30
Sounding Stops, 24

As will be seen by an advertisement in another column of Music News today, Mr. Havens is offering this organ for sale and the opportunity presented of buying a serviceable studio organ is a very rare one.

— # # # —

Clarke—Edward Clarke appeared in a concert at Indianapolis, Ind., Tuesday evening, May 18, under the direction of Mr. Percival Owen, organist of the First Baptist Church of that city.

Thomas N. MacBurney
Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

MADELINE GALLEGHER AND MABEL HELEN ROGERS
AT HEMINGTON
RECITAL

Mr. Francis Hemington closed his recital series at Epiphany for the season on Monday evening, using a number of things which suggested the out-of-doors. There was Hollins' "Spring Song," Stebbins' "In Summer," Johnston's "Midsummer Caprice," Lemare's "Bee" and the "William Tell" overture, with its pastoral-life themes—all interestingly and happily done.

Miss Madeline Gallegher fitted her number also to the season, and sang the "Verdure Clad," from "Creation," with a fine zest and crispness, the voice being obedient and flexible, and brilliantly compassing the decorative embellishments abounding. Her second number was the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," also done with excellent finish and many artistic touches in the working out of its details, notably in a well-approached and delivered climax. This young singer makes continual progress in her upward way, holding securely each round of the ascent by reason of her use of marked talents, natural and acquired.

Miss Mabel Helen Rogers added to the "Ave Maria" ensemble with a harp accompaniment, and contributed also three solo numbers, these being the Hasselman "Prayer," Godefroid "Ballade" and Labarre "Religioso." She plays with exceeding refinement and delicacy of touch, and with an absolute sincerity, that gives to her music a convincing poise. There is a studied absence of mere display and a search for the more intimate spirit of the compositions, which gives to them an impulse of intensity, and these traits are apt to generate charm, which Miss Rogers has in large measure, to give added value to whatever she presents.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The Illinois College of Music gave two students recitals last week, on Tuesday and Friday evenings.

On Tuesday evening Beatrice Dorian, one of the younger pupils, played the Chopin "Waltz," Op. 34." Beulah Bassett played an arrangement of "Annie Laurie," for the left hand alone, very beautifully. The following also assisted in a very enjoyable program: Edith Creighton, Lucille Linneman, Emil Stumm, Fred Braeseke, Elmer Schweikle, Arthur Moritz, Helen Doud, Olive McCullough, Ethel Seavey and Emily Hadtka.

On Friday evening the following gave the program: Piano—Myrtle Reuschelle, Margaret Weiner, Helen Rissman, Katherine Austin, Jennie Simon, Rose Rubenstein, Isabelle Barenz and Vernon Welge, the latter playing the Mozart "Concerto in B Flat." Violin—George Rezanka, Harold Peet, Archie Swartz, Leroy Schoberg, Emmett Vance, Frances Klassen and Hilda Miller. Ralph Merrick gave in a very tasteful way the song "Ashore," and Irma Schoewe "brought the house down" with several humorous recitations. This was the thirtieth students' recital of the season, with an average of fifteen pupils on each, which shows that the Illinois College of Music keeps its pupils busy and interested.

JOEL MOSSBERG PRESENTS HARMONIEN CHOIR IN A CONCERT

The Harmonien Choir, under the direction of Mr. Joel Mossberg, gave a concert at Wicker Park Hall on Saturday evening, May 15, and, if one may judge from the quality of the work presented on this occasion, they should meet with fine success on their trip to the coast.

Miss Alpha Hendriksen was the soloist of the evening, and she acquitted herself with credit. Her voice is a lyric soprano of a very appealing quality, produced with ease. "A Gypsy Maiden," by Parker; Ronold's "Down in the Forest," and "Thou Brilliant Bird," by David, were her principal offerings, very effectively presented.

The chorus, under Mr. Mossberg's direction, has attained a fine degree of finish. Their attacks are clear-cut, and the shading is fine. They are so well trained in the numbers they chose to present that the desires of the director are met with apparent ease and surprising effect. They presented a varied list of good songs, the most effective of which were numbers by Hartmann, Lange-Mueller and Grieg, in the first part of the program. "The Chimes," sung

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
TEACHING SYSTEM

is a Normal Training Course for Mothers and Teachers on how to develop music through Inner-Feeling Reasoning and Drill and how to blend

KEYBOARD HARMONY and MELODY BUILDING.

Discriminate between melody writing and melody building, a "building" must have a foundation. "Not a Correspondence Course nor a Kindergarten System." Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with Effa Ellis Perfield. Send One Dollar ($1.00) for the Constructive Drill Book. Designed to inspire creative work. Certificates sanctioned by State of Illinois.—Accredited by the Chicago Board of Education.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
Director of Children's Constructive Music page in the Musical Monitor, Official Organ for the National Federation of Musical Clubs.

950-955 McCLURG BLDG. CHICAGO, ILL.

as an encore, was given with such surety and beauty of expression that they may feel very sure they will be difficult to excel in many of the fine points of ensemble singing.

In the second half of the program, Lumbye's "Violen" was very beautiful indeed, and was redemanded. Mr. H. Peterson sings the solo part very well.

Mr. Mossberg's fine baritone voice was heard to good advantage in the solo of "Du Gamla, du fria," a Swedish folk song, which met with great favor.

"To Thee, O Country" and the "Star Spangled Banner" brought the splendid concert to a brilliant close.

Mr. Wilmot Mossberg furnished good accompaniments for the club.

Mr. O. Nielsen's orchestra played numbers which were much enjoyed. H. W. P.

BATON CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

On Monday, May 17, the Baton Club held its last meeting of the season. Mr. Philo A. Otis delivered a splendid address on "Psalmody and Hymnody." The following officers were elected for the year 1915-16: Mr. William Griswold Smith, president; Mrs. J. Westerdahl, secretary and treasurer; Mr. Samuel B. Garton, chairman of the program committee.

GRANT HADLEY

Newspaper comment on the recent appearance of Mr. Hadley in Chicago:

Mr. Grant Hadley, American baritone, was heard in "Vision Fugitive," from "Herodiade," and he did it with great effect.—Chicago Tribune, May 3, 1915.

Grant Hadley shared the program in "Vision Fugitive," from "Herodiade." He sang with a voice of great sonority and with effective preception of the dramatic character of the air.—Chicago Herald, May 3, 1915.

Grant Hadley, baritone, sang with understanding and a big voice the air from Massenet's "Herodiade."—Chicago Evening Post, May 3, 1915.

Hadley's voice is large and evenly placed. He gave vehemence to "Vision Fugitive," from Massenet's "Herodiade," and made it sound, persuasive and impassioned.—Chicago Journal, May 3, 1915.

GRANT HADLEY

Grant Hadley, baritone, contributed much to the interest of the concert by his excellent singing. He was heard in the air "Vision Fugitive," from Massenet, which he sang in an artistic style and with fine vocal effect, and also in a group of German and English songs.—Chicago Examiner, May 3, 1915. (Advertisement.)

Aren't-Dietch—Else Harthan Arendt, soprano, and Sidney Arno Dietch, accompanist, substituted on short notice for Mme. Jomelli at the Majestic during the latter part of last week, and both scored a big success. Mrs. Arendt's numbers were Santuzza's aria from "Cavalleria Rusticana"; "Ecstasy," by Rummel; "Little Gray Home in the West," by Lohr; "The Year's at the Spring," by Beach, and "The Last Rose of Summer."

Civic Music—A concert was given at Armour Square on last Saturday afternoon by the children's chorus, under direction of Lily Wadhams Moline, assisted by Al Meda Wadhams, pianist, and Luella Moline, violinist.

Jennette Loudon Studios—On Sunday afternoon, May 23, Miss Jennette Loudon will present her pupil, Miss Margaret Weiland, in a recital at the Fine Arts Assembly Room.

Weaver—Ida Biglow Weaver has just completed a concert trip through Kansas and Texas, appearing in orchestra concerts, "The Messiah," "The Rose Maiden" and recitals.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO CONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

DAN S. DENTON

TENOR OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

The Elderly Person

The Organist was laughing very much as did Old Scrooge's nephew in the "Christmas Carol." That sort of a laugh which is accompanied with slappings on the thigh and much redness of face.

"Do tell us why," said the Elderly Person.

Between roars and short breaths, the Organist said: "It can't be made as funny in the telling as in the seeing. At the last crossing, the policeman held up a warning hand to the east bound wagons and whistled an encouraging peal to all south bound passengers. I started across and was nearly eclipsed with a team. It was a "Raks and Oliron" cart with a spavined skeleton of a horse, and on the seat was an awful example of the cup which inebriates. He was pulling on the lines for all he was worth, but something in the policeman's whistle had stirred some latent energy in the old horse, who strained and tugged at the traces and made progress far beyond his years and previous service. Everybody was startled at the spurt—people, horse, wagon, driver and policeman. The old driver's hat fell off, he cried out 'whoa! whoa!' in all pitches of voice, hurry, excitement, and alarm. For an instant it seemed as if there would be a real runaway. But the bobby laid his firm hand on the bit and the fire went out of the old horse's eyes, his ears collapsed, his feet stuck and his legs grew stolid, the neck and head fell dejectedly—and the revival and revolt were over. While it lasted it was fine fun—the rampant old horse and his amazed driver. Truly the unexpected can happen almost anywhere and those funny 'whoas' set the whole street in a gale of laughter. It made me think of some of those old-fashioned opera tenors who topped the high notes when they could, and how their criterion of singing was always whether a man could utter the high C. When they were worn out they went about the country, on former reputations, and reached for the high tones—very much as the old horse felt the call of some former exploits—and received laughter for reward."

Said the Lawyer: "Hereafter when his master brings his pferd down town he'll keep his eyes open and as he gets safely by each crossing he'll say, like the tipsey man I've heard of who, as he got from lamp post to lamp post, and heard a clock strike, said stutteringly: 'Seven o'clock and all's well—so far'!"

"Well, if it's musical stories you're speaking of," said the Parson, "here's an actual recent experience of mine in Orchestra Hall. When John Alden Carpenter's "Adventures in a Perambulator" had its first hearing at the Friday afternoon concert, society was in its very most excited flutter. Sitting near me were two very proper matrons, well satisfied with themselves and their attire and surroundings. They were of the kind who fold their hands over capacious waist lines, with wrinkleless gloves, and have lorgnettes to scan the programs with in a dilettante sort of manner that always provokes my risibles, because they are so clearly in evidence for other than musical reasons. That these two were not of the very elect came about when, after the applause had won many of Mr. Stock's most proper bows, he retired and then brought forth Mr. Carpenter himself to receive the adulation. As his tall, slim figure towered above Mr. Stock, one lady turned to the other and exclaimed with a hearty enthusiasm, 'Well, now, who would have believed a young fellow like that could write music. I call that pretty good for such a nice young feller.' And forthwith the plumply filled gloves beat themselves in the general commendation, and Mr. Carpenter may learn some day that part of his success was not due to his social prestige, nor his musical gifts, but to his likeableness as a 'young feller.'

"Pretty good," said the Elderly Person, "and here's a comrade to go with it. A gentleman here whom we will call Mr. Well Known because a whole lot of his name is in the title, was booked for a lecture on Debussy down state, and sent his data ahead for advertising purposes. When the paper came out, it said, 'Mr. Well Known, the Chicago organist, will address the Ladies' Morning Club. Subject, "Be Busy." Illustrations by his daughter!' One illustration, presumably, would be 'Everybody Works But Father, and He Sets Around All Day.'

"This society talk you are indulging in," said the Credit Man, "makes me think of what I was told the other day about the lady who went for a visit to a Michigan city. It was one of those lovely places where everybody knows everybody, and when anyone has a visitor all the good friends plan to 'entertain' in honor of the guest. It is fine at first, until you find you are dated ahead so far that the events form a sort of scheme to be worked out. This lady, from one of our suburban Saints Rests, so called because of the many ex-clergymen residents, had never learned to play cards, and the Michigan city ran largely to that form of 'entertainment.' So for a final function, she was coached into some sort of shape and cheerfully undertook to play the game of five hundred she thought she had learned. She had been warned to carefully observe Mrs. Blank, a eard heroine of many tournaments, and to be guided, whenever possible, by the way Mrs. Blank met emergencies. The afternoon wore away and neither Mrs. Blank or the visiting lady carried off any honors, although they had been in proximity often. Talking things over, the visiting lady told her hostess that not once had Mrs. Blank played the game as expected, and that she looked daggers and other hidden things whenever the two were thrown together. 'Oh,' said the hostess, 'did you play five hundred all afternoon? We were not playing that at all, but bridge, and I forgot I had not coached you up on that!' Imagine how the other women talked of the visiting lady's eard playing. For those who could see the humor of it, it must have been riotous fun."

"Speaking of guns," said the Lawyer, "I heard a talk by Paul Shorey lately which made me think of our cadaverous dyspeptic Organist friend here. He said someone asked him for a definition of indigestion, and the best answer he could give was that it was a square meal in a round stomach."

"Passing now to the lower end of the curio hall," said the Credit Man, "we come to the young woman who went up to the elevated station window to pay her fare. She carried her nickel inside her glove which fitted snugly, as girl's gloves quite often do. Pulling at it she heard the metallic sound of a coin falling on the floor and, was sure her nickel had slipped out and gone there. Turning and stooping she encountered a young man also bending to the floor, and he had in his hand the refractory nickel. She clutched it from him, bowed and smiled sweetly, put it into the cashier's window, and hurried to the train. Fussing with her glove, a few minutes later, out slipped a nickel into her lap! Then she knew why the young man had looked at her and gasped in amazement when she thanked him for picking up his own nickel as she took it away from him."

"That does not remind me of the funeral at one of the churches where I played," said the Organist. "As the eulogy of the priest over the deceased man proceeded, it grew more and more laudatory over his merits. Suddenly the wife arose hurriedly from her seat and ran out of the church, exclaiming as she did so 'I've come to the wrong funeral, for sure!' It was at this same church that a cat got into the sacred portion of the choir loft, and inside the organ. When I began playing she took refuge from the noise on the tip top post of the organ frame, and glared down her disapproval of organ music."

"Quite worthy of her," quoth the Credit Man, "it's what I would do if I had to hear your fugue playing. But I am reminded of what occurred recently in a Roman Catholic Church at one of the week day masses where the nuns bring in those flocks of school children, who sit in a body in the front seats. As the service proceeded, a cat appeared in the chancel and her actions distracted the children's composure. A young Sister, thinking to remove the cause of irreverence, undertook to shoo kitty out, but in passing the altar each time, she had to pause and execute the necessary genuflection, and that enabled puss to get new positions. I don't know just how it came out ultimately, but there was such lively skirmishing that the youngsters had what we call a picnic, and you don't need to be told how funny it must have been."

"One more comment and I am out of ammunition," said the Elderly Person. "Our Aunt Phoebe enjoys poor health, you know, and her scapegrace nephew, by marriage, says she takes so many pills that she really ought to have ball-bearing joints."

Do you feel as if you were really at the "Dutch treat" lunch? And is there anyone to insinuate that any of these stories have lurked within a chestnut burr?

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

— — — — —
Columbia School of Music—A program will be given at the Wilson Avenue Branch on next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 by advanced pupils from the main school, and the Columbia School Children's Orchestra under direction of W. H. Montelius.

MARIE STAPLETON MURRAY SINGS IN OAK PARK

Mr. Carl D. Kinsey engaged Marie Stapleton Murray as the special soloist at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park for the last Sunday evening and the usual large congregation there found her work very attractive and wholly to its liking.

Mrs. Murray has immense vitality and great technical proficiency and her voice is a big, resonant one which filled the large First church to perfection.

She has great style also and, as her number was extremely florid, she suggested irresistibly the fact that in opera she would be placed to great advantage, although she also showed her entire adaptability to church work and proved that she must have had a great deal of routine in that line.

She sang for the offertory number the exceedingly brilliant and very effective "The Lord is My Light," by Marsh, in which she showed splendid bravoura tone, some unusually effective pianissimo, great facility in coloratura effects, and, at the close, reached a resounding high tone which electrified her hearers. Mrs. Murray is a very charming woman and has a splendid stage presence. She has been making great success in her recent concert appearances throughout the country, and it is to be hoped that she will appear in Chicago soon.

The splendid quartet at the First Church, composed on Sunday evening of Mary Ann Kaufman, Helen Bright Bengel, Grant Kimbell and Frank Dunford, was heard to splendid effect in Cruickshank's broadly brilliant "Sing Praises to the Lord" and in "Be Still, Be Still," by Scott, there was shown some of the finest touches imaginable.

In mentioning the quartets of Chicago and suburbs, this one is always placed as among "the very best" and not without reason, for the voices are fine and the finish is exceptional.

Mrs. Permella Gale is the regular contralto, but in her absence Mrs. Bengel filled her place so acceptably that the usual balance and polish were in no whit disturbed.

After the sermon the glorious "Inflammatus" from Rossini's "Statbat Mater" was sung (improperly listed on the program as an Anthem) and in this not only did Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Bengel, and Mr. Kimbell and Mr. Dunford sustain an ideally perfect undercurrent of harmony, but Miss Kaufman, in the solo and obbligato, rose to stellar prominence of the highest value and sang as one inspired.

A great number, and at this time a great rendition!

Mr. Kinsey supplied his usual fine accompaniments, played the hymns extremely well and added attractive solo numbers, including Cadman's "A Legend." C. E. W.

— — — — —
Benefit Recital—Elizabeth Guion Dormer will give a vocal and dramatic recital in costume at the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A. on Friday evening, May 21, for the benefit of the American Home for Aged Ladies. Miss Florence Little, pianist, will assist.

— — — — —
Highsmith-Lyding—On May 1 Mary Highsmith-Lyding, soprano, appeared in recital in the Mohammed Temple, before the Amateur Musical Club of Peoria.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 18988

GEORGE KURTZ
RALF Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Roeder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lycenm Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

NORA OLIN
LORAIN VOICE
524 Kimball Hall, 321 Lake Street, Oak Park. Tel. O. P. 2724

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

"SIEGFRIED" AT HARVARD STADIUM; WAGNER'S OPERA JUNE 4 AT CAMBRIDGE

Final arrangements for the production of Wagner's "Siegfried" at the Harvard Stadium on June 4 next are now completed. This production will be one of the most important of musical events.

The cast will include Mesdames Gadschi, Schumann-Heink, Alma Gluck, Messrs. Sembach, Whitehill, Reiss, Goritz and Ruysdael. The prices to subscribers of seats until April 1 are $2.50, $2 and $1.50. After April 1 the prices of seats will be raised to $3.50, $3 and $2; boxes seating six erected in front of the stage will be $40, $35 and $30.

A performance of the "Greek Pastoral Scenes" by Professor Horatio Parker of Yale University, solos by Elsbeth Jones and Marie G. O'Connell, was a recent event. Other numbers were "The Legend of Miana," by Fontenailles, Ursula O'Hara, soprano solo; piano selections, Dessa M. Weisburgh and Joe Carr; the duet "Sous le dome epais," from "Lakme," Helen L. Eaton and Marjorie G. Barnard; Vincent D'Indy's "Sur la mer," a chorus for women's voices; Mrs. Charlotte L. Wrye, soprano solo, and the Mozart Symphonic Concertante in E Flat Major, for violin and viola, Ada A. Chadwick and Ruth Bullard.

A Young Composer's Work

An original composition, a chorus for women's voices with the title of "It Was a Lover and His Lass," by Edith Lang, a pupil of George W. Chadwick, had its first public presentation at a concert by the New England Conservatory Choral Club in Jordan Hall, Friday evening, May 7.

A Mason & Hamlin Prize Contest

Howard M. Godding of 29 Oakdale avenue, East Dedham, won the Mason & Hamlin prize of a grand pianoforte valued at $1,150 and offered for the sixth time in competition to New England Conservatory senior and graduate student in Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon (Monday, May 3). He was graduated with honors in 1913 from the organ school.

The contestants were Alice Allen, Joe Carr, Howard M. Godding, Myrtha M. Gunderson, Marion C. Leach, Stanley J. Schaub and Esther V. Wegardh. Each contestant played the same program, consisting of the first movement of Beethoven's "Sonata in E Major, Opus 109"; the Liszt "Etude in B Flat Major, Opus 5," and the Chopin "Etude in C Minor, Opus 10, No. 12."

An English Work Heard

The first American performance of Sir Charles Villiers Stanford's "Symphony No. 7, in D Minor, Opus 120," was a principal feature of a concert by the New England Conservatory Orchestra in Jordan Hall last evening (Friday, May 14). The composer is professor of music at Cambridge University and conductor of the Cambridge Musical Society.

Other number on the program included the overture to Beethoven's "Coriolanus"; the second and last movements of the Schumann "Pianoforte Concerto in A Minor," soloist, Marion C. Leach; the aria, "O Bona Patria," from Horatio Parker's "Ilora Novissima," and Liszt's symphonic poem after La-martine, "Les Preludes."

"The Sandman" Produced

Original music written by Allyn Brown, New England Conservatory 1910, for Marjorie Benton Cook's poem, "The Sandman," had its first public presentation at a recital of the Conservatory pantomime and rehearsal class Friday afternoon, May 14. The song was sung by Hester Stine, who also rendered Lark's "The Goblins at Play," with appropriate action. Two acts from "Mice and Men" were given, a scene from "Hansel and Gretel," and an original pantomime, "Incriminating Evidence," by William Goodrich.

$215,000 Liabilities

Its treasurer, Charles Hayden, voluntarily petitioned the Boston Opera Company into bankruptcy, last week. The assets named are $78,000 and liabilities $215,000. Taxes and duty on imported scenery still in bond are the only secured creditors.

Eben D. Jordan has due him $41,942, a part being claims for labor and merchandise. Amounts paid in advance by subscribers for performances make claims of about $30,000, $28,306 being assigned to Mr. Jordan. Henry Russell is a creditor for $19,696, and the Societe Anglo-Amercaine D'Opera, Paris, is owed for scenery $17,139.

A Grieg Work Given

Miss Helen Whitney Lund, of the New England Conservatory class of 1913, gave a pianoforte recital in Recital Hall May 13, assisted by Ora Larthard, violoncellist. Both performers were heard and favorably received.

School Music System Changed

An advisory committee of well known musicians representing Harvard, Boston University and the Symphony Orchestra, Dr. A. T. Davidson Jr., of Harvard, chairman, says in its report:

"The Boston system is not up to the highest standard of American schools. Consequently we think it possible to improve the music in the Boston schools and still keep to the prevailing system as exemplified in our school music books, but we also think it possible to make the school music books much more valuable to children and to the community by discarding much of the present system and substituting a simple method devoid of extra musical technicalities—exercises on the body musical—and bringing the children into more direct contact with beautiful music."

The report is the result of eight months' study of the methods used in teaching music in Boston schools, and three "methods" are alleged as being used, and several song books, one at least a milk company advertisement.

All this will be changed in September, when a uniform, perhaps, specially prepared, text book will be adopted, and the use of music books or readers be discontinued in the first three grades of the public schools. Professor A. T. Davidson signed the report.

Original Musical Talks

At a meeting of Lucia Knox and Dorchester Chapter, D. R., in Brookline, Friday night, May 14, Frank E. Doyle gave a very interesting talk on patriotic music. He analyzed folk music of Italy, Germany, Scotland and Ireland, then he played American songs, and paid a fine tribute to James C. Bartlette, composer of "A Dream," one of the fine songs contributed to the world's music by our "Yankee" musicians. Charles D. Weathers and Miss Ruth Shannon also sang war songs of various countries.

Some of Mr. Doyle's topics are "What Is Good Singing," "What Is Classical Music?" "Concert-goers and Critics"; "Music Not an Exotic."

Boston Symphony Orchestra Loses Worcester Musical Festival

Owing to the inability of the Boston Symphony Orchestra to give the Worcester Musical Festival management the dates desired in early October, Arthur J. Bassett, president, has secured sixty of the best players of the Philadelphia Orchestra, with its conductor, Leopold Stokowsky, for the festival, which will be held October 4 to 8.

"Community Music" Recital

Miss Alice Christine Heaphy, pianist, of Worcester, played a program of pianoforte music, as the closing entertainment in a series of three, which were given in the Holden, Mass., town hall, under the auspices of the Holden Community Corporation, Tuesday night, April 27, and on May 3 she played in Memorial Hall.

Its First Concert

The Worcester Symphony Orchestra, Daniel Silvester, originator and conductor, gave its first concert in Mechanical Hall, Thursday, May 6, before a good sized audience, which was well repaid for attendance by the interestingly played program.

Miss Marie Kaiser, a New York singer, sang Verdi's "Ritorna Vineitor," from "Aida," and a group of folk songs, by Kellie, Arensky, Mendelssohn, Horszman.

The accompanist was a local player, Mrs. Frank W. Chaffin, who, I have been told, is inexperienced in concerts of this type.

The orchestra has secured many Worcester citizens to contribute funds to meet expenses, and the management is preparing a series of concerts for next season, and the city of Worcester could do much worse than making a liberal appropriation for municipal concerts by its own orchestra.

Report is that the first concert was a financial success. L. S. B.

HENRIETTE WEBER AS A LECTURER

Some recent press comment:

One of the numbers of the music teachers' meeting that had been looked forward to was Miss Henriette Weber's address. Illustrations and stories were given with effect. . . . Miss Weber does not write her addresses but keeps her ideas rapidly developing before her audience, holding the attention closely. Her illustrations are to the point and in addition to her ability as a lecturer and author she is an accomplished pianist. Her number was one of the best of the two days' series.—The Banner, Greencastle (Ind.), April 30.

Miss Henriette Weber's lecture on "Modern Tendencies in Music," given before a large audience at the Wallace Conservatory last week, afforded unusual pleasure. Miss Weber is an easy and forceful speaker and is thoroughly informed as to the musical movements of Germany, France, Italy, Russia and Scandinavia.—Ohio State Journal, Columbus (O.), May 9.

"Modern Tendencies in Music" was the interesting subject of Miss Henriette Weber, when she addressed the students and friends of Wallace Conservatory last Monday afternoon.

The conservatory hall was filled by those who came expecting to hear (and they were not disappointed) some plain truths regarding the ultra-modern music writers and an authoritative discussion of the relative values of the work of the modern school. The address was of unusual character, the facts being arranged in such a lucid and logical fashion as to hold the attention of the mere music lover as well as the professional musician.

After the address examples of the modern school were splendidly played by Miss Weber.—The Dispatch, Columbus (O.), May 9.—(Advertisement.)

Chicago Piano College—A well chosen and very successful program of piano numbers was given by the pupils of Miss Violet Voukoun at the Chicago Piano College on last Saturday afternoon.

Ralph Brokow
VIOLINIST
Wichita, Kas.

GRACE MARCUSSEN
BRUNE
ORATORIO - SOPRANO - RECITALS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING

FRANCES INGRAM
CONTRALTO

Management: C. A. SHAW, Orchestra Hall, CHICAGO
MAURICE FULCHER, Representative, McCormick Bldg.

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL
64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
Chicago's most attractive hall, devoted exclusively to concerts, recitals and other high-class entertainments. Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,
HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The week's student recitals at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music opened Monday evening, May 17, with a violin recital by Miss Helen Portune, pupil of Signor Tirindelli. Miss Portune's versatility has attracted general attention, her brilliant singing at Emery Auditorium last week, in the role of Marguerite, being among her latest achievements.

Tuesday evening, May 18, occurred a joint recital by Miss Inez Gill, pianiste, and Mr. Edwin Ideler, violinist, in Conservatory Concert Hall.

Miss Helen Nicholson, pupil of Mr. Wilhelm Kraupner, gave a pianoforte recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music on Wednesday evening, May 19.

On Friday evening, May 26, Mr. John Thomas, pianist, and Mr. Edwin Memel, violinist, will give a joint recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

Miss Emilie Rose Knox proved herself a well-equipped young violiniste in her graduation recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Tuesday evening. That Miss Knox has been making the best of her musical advantages under her distinguished teacher, Signor Tirindelli, was thoroughly evident throughout her program which was remarkably given. Both technically and interpretatively Miss Knox has excellent qualifications in her favor and she plays with a warmth and personality which are most winning.

A violin recital commendable in its delivery and reflecting great credit upon both executant and teacher was that given by Mr. Eldon Murray, pupil of Signor Tirindelli, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Monday evening. He has good command of the technical side of his art, sympathetic understanding and good musical style. He played his exacting program with astonishing ease, indicating that the future holds something very real in store for him.

Robert Schenk added further proofs of his violinistic ability to those so deservedly won during the past season, in his violin recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Thursday evening. Mr. Schenk is an exponent of the teaching of Signor Tirindelli and did his famous instructor honor in the splendid manner with which he presented his program.

Miss Carol Perrenot's pianoforte recital attracted a brilliant audience to the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Saturday evening. Miss Perrenot is a pupil of Mr. Theodor Bohlmann and her studies under this distinguished pedagogue have developed her into a young pianiste of decided capability. She disclosed the fact that she has grace and style both in her mental conceptions of the compositions under consideration and in presenting these in public.

Last Wednesday evening at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music two members of the senior class, Bess Maxfield and Allie Grant, pupils of Mr. Wilhelm Kraupner, were heard in a strong program which reflected much credit upon themselves and upon their instructor. They demonstrated their comprehension of ensemble playing in a very good performance of the Mozart "D Major Sonata" for two pianos.

A large, discriminating audience was much pleased last Friday evening with the song recital given by Chester Moffett, baritone, pupil of Mr. John A. Hoffmann, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. His program was comprehensive, extending from the oratorio style of Handel to the present day ballads, providing him ample opportunity to display voice, technic, style and dramatic impulse.

SPOONER'S MAKE-UP TALENT

Philip Spooner, the well known young American concert tenor, has an unusual talent and versatility in the art of makeup. It has been his custom, in studying operatic arias, to don the costume appropriate to the part, as he claims that this enables him to get into the proper atmosphere more easily. In this manner he has trained himself to feel at ease in dress to which most Americans are unfamiliar.

This costuming talent stood Mr. Spooner in good stead recently when he was invited by Mme. Sembrich to participate in the pageant, "Night in Poland," given at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, for the benefit of the Polish Relief Fund. Adamo Durand, basso of the Metropolitan Opera House, and Mme. Sembrich were the principal stars of the occasion, and those who attended the event testified to its correctness in every detail.

Mr. Spooner looked very picturesque in the wedding scene of the pageant, in which group were two other well known singers, Frank Polloch, tenor, and Francis Rogers, baritone. Not only were the artists invit-

LEGINSKA, Pianist

Who appeared as soloist SEVEN times with the New York Symphony Orchestra this season, completely captivated the music lovers of New York at her Carnegie Hall recital, Friday evening, March 19, as the following will attest:

"Leginska gave a convincing exhibition as a pianist in Carnegie Hall last evening. Her skill was of an exalted and unaffected character. She is a conscientious and sincere artist. It may safely be said that of the younger generation of pianists now before the public, Leginska ranks highest."—New York American, March 20th, 1915.

Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

ed to pose as Poles, but they were required to sing several selections in the Polish language. In order that their pronunciation should be correct, Mme. Sembrich herself acted as coach and instructor.

A GOOD PLAN SUGGESTED BY HAROLD HENRY

Harold Henry, the eminent American pianist, recently suggested to various rural school committees a series of concerts to be held in the "Little Red School Houses" of the prairie country. It is the belief of this well-known virtuoso that many excellent artists could be secured for small fees to give concerts during the winter season. When work on the farm is slack, the boys and girls of the agriculturists have little to do o' nights and the low priced concert would fill a long-felt want. Mr. Henry is of the opinion that the piano houses would co-operate in such a plan and furnish instruments for these occasions without cost. According to Mr. Henry, such concerts would have a two fold use—not only creating a taste for the best in music but also a demand for instruments. He adds that the singing master should be resurrected also and the old time singing school should be started anew for singing en masse is an excellent way to train the ear, which is a matter of great importance no matter what instrument one wishes to learn.

MRS. BRYANT'S PUPILS

The following comment is copied from a long article in the Galesburg Evening Mail:

Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant, director of vocal art at Lombard College, presented her pupil, Miss Mae Anna Ross, in vocal recital at Alumni Hall, Monday evening. This concert was the second in a series of May festivals which has been taking place this spring at the college.

Miss Ross sang her numbers with a style that exemplified beyond all question that she is technically well founded. Her diction was almost perfect in quality, bringing much of satisfaction into her program. Coupled to this fine delivery was a voice clear and flute like and wonderfully flexible.

The selection "Staccato Polka," by R. Mulder was a noticeable number. The tones of the singer were placed in an excellent way throughout the rendition. Though the song made difficult demands technically, Miss Ross did not waver, but handled staccato notes and all harmonics with voice artfully attuned to her selection. Her fine breath control showed further attainment in her art.

Another number which took eminence on the program was the "Polonaise," from "Mignon," by Ambrose Thomas. This also was well suited to her voice. Vivacity and penetrating warmth ran through its airy, pretty embellishments daintily and skillfully presented.

This is from the Galesburg Register:

Added evidence of the fine work being done by the Lombard Vocal Art Department was given Monday evening in the recital of Miss Mae Anna Ross, which took place in the Alumni Hall. The number was one of the best of the series of May musicals being presented under the direction of Madame Anna Groff-Bryant and the audience was one which indicated a fine appreciation among Galesburg musical circles.

Miss Ross has a lyric soprano voice of wonderful sweetness. Many of those who listened to her recital Monday evening fancied the lighter numbers of her program, and this was probably due to the natural adaptation to those numbers. Her voice is one of resilient qualities yet susceptible to wide range and full expression of the theme.

Miss Ross found an excellent field for expression in the recitative and aria, "Farewell to the Forests," which was the opening number of the program. This with its difficult and varied range she sang perfectly, the freedom from tonal structure of the recitative making the rendition commendable. In the second number, which included a group of songs probably the most appreciated, was the "Staccato Polka," by R. Mulder, which also gave proof of perfect voice control. The "Polonaise," by Ambrose Thomas, was one of the artistic numbers of the program, and in the concluding group of songs Miss Ross found opportunity for some of her best work. (Advertisement.)

WALTER KELLER AT DANVILLE, ILL.

Mr. Walter Keller, organist, of Chicago, played the following program of American compositions, under the auspices of the Musical Cycle, at the First Baptist Church in Danville, Ill., on Thursday, May 6. The piano numbers were played by Master Stewart Keller:

Sonata in E Flat.....	Dudley Buck
Allegro
Scherzo
Fugue—Hail Columbia
Cradle Song	H. N. Bartlett
Marche Pittoresque.....	E. R. Kroeger
Piano—Capriccio Brillante, Op. 20.....	Mendelssohn
(With organ accompaniment by Mr. W. Keller)
Cantilene	J. H. Rogers
Allegro quasi Marcia.....	Rossetter G. Cole
Variations on Greenville.....	F. G. Gleason
Variations on Duke Street.....	Ralph Kinder
Piano—
Forest Idyl	Walter Keller
Danse Melancolique.....	Samuel Bollinger
Autumn Song.....	Roland Diggle
(Dedicated to Mr. W. Keller)
Will o' the Wisp.....	Gordon Balch Nevin
Toccata	A. L. Barnes

Alice R. Deal—Sunday evening, May 23, Miss Alice R. Deal will play numbers by Widor, Brewer, Stebbins and Crawford, at the Leavitt Street Congregational Church, where she is organist and director.

People & Events

THEODORE S. BERGEY

No teacher in Chicago has built up a finer teaching clientele than has Theodore S. Bergey and no studio has turned out a larger percentage of well trained young singers than his.

This is partly because of the splendid methods employed by Mr. Bergey and partly because of the great special advantages afforded the pupils of the Bergey studios, one of them being the opportunity of having Mrs. Ethel Sutherlin Bergey as coach and accompanist, for few indeed are the pianists who equal her in these respects.

Mr. Bergey has personality of the most engaging kind and he has rare good common sense in dealing with the pupils and the public. Added to this his knowledge of repertoire is boundless and his success in fitting pupils for all sorts of musical endeavor is very great.

His studio recitals are always of absorbing interest and whenever his pupils appear in any environment they invariably score pronounced successes.

Mr. Bergey is director of the Chicago Opera School in the Fine Arts Building, Chicago, where his studios are of fine adaptability to the purposes of securing the best possible advantages for the voice.

The following quotation is from an article recently printed in the Musical Courier Extra:

There can be found in this excellent school enthusiastic pupils from all parts of the country. Classes here conducted in voice culture, the study of opera in Italian, German, French and English, piano, harmony, coaching, and accompaniments are attended by large numbers of advanced pupils. In this school, under the best of influences, the pupil, brilliant or plodding, is given not only a thorough understanding of the pure vocal production, but is prepared for all appearances in recital, concert, oratorio, opera or teaching, according to the individual needs of the people. Those who are familiar with the work of the Bergey pupils remark their pure diction, superb breath culture, ease and abandon in singing. This is not to be wondered at when one remembers that Mr. Bergey has been known for several years as one of the greatest exponents of Bel Canto, and the graduates of his methods have long been noted as successful singers and teachers.

Mr. Bergey studied with Cesare Rossi, the well-known composer, whose successful "Nadeza" was performed at the Royal Opera in Prague in 1903. Mr. Bergey studied also with Jean Sbriglia, the well-known vocal instructor of Jean De Reszke, and also with Jean La Salle, the famous French baritone, who for many years was one of the bright stars at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

Mr. Bergey studied with these famous masters in Italy and France, and he continues in his work the traditions and vocal methods of these celebrated masters, modified, however, by wide experience with modern style and improvements, wherever these live up to the name.

The piano department of this famous institution is under the direct supervision and guidance of Ethel Sutherlin Bergey, and is of the most authoritative character, Mrs. Bergey being recognized as a musician of unusual capabilities, and pupils under her receive the highest grade of instruction in the art of piano playing.

Stevenson—The pupils of Miss Lucille Stevenson will appear in a song cycle entitled "L'Internationale," which has been arranged by Margaret Lemare Middleton and is to be given at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Monday evening, May 24.

LILY WADHAMS MOLINE

A musical was given at the home studio of Lily Wadhams Moline on May 11, which proved unusually interesting. The guests of honor were the members of Wesley Church Choir, where Mrs. Moline officiated as organist the past four years.

The program consisted in most part of compositions by Mrs. Moline. As she has written for piano, voice, violin and organ, it was therefore one of varied interest.

Mr. Johnson, soloist of the Highland Park Christian Science Church, and the possessor of a melodiously resonant baritone, sang "O God of Love" and "The Psalm of Praise," both of which have become popular among church singers. Miss Edna H. Ellison, soprano, interpreted two of Mrs. Moline's newest songs with splendid intelligence and telling effect. They were "In Slumberland" and "Kar Le Kens Vag" (Love's Way). "In Slumberland" is a musicianly setting of the poem by Burges Johnson and is supplied with a fine accompaniment. "Kar Lekens Vag" was sung in Swedish, and is a graceful, charming song, strongly Scandinavian in character.

Mr. Adolph Schrader, violinist, rendered the "Romanze" and "Caprice," for violin, with sureness and excellent taste. He was accompanied by Miss Al Meda Wadhams, who contributed several piano solos throughout the evening, among which were two etudes by her sister, Mrs. Moline, i. e., "Etude de Concert" and "Etude de Style." These are splendid studies, and Miss Wadhams did full justice both to the compositions and to that of her already established reputation as a brilliant pianist.

The hostess, who has an electric organ in her home, was prevailed upon to play her latest piece for organ, entitled "Allegretto." It is safe to predict that this will become a favorite number with organists, on account of the haunting theme contained in the first part, as in contrast to the solid choral-like character of the second movement.

Miss Ruby Lyons, soprano soloist of the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian Church, added solos to an otherwise interesting program, her warm, rich tones completely satisfying her hearers. She was accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Leitch.

Mrs. Moline departs this week for Waterloo, Ia., where she is to play her organ compositions before the Society of Music Teachers of the State of Iowa, on Composers' Day, and where Miss Edna Ellison, who accompanies her, will sing her vocal compositions. Mrs. Moline also gives an organ recital in Sioux City, Ia., on May 23, at the Swedish Lutheran Church.

G. E. P.

Beeman—Miss Helen Whiteside, a pupil of Miss Bertha Beeman at the University School of Music in Evanston, has been engaged as soloist at the English Lutheran Church in Evanston. Miss Whiteside has a beautiful high soprano voice and is very musical and artistic. Her success is bound to be a great one.

LAKE BROWNWOOD

The above illustration shows a moonlight scene at Lake Brownwood, which is a new summer resort near Paw Paw City, Mich., about thirty miles from Lake Paw Paw, which has been well known for many years.

Lake Brownwood is still very much in the state into which Dame Nature developed it. There has been very little done to take away any of its pristine freshness and natural delight, and the cottages are built in the woods and are all of them very near the beautiful little lake.

Mrs. Brown is forming at this ideal place a musical colony. She hopes to interest a great many to the extent that they will become purchasers of lots and will there build summer homes, and meantime she has several cottages to rent. The living expenses at Lake Brownwood are remarkably reasonable in price.

KALAMAZOO FESTIVAL

The Annual Spring Festival at Kalamazoo, Mich., under direction of Harper C. Maybee of the Western State Normal School, will be held on Thursday and Friday, May 27 and 28, the chief works to be given being "Rose Maiden," by Cowan; "Walrus and Carpenter," by Fletcher, and "Armenius," by Bruch. The soloists will be Julia Claussen, Bertha Shean-Davis, Evelyn Walker-Showers, Paul Althouse, Arthur Middleton, Stanley Perry and Clarence Hoekstra.

The chorus of the Normal and High Schools and a special children's chorus will appear, as also the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra, the directors being Harper C. Maybee and Beulah Hootman. Mr. H. Glenn Henderson is the accompanist.

Peterson—Edna Gunnar Peterson, pianist, appeared with Madame Rosa Olitzka, contralto, and Edith Bideau, soprano, at Ft. Smith, Ark., last week with great success.

CECIL FANNING IN LOS ANGELES

The following interesting comment on Cecil Fanning is taken from the Los Angeles Evening Herald:

It pays better to sing by note than in print. It is more lucrative to be a musician than a poet. And besides, to be a poet, one must suffer, and to suffer, even in the interests of art, is not nice.

This is the solemn statement of Cecil Fanning, singer and poet, who arrived in Los Angeles today for a five months' sojourn. He will sing at the music federation convention in this city in June, and later at the San Francisco exposition.

But beside being a singer and poet, Mr. Fanning bids fair to be in danger of becoming a lion, if one is to judge by the deluge of invitations from smart set folk in Los Angeles, some of whom he already knows and others of whom are recipients of letters of introduction from his friends in the east. And already, although this singer-poet has been here but a day, there are an ominous number of drawing room recitals and ball room concerts in the planning.

But Mr. Fanning may do some writing in Los Angeles as well as singing. Many of his poems are being recited to music by David Bispham this winter, and all of them have been set to music. So when Mr. Fanning consents to be lionized in Los Angeles drawing rooms, he may sing some of his own verses.

As a matter of fact, his verses are exceptionally sweet and if his voice—which has won highest praise of critics—creates more art than his poetry in the same proportion that brings in more dollars—it will be a voice well worth hearing, indeed. Here is a bit of his verse:

From out a mass of tangled dreams
I made a nook of whimsied beams;
The chinks I filled with unloved love,
And o'er the entrance place a dove
With feet as crimson as a flow'r
Sun-shot at day's declining hour.

Upon the hinge I hung my heart
To make a door, but wide apart
It swung, so with a kiss unkind
I cared a bolt of amethyst,
And barred it fast, lest someone come
To crush my whimsies one by one.

A thought unthought I deftly spread
For pillow underneath my head,
And with a song unsung I spun
A coverlid of dew and sun,
And thought to swoon in sweet content
Till time and tide their course had spent.

But thro' my heart, which was the door,
You entered at the very core,
To give lips to the kiss unkind,
And break the bolt of amethyst;
To give voice to the song unsung,
And to the thought unthought a tongue.

The dove with little crimson feet,
That o'er the entrance cooed so sweet,
You mounted, and away you flew,
Taking my unloved love with you!
Then all my nook of whimsied beams
Became a mass of tangled dreams.

Mr. Fanning expects to appear in public in San Diego and many other points on the coast, and in San Francisco there will be "Fanning Day" in the Ohio building when he sings. For he is a native son of that state and a marble bust of the singer-poet already decorates that hall at the fair.

——
Alliance—At Mt. Union College Conservatory of Music, Alliance, Ohio, the Zoellner Quartet appeared with great success on April 26. On May 4 and 11 excellent pupils' recitals were given under direction of Herbert E. Hutchinson.

——
Grove—Miss Grace Grove, pianist-accompanist, achieved a notable success in Buchanan, Mich., on May 10, when she played several piano solos, in her usual artistic manner, in addition to superb accompaniments for Enrico Palmetto, tenor.

——
American Conservatory—The post-graduate recital of William Haeusner, piano; Nannie Strayhorn, piano, and Velma Street-er, soprano, will be given at Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

FLORENCE MACBETH

Caryl B. Storrs wrote as follows for the Minneapolis Tribune of the Macbeth recital in the Minnesota city:

No force of which I know plays with greater stimulation upon that mental reservoir where figurative language has its residence than a pure, young, soprano voice with the fluty freshness, sunny warmth and delicate fragrance of that possessed by Florence Macbeth, who made her Minneapolis debut last evening in a recital at the Auditorium. So many metaphors and similes pour into the consciousness after hearing Miss Macbeth sing that one must exercise considerable control to keep from breaking into ecstatic verse, even though one is a middle aged reviewer who should have long ago outgrown his early tendency to write bad poetry.

The pure soprano voice is so rare a thing, especially in this age of art-vocalism, that surely the imaginative reviewer may be allowed to use just one of the many figures of speech that are demanding egress from his mind. Such a soprano voice as that of Florence Macbeth seems like a rare and perfect flower blooming in the depths of the forest of music; perfect in symmetry, ravishing in color, intoxicating in perfume and potent with suggestions of youth, beauty, truth, fancy and romance. In addition to her power of suggesting all these qualities, Miss Macbeth's voice gives the impression of almost justifying the false art of coloratura singing and, therefore, weakens, by the sheer force of its beauty, all arguments against this form of musical art.

Her last evening's program opened with the aria, "Marten aller Arten," a most characteristic Mozart composition of the German master, who so lavishly imitated the Italian school in his vocal works. Her second number was a group of German songs consisting of Franz's "Vogelein" and Mutter's "O Sing mich zur Ruh" and Mendelssohn's "Fehlungslied," Opus 47, No. 3. As an encore to this group she sang Schubert's "Roeslein." Next came a group of old French songs. Dell' Acqua's "Villanelle" and Weckerlin's "L'amour s'envole" and "Chantons Les Amours de Jean." As an encore to this group she sang Weckerlin's "Lisette." The charming impression made by the first part of the program was marred by its closing number, the "Charmant Oiseau" aria from David's "La Perle du Bresil," an emptily showy coloratura soprano aria with flute obligato by Leonardo de Lorenzo, first flutist of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

The second part of the program opened with another meaningless song, Mulder's "Staccato Polka," written merely to exhibit the vocal technic of the singer. This was followed by the loveliest feature of the entire program. A group of English songs, all redolent of the out-of-doors and filled with suggestions of fairies, wild-flowers, stars, waters, hill and sky. I cannot remember ever to have heard a more beautiful or more closely related series of songs than these, which consisted of Bishop's "Bid Me Discourse," Munro's "My Lovely Celia," Marion Bauer's "Youth Comes Dancing O'er the Meadows," and "Star Trysts" and Phillips' "The Enchanted Forest." As an encore to the group Miss Macbeth sang "Little Bo-Peep," the words by Harry Fuller and the music by Vincenzo Vannini.

Her closing number was the mad scene from "Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," with a flute obligato played by Leonardo de Lorenzo. I did not hear this number or the encore which followed it and closed one of the most notable soprano recitals the music-loving public of Minneapolis has ever enjoyed. —(Advertisement.)

BERTHA BEEMAN

Miss Bertha Beeman, of Evanston, has been engaged to sing the contralto solos in "Elijah" with the Choral Society at Ripon College, Ripon, Wis., on June 14.

PRUDENCE

NEFF

PIANISTE

Address
SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF MUSICAL ART
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ROBERT

DOLEJSI

VIOLINIST

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANISTPUPILS---NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988COACHING---608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEARWe have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - 'Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - PianoMARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - - - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av, Chicago

Louise George

Children's Harmony
Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

(26th Year) Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore, Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

GEORGE DOSTAL

Paterson was agog to hear the new and much-heralded tenor, George Dostal, long before his appearance at the last concert—the gala night—of the Paterson festival, held in Paterson's huge armory; with full chorus and mighty orchestra under the excellent baton of C. Mortimer Wiske, on the evening of May 13. The great auditorium was packed, notwithstanding the fact that "Billy" Sunday was going through his scheduled performances only a few blocks away—indeed, Sunday's must have been a slim congregational attendance, with Paterson's population doing honor to Marcella Sembrich and George Dostal, with a precocious and clever young local pianist, a cellist who played the "Kol Nidrei" with a full orchestra, and a chorus of trained voices offering far more than counter attractions in a program full of interest, to the local music lovers.

Mr. Dostal was in the freshest of voices notwithstanding the fact that he had sung a taxing program on the evening of May 11 in Syracuse, and traveled all of Wednesday.

His singing was the sensation of the evening. His rendition of the "Paradiso" from Meyerbeer's "Africaine" was a great surprise after he had proven the high tessitura of his undeniably lyric voice in that difficult aria for the tenor voice, "Deserto in Terra," which was delivered with admirable shading, great breadth and a surprising control of breath.

Mr. Dostal's high D-flat was held unbelievably long in the Donizetti solo, and furnished a climax of astounding effectiveness.

The tenor received an ovation, and was so frequently recalled that he was forced to render an encore, choosing to sing one stanza of the tenor's familiar air from the "Bohemian Girl" "Then You'll Remember Me," which again was provocative of intense excitement in the audience, hand clappings and cries of "Bravo."

The dramatic "Paradiso" proved how well Mr. Dostal knows the art of temperamental delivery—of vocal elocution—and how beautifully his noble organ lends itself to vocal numbers demanding power, virility and breadth.

His enunciation was practically faultless whether in English or Italian.

He was obliged to sing an extra number after the "Paradiso."

Madame Sembrich, who seemed a bit nervous, was not altogether in her element in the choice of her first song, the aria

"Dove Sono," from the "Nozze de Figaro." This selection is sung in the opera (it is the part of the Countessa) by a dramatic soprano, and requires the larger tone and greater volume of the dramatic voice to give it adequate rendition.

It also requires the foundation of the great breath control in which Madame Sembrich is lacking (indeed, a satisfying breath control, the factor of perfect phrasing, has never been this prima donna's strong point) and which is a prime necessity in vocal interpretation of this kind.

It is significant that among her numbers Madame Sembrich sang none of the coloratura arias with which she has been identified since the very beginning of her operatic career.

To Adelina Patti, with the luscious mezzo of her truly marvelous coloratura organ, it was given to render the dramatic arias with convincing warmth and color; but the organ of Sembrich is not, nor ever was full of that mellow, honey-like quality which made Patti's so extraordinary; so round and full and warm.

However, the soprano was warmly applauded, and besides encores she gave her audience a group of songs and an extra aria.

Madame Sembrich substituted for Frieda Hempel, whose numerous engagements made it impossible for her to sing upon this occasion.

Mr. Wiske deserves great praise for his share of the work from the splendid performances of the orchestra, especially in the Berlioz "Racokzy March", to the delightful unaccompanied chorus which was one of the gems of the evening.

h h h

One of the great successes of the festival was the playing at the second concert of the Paterson festival of Miss Ethel Leginska, whose magnificent performance of the Schultze Eyler "Blue Danube" waltz set the house aglow. Miss Leginska was in the finest of form, and she played as if possessed by the very devils of Life, Wine and Dance.

She has the verve of a mettled courser in her performance of brilliant numbers. She understands perfectly the indicated desire of the composer. She has all the fineness of touch, combined with a tremendous, almost elemental fire and energy, and she sweeps her audience into a state of exaltation with her.

Paterson is asking itself all kinds of questions about her, and declares that it must hear her oftener.

G
I
O
V
A
N
N
I

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

M
A
R
I
A

Which reminds me to say that Miss Leginska has a surprise and a delight in store for her numerous worshipers next season, when she will give them the opportunity of hearing her own conception of the greatest composers for the instrument whose keyboard is the basis of her musical joys and conquests.

She will give a series of eight master composer concerts next winter in Aeolian Hall, and already the wise and the elect are investing in anticipation of the feast being prepared for them, and checks are pouring in at the box office, rather to Messrs. Haensel and Jones' surprise, as very little information about the contemplated series had been given the musical papers.

But the little Leginska has her own true and loyal following, and these are upon the qui vive as to what their little lady is doing, or about to do.

h h h

Thuel Burnham's Activities

Thuel Burnham will be the pianistic hero of the great convention of Iowa Music

THUEL BURNHAM

Teachers. He will be the star of the last evening's concert, and almost every arrival of the postman brings him inquiries as to his program, and requests for a stop off long enough to give many lessons in his art.

The convention will be held in Waterloo, and again the Saxon will be triumphant though no Napoleon there be to down.

Mr. Burnham has prepared an immensely interesting program which will include:

Deux Bourrees	Bach
Air and Variations (request)	Mozart
Impromptu (request)	Schubert
Trilling (request)	Schubert-Liszt
Four Preludes	Chopin
Valse
Berceuse
Polonaise, A major
Two Preludes	Rachmaninoff
Chopak	Borodine
Diebstahl	Liszt
Marche Militaire	Schubert

There will be a few other additions to his program if the original plan is adhered to; in the main request numbers.

(Continued on page 30.)

GEORGE

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America

Exclusive Management

Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Reberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET Soprano
WILLIAM Composer-Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

LEIST-BEEBE

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy

Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs, Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer Christian

Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Chicago (San School of Music Auditorium Building)

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM

Baritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

J. PARNELL EGAN

TENOR
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Hillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

RECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

DRAMATIC SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

Music in America

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Several benefit concerts presented unusually good musical programs and artistic performers. One, for the Polish Relief Fund, Col. John Sobieski, the uncrowned Prince of Poland, gave a fine opening address on his native land and its checkered history and trial in its national environment. Mr. Jamie Overton, a violinist, appeared in a group by Kreisler, Schubert and Novacek, closing with Saint-Saens' "Andante and Rondo Capriccio," with the skillful accompaniments by Mr. Will Garraway. Mr. Overton was enthusiastically received.

Mme. Clara de Kwapishevaka's operatic aria, "Rondo" from "Lucia" and one from the Polish opera "Halka," were of high merit in rendition. Miss Ina Goodwin, accompanist, and later appeared in Chopin's "Preludes Nos. 3, 18, 23 and 24" in artful technic. Signor Ettore Campana, baritone, gave the "Prologue" from "Pagliacci," and an urgent encore called out Cadman's "I Love You." Mr. Louis Opid's cello solo was Chopin's "Funeral March" and Grotzger's "Starvation" both most feelingly rendered. Other national dances, tableaux, and orchestral selections made a program and performance worthy of high cultured tastes.

A benefit to Mme. Lusie Poulain of Paris, who lost all her relatives in the war, found a sympathetic heart in her pupil, Miss Kathleen Lockhart, a dramatic soprano of operatic training, who lives here. She had the assistance of well known local artists in a very interesting list of compositions, by Mendelssohn (2), Weckerlin (4), Puccini (2), and five of her own compositions. Miss Charlotte Bussevet, violinist, "Thais," "Meditation," and a "Canzonetta" by D'Amprosia. Miss Blanche Ruby gave "Shadow Dance" by Meyerbeer. Mme. Minnie Hance, "Lullabye" from "Natomia," Cadman's "The Moon Drops Low," and Freeby's "Golden Sun." Miss Gertrude Ross accompanied.

The Sunday afternoons at the Trinity attract full houses. Miss Margaret McKee (queen whistler) has quite a drawing power. Miss Bertha Wilcox, reader, held her audience with much interest. Miss Whale, as pianist, pleased her audience.

A very pleasant reception was given Mrs. H. H. A. Beach by the Cabrillo Music Settlement Association. A good program followed in which her "Violin Sonata" and three songs and Canadian "Boat Song" duet were rendered by local artists. Mr. Heilbronner, violinist, Miss Jessie Chapin, accompanist. Miss Gertrude Ross' three songs were sung by Mrs. Grace Widney Maber, played by the author. Mr. William Bassett, baritone, in two songs by Allitsen and Huhn's "Invictus," with Mrs. Sybella Bassett, accompanist, and later playing three piano solos by Roy Lamont Smith, proving in each to be fine artists.

The Dominant Club at the Ebell Club House also gave Mrs. Beach a fine reception and program, with a good representation of the music teachers and composers. A recital by Mrs. Lucia Forest Eastman, harpist from New York city, Mrs. Celeste Nellis Ryus, pianist, and Mrs. Helen Louise Kimball, reader, was especially interesting. Zabel's "Concerto," Debussy's "Arabesque," Godefrid's "Legende," and Thomas' "Fantasia," with several good encores, were the harpists' donation of good music. Mrs. Kimball's "Rachette's Story," and several humorous encores, showed an artist-reader.

Mr. Homer Grunn presented his pupil, Harold Gleason, in a piano recital of classic values, and the work done not only shows extra fine talent, but a student of fine equipment, showing the Grunn specialties in touch and finish. Beethoven's "Andante in F," MacDowell's "Sonata Troica," Liszt's "Hungarian Fantasie," with Mr. Grunn at second piano. Orchestra parts and a group from Chopin, Moszkowski, Strauss and Liszt, gave a good test of memory and technic. Great prominence is in expectation as the years and study and practice is pursued with such strong manifestations of genius in music and artistry.

Molly Byerly Wilson, dramatic contralto, concluded a series of unusually successful appearances in concert and recital programs in Los Angeles with the acceptance of contracts for a dozen concert engagements in the middle west, and left on April 25 to begin the tour. The first concert was given at Prescott, and the engagement will close in Chicago, after covering points in Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. Tentative dates held for Miss Wilson at Winnipeg and other Canadian towns will be filled before her return or later, and she is also arranging to give a series of recital programs in Kansas, especially at her home town of Salina, the nearby festival town of Lindsborg, and other larger points.

A concert worthy a larger hearing and a good fee of admission was given at the University M. E. Church by their choir of thirty or more voices, under the masterly directorship of the choirister, Mr. J. D. Beall. Besides a fine miscellaneous program, the cantata, "Seven Last Words," by Dubois, was given. The solo parts were given mostly by the private voice pupils of Mr. Beall and Mrs. Beall, who is a soprano of excellent voice and attainments. Mr. Beall and Miss Gladys Ogburn, organist, furnished the most of the accompaniments. Special mention in the good points in singing would be due the entire list of aspiring pupils, who are ready now for worthy public appearances. Those outside were Mrs. Frank Colby, who sang in German, Liszt's "Die Loreley" in splendid voice and good style.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bassett, baritone and pianist, gave "King of Liang" and "Waning Moon" by Allitsen, and Huhn's "Invictus." Mr. Robert Aller, cellist, gave the "air" on the "G String" by Bach, and the Bach "Ave Maria." Mrs. Beall gave Mr. Beall's "Spring," and "Come to Me," and Hammond's "Im Wunderschoenen Mai."

Miss Ellen Summers, in a sweet voice, finely interpreted Campbell-Tipton's "A Spirit Flower" and on urgent recall, interpreted "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah." Mr. Henry Page, in baritone solo and duet work in the cantata, was very satisfactory. The tenor, Mr. Charles Barkdull, has a voice of good quality and sustained his role to the full demands. Mrs. Beall, taking the soprano. The program is worth repeating in concert hall, and would be enjoyed at a high admission fee.

The Symphony Orchestra and Director Tandler are arduously working upon the Beethoven "Ninth," and the Ellis and Lyric Clubs upon the vocal "Fifth Movement." A fine rendition was given on May 17 and 18 in the Temple (Clunes) auditorium. The popular program given April 30 was somewhat too heavy for a popular classification. The attendance was less than the former programs. The Beethoven program will close the present season. The next season, six pairs with a popular program between, may be the suggestion for the '15 and '16 course of nine or ten performances. The soloists at the "popular" were Mr. Ernest Douglass, whose "Suite for Organ and Orchestra" was given, and it is a work of good outline, in three movements, with the author at the organ. Mr. Jay Plowe, flute soloist extraordinary, gave Chaminade's "Concerto" for flute, which was orchestrated by Herr A. Tandler, and it proved to be a very attractive number. Mr. Plowe is a player of great skill and clarity of tone.

Mr. Tandler gave a descriptive lecture before the School Music Teachers on the Beethoven "Ninth Symphony." Other lectures will be given to prepare for an intelligent hearing of it.

The Gamut Club's banquet last night was one of great interest. Each succeeding monthly meeting seems to keep apace and in many seems better than the former. We had at least thirty guests of renown and wide reputation. A special reception was given Mr. Alfred Hertz of the Metropolitan Opera House, who is here preparing the "Fairylend" opera for July 1 to 8. His wife (Miss Dorn), a soprano of good reputation, is with him. Marcella Craft was present and made one of her characteristic practical common sense impromptu speeches. Without seeming to attempt the speech oratory in the least. We had the pleasure of entertaining Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Goodrich, of Paris, New York and Chicago, who gave an interesting talk on early reminiscences of California in '40 and the fifties. Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Steele, of literary and story fame, lifted the enthusiasm for the spirit of the Pacific coast to an inspiration point. Mr. Fall Islander, who is with Mr.

GERTRUDE

Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA

For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, low

Hertz, a musician of masterly ability, played from "Tristan and Isolde," with a keen sense of its meaning, and on encore, played one of his own, a great waltz. Miss Hoerner, soprano, sang several good songs. Mr. Wallace Monroe, of the stage, regaled in an entertaining way, and dropped some happy suggestions of the forthcoming musical possibilities of California. Mrs. Monroe recited from Bret Harte to the great delight of the state's native spirit. Great things are being done this year in our own city and the exposition cities.

S. W. MOUNTZ.

1651 Sixth avenue, phone West 1024.

PAGEANT AT BLOOMINGTON

The following information is taken from the Bloomington Pantagraph:

The program is complete for the pageant "A Day in May," which will be presented under the auspices of the Woman's Club, in the Coliseum, Friday evening, May 21. The orchestra and chorus are in charge of Mr. Henry Purmort Eames of Chicago, and some very fine selections are promised. This beautiful pageant was created and dramatized by the girls of the University of Chicago last year, and it is assured that the affair will be one of the most beautiful and attractive ever given in this city.

The program is to be given in three parts, morning, noon and evening, and will be carried out as follows:

Prologue.....Miss Ortha Scriven.

MORNING

Peer Gynt (First suite).....Grieg

Orchestra

Peter Pan.....Miss Rachel Harber

Hark, Hark, the Lark.....Schubert

Chorus

Dawn—Chalif music.....Washington Public School

Sunrise—Moments Musical.....Schubert

Misses Hazel Funk, Helen Smith and

Josephine Sanders

AFTERNOON

Summer Winds.....David Stanley Smith

Chorus

Wind Bells (dance composed by Miss Margaret Coleman).....Miss Rees

Miss Alice Johnson of Peoria

Welcome, Pretty Primrose.....Pinsute

Chorus

Flower Dance (Chalif music).....Franklin Public School

To the Rain in Summer.....Wendt

Chorus

Rain Drops—Chalif music.....Taught by Miss Coleman

Rainbow—Chalif music.....Dorothy Burr (solo)

EVENING

Sunset.....Chalif

Miss Helen Tinen, Peoria

Fairies.....Spence

Fireflies.....Chalif music

Jefferson Public School

Dreamy Summer Night.....Thuille

Chorus

Epilogue.....Miss Ortha Scriven

Pierrot and Pierrette.....

(Dance composed by William Crockett Perrin, Chicago), Mrs. Lawrence Funk and Miss

Margaret Coleman of Peoria

Members of Orchestra—Paul Burke, Charlotte Burton, Wilma Blocher, Donald Greenman, Opal Greenman, Dorothy Hallett, Fred Hitch, Vincent Marquis,

Herman Orendorff, Lola Otto, Edna Ramage, Harlan

Sachs, Jake Small, Jesse Small, Paul Vernon, Elizabeth Wood, Misses Doris Rinehart and Catherine

Cowles, pianists.

GALESBURG, ILL.

Miss Alma Morgo Pearson, a pupil of John Winter Thompson, and a member of the class of 1915 of Knox Conservatory, played the following program of organ music in Beecher Chapel on May 13:

Toccata and Fugue in C Major.....Bach

Toccata

Adagio

Fugue

Menuet in G.....Beethoven

Prayer and Cradle Song.....Guilmant

Grand Chorus in D Major.....Guilmant

Benediction Nuptiale.....Saint-Saens

Duo.....John Winter Thompson

Gavotte from the opera Mignon.....Thomas

Overture to William Tell.....Rossini-Buck

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA

The muses have surely prevailed at the "Queen of the Beaches" during the past fortnight, and with Shakespeare we seem to have heard them sing: "If music be the food of love, play on." Being chiefly of home distinction, local talent has demonstrated in a marked degree that the prevailing belief is more than a fond mother's fancy and we have eminent ability right here in our midst, which with proper attention to the careful instructions regarding the fundamentals in musical lore, furnished in good measure by the city schools and various private institutions, Long Beach will surprise some of the more mature municipalities with numerous and very clever vocal and instrumental artists.

Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman, the soprano soloist, is in full charge of the music at the First Presbyterian Church, and has already established herself as a successful director of a chorus choir. She is a diligent reader of Music News and from its timely criticisms of choir management will acquire valuable assistance.

At a benefit concert last Thursday evening, in the Auditorium, Mrs. T. G. Harriman sang "The Salutation of Dawn," by Frederick Stevenson, and sang it well. She possesses a really great contralto voice of rare quality and with charming personality, is a great favorite. A flute obligato by Mr. George C. Moore and accompaniment by Mrs. Luella Clark Emery, added much to the musical effect.

Having as its purpose the raising of the standard of musical appreciation generally, the Southern California Chapter, American Guild of Organists, to which many organists of prominence belong, who reside in the southern part of the state, gave an organ program at the Congregational Church last Monday night. The guild is giving these programs of high class organ music by some of its most talented members in various cities on the coast, having for its sole object the education of public musical taste.

The organists heard on this occasion were Rev. Arnold G. H. Bode, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church of this city, formerly dean of music in the University of Wyoming, and well and favorably known in this section as both organist and composer. Mr. P. Shaul-Hallett, organist of the All Saints Episcopal Church, Pasadena, and Mr. H. A. Wheaton, of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, Canada, who was touring the coast and kindly complied with the earnest desire of Mr. Ernest Douglas, organist of the Pro-cathedral of Los Angeles, who has been selected to take part. Selections were played from George Frederick Handel, Samuel Coleridge-Taylor and Sir John Frederick Bridge. The annotations by Jaroslaw de Zielinski, were elaborate and of valuable assistance to those who cared to enter into the merits of the program presented.

On Friday evening at the Virginia Hotel, Mrs. Bessie Abbott Howland, lyric soprano, and Miss Charlotte A. Powers, reader, with Mrs. Luella Clark Emery, accompanist, gave a very delightful entertainment under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher

Association. The musical critic of the Press reported as follows:

"To her exquisite artistry Mrs. Howland adds a charming personality which entered into the rendition of the four groups of songs which comprised her program. The first selection was 'The Nightingale and Star,' from the opera 'Mlle Modiste,' by Herbert, in which she took the leading role in Honolulu.

"Miss Powers was encored time and again and delighted her audience with a variety of work, as did Mrs. Howland.

"Mrs. Emery assisted in her usual able fashion with accompaniments."

Mrs. Eugenia Baldwin Riddle, lyric soprano, of Pasadena, well and favorably known in Chicago, gave a half hour song recital at the Ebell, Monday afternoon. She was in fine voice and held in rapt attention the large audience with the following well selected program:

The Seasons.....MacFadyen

I Sing to Thee.....Roy Lamont Smith

Berceuse.....Chaminade

The Rosy Morn.....Landon Ronald

Mrs. Princess Long, sister of Mr. Charles W. Clark, who is a great favorite on the Pacific coast, responded to an enthusiastic invitation and sang at a patriotic demonstration in the evening, with marked success. Mrs. Luella Clark Emery was accompanist for both singers. Mr. H. S. Austin, also from Chicago, addressed the music section of the Ebell Wednesday morning.

FREDERICK CLARK IN TEXAS

The following comment is from the Wellington Journal:

The Wellington Conservatory of Music deserves great credit for bringing to the city last night Frederick Clark, baritone, and his excellent company. It was one of the treats of the season, and the audience enjoyed the program immensely. Every number was encored, showing the appreciation of the crowd.

Mr. Clark gave several musical selections, some in costume and some without. He has a well-trained voice, and his dramatic action is fine. His readings were also greatly enjoyed, especially the selection from Riley.

Miss Helen Woytych captured the audience with the magic of her violin music. She was enthusiastically received, and was called back time and again. (Advertisement.)

Wheaton—At the Wheaton College Conservatory of Music on May 11, an organ recital was given by Carlton Fischer, pupil of Marguerite Dresser, assisted by Harriette Ferris, soprano.

SPECIAL OFFER

Through the Year in Melody

Twelve Easy Instructive Pieces for the Pianoforte

By CARL MILLEGAM

THIS set of teaching pieces will be found exceedingly valuable for first grade work. It is unique and characteristic; the pieces are carefully fingered and phrased and will strengthen and develop the feeling of musical rhythm, so essential in training of beginners.

Complete set in one volume 45c, regular price $1.00.
Separate Numbers 10c each, postpaid.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from Page 27)

Mr. Burnham is in excellent trim. He is a close and careful student, quite realizing Turner's exordium to the intending genius, and he realizes to the full the value of the passing moment.

His summer will be spent at Vineyard Haven.

Arkady Bourstin Bright Particular Star of the Globe Concert

Arkady Bourstin fairly took the audience that assembled to enjoy the program of the Evening Globe's series of concerts in the armory of the Sixty-first regiment by storm on the evening of May 9 by his superb performance.

He played the Saint-Saens' "Introduction and Capriccioso" with such a combination of violinistic excellences, brio, dash, sweep, color—and then some more color—perfect intonation and spontaneity, that he more than made evident the fact that he is one of the coming great ones.

Indeed, the audience was so delighted that it burst into involuntary applause at many moments, and long before the conclusion of the opus.

Of course he was obliged to render unto them a few extra numbers, the "Prize Song" from the "Meistersinger" being the chief among these.

Miss Aline Van Barentzen

This very youthful pianist, she is just sweet seventeen, and the incarnation of youthful modesty, charm and simplicity (a truly unspoiled girl, with her peach-bloom complexion and honey-colored hair) who has been lionized—that's the only word which suggests its immense appropriateness—in Europe; in London; before crowned heads; in Paris and upon the Continent, will be one of the potent attractions of the coming season.

She created a great impression of surprising maturity in her art when she played the "B-flat Minor Concerto"—the Tchaikowsky—at a Sunday night concert of the Metropolitan Opera House this winter; and she deepened that impression at her Aeolian Hall recital somewhat later in the season.

Miss Van Barentzen will be managed by R. E. Johnson, and he prophesies great things for her.

Some Schnitzer Data

The following facts are excerpted from the English edition of "Who's Who," and should be cut out and pasted in the scrap book of every Schnitzer enthusiast, and who is not even among "Who's Who":

"Schnitzer, Germaine Alice. Born in Paris, May 28, 1888. Received first prize in music, Paris Conservatoire National at ten. Three years later received first grand prize from same institution. At 15 received National Prize, Vienna Meister Schule. In her 17th year appeared with great success as soloist with Berlin and Vienna Philharmonic Orchestras. Toured America three times, playing 125 concerts. Soloist three times Boston Symphony; four times New York Philharmonic; other appearances with Chicago, New York, Cincinnati, St. Louis Symphony and other orchestras of the states. Played 350 concerts in Europe on itineraries covering Austro-Hungary, Russia, Roumania, Monaco, France and England. Permanent address, Hotel Ansonia, New York City."

Madame Schnitzer has placed her artistic fortunes in the hands of those capable gentlemen, Messrs. Haensel and Jones, and will tour America under their direction next season.

Madame Marie Narelle, soprano, and Mr. George Dostal, tenor, will be the soloists at an important concert to be given at Richmond Hills on the evening of May 20.

Arkady Bourstin is receiving many compliments upon the acquisition of a new and wonderful violin—the famous "Rose" Guadagnini violin, which is valued at $10,000.

This particular violin is said to be the most perfect specimen of the work of Joannes Baptista Guadagnini, and is known not only for its mellow tone, but its general beauty.

English—The concert announced for Music Hall on Wednesday evening this week was postponed, on account of the illness of Mrs. Jane English, to Thursday evening, May 27, when it will be given at the same place. The program will be given by Jane English, Francisco Daddi and Grace Kessler.

FANNY DE TRAY

Following is some press comment on the work of Miss Fanny De Tray, a young soprano, who will next year tour under the Culbertson management:

The four song groups of Miss De Tray, a charming and unaffected young soprano, added much to the real musical value of the evening. Here is a singer who evidently believes that an audience is entitled to hear the words of the song as well as the quality of the voice, for her diction was an example to other singers we have heard lately.—Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch.

Miss De Tray, the soloist, disclosed a delightful soprano voice. Her aria from "Bohème" was delivered with a fine display of pure vocalism and a nice regard for artistic values.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The audience showed much pleasure in the singing of Miss De Tray, the soprano, whose voice proved the only one of the trio of soloists, adequate to cope with the difficult music. Miss De Tray made much of the soprano part and gave evidence of excellent training. The voice in itself is one of natural beauty and she sings with sympathy and understanding.—St. Louis Times.—(Advertisement.)

SABA DOAK

Following is some press comment on the singing of Miss Saba Doak, soprano:

Miss Doak possesses a rich and clear voice of well rounded proportions, and in several numbers astonished her hearers with the breadth and beauty of tone. Her aria from "Carmen" was charmingly given. She was at her best in "Je suis heureuse," from Charpentier's "Louise." Tosti's "Good-bye" concluded one of the most enthusiastic receptions ever accorded a visiting artist in this city.—Trenton True American.

Miss Doak has a sympathetic voice of great beauty, under splendid control. She rendered a charming program, most varied in character. Her opening aria from "Carmen" gave promise of what could be expected in her later numbers from "Louise" and "Mignon Lescaut." Her encores were exquisite.—Passaic Daily Herald.

Miss Doak well sustained her high reputation as a soprano.—Rutherford, N. J.

Miss Saba Doak, an attractive southern woman, being a pupil of Jean De Reszke, for her auditors could see the work the great Pole had put on her splendid voice. She is certainly an artist in everything. She never once lost her attractiveness in a taxing program. The registers are so perfectly blended that the same quality of tone was carried from the lowest to the highest notes with perfect ease.—Trenton Sunday Advertiser.

Miss Saba Doak, an attractive Southern woman, sang divinely. She has a lovely soprano voice, delicate and perfectly finished. Her numbers created tremendous enthusiasm.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Miss Doak was heard in a beautiful program given with artistic finish and a thoroughly professional manner. From the moment she appeared Miss Doak placed the audience under the double spell of her winsome personality and her lovely voice, with entire freedom from mannerisms and a convincing seriousness that her songs had been studied with musicianly purpose. She sang one of the most versatile programs ever given in this city. Her range is wide, the high notes surprising one in their clearness and volume; her enunciation perfectly clear in the softest pianissimo. Miss Doak has acquired marvelous control over her voice.—Chattanooga News.

Miss Doak possesses a voice of rare charm. The program consisted of artistic numbers ranging from ancient arias to modern ballads. Equally at home did the fair singer appear in each, her distinct articulation giving added pleasure to those in a known tongue. Her encores were sung with so much feeling yet so simple that her audience was completely captivated.—Columbia (S. C.) State.—(Advertisement.)

"Congratulations to Miss Boyd
IN ITALY
Is a Gem," Grant Kimbell

Published
in two keys

GRANT KIMBELL

Price
60 cts. usual
discount

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.-CHICAGO

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-
CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Dr. Thomas M. Mendson
TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

IDA GARDNER
CONTRALTO
Management W LTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

Summer Term

Wm. Clare Hall
TENOR

Will continue teaching
at his studio

428 Fine Arts Building

Throughout June, July
and August

MARCELLA CRAFT

In the past decade it is possible to recall not more than one or two examples of American triumphs in foreign parts, so large and so comprehensive in scope as that of Marcella Craft. It is twelve years since this gifted young soprano left her native surroundings. In that time she acquired experience and built up an operatic career of exemplary brilliancy, gained the undivided approbation of Germany and Italy and established herself permanently in the affections of layman and connoisseur.

Triumph succeeded triumph in Europe. Her superb voice, her artistry, her dramatic skill, all so splendidly combined, established her as a favorite. There was no difference of opinion as to her worth, the beauty and individuality of her characterizations, her originality, her versatility; each of her roles built up with exquisite consistence and finish in detail; each wonderfully different from the other. Her Butterfly is truly Japanese; her Salome barbarously Oriental; her Mimi, which she sang to the Rudolfo of Caruso, redolent of the Latin Quarter; her Marta in "Tiefland" a true peasant. She also conquered as Antonia in "The Tales of Hoffman"; in Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini"; Marguerite in "Faust"; Suzanne in "The Secret of Suzanne" (a part she created); Elsa in "Lohengrin"; Nedda in "Pagliacci"; Elizabeth in "Tannhauser"; Violetta in "Traviata"; Desdemona in "Otello"; Senta in "The Flying Dutchman," and others.

Reports of her splendid achievements, her varied and exceptional powers emanated from numerous music centers and aroused curiosity in her own country, and arrangements were made for an American concert tour and she appeared last October as the leading soloist at the famous Maine festivals, which are held annually in Portland and Bangor, having been engaged to replace Madame Emma Eames, who was unable to reach America in time to participate in these concerts. Miss Craft then proceeded to the Pacific coast where she was the first soloist with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. This engagement was followed by recitals in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Riverside, Redlands, San Diego and in other California cities.

"IN ITALY"

Few songs have so swiftly leaped to popular favor as "In Italy," by Jeanne Boyd, as is attested by the fact that this number (published by the Gamble Hinged Music Company) is now being sung frequently by Ruth Virginia Lewis, Warren Proctor, Artur Platz, Robert Quait, Maude Fenlon Bollman, Grant Kimbell, Ethel Connely Cutter and many others.

The song has an infectious swing and a musical value far beyond the ordinary. The words are indicative of the title and the music fits the words like a glove.

The accompaniment is far and away more beautiful than in most modern songs and each audience that hears this charming composition is completely carried away with it.

Belden Avenue Church—At the Belden Avenue Baptist Church, Mrs. Evabel Clisby Tanner has been elected organist, to follow Mrs. Annette Simpson, who has gone to Berwyn Presbyterian Church.

GALESBURG, ILL.

Anna Groff-Bryant of Chicago School of Vocal Art, and director of the Vocal Art Institute of Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill., presented three of her advanced pupils in individual and joint recitals this week in Alumni Hall, college campus. On Monday evening, May 17, Miss Ruth Heilmann, dramatic soprano, assisted by Ados Milton Tolls, reader, gave a splendid program. On Thursday, May 20, Miss Alexandrinne Chabrison, lyric soprano, and Miss Ruth Evelyn Brown, contralto, were heard in a joint recital in the following program:

My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice (Samson and Delila)	Saint-Saens
Miss Brown
Ave Maria (Cavaleria Rusticana) words by Weatherly	Mascagline
Jane (words by Jaesee)	Beach
A Summer Night (words by Marzial)	Thomas
Miss Chabrison
Widmung	Schumann
The Trout	Schubert
Er, der Herrlichste von Allen	Schumann
Miss Brown
May Laurels Crown Thy Brow (Aida)	Verdi
Miss Chabrison
Down in the Desert (words by Boehmcke)	Gertrude Ross
The Denza (words by Bates)	Chadwick
Remembrance	Salter
The Brownies (words by Weatherby)	Leoni
Shadows (words and music)	Carrie Jacobs-Bond
Miss Brown
Waltz Song	Arditi
Then You'll Remember Me	Balfe
Bow Legged Boy (Eugene Field)	A. H. Bergen
At Dawning	Cadman
Happy Song	Del Riego
Miss Chabrison

Note.—The fifth recital of the series of May musicals will be given by Miss Margaret McCarl, lyric soprano, assisted by Miss Frances Eldred, pianist, on Monday evening, May 24, 1915, Alumni Hall.

PILOT POINT, TEXAS.

The following program was very successfully given at Pilot Point, by Dr. Frederick Clark and his company, on May 12. The local critics were enthusiastic in their praise:

Rondo Capriccioso, Op. 14	Mendelssohn
Mr. Mark
Sonata, A Major	Handel
Andante
Allegro
Adagio
Allegretto
Helen Woytych
Lord God of Abraham, from Elijah	Mendelssohn
It Is Enough, from Elijah (in costume)	Mendelssohn
Dr. Frederick Clark
Twelfth Rhapsodie	Liszt
Mr. Marx
Recompense	Hammond
Reading
Reading—The Log Cabin	Servis
Dr. Frederick Clark
Ave Maria	Shubert-Wilholm
The Swan	Saint-Saens
Spanish Dance	Sarasate
Helen Woytych
Negro Exhortation	Cook
Banjo Song	Homer
Uncle Rome (in costume)	Homer
Dr. Frederick Clark

SEASON 1915-16

ALBERT SPALDING

1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist

Steinway Piano

Herbert J. Wrightson

PIANO AND HARMONY

CHICAGO

20 East Jackson Boulevard, Phone Wabash, 6293

PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE

Franklin Stead, director of the Peoria Musical College, was elected chairman of the program committee of the Illinois Music Teachers' Association, which met at Centralia May 4 to 7.

A faculty recital was given at the college Monday evening, May 17, by Miss Clara McCune, pianist, and Miss May V. Ulrich, violinist. The following program was given:

Toccata and Fugue, D Minor	Bach-Brassin
Sonata, G Minor, for Violin and Piano	Grieg
Lento Doloroso—Allegro Vivace
Allegretto Tranquillo
Allegro Animato
Theme Original et Variations	Tschaikowsky
Etude, Opus 111	Saint-Saens
Vor Ihrem Bild	Hubay
Berceuse Slave	Neruda
The Butterfly	Hubay
Intermezzo, Opus 117 (Scotch Cradle Song)	Brahms
Widmung	Schumann-Liszt
Rigoletto Fantasy	Verdi-Liszt

The remaining recital dates for the school year are:

May 22—Saturday afternoon; preparatory and intermediate.

May 24—Monday evening; intermediate and advanced.

May 28—Saturday afternoon; children's recital (2 and 4 o'clock).

May 31—Monday evening; organ recital (pupils of Mr. Stead).

June 1—Tuesday evening; post graduate dramatic.

June 4—Friday evening; children's recital.

June 7—Monday evening; chorus and orchestra concert.

June 11—Friday evening; junior recital.

June 14—Monday evening; dramatic recital.

June 18—Friday evening; commencement concert.

— # # # —

LOUIS KREIDLER AT BETHLEHEM

Mr. Louis Kreidler, baritone, will be one of the principal attractions at the Bach Festival at Bethlehem, appearing on the evening of May 28, in the solo numbers in "The Passion According to St. John."

The Bach Festival concerts are held in the Parker Memorial Chapel at Bethlehem, Pa.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

FOR SALE—Virgil practice clavier; address V. P., Music News.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

FOR SALE—Pipe organ; three-manual, tubular pneumatic, 38 stops, complete couplers and accessories; seven years old, and in good condition; now in a Chicago church; will have to be moved to make way for a larger one; will be moved and erected, ready to play, for $4,000. A real bargain for some large, church or music studio. Instrument can be seen and heard by addressing F. D., Music News.

MONICA GRAHAM
Columbia School of Music

STULTS WALTER ALLEN --
SOPRANO BASS
303 KIMBALL HALL

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR

CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conduct-
ed according to the advanced methods
of the most progressive
European Conserva-
tories.

CHEVALIER PIER ADOLFO TIRINDELLI
Violin, Ensemble and Orchestral Conducting

A Faculty of INTER-
NATIONAL REPU-
TATION. Location ideal.
Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art

Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic
Classes, Post Graduate and
Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced
Composition, Normal
Courses, Most Modern
Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open
throughout the Summer.
Special Summer Courses
in Public School Music.
Exceptional opportunities for
Public Work. Professional
Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time

For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR
Directress

Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

Books and Music

REVIEWED BY H. J. W.

Sight Reading Melodies, for primary grades, by Laura Rountree Smith and F. F. Churchill. Price 35 cents. (Chicago: Clayton F. Summy Co.)

These sight-reading melodies, with original words, should be very useful for young pupils. Some prefatory notes and explanations enhance the value of the little book.

h h h

The Comforter, a short church cantata for solos, chorus and organ, by Edward Shipper Barnes, Op. 15. Price 50 cents net. (New York: G. Schirmer.)

The music of this sacred cantata is of good quality and thoroughly orthodox. The solos are, as is appropriate for practical purposes, rather less simple in harmonies and general treatment than the choruses. The passing from one solo to another, without break, is effective in one or two places, and the organ part has sundry little solo passages, giving interest to that part.

h h h

The Silver Mug, by Grace I. Haviland. Words by Virginia T. Seiss. Price 60 cents, net. (Boston: The Boston Music Company.)

There is an ever-growing literature of songs for children and this is a good sign. The proverb, "Train up a child in the way he should go," applies as much (if not more) in music as in anything else. These songs are not of the babyish kind, considered musically. Although the words deal with childish matters, there is a certain artistic quality about the music. This makes them the more interesting to the parent or teacher.

h h h

Progressive Violin Studies, by famous masters, selected and edited by Eugene Gruenberg. Vol. I, Studies in the first three positions. Price, $1.00. (Boston: Oliver Ditson Company.)

We have here a collection of technical studies taken from the works of the famous Etude writers for violin, and suitably arranged. By the use of such a collection it is intended that the student shall obtain a wider experience than by going through the entire series of any one or even several authors. Some foundation is presupposed, the first studies being moderately rapid scale and broken chord passages in the first position. The seventeenth study begins the Third Position, the twenty-third the combination of the two, and at the thirty-sixth the Second Position is taken up. The concluding studies in the book give some double-stopping and duet practice. It is a well-edited work.

h h h

Exercises for Developing Accuracy in Piano Playing, by Gustav L. Becker. Price 80 cents. (Philadelphia: Theodore Presser.)

The object of this work is one that is generally ignored in technical treatises, and seldom emphasized. It is the acquirement of accuracy in finding one's way about on the keyboard, not only without the use of the eyes, but without feeling the way on the keys. The sense of distance, it is contended, may be cultivated until it is almost infallible, which obviously is of great advantage to the pianist. The introduction contains much that is instructive and valuable, and recommends on the part of the piano student a close attention to business which must inevitably accomplish great results. It is the promoting of this vital interest which is the bane of the good piano teacher with the majority of pupils. Given that ingredient, all the rest comes with any sort of good instruction. Gustav Becker's work merits a decided place under this head.

h h h

Style and Execution, six brilliant studies for the piano, edited and revised by Moritz Moszkowski. Price $1.00. (Boston: Arthur P. Schmidt.)

Studies by Ravina, Secling, Brassin, Heller, Thalberg and Schulhoff are here presented by that master technician of piano writing, Moszkowski, and will therefore be invaluable to the advanced piano student. They are all concert studies and are eminently suitable for program use.

h h h

SHEET MUSIC

Boosey Co., London and New York.

Oliphant Chuckerbutty, "Still in Dreams I See Her"; Eric Coates, "Eildon Hill"; Felix Corbett, "Almona"; Herbert Hughes, "The Bard of Armagh"; Herbert Oliver, "Soldier of My Heart"; Liza Lehmann, "There Are Birds in the Valley"; Ivor Novello, "The King of Love"; Wilfrid Sandersen, "All Joy Be Thine"; C. Linn Seiler, "In a Vineyard"; Haydn Wood, "The Island of Love"; (songs).

The Boosey Co. easily maintains its position as one of the leading song-publishing firms of the world. It is always safe to count on the high quality of the compositions and, usually, on a certain English style which is characteristic. This remark applies chiefly to the ballad form in which many famous songs have been written, as compared to that kind in which the music follows the sense of the text with less regard to general symmetry. As all these songs are first-class, we will only mention two that impressed us most: "Eildon Hill" and "Soldier of My Heart." The former has words by Weatherly, and the latter has a tremendous melodic swing and a powerful climax, which, however, would be greatly impaired by omitting the high note and using the optional ones.

h h h

Boston Music Co., Boston

Ella Moore Grieve, "A Memory" (song, with violin obbligato).

This is a song of sentiment, richly harmonized in plain chords. The melody is expressive and easy.

h h h

Chappell & Co., New York

Joseph Carl Breil, "Love's Light World"; Wilton King, "Avourneen"; Moya, "The Song of Songs."

The waltz refrain to the first of these three songs gives it a catchy quality. The accompaniment has a counter-melody to a portion of it. Needless to say, the second is Irish, introducing such essentials as "Erin" and "Acushla!" It is a natural and easy-running song, distinctly pretty in parts. Moya's song is not a song, it is a "Chanson"; that is, it is a French composition. Opening with a faint reminiscence of Goring Thomas, the refrain is on a lower level. English words are subjoined.

Oliver Ditson Co., Boston

Arthur Bergh, "A Bed-Time Song"; Eugene Coyle, "Beneath de Willers in de Grass"; William Dichmont, "A Woman's Last Word"; Miner Walden Gallup, "You, My Dear"; Bruno Hahn, "I Will Exalt Thee"; Padre G. Martini, "The Joys of Love"; Cornelius Rubner, "When You Wander Through the Fields"; H. Reginald Spier, "Ultima Rosa"; G. Waring Stebbins, "Morning"; Hugo Wolf, "The Mouse-Trap"; Alfred Wooller, "If Thou Forget," "Hear, O God."

OCTAVO

(Mixed voices). Bellini, "Often, Dearest"; Bonheur, "The Red Scarf" (for schools); James M. McLaughlin, "What Is Life Without a Wife?" (Irish air, arr.); Muir, "The Maple Leaf for Ever"; George Nevin, "My Shepherd" (sacred); Hilton, "Drink To Me Only with Thine Eyes" (Old English, arr.); Will L. Thompson, "Come Where the Lilies Bloom"; Tosti, "Beauty's Eyes," "Good-bye" (arr. by Hilton) (women's voices); Arne, "The Lass with the Delicate Air" (2 parts); Behrend, "Daddy"; Grieg-Harris, "In Autumn" (Ase's Death); Margaret Hoberg, "Maid of the Mist"; Nathaniel Hyatt, "Dreams" (3 parts); Marshall-Loepke, "The Piper" (3 parts); George B. Nevin, "Il Granatello" (2 parts); Louis V. Saar, "Love's Yearning" (Portuguese folk song, arr.) (3 parts); W. L. Thompson, "Come Where the Lilies Bloom" (3 parts); Gaston Otey Wilkins, "The Birth of May" (Male voices). Arthur Bergh, "The Booga-Boo"; F. Boott, "Here's a Health to King Charles"; William Clifton, "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" (Old French, arr.) (3 parts); Rubinstein-Watson, "Voices of the Woods"; Sumner Salter, "Twelve Processionals" (all.).

Among these are some excellent songs—for example, Dichmont's "A Woman's Last Word," Gallup's "You, My Dear" (but why the ungrammatical notation of the last chord on the first page?), and Spier's "Ultima Rosa" (Last of the Roses). In Stebbins' "Morning" there is another false notation of the same chord as mentioned above, but with even less excuse (copy for high voice, measure 6). This firm uses some very attractive title pages.

Of the long list of Octavo music, it is only possible to mention a few. The arrangements of well-known and deservedly famous compositions, such as Tosti's "Good-bye," Behrend's "Daddy," as well as folk song melodies, will give these a wider sphere of use. One of the most important of the recent compositions is Margaret Hoberg's "Maid of the Mist," an excellent piece for women's voices, either 3 or 4 parts, with independent accompaniment. The "Twelve Processionals" for men's choirs include some of the standard hymn-tunes, arranged for male voices. The editions and engraving are all of the best, but the detestable third-space C-clef is used for tenor parts.

Gamble Hinged Music Co., Chicago

SONGS

Claire Guedy, "When Soft Winds Blow"; Jeanne M. Boyd, "In Italy."

The first of these two compositions is a melodious, light love song, associating affection for the fair one with stars, bluebells, etc. The words are in English and French.

The second, "In Italy," gets some "atmosphere" from an unmistakably Venetian scene on the cover and tells in spirited strains of the Arcadian joys of that southern clime. In the D-flat section the unwonted number of flats is apparently embarrassing to the composer, who prefers in one instance to use an F-sharp for the fourth degree of the scale.

C. W. Thompson & Co., Boston

Charles A. Chase, "There Would I Be," "Breath of the Spring" (duet), "White Stars Are Gleaming"; Horace Clark, "Spring Dawn"; J. Henry Francis, "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee"; Hallett Gilberte, "Spring Serenade"; Katherine A. Glen, "Entreaty,"

"The Bluebird"; Ruth H. Hamilton, "Love's Lullaby"; Grace Louise McQuesten, "If to Thy Heart I Were as Near"; Roy Mortimer Newman, "The Moon-boat"; Francis T. Smith, "Mammy Mine"; Everett Titcomb, "A Birthday," "Inspiration"; Marguerite Vose, "The Cross of Love"; William Warren, "Twilight"; F. Roscoe Webber, "You've Carried Off My Heart," "Lullaby."

Vocal duets are much less common contributions to the list of new publications than solos. "Breath of the Spring," for soprano and tenor or two sopranos, is a pretty addition to this class of composition. Gilberte's "Spring Serenade" is natural and effective, the accompaniment being not merely such but an adornment. The songs of Katherine A. Glen are attractive, and Everett Titcomb's "Inspiration" is really in keeping with its title, although there are one or two harmonic progressions we do not like (with G-sharps in the bass).

Clayton F. Summy Co., Chicago

PIANO

Stanley R. Avery, "Toccata," "Waltz"; Frank M. Bronson, "Italian Shepherd Boy," "Little Miss Gavotte," "Swing Song"; Frances Pitts Grant, "From the Long Ago"; Adelaide Heron, "Scherzando."

HERMAN

Formerly Baritone the
METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

DEVRIES

Residence 5433 Harper Av.

MRS. HERMAN

Associate
Vocal Instructor

Tel. Midway 8963

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago

Summer Term Begins June 30

The School for Serious Students

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN

STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4005

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE,
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICK

SCENES AND INCIDENTS

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood Paw Paw City, Mich.

30 Miles from Lake Paw Paw

An Ideal Spot in Which to Spend the Summer A Musicians Colony Now Forming

Lots for Sale at Low Prices on Time Payments Cottages at Reasonable Rental

Address LETTIE ESTEL BROWN, Paw Paw City, Mich.

SONGS

Mildred J. Hill, "Slumber Moon," "Thistledown"; Eleanor Smith, Hull House songs, "The Sweat Shop," "The Shadow Child," "The Land of the Noonday Night," "Prayer."

READING, WITH MUSIC

Violet Millis, "The Toime for Love."

OCTAVO

Charles E. Allum, "Light of the World"; Rossetter G. Cole, "The Shrine of Peace"; George B. Nevin, "Squirrel, You're a Saucy Fellow"; Nellie Poorman, "The Flag Goes By"; Ira B. Wilson, "Thou Wilt Keep Him."

The Avery pieces are good teaching material; the waltz has a pretty theme in the alto pitch and the toccata is very effective. These pieces, without being at all difficult, are thoroughly musicianly, a not very common combination.

The Bronson pieces are suited to the first and second grades and are really tuneful, while the "Scherzando" is a little more advanced—a bright and cheerful piece with some harmonic color, a strong rhythm, and good unison scale passage work.

"Slumber Moon" and "Thistledown" are both useful studio songs, the latter almost entirely on a tonic pedal. The "Hull House Songs" have an introduction written by Jane Addams. They deal with conditions in factories and other centers of labor seldom made the subjects of musical treatment, although we have poems such as Hood's "Song of the Shirt." It must be said that the composer has entered into the work with enthusiasm, the results being no mere perfunctory setting of the texts, but vivid interpretations of the same. There is consequently a realism about them which is harrowing at times, particularly in the first two, and to produce such an effect is possibly their special mission.

In the case of the reading with music, "The Toime for Love," the name of the author of the words, Arthur Stringer, seems to be given the place of prominence. With this class of work such a reversal of the general order may be proper or may not, according to the amount of artistry involved in the musical setting. The present example is a very short one, suitable for an encore piece, and the words, as will possibly be inferred, are in Irish dialect.

Of the octavo numbers, Allum's "Light of the World" is conceived on good sound lines and is churchly in character; unfortunately the engraver has shown some lack of illumination in the placing of accidental signs, thus making the voices and accompaniment at variance in several places. The words of "Lead, Kindly Light" are appended, with the note that the music is also adapted to them. This, we presume, should be taken in a figurative sense. Rossetter G. Cole's "The Shrine of Peace" has a harmonic quality which meets with our entire approval and, by that same token, may be less suited for a people's song than the words alone might suggest.

Wadhams-Moline Pub. Co., Chicago

Lily Wadhams-Moline, "Karlekens Vag" (Love's Way), (song).

Not only the Norwegian text, but the tonality and rhythm are "different." There is a Scandinavian ring about the song, which is in waltz time, with an independent melodic figure in the accompaniment, making a pretty embellishment of the voice part.

Quincy—The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, under direction of Emil Reinkendorff, gave a very successful spring concert at the Empire Theater in Quincy late in April.

Double Congratulations—Twins were born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Borroff on Tuesday night.

CLARENCE EDDY IN OAKLAND, CAL.

The following is taken from the Oakland Tribune:

Clarence Eddy, recognized by musical authorities as one of the world's greatest organists, will be an Oakland man for the remainder of this summer. Better than that, he will give Oaklanders the benefit of his remarkable talent, as he has been engaged as the organist at the new First Presbyterian Church at Twenty-sixth street and Broadway.

A new organ has recently been installed by the congregation of the new Broadway church. It is one of the largest and sweetest-toned on the Pacific coast. Eddy, after playing on the instrument, enthused over it, and readily agreed to remain here this summer.

Following a recital given at the famous St. Cecilia Academy in Rome, Eddy was made an honorary member, and among the encomiums he received was the following expression from the great composer, Sgambati: "He is one of the greatest organists of the present epoch."

Eddy is a native of Massachusetts, and began studying the pianoforte under Laura J. Billings, at the age of eleven. Other lessons were under J. Gilbert Wilson, two years later, after which he studied a year under Dudley Buck, in Hartford, Conn. He was for two years organist in a Montpelier, Vt., church, after which he went to Berlin, where he studied composition and the organ under August Haupt and the piano under Albert Loeschhorn. Then followed successful concert tours, and later Eddy became organist of the First Presbyterian Church of Chicago, remaining there for seventeen years.

In Chicago he gave 100 recitals, including a series of 100 programs, without a repetition. This made him famous. He was, after this, called upon to dedicate new organs in nearly every state of the Union. He has probably opened more new organs than any other living organist. He has been connected with every important exposition which has occurred since the one in Vienna in 1873.

BETHLEHEM, PA.

Dr. J. Fred Wolle, conductor of the Bach Choir, has announced the soloists for the Bach Festival to be given at Lehigh University on Friday, May 28, and Saturday, May 29. They are: Sopranos, Mrs. Mary Hissem De Moss, New York City; Mrs. Marie Zimmerman, Philadelphia; altos, Mrs. Gertrude May Stein Bailey, Bronxville, New York, Mrs. Florence Mulford Hunt, Newark, N. J.; tenor, Nicholas Dou-ty, Philadelphia; basses, Henry Scott, Philadelphia, Louis Kreidler, Chicago.

The accompaniment will be given by forty members of the Philadelphia Orchestra and by T. Edgar Shields, organist. As in former years the opening of each session will be announced by the playing of chorales by the Moravian Trombone Choir from the lofty tower of Packer Memorial Church.

Special interest is attached to the program of the first day, the St. John Passion, inasmuch as this great work had its first rendition in America at Bethlehem. It was sung by the old Bethlehem Choral Union in the spring of 1888 under the direction of Dr. Wolle, a dozen years before the organization of the present Bach choir. It was presented in the Bach Cycle in the Moravian Church in Bethlehem in April, 1905. The Passion sessions will begin at 4 p. m. and at 8 p. m.

As has been customary at the festivals in recent years, the second day will be devoted to the great Mass in B Minor. The hours for these renditions will be 2 p. m. and 5 p. m., thus permitting attendants from New York, Philadelphia, and other cities to reach home Saturday night.

Mendelssohn Conservatory—Rose Larson, a vocal pupil of Joel Mossberg, assisted by pupils of Carrie Scott and Hjalmar Rabe, gave a recital at the conservatory rooms in the McClurg Building.

Wanieck—Miss Alctta Tenold, a pupil of Kurt Wanieck in the American Conservatory, took first place in the commencement contest last Saturday, playing the MacDowell "D Minor Concerto."

May Festival—The annual May festival of the Cook County Sunday School Association, under direction of H. W. Fairbank, will take place at the Auditorium on May 28 (evening).

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

PLYMOUTH, IND.

The following comment is taken from the Plymouth Daily Republican:

When the history of the Mozart Club of Plymouth is written, truth will compel the narrator to say that on Thursday night, May 6, 1915, the climax was reached when Mendelssohn's Oratorio "Elijah" was given at the Presbyterian Church. In former years when "Creation," "The Messiah," "The Holy City," "Pinafore" and numerous other great works have been given, there was display of talent that was pleasing and of benefit to the listener, but when the tragic life story of Elijah, the great prophet of Israel, in a critical part of the history of that nation, is understood, and the real grandeur of the production of one of the greatest, if not the greatest, composer of music is fully comprehended, then the magnitude of the task of giving this oratorio can be best understood. The shelves of the music sellers contain no greater composition than "Elijah," and for a small choir in a small city like Plymouth to undertake to present it, is a task of no mean undertaking. How well it was given on this occasion is best understood by the one who best knows the story of Elijah, and the times in which he lived and the active part he played in his generation.

Miss Lillian Landwer, the soprano, possesses a beautiful voice, has it well in control, and captivated her audience from the first. She will be recognized as an artist in any company. Mrs. Stout is quite well known to Plymouth people, and her contralto voice seems fuller and grander each time she is heard. Her many friends here were delighted to hear her again, and will never grow tired of her splendid work. Professor Owens promised the club members that they would not be disappointed in Harlin Haines as a tenor, and his promise was made good in every part taken by Mr. Haines. He possesses a voice of they would get little out of such a production as "Elijah," but under the direction of a master the lessons are learned, and the recitations given. For ten years Professor H. W. Owens has been coming here to drill this club in chorus work, and to him is largely due the proficiency shown.

The following are the names of the club members who were in the concert Thursday evening: Julia Yockey, Carrie Boss, Miss Blue, Mrs. Underwood, Laura Boss, Ina Hoover, Jessie Logan, Blanche Firestone, Eulalie Beghtel, Mrs. Soice Nellie Seltenright, Irene Ulrich, Vera Sanner, Gladys Parks, Eulalia Twomey, Mrs. Hoham, Miss Scott, Gladys Hoover, Miss Bernice Smith, Kate Foltz, Mrs. Cullison, Miss Emenaker, Ralph Leonard, Ralph Kline, Luther Hoham, Mr. Knoblit, Clark Logan, Frank Brooke, Hubert Tanner, Edward Boberg, Clyde Ellis, Jesse Zehner and Ellis Maxey.

FESTIVAL AT TOPEKA, KANS.

Topeka, Kansas, May 12.—The most ambitious musical undertaking this city has originated was the Spring Musical Festival, which was held April 26-7. From an artistic standpoint it was a great success, although a slight loss financially. Large audiences attended the events, which were held in the Auditorium under the auspices of the Topeka Musical Art Society.

The festival consisted of three entertainments, two concerts by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, and the chief feature being the singing of "The Manzoni Requiem" by the chorus of 250 voices of the Musical Art Society, directed by Horace Whitehouse, and assisted by the Minneapolis orchestra and its soloists, Miss Marie Sundelius, soprano, Miss Alma Beck, contralto, Albert Lindquist, tenor, and Marion Green, baritone, who sang the leading solo parts. The singing of the chorus aroused great local enthusiasm, the ensemble effects being given with a precision and power unusual in amateur productions. The chorus had been carefully trained by Director Whitehouse, who is doing much toward making the capital of Kansas the center of musical culture in this section. He is a young musical leader of ability, and Conductor Emil Oberhoffer, of the Minneapolis orchestra, stated that the Art Society's work ranked with the best that he has met in his experience as a musical director. Mr. Whitehouse is dean of fine arts at Washburn College in this city, and it was a result of the singing of "The Messiah" last December by a chorus of local voices he trained that the Musical Art Society was permanently organized for the promotion of musical culture in Topeka. It has the financial backing of representative business men.

The concerts by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra proved triumphs for Conductor Oberhoffer and his noted artists. Mr. Oberhoffer is very popular in this city, because of previous visits with his organization.

NATURAL TONE QUALITY WINS UNSTINTED PRAISE

The perfect vocal art of Mary A. Kaufman, the young soprano, native of this city, who is achieving a national reputation as an American singer of the first rank, was demonstrated in the recital given in the high school auditorium last evening.

Miss Kaufman is one of the best known and most popular singers before the public at present and her professional engagements extend from coast to coast. She has appeared with the big orchestras, with famous musical organizations and in individual recitals all over the country and is everywhere received with enthusiasm.

This is because she unites a voice of natural beauty with a technic which is the result of long years of study. She is not only a singer, she is a musician.

Unlike many professional vocalists of reputation, Miss Kaufman is not overtrained. The natural quality of her voice has not been lost in a maze of musical technicalities. It is still fresh and full of brilliant color, and hence makes an appeal to the musician and layman alike.

Miss Kaufman's program last evening was arranged to display her virtuosity and versatility and was varied enough to suit every taste, beginning with the famous aria from "Traviata," including lyrics by Schumann, a poetic cycle, and ending with a dramatic exposition from "Madam Butterfly."

In Miss Kaufman's bravura numbers, especially in that by Verdi, her command of all the effects pos-

WARREN
PROCTOR
 CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
 419 Fine Arts Building. Phone Maywood 1615

sible to a colorature singer was evident, and the volume and range of her vocal organ shown. Indeed, she sings these big operatic numbers with all the éclat of the prima donnas who have made the roles celebrated and does so with a freshness and spontaneity lacking in many of the former.

In vivid contrast is her lyrical interpretation as in "A Spirit Flower," an enchanting song, and in the "Joy of the Morning," by Ware, which conjured up visions of a radiant landscape painted by some great artist.

The group of German songs was one of the best things of the evening, especially good being the Sinding and Dvorak numbers and the brief dramatic excerpt by Wolf.

It was Miss Kaufman's virtuosity, however, that was most musically interesting, her sustained pianissimo, her perfect phrasing, her nuances of tone, her fine artistic restraint, those spectacular of poetic passages presented with equal skill, her brilliant attack, the freedom of her control, if it can anachronistically so be put, her use of all the legitimate devices of the musical art to gain effects—this it was that elicited admiration and applause.

Miss Kaufman repeatedly bowed her acknowledgments and in two instances responded by a repetition of the encored number.—Richmond Palladium, Richmond, Ind.—(Advertisement.)

Cosmopolitan School—The Cosmopolitan School of Music gave a very attractive pupils' recital at the Auditorium Recital hall on last Saturday afternoon.

Mixer—Charles Mitchell Mixer will be violin soloist in a concert given by the Englewood Sunday Evening Club, Thursday evening, May 27.

WANTED: A teaching position for 2 days a week, in or out of Chicago, by an experienced teacher and one of the most prominent Church, Oratorio and Recital singers (tenor) in Chicago. Absolute control—freedom of vocal method, is the key-note of his success. Gentlemanly habits and character guaranteed.

Address "A. B. C."

MUSIC NEWS

rare pitch, and it is a pleasure to listen to him. The difficult tenor parts were perfectly given. While the other soloists were applauded for their good work, they were not in the least jealous when Plymouth gave Carl Brown the lion's share of their attention. They each understood that he really started his work in Plymouth and with the Mozart Club, and they each also grasp the idea that Carl Brown is one of the greatest baritones in the country, hence they were not surprised that evidence was clear that the favorite was the young man who came over from Hamlet, took lessons under Professor Owens, sang in the choruses with the Mozart Club, and has now attained a position in the front rank of baritone soloists of the time.

Behind the singers, seated at the pipe organ, was Palmer Christian, and his performance on this occasion demonstrated his ability to keep with and sustain with the instrument, both soloist and chorus. His work was fully appreciated, and those who listened will remember long afterwards that on this occasion a gifted and talented organist visited this city in the person of Palmer Christian.

The Mozart Club was not organized years ago as a money making affair, but as a company of ladies who wished to improve in music themselves, and at the same time uplift the standard in our city. Year by year they have labored, and given various works, thus getting a knowledge of the compositions of the best there is in the world, and giving the people an opportunity to hear to what degree of success they have attained. It will be understood that unaided

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
 OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
 5749 WOODLAWN AV.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANISTE
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN Violinists
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

THE MUSICAL QUARTERLY

A magazine edited by O. G. Sonneck. Three dollars per annum. (New York; G. Schirmer.)

A new magazine, launched by the music publishing house of George Schirmer, bears such indications of high ideals, first-class style and irreproachable mechanical finish that we sincerely hope it may be prosperous and long-lived. Having assumed with a distinctly masterful air the task of filling a vacancy that really existed in this country for a purely literary periodical devoted to musical topics, and having engaged the editorial services of Mr. O. G. Sonneck, chief of the Music Division of the Library of Congress, there seems great probability of this hope being realized.

A copy of the second issue, that for April, being now before us, we can testify to the excellence and authoritative nature of its contents. Among the most notable articles are "German Opera Since Wagner," by Edgar Istel of Berlin; "Noises, Smells and Colors," by John F. Runciman of London; "Tower Music of Belgium and Holland," by William Gorham Rice; "The Study of Indian Music," by Frances Densmore, and "Translating to Music," by Sigmund Spaeth. The essay on German opera gives a very thorough and interesting resume of the subject, with critical valuations by an undoubted connoisseur. The fine English of the translation is by Janet Wylie. Runciman's "Noises, Smells and Colors" touches upon a subject which has often occurred to minds of artists, but has never been reduced to any exact systematic basis—the interchangeability, as media of expression, of the different natural phenomena which appeal directly to the feelings. Efforts to make some kind of color organ, seeing that colors as well as sounds are produced by vibration, have long been before the public. The latest development, in the addition of odors in a composite sense—effect advocated by Scriabine, is the chief theme of Mr. Runciman's entertaining article, occasion being taken to make sundry pertinent remarks as to the modern trend in general of music. He propounds the thesis that the typical ultramodern composer is a highly cultivated technician without the inner, spiritual motive power of the older masters. This idea is aptly expressed thus: "To have at command the means of saying a new thing and to have the desire to say it, and yet to have nothing new to say—how could mortal be more unhappily endowed or have a sadder burden or fate laid upon him!" It is shown that there can be no fixed relation between sounds and odors, as the latter have purely individual effects upon us by association and no definite ratios of relations as have sounds. The tone-color-perfume idea is characterized as a mere striving after sensational effect, in keeping with the "desire to be original, startling, astonishing, at all costs," which "is a symptom common to all the arts at the present day." The author says, "Their latest step is in logical succession to their first: to add colors and smells to their noises is what we might have expected."

Lack of space forbids detailed mention of the remaining articles referred to, or the half dozen others in the 150-page magazine. Beautiful half-tone illustrations accompany the treatise on tower music in Europe, and a statistical summary as to the profession of music in the United States, by Henry J. Harris, has a couple of maps showing the distribution of musicians and teachers throughout the union. It may be noted that with regard to the number of musicians in the principal cities, the first three stand in the same order as they do in population, New York, with 15,146; Chicago, with 6,683, and Philadelphia, with 3,961. St. Louis (with 1,986) is displaced from the fourth position on the list by Boston, with 2,614. In proportion to population, Los Angeles heads the entire list, with 45.8 per 10,000. New York is twelfth and Chicago sixteenth on this basis of calculation.

It may be seen that the Musical Quarterly contains entertainment, instruction and information of an encyclopedic nature. It cannot fail to be recognized as a standard literary organ of the musical world.

H. J. W.

MISS LEGINSKA'S RECITAL SECOND APPEARANCE OF THE PIANIST THIS SEASON

New York press comment:

Miss Ethel Leginska, pianist, gave a second recital last evening, this time in Carnegie Hall, which was singularly well filled with auditors. Miss Leginska revived the ancient fable about the theme of this fugue, according to which it was suggested to the composer by his favorite cat—not any strange or interloping cat—running over the piano keys.

Nevertheless, she played the fugue charmingly, with clear and delicate enunciation of its counterpoint, and so she did the familiar "Pastorale in E Minor," as beautified by Tausig, and Daquin's quaint little piece of program music, "Le Coucou." Besides MacDowell's "Sonata" she played Schumann's youthful and romantic one in G Minor; and there were also pieces by Rameau, Borodin, Rubinstein, Liszt, Leschetizky, and Schulz-Evler. Miss Leginska has not only delicacy but abundant power where it is needed, and a feeling for fine tone in both, as well as a well-developed sense of rhythm. Her playing is musical and interesting.—New York Times, March 20.

BOYISH LOOKING MISS LEGINSKA PLAYS PIANO MOST DAINTILY. ENGLISH PIANIST, WITH HAIR SHORT AND WEARING MANNISH LOOKING CLOTHES, GIVES FIFTH RECITAL HERE, AND PLAYING IS ALWAYS IMPRESSIVE.

Miss Ethel Leginska, English pianist, last night gave her fifth New York recital since she began her public career here two seasons ago. It was the first to take place in Carnegie Hall, and the audience was by far the largest that has listened to a Leginska recital in this city. Her career here has been of a romantic trend. Coming to this country a few years ago hardly more than a child, she accepted her first engagement playing the piano between acts at a theater. Her first recital in Aeolian Hall attracted only a few music lovers, mostly friends and reporters.

Recently playing with the Symphony Society at her first symphony orchestra engagements she aroused enthusiasm by her playing of a Liszt "Concerto." Last night the same enthusiasm was apparent.

With exquisite daintiness she played a group of Scarlatti and Rameau pieces. Her finger technique, her command of many varied colorings of tone, and above all, her sense of dramatic values are exceptional. Her playing is impressive.

Clad in a masculine costume of black, and with her hair cut short, she looked almost like a boy seated at the piano on the dimly lighted stage.—New York Herald, March 20.—(Advertisement.)

Derdiger—Mrs. Ella Jane Derdiger, at whose studio is taught all branches of vocal art, has removed to 512 Kimball Hall.

Aberdeen—The annual festival at Aberdeen, S. D., will be given on May 29 and 31 and June 1.

Music News

LUELLA CHILSON-OHRMAN

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

43rd Year will open September 21, 1915

THE HEWETT BUREAU

KATE JORDON HEWETT
Musical and Dramatic

A clearing house for Artists and those who seek them.

Employers Teachers
Professional Interpreters

627 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Illinois
Phone Wabash 5189

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
Chicago's most attractive hall, devoted exclusively to concerts, recitals and other high-class entertainments. Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,
HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, MAY 28, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly subscribers should notify the office promptly. Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company, Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application. Changes in advertisements must be ordered one week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz School of Languages,
Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, May 28

No. 22

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Music News has been asked several times recently to comment on alleged irregularities in music schools and studios and in one letter received by us very definite charges were made against certain teachers who maintain studios in an eastern city.

Ordinarily Music News does not think the subject one that should be discussed in public print; nor do we believe there is much just cause for complaint, especially in Chicago.

But, as a matter of fact, there should not be any such cause and those schools and studios which safeguard themselves from suspicion are wise in their generation.

The rule followed at Valparaiso University would be a very wise one for all schools.

In the Music Building in the Indiana city there are upward of 65 teaching and practice rooms.

These all have glass doors and anyone who is passing along the halls can see exactly what is going on within the rooms.

It is an encouraging sight to pass along and note the rows and rows of young students attending strictly to the business which has brought them to the school.

■ ■ ■

The writer of the booklet sent out as a forerunner to the Ann Arbor Festival says that the future of music in America is "full of promise" and cites, among other favorable items, the "naturalization of opera" in this country. We wonder where the information was gleaned on which this statement was made.

Music in general is certainly growing rapidly in America, but it is not becoming "naturalized" as fast as it should either in the operatic or any other field.

Opera in English failed dismally in both New York and Chicago the past season, in spite of the fact that it was carefully and sympathetically given and should have had the support of both the patriotic and artistic factors of the country.

The directors of both the Metropolitan Company in New York and the Chicago Grand Opera Company in this city have been in their offices throughout the winter and have heard (literally) hundreds of the best young American voices, by request.

In Chicago, at least, the director has attended several operatic performances given

Some of your griefs you have cured,
And the sharpest you have survived;
But what torments of pain you've endured
From the evils that never arrived.

—French Proverb

by local schools and has seen the promising students in actual performances.

As a result of this a number of young American singers have been engaged for the ensuing season at salaries ranging from $35 to $100 per week, the lower figure, however, being the one most often offered.

Now—both the New York and the Chicago directors have gone to Europe and are there busily engaged in "securing" singers at prices ranging from $100 to $1,000 A

PERFORMANCE—many of these artists being as yet absolutely unknown in this country.

One would have to be an optimist indeed to see in all this any great amount of "naturalization of opera" in America.

■ ■ ■

"When I walk across the University campus in the morning and see the throngs of eager youths hurrying to their various classes, I always feel it a great responsibility and privilege that I am part of such a vast educational scheme," said one of the teachers in the school of music at Ann Arbor last Saturday.

And with an attendance of six thousand students to consider it is indeed a great responsibility. To provide the proper music pabulum for this throng is something of a problem also, but the University Musical Society has solved it wonderfully, and not only provides a system of concerts not excelled in America, but has also evolved for them a clientele of remarkable caliber and appreciativeness.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, herself a tremendous favorite at Ann Arbor, has more than once called the beautiful Michigan city "The Bayreuth of America."

■ ■ ■

One of the effects shown by the American worship of foreigners is a strange difference in standards as between American singers and those from abroad. Of the former we exact the most difficult of attainments; from the latter we graciously receive whatever they choose to give.

At the Ann Arbor festival there were several young American singers whose work was at a splendid degree of excellence, and in the case of the foreigners who appeared, although there was fine voice in evidence, there was plenty of ground for criticism.

As a comparison, take the cases of Miss Margaret Keyes and Sig. Giovanni Martinelli.

Miss Keyes on Friday sang one of the greatest German arias with superb pronunciation and enunciation of text, and for encore gave a number from French opera beautifully, and with equal success from

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 | Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Engaged for Chicago Grand Opera Co.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

George Francis Kortzenborn
Concert BARITONE Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1935

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert Pupils Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

the linguistic standpoint. On Saturday she sang an important work in Latin text, and for encore gave an English song in which her treatment of the text was so extremely good as to be an invaluable object lesson to every student that heard it.

Sig. Martinelli, however, sang nothing but Italian opera arias and songs, and he sang them all alike—with wonderful voice, but slight evidence of great musicianship.

The probabilities are that his acquirements are strictly limited to his native language.

And yet we pay the foreigners many times over what we pay our own singers.

CADMAN TO WRITE THE FEDERATION REPORT FOR MUSIC NEWS

Music News is very much pleased to announce that it has made a special arrangement with the distinguished composer, Mr. Charles Wakefield Cadman, whereby he will write a complete review of the June meeting of the N. F. M. C. at Los Angeles and also of the concurrent congress for the encouragement of American composers.

KUPPIN AND SHYNMAN PUPILS HEARD IN RECITAL

The Kuppin Vocal School presented a number of students in recital at 516 Fine Arts Building on Thursday evening, assisted by piano pupils of Mr. A. S. Shynman. A large and appreciative audience was in attendance.

Mr. Louis Kuppin, director of the school which bears his name, has made wonderful strides since entering the musical activities of Chicago, both as a singer and teacher. His training and experience both in America and abroad has been extensive, and his pupils are showing in a broad measure the advantage of his advice in the vocal art. Each one that appeared on Thursday night sang with considerable musical feeling and a free, open and well-controlled flow to tone volume.

Mrs. Grace Grueneberg was on the program for two sets of songs, and gave an all-around good account of herself, as did Mr. George Schneider, who made two appearances. Miss Anna Tomaschek and Miss Mindel Redmond were also heard in well-chosen numbers. To bring the recital to a brilliant climax Mr. Kuppin sang numbers by Cadman and Leoncavallo with great artistry. His voice is of a brilliant dramatic quality and produced with unusual freedom. The audience would not let up in its applause until Mr. Kuppin granted an encore.

Mr. W. N. Testa also pleased immensely by singing the "Prologue" from "Pagliacci." Master Ely Markus and Miss Florence Silbert were the pupils of Mr. Shynman who took part in the program, and their playing disclosed high talent on their part, and very good training on the part of their teacher.

Mr. Shynman brought a welcome touch to the enjoyment of the evening by playing the "March Hongroise," Schubert-Liszt, in a brilliant and masterful style. He is a splendid musician and is well known as one of the best accompanists in the city.

H. M. B.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The public contests of the vocal and violin departments of the American Conservatory are taking place during the present week at Kimball Hall.

The Walton Pyre School of Expression, affiliated with the American Conservatory, will give a public performance of the four-act play, "A Single Man," a comedy by Hubert Henry Davies, at Central Music Hall, 24 E. Van Buren street, Tuesday, June 8. This department has experienced a remarkable development through the efficient management of Walton Pyre, its director.

The annual commencement concert and exercises of the American Conservatory will take place Thursday evening, June 17, at the Auditorium.

HELEN BRIGHT-BENGEL

The Chicago contralto, Helen Bright-Bengel, has been much in demand during the past winter as substitute for choir work ever since it became known she had resigned from her old position. On May 2-9-16 she sang at the First Congregational church of Oak Park. On May 10 she appeared with the Chicago Concert Quartet at the La Salle Hotel, and at the Pullman Men's Club.

Wright—Twenty-six pupils of the piano class of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Wright, will give a program at the Garfield Park refectory on Saturday evening, May 29.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT

PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

DEWITT DURGIN LASH
TENOR
420 Fine Arts Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamar

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

May Festival at Ann Arbor

Reviewed by CHARLES E. WATT

ALBERT A. STANLEY

Dean of the School of Music, Conductor of the May Festivals

It is almost a tradition in Ann Arbor that cold, rainy weather shall accompany the annual May Festival and this year opened in quite the usual style on Wednesday evening.

Music News found it impossible to attend the first concert and must content itself with the following quotation from the Ann Arbor Daily Times-News:

An audience in perfectly good humor with itself and its surroundings assembled last evening to greet the artists scheduled for the initial number of the festival series, a fact that contributed in no small part to the satisfaction experienced in the concert itself.

However, a slightly warning note was struck at the very beginning of the program, for the moment suggesting other thoughts than the pleasant anticipations aroused by the bright light and holiday throngs. At peace though we are, the distant rumblings of the European war were echoed in the concert last evening, when the great crowd that filled Hill Auditorium, even to the gallery, arose and sang "America." When other features of the present May Festival have been long forgotten, that fact will be recalled as a sign of the perplexing times in which it was given.

In the varied program, given last evening at Hill Auditorium in the opening concert of the twenty-second annual May Festival, everyone present in the large audience must have found something to his taste, although the concert, as a whole, was not a matter for particular enthusiasm.

In Gliere's symphonic poem, "The Sirens," the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Frederick Stock, came very near to winning a triumph. The performance was agreeably reminiscent of "The Swan of Tuonela," rendered so acceptably by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in the pre-festival series. The portion of the composition representing "The Sea" seemed as marvelous a piece of tone-painting as one could imagine, apparently exhausting the musical possibilities of depicting so difficult a subject as the sea in its normal state of vast restlessness, until the passages, following the crashing of the ship upon the rocks, showed the sea again in its swirling return to its former monotonous motion. "The Song of the Sirens," above the continual surge of the sea, ended most convincingly in "The Shipwreck."

The solos by Madame Margarete Ober and Clarence Whitehill, both of the Metropolitan Opera Company, would have been much improved, if the orchestra had been less heavy. Neither singer was heard to the best advantage, as both deserved to be. Madame Ober, however, won great applause in her second number from Meyerbeer's "The Prophet," in which she gave an idea of her ability as an operatic singer with a dramatic character to portray. As an encore she sang "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delila."

Mr. Whitehill gave "The Evening Star" from "Tannhauser" as an encore after his first number, from Massenet's "Thais." Whenever the accompaniment was reduced sufficiently in volume, by the nature of the composition, his voice carried well, with fine expression, although it is not powerful and dramatic. However, his rendering of "Wotan's Farewell" and "Magic Fire Scene" from "Die Walkure" was one of the poetic moments of the concert, and made an impressive close for an enjoyable program.

□ □ □

The Second Concert

The rainy condition continued on Thursday evening, but in spite of this, Hill Auditorium, seating five thousand people, was almost entirely filled and the scene both outside and inside the building was one of great gayety and brilliance, although the audience was rather of the student and music dilettante order than of the society genre.

There was no great sartorial display, but there was a tense musical interest and a very quick and discriminative acceptance of every good point made by the artists of the evening.

First of these must be named Theodore Harrison, now at the head of the vocal department of the University School of Music and who at this time sang the elaborate baritone score in "The New Life," by Wolf-Ferrari.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC, MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

THE STAGE, HILL AUDITORIUM

When this work was given in Chicago a famous baritone of the Chicago Grand Opera Company was expounder of the role and though he gained much applause for his work it must be said at once that he was entirely outclassed by Mr. Harrison, who seemed to have sensed the beauty of the part to its full and to have thoroughly saturated himself with its exquisite music.

Exalted in the extreme is the text of this work (drawn from Dante's "La Vita Nuova") and wholly delightful, even if almost monochromatic is the musical setting.

Mr. Harrison brought to his task a thoroughly adequate vocal equipment and a musical intelligence far beyond the ordinary.

Suave, pointed and resonant was his voice quality—intense and beautiful, just as the impassioned words demanded, and reaching sane and logical climaxes at the exactly fit and proper moments.

The color too, a very definite and peculiar one, was admirably conserved. A languorous charm was inherent to his work in all the earlier passages of the cantata and a deeply intense grief permeated the closing passages.

The first mood reached its climax in "Within My Lady's Eyes," while the "Weary, So Weary of Infinite Sighing" was the very epitome of anguish.

Mr. Albert A. Stanley, veteran conductor and long time dean of the University School of Music, showed his perfect grasp on the entire situation.

The Choral Union was amenable to his lightest wish, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra was as liquid metal in his hands, to be formed and amalgamated at his will, and all the extra forces—the Boys' Chorus of St. Andrew's and the Congregational church choirs, Mrs. Minnie Davis-Sherrill, pianist, and Earl Victor Moore, organist, were all of them beautifully fitted parts in a perfectly planned and polished mosaic.

The following comment is copied from the Detroit Free Press for which it was written by Carlton S. Shier:

To speak or write in adequate phrase of the beauties which shine from the pages of the score of "La Vita Nuova" is to lay one's self open to the charge of extravagance and exaggeration. The work is so great in its conception, so illuminating in its delineation of Dante's passion for, and adoration of his Lady Beatrice that it stands alone among works of its form and genre. Dante in his text gained a rarefied height of worship and devotion, wholly remote from the thought and life of this every-day world,

INTERIOR OF HILL AUDITORIUM LOOKING FROM STAGE

ADA GRACE JOHNSON

and which only a passion-mad genius could have crystallized into words.

Wolf-Ferrari in his turn illumined this poem with a score that could have been born in the brain of no other than a second genius in complete understanding with the mood of his librettist. "La Vita Nuova" waited centuries for its musical setting, but the world is the richer for the delay. If the subject treated is a great and difficult one, the development is in every way worthy of it, and, which has wrought the more mightily, the poet or the composer, it would be difficult to decide.

In achieving his ends, Wolf-Ferrari withheld his hand from no device ingenuity and imagination placed within his reach. He restored the long banished pianoforte to the orchestra, he employed the kettle drums as accompaniments to the harp. He introduced original and unexpected alterations of time and cadence. He made a score as mobile in its technical humors as the bow work of a virtuoso violinist and he crystallized a mood so elevated that it is not to be approached except with reverence. The maintenance of a single dominating mood is extraordinary, and yet scarcely more extraordinary than the creation of mood within mood. There are passages of great melodic beauty such as the superb aria, "So Pure and Holy Seems My Lady," and the caressingly weird "Dance of the Angels." There is vivid and startling painting in tone, particularly throughout the final section of the cantata, beginning with a haunting orchestral description of the death of Beatrice in which the sense of the poet's adoration persists like a permeating atmosphere that modifies the harshness of the tragedy while deepening the sense of the solemnity of the catastrophe.

The leading role fell this evening to Mr. Harrison, who sang understandingly and with a fine sense of the spirit of the text. Mr. Harrison's voice is full and clear, and it is thoroughly adequate and satisfying. Miss Kline's effort was practically limited to a single solo which she rendered satisfactorily.

The work of the chorus was a credit to May festival standards and traditions, and to its conductor, Professor Stanley, who led his singers successfully through some of the most difficult choral work they ever are likely to be called upon to interpret. If "La Vita Nuova" is an exceptional creation, the interpretation of it this evening was also exceptional.

The second half of the program was devoted to songs by Frieda Hempel in alternation with the orchestra, under direction of Mr. Frederick Stock.

Miss Hempel made a great popular success, but displayed a curious mixture of charm and vocal inadequacies.

In an arrangement of "The Blue Danube Waltzes," which for florid display will rival the famous Schulz-Evler arrangement for piano, she was superb, giving a glittering display of coloratura virtuosity which brought an ovation and necessitated a repetition.

On the other hand she showed a very distinct inclination to sing flat in a Mozart "Lullaby" and her enunciation of English text was inexcusably slovenly. In the "Waltz" no one could tell even in what language she sang—but, in the vocal joy of it, no one cared.

These were both encore numbers—her program schedule calling for the "Queen of the Night" aria from Mozart's "Magic Flute" and "Ernani Involami" from Verdi's "Ernani"—numbers which she sang with vitality and charm even if with nothing at all in the way of musical thought or feeling.

The orchestra played the cunning "Der Schauspieler" (Mozart) with clarity and repeated Brahms' ponderous idea of an amalgamation of various student tunes in his "Academic Festival Overture," with force. The best playing and the best number was "On the Shores of Sorrento" (Strauss), of which Mr. Stanley says in the elaborate program notes:

It is interesting to view the South as it appealed to the imagination of this particular composer, who seems to have little sympathy with the simpler side of life—if we may judge from the general tenor of his great orchestral works. It will be observed that this excerpt from the Symphonic Fantasia, Op. 16—bearing the title "Italy,"—is a somewhat rhapsodical, impressionistic sketch. In it we find no trace of the super-strenuous composer of the "Sinfonia Domestica," or "Helden-leben." We may safely assume that his impressions of the ever-beautiful Sorrento, "Lying high above the waters," were not disturbed by visions of the chromatically dissonant and morally decadent Salome, the gory Elektra, nor any of the depraved and unpleasant characters with whom he has consorted of late in his operas.

The Third Concert

The overture to "Leonore" (No. 3) provided the agreeable opening of the Friday afternoon concert and the highest point of musical authority in the whole festival was reached in the Brahms "Symphony No. 1, C Minor," with which it closed, both being played admirably by the orchestra.

The attitude of the audience toward the "Symphony" was characteristically reverent and proved anew the fact that Ann Arbor has a wonderfully developed music population.

Two soloists were introduced, Margaret Keyes, a young American contralto, and

CHARLES A. SINK

Business Manager University School of Music, the Choral Union and the May Festivals

Harold Bauer, the well known foreign pianist. It is a great compliment to Miss Keyes and a very truthful one, to say that she made Mr. Bauer look to his laurels, for the favor and the applause was very evenly divided between the two artists.

Miss Keyes has that rare voice, a contralto which is evenly developed from one end of her range to the other. All her tones are produced exactly alike and all are of wonderful beauty and sweetness.

Power she has when necessary, and a splendidly developed stock of possibilities, technical and interpretative, but her graciousness of manner and the naturally beautiful quality of her voice attract first attention and hold for her undiminished appreciation.

"Penelope Weaving a Garment," from Bruch's "Odysseus," provided her an opportunity for the display of virtuoso powers as well as gracious charm and she excelled in both items.

For encore she gave a piquant reading of the Mignon "Gavotte" (Thomas), which created a sensation.

MONICA GRAHAM
Columbia School of Music
STULTS
SOPRANO
BASS
WALTER ALLEN
303 KIMBALL HALL

The first of these numbers was done in German and the second in French—both being perfect, they served to still further accent Miss Keyes' versatility. The case of Mr. Harold Bauer proves that the war apprehensions were not wholly without foundation, for whereas he was once so remote in his place of residence and his attitude toward America (an attitude much liked in this country, by the by) he is now no longer so far away and so inaccessible, therefore his playing is not so eagerly followed perhaps. His excessive use of rubato is considered somewhat illogical and his mannerisms absurd instead of seeming the acme of a foreign style.

MARGARET KEYES

However, he was much liked at Ann Arbor and his playing of the Schumann "Concerto" was a piece of work well worthy the attention of the enormous audience which heard it, an audience made up very largely of piano students evidently, who applauded vigorously, if a bit indiscriminately, and would only cease when the piano was carted away from the stage.

This piano, by the way, was a Mason and Hamlin, and it was a triumph of the piano maker's art. For encore Mr. Bauer gave a very refined reading of the well worn "D Flat Etude," by Liszt.

Fourth Concert

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra has played in Ann Arbor fifty-seven times—this is no parody on the Heinz "57 varieties," but is actual truth as set forth in the excellent program book of the festival.

Consequently Ann Arbor knows the orchestra very thoroughly and also loves it devotedly.

At every concert except one this year the orchestra has solo appearances and after each one Mr. Stock is compelled to bow as many times as a prima donna would do.

At the Friday evening concert the audience actually wanted to encore the Dvorak "Largo" from the "New World" symphony, and it is no wonder that this was so because the number was played superbly.

DeLius' "Life's Dance" was just a shade too obscure for the festival audience, but Goldmark's "In Spring Time," Sinigaglia's

"Suite Piemontesi" and the Casella "Italia" (rhapsody) all three proved to be great favorites.

Mr. Stanley's program notes are so all-illuminating that we will presume to repeat here what he has said of these three compositions:

Hans Sachs, in Die Meistersinger, says, substantially as follows: "If in youth, when the heart is young and life is in its springtime we sing—that is nature! If, after the snows of many winters have silvered our hair, and grief and disappointment have laid their burdens on our souls, we sing—that is art."

"In Spring Time," is a title full of appeal, when we realize it was written when Goldmark was on the verge of the "three score years and ten" allotted to man; that within the next ten years he produced two operas, and that he sang to the end. Max Bruch—who is eight years Goldmark's junior—recently produced a new violin concerto which is said to be fully equal to his perennially beautiful "G Minor." Youth is a relative term after all and cannot be estimated by years, for, while these two composers in their declining years have produced music full of the elasticity and buoyancy of youth, many of our younger men are writing music which is prematurely old and so lacking in the virile qualities that compel attention that they are obliged to invoke the aid of poetry, sensationalism, and curiosity to advertise their wares.

As to the overture on our program, it is in no sense an epoch-making work, but it is permeated with the unique qualities of its creator's art, and leads along pleasant and restful paths. In view of the composer's recent passing it acquires new meaning and constitutes our tribute to his memory.

THEODORE HARRISON

Possibly the most cheering fact in connection with modern Italian music is again emphasized by Sinigaglia's record, for he, like Sgambati and Enrico Bossi, in reality to a greater degree than the latter, has devoted himself to forms so remote from the stage that many of his countrymen look upon such composers as he as occupying interstellar spaces. We may not question the sincerity of such a feeling, but it is certainly a cause for congratulation that so many are now found who are not seduced by the footlights.

Many years ago our festival program included a marvelously effective concert etude for strings from his pen, and a charming overture—"Le Baruffe Chiozzotte"—was heard in the same environment in 1910. The suite "Piemontesi" will be found no less interesting, although it moves on broader lines. The list of his works for string quartet—violin solo—and orchestra, while not large, removes him from the charge of idleness and sustains the contention that he is a very conscientious and careful worker. "Haste makes waste" in composition as well as in other fields—and with overproduction comes too frequently imputations of superficiality.

The titles of the excerpts given this evening show that he, like the majority of successful modern composers, finds inspiration in the life and activity of the folk. The "Rustic Dance"—D major—allegro 2-4 time—is full of rhythmical verve and fitting melody, while the "Carnival" is as kaleidoscopic as the jolly event it so admirably portrays. There are many hints of folk-song motives in this number, as well as remembrances of themes heard in a previous movement. Any formal analysis is so superfluous that it will not be entered upon.

Turin appears to have come into its own in the matter of composers, for singularly enough, two appear this evening on the same program. Almost nothing regarding Casella is available. This seems strange in the case of a composer who has produced significant works in the fields of symphonic and chamber music. It may be that his fame as a pianist has diverted attention from his more serious claims upon the world.

The work on our program was first produced April 23, 1910, at the Salle Gaveau, Paris. On the score appears the following: "The composer has endeavored to picture musically—but without any 'program' whatever—Sicilian and Neapolitan life; the first, tragic, superstitious, passionate as it is found under the scorching southern sun or in the inferno of the sulphur mines; the second the turbulent, careless, frenetic existence which may be lived amid the magic of the Gulf of Naples."

The expression marks—lento; grave; tragico; con molto fantasia; lamentoso; lento assai; allegretto grazioso; piu mosso; allegro molto vivace; assai vivace con brio; give an inkling of the contents of the work. The range of emotion so clearly set forth above may be the more concretely stated by considering that they represent a ferocious lover, who sings a theme from the province of Caltanissetta to an unresponsive and shrewish mistress; the song of the sulphur-mine workers in the same province; a Good Friday hymn; song of the female workers in the marble quarries of Catina; and a glowing exploitation of three Neapolitan songs "Funiculi-Funicula" (Denza), "Lariula" (Mario Costa) and a fragment of "A Maredriare" (Tosti). It is to be hoped that no one will object to the materials employed in the finale, for any one who has lived in Italy, specifically Naples, knows how dear they are to the common people. Nothing that is taken to the hearts of the folk can be dismissed with a sneer.

John McCormack was announced as the particular star of this concert and his illness caused some dismay when it was first announced, but the management was more than equal to the emergency and in the engagement of Giovanni Martinelli made the huge audience very promptly forget the Irish tenor. In fact, the young Italian has a much better voice than the much vaunted McCormack ever had, even at his best.

Mr. Martinelli sang the stock arias from

LAMBERT MURPHY

"Tosca," "La Boheme," "Aida," and "Rigoletto," as well as two small songs with piano, the last being the really best number he gave. It was quiet and musical and showed his voice to be sweet and flexible.

The arias were nothing more than displays of virtuosity and flaming passion, having but slight artistic finish and not even so much shading as should be expected, though to be fair to Mr. Martinelli it must be said that when he did attempt a

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO

Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }

Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

pianissimo in the "Boheme" aria he was promptly covered up by the orchestra.

This young singer, who is making New York forget Caruso, has a most ingratiating personality and his voice is like a living fire.

He needs much study as yet, however, and it is evident that his continual fortissimo work is trying on his voice for, on Friday evening, his last number had not the clarity and purity of his first.

h h h

Mr. Stanley in Rehearsal

On Saturday morning there was a full rehearsal of "The Children's Crusade," when the fine work of Mr. Stanley at the baton could be observed at leisure.

Mr. Stanley is adored in Ann Arbor and the Choral Union as well as the Children's Chorus, from the public schools and the churches, was absolutely obedient to his artistic will.

He gave a splendid exhibition of what a fine musician and cultured man can do with a mass of musical possibilities.

He is, first of all, kind and genial, but he is just as certainly and inflexibly rigid in his demands and a rehearsal under his baton becomes therefore both a joy and an education.

h h h

The Fifth Concert

The Saturday afternoon concert was devoted largely to an exposition of the splendid organ in Hill Auditorium, one of the famous instruments of the country.

LEONORA ALLEN

It was built originally for the Chicago World's Fair and at that time was the last word in organ construction.

After the fair it was bought for the Ann Arbor festivals by the University Musical

Society and placed in the hall formerly used for them.

Three years ago it was removed to the new auditorium and rebuilt at an additional cost of about twenty thousand dollars, and it stands today a model of convenience, power and effectiveness.

Mr. Earl V. Moore is the regular organist, and presided with authority at the choral concerts, but for the Saturday recital Mr. Llewellyn L. Renwick was chosen.

Mr. Renwick has been a resident of Detroit for eight years and is organist of the North Congregational Church in that city.

He is a concert organist of much style and power and received enthusiastic endorsement on Saturday afternoon, playing but one encore, however, his own very charming "Dreams," still in manuscript.

OLIVE KLINE

His greater work of the program was the "Sonata No. 6," by Filippo Capocci, a beautifully conceived and extremely well played composition.

A "Praeludium" (Lendvai) and "Fuga Cromatica (Liadow) gave an aspect of solidity to the opening group, Bairstow's "Evening Song" was delightful and a "Pavane," by Bernard Johnson, both unique and beautiful.

The closing group exploited Lemarc pleasantly and Faulke forcefully while Mac Farlane in his "Scherzo" was decidedly piquant and in his "Evening Bells" the splendid chimes were used to great advantage. Mr. Renwick is very familiar with the Ann Arbor organ and his registrations therefore were models of effectiveness.

Miss Margaret Keyes was the first singer of the afternoon and her rendition of the Bizet "Agnus Dei" was a model of excellence.

She was accompanied by organ and violin and so great was the effect produced that the ovation she received was one of the really great ones of the festival.

For encore (twice repeated) she sang "Long Ago" with such melting beauty as to constitute it an immense popular favorite.

FRIEDA HEMPEL

The second singer was Theodore Harrison, who in the brief year he has been director of the vocal department of the University School of Music, has made himself very popular in Ann Arbor.

Many artists study with him and his influence throughout is of and for the best.

On Saturday he gave "Lungi" (Gallione), which is suave and legato; "Che Fiero Costume" (Legrenzi), a genuine Buffo aria; "Der Neugierige" (Schubert), passionate and intense, and "Caecilie" (Strauss), which is wholly dramatic in intent.

In all of these he showed a constant beauty of tonal quality, a perfect and convincing ease of method and a sincere interpretative regard for varying texts.

He received a splendid ovation and in response gave Hawley's "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes" very beautifully.

Mrs. Minnie Davis-Sherrill of Detroit, once a teacher at Ann Arbor, was the official pianist at the festival and besides doing virtuoso work in "The New Life," she played accompaniments for nearly every singer of the festival—in the case of Martinelli with no rehearsal at all but invariably with musicianship and style.

The Last Concert

Saturday night there were upward of 500 people on the stage, engaged in a gala performance of "The Children's Crusade" (Pierne), and an immense audience, beautifully dressed, enthusiastic and intelligent, applauded to the echo.

The Choral Union, now in its thirty-sixth season, obeyed the Stanley baton as one voice, the children, scores and scores of them, preserved a sincere and dignified attitude toward their work and gave Mr. Stanley some wonderfully fine dynamic effects while their enunciation of text was singularly and commendably pure.

The woman's chorus was of distinct clarity and beauty, while the men gave forth a solid volume, well colored to the wildly divergent text meanings, while the whole mass, augmented to dramatic proportions by the full orchestra, was wonderfully amenable to the artistic will of the conductor.

The Pierne work, solemn, religious, descriptive, tender and dramatic by turns, is well calculated as a crowning climax for any festival and so indeed did it prove at this time.

Immensely fine was the work of Miss Olive Kline and Miss Leonora Allen as Allys and Alain, the two wonderfully appealing and sweetly childish characters in Pierne's "Musical Legend." Miss Kline, on tour with the Chicago Orchestra, has personality, musicianship and lovely voice. She will be much lauded if she should come to Chicago to sing. Her voice has an unfailing sweetness, but is also capable of vivid color and of dramatic impulse when she chooses.

Miss Allen, grown to be a popular favorite all over the middle west and especially well liked in Ann Arbor, is continually growing in musical grace and style. Never has her fine voice been better suited than in the Alain solos and never have they been better done.

Allys and Alain have much music in alternation and much also in duet form. The voices of Miss Kline and Miss Allen are strangely alike in timbre and their effect together was that of superlative beauty.

Another young soprano introduced at this concert was Ada Grace Johnson, a teacher at the University School of Music.

When Madame Schumann-Heink heard Miss Johnson two years ago she strongly advised a concert career and gave her a personal letter to DeReszke. Miss Johnson spent last year abroad and but for the war would still be there. She is now, however, studying with Mr. Harrison and is soloist at the First M. E. Church in Ann Arbor, besides teaching in the school.

Her choice to sing the solo of "The Mother" on Saturday evening was thoroughly felicitous.

Her voice is clear and sweet and has ample power to fill the auditorium spaces, while her interpretative thought was true and convincing.

The distinctive ensembles given to "Four Women" were correctly and effectively done by Maude Kleyn, Alice Bliton, Nora Hunt and Miss Johnson.

The "Legend" by "The Sailor" was sung with great artistic values by Clarence Whitehill, the burst of applause at his entrance proving how great is his popularity in Ann Arbor.

Mr. Lambert Murphy, tenor soloist on tour with the orchestra, has been scoring one success after another all along the line and his choice for the part of "The Narrator" in "The Children's Crusade" was most happy.

His enunciation served to illuminate the wonderful text and his vocal beauty vitalized it still further.

His singing of the rhapsodic apostrophe to the Mediterranean, "The Sea, At Last the Sea," was a distinct musical triumph and a dramatic revelation as well.

A program note expressed the great obligation of the choral conductor to Miss Florence Potter, supervisor of music, Ann Arbor Public Schools, and Mr. Reuben Kempf, choirmaster of St. Andrew's Church, for their valuable services in preparation of the children's choruses.

Notes

The Allanel Hotel was the headquarters for the artists during the festival and in its parlors, offices and dining rooms could be found groups of notables at all times.

However, this hotel was taxed far past the limit by festival throngs and many were forced to find accommodations elsewhere.

The Whitney and the Hotel American held many musicians also and at the latter were to be found most of the men of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Quite a number of them sent for their wives to come down from Chicago for a musical week-end, among them being Fritz Itte and Carl Klammersteiner.

A little man is Charles A. Sink, in so far as stature is concerned, but he has more brains to the square inch than have most managers, three rolled into one.

He has been secretary of the school of music for a dozen years and to his enthusiastic vigor is due much of its success.

He is also secretary of the University Musical Society and in this position there devolves upon him the entire management of the Choral Union, the prefestival concerts and the annual May festival. That all of these are so flourishing is due largely to his amiable personality and his keen business judgment.

At Ann Arbor a splendid system is in vogue whereby five great concerts are given during the winter and these, plus the six festival events, are provided the students at an astonishingly low cost, i. e., the highest price asked for the eleven concerts is $6.50 and the lowest is $4.00. The wonder of this lies in the fact that during the past season the best artists in the field were heard and the announcement for the prefestival series of 1915-16 includes the names of Amato, Elman, Paderewski, Flonzaley Quartet and the New York Symphony Orchestra.

This is made possible because of the six thousand students of the University, five hundred of whom are in the music school (30 teachers) and the added fact that Ann Arbor has interurban connection with a rich and intelligent surrounding country.

□ □ □

Albert A. Stanley has been dean of the music school for twenty-five years. He is a great popular favorite and the Choral Union (300 voices) swears by him. Mr. Francis W. Kelsey is president of this society. Every visitor to the auditorium pauses a moment before a beautiful bronze tablet in the hallway inscribed to Arthur Hill, "graduate, regent and generous benefactor" of Michigan University.

Also a very popular place is a series of rooms at the rear of the first balcony where is installed a wonderful collection of ancient and modern musical instruments, which is, in fact, among the two or three most important in the world and possibly second only to that in the British Museum.

It contains thousands of pieces and was collected at incalculable cost by Frederick Stearns, a late Detroit millionaire, who willed it to Ann Arbor.

It has been lately arranged and installed by Mr. Stanley and will soon be completely catalogued.

□ □ □

Every week at the Hill Auditorium members of the faculty of the school of music as well as visiting artists appear in important concerts. As this place seats five thousands people and, through University arrangements, these concerts are absolutely free to the public, it is no wonder that Ann Arbor has developed a great musical clientele or that it has earned from Madame Schumann-Heink the sobriquet, "The Bay-reuth of America."

□ □ □

Music News Agency

The University Music House, at Maynard and William streets, Mrs. M. M. Root, proprietor, is as pretty and enterprising a store as could be found in many days' journey. A very complete and attractive stock is kept.

From this date forward Music News will be on sale at this store and Mrs. Root is authorized also to accept subscriptions for the paper.

EDNA DUNHAM
Soprano
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

Allen W. Bogen
CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER
RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

Mrs. Charles L. Krum
SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY
800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

NEW MALE CHORUS HEARD

Another Men's Chorus was added to Chicago's quota of such organizations on May 20, when the male chorus of the Richelieu Club of Sprague, Warner & Co., Louis J. Thiele, conductor, gave its first concert at the Association Auditorium before a large audience. This initial performance was entirely encouraging, and much good work may be expected from these men after they overcome a few amateurish tendencies. Aiding the club were Miss Edith Maldwyn Jones, contralto; Mr. Walter A. Framke, bass, and Miss Florence Peters, reader, all of whom were well received. In addition Mr. Leo Huyck stepped from the first tenor ranks to sing the solo parts of Richard's "The Image of the Rose."

Conductor Thiele's singers did commendable work, with good shading and generally clean-cut attacks. Mr. Thiele, by his thoroughly capable direction of the chorus, called forth their best efforts.

Miss Jones, in songs by Rimsky, Korsakow, Protheroe, Mauney, Forester, Cadman and Coleridge-Taylor exhibited a very flexible voice, particularly in the high tones which she sang with ease and smoothness and tones of much color.

Mr. Framke sang numbers by Schumann, Delbruck, Woodman and Weidig with a voice of beauty and power, and with much interpretive ability.

Miss Peters proved a very entertaining reader, and Miss I. M. Follo and Miss Mary Emery were satisfactory accompanists for the singers.

C. W. J.

AMERICAN GUILD OF VIOLINISTS

The American Guild of Violinists will hold its fifth annual convention June 3, 4 and 5 at the Hotel Sherman. The guild includes in its membership many of the most prominent violinists of Chicago, among them being Messrs. Kortschak, Krauss, Sametini, Weissbach, Zukowsky, Fischel, Weidig, Listemann, Lehman and others, as well as many out of town members, and a large attendance is expected.

Three programs will be given and many novelties included, such as the Mendelssohn "Octet"; the Svendsen "Quintet for Strings"; "Romance," for four solo violins, by Helmesberger; two "Sonatas" by Brune and Levy, and other numbers. There will be also an exhibition of instruments of famous players, and a competitive test of new and old violins will be held on Saturday morning, June 5. The meetings will be open to the public.

IRENE DEMING TO GIVE PIANO RECITAL

Monday evening, May 31, Miss Irene Deming, pianist, and artist pupil of Alfred Calzin, will appear in a recital at the Auditorium recital hall.

The program follows:

Sonata Tragico, Op. 45	MacDowell
Largo Maestoso
Molto Allegro, vivace
Largo con Maestoso
Allegro eroico
Etude A Flat, Op. 25
Nocturne E Major, Op. 62; No. 2	Chopin
Scherzo C Sharp Minor, Op. 39
Minuet	Zandella
Etude D Flat
Liebestraume A Flat	Liszt
Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 12

ROBERT LOUIS BARRON APPEARS IN RECITAL

At the Auditorium Recital Hall on Wednesday evening, May 19, the brilliant young Chicago violinist, Robert Louis Barron, appeared in recital with Earl Victor Prael, playing the accompaniments. Mr. Barron, who is a pupil of Max Fischel, the well-known and successful violin teacher, has many enviable achievements in concert work to his credit already, but it is doubtful if he ever gave a better account of himself than on this occasion. It's only a matter of time until Barron will be classed with the foremost American violinists. He has the poise, style, musical feeling and confidence in his technical resources which go to make up the great artist.

The audience which heard his varied offerings on Tuesday night were unusually enthusiastic over his playing. His first number was the "Folies D'Espagne," by Corelli, and there was an abundance of good violin playing heard throughout its rendition. The "Concerto" in G minor, by Bruch, was his big achievement of the evening. The difficulties of this work is a test for any violinist, and the manner in which Mr. Barron delivered it was meritorious of high praise for both himself and the teacher responsible for his present attainments. In a group of numbers made up with the "Prelude" in G minor, and "Russisch," both by Zimbalist; "Dämmerung," by Natrowski, and "Bohemian Dance," by Randegger, Mr. Barron was found at his best. Especially good was the Natrowski number. Mr. Prael gave a good account of himself at the piano, playing at all times with much assurance and in perfect sympathy with the ideas and fancies of the soloist. Several vocal selections interspersed the numbers played by Mr. Barron. The closing portion of the program was not heard by the writer.

H. M. B.

ERNEST DAVIS ENGAGEMENTS

Ernest Davis, tenor, sang at Govan Hall on Saturday afternoon, May 22. On Sunday, May 23, he sang in a Gounod program at the M. E. church in Wilmette, and on Sunday, May 30, he will appear in the series of American Musicians' concerts at Fullerton Hall, and on June 4 he sings in a recital at the Assembly Hall in the Fine Arts Building, which is given by artist pupils of George Nelson Holt. June 10 Mr. Davis will be soloist with the Columbia School orchestra at the commencement concert in the Auditorium Theater on June 10.

Allen—Leonora Allen sang the part of Alaine in "The Children's Crusade," May 22, at the annual festival given in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER, Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, EvanstonTENOR
SOLOIST

MR. and MRS.

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

HYDE PARK CHORAL CLUB AND ORCHESTRA GIVE CONCERT

Those excellent organizations, the Hyde Park Choral Club and Orchestra, which have done so much toward fostering the interest in and appreciation of the best in music on the south side, gave another splendid concert on Friday evening, May 22, at the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church and a great audience was in attendance applauding and praising to the full every effort put forth by these organizations.

Mr. Ludwig Becker conducted the orchestra, which numbers close to one hundred musicians, through performances of the overture to "Der Freischütz" and "Czardas" from the ballet "Coppelia," by Delibes, in a manner which was truly remarkable when the point is considered that the complete list of players are amateurs, practically all, at least.

They played with good and well balanced tone quality, and Mr. Becker is such an efficient director that the players displayed a commendable amount of expression in their readings of these numbers and the audience continued the vigorous applause until the director again came to the stand and led the orchestra through a repetition of the Delibes number.

Mr. Robert Quait, tenor, sang a group of songs during the early part of the program which aided greatly in making the evening an artistic success.

The main feature of the concert was a rendition of "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," in which the chorus and orchestra both took part. Mrs. Charles Robbins, whose whole soul, energy and musical advice has been for the advancement and success of this chorus for years was at the conductor's stand and directed with that authority, confidence, intelligence and grace which places her among the most satisfactory directors in Chicago today.

The Hyde Park chorus has many enviable concerts to its credit, but it is doubtful if they ever achieved a greater success than that reached at this concert.

This choral work is very difficult as to text as well as for its musical and phrasing make-up, yet the chorus went through the work with a splendid tone volume well blended and an enunciation very distinct. Their attacks were not of strictest unity at times, but other good qualities almost covered up this marring effect. The orchestra followed the fancies of Mrs. Robbins in splendid style as to tempo and in the more powerful climaxes, but in softer passages they were much too strong for effect being strived for by the singers. Mr. Quait was again heard with pleasure when he sang with beautiful voice and deep feeling the one aria in the work, "Onaway Beloved."

The concert as a whole was a splendid success and a reward to those who spent their time and energy in making it possible.

H. M. B.

JENNIE F. W. JOHNSON

Jennie F. W. Johnson sang Tuesday evening, May 25 in Englewood Second United Presbyterian Church, May 26 at Kirkland, Ill., and May 27 at the New England Congregational Church for the graduation of the Passavant Hospital nurses.

MUSIC OF LAKE VIEW HIGH SCHOOL

Lake View High School gave a very creditable performance of S. Coleridge-Taylor's "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," as well as other choral and instrumental numbers, at the Nicholas Senn high school auditorium, May 21. The Lake View building is undergoing changes, which accounts for the place of this concert. Fully a thousand people were present and gave enthusiastic response to every number. The entire program was choral, excepting the Hiawatha solo and a piano number.

Most of the singing was done from memory, showing incessant labor on the part of the pupils of Mrs. Dora G. Smith, their music teacher. There is an irrepressible spirit at Lake View which was voiced in the school yells at the close. These very properly included an ovation to the directress. The contingency necessitating the interchange of compliments between these two schools suggests a grand opportunity for community effort along the north shore. The music teachers of both schools are co-operative in spirit and the Senn auditorium has no superior among the schools of Chicago. We may expect to hear from this locality in connection with the civic movement, no doubt, judging from the "samples" of high school singing already heard in both schools mentioned.

EDWARD WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
TENOR 1118 E. 65th St.

WILLARD-BALLMAN PUPILS

Miss Geneva Chacey, pianist, and Miss Lucille White, soprano, pupils of Carolyn Willard and Maude Fenton Ballman, respectively, were presented in recital on Friday evening, May 21, at Thurber Hall. Because of having to review two recitals on the same evening, the writer heard only the last two groups of numbers on this program.

"Parla," by Arditi, was first heard, in which Miss White displayed a lyric voice of pleasing quality with great range, the highest tones being especially easy and denoting well-based training. Facility in the passages where runs predominated gave evidence of an even register throughout the wide range. Miss Jeanne Boyd played the accompaniment beautifully.

Miss Chacey's group consisted of Chopin's "Nocturne, Op. 32, No. 1," "Elfe," by Phillip, and "Vivace, Op. 25, No. 7," by Sinding. These were given with breadth, dexterity, poise and a touch that altogether made up a very commendable presentation. That these pupils have enjoyed admirable instruction is very evident, and their own industry and intelligence are manifestly great assets to them.

The numbers not heard by the writer were those of Bach, Lachner, Heller and Schubert as played by Miss Chacey; and songs by Arne, Schumann, Dvorak and Livingston as sung by Miss White.

C. W. J.

PAUL ALTHOUSE SOLOIST AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, OAK PARK

The musical portion of the order of worship at the First Congregational church in Oak Park on Sunday evening, May 23, as arranged by Carl D. Kinsey, organist and director, was of an unusually high standard enjoyable to the fullest extent and rendered with that touch of perfection characteristic of all music at this church. In spite of a rainy night the large auditorium was practically filled.

Mr. Kinsey played "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar, and "Ase's Tod," by Grieg, as a prelude to the evening's service, and closed with the "Gloria" from Mozart's "Twelfth Mass."

The solo quartet, composed of Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; Permilia Gale, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor, and Frank M. Dunford, bass, on this particular occasion sang with a beautiful blending of tone and excellent expression as to music and text the anthems, "I Will Extol Thee," by Costa, and "Savior, When Night Involves the Skies," by Shelley.

Miss Kaufman and Mrs. Gale, both of whom have recently returned from successful concert tours to the Pacific coast, sang a duet, "Power Eternal," by Rossini, with a wealth of expression, tonal beauty and ideal finish.

Mr. Althouse, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, New York, was the special soloist of the evening. He not only did his share with the quartet in a masterful manner, but brought a beautiful message to the large audience through his admirable singing of "Behold the Master Passeth By," by Hammond. His voice is one of the most satisfactory heard in America at present, and his ideas of interpretation are convincingly effective, and his style of delivery is wholly in accord to the occasion and surroundings.

H. M. B.

FROM MRS. IRON'S STUDIOS

Master Phineas Norton Cohen, a gifted young pianist pupil of Myrle Tyler Irons, gave a recital in Kimball Hall Friday evening, May 21. Although a very young artist, he possesses to a marked degree that "something" which makes public performance interesting, and on this occasion the numbers he chose to present gave opportunity for a display of technical facility, breadth, and artistic finish. In nearly all cases the pianist met the requirements adequately, while in some of them he evinced a skill and touch that were really remarkable.

Unfortunately, only the first half of the program could be heard. This included Grieg's "Sonata, Op. 7, in E Minor" and a group of five numbers, of which Master Cohen's own "Petite Valse" and a brilliant performance of MacDowell's "Witch's Dance" were noteworthy, and to which were given his best resources. Later he played two numbers by Raff and Liszt, and the "Concerto, Op. 11, in E Minor," by Chopin, the orchestra parts of which were played upon a second piano by Mrs. Irons.

Verne Thomas, bass, assisted on the program with a group of songs by Cadman, Foerster and Huhu. He made a pleasing impression with his deep, resonant voice, and was accorded a hearty reception.

C. W. J.

OLD FOLKS' CONCERT AT NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

A series of "old folks" concerts was given by the choirs of the New First Congregational church Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, May 20, 21 and 22. Very elaborate preparations were made and extended announcements given. This drew audiences totaling about five thousand people and a collection of some $500 for the camping fund for the choirs.

Different programs were arranged for the three concerts. The Thursday and Friday programs must have been very attractive and evidently word to that effect had gone forth, for the Saturday audience was in the seats on time and eager expectancy plainly visible.

A "Solemn Grande Marche played on ye chest o' whistles," by Faith Euphronius Boydston, proved to be "Old Kentucky Home," arranged for the organ and played by Miss Florence E. Boydston as a processional for the choirs, which came down the two side aisles. All were in charming colonial costume, and as the couples met at the front of the church they bowed in very courtly fashion to each other and passed to their places. Mr. H. Augustine Smith, known for the evening as "Hitemquick Anabastus Smith, Tymebeater," was in gorgeous apparel, having a coat of black with beautiful yellow trimmings, a brilliantly flowered waistcoat, knee breeches and red hose and shoes.

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE
419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

The program is hereith produced entire as it gives the atmosphere of the affair as no description could give:

THIRD OLDE FOLKES CONZERTE

at ye Congregationale Meetynge House at Earlie Candlelight

SATURDAY, MAY XXII, MCMXX

Solemn Grande Marche, played on Ye Chest o' Whistles

Faith Euphronius Boydston
Ye Very Sentimental Musick—Bridal Chorus..... Wagner

by ye bunch of Spring Blossoms
A Very Worldlie Song—Off for Philadelphia
Brother King and hys Spouse

Happy and Light..... Balfe
alle ye Maydens together
Thunder from ye Grande Organ
Sister Boydston

The North Wind..... Weidig
The Evening Star..... Weidig ye Progenie of ye Villagers, that is to say,
ye Carol Choir

Ye Harmony Four—Hail, Smiling Morn..... Spofford
ye Printer lost the names of ye smarte Syngers
An Old Romantic—At Twilight

ye Treble and Cecilian Maydens
A Tune on ye New Fangled Spinnette played by Goodenough Glorietta Anderson
Pilgrim Chorus from Tannhauser..... Wagner

alle ye Syngers together
Hitemquick Anabastus Smith, Tymebeater
Ye Star Spangled Banner
alle ye audience who have now regained thyr breath will lift this tune

The singing of these young people is something well worth listening to. Such excellent tone quality from singers so young is very unusual, and yet it is just what should be. The beauty of the natural child voice has only to be conserved and this is the rare thing Mr. Smith is capable of doing. It is his own musical spirit calling out the musical spirits of the boys and girls before him. We sat where we could see his face as he conducted—the inspiration, the calling, the deep affection for these young people was simply irresistible, and the music, real music, poured forth. It is the secret of his success; he has a genuine human interest in each one under his care, and the tremendous success of these concerts is only an appreciation of his work.

Miss Lucy Hartman appeared in most becoming costume, and sang "Mammy's Song," and as an encore "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" with her audience joining in the chorus as she waved a flag.

(The soloist of Thursday evening was Lucia May Smith, who also was very successful.)

This is the third time these choirs have given such concerts—they have a strong patriotic flavor, and have taken firm hold on the people of the community. M. K. W.

CHAMBER MUSIC AT FULLERTON HALL

Large, appreciative audiences greeted the performances at both concerts on Sunday afternoon of May 23 at Fullerton Hall. This was the third program of the series, and judging from the enthusiastic attention given the fall series as announced yesterday will receive hearty support. Sunday's concert upheld the high standard set by past performances, and in many particulars was unusually noteworthy. Many artists appeared, each possessing skill and intelligence, who gave pleasure both through the variety of numbers offered and through their commendable presentation of them.

Cadman's "Trio in D Major," as played by Messrs. Hart, Kortschak and Wagner, was the recipient of marked attention and called forth great enthusiasm. Mr. Kortschak gave a fine performance of Brahms' "Sonata, Op. 108," in which he used a beautiful tone and disclosed much musical feeling. His work was an outstanding feature of all the ensemble playing.

Two "Trios" by Schutt and Dvorak's "Terzetto, Op. 74," were well received on very creditable presentations. Mr. Richard Wagner contributed 'cello parts in a skillful manner and deserves favorable mention.

Two vocalists appeared, the first of whom was Miss Margaret Messer, the possessor of a beautiful, high soprano voice, which she used with understanding and poise in numbers by German, Rogers, Homer and Gilberte. She sang in a highly artistic manner and received much well-merited applause.

Mrs. Edna Swanson Ver Haar, contralto, sang songs by Meyerbeer, Johnson, Carpenter and Hilton-Turvey. Her voice is of splendid range and flexibility, and she used it with sincerity and good musicianship.

Others who assisted materially were Cesar and Harry Luden, with viola and violin respectively; and Miss Rose Lyon, Miss Irene McClung, and Miss Mary Anderson, pianist, all of whom did meritorious and enjoyable work.

C. W. J.

COMMENDATION

after years of service—and by one whose judgment is authoritative

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

Office of the Dean Music Hall

Gentlemen—The fact that for twenty years the Mason & Hamlin Pianos have been used in our School of Music bears eloquent testimony of the high esteem in which these instruments are held and incidentally certifies to their stability and durability. For many years I have had a Mason & Hamlin Parlor Grand in my own home. Its refinement, its delicacy, its beauty of tone, its mellow sonority and its matchless mechanism never cease to charm and satisfy me.

Yours sincerely,

Peter Christian Luthman

Dean.

Evanston, May 19, 1915

TO CABLE PIANO COMPANY

To you who may be considering a Piano as a Commencement Gift we especially commend the

Mason & Hamlin

Musically the most beautiful piano the world has ever known. On exhibition and sale at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson, Chicago

BURTON PUPILS IN RECITAL

Two young artists of decided gifts joined their talent in recital at 516 Fine Arts Building on May 22, when Miss Maude Beyler and Miss Fromilda Young, soprano pupils of Miss Louise Burton gave an attractive program.

Miss Young opened the program with a German group of Franz and Schumann songs which revealed a voice of freshness and purity and of wide range of vocal coloring. She made a good impression in two duets with Miss Beyler and in her final group of English songs gave of her best resources.

In her opening offering Miss Beyler sang German songs by Schubert, Grieg, and Henschel with fine diction and thoughtful interpretation. Her voice is of the lyric class, high, clear and easy, and she was very successful in carrying the upper voice parts in the duets. Her last group consisted of songs by Lehmann, Hawley and Spross, the bird songs of Lehmann being especially well enjoyed and charmingly presented, while the Spross number was marked by high tones that were unusually free and floating. Mr. Roy Bock proved himself a fine accompanist for the singers.

New Albany—At New Albany, Ky., under the direction of Anton H. Embs, and with Mrs. Douglas Webb, Miss Ruth Willis Browne, and Mr. Vinton Nunemacher as soloists, Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given in festival proportions last week with very great success.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Axe

SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
one Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

Music in Chicago

RUBINSTEIN CLUB OF OAK PARK

There should be ample and welcome room in the scheme of things at Oak Park for a season of concerts by the revived Rubinstein Club. This is an organization of about twenty ladies who sing the higher grade musical literature written for women's voices. As these singers are all amateurs and give of their time, talents and energy freely it would seem quite reasonable and proper that they should be endorsed and supported heartily in the endeavor to add more to the civic life of the village. In Chicago the uplift and value of music as a potent factor in community life is laid stress upon by the inception of the Civic Music Association and Oak Park should be no whit behind in forward movements.

The club is fairly well balanced as to voices, the quality also being commendable, there is enthusiasm and purpose in the singing, and many niceties of taste in the working out of the ensemble, and the numbers heard were distinctly pleasurable and well worth while. The inevitable unsteadiness that must come in the train of the ordeal of a first appearance by any group of amateurs is easily overlooked in the far more valuable traits enumerated above, and which all combined to give the evening a real distinction and to launch the club safely on what should be a tide of popular favor. Of the numbers heard Spross' adaptation of the Dvorak "Humoresque" to a lullaby and the Liszt "Loreley" were given in the best form and had any amount of musical fervor and stirring spirit. Mrs. P. D. Hulbert, who is the director, in addition to her very high grade musical abilities, has the dynamic flames of energy and enthusiasm burning eagerly within her and is the dominant, controlling impulse and she secures her results with an unfailing surety of purpose and admirable means.

Assisting the club was Mr. George Nelson Holt, basso, who came to the writer's ken for the first time this season, the lines not having crossed heretofore. It is unqualified pleasure to record that the two groups of songs, of varied qualities, and their consequent encores were of the highest artistic excellence. Without specifying each song it is to be recorded that there was a fine and abiding quality of authority, a poise that was serenity itself, an enunciation that was ever pure and clean, and an interpretative sense that made the various moods into pictures. Mrs. Holt, who played for him, was also in the pictures by means of an always beautifully proportioned piano background. In only one particular would I question values with Mr. Holt, and that was in the Scott "Lullaby" which did not carry full conviction.

Mr. Arthur Oglesbee contributed two groups of piano numbers. He has a number of good things to recommend him and secured his measure of applause.

Miss Margerie M. Crandall, who played understandingly for the club, deserves a paragraph all to herself for the many merits she disclosed.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

RECITAL BY PUPIL OF MRS. SCOFIELD

Among the vocal teachers whose excellent equipment and broad experience make them safe instructors for the many aspiring young singers studying in Chicago, is Mrs. W. C. Scofield.

Besides receiving an extensive vocal education along fundamental and advanced lines, Mrs. Scofield was for five years assistant to the late well-known teacher and singer, Signor Marescalchi, which would be a liberal education in itself.

That Mrs. Scofield's work as a teacher is thoroughly effective was again demonstrated on Wednesday evening, May 19, when one of her pupils, Mrs. Harriet Buck, gave a recital in Kimball Hall.

Mrs. Buck possesses an excellent, well-trained soprano voice, and she impresses one as being earnest and conscientious; a pupil that her teacher must have found much pleasure in working with.

The following were Mrs. Buck's vocal offerings:

Die Post	Schubert
Wiegen Lied	Brahms
Aria from opera Louise	Charpentier
Aria from opera La Gioconda	Ponchielli
La Colomba (The Dove)	Schindler
Dearest	Homer
Hush Little Voice	Ronald
The Star	Rogers
Since You Went Away	Johnson
I've Been Roaming	Horn
At Dawning	Cadman

All were well sung, and the singer was especially effective in the appealing songs, "Hush, Little Voice," "Since You Went Away," and "At Dawning."

Mrs. Buck had the assistance of Miss Geneva Chacey, accompanist, and Miss Helen Buck, pianist, who played compositions of Beethoven, Brahms and Mendelssohn. Both of these young women did thoroughly praiseworthy work. C. J. B.

— # # # —

CHICAGO LITTLE THEATER

The Chicago Little Theater Company, touring the United States in the "Trojan Women of Euripides," continue to achieve artistic results and to receive enthusiastic appreciation for its efforts. Every city visited means an additional triumph.

The "Sun" has this to say, among other complimentary things, concerning its appearance in Baltimore, May 5:

"The performance was one of the most exquisite and unusual things that has been seen here. . . . The 'Trojan Women' is a noble work, and, in the final analysis, it was nobly given, with a great intensity, a broad attack, and a notable appreciation."

Its performance in Washington, D. C., two days later, was splendidly received. It played to a packed house—1400 people sat spell-bound while the old Greek tragedy was being sympathetically interpreted. The audience was so enthusiastic that the scene in the lobby after the performance was quite remarkable. People could scarcely find words adequate to express their appreciation. The Chicago Little Theater had scored again.

STEIN PUPILS AT CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

Pupils of the Stein Musical-Dramatic Conservatory gave a fine account of themselves at Central Music Hall on last Wednesday evening, proving also the great value of the teaching they have received.

The bill opened with a little play, "His Model Wife," which was presented with snap and vigor and in which the fine training of Mrs. Karl Buren was shown by Grace Leonhardt, Harold Taylor, Dora Paulsen, Grove Halslip, Estelle Robson, Dawn Thorman, Vera Florence, Henry Hessler and Eleanor Grimm.

Also, during the evening a skillful and convincing exhibition of toe dancing was given by Miss Ada O'Donnell, a pupil of Madame Josephine Hatlanck.

The chief event of the evening, however, was a spirited performance of "Olivette" in which not only was Mrs. Stein's work as a stage manager shown to great advantage but also several vocal pupils of Mr. Stein distinguished themselves and Mr. Stein himself once more proved his remarkably effective qualities as an accompanist and director, being assisted by a small orchestra.

The Audran opera was once very popular, but has been heard so infrequently of late years that it had the effect of complete novelty.

It is tuneful, pretty and interesting and the Stein pupils found it very much within their metier.

Ernst Gradolph, Maurice Fisher, Arthur Reutlinger and George W. Loach, as Marvejol, Valentine, Merimac and the Duke, respectively, looked their parts and held up the ensembles in which they were concerned with skill, the last named also singing the interpolated "Ah So Fair" (Martha) with effect.

Millard's "Waiting" was also interpolated and, as sung by Marion Spiegel in the part of Veloutine, was one of the most, praiseworthy items of the evening.

Blanche Reincke as the Countess not only dressed well and acted with discretion but also proved herself the possessor of a fine voice and great musical style.

Her singing of "Oh, Heart, Wherefore So Light" was particularly good.

The part of Olivette is difficult, and very full of possibilities. Its difficulties were none too great for Ruth Hellene Dahly and she realized its possibilities very fully.

The light and shade required by the histrionic part of the character were well conserved by her and in vocal style and charm she was exceptional.

"The Convent Sleep" was a model of good style as presented by her.

The duet, "I Love My Love So Well," was so well sung by Miss Reincke and Miss Dahly that it had to be repeated and several of the large ensembles were fine also.

Notably good was "Yes, 'Tis Myself Again," in which the eight leading characters took part.

Small parts were well done by Christine Deuel, Earl Leamon and Victor Montague, while a large chorus of Stein pupils completed a talented and effective ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Stein constitute a strong duo-force and the results of their joint efforts, shown at this time, proclaim the fact that their pupils are fortunate in the teachers they have chosen.

C. E. W.

MRS. SYDNE SMITH COOLEY IN RECITAL

The Willett School of Singing presented Mrs. Sydne Smith Cooley in recital on Tuesday, May 18, and Mrs. Bessie McAllister seconded and enriched the vocal numbers with extremely good accompaniments, no smallest portion being left without definite and exacting care.

Mrs. Cooley is blest with a rich organ, large, and capable of much of the depth of feeling which naturally inheres in a contralto voice. Mr. Willett has brought this to a commendable stage of finish, so that there is surety of pitch and accuracy in placement. And on these fine foundations is being constructed a good superstructure of musical taste in expression, and a feeling for color and warmth in interpretative thought. She was heard in one of the Handelian excerpts, "Thou Shalt Bring Them," done with legitimate attention to details, two Brahms songs, the "Sandman," being more than nice by reason of the delicacy of tone used, and Schumann's "Lotus Flower," and "Nut Tree," the former being best in delivery. Four Russian songs followed and were fully enjoyable, particularly the lovely "Lilacs" of Rachmaninoff, which bids fair to be a permanent favorite for recital literature.

A group of English songs, including MacDermid's always acceptable "Sacrament," and Mrs. Salter's cycle, "A Night in Naishapur," completed the well-arranged program, but were not heard by the writer.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

— — — — —

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT PUPILS

Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant announces the first annual Chicago concert to be given by her advanced students of Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill., who have been heard in a series of individual and joint-recitals during the month of May.

The Chicago concert will take place Saturday evening, June 5, at 8 o'clock, Assembly Hall, Fine Arts Building.

The students taking part are: The Misses Viola Elma Graber, dramatic soprano; Mae Anna Ross, lyric soprano; Alexandrienne Chabioson, lyric soprano; Ruth Evelyn Brown, contralto; Ruth Estelle Heilman, dramatic soprano, and Margaret McCarl, lyric soprano.

A cordial invitation is extended by Lombard College and Anna Groff-Bryant to all who are interested in the annual Chicago concert, to be present on this special occasion.

— — — — —

Clinton—At Clinton, Ia., the Mendelssohn Choir, under direction of Kennard Barradell, gave its second concert of the seventh season on last Wednesday evening, scoring unusual success in "Hear My Prayer," Mendelssohn, and "Gallia," Gounod, in which Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano, of Chicago, was soloist, and Benoist's "Into the World," a cantata for children. Miss Maud Arnold and Miss Alma Nissen were accompanists.

Festival Concert—The Jesuit Choristers, under direction of Leo Mutter, gave a splendid concert at the Holy Family Church last Sunday evening. There were solo and chorus numbers as well as a distinctive organ program by Mr. Mutter.

FRANK W.

Van Dusen

PIANO-ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANOEdna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary Steele
HINMAN TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR ChicagoHarriet Case
SOPRANO COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF MUSICClarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 521 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland AvenueGaylord American Violinist
YOST Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYMarie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd FloorSilas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

BALATKA ACADEMY OF MUSICAL ART

Balatka Academy of Musical Art, Anna H. Balatka, Director, Suite 41, Auditorium Building, presented a number of pupils in recital at Auditorium Recital Hall Thursday evening, May 20. Those participating were piano pupils of Anna H. Balatka, Ada Brant and Emily Hanugs. Vocal pupils of Ella Bachman, Eleanor Capps Hostler, Jean Wilson and Max Bing. Violin pupils of Albert Green. Elocution pupils of Anna Parker Saylor and Anna Rosenthal. Cornet pupil of Albert Cook. Whistling pupil of Helen Morgan.

It must be confessed that the reviewer was appalled when he glanced at the printed program which was handed him at the door and discovered that twenty-three numbers were listed. However, he stayed through the entire program and found it thoroughly interesting because the numbers were varied in character, short and well rendered.

The performers were young people. In fact, the violin ensemble class contained several tots not more than seven years of age. This class opened the program with "Petite Valse Brilliant," by Lagye, and played it well.

The vocal solos were:

A May Morning.....	Denza
Fannie E. Swarts
Der Himmel hat eine Träne geweint.....	Kuecken
Was mir die Mutter Sang.....	Bohm
Madelaine Gerharz
Dost Thou Know That Sweet Land.....	Thomas
'Tis Springtime on the Eastern Hills.....	Whelpley
Helen Volckmann
Dear Love Remember Me.....	Marshall
Celia LeVee
Ava Maria.....	Luzzi
Edna May Hanrahan

Two duets, "O Sah ich auf der heide dort," by Mendelssohn, and "Drei susse kleine dirnen," by Franck, were sung by Elsa and Margaret Leimbach.

The piano solos were:

Elsa's Bridal Procession.....	Liszt
Mathilda Lustig
Hungarian Fantasia.....	Liszt
Lottie Krause
Concerto G Minor, first movement.....	Saint-Saens
Charlotte Cohen
Rustle of Spring.....	Sinding
Minuet.....	Paderewski
Isabelle Mohr
Ballade.....	Bachmann
March Petite.....	Smith
George Clover
Marche Oriental.....	Ketterer
Josie Chatwin
Piano Quartet—Coronation March.....	Meyerbeer
May Hornbeck, Clare Brown, Winifred Gibbons and Beulah Richardson

The violin solos were:

Serenade.....	Schubert-Alard
Peter Branderslav
Gypsy Dance.....	Natchez
Lenise Harber
Pierrot Serenade.....	Randegger
Frank Holub

ORGAN FOR SALE

2 Keyboards and pedals, 30 stops, Bellows operated by electric motor. Built by Johnson & Son. A fine instrument at a bargain.

Address Organist

3018 Vernon Av

CHICAGO

Master Frederick Ferguson played a cornet solo, "Polka de Concert," by Llewellyn, and displayed extraordinary talent in doing it.

All these young musicians, by their performance, show that they are receiving excellent training.

The whistling of Lillian Linfoote, who contributed "Birds and the Brook" and "Cupid's Garden," by Stults, was a novel and enjoyable feature.

Pantomime was cleverly presented by Fannie Swarts, her numbers being "Blue Monday Morning" and "At the Matinee."

Three other well presented readings were given. They were "The Polish Boy," by Stephens, Della Lustgarten; "Elmer Brown," by Anon, Rose Kaufman; and "Dem Tantalizing Little Twin Coons," by Star, Helen Pauch, the last named being with piano accompaniment, and excellently executed incidental dancing.

Lottie Krause, Ella Rosen and Carl Weiss furnished reliable piano accompaniments during the evening.

The whole recital was a credit to Balatka Academy's efficient staff of instructors. The pupils performed carefully and thereby displayed their talent and instruction to fine advantage. Their platform manners indicate that they are being taught how to deport themselves before an audience. We extend congratulations to teachers and pupils.

C. J. B.

BUCHHALTER PUPILS IN RECITAL

The following program was presented by piano pupils of Simon Buchhalter on last Sunday afternoon in Suite 612 of the Fine Arts Building:

Concerto in D Minor (first movement).....	Mozart
Celia Horwich
March, Op. 39.....	Reinhold
Fairy Tale, Op. 39.....	Reinhold
Fantasia in D Minor.....	Mozart
Catherine Green
Two Part Inventions (No. 8).....	Bach
Scenes from Childhood (Nos. 1 and 2).....	Schumann
Sonata in E Minor.....	Haydn
Paul Rosenstein
Prelude in C Minor.....	Bach
Theme and Six Variations in G Minor.....	Beethoven
Andante and Rondo.....	Rosenhain
Frieda Himmelman
Menuet, Op. 45.....	Thome
Valse, Op. 64, No. 1.....	Chopin
Impromptu in C Sharp Minor.....	Reinhold
Bertha Rosenthal
Sonata in F Minor (first movement).....	Beethoven
Erotik, Op. 43, No. 5.....	Grieg
An den Fruhling, Op. 43, No. 6.....	Grieg
Celia Horwich

These players were some of Mr. Buchhalter's younger pupils and a good account they gave of themselves, each displaying talent, technic and application that was in every way commendable and promises well for the future. The room was filled to overflowing with auditors, and the performers were rewarded with much enthusiastic appreciation. Mr. Buchhalter may well be gratified at the showing they made.

C. J. B.

St. Paul—At St. Paul's Church, Fiftieth and Dorchester streets on Sunday afternoon at 4:30, a special music service will be given under direction of John Allen Richardson, the soloists to be Walter Brauer, cello, and Richard Higgins, soprano. The cheerful announcement has been made that an $18,000 Austin organ will be installed at St. Paul and ready for use next September. Mr. Richardson is subject for congratulation.

CHICAGO PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC TEACHERS' CLUB

The Music Teachers' Club of the Chicago Public Schools held its first meeting in the Savage room of the Kuntz-Remmler Cafe on May 20. An evening dinner was the means of accumulating the necessary constituency for organization, the committee having the function in charge being Mr. O. E. Robinson of Hyde Park High School; Miss Alice Garthe of the Normal College, and Miss Fannie Lynch of the elementary schools.

Officers were elected as follows:

President—Mr. H. W. Fairbank.

Vice President—Miss Agnes Benson.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Charles Lagerquist.

Publicity Agent—Miss Teresa Armitage.

Bimonthly meetings will be held to promote the interests of public school music to bring its aims and achievements to the notice of the public in general and the music profession and press in particular. In order to prove its right to a solar setting, the club avows its willingness to be a yoke-fellow with the civic music movement, to promote community enterprises in music, and to bid for the meeting of the national music supervisors' conference,

WARREN PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
419 Fine Arts Building. Phone Maywood 1615

three years hence. (The two intervening meetings have been "spoken for.") There will doubtless be other projects, but the club feels it has already shown symptoms of being a sturdy infant. With reference to the music supervisors' conference, it is reported that the Amateur Musical Club and the Chicago Woman's Club have already signified a substantial interest in bringing this body of musicians to Chicago.

HERMAN DEVRIES-GLENN DILLARD GUNN

Music News is reliably informed that the Herman Devries Studios will be known after September 1 as the Herman Devries-Glenn Dillard Gunn Studios.

Mr. Devries will continue, as for the past fifteen years, to teach voice production, oratorio and concert repertoire, and will coach in all lines of vocal art, teaching also his very successful opera classes. Mrs. Herman Devries will continue also as associate voice teacher.

Mr. Gunn will teach piano and continue his famous interpretation classes.

This arrangement is particularly favorable to the opera classes for, from this time forward, every public performance will be given with the accompaniment from the new American Symphony Orchestra with Mr. Gunn at the baton.

Root Studios—In our report of the Root Studio Musicale, printed last week, the omission of a comma gave a wrong reading to the list of participants. The correct list of those who appeared is Miss Schweinfurth, Miss Nickel, Miss Cullis and Mrs. Wynckoop.

CIVIC MUSIC ASSOCIATION HOLDS FIRST SPRING FESTIVAL

"To promote and encourage the understanding, appreciation and study of the art of music and the development of musical talent throughout the community, principally by providing musical entertainment and instruction gratuitously or at little expense in the small parks and playgrounds and other civic centers."

The above is an excerpt from the charter of the Civic Music Association, which held its first spring festival on Sunday afternoon, May 23, at the Harrison Technical High School Auditorium and a large audience was in attendance to note the progress of the association in the realization of its ideals.

The festival was a success, and all who were responsible for the program should feel well repaid for their efforts.

On account of the length of the program several numbers had to be canceled, much to the regret of all present.

The American Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Glenn Dillard Gunn, which is to take a leading place among the musical activities of Chicago next year, was present and added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion by playing numbers by Wagner, Grieg and Massenet with great and splendid tone volume in addition to excellent shading and smooth finish. They were on for more numbers but could not stay to fulfill the program statements.

Combined children's choruses from Seward Park, Dvorak Park, Mark White Square and Armour Square, accompanied by the orchestra and directed by the efficient Edward Collins, sang a group of folk songs from many nations, which pleased the audience immensely. The children had their numbers all memorized and sang with great abandon and assurance.

Demonstrations in Dalcroze Eurythmics by classes from Dvorak and Seward Parks consumed a great amount of time, but nevertheless disclosed to good advantage the work being done by the association along this line of endeavor.

Three German songs were rendered by the "Volkslieder Verein" of Mark White Square, under the leadership of Mari Ruef Hofer.

A portion of the program which attracted interest and attention was the singing of three Bohemian folk songs by a young ladies' chorus from Dvorak Park. Miss Albie Sladek conducted these singers.

The following numbers were canceled because of the lateness of the hour:

Legend Tschaiowsky
Choral Club of Hamilton Park, Edward Collins,
Director
At Twilight Sullivan
Choral Club of the First Baptist Church, John Allen
Richardson, Director
Lo! How the Shadow-Mother, Night.....R. G. Cole
From the "Passing of Summer"
Choral Club of Sherman Park, Rossetter G. Cole,
Director

Combined choruses of Sherman Park, Hamilton Park, First Baptist Church and La Salle Extension University sang a group of songs under the direction of Mr. Cole, and with the audience brought the concert to a close with a rousing rendition of "America."

H. M. B.

THE GEORGE W. MUNRO STUDIOS

The capacity of George W. Munro's commodious studios was taxed to the utmost last Saturday evening to accommodate the large number of people who came to hear the recital given by Miss Charlotte Kimball, an artist pupil of Mr. Munro.

The entire program was sung in English, and to the credit of the singer be it said that her enunciation was so good as to make it completely understandable. Miss Kimball's voice is one of much matured worth, and the method applied in its development enables her to use it with ease and excellent control. Her use of the pianissimo tone is especially skillful, yet when brilliancy is demanded the voice responds nobly. "Spring's Awakening," by Sanderson; the Woodforde-Finden "Indian Love Lyrics"; the Ware "Boat Song," and Rogers' "Love Has Wings" deserves special mention for the manner of their interpretation by the singer.

Able piano accompaniments were furnished by Mrs. Elsa McMynn.

We give below the complete program:

PART I

Joy of the Morning.....Ware
Down in the Forest.....Ronald Love, I Have Won You.....Ronald Nymphs and Fauns.....Bemberg
Evening.....Ronald Night.....Ronald
Spring's Awakening.....Sanderson

PART II

The Year's at the Spring.....Beach
Indian Love Lyrics.....Woodforde-Finden
The Temple Bells
Less than the Dust
Kashmiri Song
Till I Wake
Boat Song.....Ware
Jewel Song (Faust).....Gounod

PART III

Serenade.....Gilberte
Springtide.....Becker
Since we Parted.....Allitsen
The Chrysanthemum.....Salter
A Bowl of Roses.....Clarke
To You.....Speaks
Love has Wings.....Rogers

THE STRAND THEATER CO.

The third week of the Strand Company at Orchestra Hall brought an even better bill than the other two.

The Elsie Janis reel, "Betty in Search of a Thrill," was very natural and wholly delightful, though possibly a trifle unladylike.

The comedy reel was decidedly funny and the "Travelog" (Cuba) and the "Topics of the Day" were of splendid values.

The music was also distinctly fine. Mr. Dunham's Orchestra played the Liszt "Second Rhapsody" with great virtuosity and much display of good taste, and the quartet (Miss Withers, Miss Huntley, Mr. Downer and Mr. Rankl) was splendid in Carrie Jacob Bond's "Just Awearin' for You," which they invested with great vocal charm and much sincerity of meaning.

Miss Lora Withers added greatly to her prestige with the purity and beauty of her vocal style in "My Laddie" (Thayer) and the excellence of enunciation in the "Hong Kong Romance," which she sung as an encore.

For the first time Mr. John Rankl came forward as a soloist and at once gained great favor with the stirring "Drum Major" aria, (Thomas), which he sang with fine vocal display and musical intelligence.

Mr. Rankl has presence and poise and through much experience he has learned to project his voice in the most effective way.

His enunciation is fine and his feeling for text values unexcelled. The audience at once realized all these good qualities, received him very cordially and were insistent in encore demands.

C. E. W.

EUTERPEAN CHORUS CONCERT

Edward T. Clissold conductor of the Euterpean Men's Chorus of Morgan Park, gave a noteworthy program on May 22, before an audience that completely filled the Methodist Episcopal Church, when he brought forward works of established distinction which scored heavily on their merits. These were the bold, swinging "Castilla" by Protheroe, two humorous numbers by Brewer and Macey, a sacred number of Schubert's, "Landsighting," by Grieg, and two groups of lighter works, of which Spross' arrangement of the Dvorak "Humoresque" was especially pleasing. These numbers, comprising the elaborate, the delicate and the ambitious, were given with great solidity, and yet direct understanding of the best manner in which to bring all desired effects. The club was very successful in the light numbers, the attacks being well taken, and the shading exquisite.

The soloists of the evening were Edward T. Clissold, baritone; Miss Helen M. Frost, pianist, and Mr. R. S. Beardsley, baritone. Mr. Clissold gave first the "Prologue" from "Pagliacci," and in a second appearance songs by Wathall, Franz and Schumann. His authority, spontaneity, and musical interpretation were shown in every number, and he was recalled enthusiastically. Miss Frost played two groups in a capable manner, Mr. Beardsley sang the incidental solo in "Landsighting" very well, and Frank M. Bronson aided throughout with his accompanying.

C. J.

Highsmith-Lyding—Mrs. Mary Highsmith Lyding presented Mrs. Catherine Lytle, Miss Frankie Swaim, Mrs. George Meyer, Miss Eleanor Meyer, Mrs. Virginia McIntosh and Miss Katherine Popham in a song program at her home studio, 5422 Ellis avenue, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mandy—Thursday evening, May 13, Miss La Vera Nelson, who is a pupil of Mrs. Frank Mandy, scored a fine success when she appeared as the chief soloist at the annual concert of the Majestic Chapter, O. E. S.

WILLIAM BROOKE REEVE

Organist and Master of the Choir St. Luke's,
Evanston. Organ, Voice, Choir Training

Ada Grace JOHNSON

Recital Soprano Concert
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich.

MARGARET MULFORD

CONTRALTO, MGT. JAMES DE VOE
933 DIME BANK BLDG. 656 LOthrop AV. DETROIT, MICHIGAN

ADORATION: for medium voice
By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ill.
An exquisite little song.—D. A. Clippinger.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood Paw Paw City, Mich.

30 Miles from Lake Paw Paw

An Ideal Spot in Which to Spend the Summer

A Musicians Colony Now Forming

Lots for Sale at Low Prices on Time Payments

Cottages at Reasonable Rental

Address LETTIE ESTEL BROWN, Paw Paw City, Mich.

CONCERT AT NORMAL PARK BAPTIST CHURCH

On the evening of Tuesday, May 18, occurred the annual spring concert by the Normal Park Baptist Church choir, William Griswold Smith, director. Miss Naomi Nator, soprano, was the assisting artist, and Miss Beulah Lee Taylor furnished the accompaniments. The program, which was of a varied and interesting character, was opened by Miss Taylor playing the "Scherzo" in G minor, by MacFarlane. This is an organ number of sufficient dimension to disclose in a wonderful light the capabilities of any organist and Miss Taylor made the most of her opportunity, playing at all times with rare skill as to technique and combinations, yet never failing to add the necessary touch of musical and expressive feeling which makes all music worth while. She also deserves high praise for the sympathetic and finished accompaniments offered during the evening.

The choir, which numbers about forty voices, has made excellent strides under the leadership of Mr. Smith, and it pleased the large audience immensely on this occasion with its interesting and well-prepared numbers. "Hail, Smiling Morn," by Spofforth, was its first number, and was well sung. "De Lamar's 'The Devil's Awa'," was delightful from the viewpoint of harmonization, shading and elasticity of tempo, while "O, My Love's Like a Red, Red Rose," (Garrett), and a "Neapolitan Folk Song," which came later in the program found it at its best. "The Pigtail," by Bullard, was apparently a favorite with the audience. The ladies' chorus was heard in two enjoyable numbers, one of which was much enhanced by the solo work of Mr. Smith, whose voice is equally on a par with his well-defined and finished directing. The Men's Glee Club also came in for a share of the honors of the evening by rendering two or three numbers in a spirited fashion.

Miss Nator won a host of new admirers on this occasion. She always sings songs which are musical and enjoyable to the highest degree. Her voice is one of the most pleasing being heard by the public at present, and she possesses interpretative powers of a meritorious character. "Autumn," (Rogers); "Still As the Night," (Bohm), and "Happiness," comprised her first group, and Del Reigo's "Shadow Song" was added as an encore. She further covered herself with glory by singing the soprano obbligato in the "Inflammatus," from "Stabat Mater," in conjunction with the choir, with powerful voice and great intensity.

Miss Nator and Mr. Smith were very successful in the singing of the duets "Go, Pretty Rose," Marzials, and "O, Lovely Night," Ronald, the latter being repeated. High praise is due Mr. Smith in making so successful a concert possible. H. M. B.

BONANNO SINGS FOR PRESS WRITERS' CLUB

Raoul S. Bonanno, baritone, appeared before the Chicago Press Writers Club at the Hotel La Salle on Sunday afternoon, May 23. His songs included:

Largo al Factotum (from Il Barbiere di Siviglia).....	Rossini
Come dal Ciel Precipita (from Macbeth).....	Verdi
Plaisir d'Amour (in French).....	Martini
Erlkoenig (in German).....	Schubert
Melisande in the Wood.....	Goetz
Ninon.....	Tosti
Requiem.....	Homer
Invictus.....	Huhn

Miss Mae Doelling was the accompanist.

MR BORROFF REMOVES HIS STUDIO

Albert Borroff has moved his studio from 504 Kimball Hall to Room 411 Kimball Hall.

Orchard School—At the Orchard School of Music and Expression a program will be given this (Friday) afternoon at 3, by Miss Lucy Hayes, soprano, and Miss Inez Tucker, soprano, assisted by Mrs. Jessie DeVore, violinist.

HOLMES AND BEEBE PUPILS IN RECITAL

Mr. A. Alfred Holmes of the Mendelssohn Conservatory offered his pupil, Nancy Dalton, in recital, at Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening, May 18. Her program was quite elaborate and ambitious, but with enough of the lighter form included to give the needful variety. She played the numbers with a commendable use of the natural talent she possesses, and the training she has evidently received at the hands of her teacher. There was a reaching out for the inner meaning of the compositions, much power and fleetness of fingers, a definite system of pedaling, and a graceful abandon. In addition, Miss Dalton is fair to look upon and showed that she enjoyed her work. Not all the program was heard, but the Schuett "Reverie" stands out as done with nice touches, the Johnson "Tarentelle" brilliant and dashing, and the Chopin group with a feeling for what the composer meant.

Mrs. Agnes Leist Beebe is to be felicitated upon the promise of her young pupil, Miss Lena Levine, who, while as yet inexperienced, has one of those lovely, light, soprano voices that are capable of untold possibilities. So far, she has been taught to sing carefully and sweetly, with purity of tone and excellent enunciation, and her manners are simple and unaffected, and thereby possess charm. She sang two groups of pretty English and American songs, with their direct and obvious text, and yet admitting of a good use of sincere musical feeling, and she left a decided impression of interest on all who heard her, as well as a reflected credit on Mrs. Beebe's gift of development.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MAY FESTIVAL

Over a thousand young women from the choirs of 227 Sunday schools, representing fourteen religious denominations, will participate in the twenty-second annual May festival concert of the Cook County Sunday School Association at the Auditorium, this (Friday) evening. This is the largest woman's chorus in the world, singing music arranged in three, four and five parts. Choruses by Carl Rheintaler, Carl Bohm, Camille Saint-Saens, Carl Reinecks, Will MacFarlane, and the director, H. W. Fairbank, will be rendered, and a new Andante Religioso, and waltz song, "The Snows," the words from the pen of Elsie Janet French, the music by Mr. Fairbank, will be a feature of the concert. The assisting artists are Avern B. Scolnik, the young Russian violinist; Master Hilton Campbell, a boy contralto, coached by Mr. H. B. Roney, and Miss Valerie Walker, a rising young Chicago soprano, who has already taken some of the gold medals at the Chicago Musical College, and has sung at each of the large sectional rehearsals during the past week, and has charmed her hearers. Mr. Francis S. Moore will be the solo organist. The concert committee is made up of some of Chicago's prominent business men.

Brown—Mr. Roy David Brown of the Walter Spry Music School will present a number of his advanced pupils in recital at Thurber Hall this Friday evening, May 28.

The Hardman Piano

(Established 1842 in New York)

Recognized by the World's Greatest Vocal Artists and Musicians generally as the most perfect instrument to accompany the voice, and used exclusively in the homes of

CARUSO, TETRAZZINI, ZENATELLO, SLEZAK,
AND MANY OTHERS.

"A wise man profits by the experience of others"

Read what they have to say and remember that the same service and quality is at your command. Let us send you our booklet EXPRESSIONS OF OPINION, which contains half-tone pictures of the best known Operatic Stars.

Most reasonable in price among the few Artistic Pianos.

Uprights, $450.00 up. Grands, $700.00 up.

F. S. SPOFFORD, Chicago Representative
Seventh Floor, Republic Building,
State Street, Corner Adams.

GOUNOD'S "ST. CECILIA MASS" SUNG AT GRACE CHURCH, OAK PARK

Another magnificent musical service was heard at Grace Church, Oak Park, on Sunday morning, May 23, when Arthur Randolph Fraser, organist-choirmaster, with his splendid choir of over forty voices, assisted by Korten's twenty-piece orchestra, rendered the entire "St. Cecilia Mass" of Gounod in addition to the "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah"; that stirring anthem, "God Came from Teman," by Stegall; Handel's "Largo," and the usual psalms, chants, etc.

Mr. Fraser is accomplishing wonderful results with the material at his disposal in Oak Park, and the choir deserves unstinted support from not only the Grace Church congregation, but the entire populace of that community as well.

The choir is doing much better work than when heard last by this writer. There is an atmosphere thrown out now which denotes sincerity and reverence for the work at hand, and the singing is adorned with greater breadth of musical expression, refinement and assurance.

The processional of Sunday morning was especially stately and inspiring in that two trumpeters led the choir and upon arrival in the choir loft, a great and effective rendition of the "Hallelujah Chorus" was offered.

The many beautiful numbers of the Mass were interspersed with the usual Episcopal service procedure in a manner very effective and wholly enjoyable. With Mr. Fraser playing the organ score in masterful style, and the orchestra adding to this support and background in a very satisfactory manner, the singing of the choir was raised to unusual heights of excellence. That the singers surmounted the many difficult passages of the vocal score in this great work with ease, surety and an abundance of good tone quality, is sufficient proof of faithful rehearsing under a strict musical and efficient master. The Kortens organization, which was brought in by the rector, Rev. F. R. Godolphin, out of his appreciation for the great work being done by the choir, added greatly to the effectiveness of this particular service by accompanying in a style which showed they are very well versed in this work, and they brought a beautiful allotment of color and shading to the prelude and postlude played by Mr. Fraser at the organ, who should come in for a great amount of praise in bringing about this climax to a splendid series of musical services at Grace Church during the past six months. H. M. B.

JEANNETTE LOUDON STUDIOS

Miss Jeannette Loudon, director of the Jeannette Loudon studios in the Fine Arts Building, presented her pupil, Miss Margaret Weiland, in a piano recital in the Fine Arts Assembly Room on Sunday afternoon, May 23.

Miss Loudon must find Miss Weiland an interesting and conscientious pupil for her work on Sunday afternoon was most enjoyable.

Here is the program, complete:

Toccata and Fugue in D Minor.....	Bach
Liebestraum No. 3.....	Liszt
Novelette in E Major.....	Schumann
Capriccio in B Minor.....	Brahms
Rhapsodie, Op. 119, E Flat.....	Brahms
Waltz in E Minor.....	Chopin
Ballade in G Minor.....	Chopin
Reverie.....	Strauss
Humoresque No. 1.....	Reger
Nocturne.....	Wieland
Les Abeilles.....	Dubois
Andante Tranquillo Presto, from the A Minor Concerto.....	MacDowell
Orchestral accompaniment on second piano, Miss Loudon.

Unfortunately Music News representative could not remain for the entire recital, hearing only the Bach, Liszt, Schumann, Brahms and Chopin numbers, but the impression gained in the hearing of these was that Miss Weiland has unusual musical talent and an excellent teacher. Not only has she excellent technic and understanding, but she has poise and self-possession to add to the satisfaction one feels in listening to her work. Certainly a portion of Miss Loudon's own fine musicianship is reflected in Miss Wieland's playing. C. J. B.

Hall—William John Hall gave an organ recital at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in St. Louis on last Monday evening, playing his own "Victory," "Romance" and "Ecstasy." "The World of Peace," also from his pen, was sung by Mrs. Franklyn Knight.

"KING HAL" GIVEN BY MARSHALL HIGH SCHOOL

The Glee Club of John Marshall High School gave, on Thursday and Friday, May 20 and 21, most praiseworthy performances of "King Hal," a romantic opera, music by Dr. Humphrey Stewart, book and lyrics by Daniel O'Connell.

The music is melodious and has good tuneful choruses, effective orchestral arrangements, and is not too difficult for amateur musicians.

The Marshall presentation was given entirely by members of the school, and brought to public knowledge the fact that here are many excellent voices and much talent.

An orchestra of eighteen pieces gave first-rate support to the singers, and together gave proof that John Marshall School has a music instructor it may well be proud of. Mrs. F. E. Baldwin has been in the school less than a year, but she has accomplished splendid things, and she has found responsive students to work with and appreciation as well.

The opera is surely romantic, but also possesses subtle humor. The scene is laid in Windsor in the time of Henry VIII, and the story concerns itself with King Hal; Leonard a forester; Bardolph, landlord of the Star and Garter; Elizabeth and Phyllis, his wife and daughter Dorothy; a guest at the inn, Robert, constable of Windsor, outlaws, etc. The principal parts were well taken, in some cases the acting being better than the singing, but in several parts the vocal work was unusually good for school performances. Miss Helen Browne as Phyllis, and Miss Charlot Bicknell as Dorothy, displayed light soprano voices of most pleasing quality; Miss Jessie Weissmann was good in an alto role, and William Rich as King Hal won praise for a voice of much promise; also William Keith as Leonard, was good.

Some very pretty dances were given, especially attractive being an interpretive dance, "Song of the Robin," with a whistling accompaniment by Miss Grace Trost, which was most unusually well done.

It was a highly successful performance, and Mr. Louis Block, superintendent, of Marshall School, is full of ambition for more pretentious things next year.

M. K. W.

LUELLA CHILSON OHRMAN

Mme. Luella Chilson Ohrman, the distinguished American soprano, will be very prominently identified with American music in America next season, her manager, Mr. Maurice Fulcher, having already booked over twenty engagements for her with the leading symphony orchestras, colleges and musical clubs.

Mme. Ohrman last April gave up her spring engagements in this country and went to Paris to coach under Jean De Reszke, who, upon hearing her sing, pronounced her voice one of the most beautiful American voices he had heard, and he immediately signed a contract with this fortunate young soprano, agreeing to prepare her gratuitously for an operatic career.

Mme. Ohrman worked diligently with Mr. De Reszke from the first of May until the latter part of July, having four lessons a week with him and three with his assistant, and was making very rapid advance when Mr. De Reszke's health became impaired and she was obliged to return home suddenly, expecting, however, to return to Paris to resume her work with him by November.

But, owing to the terrible conditions in Europe and the fact that Mr. De Reszke is not teaching at present, Mme. Ohrman has decided to remain in America throughout the coming season, where the demand for her services is very great.

With much confidence in its certain success, Mme. Ohrman is preparing a most artistic recital of American songs, which she has been asked to present before the National Federation of Musical Clubs in their Los Angeles meeting on June 29, where will be featured two prize songs, she having been honored by the request to sing them at this time.

Mr. Charles Wakefield Cadman is writing a song for Mme. Ohrman, and she is featuring also the works of John Alden Carpenter, Mary Turner Salter, Gena Branscombe, Corra Willis Ware and Sidney Homer.

When Mme. Ohrman gave her Chicago recital last fall it was the consensus of opinion that her voice was most beautiful and that the charm of her interpretative thought was exceptional. Breadth of style and delicacy of touch were deftly mingled, and throughout the program there was an atmosphere of musical art at its truest and best.

The Chicago recital of the coming season will be awaited with the assurance that it will bring much of musical delight.

A CHURCH CONCERT

An exceedingly enjoyable event was the concert attended by a capacity house Thursday evening, May 20, at Saron Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Church, Shakespeare avenue and Richmond street. A very artistic program had been provided, the equal of which is seldom found in the ordinary church entertainment.

Mme. Agnes Leist-Beebe, whose pleasing presence lends dignity and charm to her selections, chose especially interesting numbers in "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," by Bishop; "The Sunrise Call," by Troyer, and "The Year's at the Spring," by Beach. Her short sketch of the "Cliff Dwellers' Morning Call to Worship Custom" enhanced interest in Troyer's beautiful composition.

The rendition of Handel's "With Verdure Clad" left little to be desired from either musical or devotional standpoints. Her numbers were received with an enthusiasm nothing short of an ovation, several encores being called for.

Mr. Avern B. Scolnik, violinist, who presented "Adoration," by Borowski, and "Barcarolle," by Tchaikowsky, also Elman's "Canto Amarosa," Grieg's "Solvejgs Song" and a "Polish Air" by Drake, plays with a spontaneity to which an audience cannot fail to respond. Several encores were called for. The playing of this talented artist gives one a sincere desire to hear him again in the near future.

Too much credit cannot be given to the directress and accompaniste, Sylvia Jackson-Wahlstrom, for the excellent work of the choir; this being noted especially in the exceptionally fine a cappella rendition of Chailinor's "By the Sea," which was directed and sung without score. Other numbers by the choir, Doncetti's "Now the Night in Starlit Splendor" and Wenneberg's "126th Psalm" were ample evidence of the versatility of this able body of singers. The piano accompaniments of vocal and instrumental selections were played in a manner indicating Mrs. Wahlstrom's thorough understanding of her difficult task, and added much to the otherwise fine work of the soloists.

Miss S. Peterson's solo work in the Wenneberg choir number, and in Ashford's "The Night Song," Chadwick's "Du bist wie eine Blume" and D'Hardelot's "The Dawn," was done in a very commendable and pleasing manner. E. H. RUNDEN.

FACULTY CONCERT OF THE BLISS SCHOOL OF MUSIC, OAK PARK

The program which was given last Friday evening by the Bliss School of Music in Oak Park was a trifle serious for the home-like surroundings. The principal soloist of the evening was Edith Ayers McCullough, who sang two groups of songs.

This young mezzo soprano possesses a voice of pure resonance and clarity of tone. Her tone production is especially good, the tones being well placed so as to afford the singer a power to control the dynamics necessary to expression. The voice is of unusual luscious quality and her musicianship is far above the average.

Mrs. McCullough presented her songs with a good amount of inward feeling.

The others on the program were Zetta Gay Whitson, violinist; Anna M. Thompson, pianist; Beatrice Henry, pianist, and Day Williams, 'cellist, and were heard in two trios for piano, violin and 'cello; a duo for piano and 'cello, a sonata and symphony. Accompaniments were played by Ruth Simmons.

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY

The Stein Conservatory Light Opera Company has been engaged by the Barrison Theater management to give their performance of "Olivette," given so successfully at Central Music Hall last week, in Waukegan, Wednesday evening, May 26.

A
L
I
N
EVAN BARENTZENP
I
A
N
I
S
T
Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st Street and Broadway
NEW YORKAnn Arbor, Michigan*THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC*ALBERT A. STANLEY, Director*ALBERT LOCKWOOD, Head of Piano Dept.*SAMUEL P. LOCKWOOD, Head of Violin Dept.*THEODORE HARRISON, Head of Vocal Dept.EARL V. MOORE, Head of Organ Dept.A Score of Other Teachers of Wide Recognition

"Ann Arbor—A gathering place for advanced students preparing for professional careers."

Chorus of 300—Orchestra of 50 pieces—Auditorium seating 5000—May Festival of six concerts—Concerts by world's greatest artists and organizations.

Tuition rates low for highest grade instruction—Living expenses reasonable. For catalogue or special information address

CHARLES A. SINK, Sec'y.2000 Maynard Street*Ann Arbor, Michigan

BENEFIT CONCERT AT LA GRANGE

Mrs. P. D. McGregor (known professionally as Ada Josephine McGregor), soprano; Miss Josephine McGregor, reader, and Mrs. Ethan Taylor, accompanist, gave a splendidly successful concert at the Town Hall in La Grange on last Monday evening, for the benefit of the Scottish Old Peoples' Home at Riverside, when a fine sum of money was realized for the institution.

After some introductory remarks by the Honorable T. C. MacMillan, Mrs. McGregor appeared for her first group and was greeted with enthusiasm, proving that she is unquestionably very popular in her home city.

Her rendition of the Beach "The Year's at the Spring" was clear and brilliant, MacDermid's "Sacrament" showed some lovely tonal qualities, "La Columba," by Schindler, had much facility of style to recommend it, and Mimi's aria from "La Boheme" was done with fine regard for operatic style and vocal beauty.

Mrs. McGregor has a voice of sweetness and power, and her control over technical resources is very complete.

There is a freshness about her quality which is thoroughly likeable, and her musicianship is unquestionably fine.

Her accompaniments were played with great musical values by Mrs. Taylor, a pianist of splendid attainments, who is also organist at the Presbyterian Church in La Grange, where her work and her personality are regarded very highly.

Following this first group, Miss McGregor came upon the stage with a very graceful and wonderfully clear reading of Oscar Wilde's "Happy Prince" and a Scotch story, which she told with indescribable charm.

For a second group, she presented Whitcomb Riley's delightful "After Whiles" and "A Tribute to Robert Louis Stevenson," by Barrie, both being as unusual as they were delightful.

When Mrs. McGregor appeared the second time she created a sensation and a tremendous burst of applause from the many Scotchmen in the audience, for she was dressed in plaids and cap, and presented a typical picture of a "bonnie Scotch lassie."

Her songs thereafter were all of the Scotch kind—some folk pieces and some well-known works of Harris, Henschel and Foote, including also—as very special favorites—"Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonny Doon" and "Annie Laurie," which latter was given with charming simplicity and beauty of musical attainment.

Needless to say, all this was met with a storm of applause, and the evening was turned into a perfect ovation for Mrs. McGregor and the Scotch songs, this fervor increasing to fever heat when, at the close, a Scotsman appeared with bagpipe and, after marching about the hall, ascended to the stage, where, to his accompaniment, Miss Josephine McGregor created the climax of enthusiasm by her dancing of "McGregor's Gathering," after which a final encore was demanded of Mrs. McGregor, and, when the applause was finally done, the top of the piano was piled high with the floral tributes which had been brought forward to Mrs. McGregor and her charming daughter.

C. E. W.

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR

WILLETT PUPIL SINGS

Miss Bertha Rusnak, contralto, a pupil of William A. Willett, gave a program of songs at 420 Kimball Hall on the evening of May 24. The work of Miss Rusnak shows careful study in interpretation and enunciation, the textual significance of each number being made clear. Range, poise and much musical feeling are hers, and she sang each song with a real ardor for the task on hand.

An aria by Handel opened the program. Then came three short Chadwick numbers, one by Massenet, two by Fesca, and the group closed with D'Hardelot's "You and Love." The second group consisted of Franz songs, seven in number, which were especially well interpreted. Perhaps the most notable were the compositions included in the last offering, which were in the Bohemian language. In these Miss Rusnak presented most worthy readings, using facial expression which conveyed the most subtle emotional features of the text. The material of these songs easily bears comparison with the songs of other nations, and most serious consideration is due them.

Mrs. Bessie M. McAllister gave ideal support at the piano.

C. W. J.

RADANOVITS STUDIO NOTES

Margaret Lester sings at Toledo, at the Ohio Teachers' State Convention, on May 27, and in a program at McCabe Memorial, May 28. Augusta Meeker sang "Elijah" at the May Festival at LaFayette, Ind., on May 18. W. E. Proctor sang in a recital at Cadillac, Mich., on May 19. Artur Platz was soloist at a French benefit at the home of Mrs. John Borden. Cardon V. Burnham gave a recital at the Memorial Church on May 26.

SUMMER SCHOOL

study the
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

Teaching system and HOW to BLEND Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

THE ORIGINATOR

LEARN HOW TO TEACH

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Mr. Oscar Deis, Pianist and Teacher.
Director of Piano Dept.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD MUSIC SCHOOL

Certificates authorized by State of Illinois accredited by Board of Education of Chicago

Phone Wabash 4279

SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BUILDING,
218 SOUTH WABASH, CHICAGO, ILL.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART
606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST
BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College
FRANKLIN STEAD, Director
School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language
Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI
ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

DAN S. DENTON TENOR
OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER
TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue - - - - - CHICAGO

The Elderly Person

The Elderly Person was watching the preparations for getting the big steamer away from her dock when he felt a distinct slap on the cheek and a cheery sound in the air which he detected at once as the greeting of a jovial, blustering but good-hearted friend.

"Oho," said the Lake Wind, "you're here, are you? I've missed you for a long time and wondered when I should meet you again. I come in shore every night and run about the steamer decks to see if I have any friends aboard. I generally find a few, but I am really not what you would call popular. My younger brother, Lake Breeze, is better liked. He is a modern, with gentle manners and smooth attentions. I'm a tough old citizen and haven't cared to cultivate the finer phases of things. But with my smaller circle of friends I think I have and give more pleasure than does he, with his very large crowd of acquaintances. There's a mighty difference between the two.

"It's going to be a fine night out. In fact it is already. That's how I got in here so early. My brother usually has the right of way and comes up the river about sunset time. Tonight I'm the fellow, and I am glad for you because I know you like it. Rough? Yes, I think it would be called rough by a great many persons, but it is only a big frolic that I am having, and there is nothing to be disturbed about, no rain or thunder. This tug that pulls your boat out backwards makes so much noise and sends out so much smoke that you can't know what I've been getting ready until she drops off your line and you start northeastwards. It has taken me many years to adapt myself to this crooked way of getting in and out of land, and it gets worse every year. When I was younger I used to think nothing of just sweeping across the flats and rushing into the village to play with the young trees and make friends with the people who liked hearty things. But now you've built so many obstructions of all kinds that I have to sort of guide myself into town. Fact is, I don't try to go very much further than the docks, feeling myself fairly exhausted by that time. It is very hard when you have to divide up your strength and cannot throw it all into what you are doing. You know that, do you? Yes. I suppose it's true of other things than the Lake Wind, but I find it particularly trying. Of course I know I don't lose my individuality and have my certain force. You knew the moment I touched your face, didn't you? Wasn't a caress, was it? Of course there's life in the old wind yet, but you ought to have known me in my prime and my unmolested days. I'm just like all old fellows, you say? Fond of boasting what I was like when I was younger? Well, but I was —ah! never mind, we've dropped the tug now and are out in the open. Like it, don't you? I can see you are all right. Say, you are not as young as you used to be, and don't feel sure of yourself? Nonsense, that's another old fellow's way of talking! Come on up here in front, right down to the bow and lean against the rail. Pull your hat down well or you'll lose it. It's well you brought your overcoat. Button it up and fold your arms on the rail and look pleasant and we'll have a good reminiscent talk. That little light flashing in the pilot's room is his way of looking at his chart and seeing that he is sailing right. We are going northeast, and that's where I've been blowing from all afternoon, so you are 'right in the teeth of the gale,' as you used to read it in James Fenimore Cooper and Captain Maryatt.

"Remember when I first met you? You were a sorry looking object. You had been sick, you say? Certainly. I knew it at once, and took a real liking to you, because I knew what I could do for you if you would let me. That's the reason I was gentle with you that first night when we sailed out of the Chicago harbor under the placid full moon. I was watching you, for I knew my real test of you would be that first night. If you at once sought the seclusion which the cabin granted, as Sir Joseph Porter in 'Pinafore' sings it, then I knew the trip would mean nothing to you. But you didn't. You were wise before your time by going straight to the bow of the boat, and curling up on the anchor chains and watching the moon, and the fading lights of the city, and leaning far over to see the prow cut into the water and send up the shower of spray. You have never seen anything like it before, and you enjoyed it like a child. I couldn't help mothering you, for I knew what you had left behind and how anxious you were. So I just petted you and touched you lightly and goodnaturedly, and kept you interested in trying to find out where I came from and was going to do next. Before you realized it, you were standing up straight with your arms folded and urging me to come on and play harder. Then I liked you more than ever and we had great sport. The harder I whipped you the better you liked it, and you laughed and turned to catch me from every quarter, and I could see the courage that came into you with each successive breath you drew in of my medicine. I could hardly get you to go to bed. I suggested it several times, but you said no. Going to act the same way tonight, are you? All right, only you don't need sympathy this time, and no favors will be granted to full-sized old gentlemen.

"I remember how you finally did go to the cabin and slept. And I was surprised as well as pleased to see you next morning come out while I was busy helping the men who mopped the decks. You see, they splash the water over the decks, but I have to dry out what does not run off. We had wonderful days and nights. Will you ever forget that night on the Georgian Bay, following your day of suffering and fear caused by that maid who put damp sheets on the bed of the room you were given? That was a blighting episode on the trip and I was glad I had been so industrious on the other lake, else you might not have gone through safely. I know how you trembled into your berth of that Canadian steamer and I hung around the stateroom window anxiously and did my best until the boat started. Then the sweet voiced tenor sang the 'Lullaby' from 'Erminie,' and you went to sleep like a child. Then I talked to the water, and together we made long swells that sent the boat up and down like a big rocking chair, and you went to sleep like a baby being rocked and sung to rest. And I hung around your window all night and you never stirred. Never had a sleep like that before or since, did you? But it did its work effectively. You were a little unsteady on your pins next day, and the young Toronto physician on board watched you closely, but you knew you were all right. You sat on deck all those days and you and I talked things over and you decided some things in your life once and for all. And do you know that I have told many other men of your experience, and helped them because you talked out loud and fought your battle that way with the fears that persisted in disturbing you. . . .

"A little bit strong for you up here? My caresses are rather sturdy? Well, take a turn about the steamer for a change. We can go back under the shelter of the deck roof where it is what the ladies call 'more comfortable.' There are some young fellows back there doing what they call singing. I have to carry a lot of that sort of stuff on my wings, but it does not last very long once I get it out in the open. Those sounds which I heard you once call 'barbershop chords' are much in evidence, particularly when the 'popular songs of the day' run out and the singers fall back upon old stagers like 'Kentucky Home' and 'Swanee River.' Very interesting too, is it, to find that all these things about honeys and coons and best girls that come to the front with such vehemence disappear nearly as quickly. Makes me think of Bayard Taylor's 'Song of the Camp,' where each man sang the song of his own country, but all sang 'Annie Laurie.' Can't kill good old things of any sort, can they? That's why I am still busy after countless years of service. I make new friends every day but I love the old ones best, because they have been tried and tested. Best thing about good friends is that, no matter how long they are separated, just as soon as they come together again they begin where they left off and see no change in each other save a better ability to love one another. . . .

"I thought you would prefer to be alone here. The next time you go back there will be no one there save the one lone sleeper who had not enough money to pay his passage and for a berth, too. I look after these fellows every night. People look pityingly at them, but I make up to them for their uncomfortable positions and they sleep sounder for my smoothing their hair, than some others do in the cabins. It's getting late, the officers are walking the deck. Perhaps you ought to turn in. Not ready yet? Want to see the stars swing and burn, and to watch the phosphorescence play, and to feel the motion morning, I regret to say, for you will be the little ones, to note how the ship's light floats from side to side, to hear the creak of cordage, and the strain of steel and wood, to note the throb and push of the engines and feel the pulsation of the vessel as it is forced through the water, to listen to the gush of the water pouring from the exhausts and to hear the screw twist and turn endlessly and noisily. And best of all, say you, to hear me talk and slap you familiarly and understand me just as well as ever? Now, that's what I like to hear, and will stay here until your three hours are up. I shant see you in the morning, I regret to say, for you will be in an up-river channel. So we will do our visiting now. . . ."

Later on the voice said merrily, "Good night."

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

The season of 1914-15 is the largest musical season that Washington ever has known and it is interesting to see how rich a store of the world's artists we have enjoyed. With symphony concerts numbering fourteen we have been able to know and compare the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic and the New York Symphony Orchestra, under their respective leaders, Dr. Karl Muck, Leopold Stokowski, Josef Stransky and Walter Damrosch. With the orchestras we have heard as soloists, two violinists, Kreisler and Zimbalist; four pianists, Bauer, Gabrilowitsch, Hofman and Samaro; one 'cellist, Beatrice Harrison, and six singers, Galski, Gluck, Teyte and Gerhardt, sopranos; Schumann-Heink, contralto, and Amato, baritone; the Boston Symphony, as always, playing one entire orchestra concert.

Of the many solo recitals by world artists, which this year number thirty, without counting the many club activities, with their soloists often of world renown, and the almost endless benefit concerts of high stamp, we have heard Fritz Kreisler in two recitals with capacity houses; John McCormack in three, with capacity houses, and of violinists, also Zimbalist in recital; of pianists, Hofman, Gabrilowitsch and Hutcheson, and of singers, besides McCormack, there were in the order of their appearance, Yvonne de Treville, Schumann-Heink, the Fuller sisters in their quaint folk lore; Louise Homer, Bispham, Julia Culp, Gogorza, Frieda Hempel, Madame Gabrilowitsch and Alma Gluck. The Flonzaley Quartet gave two concerts, and Ada Sassoll, harpist, also was heard.

The symphonies upon our program have been Brahms, No. 2, in D, given twice; Tchaikowsky, No. 6, the "Pathétique"; Strauss' Symphonic-Fantasic, "From Italy"; Beethoven, No. 8, given twice; Tchaikowsky, No. 4, given twice; Dvorak, "New World"; Mozart, "Jupiter," C major; Beethoven, No. 5; Haydn, "Militaire"; Schubert, "Unfinished," and Ropartz, No. 4, in C major, first time in Washington. The much discussed point of some arrangements being made whereby we can have fourteen different symphonies for our fourteen concerts has been handled, but the conductors in changing their programs have chanced upon other repetitions.

H. D. H.

American Conservatory—Post-graduate recitals will be given tomorrow (Saturday afternoon) at Kimball Hall by Margaret Weick, Vivian O'Brien, Elmer Ende, Linnie Chronisteer, Dorothy Ginsberg and Mary Thrash.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Girtan School
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 18988

GEORGE RALF KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Roeder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
'ycenm' Arts' Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Arthur Uhe PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
INDSBORG, IAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

NORA LORAIN OLIN
VOICE
524 Kimball Hall, 321 Lake Street, Oak Park. Tel. O. P. 2724

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

Iowa Music Teachers' Convention at Waterloo

Comment by HARRY W. PORTER

The twentieth anniversary of the Society of Music Teachers of Iowa was held in the attractive city of Waterloo, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, May 19, 20 and 21. Members and delegates from the towns and cities of the state began to arrive Wednesday and continued throughout the three days of the convention, regardless of the fact that the weather was far from ideal for such an occasion. The sessions were held at three places, namely, the First Methodist Church, Majestic Theater and the Russell-Lamson Hotel.

The Iowa Music Teachers' Association was organized in 1885 by Mr. Louis Septon, Coe College; Mr. Ernest Lco, Cedar Rapids; Messrs. Godfrey and Barbour of Cornell College; Mr. Oldman of Toledo; Mr. Kimball of Grinnell; Mr. Donley, Mr. Abbot, who were publishers of a musical paper, The Presto, of Des Moines, and Mr. A. Rommell of Mt. Pleasant. It has continued its career with several interruptions since that time. The past twenty-four years have been the most active ones enjoyed by the association. The list of past officers is incomplete to date, but those set down as past presidents are: William H. Pontius, Dudley L. Smith, J. W. Ruggles, Frank Nagel, Charles F. Grade, George L. Pierce, C. A. Fullerton, A. C. Kleine, Henry W. Matlock, Ernest A. Lco, and Mrs. Frederick Heizer, 1915-16.

The programs were not carried out as printed, many things occurring that seemed to be unavoidable, but the committee used every possible resource at the last moment, and for the most part all the vacancies were filled.

Many round table meetings had been aranged for the discussion of "Standardization." The first one heard was led by Mr. C. A. Fullerton, of Cedar Falls, a man whose long experience in "Public School Music teaching," in the Iowa State Normal, has given him a broad view of the musical education as it is now conducted in the many public and high schools of the states. Mr. Charles D. Neff of Fayette gave an interesting talk at the Thursday meeting, Mr. Rossiter Cole and many others contributed helpful hints and suggestions that should prove valuable if carried out. Mrs. Frederick Heizer made a very short address, outlining the important phases that should receive more attention to hurry and help complete the adoption of standardization, also stating some of the difficulties met by herself, the executive board, the local executive committee, and the earnest effort they individually had made to arrange fine programs.

EDNA H. ELLISON

Opening Recital

Wednesday morning the first recital of the convention proved very attractive in its outline, opening with the "First Sonata," by Guilman, played in a very distinctive and musicianly manner by Mr. G. W. Sampson Jr. of Cedar Falls, who also appeared later as an accompanist of great ability.

Mr. Henry C. Beinke displayed a good technical equipment and a pleasing tone in a group of 'cello soli. Miss Winifred Merrill, violinist, has much musical ability, but her "Concerto," by Mendelssohn, is beyond her present equipment.

Debussy's "Out of the Depths" was sung with a fine breath voice and a good understanding of the musical content, by Mrs. Annette Yde-Lake.

Ralph Hix displayed much resource as an organist by his rendition of Mendelssohn's "B Flat Minor Capriccio."

Mrs. Lily Wadhams-Moline gave a rousing and effective rendition of Shelley's "Fanfare D'Orgue," and in a composition of her own, "Allegretto," she gained some fine effects, proving it to be another good composition well written and musically attractive.

§ § §

Afternoon Program

The afternoon program comprised the best in musical classics as did the programs that followed. Individual comment upon the many performers is almost an impossibility, for the program was of great length. But taken collectively, they displayed adequate technical equipment, good musical training, and each one made a sincere effort to do his or her best in their respective groups. Those scheduled to appear were Frederick Mills Ross, Miss Eleanor Houts, Mrs. George R. Chase, Miss Emma Gaarde, Miss Loa Scheeler, Miss Edith Groff, H. J. Meis, Clyde W. Stephens, Mrs. Wilma Bashor-Galloway, Miss Florence C. Fennessy, Martha Zehetner, Miss Alta Wagner, Mrs. Altland, Miss Emily M. Perkins.

§ § §

Lucille Stevenson and Agnes Bodholdt Give Recital

Miss Lucille Stevenson, always a great favorite whenever she chooses to sing, is an artist whose every appearance means that you will hear something worth while. Her's is a voice of great beauty and she possesses intelligence and musicianship par excellent.

She sang a delightful program and scored an emphatic success. Beautiful indeed were the interpretations of Handel's "Come, My Beloved," and Sibelius—"Mädchen kam vom Stelldichein Wolf-Erist's" Sibelius.

AGNES BODHOLDT

A group of MacDowell numbers met with fine favor, and she sang them with consummate artistry. "The Sea" was a gem. The closing group comprised numbers by Bachelet and Homcr. "Chere Nuit" was given with a fine grasp of dramatic and interpretative thought wholly satisfying, and

For a Summer Festival!

Why Not an Operetta for Male Voices?

Try

"Captain Van der Hum"

Book and Lyrics by
MAUDE ELIZABETH INCH

Music by

W. Rhys-Herbert

Vocal Score $1.00

If, however, you prefer, rendering an operetta for ladies or mixed voices send for our list.

J. Fischer & Bro. New York
7, 8, 10 and 11 BIBLE HOUSE (Astor Place)

Agnes Hansel-Harter Con-
tral-
to
Concerts Oratorios Recitals

Hanna Butler

SOPRANO Pupils Recital Oratorio
512 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wabash 4870

Summer Term

Wm. Clare Hall
TENOR

Will continue teaching
at his studio

428 Fine Arts Building
Throughout June, July
and August

"Sing to Me, Sing" was redemanded and graciously given.

Miss Agnes Bodholdt is a young artist with everything in her favor, for she has intelligence, technic, musical ability, and her stage presence and charming personality are such as to immediately ingratiate her with any audience.

She seems to take the keenest enjoyment in her playing, and her rendition of Beethoven's "Thirty-two Variations in C Minor" was compelling, musically and made to glow with musical color and thought. Her second group, comprising numbers by Debussy, Sauer and Chopin, was played with great abandon and a fine understanding of the musical content. In the MacDowell group, Miss Bodholdt excelled herself, vesting each number with the many musical graces, fine tonal quality and poesy of expression.

It is safe to predict that Misses Stevenson and Bodholdt will be given a most cordial welcome should they choose to return at any future time.

h h h

Pupils' Recital

Two programs of the convention were given by pupils of some of the many schools and teachers in the state, and it is well to say that each one who appeared did so with sincerity and a loyalty that means so much to the serious minded teacher and musician. Those who appeared were: Belle Bennie, Beatrice Burke, Alvaretta West, Maud Knoop, Thera Angell, Bernice Rickert, Ruth Converse, Irene Kier, Alice Davis, Earl Armil, Donna Cooley, Ruth Corey, Agnes Thompson, Marion Gilley, Edna Case, Jack

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall Exclusive Management HARRY CULBERTSON
JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

4621 Lake Park Av. Teacher, Concerts

ELLMER ZOLLER

PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

Isabel Richardson

MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg.,
reduction Oratorio and Grand Opera. Chicago

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

THE EMINENT PIANIST
NEUHAUS
CLEVELAND IN JUNE

Leonard, displaying their musical abilities and equipments to the best advantage within their present powers.

h h h

Iowa Composers

The Iowa composers appearing were Lily Wadhams Moline, Henri Ruifrok and Arcule Sheasby.

Mrs. Moline's songs were "Psalm of Praise," "O God of Love," (sacred), "Karlickens Vag," "In Slumberland," (secular). The music in each song fits the text in a most certain and effective way, and they have melodies and rhythms rather unusual in modern song writing. You hear them once and you want to hear them again, for the words and music come to you as a message. Miss Edna Ellison, soprano, was the interpreter of the group, and it is well to say that it would indeed be difficult to think of a young artist who could present them as well as does Miss Ellison. Her voice is of a fine quality, rich and full, produced with such apparent ease as to be wholly at her command. She has true musical feeling in abundance and her artistry is fine. "O God of Love" was very effectively sung; "Karlickens Vag" and "In Slumberland" were vested with many touches of color and expression, along elegant lines thoroughly artistic and finished.

LILY WADHAMS MOLINE

Mr. Sheasby presented a violin sketch, from his own pen, that was very attractive and played with great finish and beauty of tone, as was his solo group of the evening, winning him the enthusiastic approval of the audience.

Mr. Ruifrok is a fine musician and his compositions are built along solid lines, although the ones heard on this occasion do not call for brilliancy of technic to present them, but rather a good singing tone and good understanding of legato playing, which requirements were ably met by Mr. Ruifrok. "Two Preludes in G and B Minor," a "Serenade" and a suite, "Flowers from a Dutch Garden," were the numbers presented and thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Rossitter Cole gave the music melodramas, "Robert of Sicily" and "Hiawatha" a very enjoyable presentations. Mrs. Cole is a fine accompanist and Mr. Cole a sincere and intelligent reader.

Paul Althouse Press Comment

WHAT BOSTON THINKS OF PAUL ALTHOUSE

Boston Daily Advertiser, April 12, 1915—Mr. Althouse was brilliant in the "Ingemisco."

Boston Herald—Mr. Althouse displayed a most agreeable voice.

Boston Evening Transcript—Mr. Althouse sang with sonority, suavity, and amplitude and as a singer who has mastered his music diligently and intelligently.

Boston Evening Post—Mr. Althouse sang very effectively. His voice gains in fullness and sonority with each season. He was dramatic in interpretation and colored his tones with fitting thought for the character of text and music.

Christian Science Monitor—Mr. Althouse was delightful for the warmth of his reading and for his daring expressiveness on his high tones.

WHAT AKRON, OHIO, THINKS

April 16th

Beacon Journal—His fine tenor voice combined with style and assurance, made his singing enjoyable in the highest degree.

Akron Times—Mr. Althouse was enthusiastically received. His clear, fresh voice and perfect enunciation left a remarkable impression on the large audience.

WHAT DETROIT THINKS

Detroit Free Press, April 18th—Mr. Althouse sings oratorio music as he is reported to sing opera, intelligently and with authority. He is a tenor worth hearing not once but many times.

Detroit News—Mr. Althouse's finished renditions met with the approval they merited.

WHAT THE BUFFALO PAPERS THINK OF PAUL ALTHOUSE

Buffalo Commercial, May 15th, 1915—Paul Althouse has a rich tenor voice and sings with much skill.

Buffalo Express—Mr. Althouse has a very beautiful voice, full, vibrant and effortless in its production. Its appealing quality lent special effect to the great tenor solo, "Ingemisco," to which he gave exquisite delivery.

Buffalo Courier—Paul Althouse charmed every one with his vibrant and powerful tenor voice and his ingratiating style. His solo "Ingemisco" was delivered with fervid eloquence and impressive feeling in every tone.

Buffalo Evening Times—Paul Althouse, the famous tenor, revealed a voice of exquisite caliber and wide range. He sang with convincing surety, particularly pleasing in the upper register, where so many tenors force the voice. His chief number was "Ingemisco," its pathos was so vividly portrayed, through the medium of a well controlled mezza voce, that it merited the recognition of the audience.

Buffalo Evening News—Mr. Althouse was heard to great advantage in this music, his voice lending itself with delightful charm to the character demanded.

WHAT NEWARK THINKS OF PAUL ALTHOUSE

Newark Star, May 5th, 1915—The tenor aria, "La Boheme," formed a pleasant introduction to Paul Althouse and brought the singer at once into complete accord with his audience. The pure timbre of his voice was particularly suited to the Puccini composition, which in turn set forth to advantage its lyric notes. The artist's easy, unassuming stage presence added to the pleasure of his work.

Newark Evening News—Mr. Althouse's fresh tones and good control of them gave great pleasure.

WHAT ATLANTA THINKS

Althouse displayed a voice of vigor and pleasing quality.

Althouse in his Atlanta debut made a most favorable impression.

"The Holy City"

The State Teachers' College Choir, C. A. Fullerton, director, opened the Thursday evening program in a very auspicious and satisfying manner. There was a good quality of tone, a clearness of attack in their group of songs that left no doubt as to quality of the choral training they have received. Numbers by Schubert and Schumann were sung with fine effect, and in the chorus part of the "Stabat Mater," they left nothing to be desired. Miss Harriet Case, soprano, sang the "Inflammatus," by Rossini with great unction. She has a voice of excellent range and quality that has grown in power, freedom and breadth in a most astonishing way. She has poise and style to a high degree, and her musical feeling is such as to imbue whatever she presents with beauty and dramatic intensity as she chooses.

HARRIET CASE

Miss Case has enjoyed splendid success as a teacher and artist at the state college, and it is safe to predict many more successes. The united chorus of the Waterloo churches recruited by Mr. Charles E. Sindlinger joined forces with State College Choir, and under the direction of Mr. Fullerton they gave a very interesting and musical presentation of "The Holy City." Mr. Fullerton kept them well in hand throughout the evening, gaining some excellent effects in the delightful chorus numbers of the score. For the short time employed in preparing the chorus, they sang with surprising surety. The attacks and shading were well taken and the balance and volume of tone very satisfying and worthy of commendation.

LUCILLE STEVENSON

Mrs. Frederica Gerhardt Downing has personality, a fine voice, good musicianship, and she sings with artistic finish and a good style.

Mrs. Downing gave a broadly dramatic and effective reading of the "Aria" from "Joan 'Are" that won her the enthusiastic approval of the audience. The contralto role of the "Holy City" was sung with authority and telling effect. Very fine indeed was her rendition of the "Aria," "Eye Hath Not Seen."

Mr. George Brewster sang the tenor solos with apparent ease and a good degree of finish. His soft tone work was very effective and enjoyable during the evening. It is sincerely hoped that he will be heard from often.

GEORGE F. OGDEN

Grace Clark-De Graff has a fine voice, and she used a good oratorio style that made her singing of the aria "These Are They" very effective. Mrs. De Graff was also heard in Gounod's "Mon coeur ne peut changer," singing it with a good display of vocal resource, that was very convincing and artistic.

Mr. Lowell Mabie Welles brought to bass solos a vibrant baritone voice of unusual beauty, with true musical feeling and warmth as valuable adjuncts; he sang with good interpretative thought and style. Mr. Welles has a fine following as a teacher, and his large class of enthusiastic pupils is proof enough of his worth. His singing shows resource in abundance, and the future should offer him splendid opportunities for he has the voice and the ability, should he choose the concert field, and he sang with unshakable poise and finish.

Mrs. Lu Verre Bea-Covell furnished the accompaniments for the chorus and soloists, no small task, and played them very well indeed for the most part, as did the assisting string quartet.

To those who helped to make the evening possible much praise is due and merited.

Convention Notes

Five very enterprising music publishing companies attended the Iowa convention, namely Gamble Hinged Music Company, Chicago; Clayton F. Summy Company, Chicago; Arthur P. Schmidt, Boston; Willis & Co., Cincinnati, and Haddorff Music Company, Des Moines.

Miss Elsie Lincoln sang a solo preceding Thuel Burnham's recital.

Mr. Ralph Leo, who appeared on Friday's program, was the winner of the state contest in voice.

Miss Agnes Bodholdt was the artistic accompanist for Miss Lucille Stevenson in their joint recital.

Mrs. Molinc's songs attracted much attention. Many teachers and singers expressed their intention of using them in the near future.

The banquet on Thursday evening at the Russell-Lamson was well attended, and a very enjoyable event.

Members' Program

Some very commendable music was furnished by the members in their program of Friday afternoon, that represented the best in musical literature.

Those scheduled on the printed program were Ada Campbell, Robert MacDonald, Rose Riechard-Marshall, Grace Jones-Jackson, Esther MacDowell-Swisher, Alma Schmidt-Gobble, Evelyn Dissmore, Henrietta Emmons-Isaacs, Mary Beatrice Rily, Rose Whitby, Lucy Lowry, Lucille Beckler, Vivian Paul, Martin Bruhl, Ralph Leo, and George Frederick Ogden.

Officers for the Coming Year

Mrs. Frederick Heizer of Sioux City, President; Miss Elsie Lincoln of Ft. Dodge, Vice President; Mr. George Frederick Ogden of Des Moines, Secretary and Treasurer for three years; Ernest A. Leo of Cedar Rapids, Member of Executive Committee; Renri Ruifrok of Des Moines, Local Chairman.

George Frederick Ogden

Mr. George Frederick Ogden of Des Moines is the newly elected secretary and treasurer of the association, and it is an assured fact that the selection was indeed wise, for he has business ability and a broad understanding of the musical situation. Mr. Ogden is a very progressive and serious minded artist pianist and teacher, who believes in keeping in touch with the best in new music, offering in his group of solos the Dolmanji "Rhapsodie in F. Sharp Minor"; Debussy's "Bruyeres"; Grainger's "Irish Tune," and Cyril Scott's "Etude in A Minor."

Mr. Ogden is most refined and musicianly, and his interpretations are very intelligent and finished. His tonal work is at all times colorful and singing. His playing of the group was one of the most delightful and interesting. He received the commendatory and merited praise of all who heard him. Not only did his playing give unusual pleasure, but the programmed numbers furnished something new to many of the teachers and pupils.

Miss Belle Bennie, a pupil of Mr. Ogden, appeared on the pupils' program, playing in such a distinguished and brilliant manner as to prove herself to be a coming young artist. She gave a splendid rendition of the Sibelius "Romance" and the "Invitation to the Dance," by Weber-Taussig. She gained some fine effects in shading and disclosed a well developed musicianship.

Thuel Burnham Recital

The appearance of Thuel Burnham was awaited with great expectancy by all, and needless to say they were not disappointed. His musicianship and artistry are above reproach. His technic is so colossal that there doesn't seem to be any difficulties. He gets a tone in the lighter passages that is very beautiful, and his climaxes are overpowering in volume and breadth.

He opened the program with numbers by Bach, Mozart, Schubert and Schubert-Liszt. His playing of "Beaux Bourée" was rarely beautiful in dynamic contrasts. His "Erl-King" and "Impromptu" played with wonderful abandon and effect. A group of Chopin found in Mr. Burnham a thoroughly refined and artistic interpreter, whose playing from musicianly and artistic standpoints was impeccable.

The closing group doubtless met with the most enthusiastic reception. His wonderful facility of execution, unshakable poise, and authoritative presentations won him the enthusiastic approval of the audience, and it is an assured fact that he will receive a most cordial welcome should he choose to return.

Much commendatory praise is due Mrs. Frederick Heizer, president; Scott B. Prowell, acting secretary and treasurer; Lu Verne Beal Covell, registrar; Charles E. Sindlinger, local chairman, and C. A. Fullerton, Charles F. Grade, members of the executive board, who made special efforts that all might go smoothly.

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

The meeting for next year is announced to be held in Des Moines.

GALESBURG, ILL.

An interesting organ recital was given May 18 at Knox Conservatory by Miss Edna May Gaylord of the class of 1915. She is a pupil of John Winter Thompson, and presented the following interesting numbers:

Pastoral Sonata.....	Rheinberger
Pastorale.....
Intermezzo.....
Fugue.....
Song of Sorrow.....	Gordon Balch Nevin
Minuet.....	Boccherini
Toccata and Fugue in D Minor.....	Bach
Lamentation.....	Guilmant
Funeral March of a Marionette.....	Gounod
Grand Chorus in G Major.....	Faulkes

Donath—At Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind., on last Saturday evening, Mr. Kurt Donath presented "Faust" with Irene Graf, Pearl McAdams, Kurt Donath and Augusto Gonzales in the leading parts, with Marie Simon at the piano. This was followed by "The Lovely Galatea," given by Miss Graf, Miss McAdams, Mr. Donath and Mr. Gonzales.

Neff—A very attractive new booklet announces that Miss Hazel Dell Neff, American coloratura soprano, is in the field for recital, concert and oratorio engagements. Miss Neff has splendid testimonials.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

JOHN DOANE CONCERT ORGANIST COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS--NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING---608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS VOCAL DIRECTOR WESTERN CONSERVATORY Voice Teacher Coaching PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - Cello	MARGUERITE AUSTIN - Violin
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano	ALBERTO SALVI - - - Harp
LOIS BROWN - - - Piano	FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

(26th Year)

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

LOWELL MARIE WELLES

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago, Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

HAPPENINGS AND DOINGS

New Yorkers are making ready for the annual Hegira. This time not across the pond in great numbers; but doing the exposition (at least for those provided with the more than needful) and taking up residence in the nearby resorts—the hill or dale or seaside varieties—or traipsing to the roof when the space is comfortable or available and the purse lean.

Among the prominent artists flying to cooler retreats are Germaine Schnitzer, who has already departed from her lovely suite in the Ansonia, where it was so comfy to sit with her and hear her descant upon the various things under the sun appealing to people with brains and hearts; of subjects outside the realm of music as well as the consideration of all that pertained to the artist in the making or the doing.

Well Madame Schnitzer has taken a charming cottage near the seashore, and not too far away from the metropolis—indeed a home in the commuters' paradise—at least one of them—for the commuter in the east has a host of Edens to choose from) and I am longing for the day set apart for my visit, to visualize her in her new environment.

Wherever she is there is harmony, for she diffuses the musical atmosphere around her; transmuting it into the very harmonies of love and life.

And, apropos of the sometime whimsical little prima donna of the black and white keys, I must tell you, my readers, of a curious experience the pianiste had. Indeed, it was after her appearance in a western city as soloist with a fine local orchestra.

She was petitioned for a hearing of the performance of two of the most talented pupils of the leading piano teacher of the city, and good naturedly consented, not only because of her innate kindheartedness, but for the reason of her desire to hear the work of an American pedagogue of her beloved instrument.

The impromptu recital over, Madame Schnitzer put the question to the teacher of the number of hours of practice the pupils devoted to their work.

"Oh," proudly replied the teacher, "not more than three hours daily. You know Josef Hoffmann has said in his book that it is not necessary to practice more than three hours a day."

"Quite true," responded Madame Schnitzer, "it may not be necessary for Hoffmann, but for these pupils I hardly think twenty hours out of the twenty-four would suffice."

It is needless to add that the teacher retired in high dudgeon; but as the artist remarked: "What else could I have said and still remained truthful and faithful to my ideals?"

It is a matter of interest to note that Madame Schnitzer has received an earnest invitation from a great concert organization in Holland to make a tour of that country, to last a month at least, and during the coming October.

Madame Schnitzer is a great favorite in Holland, which she toured not so very long ago, and her successes in every art center of the country were overwhelming. She was compared to only the very greatest living pianists, and the public stormed the concert halls in which she appeared.

Madame Schnitzer has refused this flattering offer, and will devote the season of 1915-1916 to an extensive tour of the United States—indeed, she contemplates a tour which will reach from coast to coast.

The Misses Constance Purdy, contralto, and Mabel Hammond, pianist, and manager of Miss Purdy will summer at their home in Maine, after a busy season during which many cities of the union were visited, and many concerts and recitals given.

They have also had many appearances in New York and vicinity, and will doubtless enjoy the quiet and restfulness of a protracted visit to a spot remote from the cares and endeavors of the professional life.

This does not mean that both these sterling musicians will not give some time to the further enrichment of their respective repertoires; for they are eminently conscientious and devoted apostles of the art with which they are identified.

That eminently successful and genial manager, Mr. Charles L. Wagner, informs me that Mr. Denis F. McSweeney will be associated with him in all his concert enterprises in the capacity of "associate manager."

Mr. McSweeney is a gentleman of delightful and striking personality, young and handsome with much of the Spanish good looks (an heritage of some of the more fortunate Celts), good-natured, and eminently popular with all who have had the pleasure of making his acquaintance.

Mr. McSweeney has been actively, though unofficially, identified with the career of his distinguished countryman, Mr. John McCormack, since the tenor's arrival in America, and acted as his personal manager during the very successful Australian tour of 1913.

During the past two seasons he has rendered valuable assistance to Mr. Wagner

G
I
O
V
A
N
N
I

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

M
A
R
I
A

in arranging for McCormack's appearances in New York and vicinity.

Mrs. Gertrude F. Cowen informs me that she will leave for a booking tour of the west and south, and assures me that her artist, Madame Sundelius, is making great successes wherever she has been heard.

Very flattering notices have been received from the pens of various reviewers, and her voice and interpretation both extolled to the skies.

Mrs. Cowen also informs me that she will be the impresario for Irma Seydel, a young American violinist, who has appeared with the prominent orchestras of America and Europe.

It is to be hoped that Madame Cowen will be the cosoloist with her young violinist and at the piano, which she plays with the skill of the virtuoso.

I know, for she has given me a taste of her skill.

Mr. Paul Althouse, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House, has not yet finished his busy season as operatic star and concert soloist. He achieved great successes in Newark and Paterson at both festivals, where his name was a magnet to draw those who had heard him in opera.

Mr. Althouse is amply equipped with all the qualities making for a successful and eminent vocalist. He is comely, and he is young, and he sings with intelligence and authority.

He has been a favorite wherever he has been heard. Some flattering critics of his work appear in another column of this issue.

Mrs. Celeste D. Hackscher will have the pleasure of numbering her delightful suite, "To the Forest," among the most important of the compositions to be found on the program of the Los Angeles Federation Concerts.

She will herself perform the piano part—which will a thousand fold enhance the importance of the number when it is played, and the violin part, played here by Zimbalist, will be in the keeping and the performing of Homer Grunn, one of the well known violinists of Los Angeles.

The audience may well anticipate an exceptional treat.

Miss Aline Van Barentzen enjoys the distinction of being a relative of Carl Maria von Weber, the composer of "Oberon," "Der Freischütz," "Abu Hassan" and "Euryanthe," which last opera enjoyed several hearings at the Metropolitan Opera House this winter.

If Wagner's predecessor and model—as von Weber was—could revisit the glimpses of the moon what new joys he might feel in hearing his descendant or young relative, Aline Van Barentzen play.

EDWARD CLARKE

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clarke gave a musicale at their home, 852 Windsor avenue, last Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Clarke (Rachel Steinman Clarke) and Miss Della Thal played Carpenter's "Sonata for the Violin and Piano"; Mr. Clarke sang several arias from the operas; Mrs. Wynekoop was heard in some Carpenter and Strauss songs and Miss Carol Robinson played several piano numbers by American composers. Mrs. Olive Cryse Parker played the accompaniment for some of her charming songs, which were sung by Mr. William Breach.

GEORGE

THU L

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

OF the Metropolitan Opera Company

BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CONTRALTO
Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

LEIST-BEEBE

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy

Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wollsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno

Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Organist of the School of Music Auditorium Building

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM

Baritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR
1351 Granville Avenue
RECITAL

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 857 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

RECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

NOTES OF THE N. F. M. C.

None of the great gatherings scheduled for 1915 is attracting more nation-wide attention than the Biennial Festival of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, which will culminate with the production of the $10,000 prize American opera, "Fairyland," by Horatio W. Parker, dean of music at Yale University. The Biennial will be held in Los Angeles, June 24 to July 3, and it is estimated that 100,000 musicians will make a pilgrimage to that city for the festival, which is conceded to be the most pretentious ever attempted west of New York.

While the premiere of "Fairyland" will be the climax of the Music Festival, the events preceding it will be of superlative worth. The splendid programs, showing the work of many of our most famous musicians, will feature American music only.

In connection with the biennial, there will be a Congress for the Encouragement of American Music, with Charles Wakefield Cadman, who is widely known as a composer, as chairman. Associated with Mr. Cadman are many representative musicians, Carl Busch, George W. Chadwick, Arthur Farwell, Arthur Foote, Mrs. Elizabeth Casterton, Henry K. Hadley, Charles H. Farnsworth, Leonard Lieblich, Tali Esen Morgan, Oscar Sonneck and Roland Paul. We are indebted to this committee, which is one of the most important in the federation, for many brilliant programs, and for the opportunity of hearing artists new to the Pacific coast.

Among the distinguished composers whose works will be heard during the festival are: David Stanley Smith, Arthur Farwell, Adolph M. Foerster, Mabel W. Daniels, Arthur Foote, Ernest R. Kroeger, Arne Oldberg, who will conduct his prize-winning "Symphony No. 2," in C Minor; George W. Chadwick, Carl Busch and Edgar Stillman Kelley.

Numbers of especial interest to pianists are: "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra" (Mrs. H. H. A. Beach), Mrs. Beach, soloist; "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra," No. 1, in C Minor (Edward MacDowell), Pasquale Talarico, soloist; "Sonata in A Major" (Charles Wakefield Cadman), Claude Gotthelf, and a recital by Walter Spry of Chicago.

Chamber music by the Brahms Quintet, recitals by Cecil Fanning, Jeannette Durno, Carrie Jacobs-Bond, Yvonne de Treville, addresses and conferences are interesting features of the program.

It is particularly appropriate that Marcella Craft, a daughter of California, who is world-famous as a singer, has been chosen to create the role of Rosamund in the prize opera "Fairyland." Albert Reiss, William Wade Hinshaw, Kathleen Howard and Ralph Errolle will sing the other leading parts. Alfred Hertz, from the Metropolitan Opera Company, one of the foremost living conductors, will direct the opera, which will be given with a chorus of 100 and orchestra of seventy.

Myrtle Tyler Irons—Mrs. Irons will present her pupils, Myrtle Rau, Mildred Lazarus and Anita Kissman, 10, 11 and 12 years old, respectively, in piano program at Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening, June 1. at 8:15.

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Following are some comments on Marjorie Dodge Warner's work during the past thirty days:

Marjorie Dodge Warner, the Chicago soprano, was the most popular artist of the evening. She carried her audience before her with her fine breeziness of manner. She has the faculty of getting to the heart of her songs. Some climaxes she obtained were very thrilling, and so forceful as to be almost startling. We hope Mrs. Warner will return. —St. Louis (Mo.) Republican.

Mrs. Warner sang as her first group "Il est bon," by Massenet; "Long Ago," "The Swan" and "A Maid Sings Light," by MacDowell.

The Massenet song from "Herodiade" was sung with great dramatic power, wonderful richness of voice, absolutely true intonation and rare intelligence. The MacDowell songs pleased the audience immensely, and Mrs. Warner had to give an encore.

Mrs. Warner then gave the following group of songs: "The Lass with a Delicate Aid," by Arne; "Down in the Forest," by Ronald; "The Little Gray Dove," by Victor Saar, and "Life and Death," by Coleridge-Taylor.

She again captivated the audience. All the numbers were presented in true artistic manner. The audience was not satisfied with this, and she added more numbers.—Centralia (Ill.) Evening Sentinel.

Among the many Chicago artists who have appeared so far on the program of the Illinois Music Teachers' Convention at Centralia, Ill., Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano, has scored the greatest success. Her beautiful lyric voice and personality captivated her audience.—Chicago (Ill.) Tribune.

Most fortunate indeed was the selection by the Mendelssohn choir officers of Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner for the soloist at the spring concert given Wednesday evening at the Clinton. Mrs. Warner is one of the sweetest personalities appearing this season before Clinton audiences. She is of the type that is best expressed by the word charming, and her accomplishments are delightfully in keeping with her personality. Her voice is round and pure, with the clarity and ringing tones of a bell, and of a quality that is always pleasing. She was the soloist for the choir in its two big numbers, Gounod's "Gallia" and Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer," easily dominating the full choir with the brightness of her tones. In her closing group she gave the best dramatic interpretation of her songs, interrupted in the group by the demanded encore, when she repeated the last scores of Coleridge-Taylor's "Life and Death." So insistent was the audience, that at the close of the fine program she returned, responding with just one more encore number.—Clinton (Ia.) Herald.

A pleasing feature of the Mendelssohn concerts is the bringing to Clinton of singers of prominence, and the artist secured for last night's performance, Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner, made good at once with the audience. She possesses a beautiful soprano voice, of great ability, that was ably suited to the demands made upon it in the well-chosen program. While it is impossible to comment on each number, and while all her songs pleased greatly, the last group, "Wind and Lyre," by Ware; "Life and Death," by Taylor, and "Spring's Singing," by MacFayden, with their brilliance scored a most decided hit. The audience insisted on just one more and she responded by singing "The Naughty Little Clock," by De Koven. Mrs. Warner also sang "E'er Since the Day," from the opera "Louise," by Charpentier, and took the solo parts in "Gallia" and "Hear My Prayer." She gave a splendid interpretation of the difficult solo in the last mentioned work, and revealed an almost startling emotional and dramatic power.—Clinton (Ia.) Advertiser.

Marjorie Dodge Warner sang with grace and feeling, responding fully to the demands of her part.—Chicago Daily News.

Mrs. Warner sang her part with ability. Her voice is a soprano of brilliant color, and it is used with intelligence.—Chicago Record-Herald. (Advertisement.)

———*

Bartholomew—At the annual meeting of the Evanston Study Club the program was furnished by Lawrence B. Reeder, Miss Grace La Rocca and Mrs. Momer B. Tate with H. B. Bartholomew as accompanist. Both the Evanston News and the North Shore Review spoke in terms of the highest praise of the work of Mr. Reeder, who is a pupil of Mr. Bartholomew in his Fine Arts Studio.

ALICE VERLET'S EXCELLENT SEASON

It is very unusual for a singer to make three separate and distinct concert tours of a country in one season, but Mademoiselle Alice Verlet, the Belgian coloratura soprano, has just completed her third Canadian tour this season. Her reception by the Canadian press and public has been phenomenal and they have named her "the Belgian Melba." Not only have the critics in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Buffalo, etc., hailed this brilliant artist as the foremost coloratura soprano now in America, but the New York critics as well have waxed enthusiastic over her work. After her New York recital last March the musical correspondent of the Associated Press sent out the following news letter about Mademoiselle Verlet:

On Thursday afternoon in Carnegie Hall another musical personage revealed herself most convincingly. Miss Alice Verlet, the French soprano about whom Paris commentators have written adulation, offered a program of decided interest and of unusual content. When Miss Verlet was heralded as a fine exponent of florid song, one had visions of "bell songs" and "mad scenes" galore, but the program proved such suspicions odious; Miss Verlet programmed such things as Handel's air from "L'Allegro ed il Penseroso," as Cherubini's "Non so piu cosa son," and the Naiad air from "Armide," beside a wealth of delightful French classic and modern songs—things so out of the ordinary routine of program making that the most seasoned recital follower must needs take notice.

But best of all, having set herself the task of singing music that makes insistent demand on a singer's power to execute with instrumental exactness and to deliver text with fine legato, Miss Verlet proceeded to fulfill these requirements. Her tone quality is admirable, her diction a fine balance of clarity and ease of production, her phrasing traditional in classics and intelligent always, and her range ample to enable her to sing with authority the remarkably wide range of her program. Her Mozart arias were a delight and Madame Sembrich, who was in the audience, was observed to start the applause which was insistent enough to secure a repetition of the "Figaro" page song after one encore had already been given. Coming out from the recital one of the oldest and least impressionable of Gotham press reviewers remarked: "I shall not write this because, like Mark Twain, 'I am very old and very wise,' but I candidly say that with the possible exception of Hempel at her very best, the Metropolitan has no singer who can approach in artistry the coloratura singing of Miss Verlet this afternoon." (Advertisement.)

GALESBURG, ILL.

Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant presented her pupil, Margaret McCarl, in recital at Lombard College on last Monday evening, in the following program:

With Verdure Clad (from Creation).....Haydn
Auf dem Wasser zu singen.....Schubert
Der Nussbaum.....Schumann
Ungeduld.....Schubert
To a Wild Rose.....MacDowell
To a Water Lily.....MacDowell

Miss Eldred

Nymphs and Fauns (words by A. Ocampo).....
.....H. Bemberg
My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair.....Haydn
The Lass with the Delicate Air.....Dr. Thomas A. Arus
I've Been Roaming.....Charles R. Horn
Wedding Day at Troldhaugen.....Grieg

Miss Eldred

Prelude—Cycle of Life (words by Harold Simpson).....Landon Ronald
A June Morning (words by Charles D. Roberts).....Willeby
Shadow March (words by Robert Louis Stevenson).....Del Riego
Secrets (poem from the Bohemian).....Haines-Kuester
To a Messenger (poem from Des Knaben Wunderhorn).....La Forge

Drake School—Miss Irene Deming, a pupil of Alfred Calzin in the Drake School of Music, will give a piano recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Monday evening, May 31.

LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood, which is fast attracting attention as a musicians' colony, has many delights for the summer idler.

Boating, bathing, fishing and walking in the woods are among them. Music News has seen pictures of the various spots around this beautiful resort, and many others showing the summer inhabitants at play. The accompanying boating view is particularly attractive.

ENGAGEMENTS AND PRAISE OF MABEL HELEN ROGERS

The brilliant Chicago harpist, Miss Mabel Helen Rogers, filled the following spring engagements:

March 19—West End Woman's Club Chorus.
March 29 to April, inclusive—Easter opening, J. A. Cordell and company.
April 13—Woodlawn Woman's Club.
April 15—Austin Woman's Club at Hotel La Salle.
April 18—Woodlawn Park Presbyterian Church.
April 21—Scandinavian Concert (Chicago).
May 5—Armour Square Field House.

The following glowing praise on the playing of Miss Rogers proves in great measure the success of this young artist:

The little harpiste, Miss Rogers, pleased all. She has a modest manner which is very charming and plays her harp with the interpretation and technic of a master.—Washington (Iowa) Journal, January 31.
Miss Rogers proved to be a harpiste of rare ability and is fortunate in possessing a most captivating personality. She presented such a charming picture in her exquisite white evening gown, which glittered with beaded trimmings, that it took no great stretch of the imagination to compare her with pictures of celestial harpists. Seldom is such an attractive artist seen on the stage and never have we heard harpists to excel her.—Streator (Ill.) Free Press, January 13.

The harp solos of Sister Mabel Helen Rogers were beautifully rendered and proved her to be a harpist of the highest type. All who failed to hear her missed a rare musical treat. We hope to have her with us again in the near future.—Masonic Sentinel (Chicago).

Miss Mabel Helen Rogers' work with the harp was excellent and her personal charms added greatly to the effectiveness of her work.—Madison (Wis.) Democrat, September 29.

Miss Rogers' exquisite renditions on the harp were a revelation to those who had never heard her. She received many encores.—Masonic Chronicle (Chicago.) (Advertisement.)

— # # # —

Pillsbury—Friday evening, May 28, Agnes Hope Pillsbury presents her pupil, Miss Irma May, in a recital at her studio, 707 Fine Arts Building.

Why
Not Use
The Best
?

A few words to the Progressive Piano Teacher relative to Fillmore's Modern Graded Course for the Pianoforte in Eight Grades.

THE remarkable success this course has attained in the short time of its publication testifies to its intrinsic merits.

It has now proven by actual experience to be a Course which meets successfully the needs of both teacher and pupil, and this work has gained so good a foothold for itself as to justify its wider expansion. It is carefully graded and comprises the best teaching material from the time of Bach to the present era. Miniature copies of Grade I will be sent gratis upon request. Hundreds of Music Schools, too numerous to mention, are ordering regularly and we know that you will do the same when you become acquainted with our Course. We therefore offer for the next 30 days the 8 grades at the very special price of 30c, each grade, postpaid. Regular price of which is $1.00 each grade.

WM. A. KAUN MUSIC CO. Milwaukee, Wis.

P. S.—When ordering please mention the name of this magazine.

ARCANGELI PUPILS IN OPERATIC CONCERTS

When Signor A. Arcangeli and his accomplished wife, the Signora Bertossi-Arcangeli, present their pupils in concert, the affair is apt to take on all the concomitants of a function. And, therefore, the presentation at the Blackstone Theater on last Sunday was elaborate to a degree in the presence of a large and fashionable audience, well dressed and in high good humor, and enthusiastic in applause and the bestowal of flowers and demand for encores, which latter, however, could not be granted by reason of the length of the program. On the stage the same taste in handsome costumes and graceful deportment prevailed, coupled with a sort of intense ambition to live up to the opportunity offered and make a good showing, on the part of each participant. This quality manifested itself steadily all afternoon. There was small hesitation and no affectation. Everyone had been coached thoroughly on the important essentials of abandon to the work in hand and small consideration for personal timidity or self-consciousness. These are very valuable assets in the beginning of the career of the young artist, and tend to draw out quickly the needed knowledge as to whether the training and preparation are going to qualify a student for his public life. There may be all sorts of ability and talent, but the vital thing is to be able to make these possessions known and felt. Too much praise cannot be offered Signor Arcangeli for his rare capacity in developing these qualities. All the young people appeared eager to win his approval as he stood by the piano and controlled the situation by his attitude and manner. It is rare that a group of students, ranging from those who faced an audience for the first time to those whose schooling had extended through several years, should so uniformly combine these fine traits of poise and composure and engrossment in the work they were endeavoring to do.

In addition, the school is rich in the presence of talented and promising pupils, many of whom are likely to go far in their endeavors by reason of their natural gifts and present stage of progress. The program offered a wide variety of musical literature, but with a decided leaning toward the operatic school, as was quite to be expected. There were fine examples of the lyric and dramatic sides of the Italian and French exponents, both of the early and modern writers. In a program which embraced thirty-seven numbers, beside the complete short opera of "Secret of Suzanne," it is not possible that a record of each number should be given. Therefore, the reviewer contents himself with a list of the students appearing, pausing to compliment Signor Arcangeli for the attractive excerpts heard, and his own exceptionally good singing in the duo from Thomas' "Hamlet," which went in the finest sort of style, and to congratulate the students upon the advantages they are unquestionably enjoying under this schooled and skillful teacher.

The list of singers included Gaetano Viviano, T. J. Boner, Mae Taylor, Francesco Arito, Consuelo Solaire, Harold C. Goodwin, Esther Lillian Becker, Florence Melum, Gae Stanton Cramer, Eloise Roach, Mrs. Harry H. Latham, Ruth Coccaro, Fredericka Wehrman, Fannie Oppenheimer, Emma Randall Lowell, Robert Dyrenforth, Edna M. Pribyl, Eva Coffey, Ruth Melba Stein, Ruth Stern and Mae Duffin, while Thomas V. Purcell contributed excellent violin numbers. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

PECCOCK PUPILS

The following program was presented with true artistry and charm on the evening of May 22, 1915, by two of the pupils in the artist class of Eleanor Hazzard Peacock, who has presented a series of recitals of real interest and musical value to the music lovers of Detroit this season.

Miss Synnington is the contralto who can sing tones of real contralto quality and richness without losing the joy of the voice. Her repose and withal her spontaneity and charm were delightful.

Miss Bivins' voice is a true soprano, amenable to the varying shades of emotion and she sings with dramatic force and a

ALBERT BORROFF accepts pupils in all branches of singing. He shows the beginner how to use the voice properly, the amateur how to sing better, and the professional to add finish and style to interpretation.

Studio 411 Kimball Hall

Hours 10 to 3

Phones Wabash 8021, Kenwood 837

musicianly appreciation of tone and text values.

In the Time of Roses.....	Reichardt
Ich liebe dich	Beethoven
Adelaide	Beethoven
Irmingard	Von Fielitz
Elegie	Massenet
Mignonette	Old French
Morning Hymn	Henschel
The Star	Rogers
Ciascun lo dice	Donizetti
Convien partir (from The Daughter of the Regiment)	Donizetti
Es schrie ein Vogel	Sinding
Mit deinen blauen Augen	Strauss
Im Herbst	Haile
The Magic Month of May	Newton
From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water.....	Cadman
My Lady Chlo'.....	Clough-Leigher
My Lover, He Comes on the Skee (a Norwegian love song)	Clough-Leigher
Il est doux il est bon (from Herodiade).....	Massenet

Krause—Miss E. Louise Krause was the soloist at a reception given by Miss Mabelle E. Minard of Aurora, at their beautiful home, on Saturday afternoon, May 22. Miss Krause, in conjunction with Mr. Marvin Hinshaw, presented the graduation program for the West Side Hospital, Ashland avenue and Monroe street, on Wednesday evening of this week.

MacBurney—At the MacBurney studios on Monday evening, May 31, a song recital will be given by Miss Margaret Allison.

TEMPLE ISRAEL

Musie News' representative stepped into Temple Israel on Wednesday morning, May 19, while a special holiday service was in progress. He expected to hear some good music, and was not disappointed.

Mr. Ralph M. Gerber is the organist for this congregation, a position that he has efficiently filled for more than six years. Mr. Gerber is also organist at the Ninth Church of Christ, Scientist.

When Temple Israel congregation built the present beautiful edifice several years ago, at the corner of Michigan avenue and Fifty-third street, they purchased the former Sinai Temple organ, a Marshall pneumatic action instrument and, after having had it overhauled and rebuilt, installed it in their new temple.

The organ is one of unusual beauty of tone, and Mr. Gerber, who is an experienced and thoroughly capable organist, is able to utilize its extensive resources to splendid advantage.

Associated with Mr. Gerber is an unusually fine quartet, the members being Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; Nelanie Norden, contralto; Grant Kimbell, tenor, and Frank M. Dunford, bass. The work of all of these singers is well known through Chicago, with the possible exception of Miss Norden, the contralto. Her voice is one of excellent quality, and she proves herself to be resourceful and thoroughly reliable.

Music is a large factor in the Jewish holiday services, and certainly one would go far before hearing the musical parts of the service conducted more smoothly and beautifully than on this occasion. The incidental solos were done with ease and authority, the ensembles were well balanced, and the organ led and sustained the whole with absolute surety and good taste.

The congregation of Temple Israel has every reason for gratification while they retain such a satisfactory combination for the conduct of their music as that formed by their present organist-director and his associates of the quartet. C. J. B.

CUYLER AVENUE M. E. CHURCH, OAK PARK

The choir gave two anthems, "The Lord Is My Light," by Protheroe, and "Who Are These Like Stars Appearing," by Pierce, at the morning service last Sunday. "O Holy Father," a trio by Marchetti, was given an excellent reading by Mesdames Hartrick, Crouse and Transom. At the evening service the double quartet gave "Sing of the Bright Home," the solo parts being taken by Messrs. Barker and Prescott and Miss Hazel Dustin, all of which were sung with good taste. Mr. Elmore, baritone, sang the offertoire solo, revealing a baritone voice of excellent quality.

This Sunday evening the entire choir will give their monthly musical service, the program being as follows:

Prelude—Offertoire, C Minor.....	Batiste
Anthem—Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem
Male Chorus—Just Beyond.....	Fearis
Anthem—Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee.....	Brewer
Trio—How Beautiful upon the Mountain.....	Marston
Mesdames Hartrick and Crouse; Mr. Barker
Male Chorus—Praise Ye the Father.....	Gounod
Soprano Solo
Master Leroy Fenton
Anthem—River of Life	Macy
Postlude—Festival March	Erb

ROY DAVID BROWN GIVES RECITAL AT THURBER HALL

A varied, interesting and enjoyable program was offered to a large audience in Thurber Hall on Thursday evening, May 20, by Roy David Brown of the Spry Music School, a pianist who has gained an enviable place for himself among Chicago's list of piano teachers and is now to be reckoned with among the city's concert pianists.

Mr. Brown's recent recital tour through the south won for him unstinted praise from both public and press, and his recital in Chicago on Thursday evening was a climax to his season's achievements.

He chose to open his program with a group consisting of the "Sonata No. 7, in F Major," by Mozart; "Intermezzo, Op. 119, No. 1" and "Rhapsody, Op. 72, No. 2," both by Brahms. Then came the "California Suite," by Friml, a composition seldom heard in our concert halls, yet well worthy of many hearings. It is written in four movements and typical American themes abound throughout. Mr. Brown played it with feeling, surety and delightful expression.

Another new and worthy composition presented by the pianist was an "Etude" by Carl Beutel. It was given a splendid reading on this occasion and leads one to make the statement that every progressive pianist should have it in his or her repertoire.

Mr. Brown paid a compliment to his former teacher and associate, Emil Liebling, by playing the "Albumblatt" and "Florence Waltz" from that noted musician's pen. These numbers were played in a brilliant style and added greatly to the enjoyable moments of the evening.

In concluding the program Mr. Brown played a "Nocturne" and "Waltz" by Chopin, the "Prelude, Op. 10," and "Concert Etude, Op. 36," by MacDowell, each of which was played with deep expression, yet an unusual amount of vigorous dash and abandon characterized his work at all times.

H. M. B.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

Miss Florence Moehlenbrock, soprano, a pupil of Miss Hedwig Brenneman in the University School of Music, sang at Music Hall on May 5, giving a group of German classics and one comprising some unusual numbers by Lohr, Cadman, Leoni and Sans Souci. Miss Moehlenbrock has a clear, fine voice, as well as temperament, and at this time she sang in an unusually pleasing way, sympathetic accompaniments being provided at the piano by Miss Elthea Snider.

On May 18 Mr. Norman Ives, tenor, another pupil of Miss Brenneman, sang a splendid list of songs, with great style and finish, including works of Purcell, Mendelssohn, Franz, Strauss, Lehman, Cadman, Lowitz, Easter and James Rogers. The pianists, playing alternately with these singers, were Miss Mildred Ross and Mr. Richard McClenahan, both of whom were excellent.

Meagley—Mrs. Mary Willing Meagley, organist of the McCabe Memorial Church in Chicago presents her pupil, Mabel Marie Wagner, in piano recital at the church this Friday evening, May 28. Margaret Lester, soprano, will be assisting soloist.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL

On Saturday afternoon, May 29, the following program will be given by pupils of Mrs. W. S. Bracken, Mr. Clarence Eidam and Mr. Donald Robertson, in the Auditorium Recital Hall, at 3 o'clock:

Sonata, B Flat Minor (first movement).....	Chopin
Miss Martha Erickson
Phantasiestücke.....	Schumann
Des Abends.....
Aufschwung.....
Warum?.....
Grillen.....
Miss Marie Henry
Voice—
Dreams.....	Chaminade
Lullaby.....	Cyril Scott
Miss Flora Waalkes
Four Preludes—C Minor, F Major, A Flat, B Flat Minor.....	Chopin
Miss Grace Eidam
Arabesque.....	Debussy
Danse des Elfes.....	Sapellnikoff
Miss Henry
Voice—
The Red, Red Rose.....	Cottonet
Visi d'arte (La Tosca).....	Puccini
Mrs. Jane Pinckney Fritch
En revant.....	Florent Schmitt
Après l'ete.....	Florent Schmitt
Hungarian Rhapsodie, No. 10.....	Liszt
Miss Erickson
Concerto, C Minor (first movement).....	Beethoven
Miss Eidam
Orchestral parts on second piano by Mr. Eidam
The Happy Pair, a comedy in one act.....	Thayer Smith
Mrs. Honneyton—Miss Liba Peschacova
Mr. Honneyton—Mr. David Fuller

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

The piano department of the Effa Ellis Perfield Music School, incorporated, gave a "self-reliant" recital, Saturday afternoon and another on Thursday evening. This recital is the first of its kind given in Chicago. It means that the pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Deis prepared their pieces for public performance without receiving instructions or criticism from any one. Surely this gives a new idea for music teachers, pupils and parents. It not only shows the creative and interpretative advancement of the student, but it tests the teaching and constructive ability of the teacher. For 11 and 12 year old students to select such pieces as Rubinstein's "Melody in F" and "Paderewski Minuet," work them out and interpret them in their own way and really please a critical audience was a twentieth century wonder in the advancement of music teaching.

Civic Music—The Civic Music Association announces a performance of the cantata, "Ruth," at the First Baptist Church, at Thirty-first and South Park avenue, on Sunday evening, May 30, under direction of John Allen Richardson.

Miller—Mrs. May Powers Miller presented Kathryn Belden Ambler, Charlotte Hilton and Dorothy Plumb, in a piano program at 5515 Woodlawn avenue, last Saturday afternoon.

Dresser—On Tuesday evening, May 18, Miss Marguerite Dresser presented her pupil, Miss Pearl Trumbull, pianist, in recital. Mr. F. C. Hunn, tenor, assisted.

The Perfield Music School is Incorporated Under State Laws

Effa Ellis Perfield

T. H. Perfield

The Effa Ellis Perfield School of Music, located in Room 950 McClurg Building, 218 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, has been incorporated under the laws of the State of Illinois. Effa Ellis Perfield, originator of the Effa Ellis Perfield Teaching System, is the president. Harry R. Detweiler of the Aurora Conservatory is vice-president, and T. H. Perfield, the inventor of the music-indexing cabinet and the promoter of 1,500 branch affiliated examination centers for the system, is secretary and treasurer. The object of the school, as announced, is "to inspire and develop educational music everywhere on all manner of instruments and in every avenue of expression." It has a scheme of affiliation with normals and various schools, and makes a point of stimulating creative effort through "self-reliant recitals." It emphasizes the value of appreciation. Mrs. Effa Flagg Young, superintendent of the Chicago public schools, has written the following:

"I am pleased to inform you that the Effa Ellis Perfield School of Music has been placed on the accredited list of institutions authorized to offer work to teachers for promotional credit.

"Yours very truly,
"ELLA FLAGG YOUNG,
"Superintendent of Schools."

Through the adoption of our Teaching System by affiliated teacher of the Effa Ellis Perfield Teaching System and the Perfield Extension Method everyone interested in obtaining the best musical instruction can accomplish his purpose as well in your city as in the greatest conservatories of Chicago and New York.

Write for full information regarding our Summer School which meets here in Chicago from July 6th to the 25th.

950-5—218 So. Wabash Ave.,
Chicago, Ill.

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

SEASON 1915-16

ALBERT

1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist Steinway Piano

Herbert J. Wrightson

PIANO AND HARMONY

CHICAGO

20 East Jackson Boulevard, Phone Wabash, 6293

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR

CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conduct-
ed according to the advanced methods
of the most progressive
European Conserva-
tories.

MARCIAN THALBERG
Pianist

A Faculty of INTER-
NATIONAL REPU-
TATION. Location ideal.
Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art
Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic
Classes, Post Graduate and
Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced
Composition, Normal
Courses, Most Modern
Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open
throughout the Summer.
Special Summer Courses
in Public School Music.
Exceptional opportunities for
Public Work. Professional
Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time

For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR
Directress

Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Bettie Besmer, the talented young girl who has been heard to advantage in numerous recitals and also as soloist with the Conservatory Orchestra, at the children's concert two years ago, was presented in an individual recital by her teacher, Mrs. Theodor Bohlmann, Thursday, May 27, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

Mr. Lloyd Miller, favorably known in this city in the two-fold capacity of singer and pianist, will give his graduation piano recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Friday evening, May 28. Mr. Miller has devoted several years to pianoforte study at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music under Mr. Frederic Shailer Evans, and has developed into an excellent pianist.

Mr. Wilhelm Kraupner presented his pupil, Miss Helen Nicholson, in a pianoforte recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Wednesday evening. Miss Nicholson demonstrated herself well prepared for the task set before her and maintained a delightful poise throughout the evening.

A concert attracting widely was that given at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Friday evening by two serious young musicians who by their talent and serious work are making themselves decidedly felt in this city, the Messrs. John Thomas, pianist, and Edwin Memel, violinist. These young men some time ago stepped out of the student ranks into the professional field and challenge serious interest and attention.

The Cincinnati Conservatory of Music graduation exercises will this year be held Friday evening, June 11, the annual meeting of the alumni to take place as usual the following day, Saturday, June 12.

The past week which has witnessed several important concerts and recitals at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music was auspiciously opened by Miss Helen Portune in her violin graduation recital. Miss Portune has had the advantage of studying under Signor Tirindelli from her juvenile years up, and possessed of superior talent, intelligence and earnestness of purpose, has accomplished enviable results in the artistic field.

Dr. Fery Lulek will present the following members of his class in recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Saturday evening, May 29: Inez Isenberg, Clara Wilhelmy, Katherine Wilhelm, Hazel Clinger, Helene Turner, Naomi Lowe, Coretta Ray Higdon, Helen Adler, Alvina Lobitz, Helen Grace, Gertrude Fozard, Miriam Mooney and Henry Grad.

Miss Mary Ellis, pupil of Mr. Theodor Bohlmann, was heard in her graduation recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Tuesday evening, May 25.

Miss Helen May Curtis presented her gifted pupil, Miss Emily Martin, in an evening of readings at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Wednesday evening, May 26. Miss Martin will have the assistance of Miss Katharine Russell, pianist, pupil of Mr. Marcian Thalberg.

A remarkable exhibition of juvenile training was given at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music yesterday afternoon when children from six to twelve years rendered a program. Those taking part were: Harry Newberger, Anne Shinkle, Stephen Mc-

Kenzie, Dorothy Slocum, Helen Duhlmeier, Martha Seifried, Mildred Harris, Lysle Gladys Drake, Jack Maish, Rebecca Weinstock, Walter Silbersack, Eleanor Roe, Virginia Evans, Jane Steen, Virginia Brooks Gilbert, Jean Frances Small, Constance Strauss, Ellen Buttenweiser.

Signor Tirindelli will present the following pupils in a violin recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Monday evening, May 24: Mildred Vause, Wanetah Kleiser, Irwin Liebschutz, Grace Cozens, Coretta Ray Higdon, Stella Coffin, Clarissa Crawford, Willard Tallentire.

FREDERICK PERSSON WINNING SUCCESS

Mr. Frederick Persson, pianist, was heard recently in the following program by the Harmonic Club of Clinton, Iowa:

Phantasie in F Minor	}	Chopin
Four Etudes
Valse in A Flat	}	Schutt
The Brook
Lotus Land	}	Scott
Liebes-Novelle (Love Story)
Capriccio	}	Eric Wolff
Rhapsodie D'Auvergne
March Wind (Etude)	}	Moszkowski
Concert Etude
Claire De Lune	}	Saint-Saens
Hungarian Rhapsodie, No. 15 (Rakoczy March)
		MacDowell
		Liszt

Mr. Persson is now located at 626 Fine Arts Building and will teach there until the middle of July, when he will again go on tour.

The press of Clinton, Iowa, has the following to say concerning the playing of this brilliant pianist:

Closing the eleventh year of its activity Monday evening, the members of the Harmonic Club were given a most satisfactory program. It was genuinely artistic and worth while and was an indication of the spirit of progress which prevails in this musical organization. Frederick Persson, pianist, was heard in recital. His technic is wonderfully developed, and his reading of difficult and peculiar scores was such as to elicit prolonged applause. He has a virile touch, one that is strong and firm, yet so perfectly controlled are the fingers and so delicate the touch that pianissimo effects are achieved with a mastery that is his greatest quality. One of the most interesting numbers was the study of "The Lotus Land," by Scott, very intense and colorful.—Herald.

Among the series of concerts that have been given by the Harmonic Club at the Sheridan Club rooms this season the recital last night by Mr. Frederick Persson of Chicago, a noted pianist, takes rank as the most enjoyable of the series. Mr. Persson proved a great favorite and was given a tremendous ovation. He plays with great ease and brilliancy. One rarely hears a pianist whose address is as fascinating and whose message is as convincingly beautiful. The program was a delightful one, every piece excellently rendered, and he was recalled many times before the audience was content to let him go.—Advertiser.

His interpretation of MacDowell is extraordinarily beautiful. Mr. Persson responded to an encore, playing Chopin's Waltz. The audience was carried away with this number, which was beautifully rendered. Mr. Persson is a pianist of great magnetic powers and was enthusiastically received by one of the largest audience that has attended these popular concerts. (Advertisement.)

Owens—Miss Margaret Owens, soprano, has just returned from a concert trip, managed by Redpath, during which she appeared in New Mexico, Arizona, Kansas, Missouri and Texas, visiting the San Francisco fair also. On last Thursday, immediately after her return, Miss Owens sang for the Ohio Northern University Alumni banquet, on Friday she appeared at Chicago Commons, and on Sunday sang in the morning at the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church and in the evening at the Austin Methodist Episcopal.

DETROIT

Monday evening, May 17, Boris L. Ganapol, baritone, most ably assisted by Mrs. Ganapol at the piano, gave a highly interesting program of Russian songs. As Mr. Ganapol is Russian, the songs sung in that language were the most spontaneous and pleasing, though the whole program was of much worth. The program was given in the music hall of the Ganapol School before a most delighted audience.

Violin Recital

On Tuesday, May 18, the Detroit Institute of Musical Art presented Mr. Edward Kreiner, violinist. Mr. Kreiner is one of the war blessings, for being of Polish birth and formerly an assistant of Marteau, it seems to be his fate and our fortune that he is in Detroit at least temporarily. His playing is thoroughly artistic and satisfying with at times a tone almost haunting in its appeal, so much so that two of his numbers had to be repeated. The Institute may well congratulate itself on having secured Mr. Kreiner as one of their faculty. Mention has been made before of the exquisite accompaniments of Mr. Morse, and they did not fail in their high standard this time.

MARGARET MULFORD

Margaret Lawson Mulford

Miss Mulford made a decidedly successful appearance last week, May 11, in Grand Rapids, when she gave a program of spring and summer songs at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gleason, before about seventy invited guests. She sang May 23 in Port Huron, giving a program of seventeenth and eighteenth century French, German, Irish and English, in the dress of that time. Her concert engagements are under the management of James De Voe, Dime Bank Building, Detroit, Mich.

LEONORA ALLEN'S SINGING IS SURPRISE OF CONCERT

Miss Allen met with great success recently, singing the solos in Elgar's "Light of Life" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" with the Kansas City Oratorio Society, May 1.

Following is the press comment from the Kansas City Star:

The surprise of the concert was in the singing of Miss Leonora Allen, a soprano of youthful appearance and surprising voice. Miss Allen will travel this summer to the Pacific coast with the Apollo Club of Chicago. Her singing last night disclosed a fine clear voice, backed by a good deal of power in expression, as well as qualities of reserve and good taste.—Kansas City Star. (Advertisement.)

Congratulations—Music News, with the host of other friends of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Kimbell, offers congratulations and good wishes on the birth of a daughter, Marjorie Ruth, who arrived May 22.

HINSHAW LIGHT OPERA SINGERS

This organization, consisting of eight singers and a pianist, will appear in Chautauqua beginning in July, under the management of the Chautauqua Managers' Association. This company is under the personal direction of Mr. John Arno Hinshaw, who has spent a great deal of time in securing the very best artists for the organization.

The operas of the "Mikado" and "Bohemian Girl" will be presented, costumes and property being carried for each opera so that the committees may have a performance of either opera. An elaborate miscellaneous program has also been prepared, which will be a special feature of the organization.

Mr. Harry Davies, the celebrated Welsh tenor who was formerly starred by Henry W. Savage and Aborn Opera Company management, has been engaged to sing the leading tenor roles in both these operas. Miss Mabel Day, also a well-known grand opera prima donna, has been engaged to appear in the leading soprano roles. Miss Day is also a former Aborn favorite. Other members of the company are unusually strong in their respective parts and have given special preparation to the operas.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN
Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. Residence 5433 Harper Av. Associate Vocal Instructor
Tel. Midway 8963

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART
MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago
Summer Term Begins June 30 The School for Serious Students

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE TECHNIC
LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS 513 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO PHONE WABASH 4305

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and 4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
LENNIE BOWMAR RICK

GEORGE B. NEVIN

In a list of compositions published by the Oliver Ditson Company, Boston and New York, the following foreword is used:

"George B. Nevin is a name associated with church music perhaps as closely as that of any other American composer; and the wide use of his songs, duets, anthems and cantatas shows the measure of his success in this special branch of composition. His aim has been to furnish the church with devotional music, not a display of technical difficulties, but rather an appropriate, straightforward and melodious setting which will aid in reverent worship. One feature of his work has met with special favor, namely, his very fluent part-writing. Recently one of America's foremost musicians and composers wrote as follows relative to the anthem 'Jesus, Word of God Incarnate' (Ave Verum): 'It is one of the best anthems by an American composer which I have seen; the melody is flowing and devotional, the harmonization is most interesting and natural, with a decidedly churchly quality in the music.' These characteristics have no doubt been fostered by his experience as a choir soloist, all of his compositions being noticeably good for their vocal and singable qualities."

Among Mr. Nevin's compositions, the following have been extensively used in church, concert, recital and for teaching—splendid texts and attractive, singable and effective music:

FOLIO EDITION—SHEET MUSIC

Sacred Songs

Here I See Thee, Face to Face. Low voice in B flat. High voice in D.....	$0.50
Hills of God, The. High voice in C. Medium voice in A. Low voice in G.....	.60
Jesus, Word of God Incarnate (Ave Verum). High voice in A flat. Low voice in F.....	.50
Rejoice, Jerusalem, and Sing. High voice in G. Medium voice in E flat.....	.50
Song of Eternity, The. High voice in E. Medium voice in C.....	.60
Strength of the Hills, The. High voice in A flat. Medium voice in F.....	.60
Wondrous Cross, The. Medium voice in E flat.....	.60

Sacred Duets

Eventide. Soprano or tenor, and Baritone in F.....	.60
Hark, Hark, My Soul. Soprano or tenor, and baritone in F.....	.50
My Faith Looks Up to Thee. Mezzo-soprano and baritone in G.....	.60
do. Soprano and tenor in B flat.....	.60
Twilight. Alto and baritone in A.....	.50
do. Soprano and tenor in D flat.....	.50
Vesper Hour, The. Mezzo-soprano or alto and bass or baritone.....	.60
do. Soprano and tenor.....	.60

Secular Songs

When the Kye Come Hame. Contralto or baritone.....	.50
Sigh No More, Ladies. Baritone or bass.....	.25
Night Has a Thousand Eyes, The. High voice in G. Low voice in E.....	.40
O Little Mother of Mine. Medium voice in F. Low voice in D.....	.60
Song of the Armorer. Bass voice in C.....	.50

Secular Duets

Now the Silver Moon. Soprano and baritone in A flat.....	.60
Ring On, Sweet Bells. Tenor and baritone in B flat.....	.60

FRANCES PELTON-JONES IN COLONIAL MAY FETE

That Miss Pelton-Jones, the noted harpsichordist, in spite of the turbulence of the times, has had the busiest season of her life, is a tribute to the fact that thorough musicianship, backed by the charm of personal presence, and a uniquely artistic offering, seldom goes begging. Among the many important dates recently filled by Miss Pelton-Jones was the Moment Musicale, given by the Salon Club, Syracuse, to a capacity audience, in which she scored a tremendous success. Another engagement of an unusual nature occurred at the Maxine Elliott Theater, New York, where, assisted by the viola da gamba (ancient instrument) and flute, she appeared in a magnificent production of "The Adventure of Lady Ursula," the charming eighteenth century play, in which Miss Phyllis Nielson-Terry, the celebrated London actress (niece of Ellen Terry), figures in the title role.

Miss Pelton-Jones has also just finished a week's engagement in the Wanamaker Auditorium, where she was engaged by concert director Alexander Russell to put on a Colonial May Fete, in costume. Delightful stage effects and dainty and exquisite old English ditties and French dances, all accompanied upon the harpsichord, instead of the piano, combined to produce one of the most attractive spring musicales imaginable and of which the New York papers speak in highest praise. The number of clubs and colleges throughout the country anxious to hear the harpsichord next season augurs encouragingly for a banner year.

A popular combination recital is the Cancoos du Temps Passe, in which Miss Pelton-Jones is assisted by the distinguished French tenor, Mr. Paul Dufault, in musical impersonations of famous characters in history, including Queen Marie Antoinette and Chevalier de Gluck in a "Morning at the Trianon." This musical sketch, original with Miss Pelton-Jones, made a hit at the Waldorf in the spring, will probably be heard in Chicago and other western cities next fall.

Bush Temple—The Bush Temple Conservatory announces that Charles W. Clark will give four vocal recitals during the summer term. Music News will print the programs later.

Cosmopolitan School—On May 27 Miss Bertha Ball gave her post-graduate recital on the ninth floor, Auditorium Building. On June 5, at 3 o'clock, Miss Sarah Nadine Jones, pianist, and Miss Theoline Pohlson, violinist, will give a program.

Denver—The New Denver Conservatory of Music sends several interesting programs of recitals by Paul Clarke Stauffer and Marie Schley-Bren. Also a number of pupils' concerts. A summer term is announced to begin on June 1, and to extend to August 15.

Irons—Tuesday evening, June 1, Myrtle Tyler Irons presents her pupils in a piano recital in Kimball Hall. Myrtle Ran, Mildred Lazarus and Anita Rissman will be assisted by Louise Schoek, soprano, Catharine Shaughnessy, reader, and Viola Oakley, reader.

FANNING FOR THE NINTH BIENNIAL FESTIVAL

Cecil Fanning, the eminent baritone, is to contribute two groups of American songs during the Ninth Biennial Festival and Congress of American Music. Mr. Fanning, with Accompanist Turpin, will appear on the evening of June 30 at Trinity Auditorium in Los Angeles, Cal., in conjunction with a well known soprano, and Claude Gottlieb, pianist, who presents Cadman's new Sonata in A major for the first time.

The Federation is fortunate in procuring Mr. Fanning, who happened to be sojourning on the Pacific Coast in May and June.

Following are the numbers chosen for the occasion by the baritone:

Out of the Rolling Ocean (Walt Whitman).....	Marshall Kernochan
And He Wishes His Beloved Were Dear (Yeats).....	Clyde Van Nuys Fogel
The Lute Player's House (Bard of Dimbovitza).....	Winthrop Rogers
The Last Leaf (Holmes).....	Sidney Homer
It Was a Lover and His Lass (Shakespeare).....	Frederic Ayres
I Had a Dove (Adapted from Keats).....	Carl Busch
Mammy's Song (Written for Mr. Fanning).....	Harriet Ware
A Knighthood Song (Laura Rountree Smith).....	C. W. Cadman

In some instances the composers will accompany the songs.

Paris—At Paris, Ky., the Treble Clef Club, under direction of A. L. Boatright, presented a program which, according to the Kentuckian-Citizen, was a very great success. A small chorus gave a varied and valuable program, assisted by Mrs. Brannin, violinist, and Mrs. Dailey, accompanist.

Luther College—At Luther College, Warrenton, Neb., a May festival was given on May 19, with great success, financially and artistically. The soloists were Marie Sidenius Zandt, Jude Deyo, Edward Walker and Charles Edwin Lutton.

Cedar Falls—At Cedar Falls, Ia., the Iowa Teachers' College presented "Nathaniel Hale" at the College Auditorium on last Saturday evening with great success. Music numbers were furnished by pupils of Harriet Case and Lowell Mabie Welles.

Libberton—Mrs. Cora Libberton, soprano will be soloist at the Eric DeLamarer organ recital at the new Fourth Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon, June 3, at 4:30.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Ambitious young man to travel for artist under management; address 5, Music News.

FOR SALE—Virgil practice clavier; address V. F. Music News.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

FOR SALE—Pipe organ; three-manual, tubular, pneumatic, 38 stops, complete couplers and accessories; seven years old, and in good condition; now in a Chicago church; will have to be moved to make way for a larger one; will be moved and erected ready to play, for $4,000. A real bargain for some large church or music studio. Instrument can be seen and heard by addressing F. D., Music News.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

People & Events

SYRACUSE, NEW YORK ANNUAL MAY FESTIVAL

The first program of the May festival, which was held the 10th, 11th and 12th, drew a larger audience to the arena than first evenings have usually attracted. The makeup of the program and the participating artists merited an audience that practically filled the vast auditorium and seemed primed to receive the artistic rendition of the entire program with the wildest enthusiasm. While Pasquale Amato's rendition of the program numbers brought to mind his former triumphs in this city, it was in the encores, "Pologue from Pagliacci" and the "Toreador Song," that he showed his full strength and versatility.

The other soloist of the evening was Frances Alda. She performed the somewhat arduous and thankless task of singing Michela's aria from "Carmen." It is sometimes difficult for an auditor to understand why an artist has chosen the particular numbers which appear on the program. In the group of songs by Grieg, Hue and La Forge—with La Forge at the piano—the singer had a much better opportunity to please the audience and also prove her ability as a singer. Her voice is not naturally one of great sympathy, but her fine control of it and ease in its use makes her rendition of art songs most pleasing.

The orchestral numbers by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Frederick Stock, were given in the finished manner that we have become accustomed to expect of them. The selections were such as should meet the approval of musician, amateur and novice. A program that is for all the people must necessarily have something for all and not all for some. The problem of making high class programs for May festivals is not a small one. It would be difficult to put together a group of numbers better calculated to meet the requirements of the audience which attends these festival programs than that which was rendered the first night.

Although the main work of the chorus comes later we should mention in this program especially the rendition of the finale from Act I. of "Lohengrin." The chorus showed marked improvement, in tone quality over work of past years.

The second concert—generally known as orchestra program—had been awaited with expectancy. An orchestral concert is always greatly appreciated by Syracusans and the fact that this particular program was to afford an opportunity to hear Kathrine Goodson made it of double interest.

The orchestra opened with the Dvorak overture, "Othello." The Symphony was Franck's in D minor. This was the big number of the festival so far as the orchestra was concerned. Stock's men are certainly equal to any demands put before them. Mr. Stock conducts with an ease and assurance that makes the listener forget the ensemble, but rather has the feeling that the music comes from one great instrument. The crescendos, diminuendos, and all the various dynamic as well as tone color effects seem to come without any effort on the part of anyone. That the interpretations are masterly goes without saying. The closing number was the tone poem, "Don Juan," by Strauss. Miss Goodson is a veritable giant, pianistically, though small in stature and apparently not robust physically. Her playing captivated the audience from the moment the first strains penetrated to the farthest corners of the hall.

The third concert was chorus night. The orchestra opened with Goldmark's "A Country Wedding." The chorus under the direction of Mr. Tom Ward gave a sacred trilogy, "Mors et Vita," by Gounod. The chorus and orchestra did faithful, steady work in the rendition of this number. The composition in itself is one well worth the work that may have been necessary for its preparation. The chorus was not large enough, however, to give the necessary body of tone to the otherwise grandest portions of the work. The surroundings were not suited to put the audience in the proper mood to fully appreciate or even enjoy the performance. If the same chorus could have given the work in a hall, or, better still, in a church edifice half or a third the size of the arena the results would have been vastly different and more gratifying. The work of the chorus was excellent, and many of the effects were artistic and satisfying.

The soloists were Anita Rio, soprano; Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; George Dostal, tenor, and Arthur Middleton, bass. These artists all acquitted themselves well, and all were received with enthusiasm. The soprano did not seem to fully enter into the spirit of the work. Her voice is under splendid control. The contralto part was not one calculated to bring out the best in Rose Lutiger Gannon's voice. The full beauties of her voice and ability as a singer were much better brought out in the children's concert. Mr. Dostal's singing was most meritorious and brought him an ovation.

The fourth concert, the one event to which all Syracuse looks forward, is the children's program on Wednesday afternoon. What could thrill a lover of the little folk, and who is not, more than to see 600 of them in a chorus and hear their sweet voices in song. The splendid training our children receive in the grades of the public schools of Syracuse is something of which we may well be proud, and the results of which must be gratifying to the director, Professor John J. Ralcigh, and his assistant, Miss Linn Marie Hawn. The regrettable feature of the music in our schools is that it stops with the entrance of the pupils into the high school. If we hope to achieve the best results in music with the children, the training must continue thru the high school.

The soloists on this program were Anita Rio and Rose Lutiger Gannon, who sang charmingly and who did her best work in a group of songs on this program. She responded to encores, singing them especially for the children. Bruno Steindel, cellist, was roundly applauded, and responded to encores.

The Fifth Concert.—The chief interest in the last program centered in the appearance of Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, President Wilson's daughter. Miss Wilson quite captivated the audience. She possesses a voice that is well trained and of most pleasing quality, and especially adapted to the art-song. Her numbers were admirably adapted to bring out the artistic quality of her work. She sings with an abandon and a simplicity of manner which young singers would do well to study.

A delightful feature of the evening was Miss Wilson's singing of Schubert's "Ave Marie," with harp accompaniment by Mr. Melville Clark. Mr. Clark is an artist at the harp such as we do not often have an opportunity of hearing. Mr. Middleton again delighted the audience, and the chorus did some of its best work. Barnby's "Sweet and Low," sung by request, was given with exquisite tone quality and fine shading, as were also Tosti's "Venetian Song" and "Beauty's Eyes."

The orchestra added its usual share to the success of the program. A "Symphonic Waltz," by Mr. Stock, showed him as a composer of force. The finale from "Die Gotterdammerung," by Wagner, was a fitting close to the festival. The Syracuse Chorus was augmented on Monday night by the Oswego Chorus, Tuesday night the Rome Chorus, and Wednesday night the Auburn Chorus. The Board of Directors, and the leader of the chorus, Mr. Ward, may feel that another successful festival has passed into history. Only those who have had experience in that work can begin to realize the amount of work and pains necessary to carry such undertakings to a successful issue.

ZENO NAGEL.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC, 2831 WASHINGTON BOULEVARD

A most interesting recital was given by students at the college last Friday evening, the program being made up of piano, violin and numbers from the dramatic department, including a dialog entitled "The Backward Child," which was very well given by Miss Lillian Poffack and her sister Evelyn. The first movement of the B Flat Mozart "Concerto" was given by Amy Berkowitz, with Mr. Edwards at the second piano. Other numbers were given (all from memory) by Edith Creighton, Mildred Nagel, Vesta Learn, Jessie Donaldson, Florence Atkinson, Naomi Dahlstrom, Bertha Goldberg, Emily Hadka, Bernice Heilman, Grace Behan, Howard Reuschelle, William Learn, Ellsworth Waters and Cyril Burlingame. This was the thirty-first recital of the season to be given at the college recital hall. There will be another recital this Friday evening, the program being given by Edith Creighton, Helen Golding, Rumelle Aubrey, Hester Hoskins, Dorothy Bullard, Adolph Kraus, Willard Groom and others.

On Tuesday, June 8, and Friday, June 11, there will be two concerts given by the college at the Garfield Park M. E. Church, of which part of each will be a contest between twelve boys and twelve girls, the audience to be judges as to who are the best players. The commencement concert will be given about June 22.

Elmhurst—The benefit concert for Christ Church choir, given at the community house in Elmhurst, Ill., on Thursday evening, May 20, was furnished by Bush Conservatory of Chicago. Those who appeared on the program were Alice Calvert, soprano; Marietta Livengood, violinist; Lora E. Williams, reader, and Georgie E. Dowell, accompanist.

Bach Festival—The great Bach festival opens at Bethlehem, Pa., today (Friday), and will continue through tomorrow, four concerts being given with a splendid array of artists.

CHARLOTTE BURTON
 "VIOLINIST"
 1105 E GROVE ST.
 BLOOMINGTON ILL

Thomas N. MacBurney
 Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
 608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
 Phone Wabash 8988

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Ken. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lycium Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils--Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4776 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 571

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lycium Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO RECITALS
CONCERTS
410 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN RECITALS
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

A NEW CANTATA AND OPERETTA Dr. William Rhys-Herbert's Latest Contributions to Musical Dramatic Literature

"In a Flower Garden," a cantata, and "A Wild Rose," an operetta, have just been published by J. Fischer & Bro., New York. The texts of both works have been written by Edith M. Burrows, and the music composed by Dr. W. Rhys-Herbert. The price of each is 75 cents net. It is needless to state that the workmanship of the printer in note, letter and paper in these two compositions is admirable.

It seems that Dr. Rhys-Herbert is one of the busiest, successful and most popular composers of light, humorous, and charmingly constructed cantatas and operettas. His "Sylvia," "A Nautical Knot," "Bulbul," "The Bo's'n's Bride," and "The Brownies' Whispers" have run through scores of editions and are still "running." And now from the same versatile pen comes a cantata, "In a Flower Garden," that will delight choirs of juvenile voices all over the land; and an operetta, "The Wild Rose," that choirs of ladies' voices will hail with great pleasure. By this time, another operetta, for men's voices, entitled "Captain Van der Hum" or, "The Rollicking Tars," is out of the press of J. Fischer and Bro.

To turn aside out of the deeply emotional style of sacred music—we refer to "Bethany," "The Nazarene" and "Bethlehem"—or in other words from sacred to what is termed secular music, is not a common trait or talent among composers of music. Some of the great men of music have failed to "cross over" successfully from one style to the other, for the simple reason that they were not endowed, perhaps, with the real sense and significance of the gulf between these styles. Mendelssohn succeeded pre-eminently in doing so, and Sir Arthur Sullivan was a master hand of the art. So with Dr. Rhys-Herbert who is unquestionably talented in both styles, and is endowed liberally with what is described as "a rich vein of dry and substantial humor," besides possessing the necessary restraint to keep the same within legitimate bounds.

"In a Flower Garden" is a cantata in two parts for young girls' voices, including a description of the costumes to be worn, and a diagram of the stage settings. After a spirited and pretty introduction, a cute chorus of Birds at early dawn sings a "peeping" song in G Major, to the words:

Peep, peep, peep, peep.
Now the darkness flies away;
Cheep, cheep, cheep, cheep,
And we greet another day, etc.

which is followed by a chorus of Dews, a song of Sunbeams, of Daisy, Clover, and Buttercup, a Spider song and a chorus of Grasses. Then Dawn sings a solo, which is replied to in a greeting chorus of Flowers. As the glory of the Garden opens up songs by Little White Clouds, Fair Weather and Noon bring cheer and beauty out of the heart of nature, and with exquisite taste, Part I of the cantata is closed with an allegro agitato chorus by Butterflies and Flowers followed by a beautiful entr'acte Garden Dance, where the costumed characters form a scene of poetic charm and delight.

Part II opens with a chorus that foreshadows nature's change of mood—there are signs of a Wind Song; Fair Weather and Little White Clouds bemoan the change, and all sing a very pretty "Good-bye, Dear Noon" chorus. Following is a Storm Cloud's song, a Rain and Rainbow song, a Song o' Sunset, and a Sunset chorus in three parts, a Fireflies' song—"Winking and blinking a lullaby, telling that sleeping time is nigh"; then, in a lovely full chorus Finale, the scenic beauty of "A one day in the life of the Flowers of a Garden" closes, forming altogether a poetic and tonal picture that is true to nature throughout, and one when enacted by a company of young sweet girls, would create a lasting impression upon the young singers themselves, and by audiences fortunate enough to see and hear this cantata of rhythmic beauty.

"The Wild Rose" is an operetta in two acts for ladies' voices, and a capital piece of good humorous writing it is in text and music. A chorus of young ladies—"City people and Country people"—could make such an instantaneous success in performing it that it would demand many repetitions. Such characters as Rose McCloud, a popular society belle; Misses Writemup and Putendown, reporters; Miss Talkalot, a suffragette; Mrs. Doingood, a charity worker; Bobbie Buttons, to be impersonated by a girl; an Eccentric Playwright; a Dressmaker; a Milliner; a Perfumer, four Debutantes, Maids and a Cat—give an ample impression of the plot, the fun, and of the real uplifting pleasure in listening to a clean-cut operetta that is destined to be a success for many years to come.

Here, again, from the joyful overture with its clever varied movements—which foreshadow the whole work—and on through the bright choruses of Maids, of Debutantes, of "Rose and Maids," the "Pussy Pussy" chorus, and in all solos and accompaniments, we find the composer pouring out rhythmic movements colored with delicious and sparkling humor from number to number, until the work reaches a rushing and capitolly constructed Finale, wherein the "Bobbie" girl gets in her joke—"Say, it's just great to be a man"—and where all sing a dignified and a happy ending to the words:

Beauteous maiden's name is Rose,
Sweeter, fairer, no one knows;
Like a flower, so she grows—
All must love her, sweet Wild Rose.

We predict that these two new works will be received with the same fervor and enthusiasm by the hundreds of small dramatic choirs and choruses of children as was and is given to "Sylvia," "A Nautical Knot" and "Bulbul," because they are just as melodious and singable as they can be with accompaniments that are so well fitted to the vocal parts. There may be a good reason for this. It is well known that Franz Schubert, the shy and over-moderate master of melody, was an exquisite pianist as well as accompanist, and that there is in his song work a perfect balance between melody and accompaniment. Dr. William Rhys-Herbert, in his song work, proved himself a true disciple to the great master in this respect. Not once does he fail to arrange the piano work to be helpful to the voice in reaching the goal of music intelligence and interpretation. The reason for this is, because he is an accomplished organist, pianist and accompanist.

GREAT ORGAN RESTS YOUR BODY AND SOUL

Helen Dare, in San Francisco Chronicle:

That sage remark of Ralph Waldo Emerson in respect to the fact that you do not have to live on the highway in order to sell goods; that, in fact, if you seclude yourself in a wood and produce something the rest of humanity desires your fellow men will do the road-making straight to your doorstep, is being constantly and beautifully corroborated at the exposition—and the doorstep sought is the doorstep of Festival Hall.

That doorstep leads to the great organ.

This is one of the revelations of the exposition—hoped for, but not too confidently expected.

The great organ—perhaps like everything else—partook somewhat of the nature of an experiment.

All that even exposition creators and organizers can do is provide the inducement, allure with temptation—dangle the bait, as it were—and then watch which way the cat will jump.

They took a chance on installing that great organ in Festival Hall—and spending a tidy fortune to do it.

Of course, they were counting on the well-known local love of music; counting some on the novelty of the thing and the compelling power of curiosity; counting on the tolerably well-established principle that the expensive and extraordinary are potent in drawing the crowd; and, besides that, they hoped a good deal in a general and inclusive way, as the game sport must be in a gamble.

But even in their cheerfulness and most optimistic moments they didn't hope in such definite terms as to be wholly prepared for what actually has happened.

If they had they wouldn't have invited Clarence Eddy to give only three recitals (was it all of three?), and then some more; and after that coaxed him on to yet more; now, would they?

Their process was what might be called tentative, but wise, discreet, prudent, good business.

The reason for this was that they didn't know—and had no way of telling—how the organ and the organ recitals would take with the exposition public.

They couldn't estimate—they even couldn't make a wild guess at—how many of the visitors to the exposition, who paid their fifty cents to get in, would feel like giving up a quarter more to go into Festival Hall and sit for an hour listening to music; especially when there was so much and such good music to be heard outdoors—and just for the listening.

It was surprising—and undoubtedly gratifying—to discover that the announcement of an organ recital had the effect of filling Festival Hall; that the public took to it like the proverbial duck to the water; that, as the recital followed recital (and the public got the habit) folks drifted in from the time the doors opened; seemed perfectly willing to come in and wait half an hour or an hour for that wonderful swell and subterranean rumble of the great organ; that they'd come in (paying their two-bits) to hear part of the program, some special number, or as much as they could take the time to hear; and come back again and again—quite as though it were a "free show."

Sort o' funny, isn't it?

Yet the public taking to the big organ is, in its way, no more surprising than the big organ has been to the public.

h h h

There still are a good many persons, who have not enjoyed the inestimable advantage of having been everywhere and seen and heard everything, to whom a pipe organ stands for church music, and is one of those things that a boy somewhere in a remote and inaccessible corner "pumps up."

Even at these recitals of varied and wonderful music in Festival Hall, on a forty-horse-power pipe organ, run by electricity, there always is some one in the big audience who is (momentarily only) startled and shocked and rather aghast at the outbreak of applause after the last note of a finely rendered number.

It seems, on the instant, an amazing breach of propriety—until these novices remember that they are not in a church, and let it gradually percolate to their inner consciousness that the organ may be dissociated from the church.

It is not such an amazing thing that the organ in its development, should be comparatively unknown to many who are not only music lovers but musically educated.

Great organs—at the sum it costs to install them—are not scattered around so freely and plentiful as to make them accessible to everybody.

Nor are great organists—or, as it seems more fitting to call them, organmasters—so plentiful. If anything; they are even less numerous and ubiquitous than great organs.

So that it is not, after all, a blot on one's fame to be unfamiliar with great organ music.

Which leads us back to the starting point—that the great organ in Festival Hall, and the hit it has made with the exposition public, constitute one of the revelations of the exposition.

h h h

The great organ seems to supply a need, and, therefore (returning to our friend Emerson), the world wears a path to the door where that need is supplied.

Organ music from such an instrument (I was about to say "institution," and even wavered for a moment toward "edifice") is something apart; it has no exact counterpart in music, however produced.

The organ in its modern development gives all that the orchestra gives, and then something.

Organ music is, as Clarence Eddy holds—and who should know better than this master who can get so much out of an organ—orchestra music plus.

Plus the "organ tone"—that something besides the quality there is in other music; that something that is like atmosphere in a picture, or personality in an individual.

Perhaps it is this special quality—this essence—that puts its charm upon the public.

However that may be, the fact remains the miracle is wrought, that when the doors of Festival Hall open for an organ recital the people pour in (parting with the twenty-five cents extra) like the children following the Pied Piper of Hamelin.

The swell of the organ note comes sweeping through the air like the curve of a wave upon the shore, the reverberation of the deepest plummet of the diapason makes a silent quivering around your feet, and you answer that call to something within you by hurrying off to the ticket window in Festival Hall; you carry your hunger to the feast of music.

There you are not astonished, but very pleased, that so many have felt the same hunger and heard the same call.

It really is very wonderful, and, perhaps, quite explainable by the informed persons who know why that is.

h h h

Those who go (one might say succumb) to the organ recitals try to explain it to each other. "When I am tired from walking around through the exposition and seeings things, I find that the music rests me wonderfully."

"When I am wearied with looking and confused by the many things I have examined, it seems fairly to wash away the strained feeling and clarifies my mind."

"When I am wearied and distraught, it soothes and comforts me."

"It is a tonic."

"It is a balm."

"It rests my body and soothes my soul."

"Why, it charms away the very pain I carry in with me."

They laugh a little when they say these things to you, to disarm your incredulity with an acknowledgment of their fancifulness; but what they say is truth just the same—truth, based on physical (and, no doubt, on what we, for want of acuter sensibilities and complete knowledge, call spiritual) fact.

Clarence Eddy, who, with his musicianly skill awakens that monstrous, dumb, quiescent creation that seems couchant there into sentient response, sending out waves of sound that encompass you, lulling, stirring, swaying you, waves that bear you on their surface, that cradle you, that carry you afar into strange regions, strange lights and shadows; that sing in your ears and soothe you with their softness—

Well! Clarence Eddy, who is on intimate terms with great organs, says it isn't all fancy, this notion about the organ tone resting your body and soothing your soul. He says there's a good deal in the actual physical vibrations you get; and that there may be even more in your mental and spiritual receptiveness.

He is an enthusiast on the subject of organ music, of course; but common-sense as a sound American withal; and the character he gives organ music is that it is:

"Refining, elevating, educational; it makes a high appeal to the mind and the emotions."

He says that organist and composer have not yet realized the full possibilities of the organ; and that it has a wide range—far beyond the "church music" that we habitually associate it with—has been demonstrated by the variety of his programs.

There certainly is versatility in an instrument from which can be drawn the airy, delicate fantasy of "Will o' the Wisp" and the tremendous effects and

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park

426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method

815 WILSON AVENUE

TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES
Soprano
HERBERT M.
Baritone

BAILEY

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO

522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER

Just returned from abroad

Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MAUDE BOLLMAN

FENLON

CONCERT SOPRANO

STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG.

Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO

CONCERT

CONTRALTO

3958 Drexel Boulevard

Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST

Concerts Recitals

Receptions

Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater

Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

OPERA

849 LAKESIDE PLACE

TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts

Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling Pianist

Teacher

2912 Burling Street

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE

509 S. WABASH AVENUE

Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART

PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-

CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION

Western Conservatory Mallers Bldg.

sharp contrasts of the concert piece by August de Boeck that Eddy played last Sunday.

To have weariness of body and heaviness or irritability of mind smoothed out by an hour of music is one of the things that you can do at the exposition.

You can get a musical massage, so to speak, for twenty-five cents—right on the grounds.

ERIE, PA.

One of the most interesting events of the waning musical season in Erie was the recital given by Joseph Erhart in Masonic Hall recently. Mr. Erhart was in superb voice and delighted a good-sized audience with his fine interpretations and the beauty of his voice. His program included the well known tenor arias from "Carmen" and "La Boheme," as well as groups of German and American songs. Mr. Erhart was ably assisted by Fritz Goerner, cellist, whose refined playing is always greatly enjoyed, and on this occasion Mr. Goerner was given an ovation that must have pleased him vastly. Erie certainly appreciates Mr. Goerner's sacrifice in coming from Oberlin for every concert given by the Erie Symphony Orchestra, to play in the chair of first cellist. Otto Ebisch played the accompaniments for the evening and it is unnecessary to say that they were beyond criticism.

The Erie Choral Society made its second appearance last Tuesday evening, offering for its program two scenes from Coleridge-Taylor's "Hiawatha," the "Wedding Feast" and "Death of Minnehaha." The society had the assistance of about twenty members of the Erie Symphony Orchestra and Joseph Erhart, tenor, Miss Mary Quinn, soprano, and Ludwig Meyer, baritone, as soloists. The society in interpreting this beautiful and intricate score greatly strengthened the fine reputation established at their initial concert last February. Mr. Vincent had the splendid chorus completely under his control and produced effects that were exquisite in the lighter portions of the work and thrilling in the more dramatic passages. There is no question but that the Erie Choral Society stands in the lead of any similar organization in the city and future appearances of this fine body of singers will be eagerly looked forward to. An added interest was given this concert in that the results of the composition competition which the society had conducted were announced to the public, the winning contestants being: First prize, vocal, $25, "Baby's Eyes," Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer; second prize, vocal, $15, "Returning," Mrs. Effie B. Kaemmerling. First prize, $15, instrumental, "Summer Leaves," Winifred Moore. It is rather significant to note that all three prize winners were women, there having been about eighteen contestants of both sexes.

U. S. Kerr, the well known bass-cantante, appeared in recital at Masonic Hall on Wednesday evening, May 19, under the direction of one of the local churches.

Rehearsals are well under way for the May Festival to be held on the evenings of May 28 and 29 in the Majestic Theater. Fine programs are announced for both evenings and the entire proceeds will be turned over to local charities, every person on the program having contributed his services—even the managers of the Majestic Theater have given the use of the theater gratis.

A. H. D. JR.

Howard E. PRESTON
5434 Woodlawn Av. BARITONE Telephone Midway 4175

HICKISCH Soprano
RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE
Personal Address, LACROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO Recitals Concerts
Oratorio Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing, Recitals, Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.
Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Music Abroad

LONDON LETTER

(Delayed in transit.)

The First Philharmonic Society

To the musicians of London belongs the credit for organizing the first of the many Philharmonic societies. It is still thriving, and from all appearances it will continue to do so for ages to come.

It is called an organization, but in reality it is not one. They are organized, to be sure, but the board of directors and all of the officers do their work not as a business, but as recreation; love for the society and its traditions is back of all of their efforts. It is more a "spirit" than an organization.

They do not keep an organized orchestra, but they are dependent on the various players from the other orchestras for the concerts. In this way they draw to themselves the best players of London's many splendid orchestra men, using more than a hundred of them at each concert. Some of the best orchestral music I have heard, they have given in London in the five concerts they have so far given this season.

Mr. Thomas Beecham has conducted four of the concerts, and Safonoff the other. They do not confine themselves to one conductor for the whole season. Mr. Beecham is considered conductor of the season, however.

Founded in 1813 by a body of eminent professional musicians, with the object of promoting the cultivation of orchestral music and of giving the public orchestral concerts of the highest class. It is impossible to attempt in so small a space even a resume of the work of this, the most renowned musical body in England, to say nothing of giving its history.

From its inception it at once took the leading position among musical societies in England; from then until now, during a period of over a century (this is its one hundred and third season), it has maintained that position of almost undisputed pre-eminence without a break.

Its founders numbered amongst them most of the leading musicians of the time, and its membership has since included so splendid a number of the greatest artists of all time, that the list may almost be taken as a world's record of the art.

By its historical connection with the illustrious Beethoven alone, it enlists the sympathy of all lovers of music; this society had the honor of introducing to this country many of his greatest compositions, and to its eternal glory it sent a generous aid to minister to his necessities on his death bed.

It introduced the compositions of Spohr and Moscheles to London audiences, and Mendelssohn, when in his twentieth year conducted his "Symphony in C Minor" at a concert in the spring of 1829. Weber made his first appearance here under its auspices. These are but the most striking of its earlier achievements. Space will forbid giving details of work in later years.

The society has numbered among its conductors Sir George Smart, Sir Henry Bishop, Ignace Moscheles, Felix Mendelssohn, Sir M. Costa, Sir M. Cousins, Richard Wagner, Sterndale Bennett, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Sir Alexander Mackenzie and Frederick Cowen.

In December, 1912, the society (until then known as the Philharmonic Society), was made the Royal Philharmonic Society. Patrons, H. M. the King, H. M. the Queen, and H. M. Queen Alexandra.

Through the kindness of Mr. J. M. Leven, I have been able to meet the present conductor, Mr. Beecham, and to attend its rehearsals. I also have met many of the orchestra men.

Mr. Beecham is a young man in music, as well as years; but England will have to reckon with him from this time on. He is but little past thirty, but has had the best of opportunity to study his work, having done much of it under Dr. Richter, and, at times has taken that noble master's baton at many concerts in England.

Mr. Beecham has a style particularly his own. The four concerts I have heard under his direction are of the most interesting I have attended in England. He is never content to do the old works of the masters to the exclusion of the newer ones. At each of his concerts the larger part of the program is of the more modern works. While some of them I do not feel will bear the test of years, he is giving them a chance. In this he is doing them all justice, and at the same time is giving the members of the society an opportunity to know what is going on in the way of new music. That, as has been said, is the object of the Society's work.

The London Music Club entertained Mr. Beecham at their regular meeting on January 25. He conducted a small orchestra of about forty pieces that night. I sat just back of him in the front row and had for the first time a chance to study his movements. They are of lightning-like quickness, and from a distance they seem disconcerting, though at times giving the most thrilling effects. They all have their meaning, and the men under him have no trouble in understanding them. He does not "beat time." You get no rhythm from him—from his movements, rather. Many times he allows the men to play several bars without his making a motion. His climaxes are tremendous. You see a flash-like movement from him, and then the men respond on the accentuated beat. The effect is remarkable. His playing of the Berlioz "Symphonie Fantastique" I will never forget. He is particularly adapted to the reading of such things. He is absolutely fearless in all that he does. He does what he likes with his men, and says what he feels like saying for publication. Some of it is not easy for the older musicians here to tolerate; but it is what they should have heard years ago in many cases. I admire his work very much, and will count as profit everything I have heard him play. England owes him much now and will owe more as time goes on. It is interesting to know that he does not need to do what he is doing. It is love for the work that keeps him continually striving to find something new in music that the public has not heard. He is a man of unlimited means, and each season he organizes an opera of his own and performs such operas as he sees fit to take up. Many of the works that have been heard nowhere else he has given here in London. It is his one great complaint that he cannot find the singers he wants to do the work adequately. I have talked with him on the subject, and he is of the same opinion about the reason. It is too quick returns for the time and money invested that is doing all the damage. More of such men would make a difference in the singing world before the present generation passes. He believes that the singer should be a singer only. Our present day schools are trying to make them into great musicians as well. They do not need to be more than fairly good readers. Those who know too much music, know less of singing than they should in most cases. But this is not the subject. I must stop. ALBERT A. WHITE.

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Servik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Ralph Brokow
VIOLINIST Wichita, Kas.

GRACE MARCUSSEN
BRUNE SOPRANO RECITALS
ORATORIO 609 FINE ARTS BUILDING

FRANCES INGRAM
CONTRALTO

Management: C. A. SHAW, Orchestra Hall, CHICAGO
MAURICE FULCHER, Representative, McCormick Bldg.

IDA GARDNER
CONTRALTO
Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

GEORGE LIPSCHULTZ
MILTON Violinist Soloist
Teacher 1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

180.5
M 214

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS LIBRARY

BACH FESTIVAL AT BETHLEHEM
EVANSTON FESTIVAL

JUN 7 - 1915
OHIO TEACHERS' CONVENTION

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

EVAN WILLIAMS

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

43rd Year will open September 21, 1915

THE HEWETT BUREAU

KATE JORDON HEWETT Musical and Dramatic

A clearing house for Artists and those who seek them.

Employers Teachers
Professional Interpreters

627 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Illinois
Phone Wabash 5189

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
Chicago's most attractive hall, devoted exclusively to concerts, recitals and other high-class entertainments. Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,
HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JUNE 4, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business
Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and
Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, June 4, 1915

No. 23

Editorial

THE APOLLO CLUB

Great enthusiasm is to be found throughout the ranks of the Apollo Club and every one who can make it possible is going to California with this splendid organization.

The illness of Harrison Wild came at an unfortunate time and, until Mr. Stock had shown his splendid abilities, it created some apprehension, but now everyone is certain that the work of the club under Mr. Stock's direction will be up to a splendid grade and that the club will reap successes all along the line.

Particularly satisfactory has been the a cappella development of the club and the audiences in Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego certainly have a treat in store for them.

Mr. Wild had his final operation for appendicitis last week and came through it splendidly. He has progressed rapidly toward recovery ever since and is now confident that after a summer's rest he will be in fine trim to take up next season's work as director of the club.

The programs for the season are already made out and Mr. Wild is full of enthusiasm for the work.

Any rumors that he had the remotest intention of abandoning the work as director of the club are absurd.

Considerably more than two hundred members of the club have entered for the California trip and there will be further additions to the list. Nothing but enthusiasm is heard from the members and the officers are a unit in the determination to make the trip thoroughly agreeable and wholly artistic.

Mr. Stock will be the conductor, Edgar Nelson the assistant conductor and the solo quartet will be, as already announced, Leonora Allen, Christine Miller, Paul Althouse and Arthur Middleton.

Since the resignation of Carl D. Kinsey as manager, the work has been taken up energetically by T. H. Ratcliffe, the new secretary-manager, and he may be found in the Apollo Club office daily, busily engaged in working out the details of the California trip and filled with enthusiasm for the whole future of the Apollo Club.

There have already been many rehearsals of the programs to be given on the California trip and others are announced for

O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming!
And the rocket's red glare, the bomb's bursting in air
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there!
Tis the Star Spangled Banner, and long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

—Francis Scott Key

Fullerton Hall on June 7, 14, 21, 24, 28 and July 5, all at 8 p. m.

The Apollo special train for California leaves the Northwestern station in Chicago at 12:30 p. m. on July 10, the first concert of the series being scheduled for Denver on Sunday evening, July 11.

A GOOD STORY

This fine story was told by Mrs. Belle Watson Melville before a very polite society club in Oak Park:

"Two gentlemen of Jewish extraction had been to hear Billy Sunday preach in Philadelphia.

"Vell, Isaac," said one, "how did you like him?"

"I didn't LIKE him," answered Isaac. "He preached nothing but hell, Hell, HELL, all the time, and I don't BELIEVE in hell."

"Vell, Isaac," said his friend, "if you don't believe in HELL, vere HAS der PIZNESS gone?"

A LETTER

Chicago, May 25, 1915.

Mr. Charles E. Watt,
Editor Music News,
Chicago.

My dear Mr. Watt:

At the close of a very successful season, I want to assure you of my sincere appreciation of the splendid results I have received through my advertisement in the Music News. One sometimes hears the remark that it does no good to advertise in musical magazines, claiming they are read only by other musicians, and not by the people who engage artists. This has not been my experience with the Music News as I have definite advices from directors under whom I have sang that the publicity given me in the Music News had caused them to engage me, and I know this to be true, as they had no other way of hearing of me. In fact, two of them made identically the same remark, i. e., that they were indeed glad to be able to have me with them, as they had been following my progress in the Music News and knew I was very busy. I feel that is a valuable impression for the public to have regarding one's work as it seems to make his services more desirable. I am going to rest all summer and I expect to be in tip-top shape next season.

Again let me assure you of my very high regard for the Music News and what it can do for its advertisers.

Yours very truly,
GRANT KIMBELL.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Gorton School
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Astoria 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Swenkerod, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE TWABASH 18988

GEORGE KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Roeder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg.

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Arthur Uhe PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

NORA OLIN
VOICE
524 Kimball Hall. 321 Lake Street, Oak Park. Tel. O. P. 2724

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

WILL LEMARE COME TO AMERICA?

At an Oak Park Church last Sunday evening, where Edwin Lemare was scheduled to play, en route to California, it was announced from the pulpit that a cablegram had been received from the English organist in which he stated that he would not leave England until conditions of ocean travel were safer and that his whole American engagement was therefore in doubt.

MR. CADMAN TO WRITE FOR MUSIC NEWS

Charles Wakefield Cadman will write a complete review of the N. F. M. C. at Los Angeles, as well as of the Congress of American Composers in the same city at concurrent dates.

This announcement has created a sensation, and every one will want to read the two or three issues of Music News in which the Cadman articles will appear.

OAK PARK CONGREGATIONAL

An immense audience was attracted to the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on last Sunday evening in anticipation of hearing Edwin Lemare, the English organist, who had been announced.

He did not appear, but nobody missed him, for the choir gave an unusually attractive and worthy program and Mr. Kinsey played the organ to the satisfaction of everyone present.

Only part of the numbers were heard. Miss Mary Ann Kaufman in Mendelssohn's "Oh for the Wings of a Dove" was superb. Her voice, clear, sonorous and very sweet, carried to the furthest recesses of the big auditorium with telling effect, and the congregation was proud to claim her as "our own special soloist."

The choir was heard in an arrangement of the sextet from "Lucia," wholly inappropriate for church use, but none the less effective on that account and in which there were musical values which were splendid from every possible standpoint.

Mr. Kinsey was heard only in the Volckmar "Postlude in D," in which he exemplified the resources of the splendid organ at this church in fine fashion. C. E. W.

MILCN HARRIS AT ROGERS PARK

The following is taken from the Rogers Park Advance:

Mr. Milton R. Harris announces that he has a few vacancies in the choir. Anyone who wishes to enjoy the privilege of singing in this choir will please see him at the close of one of the services. Mr. Harris has surely "made good" in building up and maintaining a very superior chorus choir. Old members of the church say not only that the music is at least as good as any the church has ever had but in addition to this an average of thirty people are actively at work in the church each Sunday morning and evening ministering in song. How much better it is to have thirty people at work than four. Have you noticed that the congregational singing has improved since we have been led by a chorus choir? We heartily congratulate Mr. Harris on his great success and continue to congratulate ourselves that we were able to secure the services of this excellent Christian gentleman and very efficient teacher of voice and choir director. Let us continue to give him the support he must have if this department of the work is to prosper.

ANNUAL CONCERT AT THE IMMANUEL CHURCH

Mr. A. Alfred Holmes, organist and director of the music at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, has built up a choir that does some fine singing throughout the year, and the well filled church on May 26 was proof enough that there was something worth while in store for those who enjoy good music.

Mr. Holmes gave a fine reading of the "Overture to Raymond," by Thomas, and furnished splendid support for the choir in their accompanied numbers.

The choir gave as the opening number Stainer's "Grieve Not the Holy Spirit of God" with surety in attack, a fine regard for light and shade that made it very effective. Berwald's "Return, O Wanderer," met with fine favor.

The ladies' chorus and Mr. Holmes may well feel proud of the rendition they gave "Water Lilies," by Linden. The quality of tone, blending of the voices is seldom equaled in church choirs.

"Holy, Holy, Holy," by Gounod, with Mrs. Ella Carlson singing the soprano solo, given with a fine breadth that was very convincing and effective.

Mr. Gustaf Holmquist is always a wel-

LEGINSKA, Pianist

Who appeared as soloist SEVEN times with the New York Symphony Orchestra this season, completely captivated the music lovers of New York at her Carnegie Hall recital, Friday evening, March 19, as the following will attest:

"Leginska gave a convincing exhibition as a pianist in Carnegie Hall last evening. Her skill was of an exalted and unaffected character. She is a conscientious and sincere artist. It may safely be said that of the younger generation of pianists now before the public, Leginska ranks highest."—New York American, March 20th 1915.

Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

come soloist wherever he chooses to appear. His splendid bass and fine personality have won him a host of friends. "Where'er You Walk," by Handel and "Rolling in Foaming Billows," by Haydn, were his opening numbers, sung with great interpretative breadth and fine display of vocal resource that left nothing to be desired in artistic and finished singing. Two groups of Swedish songs met with genuine approval, sung as only Mr. Holmquist can sing them, as was "In An Old-Fashioned Town," by Squire, "Den Store Hvite Flok," by Grieg, has been often heard but never to such a fine advantage as on this occasion. Mr. Holmquist sang the solo part in a superb manner, and the work of the chorus reached a high point of excellence.

Mr. David Nyvall furnished musicianly and artistic accompaniments for Mr. Holmquist.

Mrs. Sylvia Jackson Wahlstrom, pianist, gave a fine reading of a number by Liszt that was highly enjoyable.

Mr. Avern Scolnik is a young violinist whose tone work in legato passages is pleasing, but when he departs from this particular style of composition, his playing is not what it should be. H. W. P.

Bergey Opera School—Saturday afternoon, May 29, Mr. Theodore S. Bergey presented his pupils in a recital at the studio in the Fine Arts Building. Sunday afternoon, June 6, a public recital will be given by his pupils in the Francis I. Room of the Congress Hotel.

May Festival at Evanston

The attendance at the North Shore Festival last week was good throughout and the character of the program and the standing of the artists was the best obtainable.

In spite of bad weather most of the week the audiences were not only large but also of very brilliant character, and the impression was given continuously that this festival is now a thoroughly established factor six hundred voices, augmented to one thousand singers from the Evanston and New Trier High Schools and the Evanston Academy, were enlisted to make the performance possible. It is very doubtful if the popular "Elijah" ever received a more stirring and finished rendition and the appreciation and enthusiasm of the audience is accounted for by that fact.

Every person connected with the performance seemed fired with a determination to give of his or her best and respond with precision and unity to every fancy and impulse of the forceful conductor, Mr. Lutkin. It was a great night for him and one of the achievements of a life time to bring a performance of such dimensions to a smooth and inspiring finish.

The chorus sang its numbers with great breadth of tone and a surprising degree of expression, shading and inspiring climaxes. It was hard to believe one thousand singers were taking part, so smooth was their entrance, tempo and releases.

A number of opportunities came to the A Cappella Choir, which was mounted in a balcony high above the chorus, to show those admirable qualities which have gained renown for them in the choral world and suffice it to say that their part in the performance was of a most beautiful nature and will not be forgotten soon by those caring to reflect on past musical achievements. The orchestra was superb as always and well deserves a large amount of duets and solos allotted the contralto with her usual admirable vocal display, excellent enunciation, and deep feeling for both text and music. She aroused a great amount of applause and was clearly one of the successes of the evening.

Mr. Althouse is the subject for high praise also. His brilliant tenor voice rang out full and clear through the large auditorium and he proved once again that he is one of the best festival artists in the country. The one really singable aria of this work comes to the tenor in "If With All Your Hearts," and Mr. Althouse created one of the sensations of the evening through in the best music life of Evanston and Chicago.

MILDRED POTTER

The Opening Night

The seventh annual North Shore Music Festival opened on Monday evening, May 24, at Northwestern University Gymnasium with greater enthusiasm and amid more startling splendor than ever before. The gigantic auditorium was decorated in greater effulgence than noted on former occasions, yet, perhaps, not so harmonious and restful. The audience which comes from all points on the north shore and in Chicago filled the building to capacity and was dressed in true festival attire and acted throughout the evening accordingly.

According to gossip during the intermission the 1915 festival opened with more brilliancy than ever before.

The "Elijah" Performance

Mendelssohn's great choral work, "Elijah," was the musical feature of opening night. Peter Christian Lutkin was again at the conductor's stand and the services of Florence Hinkle, soprano; Margaret Keyes, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor; Clarence Whitehill, baritone; Fritz Haines, boy soprano; the Chicago Symphony Orchestra; the A Cappella Choir; Festival Chorus of praise for its part in the evening's musical activities.

PAUL ALTHOUSE

Miss Hinkle is a great favorite on the north shore, but added nothing, perhaps, to the laurels she has won on former occasions in Evanston.

Miss Keyes sang the usual recitatives,

OSBOURNE McCONATHY

his artistic singing of this beautiful portion.

The taxing role of "Elijah," of course, fell to Mr. Whitehill and he delivered himself of that responsibility with great artistry. Never has this part received a greater interpretation and his voice came out in full accord to his dramatic delivery of the various portions of this baritone role.

Between the first and second parts of the evening's work occurred the singing of a beautiful anthem by choir and chorus in memory of John Richard Lindgren, former president of the Apollo Club, founder of the Evanston Musical Club and stanch supporter of the North Shore Festivals.

HERBERT M. BAILEY.

Second Concert

The graphic moment on Tuesday evening was when Mr. Pasquale Amato sang the "Largo al Factotum," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville." It was a notable performance, and with Amato to sing this aria the opera will hold its place on the stage in America despite all odds. The number has been the favorite vehicle for all the famous basso-buffos since it was written, but in a long series of concert going years, the reviewer has never encountered so vivid a delivery, and questions whether even the great La Blache himself, who stands at the head of the list of interpreters, ever made a more effective use of it. The Amato organ is a truly noble one, and the artistic qualities that are united so many times in the Italian temperament are not far behind in his case.

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The "Barber" excerpt was sung as an encore to the "Prayer" from "William Tell," which had been preceded by the "Joy Divine" from Massenet's "Roi de Lahore" and the Dutchman's big song from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman." The French number was well done, but in the German offering there was an apparent mutual distrust of the Italian and German forces, for Mr. Stock watched Mr. Amato and Mr. Amato watched Mr. Stock so closely that the audience forgot the music in observing the palpable joint endeavors. At a festival occasion the evidences of insufficient rehearsal were hardly excusable.

The Chicago Orchestra, under Mr. Stock, repeated with unusually fine success the familiar "Rienzi" overture of Wagner, the "March" from Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding Symphony," which latter they do with the most delightful finish, surety and charm of tonal variety and coloring. Sinigaglia's "Piedmontese Carnival" and Alfvén's "Midsummer Wake" are both brilliant and dashing, and well calculated to entertain an audience gathered to hear an operatic idol.

Mr. Arne Oldberg's "June" also came to another hearing, and the opportunity was used by the Evanston people to honor this very able and earnest musician, as Mr. Oldberg conducted the "Rhapsody" on this occasion. The composition is true to its form, and is both elusive and piquant in its musical content, but inclining more to the quiet influences of the golden month than to the effervescence that is intoxicating. These reflective portions are unusually poetic, graceful and suggestive, and Mr. Oldberg found himself readily expressing his thought in the use of the modern methods of freedom in construction, by which the continuous flow of melody is unrestricted, and there is no fact if every idea be not worked out to its last analysis. The audience was enthusiastic, and recalled Mr. Oldberg again and again.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

□ □ □

Third Concert

Chicago has heard the "Dream of Gerontius" several times—once under the baton of the composer, Elgar.

These performances, however, good as they were, could not be compared to the one given the intensely introspective and musically beautiful work on Thursday evening at the Festival.

PETER C. LUTKIN

Mr. Lutkin has put many faithful hours into the development of the Festival Chorus, and this has not been without its result, for today this body of singers stands very close to the top of the list of such organizations, and at this time proved to be an immense credit to the North Shore and to the splendid musicianship of Dean Lutkin.

Felix Borowski, in the Herald, has expressed this excellence so well that we will here quote what he has said:

The North Shore Festival Association and Mr. Lutkin, its musical director, presented to the public of Evanston at the Northwestern University gymnasium last evening the principal production of their four-day season. Elgar's composition, "The Dream of Gerontius," is one of those musical creations which, in consequence of the enthusiasm of Mr. Lutkin and of the enthusiasm which he communicated to his chorus, was likely to make an effect of more than ordinary impressiveness.

There can be no doubt that the English master's work deserves the homage which has been given it. Few compositions that have been set forth in the last quarter of a century attain the lofty heights that are attained in "The Dream of Gerontius."

The oratorio—it must be called that for lack of a more specific name—has been interpreted in Chicago several times since it was produced at the Birmingham festival in 1900. On one of these occasions Sir Edward Elgar was the conductor, and the Sheffield Choir sang under his direction. Neither the composer nor his British choristers did full justice to music whose qualities deserve in interpretation the finest skill. It is not giving the Evanston performance too much praise to declare that there were many moments in it which made it easy to forget Sir Edward Elgar and his choir.

If there are those who would insist that nothing could be more absurd than the assumption that it would be possible for Mr. Lutkin to put forward a more convincing presentation of "The Dream of Gerontius" than the man who gave that composition to the world, it may be stated that Sir Edward Elgar is not a conductor of eminent ability, and that composers often are mediocre interpreters of their own works.

Withal the reading of the composition given by the director of the north shore festivals would have been even better than it was if it had been less deliberate in its tempos. The prelude in particular would have been benefited by a larger measure of energization, and there were portions of the music that followed it which lagged. This, however, was a minor defect. The principal matter for congratulation is that the reading as a whole was one distinguished for much that was beautiful to hear.

Mr. Lutkin demonstrated in "The Dream of Gerontius," as he had demonstrated in "Elijah," that his notions of choral singing are concerned with much more than the business of persuading people to open their mouths in order to let sound come out of them. There was admirable observance of nuances. There was evident appreciation of the poetical meaning of the text. The climaxes were negotiated with remarkable ability—so remarkable, indeed, that although there were 600 singers instead of the 1,000 that had lifted up their voices in "Elijah" on Monday night, the volume of tone appeared to be greater than it had appeared to be when Mendelssohn's oratorio had been given to the house.

The soloists of the evening were Miss Mildred Potter, Mr. Evan Williams and Mr. Henri Scott, the first named being heard for the first time at the Evanston festivals, the second being a supreme favorite there and Mr. Scott appearing for the second time.

The last named singer had two songs, one in each part, and he gave this limited score with authority and in good style. The Chicago press accused him of unfamiliarity with the music. If this were true, the fact escaped the attention of this writer at the time of performance.

Absolutely unfair was it to Miss Potter and distinctly savoring of the methods of a small and uninformed musical town that the critics of the daily press should have so generally left the hall before the intermission and have written their reviews with no comment on the work of Miss Potter, who appeared only in the second part.

As a matter of fact, the part of the "Angel," which was sung by this splendid contralto, is a wonderfully important one, its music suited her admirably, and it was delivered in superb style.

Power and breadth in abundance is hers, and a deep religious intensity and a fully emotional sensing of the Elgar music was present in every phrase.

Her voice production is of wonderful evenness and ease, and in all the technical aspects of her work she stands very near perfection.

In interpretative thought she was fine also, and her selection to sing the part proved to be one of the happiest incidents of festival week.

Clarity of enunciation is a point that never escapes Miss Potter, and throughout the long and trying score she maintained an absolute hold on the music, be it judged either from the technical or the interpretative standpoint.

However, Mr. Elgar wrote "Grontius" most emphatically to exploit a tenor solo voice, and to this score he has assigned a wealth of music—difficult, fascinating and thoroughly convincing.

In the first part, Mr. Evan Williams was on his feet and was singing most intricate music almost continuously, possibly forty minutes almost without cessation, and in the second part he repeated the same feat, the only difference being that Miss Potter shared the actual singing with him, whereas in the first part he sang almost continuously, either in solo or in obligato with the chorus.

Few tenors—or singers of any voice, for that matter—could successfully withstand such a test, but Mr. Williams not only accomplished it with ease but also was able to infuse the text with such beauty of thought as to constitute it one of the noblest offerings he has made in Chicago or Evanston.

Mr. Williams' voice is of superlative beauty, but also, it is filled with the utmost of vitality, while his feeling for such text as that of "Gerontius" is absolutely wonderful.

It is not a mere interpretation of beautiful music set to attractive text; it is also the whole-souled expression of a personality which is both gracious and powerful.

Only once in a great while is the opportunity presented to hear so sincere and so beautiful a piece of vocalism, and every auditor at Evanston on Thursday night may well feel thankful for the privilege of having been there, and every one who failed to go may be very sure that he missed one of the most intensely meaningful performances ever given at the North Shore Festival.

The work of the orchestra was also at the top notch of power and beauty, and the entire performance was therefore one of great unity of purpose and exact evenness in attainment.

CHARLES E. WATT.

h h h

Saturday Afternoon Concert

The fourth concert, usually spoken of as the children's concert, was, of course, largely attended, fathers and mothers, grandfathers and grandmothers being in the places occupied by other members of the family at the evening concerts. It is a most happy idea to have a children's program, and the committee at Evanston know very well how to manage such a performance. Fifteen hundred young people, including students from the Evanston Township and New Trier High Schools, of which Mr. Osbourne McConathy is supervisor; Evanston Academy, and the Grade Schools of Evanston, Glencoe and Wilmette, composed this splendid body of singers. The supervisors of the grade schools, to whom very much praise is due, are Nellie Poorman, Elizabeth Brack, Elizabeth Nash and Stella Maher.

Such a gathering of young people is an interesting and charming sight; the bright faces, the pretty white dresses, ribbons of pink, blue and white in great profusion, groups of boys here and there and now and then a real black face looking out.

Much hard work has been done by teachers and students for all the words of the choruses had been committed.

After the formal opening of the program by Mr. Stock and the orchestra in the Overture to "The Secret of Suzanne," Wolf-Ferrari, Mr. Osbourne McConathy came to the director's desk and the singing of the children was heard.

Mr. McConathy has been in Evanston only two years, but he has shown his ability in training young people to be of a high order. He has charge of the public school music in the University School of Music.

The first was a group of three patriotic songs: "Sail on, O Ship of State," by Rossetter G. Cole; "America, the Beautiful," by John S. Fearis, and "Hats Off," by Nellie Poorman. These songs are all by Chicago musicians, Mr. Cole and Mr. Fearis both living in Chicago, and Miss Poorman in Evanston, where she has charge of the music in the grade schools. All of these songs were given with splendid spirit and good enunciation.

The chorus was next heard in the Cantata "The Walrus and the Carpenter," by Percy E. Fletcher.

The music is delicious and the words delightfully humorous. Everybody, chorus, orchestra and audience enjoyed it alike. It was sung with thorough appreciation and splendid tone quality. It was sung once before at the Evanston festival, being heard in 1912.

After the intermission the chorus and orchestra were heard in selections from Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," the orchestra playing the "Overture," "Nocturne" and "Wedding March," and the chorus singing, "You Spotted Snakes," and "Through the House." The young people found these more difficult, but they deserve credit for faithful efforts and fine results.

Miss Sophie Braslau, contralto from the Metropolitan Opera, was the soloist in the afternoon. She is a newcomer here and was listened to with much interest. She has a voice of true alto quality and unusu-

HAVE YOU SEEN

Our New Catalogue of Educational Sheet Music?

Danse Orientale

E. R. KROEGER

Copyright, 1915, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge International Copyright Secured

Embracing Piano (grades one to ten) vocal and violin and piano compositions by present-day composers.

A Southern Lullaby

Music by Robert Huntington Terry

Copyright, MCMXV, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge International Copyright Secured

Why not ask the clerk the next time you're in a music store to show you the H. N. & E. Sheet Music Catalogue, —or let us send you a thematic catalogue.

HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE
PUBLISHERS

30 Irving Place

New York City

ally even. She sang "O Mio Fernando" from "La Favorita," by Donizetti, which seemed hardly appropriate for the occasion, and a group of children's songs, "With Granny," by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, "Schlafliedchen," by Hans Hermann, and "The Erlkonig," by Schubert.

The final number was "The Star Spangled Banner," in which the audience joined, led by Miss Braslau, chorus orchestra and fife and drum corps and the remnant of a company of old soldiers. M. K. W.

The Last Concert

The outstanding feature of the Saturday evening concert was the great ovation given Mr. Lutkin on his appearance to conduct the first Choral number, and the magnificent singing of this and the other mass works with which the final concert was liberally besprinkled.

The chief number given by the Chorus and Orchestra was the "Polovetzian Dance and Chorus" from Borodin's "Prince Igor," this being a piece of work of great musical significance, and splashed liberally throughout with color and passion.

The Lutkin singers gave it magnificently—the final chord was of such impressive solidity and grandeur as to be a notable example of the powers of the singers en masse, and the careful attention to tricky entrances and difficult rhythms throughout, marked each division of the chorus as capable to the last extreme, and proved also that the drill for this Festival has been arduous and satisfactory.

This number was preceded by the "Come ye Maidens," from the same work, which was given in a beautiful way by the a cappella choir from their heavenly perch—the effect being one of ethereal charm as well as of solid musical values.

Earlier in the program the massive "Hymn to the Sun," from Mascagni's "Iris," was sung with much intelligence and effect, and the "Peace Hymn," eagerly awaited by every loyal American present, was omitted for some mysterious reason, one explanation being that the music was "missing."

The program and the Festival closed, however, with "America," and this indeed was a vocal delight and a patriotic outburst which will not soon be forgotten by any who heard it.

The Orchestra played for its first number the rather tawdry "Solennelle," by Glazounov, and gave later the John Alden Carpenter "Adventures in a Perambulator," which was played recently in Chicago and throughout reviewed at that time.

A second hearing discloses an almost ethereal beauty in the division called "The Lake," which to this writer at least seems the most worthy of any of the parts of the Suite.

Now-a-days it takes but a meager equipment to start an Opera prima donna out on a May Festival tour. An aria, hoary with age and threadbare from use, and a piece of vocal gymnastics built on the Strauss "Blue Danube," constituted the chief items of Miss Hempel's Evanston appearance, just as they did at Ann Arbor a week earlier, when they were thoroughly reviewed in Music News.

Even the encores were identically the same. However, Miss Hempel did add, at Evanston, a group of songs, and in these she accomplished her best work, being particularly and peculiarly successful in the "Elfenlied," by Wolf.

Mr. Edgar Nelson was her accompanist, and throughout showed his accustomed authority and artistry, in the Wolf number particularly giving an exposition of pianism and accompanying values which could be equaled by very few players in the country. CHARLES E. WATT.

Aftermath

Transportation to and from Evanston, except by auto, is still in the rudimentary stages of evolution, although the crowds were a little better handled by the Elevated this year than formerly.

But, as an example of provincialism nothing imaginable could equal the spectacle of halting an entire train at the city limits between Evanston and Chicago, and holding it there while conductors go through the train and with due deliberation collect the extra fares. If it were necessary to do this there would be no protest, but the work could be done just as well between stations, with the train in motion—and the present system smacks and reeks of the Dark Ages—those in which the public had not service of any kind.

Also, while it is not intended to blame the critics of the daily papers individually, it must yet be said without equivocation, that the present system of reviewing the Evanston concerts by the local papers would do credit to that far-back time when news was carried across country by pack mules.

According to the present system the critics are "compelled" to leave Evanston every night before the concert is half done, and as a result the criticisms appearing the past week have been absolutely valueless, they have not covered the ground even 50 per cent, and many, very many, important events in the concerts were not heard at all by any of the daily press critics. As said at first, it is not intended to criticize individual reporters, for they probably work on orders in the matter, but there should certainly be at least one daily paper in Chicago big enough and important enough to have a FULL REPORT of such a great event as the Annual North Shore Festival.

Much criticism has been given Sophie Braslau on her selection of numbers for the Children's Concert on Saturday. Her work was fine in the extreme, but imagine singing "The Earl King," by Schubert, for the special benefit of a mass of children!

It was said on Saturday night by an interested listener to Frieda Hempel, "she would be great in Vaudeville, wouldn't she," and perhaps she may think of the same thing later. At any event her one encore about the "curly headed nigger baby," and the other a comic German number, would take like wildfire in "the continuous."

Mandy—Miss Helen Harris, a talented piano pupil of Mrs. Frank P. Mandy, played on April 23 at the Western Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church; May 17, Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church; May 26, Austin Woman's Culture Club, and June 1, Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

COMMENDATION

after years of service—and by one whose judgment is authoritative

* NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

Office of the Dean Music Hall

Gentlemen—The fact that for twenty years the Mason & Hamlin Pianos have been used in our School of Music bears eloquent testimony of the high esteem in which these instruments are held and incidentally certifies to their stability and durability. For many years I have had a Mason & Hamlin Parlor Grand in my own home. Its refinement, its delicacy, its beauty of tone, its mellow sonority and its matchless mechanism never cease to charm and satisfy me. Yours sincerely,

Peter Christian Lutkin

Hean.

Evanston, May 19, 1915

TO CABLE PIANO COMPANY

To you who may be considering a Piano as a Commencement Gift we especially commend the

Mason & Hamlin

Musically the most beautiful piano the world has ever known. On exhibition and sale at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson, Chicago

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

Mrs. Anna Groff-Bryant, one of Chicago's most active and widely known vocal educators and for the past two seasons director of the Lombard College Vocal Art Institute, formerly known as the Anna Groff-Bryant Institute of Vocal Art and Education of Chicago, has planned an unusual annual concert which will take place Saturday evening, June 5, in the Assembly Room of the Fine Arts Building.

Since the removal of the educational activities of Anna Groff-Bryant Institute to its new home in Galesburg, much interest has been awakened in Galesburg and Chicago in works of the pupils of Lombard Vocal Art Studio.

The annual concert this season will be given by the pupils chosen from the Lombard Vocal Art Institute. An unusually interesting program has been prepared. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present.

Coleridge-Taylor Club—The Coleridge-Taylor Club gave a concert at Central Music Hall on Friday evening of last week under direction of H. T. Jackson, assisted by Carl R. Diton, pianist, Mrs. Willie M. Sloan, soprano, the Evanston Choral Society and a ten-piece orchestra.

Hamilton—Mrs. Jessie Mack Hamilton will present a very interesting program of children's songs, with Grace Keesler at the piano, at her residence studio, 5057 Winthrop avenue, Sunday afternoon, June 6, at 4 o'clock.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church }
Walter Spry School } Chicago
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

HANNA BUTLER AND MINNIE CEDARGREEN SOLOISTS WITH VIKING CLUB

Sunday afternoon, May 30, Mrs. Hanna Butler, soprano, and Miss Minnie Cedargreen, violinist, and the Viking Glee Club and Band gave a concert at Medinah Temple. The concert was given to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Independent Order of Vikings.

The men's chorus and the band, Mr. Gustav A. Carlson, director, gave a good account of themselves in a varied list of numbers that won the enthusiastic approval of the audience.

The acoustics of Medinah are not all that they should be, but that is not the fault of the performers.

Miss Cedargreen is a splendid violinist and artist who has met with fine success wherever she has chosen to appear. She draws a tone of fine quality from her instrument and employs it in the presentation of her numbers in a very artistic and musicianly manner. The color and warmth of tone with which she vests her interpretations makes her playing have a direct appeal.

The Wieniawski "Polonaise," played as an opening number, was given with such a fine display of technic and poise as to give unusual delight, winning the sincere approval of the audience.

In her second group numbers by Kreisler and Schubert-Wilhelmj were given with a tone invariably beautiful and in keeping with the fine breadth of interpretative thought employed.

Mrs. Hanna Butler is a superb artist, with a most engaging personality and attractive stage presence. Her voice is of excellent range, good quality and she uses it with much skill in the presentation of songs. She draws her interpretations along musicianly and finished lines that makes her singing beautiful indeed.

"Chere Nuit," by Brachelet, and Bishop's "Lo! Here the Gentle Lark" were given with great surety, style and finish, as was the delightful "Echo Song," by Thane, sung as an encore. Lily Wadhams Moline's "Karlekens Vag" met with fine favor. Very enjoyable indeed was Mrs. Butler's rendition of "Snee," by Lie, and Kohrling's "Aft-onstamning" was a gem as she sang it.

Mr. David Nyvall did his share by playing refined and musicianly accompaniments for Mrs. Butler and Miss Cedargreen, and it is well to say they will be given a most cordial welcome whenever they chose to appear.

International College—The International College of Music and Expression, Emma Clark Mottl, director, will give a program of readings and music at 63 Auditorium Building, Saturday afternoon, June 5 at 3 o'clock. One of the vocal groups will include a number by Freer.

WILLIAM BEARD

On July 1 Mr. William Beard will sever his connection with the Walter Spry Music School and open a private studio at 421 Fine Arts Building, where he will teach a summer term during July and August. After September 1 Mr. Beard will be found regularly at the above address, where he will teach privately. On June 14 Mr. Beard will sing Mendelssohn's "Elijah" at Ripon, Wis. For next season, he has a number of prominent engagements pending which will be closed shortly. That his pupils are successful, was proven last Sunday when Miss Margaret Messer, soprano, sang so well at the concert given in Fullerton Hall under the auspices of the Society of American Musicians, that a member of a prominent musical club near Chicago came forward and wanted to engage her for a recital next season. On Tuesday of last week Miss Messer sang for three managers of musical combinations and was offered three contracts for the coming year. She accepted the best offer and will leave Chicago on July 20, for a five or six weeks tour, and in the fall will go on an extended tour. Other pupils of Mr. Beard are occupying prominent places in the musical life of Chicago and the outside territory. Mr. Beard has a number of students from out of town already enrolled for the summer.

JANE ENGLISH

Jane English, soprano, gave a recital at Toledo, Ohio, Monday night. Such was the impression made that arrangements were immediately made for a re-engagement early in October. Her concert at Central Music Hall, with Francesco Daddi, tenor of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and Grace Kusler, pianist, closed a season of thirty-seven engagements.

RECITAL AT McCABE MEMORIAL CHURCH

Mary Willing Meagley presented her pupil, Mabel Marie Wagner, in the following program at McCabe Memorial Church on last Friday evening with great success. Miss Wagner was assisted by Margaret Lester, soprano.

Sonata Pathetique, Op. 13.....Beethoven
Grave—Allegro di molto E con brio
Adagio cantabile
Rondo
Recitative and Aria—With Verdure Clad (from the Creation).....Haydn
Invention, G Minor (No. 11, three voiced).....Bach
Bourree.....Bach—Saint-Saens
Shadow Dance.....MacDowell
Traumerei (Revery).....Strauss
La Fileuse (The Spinning Girl).....Raff
Four Songs by Mary Willing Meagley—
Memory (words by Arthur Symonds)
Love's Tomorrow (words by Edwin Markham)
My Shadow (words by Robert Louis Stevenson)
Life (words by Edward Rowland Sill)
Capriccio Brillante, Op. 22.....Mendelssohn
(The orchestral parts played on organ by Mrs. Meagley)

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Coincident with the winding up of the winter season, the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music is making elaborate preparations for the summer school, and teachers from everywhere are arriving daily to take up Summer Normal Work. There will be a comprehensive series of faculty concerts and recitals extending through June, July and early August. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley will be here for the major portion of the summer and will give courses in the most modern methods of pedagogy.

The graduation exercises of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music will be held in Conservatory Concert Hall, Friday evening, June 11. The speaker of the evening will be the Rev. W. F. Anderson, resident Bishop of the Methodist Church, and a musical program will, as usual, be given by the Conservatory Orchestra, under direction of Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli. Miss Lena Palmer, pupil of Mr. Marcian Thalberg, will be the soloist of the evening. The graduation class is 35 strong, the candidates representing the departments of Vocal Culture, Piano, Violin, Theory and Composition, Organ, Elocution and Expression, and Public School Music.

HARRY DETWEILER'S REPERTOIRE CLASS

As usual at this time of year Mr. Harry R. Detweiler, of Aurora, is presenting a list of repertoire pupils in thoroughly interesting concerts, assisted by pupils in the vocal class of Mr. Lemuel Kilby.

On Tuesday evening, June 8, at 7:45, 8:15 and 8:45, recitals will be given respectively by Sybil Hall, Frances H. Northam, Mabel Brown.

On Wednesday at 8:15, at the New England Congregational Church, "The Rose Maiden" will be given under Mr. Detweiler's direction, by the Aurora College Oratory Society and the New England Church Choir, assisted by Miss Bouslough, Miss Shults, Miss Olson, Miss Stephens, Miss Dannewitz, Mr. Baker, Mr. Tinsley, Mr. Peterson, Mrs. Rhoda Miller and Miss Kreig.

On Thursday, June 10, piano recitals will be given by Beatrice Anderson, Sigrid Norling and Le Roy Carlson, and on Friday the 11th, Ruth Burnett and Marion White will play, and on Saturday, June 12, recitals will be given by Walborg Swanson and Jennie E. Marsellus.

Bender—Miss Blanche Hammond Bender, pupil of Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt, voice, and Miss Marie McAdoo, harpist, gave a joint recital at Hamburg, Ia., on May 18.

Coleridge-Taylor Club—The Coleridge-Taylor Club gave a concert under direction of H. T. Jackson at Central Music Hall on Friday evening of last week.

MONICA GRAHAM STULTS WALTER ALLEN
Columbia School of Music SOPRANO BASS 303 KIMBALL HALL

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

CEDRIC W. LEMONT
PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL
SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamar
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL
BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

EDNA DUNHAM
Soprano
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

Allen W. Bogen
CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER
RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

Mrs. Charles L. Krum
SOPRANO
Stooio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY
300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

EDWARD COLLINS
PIANIST
528 Fine Arts Building. Tel. Harrison 3766

A RECEPTION TO THE WILLETT PUPILS

Mr. William A. Willett gave his pupils and choir a reception Tuesday evening, May 25, in the parlors of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church.

It was entirely informal. No program was prepared, but those of the pupils who were to sing were called upon without "notice," as it were. Some were without music even. Those without were called upon to sing some that could be collected for them about the church. They showed themselves equal to the task. Most of them could be supplied with some song that they had known, or heard enough to sing with freedom. The affect of committing songs to memory, which is the rule at the Willett studio, was never better demonstrated.

Many of the pupils are well on toward the artist standard, and the singing was all most enjoyable. It all came so free from the strain of the regular recital atmosphere.

The Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, under Mr. Willett, it will be remembered, took first prize in the annual contest of volunteer choirs of Chicago this spring. The choir sang too. Success in the contest has given them an interest that is showing rapidly in the quality of their work since that time. They show the result of being under a leader who knows singing from a vocal, as well as from a musical standpoint. Their part of each service is well worth a trip to the church to hear.

Mr. Willett sang several songs at the close of the evening. He still has the rich, full tone, and can color it with an infinite variety of emotions. The Willett soto voce is still as clean and responsive as ever. He is still the artist. The demands of the pupils upon him came near running the "evening" into morning.

The "Rose Maiden" at "Grace" Church

The Grace Methodist Episcopal Choir, under Mr. Willett, gave Cowen's "Rose Maiden" Thursday evening, May 27.

The choir added much to the reputation it has made within the last year by this performance. They are rapidly gaining a position of influence in Chicago musical matters. It is a volunteer organization entirely, being made up of church members, and those of Mr. Willett's pupils who are in need of such experience.

That they can give a work such as the one given Thursday evening, with six rehearsals, speaks more for the systematic, thorough work they are receiving than to have taken the prize in the choir contest, which they did this spring. They show the result of being under a man who knows voices and singing. There is none of the blatant, rigid openness in the tone quality, and they sing with due regard for the shadings without carrying it to the sentimental. They never flaunt a pianissimo passage by dwelling unduly upon it. There is a ruggedness about their work that is invigorating, without the feeling that they are overtaxing themselves vocally. The clean attacks, with regard for accent of both words and music, makes their singing very satisfying. It is a valuable place for any student of singing.

The soloists for the evening were Mr.

Willett himself, Miss Annette Pangbourne, soprano; Mrs. Sidney Smith-Cooley, contralto, and Mr. Charles LeFevre, tenor. All are pupils of Mr. Willett.

To describe Mr. Willett's singing is only to write what has been written over and over again for the many years he has been working in Chicago. One feature of it seems to be neglected by many of our concert reviewers however. That is the musical side. His regard for rhythm, without the rigid drawing of rhythmic lines. He does not offend you with accents, but you never lose sight of them. This has been ignored by many of our teachers of singing. To me it is one of the most essential points of vocal production. To stumble over note values is not good for the voice itself.

No voice could be better adapted to the baritone part of the "Rose Maiden" than Mr. Willett's. He has just the quality for it. It blended with the others in the trio, and the "over-tone," neglected by so many baritones, is so perfectly used, that it has become almost individually his. It is a beautiful example of upper voice.

Miss Pangbourne always sings well. She is well equipped for her part in this work vocally. Her tone is free, and she does not go beyond the bounds of good taste for vocal effects. She does not lack impulse, but keeps it well under control. Thoughtfulness marks all of her interpretations, though not to the extent of robbing her singing of warmth. She is well near the complete in her singing of such parts as was hers at this time.

Mrs. Cooley has a wonderful natural endowment for her work as one of the artists to be reckoned with in the future. Her voice is ample in size; vital in timbre, and her range makes her a most valuable contralto. She never forgets that she is singing words as well as notes. Her climaxes are never forced; always remaining well within the singing realm. She will go far in her work.

Mr. LeFevre has a very agreeable quality of voice. It is rich in color. His climaxes are suggested emotionally rather than vocally. He used good judgment in not going beyond his vocal possibilities in striving for power.

Mrs. Grace Leach Orcutt was the accompanist of the evening. Hers was a most unusual performance. She was called on "at the last moment" to take the position, and had never played the work. She did not even get a rehearsal with the choir, nor more than a few suggestions, orally, concerning tempos. All who heard the performance have difficulty in believing this, however. She played with all freedom; never losing the slightest change of time, or dynamical effect. It was the best example of musicianship and thoroughness in study and experience that has come to my notice. To her goes much credit. The whole evening was a very satisfying musical performance.

ALBERT A. WHITE.

VILIM AMERICAN VIOLIN SCHOOL

Mr. Richard Vilim announces the summer term at the Vilim American Violin School to be held at the Vilim residence in Riverside, and also at the Academy of Our Lady, at Ninety-fifth and Throop streets.

Music in Chicago

ENGLEWOOD SUNDAY EVENING CHOIR CONCERT

On last Thursday evening a very successful concert was given by the Englewood Sunday Evening Club Choir, under direction of Glenwood Preble, with George R. Kurtz providing splendid accompaniments throughout.

The chorus, a well-trained body, which has been giving great pleasure throughout the season in regular services, was heard in short numbers by Sullivan and Bortnyansky, in which much beauty and finish of tone was apparent, while in "The Marvellous Work," from Hayden's "Creation," there was power and brilliancy as well.

In this number Mrs. Edna McDevitt Ross sang the solo obbligato and did it with great finish and effect.

This singer has a splendid presence and a fine voice and has become a great favorite with this congregation.

The other vocal soloist was Miss Mabel Corlew, whose refined and powerful contralto voice was heard to the greatest possible advantage in the "Somson and Delila" aria, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," which suits her admirably, and which she sung with unction and with a keen appreciation of its every passing nuance.

With Mrs. Ross she sang also in "L'Amo Come il Fulgore del Creato," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," and this was indeed a veritable treat.

The higher score suited Mrs. Ross to perfection, and in the lower one Miss Corlew not only showed her power and resonance, but also proved very great range in the fact that she had to manipulate many tones which really belong in the soprano range, she did this very successfully, however, and proved fully her musicianship as well as the fact that her voice is one of remarkable charm.

Mr. Charles Mitchell Mixer appeared in a group of violin solos and again showed himself to be one of the finest of young local artists. He has a wonderful purity of tone and an impeccable technic, added to which he has true musical feeling and a most keen sense of varying poetical and dramatic thoughts involved in the numbers he plays. He proved to be a great favorite with the splendid audience present.

Mrs. Ross appeared also in a solo group, and showed much discrimination and fine musical style in numbers by Gerrish, Fairbank and Landsberg.

The accompaniments were models of good style and taste, and the direction of Mr. Preble was full of authority.

Miss Viola C. Peterson added variety to the program with some readings.

McCabe Memorial Church—At the McCabe Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church on last Sunday evening a large part of the "Creation" was presented by the director, Mrs. Mary Willing Meagley and the chorus, assisted by the special soloist, Margaret Lester, and as assisting artists, Mr. Cardon V. Burnham and Mr. William C. Freeman.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL

Saturday afternoon, May 29, Mrs. W. S. Bracken and Clarence Eidam presented members of their classes in recital. Only a portion of the well arranged program was heard by this writer. Mrs. Jane Fritch and Miss Flora Waalkes, voice pupils of Mrs. Bracken, gave evidence of splendid training, both vocally and musically, singing with a surety and poise that made their reading very effective. Miss Waalkes was heard in a number by Scott, and Mrs. Fritch in numbers by Cottonet and Puccini.

Mr. Eidam presented Misses Marie Henry, Martha Erickson and Grace Eidam in a splendid list of piano classics. They displayed good technical equipment, well founded musicianship that should carry them far if they continue along the same good lines. Their tone work was delightful and they acquitted themselves in a manner that speaks well for their teacher, Mr. Eidam.

Miss Henry was heard in numbers by Debussy and Sapellnikoff, Miss Eidam offered four Chopin "Preludes," and Miss Erickson gave Liszt's "Rhapsodie No. 10," and Florent Schmitt's "En Revant" and "Après l'etc." The musical thought employed by the performers deserves much commendation and praise. H. W. P.

###

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

On last Saturday afternoon, in the Lecture Rooms of the Chicago Piano College, a very attractive program was given by Richard Schweitzer, a young boy still in knickerbockers, who played with a skill and finish far beyond his years.

Much good technic and a finely discriminative musical sense were shown in numbers by Bach, Czerny, Perillo, Beethoven, Grant-Schaefer, Raff and Koelling, and in the last movement from the Mozart B Flat Major "Concerto," which he played with his teacher, Mr. Harmon H. Watt, at the second piano, he showed musical thought and budding virtuosity in fine degree.

On this Friday evening, at Kimball Hall, Miss Louise George presents her pupils, and on June 8, evening, Miss Betsy M. Howland presents her class.

The Brewer Teachers' Agency

SUSAN EMMA DROUGHT, Director.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

The Oldest Teachers' Agency West of the Hudson Announces a Special Musical Department

She Knows Your Needs. Write Today for Special Plans

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

MR. and MRS.

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

A PATRIOTIC SERVICE AT TRINITY

Patriotism was well mingled with devotion and adoration at Trinity Church on last Sunday afternoon, when three choirs joined and, under direction of Irving Hancock, gave one of the most rousing services within memory.

The choirs were those of Trinity, Christ and Church of The Redeemer, the three masters being Mr. Hancock, Mr. Mason Slade and Mr. Louis Mackay.

Preludial to the service Mr. Robert R. Birch played a half hour organ recital and showed his good taste and fine equipment in these numbers: "Fantasia and Fugue," G minor, by Bach; "Harmonies du Soir," by Karg-Elert; "Caprice Heroique," by Bonnet; "Oriental Sketch," by Bird, and "Romanza," by Sibelius.

The Processional Hymn, "Ancient of Days," included a complete circling of the large Trinity auditorium, which was, indeed, completely flooded with melody.

The boys and men, each one, wore a small flag in his gown, and the patriotic aspect of the occasion was still further emphasized by a large flag in the procession, and the further fact that "America" was sung later with whole hearted vim and telling effect.

The "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis" were the familiar and much liked scores by Cruickshank, while the lesser service parts were all well chosen and sung with unusual spirit and power, and the Recessional proved to be a repetition of the great charm of the Processional.

The great delight of the afternoon, however, lay in the remarkably fine presentation of "The Heavens Are Telling," by Haydn, a portion of "Gallia," by Gounod, and the "Hallelujah," chorus from "The Messiah," sung by the combined choirs and the usual Trinity Soloists with unction and signal power.

The Haydn number was given with distinct virtuosity, the Gounod brought unusual beauty of tone, and in the "Hallelujah" the writer heard, almost for the first time in any boy choir, an adequate volume of soprano and a rational balance of parts.

As a matter of fact the "King of Kings and Lord of Lords" passage rang out with wondrous power and beauty, to such a degree indeed that one may hope to hear it equaled but very seldom.

Mr. Hancock presided at the organ with the utmost of skill and authority. He reinforced every phrase and upheld every climax, proving himself continually to be a splendid organist and a routined and powerfully effective director.

His playing of the "Fugue on Hail Columbia," by Buck, at the end of the service was masterly.

Practically the same service was repeated at Christ Church in the evening. Mr. Slade successfully presiding at the organ, and on next Sunday evening, at 8, the same three choirs will be reinforced by that of St. Paul, Mr. John Allen Richardson, master, in a gala service at The Redeemer Church, with Mr. Mackay at the organ.

C. E. W.

— — — — —
Columbia School of Music—The commencement exercises of the Columbia School of Music will be held at the Auditorium on Thursday evening, June 10.

GLADYS HAWKINS PRESENTS PUPILS IN A STUDIO RECITAL

Miss Gladys Hawkins presented two piano pupils in a very delightful piano program at her Wilson avenue studio on last Friday evening, when a goodly number of invited guests enjoyed some excellent music and found in Miss Hawkins a delightful hostess.

The chief group of the evening was that presented by Miss Eva Roe, a young southern girl, who has been studying with Miss Hawkins in Chicago during the winter.

Miss Roe has musical feeling and fine temperamental equipment, added to which she has acquired from Miss Hawkins the elements of transcendent technic, and in her work of Friday there was present real virtuosity of effect.

She has a smooth scale, a brilliant octave ability and breadth in chord work, her pedaling also being notably good.

In a Liszt "Rhapsodie" she was brilliant in the extreme, as well as showing fine touches of alternating moods, and in the "Berceuse" and "Butterfly," by Grieg, she disclosed many pianistic graces and much real solidity of musicianship.

Another pupil whose work is progressing

EDWARD

WALKER

Concert---Oratorio---Recital

1118 E. 65th St.

TENOR

very well is Mrs. M. Whipple, and she, at this time, did great credit to Miss Hawkins and to herself in a Mendelssohn "Song Without Words" and a Duccelle "Waltz," in the one showing fine legato and good singing values and in the other disclosing a budding brilliancy and a distinct clarity.

Mrs. R. Rivers, a contralto, whose splendid voice is under training by Miss Mary Peck Thomson, was heard in several attractive numbers, and Miss Hawkins herself closed the evening with a group of piano pieces, in which her remarkable technic had full sway and when also she exhibited many of the finer graces of pianism, the numbers being a Chopin "Nocturne," Rachmaninoff "Prelude in G Minor," a "Humoresque" by Reger, the Dubois "Les Abelles" and Schumann's "Prophet Bird."

A BIG CHORUS FOR THE C. E. CONVENTION

The World's Christian Endeavor Convention, which is to be held at the Coliseum in Chicago on July 7 to 12, will have a monster chorus, under the direction of H. Augustine Smith.

It is expected that at least 1,500 singers will take part. Rehearsals are held each week on Monday evening, at the First Presbyterian Church, Forty-first and Grand boulevard; Tuesday evenings, North Shore Congregational Church, Sheridan Road and Wilson avenue, and on Thursday evenings at the Third Presbyterian, Ogden and Ashland avenues.

More singers are needed to complete the chorus, and Mr. Smith invites attendance and consultation at any of these rehearsals.

IRENE DEMING IN PIANO RECITAL

Miss Irene Deming, a graduate pupil in the Drake School of Music, under Mr. Alfred Calzin, gave a very pleasing piano recital at Auditorium Recital Hall on Monday evening.

Miss Deming is admirably prepared for such a task, and her program was one of great difficulty and much musical meaning.

It is always the case, in a debutante concert, that one particular piece stands out with unusual distinctness, and in this case it happened to be the Zanella "Minuet" that was especially well done, and consequently the best liked number of the program. It was, indeed, played with a remarkable clarity and sparkle—inherently charming in its attractive melody and infectious swing. It was made doubly beautiful through the fact that it was played with great freedom, certainty and purity of tone.

MISS IRENE DEMING

Next in appeal, to this writer at least, was the A flat "Etude" of Chopin, in which there was great steadiness in the intricate accompanying passages and much tonal loveliness in the melody line.

The MacDowell "Tragica," in entirety, served as the opening number, and it was played with a goodly amount of authority, the "Largo con maestoso" being the best.

There was much brilliant octave technic display and a masterful treatment of big chords throughout, while the pedaling in this and in all the program was so good as to be notable and to prove conclusively that Miss Deming has had the finest of instruction along that line, as in all others.

Great power is present in her work—unusual power for a young woman—and this made the MacDowell "Sonata" of a very distinct value and effectiveness. It was also the outstanding feature of the Liszt "Rhapsodie" No. 12, which was vigorous to the extreme, played with much speed and brilliance and was altogether a piece of fine virtuosity.

Some good singing tone was presented in a Liszt "Liebestraume," much arpeggio dexterity in an "Etude" from the same composer, while very good shading and a careful conservation of contrasts and climaxes was apparent in the Chopin "Scherzo," Op. 39.

There was present a large audience, and Miss Deming was the recipient of much applause and many flowers. C. E. W.

—♦♦♦—

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

The children at Lake Brownwood also have a fine time, and this little fellow seems to have nothing on earth to do but to be happy and to grow rosy and strong.

IN THE WOODS AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Mrs. Brown is making of this ideal spot a "Musicians' Colony," and already has inquiries about cottages in sufficient numbers to warrant the statement that the summer there will be ideal in companionship as well as in nature delights.

—♦♦♦—

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The examination, public contests and recitals of the American Conservatory came to a close last Saturday afternoon. On next Tuesday evening the Walton Pyre School of Expression will give its closing entertainment by a performance of Hubert Henry Davies' four-act play, "A Single Man," at Central Music Hall, formerly the Whitney Opera House. Between the acts, violin solos will be performed by advanced violin students of the conservatory.

The annual reception to the alumni by the president, John J. Hattstaedt, and Mrs. Hattstaedt will take place Saturday afternoon, June 12, at the parlors of the Auditorium Hotel.

The commencement concert and exercises will be held at the Auditorium, Thursday evening, June 17.

MARGARET ALLISON IN "AN EVENING OF SONGS"

Miss Margaret Russell Allison, another young and very talented soprano of the MacBurney Studios, gave her second annual recital in the Fine Arts Building on Monday evening, May 31, and, with an excellent array of songs at her disposal, showed a decided improvement over her recital of one year ago.

Miss Allison has been studying with Mr. MacBurney for two seasons now, and the success with which she delivered her program on this occasion, in conjunction with Mr. John Doane, accompanist, should prove very gratifying to both pupil and teacher.

"O cessate di piagarmi," by Scarlatti, and "Ouvre tes yeux bleus," by Massenet, which opened the program, showed the breadth of training which Miss Allison has received in a splendid light. Both the Italian and French text proved wholly within her grasp, and she issued a beautifully smooth flow of tone volume throughout.

In a group of Grieg songs, which included "With a Water Lily," "The First Primrose," "A Swan," "A Dream" and "In the Boat," many of those admirable qualities which make Miss Allison a very satisfactory singer were displayed to best advantage, yet it was in the group of child songs which followed that she pleased her audience most. The "Bird Lullaby," by Sanderson; "The Captain," by Rogers; "Song of the Chimes," by Worrell; "When I Do Wrong," by Teschemscher, and "Shadow March," by Del Riego, completed this group, and each was sung with a delicacy of expression which made a direct appeal to the audience and stamped Miss Allison as a future success in this class of songs, should she desire to make a specialty in such work.

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE

419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

"Autumn," by Rogers; "A Spray of Roses," by Sanderson; "After," by Clough-Leigher, and "Happy Song," by Del Riego, formed the closing group of the program.

Mr. Doane was in his usual fine form, and so, with his admirable poise and easy mastery of his instrument, added effectively to the warmth and color of the singer's interpretation by supplying ideal accompaniments.

—♦♦♦—

CARL KINSEY AND THE CHICAGO MUSICAL COLLEGE

It was announced in the daily press of Wednesday that Carl D. Kinsey had purchased an interest in the Chicago Musical College and will become its vice president and business manager.

Congratulations are in order all around and a new lease of life for the college is assured.

—♦♦♦—

Donovan, Ill.—Miss Minnie Barnlund, soprano, will give a song recital at the Methodist Episcopal Church, Donovan, Ill., June 9, assisted by Miss Lillian Speck, reader, and Miss Lillian Ludwig, pianist.

THEODORE KOHN PUPILS IN RECITAL

Mr. Theodore Kohn presented a number of his piano pupils in a recital in Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening, May 25, which proved to be a great success in every way.

A string quartet was present, to aid in four of the numbers. Flowers were there in abundance, and the audience packed the hall to overflowing.

The program was one of exceptional interest, because of the array of good talent and the fine quality of their performance. Every number was praiseworthy given, while some of the presentations were far beyond what one could reasonably expect to hear on a similar program.

Mr. Kohn is evidently giving his pupils excellent training.

The following is the complete program:

- Overture Egmont (two pianos, eight hands)..... Beethoven
- Misses Elsa and Dorothy Levi, Miss Hazel and Master Albert Karlsberg
- Ballada S. Smith
- Miss Alma Weiskopf
- Sonata Pathetique (last movement)..... Beethoven
- Miss Ethel Baach
- Symphony—B Minor (first movement; two pianos, four hands) Schubert
- Misses Pauline Blank and Elsa Levi
- Scaramouche (The Clown).....Chaminade
- Miss Blanche Vastine
- Concerto—C Major (first movement)..... Beethoven
- Cadenza Reinecke
- Miss Mildred Hirsch
- Second Piano—Miss Loraine Flymen and String Quartet
- The Two Larks.....Leschetitzky
- Master Lawrence Veit
- Concerto—D Major, Kroenungs-konzert (first movement) Mozart
- Mrs. Carl A. Luenzmann
- Second Piano—Miss Loraine Flymen and String Quartet
- Valse de Concert.....Wieniawski
- Miss Helen Karlsberg
- Concerto—D Major (last movement).....Mozart
- Miss Loraine Flymen
- Second Piano—Mrs. Carl A. Luenzmann and String Quartet
- Rondo Brillante Weber
- Miss Beatrice Cohen
- Concerto—A Minor (first movement).....Hummel
- Miss Dorothy Meyer
- Second Piano—Mrs. Carl A. Luenzmann and String Quartet
- Norwegian Bridal Procession.....Grieg
- Souvenir de Graefenberg.....Leschetitzky
- Miss Minnie Valiquette
- Rondo Capriccioso Mendelssohn
- Miss Mildred Hirsch
- Witches Dance MacDowell
- Miss Loraine Flymen

C. J. B.

HENRY PLANS FOR SUMMER TEACHING

Harold Henry, having received so many requests for lessons during August, since announcing that he would teach in Chicago only until the end of July, has decided to accept a limited number of pupils during the first three weeks of that month, which he will spend in Peterborough, New Hampshire. This village is delightfully situated in the hills, and pupils should have no trouble in obtaining good accommodation at reasonable rates.

—♦♦♦—

George—Miss Louise George of the faculty of the Chicago Piano College, will present her pupils (children) in a piano program at Kimball Hall, this Friday evening.

—♦♦♦—

Vilim—Music News is in receipt of a card from Joseph Vilim announcing his safe arrival in San Diego, Cal., which will be his home for some time.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Aze SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
88 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
one Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

JOSEPH CHAPEK

THE CHAPEK MUSIC SCHOOL

The annual concert given by the violin students of Mr. Joseph H. Chapek and vocal and piano students of Mrs. Augusta Haenel-Chapek, last Thursday evening in the Auditorium Recital Hall, proved to be thoroughly interesting and original-featured, and was carried out in a brilliantly successful manner. Mr. Chapek, another of the notable group of eminent Bohemian musicians resident in Chicago for many years, is an admirable instructor, judging from the quality of the students work in this recital, and his school orchestra of over fifty performers played with remarkable excellency of ensemble. Delightful items were the charming "Etude Melodique," by Nolck, and Aletter's "Petite Gavotte," arranged for orchestra by Mr. Chapek in so musicianly a way that they are complete "things of beauty" to be rejoiced in whenever heard. Given from memory by his orchestra with an ease, sweetness, surety of tone and excellent ensemble, they came as a most original feature in the attractive program.

Mr. Chapek has an admirable coadjutor in his gifted wife, whose vocal and piano students showed the indefatigable care bestowed on them in such excerpts as Cadman's "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," Delibes' "Good-day, Susanne," sung by Miss Emma Ludvik; Puccini's "One Fine Day," from "Madame Butterfly," sung by Miss Martha Kresl, and the Mendelssohn "Piano Concerto, Op. 25," played by Miss Josephine Pelikan and the first movement of the Tchaikowsky "Piano Concerto No. 1," played by Mr. Ernest Krizan; Grieg's "To the Spring," performed by Miss Esther Larsen.

Mrs. Chapek's brilliant pianism was finely demonstrated in the weight of varied accompanying which fell to her share during the long program. Among the soli given by the violinists, Vieuxtemps "Violin Concerto, No. 5," played with excellent intonation and fine quality of tone by Joseph E. Chapek Jr.; the Wieniawski "Violin Concerto, Op. 22," played by Carl Christensen, and the Sarasate Spanish dance, "Jota Navarra," brilliantly performed by George Zahrobsky; "Canzonetta" of D'Ambrosio, played by Daniel Scully and the D'Beriot "Concerto, Op. 104," played by Marion Filipiak, gave ample proof of the artistic and sincere quality of the training given by these artists, who have added and will add, so much to the musical advancement of a fortunate portion of the "rising generation" of Chicago.

A chorus of well trained ladies' voices sang the "Duet of the Stars," by Chaminate, and Dvorak's "The Captive Maid." Those that sang in the chorus were: Misses Olga Engborg, Albie Fris, Ella Hurt, Lillian Kolar, Martha Kresl, Lillian Lonek, Augusta Lonk, Emma Ludvik, Mrs. Marie Ludvik, Mrs. O. Nylen, Misses Mathilda Pelikan, Josephine Pelikan, Louise Tuma, Rose Vlva, Georgiana Vonasek, Barbara Vrabek, Bessie Vrabek, Eleonore Wiese, Frieda Liska.

Joseph J. Kovarik and Alois Trnka, the famous New York violin virtuosos; Antoinette Zebrowska, Milan Lusk, Samo Kruty and Edna Oberg, solo violinists of Chicago, owe much of their training to the generous interest and efforts of Mr. Chapek, and many a rising young violinist, singer, and pianist will do future honor to them.

AGNES BELDON.

Bartholomew—Owing to the unusual demand for lessons during the summer months, Mr. H. B. Bartholomew announces that he will be in his studio until August 1 this year. Summer term begins June 11. Pupils may register at any time.

THE MAY FESTIVAL

An annual event of importance is the May Festival of the Cook County Sunday Schools under direction of H. W. Fairbank, and the event of this year, given on Friday evening last at The Auditorium, was of no less than the usual significance in so far as the choral work was concerned, and in its patriotic aspects it was particularly impressive. Mr. Fairbank's "Loyal and True" being done with even more than its usual emphatic success, the peace "Hymn," "God of the Nations," being impressive to the last degree, and the "Star Spangled Banner" being sung with a swing and a power which it has known but seldom.

The big chorus of one thousand voices is every year a wonderfully vital thing, and this year was no exception, while it is also an annual fact that the Fairbank Composition shall be one of the strong features of the program, and at this concert that item was no less impressive and successful than always.

It was a double number in fact. "The Snows"—this being divided into an a and b part—the first typical of the Winter covering of the Earth, the second showing the blanket of blossoms which fall like snow in the Spring.

The two pieces were vastly different, one from the other, and the director held his chorus not only to strict and telling musicianship, but to poetical values, and differentiations in color and mood were most pleasant to hear.

Mr. Fairbank has a fine gift of musical writing, and in the matter of providing material for a chorus such as the one under review he has no superiors.

The program opened with numbers by Reinthaler, Reinecke and E. J. French, all of them given with authority and style, while the Bohm "Calm as the Night," in a chorus arrangement, was exquisite, and the "Samson and Delila" aria lent itself most graciously to the same treatment, and was given with poise and beauty.

The accompaniments were furnished by two pianos and a small orchestra, all thoroughly amenable to the Fairbank baton, while Mr. Francis Moore added touches of color at the organ and was scheduled also for an organ solo which he could not play because, as usual, the organ was out of order.

The soloists were three in number, Mr. Avern B. Scolnik, violin; Master Milton Campbell, boy contralto, and Valerie Walker, coloratura soprano.

Mr. Scolnik played four numbers, the best of which was a "Spanish Dance," by Rehfeld. His accompanist was Mrs. Sylvia Jackson Wahlstrom, who proved her entire worth in the position.

Master Campbell has the poise of an adult singer and a voice which is certainly remarkable for a boy.

In his first group he appeared in the gown of a choir boy, and in the second in Scotch costume, to advantage in both cases.

He sang a variety of works, the sacred solo by Merkel being well liked and "Loch Lomond" being particularly well done.

In the "Bedouin Love Song," by Pinsuti, he disclosed musicianship and finish of an unusual degree, and his reception by the audience was cordial in the extreme.

Miss Walker sang "Spring's Awakening," by Wilfrid Sanderson, with much unction, and in "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark," by Bishop, she disclosed a remarkable facility as well as a very charming voice.

This young lady has very much to recommend her work at present, and if she continues in her carefully studious career she will certainly take a high rank.

The Hon. William Hale Thompson was programmed to make the "presentation of flags" speech, but, without any explanation to the committee, he failed to materialize C. E. W.

LEONARD-WILSON SCHOOL PRESENTS "THE DRUM MAJOR"

The Leonard-Wilson School of Music and Expression, at 63d and Kimbark avenue, in a short period of time, established themselves in a way that must be very gratifying indeed to the people whose name it bears, Ida F. Leonard, piano, and Alma E. Wilson, voice.

Miss Katharine S. Brown has taken charge of the lyric and dramatic speech arts, and judging from the presentation the pupils and friends of the school gave "The Drum Major," May 27-28, under her direction, one may feel safe in saying that Miss Brown is without a doubt one of the best fitted instructors on stage technic and the allied arts. She has personality, brains, and the authority that comes from long experience in doing things worth while. The Leonard-Wilson School may truthfully feel they have taken another step in the right direction.

"The Drum Major," by M. E. Inch and E. F. Johnson, with the adapted dialogue by Miss Brown, met with fine favor.

The lines of the dialogue run smoothly and effectively with the story of the opera, adding much to the enjoyment of the evening. The leading parts were taken by Helen Bridges, soprano; Harriet Hebert, contralto; Harry L. Wills, tenor; Harry Glair, baritone, and they deserve much commendation for their share of the evening's music. They all have good voices and should be heard from. The other characters were taken by Ronald McLeod, Hugh Corel, William Teves, George Berg, Wilber Spencer, Jane Kimball, Olene Wallis, Margaret Bard, Rose Funfsinn, Allen Wilson, Elliott Le Goff, Fae Wentsel and Mildred Gray and Genevieve Lanbach, dancers. Villagers and recruits completed the cast. The chorus numbers were sung with a spirit and swing that was thoroughly musical and enjoyable. The solos and duets were handled in turn with much skill, and the dressing of the parts very fitting, making the stage picture very attractive. The performance reflected much credit upon Miss Brown and the school. Miss Wilson gave a fine account of herself as the musical director and Mrs. Leonard at the piano gave good support.

H. W. P.

Little Theater—The Chicago Little Theater Company, touring in the "Trojan Women" of Euripides, are still creating a sensation wherever they appear. They are receiving the appreciation that they so richly deserve for their untiring efforts in the cause of peace and art. Even the most sophisticated theatergoers succumb to the classic spell this company succeed in casting so artistically.

FRANK W.

Van Dusen

PIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANOEdna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary STEELE
Hinman TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR ChicagoHarriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSICClarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 521 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Fifth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland AvenueGaylord American Violinist
YOST Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYMarie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam 1B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd FloorSilas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. Monzel MUSICAL
KIMBALL HALL COLLEGE
CHICAGO, ILL.

Summer Term

Wm. Clare Hall
TENOR

Will continue teaching
at his studio

428 Fine Arts Building

Throughout June, July
and August

LUCILLE STEVENSON

One of the most delightful musical programs of the season was heard Monday evening, May 24, the occasion being the presentation of "L'Internationale," a song cycle, arranged by Margaret L. Middleton and given by pupils of Miss Lucille Stevenson, in the Auditorium Recital Hall. The stage decorations were very attractive, adding color to the appropriate costumes of the singers representing the different nations.

Miss Stevenson's success as a teacher and singer are so well known that one may always feel sure of hearing something worth while. She has some fine voices under her guidance, and those appearing on this occasion gave ample proof that their study has been along excellent lines in vocal study, also much style, finish and good interpretative thought, in the presentation of their songs.

Mrs. Mary S. Atwood gave the prologue, and songs of the Nations, by Florence Wall, "Germany"; Margaret Middleton, "France"; Edyth Rowe, "England"; Elizabeth Gilbert, "Italy"; Gertrude Farrell, "Norway"; Marion McSurely, "Ireland"; Martha Harris MacLeod, "Scotland"; Harriet Skipwith, "Spain"; Louise Wothring, "United States."

Miss Lucia May Smith, soprano, gave, very effectively, the group of Russian songs. Her voice is fine in quality, and she uses it with much skill. The "Cossack Cradle Song" was sung in a most delightful and artistic manner. Van Stultzman's "Vianka Song" is rather coloratura in its outline, and Miss Smith met the requirements in a thoroughly finished and satisfying manner that won her the enthusiastic approval of the audience.

Miss Anna Braun's splendid contralto voice was heard to a fine advantage in a group of American Indian songs. She sang with a fine regard for the text, and her offerings along dramatic and vocal lines were artistic, appealing, meriting much commendation.

The ensemble numbers were also sung with a fine spirit, reflecting much credit upon Miss Stevenson and the pupils.

Miss Agnes Bodholdt was at the piano, and she gave of her best by playing very artistic accompaniments. H. W. P.

Duluth—A concert was given at the First Norwegian Lutheran Church in Duluth on last Monday evening, a chief performer being Miss Alice Margrete Olsen, pupil of Hleniot Levy, American Conservatory, Chicago.

CHAPEK SCHOOL CONCERT

Joseph H. Chapek has shown exceptional results with the students of his school, who have been heard from time to time in recital and elsewhere. The concerts which the school has held have revealed the steady advance made by the students on the different instruments. These students gave a splendid concert at Auditorium Recital Hall on Thursday evening, May 27, before a large and receptive audience. It was a program of much variety—one in which individuals and ensemble numbers were presented in a way which reflected much credit on Mr. Chapek.

The program was opened by the school orchestra; then followed violin, piano, voice and ensemble appearances, in such numbers that one cannot mention each separately. The violin ensemble class was particularly interesting, many violinists comprising the group and each one showing a remarkable knowledge of the instrument. Youngsters of six or seven years played with surprising poise and understanding. The Ladies' Chorus pleased with two selections, charmingly sung, in which the voices blended nicely and the phrasing and shading were very effective. Mr. Chapek directed the ensemble numbers in a convincing manner.

Especial recognition is due Mrs. Chapek, who played splendid accompaniments for

WARREN PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
419 Fine Arts Building. Phone Maywood 1615

every number except one, and there were fourteen in all. These included the orchestra parts for two piano concertos. Mrs. Chapek was fully equal to this task of endurance, and was no small factor in the success of the concert. Both Mr. and Mrs. Chapek have reason to be proud and happy of achieving such results as were produced Thursday evening. C. W. J.

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY

On Tuesday evening a very successful song recital was given by Miss Rose Larson, a pupil of Mr. Joel Mossberg in the Mendelssohn Conservatory.

Miss Larson has a good voice and fine style, and reflected great credit on her teacher in the following program, in which she was assisted by Edith Nelson and Ethel Hevle, violinists (pupils of Hjalmar Rabe); Mary Carnduff Black, Clara Anderson, Othelia Stenersen and Hazel Reid, pianists (pupils of Miss Carrie Scott):

Aria—Farewell Ye Hills!.....Tchaikowsky
Miss Larson
Miss Clara Anderson at the piano
Violin Duet—Selected
Edith Nelson, Ethel Hevle
A Little Winding Road
Away on a Hill There Runs a Stream }.....Ronald The Dove }
'Tis June }
Miss Larson
Quartet—Jubelouverture.....C. M. v. Weber
Mary Carnduff Black, Hazel Reid, Clara
Anderson, Othelia Stenersen
Norwegian Love Song.....Clough-Leigher
Bowl of Roses.....Clarke
Love Is Meant to Make Us Glad.....Edw. Gernan
Haymaking.....Needham
Miss Larson

THE GEORGE W. MUNRO STUDIOS

The George W. Munro studios in the Athnaeum Building were the scene of another interesting event on last Saturday evening, that event being a recital by Mr. George Munro. The following was the program rendered:

PART I

Bedouin Love Song.....Buck
The Relief.....Kramer
O Heart of Mine.....Clough-Leigher
She Alone Charmeth—Irene.....Gounod
Four Songs.....Homer
A Banjo Song
Uncle Rome—The Old Boatman
Requiem
How's My Boy?

PART II

Honor and Arms—Samson.....Handel
It Is Enough—Elijah.....Mendelssohn
Why Do the Nations—Messiah.....Handel

PART III

My Little Woman.....Osgood
Her Rose.....Coombs
Thursday.....Molloy
Hi! Li'l Feller.....Riker
Nothin' but Love.....Bond
Vulcan's Song—Philemon et Baucis.....Gounod

Music News' representative arrived just in time to hear the oratorio songs. Mr. Munro has his own ideas as to the interpretation of oratorio, and the remarks which he made before singing this group were both interesting and instructive. His rendering of these songs evidenced a thorough appreciation of the religious significance of the text and the unlimited possibilities for the display of vocal resources offered by the music. His presentation of "Why Do the Nations Rage" was especially good, and showed the flexibility and natural rich quality of Mr. Munro's voice to better advantage than either of the other two arias.

The songs composing part three of the program came in for thoroughly enjoyable readings, and should prove profitable examples to the large number of his pupils who were present. In fact, the recital was arranged with this thought in view, and that the pupils appreciated it was manifested by the cordiality with which the whole program was received, and further by the gorgeous bouquet of American Beauty roses presented Mr. Munro. C. J. B.

THE BUSIEST SEASON

A glance over the pages of the current issue of Music News or of any of the late issues, will furnish proof conclusive that the busiest part of the musical season occurs in Chicago just after the "official" announcement that all musical activities are at an end.

True, the visiting artists cease to visit us by the end of May, and the concerts of the Symphony Orchestra and the large choral bodies are at an end during the same month, but these do not constitute all of musical Chicago by any means and there is at present and in prospect a veritable mass of music events.

All this goes to prove the immense importance of Chicago as a music center.

We have here such a multiplicity of schools, studios and resident artists that we should have an endless list of splendid music functions even if the "visitors" stayed away entirely.

ROY DAVID BROWN PUPILS IN RECITAL

The rain came down in floods on the streets and beat a continual rapid-fire accompaniment upon the broad window front of Thurber Hall on last Friday night. But that did not prevent the attendance of an audience generous in proportions and in applause and appreciation upon the recital prepared by Mr. Roy David Brown of the Walter Spry Music School, to demonstrate his teaching qualities and the talents and progress of his interesting class of pupils. The participants ranged from those small in size and modest in years to those who had more years and consequently more experience. But the whole program was fully enjoyable, and a distinct credit to the power which had worked toward it and made it in due time a fine reality. There was an ever-present desire for beauty of tone and a meaning for the music. And not least pleasant to observe was the quality of music used, including a number of the standard authoritative names without which a program cannot be comprehensive, but revealing as well that there are many new "teaching pieces" that are stimulating in their content and fluent and melodious in expression. The "Cinderella" of Lemont is a good example of what is referred to.

ROY DAVID BROWN

The pupils appearing were Katherine Carroll, Pauline Brewer, Rose Heywood, Christiana Marshall, Charles Stroth, Bell MacArthur, Ruth Hennessey, Rosalie Weinfeld, Serene Cohn, Dorothy Carney, Helen Marshall and Verna Meyer. Miss. Ruth Miller, a violin pupil of Mr. Hugo Kortschak, contributed a good number, by way of variety and interest, and made a pronounced impression.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Votaw—Lyrravine Votaw will close her studio the middle of June to start upon an extended trip through the west to the coast, stopping in Idaho, Oregon, the expositions and Colorado. She will reopen her studio at 103 Auditorium Building, September 14, for another busy season. The "Hansel and Gretel" Company, of which Miss Votaw is manager, has signed with the Chautauqua Managers Association for the summer of 1916.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood

Paw Paw City, Mich.

30 Miles from Lake Paw Paw

An Ideal Spot in Which to Spend the Summer
A Musicians Colony Now Forming

Lots for Sale at Low Prices on Time Payments

Cottages at Reasonable Rental

Address LETTIE ESTEL BROWN, Paw Paw City, Mich.

WESTERN CONSERVATORY GRADUATES

Miss Gertrude E. Sternberger, contralto, and Miss Adeline Eriksen, pianist, gave their senior recital in the pleasant rooms of the Western Conservatory on Thursday evening, May 27.

Miss Sternberger opened the program with Allitsen's spirited "Oh, for a Burst of Song," which was sung with rousing enthusiasm. Her second offering consisted of three songs by Logan, "Love's Springtime," "The Magic Song" and "But Why?" These displayed an easy tonal emission, her mezzo voce work being particularly appealing. In the rendition of "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," unquestionably good musicianship was shown and some commendable dramatic work was heard. For her share of the latter part of the program, Miss Sternberger gave compositions by Beach, Salter, Bond and Gounod in a very capable manner. With her gracious manner, charming appearance and a voice of such range and volume, Miss Sternberger may reasonably expect cordial receptions whenever she appears.

Miss Eriksen first gave "Whispering Wind," by Wollenhaupt, an enjoyable presentation, showing the technical means for its full and complete expression. "Hark, Hark, the Lark," by Liszt, was next heard, interpreted with well conceived and contrasted musical ideas. "Polka de la Reine," by Raff, and Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" comprised the remainder of Miss Eriksen's selections. Her playing shows the result of careful study and application, and she met all the varied requirements in a manner emphasizing the character of the music.

Mr. Haydn Owens was an efficient accompanist for Miss Sternberger. C. W. J.

Lang—Miss Florence J. Lang, soprano, will leave on June 8 for San Francisco, where she will give a series of recitals in the Indiana Building during June and July.

CHAMBER MUSIC AT FULLERTON HALL

The last of this season's Sunday afternoon concerts under the auspices of the Society of American Musicians were given on Sunday afternoon at Fullerton Hall, before audiences which filled the place. The instrumentalists were Ludwig Becker, first violin and viola; Harry Linden, second violin; Miss Marion Lychenheim, piano; Hugo Kortschak, first violin and viola; Richard Wagner, 'cello; Miss Agnes Bodholdt, piano, and Otto Wolf, double bass. The soloists of the afternoon were Miss Cynthia Ellen Loveless, soprano, who sang at the 3 o'clock concert, and Mr. Ernest Davis, tenor, who sang at the 4:15 concert.

The program opened with "The Trout," a quintet for piano and strings, by Schubert (allegro vivace, tema con variavione), played by Miss Lychenheim and Messrs. Kortschak, Becker, Wagner and Wolf. The other instrumental number was a quintet, F Sharp Minor, Op. 20, for piano and strings, by Edgar Stillman Kelley (lento sostenuto e misterioso, allegretto scherzando, moderato molto), played by Miss Bodholdt and Messrs. Becker, Linden, Kortschak and Wagner. Both numbers received beautiful readings.

Miss Loveless, with Miss Albertine Heller at the piano, sang "Ah fors e lui" (from "Traviata"), by Verdi; "Twas in the Lovely Month of May," by Hammond; "Little Grey Dove," by Saar, and "The Charm of Spring," by Clarke, displaying a charming soprano voice of the coloratura type and much proficiency in using it.

Mr. Davis sang "Che gelida manina" (from "La Boheme"), by Puccini; "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby," by Clay, and "May Morning," by Denza. He possesses a brilliant tenor voice of fine quality and good range, and his mastery of his vocal resources is excellent. His rendition of the above group was both authoritative and convincing.

Mrs. George Nelson Holt was his accompanist. C. J. B.

Ohio Music Teachers Convene at Toledo

Reviewed by HERBERT M. BAILEY

The thirty-third annual convention of the Ohio State Music Teachers' Association was held at Toledo on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 27, 28 and 29. With leading musicians from all parts of the state in attendance and an excellent program arranged for the three days, the convention passed by with unusual enthusiasm and was pronounced by many as one of the most profitable and successful meetings the association has ever held.

Since Lynn B. Dana of Warren was chosen president two years ago the association has made splendid strides in all branches of its undertakings and now every state association in the country is watching the example set and accomplishments of the Ohio organization.

Mr. Dana has sacrificed a great amount of time from his duties at Dana's Musical Institute in Warren to develop the necessary interest among musicians of the state for the carrying out of certain plans now before the association. While he has been very successful to a certain degree in arousing interest and building up the membership there is still room for great improvement. This improvement will come about, not from Mr. Dana or the other hard working officers of the association alone, but from the thousands of musicians in the state supporting the association, whether they attend conventions or not. Plans already on foot for the coming year and its convention leads one to believe the 1916 meeting will far surpass that of 1915.

Toledo, with its splendid equipment for hospitality in the way of a firm and welcome handshake for all visitors from the entertainment committee, as well as its beautiful Museum of Art, the Woman's Building, the Toledo Conservatory of Music and excellent hotel accommodations formed an ideal spot for this year's convention and while praise is being given Mr. Bradford Mills of the Toledo Conservatory of Music should be singled out and given due commendation for the splendid three days' program which was arranged under his guidance as chairman of the 1915 program committee. Headquarters for the convention was maintained at the Museum of Art and there the early arrivals met on Thursday afternoon for registration and a get-acquainted meeting.

Recital of Ohio Composers

Perhaps the most significant feature of the entire convention was the recital of Ohio composers on Thursday night, held at the Museum of Art and attended by an audience which completely taxed the seating capacity of the hemicycle auditorium.

A fault attached to this concert which is well worthy of note. Four of the leading composers of the state, namely, Wilson G. Smith, James H. Rogers and Frederick A. Williams, all of Cleveland, and Oley Speaks of Columbus, failed to appear in Toledo and perform their compositions as had been advertised and announced prior to the convention. This was a keen disappointment to the audience, yet they heard these composers' numbers performed on short notice by Toledo musicians in an artistic and all around commendable manner. It is doubtful if the composers could have offered their numbers in a more satisfactory style had they been present. The recital proved a great success in spite of the above named fact. Mr. Louis Victor Saar of Cincinnati, one of the best known composers in America, opened the program by playing his "Romance, Op. 75, No. 1"; "In a Gondola" and "Hunter's Song," the last two being first prize winners at St. Louis in 1913. These numbers are well worthy the consideration of every musician, both teacher and recitalist. Mr. Saar played them in a skillful and charming style.

MARY WILLING MEAGLEY

Mr. Fred Morris sang three numbers by Mr. Smith, the absentee, with a wealth of beautiful tone quality and splendid interpretation. Mr. J. Harold Harder, a leading Toledo pianist, played the accompaniments at sight with that rare finish and effect which comes only from those well versed in this line of art and he merits a high word of praise for rounding out a splendid performance of the Smith compositions. Not only did he play accompaniments that were capital, but he played a group of three piano numbers, by Frederic Williams, in a manner which proved his high state of efficiency as a solo performer. This group consisted of "Autumn," "The Wayside Spring" and "Meditation," from "Twilight Sketches," each of which received a very smooth and musicianly reading at the hands of Mr. Harder. His technic was wholly capable of surmounting the difficulties of these numbers with ease and the interpretations were of a character which occasions the remark that Mr. Harder easily adapts himself to the moods and ideas of the composer's works at hand.

Two compositions for violin, namely, "Folk Tale" and "Lullaby," by Miss Patty Stair of Cleveland, proved to be one of the high artistic points in the evening's program, largely through the fact that Mr. Emil Sturmer, the Toledo violinist, was the soloist and the composer was at the piano. The numbers are beautifully written, melodious in great measure and adorned with a splendid accompaniment. No better choice for the interpreter of these works than Mr. Sturmer could have been made. First of all, he is an artist of commanding type, he knows his instrument perfectly and has developed a technic which is true and sure, besides this, the tone which flows from his instrument is smooth, resonant and colorful from first to last. He was given a fine reception by the audience as he mounted the platform and at his leaving the applause was enthusiastic, sincere and lasted for a length of time which denoted the esteem in which he is held by Toledo music lovers and the addition of many new admirers from those who heard him for the first time. Mr. Sturmer will always be heard with pleasure and well deserves a leading place among the present-day concert violinist.

Mrs. Frederic Fuller, the possessor of a very pleasing and intelligently produced voice, sang "My Star" and "At Parting," two compositions by James Rogers, in a manner greatly appreciated by all present, and Mr. Otto Sturmer, another splendid Toledo pianist, played the accompaniments in a wholly commendable style.

JAMES MAC DERMID

Two songs by Speaks were presented by Mr. Roscoe Mulholland, who possesses a splendid vocal equipment, good concert style and well defined ideas as to interpretation. "A Little Way to Walk with You"

The Hardman Piano

(Established 1842 in New York)

Recognized by the World's Greatest Vocal Artists and Musicians generally as the most perfect instrument to accompany the voice, and used exclusively in the homes of

CARUSO, TETRAZZINI, ZENATELLO, SLEZAK,
AND MANY OTHERS.

"A wise man profits by the experience of others"

Read what they have to say and remember that the same service and quality is at your command. Let us send you our booklet EXPRESSIONS OF OPINION, which contains half-tone pictures of the best known Operatic Stars.

Most reasonable in price among the few Artistic Pianos.

Uprights, $450.00 up. Grands, $700.00 up.

F. S. SPOFFORD, Chicago Representative
Seventh Floor, Republic Building,
State Street, Corner Adams.

and "On the Road to Mandalay" were the songs offered by Mr. Mulholland.

The last portion of the program was made up with songs by Toledo composers, first and foremost being a group of four excellent numbers by Mary Willing Meagley, who is almost as well known in Chicago and surrounding territory as in Toledo. "Memory," "Love's Tomorrow," "My Shadow" and "Life" were the offerings and at once took a place among the gems of the evening. While the audience showed somewhat of a preference for one or two of these songs, it is a deep question which is best. First of all each is singable and understandable. The texts are well chosen and especially well set to the music. They are not difficult, yet very appealing in their effective simplicity and should prove valuable additions to every singer's repertoire. Mrs. Meagley is to be congratulated not only on the success of her songs on this occasion but for bringing from Chicago the talented and much admired soprano, Margaret Smith-Lester, wife of the well known Chicago composer, William Lester, as the interpreter of these songs. The combination was indeed a happy one and the audience recognized this fact with a great burst of applause at the conclusion of each song. Mrs. Lester is a welcome addition to any program and her charming stage presence, beautiful voice and excellent gifts as an interpreter were never used to better advantage than on this occasion. Mrs. Meagley supported the soprano with a perfect performance of the piano score.

Mrs. Otto Sand was at the piano during the singing of her own composition, "For You," by Mrs. Lenore Sherwood. Both words and music of this charming song are by Mrs. Sand and its performance was well worthy of a place on this pretentious program.

Mrs. Frederick Fuller was heard again in closing the program, singing "Legge d'Amor," by Paul Rosebrugh Geddes, with Otto Sturmer furnishing the accompaniment and "Morning," by Bradford Mills, with the composer at the piano. This latter number proved to be a delightful bit of song writing and made excellent material for the closing of a rather remarkable evening of music.

A Reception and Impromptu Piano Recital

A get-acquainted reception was held in the foyer and display rooms of the Museum following the Ohio composers' concert,

MARGARET SMITH-LESTER

which was enjoyable from every standpoint for both visiting musicians and Toledo musicians. At a late hour some admirers of Mr. Ralph Leopold, who was in the throng, induced him to give a short program of piano numbers, thus affording those fortunate enough to be present an opportunity of hearing a pianist not listed on the program of the convention. Mr. Leopold has recently returned from a nine-year sojourn in Europe and during that time gained experience and fame as a concert pianist. He played numbers by Bach, Liszt, Debussy and Wagner with a great display of technical and emotional mastery.

MacDermids Give Excellent Recital

On Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Auditorium of the Woman's Building, Sibyl-Sammis MacDermid and James D. MacDermid, composer-accompanist, presented one of those noteworthy programs which has won them fame from coast to coast. A more perfect musical combination cannot be found on the American concert stage at present than that formed by these two sterling artists. After long association and experience in recital programs they are capable of offering a program teeming with variety and ideally produced. An interesting, enjoyable and very welcome feature to these joint recitals is the group of songs from the pen of Mr. MacDermid, which closes the program. "Sacrament," "Fulfillment," "Charity," "The Song That My Heart Is Singing," "If I Knew You and You Knew Me" and "My Love Is Like the Red, Red Rose" comprised the list of MacDermid compositions on this program and both singer and composer were accorded high tribute in the way of sincerely enthusiastic applause. No singer can present these songs to better advantage than Mrs. MacDermid and, of course, no one can play the piano score quite on an equal with the composer. This latter statement does not hold good in every case, but with Mr. MacDermid it surely does, for he is an accompanist of the highest type, not only in his own works, but those of every other composer which happens to fall to his lot. This was proven to the full satisfaction of the audience at this recital.

Mrs. MacDermid's voice was in glorious form as were her interpretative gifts and added to this was her usual gracious stage presence. She opened the program with an elegant rendition of "With Verdure Clad," from the "Creation." Then followed two quaint and charming songs of the Old Irish and English style which pleased immensely and occasioned the demand for an encore which came in the form of "When Phyllis Takes Her Music Lesson," by Garnett, a song which Mrs. MacDermid is featuring with success and which proved especially appropriate and wholly enjoyable to a body of music teachers.

"Traum Durch die Dämmerung," Strauss; "Das Kraut Vergessenheit," Hildach; "Les

OHIO MUSIC TEACHERS IN FRONT OF THE TOLEDO MUSEUM OF ART

Cloches," Debussy; "Quando Me'n vo Soletta," (La Boheme), by Puccini, and an aria from "Thais," by Massenet, with the addition of "My Guardian Angel," by Lehmann, as an encore, rounded out the excellent list of songs presented by the soprano. No greater enthusiasm was aroused at any time during the convention than that noted at the MacDermid recital, and the compliments showered upon the artists at the close of the program was abundant proof of the pleasure their art had brought forth.

A Luncheon and Program

Following the taking of a picture of an assembled group of the music teachers in front of Toledo's Museum of Art—which picture is reproduced with this review—everyone journeyed to the Toledo Woman's Building, where, with many of the city's leading citizens, the visiting musicians enjoyed a splendidly prepared and well served luncheon, mingled with occasional offerings of excellently rendered music. When appetites had been satisfied to the full, a splendid program of speeches by prominent men and women of Toledo and musical numbers by several of that city's capable artists consumed the greater part of the afternoon and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. It is unfortunate for the reviewer that no printed program came with this delightful afternoon, for by such circumstances is he unable to chronicle the events of this program according to its fulfillment. However, we knew Mr. Emil Sturmer when he arose with another violinist to play a number for two violins and we also knew Mr. Ruvinsky, the excellent violinist, who leads the quartet of musicians at the Hotel Secor in its twelve-hour discourse of music for the benefit of guests at that elegant hostelry each day—when he appeared and won great applause for his artistic playing of a well chosen number to which he was compelled to add an encore. This sojourn at the Woman's Building was one of the most delightful periods of the entire convention; in fact, the writer has never noted anything quite like it at any convention he has attended recently.

SIBYL SAMMIS MAC DERMID

Marcian Thalberg Scores a Success

Marcian Thalberg, pianist of Cincinnati, found time or rather took time from his arduous duties as a teacher in the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music to spend one day at the convention and give a recital. This took place on Friday night in the Auditorium of the Toledo Conservatory of Music before a very appreciative audience if not a large one. A very stormy night, as well as several other musical attractions in the city, no doubt occasioned the size of the audience. However, those not present missed a rare musical treat, for Mr. Thalberg is one of the most noted and accomplished pianists now residing in America and the announcement of his giving a recital to the 1915 convention aroused new interest and expectancy. His program was arranged and presented in the genuine artist's style and we herewith print it in full:

Prelude et Fugue, C Minor.....	Bach
Bagatelle, Op. 33, No. 1.....	Beethoven
Rhapsodie, G Minor.....	Brahms
Capriccio, B Minor.....	Brahms
Nocturne, F Major.....	Chopin
Ballade, G Minor.....	Chopin
Three Preludes.....	Chopin
Six Etudes.....	Chopin
Barcarolle, G Minor.....	Rubinstein
Feuerzauber.....	Wagner-Brassin
Au bord d'une source.....	Liszt
Etude en forme de valse.....	Saint-Saens

Mr. Thalberg played every number with an assurance which denoted his firm grasp of the intentions of these old masters in their compositions and his brilliant technical display at times was startling in both forte and pianissimo passages. He is especially adept in the use of the pedals and gained many charming colorful effects thereby. We hope to hear more from Mr. Thalberg in the future.

General Conferences

Both Friday and Saturday forenoons were devoted to several papers on various subjects of interest to the music teachers of the state as well as to the report of the Standardization and Legislative Committee, other necessary business matters and election of officers.

Friday morning, Solon T. Klotz, president of the Musical Art Society of Toledo, delivered the address of welcome, which proved to be a model in that line of talk and at once put every one at ease as to his or her welcome in the city.

Mr. Lynn B. Dana then gave the annual president's address. This was not a long

ALINE	VAN BARENTZEN	PIANIST	Management R. E. Johnston Commercial Trust Bldg. 41st Street and Broadway NEW YORK
	PRUDENCE NEFF	PIANISTE

PRUDENCE NEFF
PIANISTE
Address
SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF MUSICAL ART
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ROBERT DOLEJSI
VIOLINIST

drawn out discourse on music or its appreciation, or anything of that sort, as is usually the case, but a plain, heart-to-heart talk on the business of the association and what is necessary for the success of the future. He knows the Ohio musical field completely and offered some excellent advice which, if followed out by the musicians of the state the association will be able to help the profession in Ohio one hundred per cent in the next few years.

Mr. B. F. Stuber of Warren talked on the "Relation of Psychology to Music."

Mr. Otto Sturmer of Toledo delivered a splendidly prepared and interesting paper on "Modern Ideas of Piano Technic."

Mr. E. F. Buckmeyer of Zanesville talked to considerable extent on "Why Pupils Keep Poor Time and the Remedy."

One of the best papers heard during these conferences was that read by Mr. Frank W.

MARCIAN THALBERG

Gillis of Heidelberg University, Tiffin, on "Requisites for Good Singing." He is a good talker, knows his subject and handled it in a style which was easily understood by his hearers.

E. V. Hesser of the Ohio State Normal School at Bowling Green talked on that very important subject, "Should Credits Be Given in Public Schools for Outside Music Study."

The above list of papers is by far too many for so short a time at their disposal and the consensus of opinion afterward indicated that in the future one paper with its discussion will consume one session. That is as it should be, for those present will derive much more good from a paper which is discussed at length than one which is hurriedly read and then buried behind the reading of another on an entirely different subject.

Saturday morning one or two papers were called off so that Herbert E. Hutchinson of Alliance, who is chairman of the Standardization Committee, could report on its work. Mr. Hutchinson read the bill which is now before the General Assembly of the State Legislature, copies of which were handed out to all present. The bill was discussed further and the hope is strong that it will soon become a law. However, there is serious doubt over it becoming such at present. Mr. Hutchinson knows this subject as, perhaps, no other man in the state does and he has some rather frank and interesting remarks to state on the subject.

Springfield 'Gets Next Convention

At the business meeting on Saturday morning a small but strong and convincing delegation from the city of Springfield presented itself and made a strong plea in connection with a very gratifying invitation from the Commercial Club of that city for the 1916 convention. A unanimous vote was cast for the meeting in Springfield next year. As stated before, many brilliant plans are forming for a great convention one year hence.

The election of officers disclosed the fact that Lynn B. Dana, president; E. F. Buckmeyer, vice president; Julia E. Eatwell, secretary and treasurer, and Herbert E. Hutchinson, chairman of the Standardization Committee, were all re-elected by a unanimous vote, as were all the county vice presidents. The chairman of the Program Committee for the 1916 convention will be chosen by the president. While it was not officially announced, it is supposed that Mr. LeRoy Lambert of Springfield will be the choice, as it is customary for the head of the program committee to reside in the convention which all Toledo may well feel proud and cities of twice or thrice her size may well envy. Its interior, while not as large, of course, as the famed Art Institute in Chicago, it nevertheless resembles the Chicago building. The outside is beautifully designed and is surrounded by rich banks of flowers, shrubbery and gracefully designed walks. Its lighting system is of the best and especially beautiful at night.

The Hotel Monticello and Hotel Secor housed the greater part of the visitors in the city. The former was made into headquarters, yet the latter far surpasses it in excellence for both comfort and service.

William H. Dana, founder and president of the Dana Musical Institute at Warren, attended the entire convention and took a leading part in all its activities. The elder Dana has seen all the ups and downs of the Ohio Association as well as all other musical factions in the state and country, so his talks, arguments, advice and reminiscent remarks are authoritative as well as intensely interesting.

A smoker at the Hotel Secor on Friday night following the Thalberg recital, brought out a good attendance and further deepened the good fellowship movement started at earlier meetings. Messrs. Mills, Gunther and the elder Dana carried off honors for masterful discourses on certain subjects, while Gamble and the younger Dana made a close second.

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

Central Music Hall held a large and enthusiastic audience on Thursday evening, May 27, the occasion being a concert for the benefit of a summer camp for mothers and children, under the auspices of Henry Booth House Welfare Club.

The artists advertised to appear in the concert were Jane English, soprano; Francesco Daddi, tenor, and Grace Keesler, pianist.

Mrs. English was not able to sing, on account of an acute attack of tonsillitis, but to show her good intentions she came on the stage, and in a very gracious manner expressed her disappointment at not being in condition to present her part of the program.

Wally Heymar, the popular Polish violinist, replaced Mrs. English in two numbers, and by her skillful playing and charming manner, became a prime favorite with the audience. She played "Walther's Prize Song" from "Die Meistersinger"; "Spanish Dance, by Rehfeld; "Moods," by Lee S. Roberts, and "Hejre Kati," by Hubay.

To Mrs. Keesler fell the burden of the evenings responsibility, musically, for not only did she furnish two solo numbers, but she also played the accompaniments for Mrs. Heymar's two numbers. But Mrs. Keesler is a versatile and competent pianist, and entirely equal to such demands. Her solos, "March Don Juan," by Mozart, and Rogers' "Prelude de Orchestra," and Polonaise, were given with musicianly skill and perfect authority, while her accompaniments were able and thoroughly satisfactory.

Mr. Daddi presented Neopolitan folk songs in his usual style and won much applause thereby. His offerings were all in the Italian language.

SUMMER SCHOOL
study the
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
Teaching system and HOW to BLEND
Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher and finish with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
THE ORIGINATOR
LEARN HOW TO TEACH
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Mr. Oscar Deis, Pianist and Teacher,
Director of Piano Dept.
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD MUSIC SCHOOL.
Certificate authorized by State of Ill.
no's. accredited by Board of Education of Chicago
Phone Wabash 427
SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BUILDING.
218 SOUTH WABASH, CHICAGO, ILL.

city and Mr. Lambert appears to be the logical man.

Notes of the Convention

A notable display of music publications was maintained at the Museum of Art by Mr. Gamble of the Gamble-Hinged Music Co. of Chicago; Mr. Foster of the Clayton F. Summy House, Chicago; Mr. Gunther of Arthur P. Schmidt, New York, and Mr. Groene of the Willis Music Co. of Cincinnati. The music teachers took a great interest in this display and were waited upon in a very cordial manner by the above named efficient salesmen.

Frank E. Percival, Toledo correspondent for Musical America, was one of the first to greet the out of town visitors. He was a busy man throughout the convention as he took a leading part on the local entertainment committee.

A short visit to the Toledo Conservatory of Music gave one the view of many excellently equipped studios, roomy and appropriate, a splendidly arranged auditorium, a large and busy faculty and all guided by the courteous Mr. Bradford Mills. The school is located in a fine part of the city and seemed in a very flourishing condition indeed.

The Museum of Art is an institution in

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST
BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College
FRANKLIN STEAD, Director
School of Expression MUSIC Modern Language
Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI
ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

DAN S. DENTON TENOR
OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER
TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

ELISABETH FERGUSON HESS
CONTRALTO
7622 Rogers Ave. Tel. Rogers Park 9968

The Elderly Person

The proper place to see the start from the pier, where the steamer was tied up, was from the rear or "aft" in sea-going parlance. The Elderly Person felt sorry for the big vessel with her sharp prow so capable of cutting her way through the water. It must have cost her no end of pangs and pains of humiliation to be dragged backward by the fussy little tug which rather officiously came up and hitched the long four or five inch cable. A stalwart young fellow wound it, sailor fashion, about the big stanchions, coiling it beyond a peradventure of looseness. Then he sat down on it and waited, quite conscious that the passengers had surveyed his every motion and that he had artistically made a success of his public opportunity. A pianist would have expected an encore. He didn't, but he treated himself to a smoke from a rakish looking pipe. The tug bent all its present energies to making heavy black smoke, which it poured out with impartiality upon all comers, and added occasional showers of cinders to make things even more pleasant. With little shrieks the ladies fled toward the front or "fore" part of the boat, and the Elderly Person was about to retreat, when his attention was attracted to something going on on the pier itself.

From the height where he looked over the rail, all along under the shed of the pier there seemed to be a litter of newspapers and dark patches of rubbish. Instead of blowing into heaps into the corners by the wind, the fragments were apparently scattered untidily everywhere in the dim shadows. The Elderly Person had not heeded this litter until, just as he was turning away, he saw two men pass under a chance light and stop to survey the surroundings. And then each drew from his various pockets sundry newspapers and began opening them. After a little inspection the men appeared to decide upon something. That something was followed by their spreading the papers over the spots where they stood. They did this carefully, and used many sheets to cover a certain space. Then they sat down, took off their coats and rolled them into bundles. Then their shoes were removed, the strings tied together and then tied about the neck of each man. One fellow had saved an extra paper, which he now used to wrap carefully about his feet and to tie with a string. Then they loosened the top buttons of their shirts, stretched out full length on the paper bed, with the bundled coats for pillows, pulled their fragments of hats over their eyes and started off for a period of unconsciousness. Then, and not till then did it dawn upon the Elderly Person that all that confused grouping which he dismissed as rubbish and vagrant newspaper remnants, was outcast humanity huddled together for the hoped for rest and sleep. Peering further into the shadows he soon made out the figures. The floors were literally covered by them, in all sorts of positions and groupings. Little by little he discovered that there were even certain points of vantage which the wary coveted and covered by arriving early. The doorways of buildings were just a little exclusive and the occupants of slight elevations assumed certain superiorities. But in the last analysis, the soft side of a board was the bed of each man.

The young man standing beside the Elderly Person, who had been an interested observer of the scene gave a great gasp that was almost a sob: "I've read of such things" said he "but I hardly believed them and I've never seen them before. Can't I do something for them I'd like to throw that fellow, just coming along there, my paper at least. But I would rather throw him some money. I wonder if he's had any supper? Here I am, fresh from a hearty dinner where I ate more than was good for me, and I'm going to have a state-room with a good bed in it—and these poor fellows trying to sleep on the floor! It's awful." The Elderly Person felt the man standing on his other side give a nervous start and move off in a hurry. When, two hours later, the Elderly Person found this man sleeping in the deck chairs under a stairway, he understood the movement better, and knew that all the privation was not on the floor of the pier. But the comrade of the young man who had spoken answered him: "Don't you do anything so foolish as to throw money down there. They would fight over it like wolves and not care what happened. What you see down there is the gathering of the very worst bums in Chicago. Every dock along the river is crowded with them every night. They are just beginning to come in now. By eleven o'clock the place will be covered and you couldn't go through without stepping on one. Any one but a policeman is not safe there. They are the fellows who live by the odd jobs of unloading freight from the steamers. Of course there is no steady job, but the dock-owners let them sleep there so as to have them around when they do need them."

And while we talked, the stragglers came in singly and in groups, for the most part with a dogged cheerfulness that vented itself in quiet talk or smoking. Some were deliberate and made a survey before pitching the night's tent. Others dropped down anywhere and made themselves into a stupid ball at once. One fellow looked as if he had been swimming in the river, so white was his skin and damp his hair. He rolled himself a cigarette, pulled out a box of matches from some interior of himself, scratched a match on his shoe's sole and lighted the cigarette with as much nonchalance as if he was at the Blackstone. He sat down on his paper bed and folded his arms on his knees with a relaxation that was an object lesson to men who don't know how to let down. They came in faster and faster as the time went by. The young man broke out again: "But" I say, do you notice how many of them are young men? Seems to me they are all under thirty. I suppose the old fellows get in first because they tire more easily. But do you notice how much at home they seem? It don't seem to fret them at all that the roof over them is not a house and far from being a home. How did they ever come to be where they have to do this? And how did each of them feel when he found he had to come here the first time? I have not seen one of them hesitate, but if I found myself in such extremity I believe I'd have to drag my feet in. I don't believe I could walk in. It's awful—awful!"

And that was the pitiful part of it all—That they felt at home. If there had been wail or outcry, one might have believed that ambition was not dead. But this dull acceptance of a fate was heartbreaking.

* * *

The little tug was more fussy than ever and as we brooded over the sleeping homeless we felt a little shiver under our feet, and saw that we were slipping away into the stream. The misty figures on the pier dissolved into vague shadows and disappeared like an unpleasant dream: A full moon fought with the numberless electric lights blazing on the steamer and on the restless signs on high points where the merits of breakfast foods and beers and cosmetics and wines, automobile tires and department stores insisted upon notice. The tug became very much excited, rushing from side to side of the narrow river's bounds and saying breathlessly "O, do get out of my way! good gracious me alive! can't you see what I am after and give me more room, don't bother me with questions but just move one side and let me alone, this is a terrible job, and as much as I can swing, and here you are all blocking up the way and making it twice as hard as should be, you don't know how hard a lift it is to be a tug or you wouldn't say I was like a fat puffy man trying to work off his surplus flesh. No, I'm not going to hit that other steamer, but I will perhaps let you scrape her side. Oh dear, oh dear, do get out of the way and give me room, all I want is room and to be let alone."

And as the result of the strenuous exertions the big boat threaded its way through a sinuous waterway, past the open draws of the bridges where the late passersby rested on the rail and idly observed the slow progress and where churning automobiles fumed on the brink of the openings. Out past the docks for stone and salt and toward the breakwater the stately ship went with as much dignity as she could summon while she was hauled backward, and on toward the open water. At last came the shifting colors of the lighthouse. Then, with a final and mighty exertion, the vessel was turned about-face by the noisy tug. Then, with a parting shower of cinders and masses of smoke, the line was thrown off, the tug snorted homeward, the turbines of the boat churned the water into foam, and the course toward the north star set forward to. The line of lights of the city began to lose their identity and became blurred and confused. For a long time the industrious rolling tires of an automobile sign ran in and out vividly. Then they faded into sparks and then were not. For a long time a department store kept its name high in air and clear, and was last to disintegrate. The lights faded on the horizon and only the flashes of the lighthouse gleamed fitfully. * * * There were long hours out under the sky with the Lake Wind for a comrade, but at length came the time for stateroom and berth.

And the last thought before sleep came? Not of home and friends and comforts, but of the homeless and broken men asleep on the pier. To see men going to waste—appalling!

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

—###—

EDWARD CLARKE

Edward Clarke, who has been on the faculty of the American Conservatory of Music for the last three years, will change his field of endeavor next season. After September 1 Mr. Clarke will become associate director of the Lyceum Conservatory. This school, which is situated in the Fine Arts Building, Chicago, has for its purpose the training of musicians for professional work in lyceum, operatic, and theatrical field. Its teachers are practical people who have had and are having experience on the public platforms. Rachel Steinman Clarke will also become a member of the faculty and Mr. William Breach, who has been assistant to Mr. Clarke, will enter the school as

One of the finest tenors ever heard here
—Rockford (Ill.) Republic.

Grant Kimbell

TENOR

Oratorio Recital Concert

730 Fine Arts Building
309 E. 49th St. (Drexel 8519)

Beautiful voice, well schooled — South
Bend (Ind.) Tribune

a vocal teacher and coach, and will assist particularly in forming and coaching companies for lyceum and chautauqua work.

The Edward Clarke Concert Party will continue to be booked by the Redpath Musical Bureau in the winter and the Dunbar Bureau in the summer. Harry Culbertson will have charge of Mr. Clarke's recital and oratorio bookings and Mrs. Warren will present him to local clubs as she has for the last three years.

Mr. Clarke will teach at the American Conservatory during the summer term and will fill engagements for chautauquas during August.

—###—

A CHARMING MUSICAL

Mrs. Clarence S. Funk opened her Oak Park house for the Annual Meeting and Reception and Entertainment of the Phi Sigma Club last Tuesday evening, and a program of rare charm was presented.

Mrs. Belle Watson Melville, a reader, whose friends are legion, gave an inimitable list of stories and poems, and music was provided by the Alpine Yodlers, under direction of C. L. Grobecker.

These delightful people appear in Swiss costume and sing the National songs with great beauty and accuracy, one of them also appearing in solo numbers, singing both Swiss and Scotch songs, including Thayer's "My Laddie" (which she gave beautifully) on the premise that both Swiss and Scotch are "people of the Highlands," both are much isolated and the two have many other points in common.

It is a pity, when these singers have so much of such supreme charm and such authentic value to present that they should consider it necessary to incorporate some cheap vaudeville songs in their repertoire, but so runs the world today, and even the unsophisticated Swiss singer is bitten by the prevailing serpent.

—###—

AGNES HOPE PILLSBURY PRESENTS PUPIL

Friday evening Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury presented another of her talented pupils in a piano recital at the studio in Fine Arts Building. Mrs. Cora Libberton, soprano, assisted.

Miss Irma May proved herself to be a very talented and serious minded pianist. Her technique is well developed, and her tone work very musical, proving beyond doubt that her study has been along good lines. Her renditions of the Mendelssohn "Variations" and the Chopin "Preludes" were greeted with much merited applause, for she played them with surety and ease.

"Two Larks," by Leschetizky, was given a very graceful and musical reading. A Brahms "Hungarian Dance" was played in a very brilliant and musicianly manner by Miss May and Miss Pillsbury at the second piano.

Mrs. Cora Libberton is a great favorite wherever she appears. Her splendid soprano voice and charming personality have won her a host of friends and admirers.

Her voice is of a very appealing quality and she uses it with skill in the presentation of songs. She gave numbers by Carpenter, Serrari and Wolf, musicianly and artistic interpretations, that left nothing to be desired in beautiful singing. H. W. P.

—###—

CIVIC MUSIC CONCERT

Sunday evening, the First Baptist Church Chorus of the Civic Music Association, under the direction of John Allen Richardson, presented the cantata of "Ruth" at the First Baptist Church, Chicago, Thirty-first street and South Park avenue. The chorus did some praiseworthy singing during the evening that was very enjoyable, and Mr. Richardson may well feel proud of the showing made by the chorus for the short period of time for the preparation of the work presented. He directed with the surety and understanding that comes from long experience in choral work, and he deserves much commendatory praise.

The solo parts were taken by members of the chorus in a praiseworthy manner, namely, Miss Lucy Hayes, Miss Lelia Ahrens, Mrs. Alice Rose, sopranos; Miss May Wall and Mrs. R. T. Lowell, contraltos, and W. J. Breach, baritone.

Mrs. Charles Orchard furnished musicianly support at the piano throughout the evening that aided greatly in making things go smoothly.

—###—

Gamble Hinged Company—The Gamble Hinged Music Company sends out attractive little folders exploiting "When Soft Winds Blow," by Claire Guedy, and a thematic list of the popular songs of Merle Kirkman.

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

"Pop" Concerts from June 1 to July 3

The Boston Symphony Orchestra. Dr. Karl Muck, conductor, has returned from a very successful trip to the exposition, San Francisco, and began its season of "Pop" concerts in Symphony hall, June 1, with Mr. Marquarre conductor for the first two weeks. Ernst Schmidt, assistant conductor of the orchestra, will conduct the second fortnight, and Clement Lenom the last week, the concerts ending July 3.

□ □ □

The Faelten Pianoforte School Graduates

The graduating exercises of the Faelten Pianoforte School takes place in Jacob Sleeper Hall, Boston University, Wednesday night, June 16, at 8 o'clock.

□ □ □

Next Season's Apollo Club Concerts

Four concerts, probably in Jordan hall, will be given by the Apollo Club of male voices, Emil Mollenheuer, conductor, during the season, 1915-1916. A. T. Davidson, Jr., will be the organist, Frank H. Luker the pianist. The president of the club is Courtenay Guild, who is also president of the Handel and Haydn Society. The voice committee continues under the chairmanship of Alfred F. Denghausen. The chairman of the music committee is John K. Berry, and the new members on the voice committee are W. W. Hodsdon, J. F. Mores and Ivan Morawski. C. A. Chase is a new member of the music committee.

□ □ □

The Cecilia Society Officers

Chalmers Clifton will be the conductor of the Cecilia Society next year, instead of Dr. Arthur Mees, who has held the office for several years, and is the conductor of the Worcester Music Festivals.

The president of the club is Henry L. Mason, Joseph C. Walker, chairman of the board of directors. A reorganized chorus, with a stronger tenor and bass section, is a need pointed out by the members of the governing board. Three concerts in Jordan Hall are planned, one of them having an orchestra of Boston Symphony men.

□ □ □

Music School Notes

Miss Hazel Fanley of Cloquet, Minnesota, who is at Liederheim, has won much praise for her work this year. She has sung in several concerts at the school and elsewhere, and many favorable comments upon her fine voice have been expressed.

Liederheim's principal is Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles, a Wellesley college graduate, and a contralto of more than usual excellence. She is the soloist in one of the large Congregational churches of Greater Boston, and her reputation as a teacher of voice is constantly increasing. Under her management, Liederheim teaches its pupils to become self-supporting, and assists each student in obtaining a hearing.

Frequent musicals, evenings with American composers, and lectures upon music, are held at the school, and October 11, S. Harrison Lovewell, the well-known critic and writer, will give his lecture, "The Evolution of Opera," there. In addition to instrumental illustration of the text, Mrs. Ruggles will contribute opera arias from operas discussed by Mr. Lovewell.

□ □ □

An interesting and well given program was heard in the Knights of Honor Hall, Day building, Worcester, Friday night, May 21.

It was one of a series of "Community Music" programs, given under the direction of the writer, which have for their purpose education, as well as entertainment, and therefore, present types of works for the approval of the audience.

The program that follows clearly indicates the idea, and that the idea is a good one, and brings results, has been proved during the season now closing.

The program givers, Alice Christine Heaphy, pianist, and Waldo E. Whiting, bass-baritone, displayed a serious purpose in their work, not too frequently seen at recitals. The interpretations, moods, and the phantasmagoria of the works were vividly portrayed.

Mr. Whiting's voice has a range of more than two octaves, and the quality and beauty of it well warrants extended cultivation. Few singers, who are not devoting their entire time to the work, could so well present the program given, because the gamut is so extended, and the tessitura so changeable.

Miss Heaphy's works emphasized the moods and types of the songs:

Songs of the Sea—Vocal
Out on the Deep.....	Lohr
The Skipper.....	Jude
Davy Jones' Locker.....	Petrie
Folk Dances—Piano
Mazurka, Op. 33, No. 3.....	Chopin
Valse, Op. 64, No. 2.....	Chopin
La Gigue.....	MacDowell
Danse Negre, Op. 56, No. 5.....	Cyril Scott
In Folk Vein—Vocal
My Jacqueminot.....	Johnson
A Dream.....	J. C. Bartlett
Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes.....	Old English
Somewhere a Voice is Calling.....	Arthur Tate
Reminiscences—Piano
Lucia de Lammermoor.....	Franz Liszt
From the Operas—Vocal
O Star of Eve (Tannhaeuser).....	Wagner
Dost Thou Know that Sweet Land (Mignon).....	Thomas
Heart Bowed Down (Bohemian Girl).....	Balfe
Down Her Soft Cheek (Elisir d'Amour).....	Donizetti
La Donne E Mobile (Rigoletto).....	Verdi
Piano—
Harmonious Blacksmith.....	Handel
Military Type of Song—Vocal
Armourer's Song (Robin Hood).....	De Koven
The Bugler.....	Pinsuti
Wolf of the Bowman.....	Nelson
I Fear no Foe.....	Pinsuti

The annual concert by members of Alpha Chapter, Phi Mu Alpha, Sinfonia Fraternity of America, drew a good sized audience to Jordan Hall Wednesday evening, May 19. A quartet composed of Charles Bennett and Sullivan A. Sargent of the New England Conservatory faculty; F. Otis Drayton, editor of the Conservatory Magazine-Review, and De Ross McAlister, a student from Kansas, rendered J. L. Hatton's part song, "Absence"; Macy's "Simple Simon." and "Jenny Kiss Me," by Patty Stair. Other numbers were the allegro from Widor's "Sixth Symphony for the Organ," given by Walter Lawrence Cook; Brahms' "Scherzo in E Flat Minor," Guy Maier; two "Chorale-Preludes" of Karg-Elert, William R. Burbank; the Schubert-Liszt "Der Lindenbaum," and Baermann's "Study in F Sharp Minor," Lee Pattison; songs from Liszt, Sinding and Rubinstein, H. Read Wilkins. The concert ended with the Netherland folk song, "Prayer of Thanksgiving."

A concert by advanced students of the New England Conservatory of Music on Thursday evening, May 20, in Jordan hall began with the first movement of Marquarre's "Organ Symphony in E Flat Major," rendered by Charles H. Sharp, Jr., of Lockport, N. Y. Other numbers were the Chopin "Nocturne in G Major," G. Calvin Ringgenberg (Ames, Ia.); songs from Strauss, Brahms and Grieg, Arlen McKenney (Madison, Me.); Brahms' "Rhapsody in G Minor," Dorothea P. Young (Fargo, N. D.); the last movement of Servais' "Violoncello Concerto, Op. 5," Ora T. Lathard (Malden); Moszkowski's "Bacchante in G Minor," George Allyn Browne (Gloucester); songs from Searlatti, Lotti and Salvatore Rosa, H. Read Wilkins (Portsmouth, Va.); the Liszt "Polonaise in E Major," Harry E. Mueller (Louisville, Ky.).

A biographical sketch and appreciation of the late Charles Frohman, lost on the Lusitania, was read by Margaret Newton, of Little Rock, Ark., as an introduction to the weekly recital of the New England Conservatory's dramatic department in Recital Hall, Friday afternoon, May 21. Miss Newton praised the deceased manager as one who "perhaps more than any other man in the theatrical world took to it a business imagination, coupled with sterling personal qualities of fair dealing, enthusiastic effort and limitless energy." She traced his career from his birth at Sandusky, June 17, 1860, through his first great success, that attained with Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah," in 1887, down to his recent voyage, undertaken in connection with Barrie's "Rosy Rapture." Supplementary remarks were made regarding Mr. Frohman's position in the history of the American drama by Clayton D. Gilbert, head of the dramatic department.

—♦♦♦—

Stein—The Stein Conservatory will present the pupils of George W. Looch and Bess Marion Blake, assistants of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Buren Stein, in recital next Friday evening. Vocal and piano solos, readings and an operetta, "The Bargain Hunters," will be given.

—♦♦♦—

Gary—The Dolly Varden Quartet of Chicago, Mrs. William Lester, Mrs. Agnes Hansel-Harter, Mrs. Ethel Connelly Cutler and Miss Clare Pearl Livingston comprising the personnel, sung for the Orpheus Club at Gary on Monday night.

Music in America

FESTIVAL AT LANSING, MICHIGAN

The annual May Festival of Lansing, Mich., was held Friday afternoon and evening. If the disagreeable weather which prevailed during the big festival at Ann Arbor were present, it may also be said that the musical enthusiasm which ran rampant at Ann Arbor was also in evidence.

The fact that Mr. Killeen, the conductor of the Lansing festival, is an Ann Arbor product, and that several artists who were at the Ann Arbor festival also took part, made it evident that there were other factors aside from the weather and enthusiasm which savored of Ann Arbor.

At the afternoon concert Miss Leonora Allen, soprano, and Theodore Harrison, baritone, both of Ann Arbor, took prominent parts, while Alberto Selva, a Chicago tenor, and Miss Ella Minnert, contralto, of Minneapolis, were also heard. The piano accompaniments were executed by Mrs. E. S. Sherrill, formerly of Ann Arbor, but now of Detroit, in her usually attractive and exceedingly satisfying manner. In their miscellaneous numbers, all the artists were obliged to respond to encores, and at the close of the program the duets "La ci daren la mano," by Mozart, and "Now Thou Art Mine Own," by Hildach, by Miss Allen and Mr. Harrison, were the signal for riotous applause, which apparently only ended owing to the fact that a baseball game between the University of Michigan and the Michigan Agricultural College, worthy rivals, was being played on the college campus, to which many in the audience were anxious to go.

The big concert of the festival was given in the evening when Sullivan's "Golden Legend" was heard to splendid advantage. A well trained chorus of two hundred voices, made up of agriculture students and residents of Lansing, showed by their responsiveness and splendid mastery of the music the real power and musicianship of their conductor.

As at the Ann Arbor Festival, Theodore Harrison and Leonora Allen carried off large honors. First of all it may be said that Miss Allen has a wonderful personality which immediately wins her audience, and which is a tremendous asset. However, it must be said in justice to her that she is not obliged to use this asset for her singing is superb. She possesses keen musical appreciation and real understanding of what she is trying to do, which, by the way, so many artists lack. With her beautiful vocal gifts, a voice of absolute purity, well placed, and of an exceptionally pleasing quality, her success is always assured.

Mr. Theodore Harrison, who by the way, is a teacher of Miss Allen, again showed his wonderful musicianship. A voice, clear and forceful, always absolutely under control, and of an exceptionally beautiful quality, combined with a masterful and unassuming intelligence, which at once demands respect, and portrays the true artist.

Mr. Edward Walker did his roles well, and is entitled to a high place among festival tenors, while Miss Minnert duplicated the splendid impression which she made in the afternoon. Miss Loeffler, who played the accompaniments, deserves goodly praise for her excellent support. C. A. S.

KNOX CONSERVATORY

The last graduating organ recital of this season's series at Knox Conservatory was given May 25 by Howard Ansley Murphy, a pupil of John Winter Thompson. The following program was given entirely from memory:

Sonata in E Flat Minor.....	Rheinberger
Prelude.....
Intermezzo.....
Marcia Religiosa.....
Fugue.....
Intermezzo.....	John Winter Thompson
Minuet.....	Bacherini
Toccata in F Major.....	Bach
Russian Romance.....	Hofmann
Supplication.....	John Winter Thompson
Dedicated to Mr. Murphy
Will o' the Wisp.....	Gordon Balch Nevin
Torchlight March.....	Guilmant

Hemingway—The Gary Musical Club presented Clara Edmunds Hemingway in an original composition recital at the Y. M. C. A. in Gary on May 24.

Is your Name in the MUSIC NEWS

Classified Directory Columns?

Emphatically it should be, for this list constitutes a Musical Directory without parallel in America for Efficiency

And would be worth every cent of the $12 it costs even if it did not include subscription also.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Cincinnati Conservatory of Music was the scene of a well given program of readings and interpretations last Wednesday when Miss Helen May Curtis presented her pupil, Miss Emily Martin, in her graduation recital. Miss Martin is an animated, refined reader, with a keen sense of the artistic.

An audience of considerable proportions was attracted to the piano recital given by Bettie Besuner, pupil of Mrs. Theodor Bohlmann, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Thursday evening. Miss Besuner is now emerging out of the child pianist in which capacity she has for some time interested concertgoers, and is maturing to the utmost satisfaction. She gave a program of wide scope and stood the test remarkably well.

Karl Otto Staps of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music artist staff will give the dedicatory recital on the new organ just installed in the Church of the Good Shepherd, at Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday evening, June 3.

Mr. Frederic Shailer Evans presented in recital his accomplished pupil, Mr. Lloyd Miller, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Friday evening. Mr. Miller played the "A Flat Beethoven Sonata, Op. 26," in a convincing manner, thus setting a high standard at the outset, a standard which he maintained throughout the interesting program.

Marcian Thalberg of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music added brilliantly to his successes of the season with his concert given before the Ohio State Teachers' Association at Toledo last Friday evening. His playing was received in the nature of an ovation, his virtuosic powers arousing immediate recognition and enthusiasm.

The Saturday students' recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music yesterday represented the classes of Theodor Bohlmann, Bernard Sturm, Marcian Thalberg and Wilhelm Kraupner, the following taking part: Alberta Steele, Nettie Otting, Mildred Howard, Lelia Butler, Margaret Poindexter, Gertrude Ihenberg, Grace Miriam Witt, Elsie Ricks.

On Saturday afternoon pupils of Miss Frances Moses and Mr. Theodor Bohlmann were heard in recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, the participants being Carolyn Burkel, Alwyn Cahill, Ruth Duncan, Louise Beck, Elsie Iutzwig, Margaret Moran, Marian Kitchell, Mabelle Armstrong, Mrs. J. A. Snyder.

The following from the artist department of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music gave a concert at Lebanon University as a benefit for that institution, the evening of May 28: Isidore Cohen, Marne Damm, Emilie Rose Knox, Martha Craver, Elsie Ricks and Mary Ellis.

John Orr Stewart, basso, pupil of Mr. John A. Hoffmann, will give a song recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Wednesday evening, June 2, Oliver Kilb, violinist, pupil of Mr. Bernard Sturm, will assist on the program.

Mrs. Ida Ulmer Jenner will present her young pupils in recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Friday afternoon, June 4, at 4 o'clock.

Helen Portune, whose violin recital was one of the leading events in last week's graduation recitals at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, will be heard in a song recital at that institution Friday evening, June 4. Miss Portune is a pupil of Mr. John A. Hoffmann.

Master Herbert Silbersack, pupil of Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli, will give an individual violin recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Saturday evening, June 5. He is a young talent commanding interest, and will play a program of surprising scope for one of his years.

Mr. Hugo Sederberg's class will be heard in recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Thursday evening, June 5. He is a young talent commanding interest, and will play a program of surprising scope for one of his years.

Dr. Ferry Luleks' class did him honor in another song recital participated in by a dozen talented young singers last Saturday evening. The program presenting chiefly singers, who are new to the public, provided many surprises in point of voice material as well as in artistic attainment. The young singers revealed careful, detailed training, and interpreted their numbers with delightful assurance. Those taking part were Inez Isenberg, Miriam Mooney, Clara Wilhelmy, Coretta Ray Higdon, Katherine Wilhelm, Hazel Clinger, Helen Turner, Naomi Lowe, Helen Adler, Alvina Lobitz, Helen Grace, Henry Grad, Gertrude Fozard.

The calendar for the week is comprised of the following interesting events:

Monday, May 31, 8 p. m.—Recital by Miss Lena Palmer, pianiste, pupil of Mr. Marcian Thalberg, and Miss Mozelle Bennett, pupil of Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli.

Tuesday, June 1, 8 p. m.—Pianoforte recital by Miss Florence Barbour, pupil of Mr. Marcian Thalberg.

Wednesday, June 2, 8 p. m.—Song recital by Mr. John Orr Stewart, basso, pupil of Mr. John A. Hoffmann, assisted by Mr. Oliver Kilb, violinist, pupil of Mr. Bernard Sturm.

Thursday, June 3, 8 p. m.—Pianoforte recital by pupils of Mr. Hugo Sederberg, assisted by Miss Alice Morris, soprano, pupil of Miss Frances Moses.

Friday, June 4, 4 o'clock—Junior recital by pupils of Mrs. Ida Ulmer Jenner.

Friday, June 4, 8 p. m.—Song recital by Miss Helen Portune, soprano, pupil of Mr. John A. Hoffmann.

Saturday, June 5, 4 o'clock—Students' recital by pupils of Mr. Theodor Bohlmann, Marcian Thalberg and Bernard Sturm.

Saturday, June 5, 8 p. m.—Violin recital by Master Herbert Silbersack, pupil of Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli.

EMPORIA, KANSAS

Emporia has always been noted for doing things in a whole-souled manner, and this year she lifted herself up by her own artistic boot straps and showed us what community music really meant.

To begin with, the town built the gymnasium in which the College May Festival took place; then the town, through the music department of the College of Emporia, organized a beautiful chorus which sang Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" with the New York Symphony accompanying.

The first concert of the May Festival was given by Miss Catherine Rosser, soprano, recently returned from London. Miss Rosser was bred in Emporia, and is one of the sources of our town pride.

The whole town turned out to hear her song re-

ROBERT MAITLAND

BARITONE

Available Season 1915-16

Management Haensel and Jones Aeolian Hall, New York

ital, which was one of the most artistic concerts ever given here. Miss Rosser is a singer in the truest sense of the word, and if one word could sum up the delight of her concert, that word would be quality. Her voice is of birdlike purity, fresh and unworn, and she sang her way through a varied program of French, German, Italian and English songs and seemed in even better voice at the end of the program than at the beginning. The surprise of the evening came with the group of American Indian songs, which the singer gave, dressed in native Indian costume. Miss Rosser introduced the Cadman Indian songs in London, and has sung them there with increasing success.

The second concert of the series was given by the New York Symphony Orchestra, and the gymnasium was jammed to the doors to hear the orchestra and to see Walter Damrosch.

The climax of the festival came with the closing concert, the chorus of the College of Emporia, with Dean D. A. Hirschler conducting, accompanied by the New York Symphony Orchestra, gave to Emporians the best oratorio production that has ever been heard in this vicinity.

The soloists for "St. Paul" were Grace Kerns, soprano; Merle Tillotson Alcock, contralto; John Campbell, tenor; Millo Picco, basso.

Daniel A. Hirschler, dean of the Music Department, is a well schooled musician, a conductor of rare power and magnetism. There were few omissions, and the blending of the voices, the balance of parts, the attack and tone proved convincingly what can be done with inexperienced voices under proper guidance.

Perhaps the thing that made the town's people rejoice in its music was the way Walter Damrosch sat smiling and astonished. "Bravo" he said, while the men in the orchestra applauded with their fiddle bows. "I consider the chorus of the College of Emporia one of the really great choruses of our country," said Mr. Damrosch. "I am amazed to find such singing in a city of this size. Their fortissimos are inspiring, and the cleanliness of their attack the precision of their phrasing, and beauty of tone reflect the greatest credit on their conductor, Mr. Daniel A. Hirschler."

JO-SHIPLEY WATSON.

YEATMAN GRIFFITH'S SUCCESS

Mr. Yeatman Griffith has just closed his season in New York and it has been one of the busiest of his fine career as a teacher.

He has, however, such a great demand for summer lessons that he has concluded to teach in his New York studio throughout the summer. Many artists, teachers and advanced students are taking advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

YEATMAN GRIFFITH AND HIS PUPIL
HARDY WILLIAMSON

Florence Macbeth will remain with Mr. Griffith throughout July and August, coaching her repertoire for the coming season.

Several pupils have come from London to study with Mr. Griffith, among them being Pauline Dounad, prima donna of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and Mr. Hardy Williamson, the English tenor, who also has many American engagements to fulfill. Among the students who will continue their work during the summer term are:

Miss Helen Powell of London.
Miss Leicester Parker of London, Lilac Domino Company, late of George Edwards Company.

Mrs. Edith C. Carr and Miss Estelle Scribner of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Dollie Howett of Johannesburg, South Africa.
Miss Juanita Prewett, Miss Ruth Haywood and Miss Emily McBride of California.

Miss Helen Tyler, Miss Effie Blunt, Mrs. Claire Bell, Miss Frances Jordan and Signore Lombardi of New York.

Miss Roberta Beatty of Rochester, N. Y.
Miss Lydia Griffith of Dallas, Texas.

Miss Fenn Warde and Miss Mildred Francis of Minnesota.

Miss Sybil Adams and Miss Stitt of Cleveland, Ohio.

Christian—The closing sentence of a private letter from Frederick Search reads as follows: "I understand that Palmer Christian is having great success with his organ recitals here" (Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco).

Toledo—At Toledo, Ohio, last week a very successful song recital was given by Jane English, soprano of Chicago, assisted by Irma Krahbill, pianist, accompanist.

CLINTON, IOWA

More than 1,300 persons heard the two superfine concerts given Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Coliseum, the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, Emil Oberhoffer, director, presenting programs of great value. Owing to the heavy rainfall of the early morning and day preceding there was comparatively low attendance from out of the city, the hundreds of people in the vicinity usually attracted to such high grade attractions finding it impossible to get into Clinton. Although the attendance was light in the afternoon, about 300, Mr. Oberhoffer presented the carefully planned program in a faultless manner. He is one man who has made possible the phenomenal progress of the orchestra, whose dominating musicianship holds every man in the organization in accord with the central thought of the study of the present moment. Emil Oberhoffer has taken his orchestra into such strongholds as Chicago, New York, Detroit, and Cincinnati, and has established a worthy clientele.

His posture is absolutely quiet and dignified, but the slender baton, light as a reed, governs each delicate turn of the instruments, or held aloft, tense, brings climaxes into sudden life. The fingers play an equal part with the baton, and as one watches the outstretched hand and the curved direction, there comes the thought that this man, leading almost entirely without scores before him, knows his compositions absolutely, is perfectly familiar with his musicians and with infinitely careful touch brings their responsiveness as though he played his melodies upon the chords of humanity.

Clinton audiences heard four very good vocal soloists and in the line of orchestral players men who have achieved renown for their artistry. In the afternoon came Alma Beck, tiny, slender of body so that seemed as though she were nothing but a voice, sweet far-reaching yet powerful contralto. Richard Czerwony, first violin, is a soloist of great power of expression and sweetness of tone, responding to encore with a romance as delicious as any composition ever heard. Henry J. Williams playing the piano, had an undeniable opportunity in the Liszt Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2, closing the afternoon program, and was given warm recognition. All the soloists were given encores and Mr. Oberhoffer was impelled to return again and again to bow before the pleased audience.

Marie Sundelius, soprano, made an instant captive of every person present, her marvelous tones, faultless technique and charm of singing given spontaneous recognition. She was classed as wonderful, intensive, with a fresh young voice, charming in its simplicity.

In presenting Cornelius Van Vliet as a 'cello soloist, Mr. Oberhoffer has taken but one of his sterling musicians, yet the young man displayed a mastery in the production of tone qualities and a depth of interpretation that brought tears of delight to the ears of his listeners. His work was exquisitely beautiful.—From the Clinton Herald.

POCATELLO, IDAHO

We are indebted to the Pocatello Press for the following:

Thursday morning the pupils of the high school were privileged to enjoy a song recital given by Maude Taylor Burns, wife of H. G. Burns, principal of the Junior high school.

Mrs. Burns is an especially gifted lyric soprano, possessing a glorious voice of great purity of tone, power and range. She brings to her work not only magnetic personality, but also a breadth of education and intelligence which lends charm and authority to her interpretations.

Mrs. Burns is a graduate of the University of Chicago, where she spent much time in the study of the masters of literature and some time in the study of the interpretation of poetry under Professors Orchard and Clark.

For the past three years Mrs. Burns has been living with George W. Munro of Chicago, and to her she gives the credit for the discovery and development of a voice whose glory, power and range could have remained unknown but for his discernment.

Two piano duets were exceptionally well rendered by the Misses Agnes Knowles and Helen Barlow.

Mrs. Burns was ably supported by Mr. R. E. Island, head of the piano department of the Technical Institute, who furnished accompaniments that were sympathetic and artistic.

Butter—Mr. C. A. Hutter will present his soloists in a song program at Kimball Hall Monday evening, June 7.

WHEATON, ILL.

Prof. H. B. Bartholomew gave his annual musical recitals last Friday evening for the smaller pupils and Monday evening for the more advanced. Any person attending these recitals from year to year can observe the wonderful progress the pupils have made. It is astonishing to see the little tots, scarcely tall enough to reach the piano, play quite difficult music without a note in front of them. One of the most pleasing and difficult exercises was a sextet played on two pianos by six small girls, Dorothy Mallory, Kate Mackenzie, Irene Milliken, Catherine Acker, Melba Cromer and Harriett Northrop. To harmonize and synchronize two pianos and six people is a feat worthy of an older master.

Professor Bartholomew's vocal pupils from Batavia, Aurora and Chicago assisted in pleasing the musical ears of large and appreciative audiences, and the usual dull monotony of piano recitals was avoided by the pleasing alterations of vocal and instrumental selections well rendered. Professor Bartholomew is a natural teacher. Difficult manipulations on the piano finger-board is not the end and aim of his work, but the development of concentration seems to characterize the results attained. Memory and imagination as well as skill are trained, and the pupils have acquired much toward the accomplishment of success when they sit down independently of teacher or printed music and express themselves as well as the thoughts of an author.

Wheaton has many reasons for being proud of its various institutions and not among the least are the privileges afforded through the efforts of such untiring workers as Professor Bartholomew.

COLLINS BROCK IN RECITAL

Miss Stella Uthe, pianist, and Mr. Collins Brock, basso, members of the music faculty of Chicago Evangelistic Institute, Washington boulevard and North Wood street, will give a joint recital in the chapel of the Institute this Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

CHILDREN SING PEACE SONGS

The following is from the Chicago Tribune:

While the voices of 300 school children in Fullerton hall filled the Art institute yesterday morning with the music of peace songs, William L. Tomlins, founder of the Apollo Musical Club, on the platform, put his handkerchief to his eyes and cried. He said he cried for joy.

"That you little children should come down town in the rain of your own accord and here send these notes of song out into the world, putting your souls into their musical message, makes me cry with pure joy," he said.

"You know, children, that sounds never die; they go on and on, and even when we no longer hear them they still are traveling on the waves of the air around the world. And you know these songs of peace you have put your souls into are traveling on into eternity and I believe the angels are joining in with you.

"Peace on Earth!"—sing it out again. You remember the heralds of old—how they sounded their trumpet calls? You are little heralds of today; you are calling out to the world: 'Peace on Earth'—sing it."

The director of the Apollo Musical Club put his handkerchief in his pocket and turned to the piano. He played the accompaniment as the children sang the song of Angus S. Hibbard, which he had dedicated to the Apollo Musical Club, which originated the plan for the choral pilgrimage of peace now being conducted by the National Choral Peace Jubilee committee.

Besides the 300 school children there were more than 100 teachers. Mr. Tomlins directed the singing of ten peace hymns which have been published and are being distributed throughout the country by the committee, of which Mayor Thompson is honorary chairman.

Bendix—Max Bendix is conducting the orchestra at the Old Faithful Inn at San Francisco.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

Vilim American Violin School AT RESIDENCE
RIVERSIDE, ILL., or
RICHARD VILIM SUMMER TERM Academy of Our Lady
DIRECTOR 95th and THROOP STREETS.

Fisk Teachers' Agency 28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR
We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

Iva Bigelow Weaver SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals
MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - 'Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - Piano
MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - - - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George Children's Harmony
Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore, Md. Munsie Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
(25th) Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

GIOVANNI

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
 Commercial Trust Building
 Broadway and 41st St.
 New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

CELESTINE D.

COMPOSER

Personal
 Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
 110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
 NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
 "It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
 Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
 Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
 Professional Coaching
 VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
 Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
 248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST

Management
 Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

WILLIAM BROOKE REEVE

Organist and Master of the Choir St. Luke's,
 Evanston. Organ, Voice, Choir Training

Ada Grace JOHNSON

Recital Soprano Concert
 University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich.

THE BACH FESTIVAL, BETHLEHEM, PA.

By GEORGE B. NEVIN

Again Bethlehem has been the Mecca of musicians who have come from many states. The Bach Festivals (this being the tenth) conceived, organized and conducted by Dr. J. Fred Wolle, have taken such hold on serious musicians that the mere announcement of each one is hailed with delight—not often can one hear such a distinguished performance of this profound music.

A splendid audience attended the sessions in Packer Memorial Church, Lehigh University, when the St. John "Passion" was sung. Following an established custom, a number of beautiful chorals (those marvels of music strength) were played by the trombone choir, preceding each session and creating an atmosphere of quiet devotion. The rendition of this work again demonstrated Dr. Wolle's ability to build up great tonal effects, and as the work advanced more and more was the influence of the master's music felt.

Among the soloists Mr. Nicholas Douty filled the very trying role of the Evangelist in his usual satisfying manner. No one without an intimate grasp on the music can hope to convey its meaning to an audience, and to the credit of Mr. Lewis Kreidler it can be said that he sang with tremendous vigor and with remarkable clarity the music allotted to him in his portrayal of the character of Jesus. He sang impressively and with much vocal charm. His voice of large range, has unusual brilliancy and beauty of tone coloring.

It is always pleasant to comment on the excellent work of the official organist of the Bach Festivals, Mr. F. Edgar Shields, who, notwithstanding the difficulties under which he labors, due to the position of the organ, always furnishes full support to the chorus and thereby displays his true musicianship.

In the second Brandenburg "Concerto" the Philadelphia orchestra displayed a fine tone and then followed, perhaps, the real vocal gem of the festival—nothing was more beautiful nor effective than the singing of the choral, "World, Farewell, Thy Joys are Dreary."

This was followed by "Strike, Oh Strike, Long Looked for Hour," sung by Mrs. Florence Mulford Hunt, with marked feeling and sincerity, and much dramatic thought.

On Saturday many distinguished people were among the large audience which attended both sessions when the "Mass in B Minor" was sung. The magnificent proportions of this work overpower one with their wonderful depth of meaning; the soul seems to feel at once the religious atmosphere created by the opening measures and when the Kyrie Eleison bursts forth one thrills with the presence of the Almighty, the great God of the universe. The intensity of this work increases as page after page is sung, and one climax succeeds another until a perfect halo of musical glory shines on a grand work, grandly performed.

The orchestral sumptuousness of the score has so frequently been commented on that the last word has, no doubt, been said. In this work the orchestra, of which Philade phia may well be proud, responded to the magnetic conductor, and in the crescendos and diminuendos, precision of attack and all that goes to build up what the words support means, fully proved its genuine artistic strength and ability. It is hardly possible to overemphasize the success of chorus and orchestra in this work, for we must remember that the music of Johann Sebastian Bach, in the fullest sense unique, never, in this world, has a deeper chord been sounded.

LOUIS KREIDLER

Very effective solo work was that of Mrs. Gertrude May Stein Bailey, contralto, in the devotional "Agnus Dei" and the powerful reading given the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," and the "Et in Spiritum Sanctum," by Mr. Henri Scott of the Metropolitan Opera House, whose big, sonorous voice is used with consummate artistry.

The festival represents the completed task, and few, no doubt, can imagine the many features which must be conducted and developed before the public performance may be given. It seems to the writer that Dr. Wolle could with greatest consistency say: "Achieved is the glorious work," a gigantic one, so successful in its many phases.

□ □ □

The Bach Festival at Bethlehem, Pa.

COMMENT BY EARLE CEASERO

To the tunes of four German "Chorales," played by the famous trombone choir of Bethlehem, the Bach choir opened its tenth annual festival to an audience of several thousand music lovers and eminent musicians from all over the world.

Auerbach once said, "Music washes away from the soul the dust of every-day life," and I am constrained to say that if Auerbach could have heard the opening chorus of the festival, "Lord, Our Redeemer" passion according to St. John, he would have added, "and fills it (the soul) with the Spirit of the living God," for the first great note sounded in that opening chorus was like the throwing wide of the gates to a new and garish world of music, in which the writer seemed to catch a glimpse of realms beyond the veil.

That great chorus, by far the grandest of the Bach creations, stamped the festival with success from the very beginning, and proved but a forecast of the wonderful things to come.

Contrapuntal in form and exalted in style, the chorus was given a magnificent reading by the choir, and at once gave evidence of the splendid preparation they had had, under the leadership of the greatest living exponent of Bach, Dr. J. Fred Wolle.

Each succeeding chorus of the Passion emphasized more and more the remarkable genius of the conductor, and the most painstaking loyalty on the part of the members of the choir.

The tonal mass was colossal. Careful attention to nuance ever in evidence, supported most ably and beautifully by the orchestra and organ.

The soloists of the first day acquitted themselves creditably, especially the baritone, Mr. Louis Kreidler, who as Jesus in the Passion music, gave a truly sympathetic reading of the part, bringing to his work a splendid vocal equipment. Mr. Douty, the tenor, an expert in Bach music, gave his usual comprehensive reading of the part of the Evangelist. The other soloists were Mme. Marie Zimmerman and Mme. Hunt. There were several surprises in the afternoon program, an eloquent reading of the second movement of the "Second Brandenburg Concerto" by the orchestra, Dr. Wolle conducting; the humming by the choir of the chorale, "World Farewell," carrying with it the suggestion of a celestial choir breathing a tender blessing on a weary world; and the solo, "Strike, Oh Strike Long Looked For Hour," rendered by the contralto, Mme. Hunt, who displayed a voice of beautiful texture, sombre in color, and an adequate technic, and gave a fine interpretation of the number to the accompaniment of strings and glockenspiel.

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THUEL

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

TENOR

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich
Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON
437 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

GER
MA
INE

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

I
S
A
B
E
L

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CONTRALTO

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET Soprano
WILLIAM Composer-Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

ELSA STAUD DENTON

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

LEIST-BEEBE

ORATORIO SONG RECITAL PUPILS
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4343 Indiana Avenue

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno

CONCERTS AND RECITALS Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer Christian

Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Conservatory School of Music Auditorium Building

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calomet Avenue Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR RECITAL
1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Whillman Kelley and Alexander Helmreich, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

RECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

DRAMATIC SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

LOUISE LE BARON IN MAY FESTIVAL AT LINCOLN, NEB.

The May music festival, which is now a regular feature of the life of the city, thanks to the leadership of the state university, opened auspiciously with a performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana" at the auditorium last night. An audience not much below the seating capacity of the hall heard a production of remarkable beauty and finish. It was a home affair throughout, a fact that added not a little to the triumph of the university department under which it was given. The solo parts were taken as follows:

Santuzza, Miss Louise Le Baron; Lola, Miss Lulu Marshall; Turiddu, Walter Wheatley; Alfio, Charles L. Bagley; Lucia, Mrs. R. O. Hummel.

The opera was produced without costumes, the chorus of about 150 voices banked high at the rear of the stage and the orchestra and the principals disposed at the front in orthodox concert form. The work flowed smoothly to its too early close. The audience appeared cold at the beginning, largely because it did not wish to interrupt the continuity of the story with applause. As the opera progressed, Miss Le Baron's glorious voice and Mr. Wheatley's work flowed smoothly to its too early close. The audience did its part in making the performance a perfect whole. These two artists complement each other perfectly. Miss Le Baron has a wealth of tone and an abundance of dramatic power, while Mr. Wheatley excels in the lyric tenderness that made his closing song so effective. The singing of Miss Marshall, Mrs. Hummel and Mr. Bagley helped to round out a beautiful production. "Cavalleria" is a short opera. It was finished before 10 o'clock. That gave time for large numbers of the auditors to linger to compliment all who had taken part, with extra praise for Mrs. Raymond, the director, who always invests so much painstaking work in preparation to bring out gratifying results.—State Journal. (Advertisement.)

SIBYL SAMMIS-MAC DERMID WITH THE CHAMINADE CLUB AT ST. LOUIS

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat comments as follows upon the appearance of Sibyl Sammis-MacDermid with the Chaminade Club:

In Madame Sibyl Sammis-MacDermid, dramatic soprano, and Enrico Tramonti, harpist, the Chaminade had the assistance of two of the best available soloists now before the concertgoing public.

Madame MacDermid's voice is a true soprano, clear, powerful, splendidly controlled and equally effective in aria and in song. Her manner of presenting the exacting "Quando Me'n vo Soletta," (La Boheme), recalled the best efforts of the Metropolitan stars which it has been our privilege to hear. In contrast to this, the singer's giving of the Richard Strauss "In Goldenér Fuelle" more than indicated her possession of the art of German song. In several groups of smaller numbers, in which the singer assisted the club, notably the impressionistic "Marguerite at the Spinning Wheel," Madame MacDermid's fine talent was pleasantly manifested.

Other recent engagements for Madame MacDermid are Bowling Green, O., Toledo, O., and Berea, O., the latter being an "Elijah" performance. (Advertisement.)

GRACE BRUNE MARCUSSE

The following comment is taken from the Twin Falls Press:

Mme. Marcusse presented a pleasing appearance, which immediately won the appreciative audience and after each group of songs she was repeatedly encored. She has a high lyric soprano voice with remarkable strength and clearness, and sings with an ease and grace which delighted her hearers. "I've Been Roaming," "Down in the Forest," and "Apple Blossoms" showed to a fine advantage the finer qualities of her singing, the light staccato notes and trills contrasted with the heavy crescendos, while in "The Asra," the aria from "Madame Butterfly," and "The Awakening," she proved herself equally capable in the heavy songs and her wonderfully clear high notes charmed her listeners.

Sigma Chapter—The Sigma Chapter of the Mu Phi Epsilon initiated Miss Mary Ann Kaufman into the society at the Auditorium Hotel in Chicago on May 26.

PADEREWSKI SPEAKS IN CHICAGO

The following is taken from the Chicago Tribune of last Monday:

Ignace Paderewski has made a piano laugh and sing, has wrung from it agony and the sorrow of the world, and with him in his moods he has carried his thousands and his tens of thousands. But yesterday, when he uncovered his great mane in Humboldt Park and in the shadow of Kosciuszko's statue, before 40,000 Polish Americans, pleaded on the wonderful instrument of his voice, and demanded help for starving Poland, broken under heel and wheel of war, he probably registered his greatest artistic triumph in the mastery of sound.

"You knew Poland when she was sad and glad; now she is all sad—that part of her which yet lives," he cried in Polish.

He ignored the hyphen of his Polish-American audience, he was less scrupulous than Governor Dunne, that in his passionate speaking his foot now and then brushed the bunting of the American flag; he spoke to his hearers as Pole to Pole, utterly forgetting their expatriation and all allegiance to a new country. He spoke to them as "the fourth partition of Poland." On a table, which had been placed in front of the park boathouse, he stood, tall, lean hiped, broad shouldered, leonine, an eye filling figure, handling himself with an alert, military grace that was remarkable in a man of his size. Paderewski was a man first and then an artist.

His proportions are those of a man, and his fist is broad, big and capable. And the far, ragged edge of the human surf at his feet heard the plea for Poland as it was hurled across the crowd by that powerful voice that was harsh as steel when he spoke of Poland's wrongs and as musical as a violin when he recounted his people's sufferings. Many in the crowd wept.

"I am greeting all of you, brothers and sisters, from the bottom of my heart," Paderewski began with a deep bow. "I greet you with the sufferings of Poland and with our hope for a brighter future. 'I see your faces seamed with the struggle of life. Your clothes are plain. But when any rich man asks you who you are you give them answer, 'We are Poles, the heirs of Piast, the sons of Poland.'"

"There is not another nation so sympathetic with the wrongs of others. We always hurry to aid those in trouble. Nor has any nation given such an offering in blood in the world's history.

"All we ought to do now is to try and save all we can of the Polish nation. Otherwise it is possible that the Polish race may be so utterly crushed that it will pass from the earth.

"Those people are now crying to you: 'Help, help! from their breasts of pain. You already have helped much, and you have my thanks. Everything you give helps your fatherland. I propose that we have a 'grunewald day' all over this country and collect money for the victims of the war in Poland.

"Whatever you give will nourish your brothers for a few weeks, and then the heads of all great men will bow to you. Good-by to you, my dear brothers and sisters. I bow to you, not as a leader, but as one true son of Poland to others."

GAYLORD YOST PUPIL WINS SUCCESS WITH INDIANAPOLIS ORCHESTRA

Mr. Alfred Troemel, who is an artist pupil of Gaylord Yost, the composer-violinist of Indianapolis, made a decided success a soloist with the Indianapolis Orchestra at Nashville, May 4. The Nashville Tennessean has the following to say:

Alfred Troemel, violinist, shared honors of the evening with the orchestra and Miss Clark. Mr. Troemel played first the "Introduction and Rond Capriccioso," by Saint-Saens, with the firmness of real artist and the audience appreciated him immediately. His first encore was "Liebesfreud," by Kreisler, a most difficult number bristling with difficult double stops. A veritable storm of applause followed, and he was forced by popular demonstration to again play. This time it was the ever-popular "Humoresque," by Dvorak, and it was so pleasing to the audience that an involuntary ripple of applause went around as he started playing.

Mr. Troemel recently appeared in a concert in Indianapolis and the Indianapolis Star comments as follows:

Mr. Troemel has a tone of ravishing quality and stability of style which bespeaks the true artist. (Advertisement.)

Saint-Saens in San Francisco

Redfern Mason in the San Francisco Examiner:

Camille Saint-Saens does not seem to have aged an hour since I saw him in London ten years ago. This splendid old man of music, one of the most distinguished figures of our generation, is active beneath the burden of four score. His glance is keen, his mind alert, his interest in all kinds and conditions of men and things as lively as that of most men of brains and character only half his age.

Musician, man of letters, Orientalist, indefatigable world-wanderer, his visit to San Francisco seems no more to him than a pleasant variation in habits of globe-trotting which may land him a few months hence in Las Palmas or Seville, a little later in Cairo, with the possibility of wintering among the islands of the Aegean. He has been in America before, but never so far west as San Francisco.

"Do you recognize, master," I asked him, as we sat together in his apartment at the Palace, "that this is the gate of the Orient?"

"True," he answered, "but there is still a long journey to be made when you get through the gate."

And then I told him how, if one were a persevering frequenter of cafes and a noctambulist of Chinatown he might hear the music of China, songs of the Kanakas, snatches of melodies played on the samisen, Arab flutings and xylophonic rhythms weird as those of his own "Danse Macabre." Especially was he interested when I told him how Paderewski wandered off into Chinatown and fell so completely under the spell of gong and pipe and plectral shimmerings unclassified in the musical terminology of the West that he could hardly be dragged away. If Mr. Saint-Saens' friends take him to a genuine Chinese concert I think they will pleasure him vastly.

In touching on the exotic element in our San Francisco I was curious to learn whether he thought the Orient might affect our American mode of musical thought. It has already done so in individual instances as, for example, in the "Aladdin" Suite of Edgar Stillman Kelley, which was directly inspired by the melodies of Chinatown. For this is a subject in which his own use of tonalities outside the bounds of our Occidental major and minor enables him to speak with the authority of a successful innovator.

"I have listened to Chinese music in Cochinchina," he said, "but the exotic idiom of which I have made most use is that of the Arabs. As for American music, I should be chary of expressing an opinion, for I am entirely unfamiliar with it."

"And its future?" I asked.

"I am no prophet."

To that denial I take exception, for the creative musician who sees as clearly into the present as does Mr. Saint-Saens is doing what the poet Heine did; he is looking into "the pots in which God brews the future." I recalled his memory to an article which he wrote twenty years ago, in which he declared that tonality is in trouble. He then foresaw the functioning in the music of our Caucasian civilization of scales borrowed from the Orient. Would not that influence make itself felt in our American music also? The venerable maestro saw my point and nodded assent; but he must see the documents before admitting that the Oriental idiom has actually exercised any effect.

But Greece is on the fringe of the Orient and the Gregorian plachant, in its Jubilas and Alleluias, shows many a trace of Eastern origin.

"I myself was a pioneer in the use of the Hellenic idiom," he said, and, going to the piano, he played a few bars of his "Noces de Prometheus," written as long ago as 1867, melody as Grecian as some cherished fragment of Sappho. "My 'Phryne,' too, is Greek and so is 'Antigone.'"

The mention of these works brought to my mind the master's "Dejanira" was performed out of doors in the arena at Beziers, and I told him of the earliest Greek Theater at Berkeley, of the Forest Theater at Carmel and many another al fresco auditorium sides. Mr. Saint-Saens was manifestly interested, and, in imagination, I already saw him directing a performance of "Dejanira" in the classic shades of Berkeley, when he dashed my hopes with the terrible question:

"Have you an opera company here?"

Then, for the first time, I felt a little ashamed of musical conditions in California. I could only say that we have the voices; that there are good artists to be found, capable instrumentalists in plenty, everything is fine save the creative enthusiasm which transforms the dream of art into a living reality. I thought of the Court of Abundance at the Exposition, and wondered whether any man of ideals could be found to make the operatic "Dejanira" a golden accomplishment of this, our Exposition year.

Perhaps this "old man eloquent" of music will pour Promethean fire into the dry bones of our self-satisfied uncreativity. Perhaps the French colony will take the matter up and, if "Dejanira" is beyond us, this singer of "The Youth of Hercules" will help us to produce one of the operas of Jean Philippe Rameau or the "Orfeo" of Gluck.

For here is a man who stands for the noblest artistic ideals of our generation, a leader in the domain of aesthetics, the composer of masterpieces which even his country's enemies revere. It would be a sin to have him in our midst and not prove by some dignified constructive achievement that we have been fired by the flame of his genius.

One opinion in particular expressed by Mr. Saint-Saens filled me with joy. I knew the classic leanings of the man, leanings, however, which have not stood in the way of his assimilation of musical idioms not employed by the great masters of yesterday, and I wondered whether he shared his old-time notion that a classic composer must write in a sort of universal musical language, or whether such universality need not preclude the use of national or racial modes of expression.

"When Bach and Beethoven wrote," said he, "they were still Germans, in spite of their universality. Today Richard Strauss writes unmistakably as a German. I, myself, notwithstanding my devotion to the great Teutonic masters and the great composers indeed of every race, compose as a Frenchman. That does not imply that I am a modernist, far from it. It simply means that in music, as in verbal speech, I use my mother tongue."

I carried away from my chat with the French master the feeling of contact with one of the choice spirits of our generation. The distinction which I had found in his music and in his flexible and nervous prose was not a garb put on for the occasion; it was an emanation of his inmost self.

MURPHREESBORO, TENN.

An advanced student of Arthur P. Thomas, director of music in Tennessee College, Murfreesboro, Tenn., gave a piano recital recently. Following is the program and press notice:

The piano recital given by Miss Violet Gross, an advanced student of Professor Arthur P. Thomas, delighted a large audience in the chapel of Tennessee College last Monday evening. Following is the program:

Concerto, A Major (first movement).....Mozart
Orchestra part on second piano
Music Box, Op. 32.....Liadov
To Spring, Op. 43, No. 6.....Grieg
If I Were a Bird, Op. 2, No. 6.....Henselt
Sonata, C Major.....Mozart
Allegro, Andante,
Rondo Allegretto

Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 2.....Chopin
Tarantelle, A Flat Major, Op. 43.....Chopin
Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 4.....Liszt

The work done by Miss Gross displayed musical understanding and a well developed technic. The "Concerto" was read with clearness and good appreciation. The smaller numbers were all played well. Especially good were the Chopin "Tarantelle" and the "Hungarian Rhapsodie, No. 4," by Liszt. Both of these numbers were rendered with style and authority.

Miss Gross has splendid natural talent and ability, besides which she has been taught along lines which make her playing clean, clear and musical. The distinctive touches of style and finish shown in each number prove that she has been under excellent artistic training.—Home Journal. (Advertisement.)

CIVIC MUSIC

To the Editor: The success from all viewpoints of the first festival of the allied choruses of the Civic Music Association is a most gratifying commentary upon the value of the association's work, particularly in those centers where the foreign population predominates. The bringing together of these important elements of our population, under the softening influences of the divine art of song, will make of these singers better citizens, better neighbors, better Christians.

Was it not inspiring to see, in parallel ranks, gray haired men and women, rosy-cheeked boys and girls. And the children's chorus, how thrilling the quality of their tone! One's eyes went moist and stayed so.

Mr. Collins showed rare qualities as a conductor and not less as an arranger, and much of the success of the festival is to be credited to his enthusiasm for the cause.

Dr. Gunn's new "American" orchestra played the "Meistersinger" prelude like veterans.

W. E. S.

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE
CECIL FANNING
IS SINGING
MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS
Two New Songs by
ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK
Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers
Ask to see them
GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.
67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SOLOS and QUARTETS
FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By
HELENA BINGHAM
REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)
AT ALL MUSIC STORES

 Mabel-Helen
ROGERS
HARPISTE
Concerts - Recitals - Musicales
Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV.

THE BACH FESTIVAL

(Continued from page 27)

Part two of the Passion contains considerable solo work, which was done acceptably and brought forth a local baritone in the part of Pilate, Mr. Howard J. Wiegner. Mr. Wiegner gave his part an intelligent reading, and although an amateur, crowned himself with glory by his sympathetic work, displaying by far the best voice among the local soloists who interpreted the minor solos.

The great chorus, "Crucify," presented a wonderful example of perfect shading in the most thrilling crescendo of the day.

The Passion closed with the singing by the choir and audience of the chorale, "Lord Jesus Thy Dear Angel Send," and marked the closing of the first day of the greatest choral festival ever held in America.

The second and last day of the festival was reserved for the presentation of the famous "Mass in B Minor."

The afternoon session opened with the playing of a chorale by the trombone choir, in the vestry room, behind the great organ, and as the last strains of the chorale died away, the choir, orchestra and organ burst into one great and glorious fortissimo, with the opening "Kyrie Eleison." It was an inspiring moment, and the beauty of the thing caused many to gasp in astonishment. The entire "Kyrie" was rendered with unflinching precision and magnificent tonal color, and its interpretation left nothing to be desired.

The "Crucifixus" was most tender and subdued, presenting a delightful variety of lustres, and finishing in the final words "sepultus est," with the most beautiful diminuendo, dying away in the softest of prolonged pianissimos. Henri Scott, the bass soloist for the "Mass" did his best work of the day in "Et in spiritum sanctum," his "Quoniam" of the afternoon having been marred by the much too heavy accompaniment of the orchestra.

The greatest chorus of the day and probably of the festival, from the standpoint of tonal mass and dramatic effect, at any rate, was the "Confiteor unum baptisma," in which Dr. Wolle carried his choir to heights sublime, and with such dynamic force that there was a general gasping for breath at its close.

Mr. Douty gave a good reading of the "Benedictus." Gertrude May Stein Bailey, the contralto, gave a beautiful piece of solo work in the reading of the aria, "Agnus Dei." Her voice, brilliant and clear, of a golden hue, rose majestically to each succeeding climax, dying away into the softest pianissimos from time to time.

The closing chorus, "Dona nobis pacem," was beautifully done, and with its last notes closed the tenth and greatest festival of the Bach choir.

All honor to Dr. Wolle and his faithful singers and more power to them. Bethlehem is proud of them, America is proud of them, the world should be proud of them, for their splendid achievement in the cause of music—God's greatest gift to mankind.

THEODORA STURKOW-RYDER

Some comment on the Centralia convention:

Mme. Sturkow-Ryder opened the program with the Mendelssohn "Fantasie, F Sharp Major," and from that moment she had her audience spellbound. To the Peldini Etude she gave that xylophone clarity and characteristic charm which is peculiar to that composition. The Rhone-Baton group proved to be a most effective piece of piano music, and it seemed as if composer, piano and pianist were attuned to the rhythmic and tonal mood, and the audience was lost in the reverie.—Centralia (Ill.) Daily Sentinel, May 6.

One of the most enjoyable parts of the whole program arranged for the convention was the recital given by Mme. Sturkow-Ryder, pianist. She is an accomplished musician, and her splendid interpretation and perfect technique, together with the natural charm of her personality, won the applause of a very appreciative audience, while she was encored again and again. Altogether the Illinois Music Convention had a rare treat, and Mme. Sturkow-Ryder has won herself a place in their estimation which will not soon be forgotten.—Centralia (Ill.) Daily Review, May 6. (Advertisement.)

FESTIVAL AT KALAMAZOO

For the following report Music News is indebted to the Kalamazoo Gazette, for which it was written by Glenn A. Aumond:

The first annual music festival of Western Normal was ushered in last evening by a rousing rendition of "America"—sung with vigor by the artists and the entire audience.

Mr. Maybee elected to open his festival season with Frederick Cowen's well-known cantata, "The Rose Maiden," a work as full of delicious melody as its title is attractive. Mrs. Ethelyn Walker-Showers, contralto, a guest artiste, sang the all too brief role of the Gardener's Daughter in a rich, colorful voice, splendid in its dramatic possibilities. With ease she was able to fill the large auditorium, giving evidences of theatrical impulses that lent to her work strength and contrast. Mrs. Bertha Shean-Davis sang the music allotted to the soprano in a voice beautiful in its tender appeal. Mrs. Davis is well equipped for this role, both in point of mature musicianship and in the possession of an extremely gracious personality. In her solo, "Rose Blossom," and in the duet, "The Forester," with Mr. Perry, Mrs. Davis was artistic, sympathetic and altogether charming.

Mr. T. Stanley Perry, tenor, appeared as the Forester, and displayed his attractive voice in a part replete with vocal beauty. When not compelled to sacrifice quality for power, Mr. Perry was altogether commendable. The aria, "The Sleep of Even," and his number with Mrs. Davis, were in his best style.

Clarence Hoekstra, baritone, was Mr. Maybee's choice for the role of "Spring." Mr. Hoekstra is one of the most promising young singers to appear in a long time before the people of Kalamazoo. He represents an equal mixing of the qualities requisite for the much abused term, temperament. Blessed with a voice of unusual quality, depth of feeling, intelligence, character and youth, here is something we may expect results from. Mr. Hoekstra found his opportunity in the first aria, "Where Gloomy Pine Trees Rustle." Well suited to the baritone's abilities, this number was given with telling effect. Several times the orchestral outburst threatened to overwhelm this young artist, and while they marred his work more than I choose to comment upon, he took Spartan courage and emerged.

Chorus Is Competent

Mr. Maybee has assembled a chorus of goodly proportions and considerable vocal prowess. The contraltos lead in point of beauty of quality. The chorus maintains a good balance of parts, is apt in its unity of attack, and able in the building of massive effects. "The Wedding Morning" was given with splendid effect, in so far as musical values were concerned. All in all, Mr. Maybee's chorus is extremely competent and effective, and a distinct credit to its conductor.

The Kalamazoo Symphony orchestra played with varied degrees of success under Mr. Maybee's baton. Mr. H. Glenn Henderson, who is an accomplished accompanist, always anticipates the exact needs of the singer. A fine audience was hearty in its approval.

The closing day of the first annual music festival at Western Normal brought forth the production of the "Walrus and the Carpenter," by Fletcher, a children's cantata, with the young people's chorus, directed by Miss Beulah Hootman of the training school department. This was followed by a recital given by the trio of artists—Claussen, Althouse and Middleton.

Opening the program of the afternoon, the Kalamazoo Symphony orchestra, under the direction of C. Z. Bronson, played the "Raymond Overture," by Thomas. The orchestra seemed disposed to give of its best, and as a result offered a musicianly and an interesting reading of this popular work. Their playing aroused quite genuine enthusiasm. Mr. Bronson responded with a well-liked encore number.

Miss Hootman gracefully and confidently took the director's stand and led the children through a lyric wonderland, as it were. Mr. Fletcher's music is very tuneful and rhythmic, and Miss Hootman found many passages to illuminate with tonal light and shade. The part singing of the children was excellent and the attack energetic. The gavotte-like movement sung to the words "Oh, Oysters, Come and Walk With Us," was given with a correct musical lilt. Miss Harriette Stears gave good support at the piano, and the orchestra took up these dainty accompaniments with deft attention and good results.

Miss Hootman's work was well accomplished and her children, in their interpretation of this attractive musical trifle were deserving of the applause bestowed upon them.

For the second part of the program Mr. Maybee

ALL FOR 10 CENTS

4 New PIANO SOLOS

1. Fussin' Around
Slow Drag or Fox Trot
2. DOLORES
March by NEIL MORET
3. Young April
Novelette by GEORGE L. COBB
4. Parade of the Puppets
Marche Comique

MANDOLIN ORCHESTRA

5. DREAM FACES Reverie Arr. HILDRETH
6. Parade of the Puppets Marche Comique Arr. JACOBS

Each Number for

1st Mandolin or 1st Violin	Mando-Cello or Violoncello
2nd Mandolin or 2nd Violin	Guitar Accompaniment or
3rd Mandolin or 3rd Violin	Piano Accompaniment
Tenor, Mandolin or Viola

BANJO SOLO

7. Parade of the Puppets
Marche Comique. Arr. JACOBS

GUITAR SOLO

8. Posies
Waltz by A. J. WEIDT

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS FOR PIANO, MANDOLIN, BANJO, GUITAR, Etc.

And much good reading on musical Matter in general.

TO OBTAIN the above mentioned eight (8) pieces of music, send 10 CENTS in stamps and REQUEST the May issue of

THE CADENZA

SUBSCRIPTION, Per Year

United States	$1.00
Canada, $1.25	Foreign, $1.50

PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

Address

The CADENZA

8 Bowditch Street BOSTON, MASS. U.S.A.

provided three artists of distinction, any one of whom could easily dominate a big musical situation. Madame Julia Claussen, the eminent Swedish contralto, brings to the concert platform much of the regal manner of the grand opera stage, nor is it unbecoming.

h h h

Paul Althouse

Mr. Paul Althouse, the tenor from the Metropolitan Opera, was awaited with genuine interest. Mr. Althouse was given but one allotment on the program—the ever graceful aria, "Celeste Aida" from "Aida." The voice is a brilliant tenor with decided dramatic tendencies, yet capable of fine modulation in passages calling for excess of feeling. Mr. Althouse sang the familiar aria charmingly and was compelled to respond to many encores. It seemed the audience could scarcely hear enough of him. In two delightful songs, sung in English, Mr. Althouse gave evidence of exquisite musical taste. In all that he does there is a style that bespeaks artistic distinction.

Genial Arthur Middleton, one of the best known and best beloved baritone singers in this country, found a hearty welcome from an audience that knows him well. The aria, "Le Tambur Major," by Thomas, introduced this artist with a sonorous voice, before being permitted to retire. Mr. Middleton was compelled to give some two or three extra numbers.

Mr. Middleton as well as Mme. Claussen and Mr. Althouse must have felt that the enthusiasm of these music loving Normalites was equal to anything at the Metropolitan.

A word of high appreciation is due to Mr. Glenn Henderson, who played the difficult accompaniments extremely well.

h h h

"Arminius" Very Tuneful

The evening program embraced Max Bruch's dramatic oratorio, "Arminius" with Madame Claussen, Paul Althouse, Arthur Middleton and Normal School chorus with Harper C. Maybee conducting. The Kalamazoo Symphony orchestra, under C. Z. Bronson, played the "Fest Overture," by Lentner, as a prelude to the chief work of the evening.

In Bruch's oratorio of "Arminius" one finds music that is at once noble, rugged, sombre and impulsive. The work calls for much vocal declamation inasmuch as it is painted with a bold stroke. Madame Claussen in the role of the priestess found ample scope for her ability as a dramatic singer. From the recitative in the sacred forests—a number filled with spiritual import—to the tragic battle song, Madame Claussen was artistic and inspiring. Mr. Middleton was cast for Arminius and gave a lengthy part with vigor and authority. His expressive voice was capable of interpreting the sonorous music of the art in all its moves. This performance was marked by nobility and breadth.

Mr. Althouse was very successful in the tenor role of Sigmund, rendering the beautiful music of the part with the same brilliancy and finish that characterized his work at the matinee. Especially fine was his singing of the recitative, "O, Days of Grief and Desolation." It rang true with the intense denotement of tragedy. His duets with Mr. Middleton were finely sung.

h h h

Splendid Choral Body

Mr. Maybee obtained splendid results from his choral body and succeeded in getting immediate response to his slightest demands. It was most excellent singing—full of understanding, character and precision. "Arminius" is replete with unusual melodies' striking harmonies and impulses and towering images. Mr. Maybee's singers met the demand for broad and sustained localizing with every degree of satisfaction, while the choice of soloists could not have been better.

The Kalamazoo Symphony orchestra played the difficult score with painstaking care and commendable effect. Mr. Henderson again rendered excellent service at the piano. A large and enthusiastic audience set the sea of its approval on a fine series of concerts—events notable in the quality of their achievement.

— # # # —

A Correction—Music News spelled the name of Mrs. Bollman incorrectly in the review of her concert in the issue of last week. It should be, as everyone knows, Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman. Mrs. Bollman teaches both at the Fine Arts Building in Chicago and at Rockford, Ill.

RODERICK WHITE PLAYS AT SANTA BARBARA

Admiration, appreciation, enthusiasm, joy and musical refinement! Those were some of the elements which combined to make the appearance of Roderick White at the Potter theater a notable occasion. The relation between artist and audience was unusually close, for Santa Barbara is pleased to claim Mr. White for its own at least a part of each year. A large number of those present were personal friends and admirers as well as lovers of good music, and it has been a great pleasure to them to witness the rapid rise of this young musician as he has each season brought to them a higher development of his art.

The program contained four well-arranged and varied groups of compositions with nothing of the time-worn element in them. The first number was the "Concerto in D Minor," by Max Bruch, in which Mr. White showed not only a technical mastery of his instrument, but a depth of musical feeling and temperamental fire which at times electrified his audience. Especially was this true in "La Chasse," by Carter-Kreisler, and "Variations," by Tartini-Kreisler, which, together with "Scherzo," by Dittersdorf-Kreisler, and "Waves at Play," by Grasse, constituted the second group.

The third group contained "Indian Lament," by Dvorak-Kreisler; "Slavonic Dance," by Dvorak-Kreisler, and "Habenera," by Sarasate. It was in these numbers that the young artist's interpretative powers and imaginative spirit were shown to greatest advantage.

The final number, "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso," by Saint-Saens, was given in honor of the composer, who is at present in San Francisco.

The entire program from beginning to end was one of musical delight. In many ways Mr. White's playing is unique. He has a strong personality, which expresses itself in all he does, lending an individual charm to his work. He produces a smooth tone full of sweetness and warmth and has such perfect control of the bow that in the most difficult passages there is not the slightest jerkiness or harshness of tone.

Mr. Sollie Heilbrouner at the piano furnished highly satisfactory accompaniments which claimed their share of attention throughout the evening, and with the exception of one unfortunate moment in the last number, gave admirable support.

A. B. BARNETT.

— # # # —

ROBERT LOUIS BARRON

Robert Louis Barron, the violinist, appeared in a recital at the Moraine Hotel, Highland Park, last Sunday evening with great success. This was a return engagement, as he appeared there in a joint recital on May 2.

— # # # —

Marshall—Miss Caroline E. Marshall will present her piano pupils in a recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Saturday evening, June 5. A very attractive program is announced.

COPY OF LETTER FROM FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

MY DEAR MR. UNDERWOOD:—

I have wanted to write to you for some time to tell you of my satisfaction with the results you obtained with Miss ——. I have recently sent you another pupil, Miss —, of San Francisco, and am urging two others, Miss — and Mrs. —, to go to you also. Everyone who has investigated your method of hand development is delighted with it and feels that it cannot possibly do any harm under competent supervision. One of my pupils even sent a doctor to investigate your apparatus and he gave a good report.

Thank you also for the Spiral Key, which I consider an excellent thing. I can think of no better way to gain strength in the fingers, providing the key is used properly, that is, manipulated purely by the strength of the fingers while moving the wrist up and down, so that it is sure to be loose.

I hope you will pardon the delay in sending this letter, of which you may use all or any part that may be useful.

Many thanks for what you have done for Miss —. I hope you will see her through.

Sincerely,
(Signed) FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER.

OSTROVSKY INSTITUTE

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SEASON 1915-16

ALBERT

1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist

Steinway
Piano

SPALDING

Herbert J. Wrightson

PIANO AND HARMONY

CHICAGO

20 East Jackson Boulevard, Phone Wabash, 6293

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR

CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conduct-
ed according to the advanced methods
of the most progressive
European Conserva-
tories.

MRS. EDGAR STILLMAN KELLEY
Piano and Harmony

A Faculty of INTER-
NATIONAL REPU-
TATION. Location ideal.
Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art

Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic
Classes, Post Graduate and
Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced
Composition, Normal
Courses, Most Modern
Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open
throughout the Summer.
Special Summer Courses
in Public School Music.
Exceptional opportunities for
Public Work. Professional
Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time
For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR
Directress

Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

This would seem to be a season of "dramatic readings," for about every ten days a new name appears, heralded as the one worth while in that line.

A recent announcement of note was that of Professor C. W. Neil, of Morgantown, who gave Wilde's "The Man of the House," at the Burlew. Mr. Wilde's audience was not the largest, to quote one of our local papers, but was thoroughly appreciative, of his masterly presentation of this work.

Another pleasing event of late was the appearance at the Stevenson Auditorium of Miss June Harding in "The Mallet's Masterpiece" and selections from "Madame Butterfly." She was assisted by two of our local people, Mrs. Matilda Reddington Mason, who sang a couple of numbers from the Puccini opera, accompanied by Mr. Frank R. Hurlbutt.

The Mason Quartet has commenced a new series of concerts (the first this season), under the auspices of the Civic Improvement League. There are to be four, it is said, and the program of the first was as follows:

Quartet in G Major, Op. 76, No. 1.....Jos. Haydn
Allegro Con Spirito
Adagio Sostenuto
Menuetto—Presto
Final—Allegro

Andante and Scherzo in F Minor for piano and strings.....Brahms
Songs—Nur Wer die Sehnsucht kennt.....Tschaiakowsky
Verjebliches Staendchen.....Brahms
The Sea.....MacDowell

Petite, Suite Piano and Strings..... Claude Debussy
En Bateau
Cortege
Menuet
Ballet

Miss Marguerite Porter, contralto, was the soloist, and Mr. Harry Froelich was her accompanist.

Another young Charlestonian who is forging ahead as a singer is Miss Marie Massey Warwick, mezzo-soprano. Miss Warwick sang before the Historical and Literary Club recently, and her rendering of the aria, "He Shall Feed His Flock," was the subject of much favorable comment. She is at her best in many of the standard oratorio and more serious sacred solos. She will do well to continue in the work.

J. HENRY FRANCIS.

LINDSBORG, KANS.

Bethany Conservatory

On Saturday evening, May 1, under the auspices of Bethany Campus Association, the New York Symphony Orchestra, with Walter Damrosch, gave a concert of unusual merit, before an appreciative audience. In spite of unfavorable weather, the large auditorium was well filled, and seldom if ever has such unbounded enthusiasm been displayed.

Everyone present felt that Lindsborg was passing through another stage of its already well known musical activity, and writing history for the future. It was a truly great concert, by one of the best organizations in America today, directed by the dean of American conductors, Walter Damrosch.

The great number of the evening was, without doubt, Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony." Throbbing with virility, pathos and majesty, it revealed to us once again the titanic struggle that went on in Beethoven's storm-tossed soul. It was given a broad, noble reading, such as only a master musician can give. The soloists, Mrs. Tillotson-Alcock, Miss Grace Kerns and Mr. John Campbell, prominent church singers, pleased the audience greatly, receiving many recalls.

The graduating class from the School of Fine Arts numbers thirty-seven members.

Recitals have been in progress the past three weeks. The high standard of performance at these recitals has again demonstrated that our conservatory is on a high plane of efficiency, comparing favorably with the larger conservatories of the east. Some fine talent has been revealed. Several members of the class having the musical profession in view are planning for further study next year, in some eastern cities. June 3, commencement day, will close with a graduates' concert in the evening.

Miss Jessie Brown, Cons. '07, B. M. '10, who was instructor at Bethany for a number of years, has been elected head of the Piano Department of McPherson College, McPherson, Kans. Miss Brown spent the year 1913-14 abroad, pursuing studies at the Royal Conservatory, Leipzig, Germany.

Miss Barbara Harwi, Cons. '13, has been engaged as teacher of piano and voice in the Dickerson County High School at Chapman, Kans., for next year.

OSCAR LOFGREN.

AGNES HANSEL HARTER

Following is some comment on the song recital given by Agnes Hansel Harter at Fargo, N. D., last May 24:

It was a colorful program she gave and sweetly and strongly sung to the very great pleasure of the audience. The most beautiful was the Rachmaninoff setting of Tolstoy's "O Thou Billowy Harvest Field" but there were many that stood out. There was "Evening Song," "A Threnody" (Greek death song) by Holmes; there was "The Blackbird's Song," (Scott), noticeable for the imitative accompaniment and the delicate child pieces chosen for encores, in which Mrs. Harter excelled. Her gracious personality added still more to the pleasure of her song.—Courier News.

Over 400 friends were guests at Stone's new auditorium Monday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Pollock and Mayor and Mrs. Henry F. Emery, the gathering being complimentary to Mrs. Agnes Hansel Harter, contralto, of Chicago, who was presented in a song recital. In the receiving line with the hosts and hostesses were President and Mrs. J. W. Hansel, parents of Mrs. Harter. The latter and Miss Frances Emery were in the line following the program, receiving expressions of appreciation.

The recital proved to be one of the best given in Fargo during the season just closing, especially so from the interpretative side. One of the musical guests present, who is recognized as an able critic, Professor Franz Sucher of Fargo College, comments on Mrs. Harter's recital last evening thus:

"Mrs. Harter gave strong evidence of a very comprehensive knowledge of the laws of good vocalism, including proper production and management of tone. She excelled, however, in sane suitability of style to the sentiment of the text, the final test of an artist. This was quite evident in her rendition of 'O Thou Billowy Harvest,' by the Russian composer, Rachmaninoff. In this she gave the characteristic color peculiar to Russian music.

"Rarely does one hear such splendid judgment exercised in the matter of phrasing, and the proper dealing with vowels and consonants. The latter accounts for the splendid enunciation given by this performer. I might add here that true artistry in song implies intellectual culture, for a careless disregard of the high claims of language indicates lack of education and of genuine delicacy of feeling.

"Her voice is a rich contralto with character and fullness. At no time during the performance did the singer resort to any acrobatic vocal feats to show her vocal possibilities or to excite admiration in being able to triumph over vocal difficulties. She chose rather to sing her stories in a sincere and telling way.

"Her best work (aside from the number already mentioned) was done in 'A Threnody' (Greek death song), by Holmes; 'Evening Song,' by Berwald; and 'A Foest of Oaks,' by MacFayden. Her encore numbers, which were in lighter style, were executed artistically and gave much pleasure.—The Forum. (Advertisement.)

MORE PRAISE FOR MABEL HELEN ROGERS

Miss Rogers played with rare interpretation and the audience was most attentive to her sweet music.—Keokuk (Ia.) Gate City.

Miss Mabel Helen Rogers, harpist, played most attractively and is one of the best ever heard in Manitowoc.—Manitowoc (Wis.) News.

Miss Rogers, harpist, was excellent, and played several beautiful selections.—Sterling (Ill.) Gazette.

The program was attractive from the standpoint that it was varied as well as artistic. Miss Rogers opened the program with a "Fantasie" by Kovarovic, which elicited an encore and she graciously responded with a dainty number, "The Gnomes," by Rogers. A charming personality which this talented harpist possesses served to give added pleasure to the evening and each number she gave received a great ovation. The second number which she presented was the Zabel "Am Springbrunnen," following which she responded with a beautiful interpretation of "Annie Laurie."—Muscatine (Ia.) Daily Journal. (Advertisement.)

Langer—Mrs. Ora Padgett Langer sang May 21 for the Tea Cup Circle at the Birchwood Club, the program including Spanish folk songs and arias from "Carmen." May 22, at the third annual banquet of the Walton School of Accountancy at the Congress Hotel.

JOPLIN, MO.

The public program of the Fortnightly Music Club, at the Presbyterian Church, on Tuesday evening, practically closed the musical season here. It was indeed a splendid program, and the audience was unusually large. An arrangement of the overture to "Die Meistersinger," for two pianos, played by Misses Blanche Bell, Ruth Johnson, Marie Guengerich and Oscar Wagner, opened the program, followed by a group of songs—"Dedication," by Schumann, and "My Sweet Repose" and "Who Is Sylvia," by Schubert—by Mr. George Winters; "Fantasia Appassionata" (Vieuxtemps), by Miss Mary Bingham, and the entire Chopin "Sonata in B Flat," by Miss Helen Scoville.

"In a Persian Garden," by Liza Lehmann, was sung by Miss Imo Price, Mrs. J. W. Forney, Mr. A. W. Milton and Mr. F. B. Rogers. The first movement of "Sonata Fragica," by MacDowell, rendered by Miss Ruth Johnson, and the prelude, nocturne and caprice from Schuett's "Carnaval Mignon," played by Oscar Wagner, closed the program.

Two artists' recitals were given under the auspices of the club last month, and the first was that of Leonard Borwick, the English pianist, whose program was interesting and played in his own musically way. Ellisson Van Hoose, the tenor, gave a very delightful concert, assisted by Miss Norman, soprano, and Miss Birmingham, a very charming pianist. The last part of the program consisted of two scenes from the operas "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "La Boheme," given in costume.

Only one concert has so far been planned for next season, that of the Flonzaley Quartet, in January.

A recital was given by the violin pupils of Miss Mary Bingham at Jenkins' Music Hall on May 3.

A studio recital was given by the voice and piano pupils of Mr. and Mrs. George Winters last Friday evening.

Mr. Earnest Hutchinson played here to a capacity house and a most appreciative one, but it would indeed be difficult not to be appreciative with Mr. Hutchinson at the piano. One feels he must not miss a note. To the program—the Bach "Fantasia and Fugue," G Minor; the MacDowell "Keltic Sonata"; a Chopin group; "Tutuana," a very interesting thing by Albeniz; three "Moment Musicaux" of Schubert, and his own arrangement of "The Ride of the Valkyries," which was magnificent—he added Liszt's "Liebestraum" and "Campanella," as requests from the audience.

The work of the high school orchestra is well deserving of special mention. Under the supervision of Miss Mary Bingham, it has been added as an accredited subject to the school work. Splendid music was furnished at the senior play last week. Such finish and attention to detail is remarkable in an orchestra of high school age. The numbers included an overture, "The Calif of Bagdad"; "Serenade," by Drige; "Wine, Women and Song," by Strauss; "Venetian Love Song," by Nevin, and "Marche Militaire," by Schubert.

A very interesting piano recital was given by Oscar Wagner, a pupil of W. L. Calhoun and a successful young teacher here. Mr. Wagner's training is thorough, his technic well developed, his sense of rhythm very exact, and his playing in every way truly artistic. He opened the program with "Prelude and Fugue," B Flat, from the well-tempered "Clavichord," followed by the Schumann "Sonata in G Minor." After a Chopin group, he played "Carnaval Mignon," Op. 48, by Schuett, in a delightful manner, which showed careful attention to detail and thorough musicianship.

Miss Mary Bingham gave a violin recital at the First Presbyterian Church, assisted by Miss Nell Whitsett, pianist. Miss Bingham, always charming in personality and manner, demonstrated her ability to enter into serious and sustained, as well as descriptive and brilliant compositions. Each number was rendered with a confidence of manner that was truly delightful. Her tone production was of a high order, pure smooth and rich; her touch strong, and her interpretation that of a mature musical mind. She was at her best in lyric and romantic selections, and especially effective in those weird and dreamy passages that call up visions of other days. The Grieg "Sonata," Op. 8, which opened the program, was an admirable bit of ensemble playing. In the sustained adagio of the Bruch "Concerto in G Minor" (of which she played the adagio and finale) Miss Bingham displayed a wonderful control and depth of sympathy. Two groups of shorter numbers—"Sarabande, Gavotte and Rondo" (for violin alone), by Bach; "Liebeslied," by Kreisler; "Oriental," by Cui; "Zapateado," by Sarasate; "Romance," by Svendsen; "L'Abeille," by Schubert, and "Obertass," by Wieniawski, were all exceedingly well done.

Miss Whitsett, beside her delightful accompaniments, played "Egeria," by Kroeger, and "Kemennori Ostrow," by Rubinstein. The ease of manner and her beautiful delicacy of touch won admiration of all.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The following clipping from the Los Angeles Daily Times tells of the great success made by Cecil Fanning in his own melodrama, "La Princesse Lointaine," to music setting:

The music section of Ebell Club had a red letter day Wednesday, when Cecil Fanning of New York, famed as poet and singer, read before the delighted audience several original poems, and Mrs. Evelyn Fletcher Copp of Boston, lectured on "Child Expression in Music."

Mr. Fanning is to be one of the prominent soloists at the coming musical federation, and his contribution to Wednesday's program greatly augmented its success. He did not read "Pipes o' Pan," but gave "La Princesse Lointaine" or "The Remote Princess," with pianoforte accompaniment, by Harry Brown Turpin, Mr. Fanning's instructor.

In the poem, reference is made of two cities, Avalon, the dream city whither King Arthur is supposed to have been transplanted after receiving his mortal wound, and which place became the unattainable goal of the Knights of the Round Table, and Carcassonne, a city of Southern France, so wonderfully restored that today it is the most perfect example of a walled city of mediaeval times. With such a setting the beauty of the poem may be well imagined. Mr. Fanning reads his original verses with clear enunciation and dramatic ability, and so greatly pleased was the audience that he was forced to respond to several encores, giving an Irish poem of Glengarry, entitled "The Bend of the Road" and "The Fallen Star." (Advertisement.)

BETHLEHEM, PA.

On Tuesday evening, May 18, at 8 o'clock, in Christ Reformed Church, Miss Helene E. Jacoby, a graduate of the Bethlehem Conservatory of Music, gave a very interesting piano recital. Miss Jacoby, though only twenty years of age, is a pianiste of rare natural ability and notable artistic attainments. At her recital on Tuesday evening she displayed a facile technic, showing throughout the evening a splendid regard for nuance and a comprehensive knowledge of poetic values, and gave a most authoritative interpretation of her program, which was as follows:

Fugue, A Minor Bach
Sonata, Op. 57 Beethoven
Nocturne, Op. 15, No. 2
Etude, A Minor, Op. 25, No. 11
Etude, C Sharp Minor, Op. 25, No. 7

Concerto, G Minor, Op. 22 Chopin
On the Wings of Song Saint-Saens
Bluette Mendelssohn-Liszt
Traumerei MacDowell
Moto Perpetuo

On Thursday evening, May 20, the choir of Grace Lutheran Church, numbering sixty voices, assisted by an orchestra of thirty pieces, rendered Brahms' "Triumphal Hymn" in a very acceptable manner, under the baton of William T. Trembath, organist and choirmaster. A mixed program preceded the rendition of the "Triumphal Hymn," most notable of which was the performance of the well-known aria "It Is Enough," from "Elijah," by Mr. Howard Wiegner, a local baritone. Mr. Wiegner displayed a rich, sympathetic voice, big and sonorous and as finely chiseled as a cameo, and he gave the aria a very beautiful interpretation.

EARLE CEASERO.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN
Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. Residence 5433 Harper Av. Tel. Midway 8963
Associate Vocal Instructor

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART
MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago
Summer Term Begins June 30 The School for Serious Students

Frank Olin Thompson
PIANIST
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS 515 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO PHONE WABASH 4805
TECHNIC

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and 4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION
Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG
71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE, Phone Oakland 3240
LOUISE BURTON
SOPRANO 520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression 1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard Director
Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing
FACULTY INCLUDES
ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE
FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON
MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWLER

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—To sublet studio in Kimball Hall one afternoon or part of two afternoons each week; Grand piano. Call at 322 Friday afternoon, or address "Studio," care Music News.

WANTED—Ambitious young man to travel for artist under management; address 5, Music News.

FOR SALE—Virgil practice clavier; address V. P., Music News.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

FOR SALE—Pipe organ; three-manual, tubular pneumatic, 38 stops, complete couplers and accessories; seven years old, and in good condition; now in a Chicago church; will have to be moved to make way for a larger one; will be moved and erected, ready to play, for $4,000. A real bargain for some large church or music studio. Instrument can be seen and heard by addressing F. D., Music News.

Blanche Hammond Bender
CONTRALTO CONCERTS RECITALS
Personal Address, Rochelle, Ill.
3117 Sheffield Avenue Chicago, Ill.

EARLE CEASERO
TENOR
Concerts Recitals
21 North Centre Street Bethlehem, Pa.

Henriette Weber
Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST
Kimball Hall
Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON
JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST
4621 Lake Park Av. Teacher, Concerts

ELLMER ZOLLER
PIANIST ACCOMPANIST
HOTEL WELLINGTON, 7th Avenue and 55th St. NEW YORK

Isabel Richardson
MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.
Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg.,
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera. Chicago

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Agnes Hansel-Harter Contralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals.

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUHÄUS
CLEVELAND IN JUNE

People & Events

EVAN WILLIAMS

Mr. Evan Williams, whose likeness is on our cover page this week, is an artist whose achievements during the past season have not been surpassed by any native born or foreign tenor before the public.

Everywhere his beautiful voice and his splendid musicianship have brought him the utmost of praise, it being doubtful indeed if any artist of the year has received so continuous a list of ovations throughout the country or excited such a remarkable flow of newspaper appreciation.

His singing in "The Dream of Gerontius" at Evanston last week is admitted by all who heard it to have been the very triumph of a superb art and his prestige, long secure in Chicago and Evanston, has, however, been very materially advanced.

ALINE VAN BARENTZEN

Some comment on Aline van Barentzen, American pianist:

An uncommonly capable pianist is Aline van Barentzen, who made her first appearance in England at the Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. The performance was not only crisp and well graduated, it was also intelligent, and it showed that the skill to express temperament was qualified by a discretion sufficient to prevent ostentation or exuberance. Miss van Barentzen made an even greater hit in the Paganini variations of Brahms. Her style is unusually broad and virile, but though she can work up with ease to climaxes of remarkable power and sonority, she does not allow her energy to become monotonous.—Daily Telegraph, London, June 24, 1913.

Aline van Barentzen showed by her execution of Grieg's "A Minor Concerto" that she is an exceedingly talented and sympathetic artist. Her playing in regard to technic showed that she has been through a splendid schooling and is stamped with a healthy and genuine musical feeling. Her touch is almost masculine in its strength. The hearty applause was well deserved and was followed by an extra number.—Vortland, Copenhagen, August 1, 1914.

The unexpectedly delightful feature of the popular concert in the Metropolitan Opera House was the playing of the Grieg piano "Concerto" by a youthful artist, Aline van Barentzen, an American girl, of whom it is said that she carried off a first prize at the Paris Conservatoire some three or four years ago. She is an unaffected child in appearance and bearing, and seemed utterly unconscious of the feat which she was accomplishing in playing the concerto without an appreciable slip of memory and with a crisp, rhythmical incisiveness that many a seasoned virtuoso might envy her.—New York Tribune, January 20, 1913.—(Advertisement.)

LA GRANGE

The following comment is partly taken from the Suburban News of La Grange:

To be a finished pupil of Godowsky is remarkably noteworthy, and to successfully teach his method and technic to others is additionally noteworthy. And so Miss Jessie King's splendid success as a teacher, and her exceptional ability as a pianist were decidedly appreciated last Saturday night at her pupils' recital at the Congregational church. The whole performance was a pleasure. Not any of the program became the least boring. All the selections were choice; and all were musically and easily played. In other words, it was far above the average recital regarding tone and technic, as well as interpretation. The stage setting attracted much attention, too, on account of the beautiful arrangement of the flowers. Afterward, by special request, Miss King played three short but fascinating numbers, "The Lark," by Balikirew, a waltz of Chopin, and a characteristic Debussy composition called "Gardens Under the Rain."

Some of those present had not heard Miss King since her recital in the Fine Arts Theater soon after her return from Europe, so that her playing last Saturday evening was a fulfilled hoped-for treat. The enthusiastic congratulations following were certainly due both Miss King and her every pupil.

Especial mention should be made of the unusual excellence of Elaine Burgess, who, though only eleven years of age, played with style and much finish.

The program follows:

Duet—Au Village	Godard
Elaine and Mira Burgess
Pussy's Love Song	Sartorio
From Flower to Flower	Tellier
Helen Goff
The Sad Story	Rogers
Twilight Dreams Waltz	Horwoth
Gloria Willis
The Shepherd's Pipe	Sternberg
Gladys Orange
Venetian Love Song	Nevin
Veil Dance	Friml
Caprice Viennois	Kreisler
Elaine Burgess
Lament for the Fairies	Lemont
Song of April	Devaugh
Elizabeth Thayer
Italian Song	Tarenghi
Humoreske	Dvorak
Constance Parsons
Duet—Ophelia	Nevin
Ernest and Mira Burgess
Melodie	Moszkowski
In Autumn	MacDowell
Schon Rosmarin	Kreisler
Mira Burgess
To a Wild Rose
Will o' the Wisp	MacDowell
From an Indian Lodge
Francis Farr
Sonata, last movement	Haydn
From Uncle Remus	MacDowell
The Skylark	Tschaikowsky
Elaine Burgess

MILWAUKEE, WIS

The last special concert of the season the Arion Club presented Florence Hinkle as soloist and assisted with well selected groups of part songs. Mr. Protheroe as director is so familiar a figure musically, having been engaged in his present capacity a great number of years, that one knows beforehand the excellence of his undertakings. Having been denied artist recitals for some months helped to make unlimited enthusiasm for Miss Hinkle.

Mr. Ralph Tillema recently gave a piano recital, which is the first hearing publically of Mr. Tillema since his return from four years' study with Levinne. It was not possible for the writer to be present, but the local press was pronounced in its praise of his work. Mr. Tillema will be connected with the music section of the State Normal School the coming year.

Among the recent artist student recitals was one by Miss Clementine Malek, pupil of Miss Katherine Clark, with Miss Imogene Hewitt at the piano at the Wisconsin Conservatory Hall. Miss Alma Schneider, soprano pupil of Iva Bigelow Weaver, assisted by Miss Julia Kroeck and Luella Birkhauser, piano pupils of Miss Pearl Van Vliet, were presented in recital at the Mack Block Hall. Miss May Bingham, soprano pupil of Mrs. Weaver, and Miss Inez Parsons, piano pupil of Miss Elizabeth Tucker, will be heard May 29 in the same hall.

Mrs. R. P. Kraft, soprano from the Tuesday Musical Club of the city, Miss Charlotte Peege, contralto, and Miss Ella Smith, pianist of the MacDowell Club, will assist in a program at the invitation of the Music Clubs of Fon du Lac.

Miss Ethel Brenk will sing a group of French songs at the commencement exercises of Marquette University next month, and Miss Josephine Sullivan sings the leading soprano role in the "Pirates of Penzance," June 5. Both are artist pupils of Mrs. Weaver.

The commencement exercises of the Wisconsin College of Music, the Wisconsin Conservatory and Marquette conservatory will all be given in an elaborate manner the second week of June.

Mora—Senor Manuel Mora, Spanish tenor, and Glenn Dillard Gunn, pianist, gave a program at the Warrington Theater in Oak Park on last Thursday evening.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

A DAINY CONCERT

Very unusual and very charming was the program arranged by Mrs. Myrtle Tyler Irons for last Tuesday evening, when she presented three little girls in a piano program at Kimball Hall.

These were Myrtle Rau, aged ten years, Mildred Lazarus, eleven years old, and Anita Rissman, twelve years old.

This is remarkable enough as a mere statement, but grows much more so when is added the further fact that each little girl played a sonata and each one a Bach "Invention," besides which they all gave many childish pieces with fine musical intent and good technical equipment.

Myrtle Rau played (with Mrs. Irons) a Diabelli and a Haydn sonata, the Bach "Invention in C" and short pieces of Hitz, Schuytte and Bohm; Mildred Lazarus gave the "Rondo" from a Haydn sonata, the Bach "Invention in G" and a collection of small gayeties by Bohm, Wollenhaupt, Gregh, Hollander, Merkel and Koelling, while Anita Rissman played the Haydn "Sonata in E Flat," the Bach "Invention in A" and smaller works by Jungmann, Billema, Karganoff and Loeschorn.

All this was surely task enough for such small hands, hearts and brains, but it was all accomplished with much satisfaction to the audience, with good technical display, considerable musical feeling, dainty phrasing and coloring and a good all around effect.

Variety was afforded by some cunning dancing given by Viola Oakley, a reading by Catherine Shaughnessy, which was much liked by the audience, and two songs by Louise Scheck, who was accompanied by Mrs. Irons.

Many flowers were presented and enthusiasm was rife. The flower girls were Cecilia Weissgerber, Cora Zuber, Evelyn Zuber, Catharine Hanley, Mary Hanley, Lucella Bither, Lucille Wedeles and Jeannette Buckholz.
 C. E. W.

Clarke—Mr. William Breach, who has been studying with Edward Clarke at the American Conservatory of Music, won the gold medal in the senior contest at that school last Wednesday. Mr. Breach has been engaged for a fourteen-week chautauqua tour for this season in the eastern states. Edward Clarke will leave Chicago Sunday evening for a concert trip in the west, returning to the city Friday.

Ammons—On Saturday morning, June 5, a piano recital will be given by the pupils of Lawrence Ammons and Josephine Ren Ammons, at the home of Mrs. Joseph B. Card, 421 East Central Park avenue, Highland Park.

North-Grove—Dorothea North, soprano, assisted by Grace Grove, pianist-accompanist, gave a recital in Ellsader, Ia., on May 26, before the County Music Teachers' Convention.

Music Abroad

DRESDEN

A notable occurrence at the Court Opera was the revival of Narsehner's fantastic opera, "Hans Heiling," a forerunner to Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," which, under Fritz Reiner's magnificent lead, achieved a great success. Friedrich Plaschke, in the title role, gave due prominence to the hero's part, which is especially suited to his vocal and histrionic endowments. Some special arias, terzets, etc., which have in later years been left out, were again added to the ensemble, thereby contributing in no small way to the better understanding of the book. The other roles are of less significance, yet they were very acceptably rendered. At the close Plaschke and Reiner had to appear repeatedly to accept the plaudits of the delighted audience.

A novelty evening was given by the Staatsbeamten Society. Among the items of the program were: Farnefeld's "Kors-holm" overture, well known in America, though new here, which proved to be especially attractive on account of its spirituality, its vital force and dramatic tense; Nicode's "Adler von Mars la Tour," is a grand composition, which, however, could not quite attain to the intended effect on account of the chorus, which demands great masses. Also the children's chorus was not sufficient in number; otherwise the work was carefully prepared. Further novelties were presented by Rudolf Feigert, Hugo Fungst, Joh. Reichert and others, all of them displaying good and solid workmanship.

The event of the last week was Richard Strauss' appearance as a guest conductor of his "Elektra," with Frau Gutheil Schoder of Vienna in the title role and Fraulein Nigrim as Klytemnestra. Very much depends on the rendering of the title role, which was presented in a supreme way by Frau Gutheil Schoder. Indeed, she made the work stand out more favorably than at the initial presentation, some years ago. Strauss also, of course, knew best how to work it out so it made a deep impression. Nevertheless, the beginning and the actual "noise" of the music which goes on for a full hour (before Strauss, with the entrance of "Orest," chooses to make real music) is deafening and by no means enjoyable; not even effective, though ever so realistic for the depiction of the horrid spiritual content of the book. Also "Ariadne" (hopelessly weak) and "Salome" were given, the latter under Kutschbach's lead, which was thoroughly insufficient. Herr Kutschbach's powers in such cases are only poor efforts. Strauss was very much feted.

Several guests were announced to appear, among them Leo Slezak, in "The Huguenots" and "Aida"; also the Swedish tenor, Harold Bjurstrom, as "Lohengrin." Both singers, however, on account of hoarseness, were unable to appear. Harold Bjurstrom, however, was hoarse before an invited audience at one of the receptions of Frau Geheimerat. Felix Draeseke and I can say those present deeply regretted that the singer was not heard in the opera. He is the happy possessor of an uncommonly beautiful voice of the real tenor ring, such as one but rarely meets with in Germany now-a-days. Herr Bjurstrom sang Lohengrin's "Grals-erzahlung" and some songs by Farnefeld. In both styles (the operatic and the lied interpretation) he is equally prominent. The timbre of his voice is full of poetry and "klang." We are eagerly looking forward to his operatic debut, which, as I understand it, will take place early in the fall—perhaps in September or October.

A. INGMAN.

Dresden, May 14, 1915.

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD

CONTRALTO, MGT. JAMES DE VOE
 933 DIME BANK BLDG. 656 LOTHROP AV. DETROIT, MICHIGAN

ADORATION: for medium voice By HARRY R. DETWEILER

Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.
 An exquisite little song.—D. A. Clippinger.

Hanna Butler

SOPRANO Pupils Recital Oratorio
 512 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wabash 4870

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
 608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils--Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 571

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANISTE
Studio 418, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

The annual convention of the Minnesota Music Teachers' Association will be held at Albert Lea, June 22, 23 and 24. Five hundred members are expected to be present.

John C. Freund, editor of Musical America, is announced for an address the evening of the 22nd. Of much interest will be the piano-lecture recital by Mrs. Edward MacDowell, the following evening, and a state composers' program will bring the convention to an end the evening of the 24th. A Duluth artists' program and a concert of chamber music are announced for the afternoon session. The "round tables," which are most beneficial to the teacher, will be presided over by well known specialists and will occupy the morning sessions.

Of the nine states represented in the musical contest held under the auspices of the National Federation of Musical Clubs in Chicago, first honors in each department of music were won by Illinois candidates. However, Minnesota comes in for honorable mention. Miss Adelaide Pierce, contralto, and pupil of Florence C. Farnam, won second place, and Charlotte Burlington, pianist, a pupil of George H. Fairclough, was third. Both are St. Paul musicians.

The winners of the contest, which the Federation of Clubs, hold at its ninth perennial festival at Los Angeles, June 24 to July 2, will have the opportunity of securing engagements from 309 federated clubs, for their "America Day" program.

The matinee and evening performances of the "Century of Fashions" and "The Clash of the Motorizing Maids," a motion picture given by society folk for the benefit of the Belgian relief fund, proved to be the largest thus far given in the northwest. Miss Florence Macbeth, in "The Court of Queen Victoria," appeared as Jenny Lind singing before the queen, and delighted the large audience. Mrs. F. L. Hoffmann, who arranged the music for all the scenes, appropriate to the time which was represented, was at the piano, and contributed a large share to the success of the evening.

Another benefit program, this one for the Baby Welfare Association, is announced for May 28, at the Metropolitan. It is hoped that Miss Florence Macbeth will be here and give the doll scene from "The Tales of Hoffman" in costume.

Dr. Kraus will sing a group of German songs by Hugo Wolff and Heldsch.

The program will also include a biographical sketch of Rabindranath Tagore, the winner of the Nobel prize; a group of spoken songs by Arthur Koerner, interpreted by Marie Gzertsen Fischer, assisted by Miss Bertha Marron; a scene from the second act of "Carmen" by Dr. Kraus and Mrs. Fanny Podlasky of St. Paul and "A Porcelain Fantasy," presented by a group of ladies in tableaux.

The Minnehaha Choral Art Society, composed of 300 voices, will give Haydn's oratorio, "Creation," Wednesday evening at the Swedish Tabernacle. Miss Clara Williams, soprano; Joseph Granbeck, tenor, and C. J. Peterson, basso, will be soloists. Miss Amy Nelson will be at the piano.

Esther Jones Enger, contralto; A. Pepinsky, violinist; Walter Haberson, tenor; Mildred Peabody and Myrtle Weed, pianists, gave the following program at a musicale under the auspices of the Ascension Club at their new parish house.

GEORGE DOSTAL AT PATERSON

Of George Dostal's singing in Paterson the Paterson Call has the following to say:

One of the treats of the evening was the singing of George Dostal, the tenor. He possesses an unusual voice. In his first solo, "Deserto in Terra," he sang high C twice, and then gave an almost phenomenal tone on D above high C. Despite its high register, his voice cannot be said to be effeminate. It is extremely powerful, and he executes a fine crescendo on even his highest tones. In the "Paradiso," he again exhibited the great upper range of his splendid voice. (Advertisement.)

Fanning—Cecil Fanning and H. B. Turpin are meeting with extraordinary success in California. On May 16 they gave a recital at Pasadena, and on May 26 appeared at San Diego. Mr. Fanning is to be soloist for the Lyric Club of Los Angeles on June 18 and Mr. Fanning and Mr. Turpin are to be guests of honor of several clubs during the month, including the Eball, where other guests will be Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Charles Wakefield Cadman and Marcella Craft.

INDIANAPOLIS

The last number of this season's Ona B. Talbot subscribed concerts was given April 15th at the Murat. Madame Frances Alda, soprano, Pablo Casals, 'cellist, and Frank La Forge, pianist, were the attractions. Her announcement for next season is as follows: Russian Symphony Orchestra, Kneisel Quartet and Harold Bauer, New York Symphony Orchestra, Schumann-Heink and Fritz Kreisler.

The fourth and last of this season's concerts of the Indianapolis Maennerchor was given April 30. Christine Miller and Arthur Middleton were the soloists, singing several solo groups. The chorus under the direction of Rudolph Heyne did some fine work. This was Miss Miller's seventh consecutive engagement with the Maennerchor and this speaks more for Miss Miller's success and popularity than anything the writer could say. Mr. Middleton made a splendid impression with his singing.

Pupils of Glenn Friermood, baritone, gave an artistic and finished program at Hollenbeck Hall, May 5. Those taking part were: Cecile Hill, Mrs. Lloyd Christian, E. V. Alexander, Eleanor Atkinson, Mrs. S. E. Fenstermaker, Clara Egeter, Irene Collins, Fred Jeffry, and Marie Hansen. All pupils showed fine training and a knowledge of tone production. The accompaniments were played by Mr. Friermood.

The Indianapolis Orchestra gave the last of the season's concerts May 9 at the Murat. Mrs. Jean McCormick, contralto, and Kenneth Rose, violinist, were soloists. The orchestra program was of a light order and was pleasing rather than educational. Mr. Rose played the Vieuxtemps "Fourth Concerto" with good style and rhythm.

John McCormack and the New York Symphony Orchestra gave an afternoon and evening program at the Coliseum, Fair Grounds, May 13. Other artists who took part were Grace Kerns, soprano; Merle Alcock, contralto; John Campbell, tenor; Mello Picco, basso, and Alexander Saslavsky, violinist. This was an extra number brought here by Ona B. Talbot.

The Indianapolis May Festival was given May 16 and 17 at the Murat. The Indianapolis Orchestra with the People's Chorus, together with Madame Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Mr. Frederic Martin, bass; Niels Nielsen, tenor; Kenneth Rose, violinist; Blanche Clark, harpist, and Pasquale Montani, harpist, gave the three programs. The chorus under Mr. Edward B. Birge did some wonderful work and proved how well qualified Mr. Birge is to direct a large body of voices. The festival was a success in every way.

Pupils of Perceval Owen, pianist, assisted by Edward Clarke, bass-baritone, gave a concert at the Propylaeum, May 18. Mr. Owen's pupils all did excellent work and delighted the large audience.

WAHOO, NEB.

In spite of the disagreeable weather which prevailed, a large and appreciative audience listened to the best performance of "The Messiah" ever given in Wahoo.

The magnificent performance of Handel's immortal "Messiah" revealed to the audience present at the concert on last Wednesday evening the wonderful human qualities in this music, which, though frankly and dramatically emotional, is none the less reverent and devout in the highest degree. For the execution of the oratorio, a finer quartet of soloists than Marie Sidenius Zendt, Jude Deyo, Edward Walker and Charles Edwin Lutton would be difficult to assemble. In their individual solos, each proved rare fitness and authority for the delivery of this great work.

Mme. Zendt, great artist that she is, brought out with her accustomed beauty and coloring of tone and her expressive variety of accent, the innermost meaning and soul of the soprano solos of the oratorio. She is the happy possessor of a rarely beautiful, pure soprano voice of perfect smoothness. Edward Walker's singing and manner of delivery of the tenor role of the oratorio was characterized by authority, brilliancy and fine breadth of style. Charles Edwin Lutton, the distinguished baritone of Chicago, gave an excellent account of himself. He is a singer of fine vocal resource, of convincing delivery and commanding sense of style.

The accompaniments were furnished by Miss Florence Almquist, at the piano; Mr. Martin Bush of Omaha, at the organ, and a select orchestra for the occasion. Mr. Martin W. Bush proved a master at the organ, and played the "Messiah" accompaniment in a most excellent manner, that left nothing to be desired.

Last, but not least, a mention must be made of the artists' concert in the afternoon, in the College Chapel, given by the soloists, with the exception of Mr. Walker. This event proved to be an exceptionally rare and artistic treat for those present.—Wahoo Democrat.

WICHITA, KAS.

The May Festival and Interstate Contest held in Wichita, May 3 and 4, was the largest and most successful musical undertaking ever held here. The Forum was well filled, the contests were interesting, and the two big concerts by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch conducting, were among the greatest orchestra concerts in music annals for this western city.

The entire project was backed by business men who came forward on a guarantee fund and made up the deficit of $900 without murmur, and declared the proposition worth while. It is probable even in the face of this deficit, that the festival will be repeated next year and it is this optimistic spirit that has built Wichita and placed her on the center of the musical map of Kansas. The entire cost totaled $3,280. The general admission price was $1 for the entire two days, including not only the two orchestra concerts and the final one by prize winning contestants, but to all the contests as well.

The festival began at 9 Monday morning and every hour contests were held until 3, when the orchestra gave a matinee program. The evening program by the combined choruses aggregating nearly 1,000 voices and the orchestra, was one of the most magnificent features of the festival, the combined body singing the selected contest chorus, "He Watching Over Israel," from "Elijah," and "The Lord Is Great," Priest's March from "Athalia," by Mendelssohn, Damrosch directing.

Entries in the general lines were gratifying, but the contest for large chorus, with the $250 prize offered, had no entries, Wichita and its large chorus graciously refusing to compete in its own festival. Altogether $1,000 in prizes were offered, and the results of the contests were as follows:

WINNERS AND CONTEST NUMBERS

Piano Contest—Class A, prize $15, Miss Christine Canton of Winfield. Honorable mention, Miss Catherine Lewis, Wichita. First Movement from Schumann's "Carnival of Vienna, Opus 26."

Bass Solo Contest—Class A, prize $15. C. G. Marshall of Wellington. Honorable mention, Arthur Price of McPherson. "Arm, Arm Ye Brave," from "Judeas Maccabeus."

Bass Solo Contest—Class B, prize $10. John A. Campbell of Wichita. Schumann's "Two Grenadiers."

Tenor Solo—Class A, prize $15. Ray E. Gafney, Winfield. Honorable mention, Cecil Rutledge, Winfield. "Were I a Prince Egyptian," by Chadwick.

Tenor Solo Contest—Class B, prize $10. William Watt, Augusta, only entry. Song by Chadwick.

Chorus Contest—Class B, Southwestern College, Winfield, first, $150; McPherson College, second, $100; Anthony, third, $75; Hutchinson, fourth, $50. "The Lord Is Great," from "Athalia," by Mendelssohn.

Violin—Class A, prize $15. Henry Leben, Wichita. "Ziguerweisen," by Sarasate.

Violin Contest—Class B, prize $10. John M. Shinn, Chanute. Honorable mention, Terry Ferrell, Wichita. "Meditation," from "Thais."

Male Quartet—Prize $10. McPherson College. Honorable mention, Southwestern College. "Lead Kindly Light," by Buck.

Ladies' Quartet Contest—Prize $10. Wichita College of Music Quartet. Honorable mention, The Carter Quartet. "Annie Laurie," arranged by Buck.

Mixed Quartet—Prize $10. Carter Quartet, only entry. "God Is a Spirit," from "The Woman of Samaria," by Bennett.

Male Glee Club Contest—Southwestern College, Winfield, first, $50; McPherson College, second, $25. "Good-Bye, Sweetheart," by Hatton.

Ladies' Glee Club—McPherson College, prize $50, only entry. "Stephanie Gavotte," by Czibulka.

Contralto Solo Contest—Class A, prize $15. Miss Vella Niederhauser, Wichita. Honorable mention, Miss Patti Rude. "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delila."

Contralto Solo Contest—Class B, prize $10. Miss Goldie Fahs, Wichita. "Sunset," by Buck.

Soprano Solo—Class A, prize $15. Miss Velma McConnell of Wichita and Miss Sarah Thompson of McPherson, tie for first prize. Honorable mention, Miss Zelma Fisher, Wichita. This was the closest contest in the festival, all three contestants practically tying. "The Willow," by Goring-Thomas.

Soprano Solo Contest—Class B, prize $10. Miss Minnie Turner of Fredrick. Honorable mention, Miss Mary Somerville, Wichita. "A Song of Sunshine," by Goring-Thomas.

Piano Solo Contest—Class B, prize $10. Miss Katherine Ragan, Wichita. Prelude and Air from Grieg's "Holberg Suite, Opus 40."

In many cases the selections were made with a prime object of enabling a large list of contentants to enter, and while the general grade was excellent for the purpose, criticism could be offered on some numbers. However, each contestant besides performing the selected number, had to perform one of his own choosing besides, thus enabling each opportunity of displaying their own particular style of virtuosity.

Winfield secured the leading place by reason of their fine chorus as well as having won the class A piano contest, class A tenor, and several other prizes. Wichita came forward in the violin department, Ralph Brokaw's violin class winning first prize in class A and honorable mention in class B for violin solos. McPherson, Kan., brought an excellent aggregation, and Wellington, Augusta, Hutchinson, Arkansas City and Anthony were well represented.

The voice department was closely contested, and probably had the largest number of entries. Many beautiful voices and beautiful women proved the capabilities of Kansas vocally, and while in a contest all cannot win, it was a pity more prizes could not be arranged for. E. R. Kroeger of St. Louis was sole adjudicator, and on him evolved a heavy task. The two days, except when the formal concerts were in progress, were entirely filled with contests; barely enough time each day was there for the contests.

Notes

Arthur Uhe of Lindsborg was a visitor, as well as F. J. Haberkorn and Mrs. Yaggy, both of Hutchinson, and all three violinists.

Professor Olmstead of Winfield is the teacher of Miss Caton, who won the first piano contest, class A.

Charles Davis Carter, directed both the Augusta and Wellington choruses, and his vocal entries in the solo contests won some excellent places.

Lucius Ades, the manager of the business end of the festival, while working on what proved to be a losing venture for the guarantors, did excellent service in his capacity, and had the business end of it well organized.

The other features of our musical life have been John Philip Sousa and band, besides many local recitals, among which should be mentioned Frances Hughes Wade, harpist, and G. Rawson Wade, basso, in joint recital; the Pianists' club in weekly programs, and a recital by Patti Rude, contralto, a local student who made an excellent impression.

Mention must also be made of the excellent showing Wichita High School chorus made at Emporia April 30, when the High School State Wide Contest was held. They won first prize of $100 on mixed chorus, and the $25 prize for Boys' Glee Clubs in a large list of entries. Wichita sent a chorus of 24, Miss Jessie Clark directed. The contests were held at the State Normal School.

Incidentally Kansas has been a musical festival state this spring. Lindsborg, with its yearly "Messiah," Hays, Kans., Normal School; Emporia put on a festival aside from the contest above reported, and the week preceding our big festival, Newton (20 miles north), had the Minneapolis Symphony and conducted a successful festival.

Frazer—Mr. Arthur Frazer, whose piano studios are at the Propylaeum in Indianapolis, will present Marguerite Meunier in piano recital on June 1, and will himself play at his studios on June 3. Miss Meunier will be assisted by Alma Jane Wilday, mezzo soprano.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park

426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method

315 WILSON AVENUE

TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES
HERBERT M. BAILEY

Soprano

Baritone

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO

522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER

Just returned from abroad

Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MAUDE BOLLMAN

FENLON

CONCERT SOPRANO

STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG.

Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO

CONCERT

RECITAL

3958 Drexel Boulevard

Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST

Concerts

Recitals

Receptions

Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater

Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONTRALTO

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

549 LAKESIDE PLACE

TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano

Oratorio

Recital

Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling

Pianist

Teacher

2912 Burling Street

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE

509 S. WABASH AVENUE

Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART

PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Ninth Floor Auditorium Building

Chicago, Illinois

BROCK

COLLINS J.

BASSO-

CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St.

Tel. Superior 3428

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR

VOCAL INSTRUCTION

Western Conservatory

Mallers Bldg.

Howard E. PRESTON

5434 Woodlawn Av

BARITONE

Telephone Midway 4175

ANN A HICKISCH

RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE

Personal Address, LA CROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO

Oratorio

Recitals

Concerts

Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO

Teacher of Singing

5057 Winthrop Av

Tel. Ravenswood 325

Studio 714 Kimball Hall

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS

4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Engaged for Chicago Grand Opera Co.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

George Francis Kortzenborn
Concert BARITONE
Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert
Pupils Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

Edgar Nelson
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

DEWITT DURGIN
TENOR LASH
420 Fine Arts Bldg.

LOS ANGELES

The happy turn in the program of the Los Angeles Music Teachers' Association meeting this month, in presenting lectures on subjects of musical interest instead of unexplained programs, Mrs. Graham F. Putnam gave a most interesting talk on Edward MacDowell, as a composer artist and teacher. She extolled his ideal concepts as a guide to the real things in music study and interpretation, she having been his pupil for some time. Following this most interesting personal reminiscence, she rendered the first movement of the "D Minor Concerto," her son giving the piano solo and the orchestra parts she played on a second piano. The performance was marked by a good understanding of the work and technical ability. "The Witches' Dance" followed, in an encore number by the talented boy artist.

The second lecture was given by Mrs. Katherine Alchin, who spoke on "Harmony" and gave an outline of her book just published, called "Applied Harmony." A new treatment of the subject seemed much more interesting than the vertical figured bass plan, using the tonal motion and reposeful character of the melodic form, suggestive of harmonic color and purport. The questions and answers were helpful to all, eliciting much interest. Better methods and up-to-date educational ideas spells progress.

h h h

Miss Inga Orner, a Norwegian prima donna, gave a fine recital program of a few American songs, including Cadman's "Dawning," Lohr's "Little Grey Home," Foerster's "Garden of Dreams," Gounod's "Divine Redeemer" and an aria from "Rigoletto," which were her main numbers, yet not so interesting to her audience as the folk songs of Sweden, Norway, Ireland and Denmark, which she sang with the native color and was vigorously encored. Her voice is of excellent timbre, but with less amplitude and with columization a much higher art value could be attained. Her presence is appealing, very natural and unassuming.

h h h

Mr. R. Tenorydd Roberts presented his pupil, Miss Rowena Holtzmann, contralto, in a song recital, with Miss Alice Shaw as her accompanist. Miss Holtzmann is under eighteen years of age, but has a marvelously large voice, with quite a compass. She aspires to the operatic work of a dramatic contralto. Her program was a somewhat ambitious undertaking for one so young in years and in study. "Elsa's Dream," by Wagner; "Golden Sun," by Freebey; Schubert's "Erkling," with seven others of lighter character comprised the list. The elimination of the extreme somber and a clearer tone and diction will promise a more receptive hearing. The voice will justify a care in the details of delivery and soulful interpretation, which will come in time and thoughtful study. Mr. Kenneth C. Davis, violinist, assisted in good solos, Miss Hilda Meade accompanying.

h h h

Mrs. Celeste Nellis-Ryns, pianist; Miss Blanche Ruby, soprano, and Messrs. Robert and S. M. Alter, 'cellist and violinist, gave the Hollywood Woman's Club a splendid program, which was most heartily enjoyed by the club at their last week's gathering. They comprise a good concert combination, with a growing popularity.

h h h

A very enjoyable social reception was given by Miss Cooper of Berkeley Hull School to Mrs. Evelyn Capp, called the "Froebel of the music-teaching world," who is sojourning here for a while and giving some lectures on her methods of teaching piano and music with her unique system.

Also a reception at the same time and place to Mr. Cecil Fanning, poet, reader, singer and composer, and his teacher, Mr. Turpin. Mrs. Capp made a complimentary talk on the interesting musical works given in the program and the artist singers and players of Los Angeles. Miss Gertrude Ross, R. Lamont Smith and Mrs. Abbie Norton Jamison, composers of songs, accompanying their own works; with Mr. Paul, tenor, Mrs. Vaughn, soprano, and Mr. Olney, basso, rendered a dozen or more compositions. Mr. Fanning consented to recite several good original poems, much to the delight of his auditors. A large attendance of club women and society people were present. Sociability, with refreshments, enlivened the occasion, making it memorable.

h h h

The great musical event of the local forces has been accomplished, to wit, the giving of Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony." Much interest had been stimulated for several months to make it a crowning success for the closing of the season's activity. This was only possible by the combining of the two vocal clubs, "Ellis," of 100 men, and "The Lyric," of 100 ladies, who sang the fourth movement choral finale to the greatest symphony the world has known. The "Ninth" has been heard in rehearsals and two concerts by at least 10,000 persons. At the Sunday afternoon rehearsal the great auditorium was filled with high school and grammar school young people. Both concerts had crowded houses—approximately 3,500 at each.

The orchestra season went out in a blaze of glory. The performance was an achievement and a creditable rendition. Director Herr Adolph Tandler conducted with a masterly hand the entire work from memory, without any noticeable fault. The soloists were the best local talent available for this stupendous task. Mrs. Robert A. Smith, soprano; Mrs. L. J. Selby, contralto; Mr. Roland Paul, tenor, and Mr. Clifford Lott, baritone—all acquitted themselves with skill and effectiveness. The music is great from a constructive viewpoint, and broad dignity, if not always entertaining, except to the idealist and constructive musician. I sometimes have thought that if the author could have heard the quality of the howling voices at the extremely high setting that he would have given it a key within the singable quality of the human voice. As many were unable to get seats, it may be repeated before the summer has arrived.

h h h

The work is developing for the "Fairyland" opera, and all who have heard of it are sure it will please the ear, the eye and the musical sense as well. The interest still keeps up for the great festival.

S. W. MOUNTZ.

1651 Sixth avenue. Phone W 1024.

h h h

New York—A large and fashionable audience had the pleasant experience of enjoying an exhilarating musical comedy at the Alviene Lyceum in 225 West Fifty-seventh street, New York, on the evenings of May 6, 10, 12 and 21. Miss Alvina Wiens surpassed her usual prepossessing self in her vivacious acting, graceful and expressive dancing and superb singing. Her high C was full and clear and her voice bore the proper cadence, coloratura and expression.

h h h

Charleston—At the laying of the corner stone of the Charleston High School at Charleston, W. Va., last week, splendid music was furnished by the Charleston High School Orchestra and the High School Chorus, under direction of J. Henry Francis.

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky
The Brooks-Evans
Building
Minneapolis, Minn.
CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik
CLEOPHAS
Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

Ralph Brokow
VIOLINIST
Wichita, Kas.

GRACE BRUNE MARCUSSEN
ORATORIO SOPRANO RECITALS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING

FRANCES INGRAM
CONTRALTO

Management: C. A. SHAW, Orchestra Hall, CHICAGO
MAURICE FULCHER, Representative, McCormick Bldg.

IDA GARDNER
CONTRALTO
Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

GEORGE MILTON LIPSCHULTZ
Teacher Violinist Soloist
1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

80.5
MON
Stack
FESTIVAL AT POCA TELLO, IDAHO
FESTIVAL AT BOWLING GREEN, OHIO

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

THEODOR BOHLMANN

Pianist and Pedagogue
Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

43rd Year will open September 21, 1915

THE HEWETT BUREAU

KATE JORDON HEWETT
Musical and Dramatic

A clearing house for Artists and those who seek them.

Employers Teachers
Professional Interpreters

627 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Illinois
Phone Wabash 5189

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
Chicago's most attractive hall, devoted exclusively to concerts, recitals and other high-class entertainments.
Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,
HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JUNE 11, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspon-
dents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.

Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business
Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and
Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect
Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, June 11, 1915

No. 24

Editorial

CORRECTION

In copying from the Tribune last week an article about the children's program of peace songs under direction of W. L. Tomlins, Music News failed to correct the misstatement that Mr. Tomlins is the director of the Apollo Club. However, everybody in Chicago knows that Mr. Tomlins was the founder of this club and that Mr. Harrison M. Wild is now the director, so no great harm can have been done.

A LETTER

Office The Music Student

London, May 18, 1915.

Music News:

COBBETT COMPETITION FOR STRING QUARTET, 1915

I have pleasure in informing you that the first prize of 25 pounds in the Phantasy section of the above competition for a "conversation quartet" (held in connection with this paper) has been awarded to Mr. Albert Sammons, his Phantasy quartet completely fulfilling the conditions laid down.

A further prize of 25 pounds for the best quartet written in sonata form remains, and the award will be made next month.

The original prize offered was 50 pounds, but as the MSS. submitted consisted partly of works in the shorter and partly of works in the longer form, it was thought desirable to keep them separate by dividing the prize as above.

I am,

Yours faithfully,

PERCY A. SCHOLES,

Editor.

ADDENDA

I see that, by inadvertance, I omitted to give the names of the young people who took part in the operetta "Secret of Suzanne," which closed with good style the successful program of Signor Archangeli's pupils. Miss Leeta Corder was the bride, Oliver Mellum the husband and Matthew Warring the dumb servant. At the conclusion of the act Mr. Archangeli showed his intense approval of his pupils' efficient work by presenting the laughing "Suzanne" with a huge bunch of flowers.

ALBERT CATSWORTH.

TOUR OF THE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB CHOIR

Another singing body to go on tour is the Sunday Evening Club Choir which has been delighting Chicagoans all winter at Orchestra Hall under the baton of O. Gordon Erickson. The soloists engaged for the trip are all of Chicago also, and include Mabel Sharp Herdien, Rose Lutiger Gan-

"Whatever the weather may be"
says he,

"Whatever the weather may be,
It's the songs ye sing, and the smiles
ye wear,

That's a-makin' the sunshine everywhere."

—James Whitcomb Riley

non, John B. Miller, Gustaf Holmquist and Edgar Nelson.

The list of bookings is certainly a remarkable one and covers, in a twenty-two days trip, this extended itinerary: Joliet, Ill.; Rock Island, Ill.; Des Moines, Ia.; Omaha, Neb.; Phillipsburg, Kas.; Denver, Colo.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Reno, Nevada; San Francisco, Cal.; San Diego, Cal.; Tucson, Arizona; El Paso, Tex.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Winfield, Kas.; Newton, Kas.; Topeka, Kas.; St. Joseph, Mo., and Galesburg, Ill., in the order named, beginning on June 18 at Joliet.

AS A MAN THINKETH

Mr. Bennett Treloar, a man with an artistic mind though not a professional musician, wrote this to the Chicago Tribune:

Chicago, June 3.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I want to convey to you my hearty thanks for your very timely editorial on "The Rediscovery of Manners," which I trust will bear great weight upon the minds of all sorts and conditions of men not only in Chicago but throughout our country.

I have long since noticed that manners, especially in the mercantile world, have been on the wane: i. e., good manners. I don't know whether or not the average business man thinks it effeminate to be courteous, or whether it is entirely due to this strenuous age and he feels that he cannot afford the time, either of which is a very poor excuse.

There is, however, a portion of the city's great field of activity in which good manners have not lost their true glory, but—on the contrary—have been kept polished, which portion might come under the head of fine arts: music, art, literature, and the drama.

Man's negligence in relation to the courtesies of life is rarely due to ignorance, but simply thoughtlessness, and his familiarizing himself with the more artistic side of life will help greatly in smoothing off the rough edges of commercialism; it will cause him to think and think rightly. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he," and action is the fruit of thought.

BENNETT TRELOAR.

OUR SINCERE THANKS

"Mr. Gunn was at the baton."—Music News last Friday.

From Music News: "Mr. Gunn was at the baton." We can understand how one can be "at the piano," but not how he can be "at the baton."—Line o' Type, Tribune, Monday.

Sir: With Casey at the bat, why not Mr. Gunn at the baton?

LITERAL.

—Line o' Type, Tribune, Wednesday.

SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM AT ST. JAMES

The last festival service for the season will be sung Sunday, June 13, at four in the afternoon, at St. James' Episcopal Church. The choir will sing "And all the People Saw," by Stainer; "Saviour, When Night," by Shelley, and Master Earl Abramson, soprano, will be heard in four solos: "I Heard the Voice of Jesus," by Harriss; Hayden's "With Verdure Clad," as well as "Angels Ever Bright," by Handel, and the march, "The Lord is My Light." There will also be organ solos by the choir-master, John W. Norton.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
at Gorton School
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67½ East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Swenkernd, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 18988

GEORGE RALF KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Roeder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Arthur Uhe PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

NORA OLIN
LORAIN VOICE
524 Kimball Hall, 321 Lake Street, Oak Park. Tel. O. P. 2724

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

MARGARET MULFORD
LAWSON
CONTRALTO, MGT. JAMES DE VOE
933 DIME BANK BLDG. 656 LOthrop AV. DETROIT, MICHIGAN

ADORATION: for medium voice
By HARRY R. DETWEILER
Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.
An exquisite little song.—D. A. Clippinger.

FEDERATED CLUBS MEETING

The meeting of the National Federation of Music Clubs in June at Los Angeles is the most important event in the musical history of the western coast, and one that is attracting wide spread interest. With the events featuring the compositions of our foremost American composers, and the presence of so many great artists to interpret these fine numbers, it is probable that the coming biennial will be superior to any similar event ever held.

A part of the biennial program will be a Congress for the Encouragement of American Music with Charles Wakefield Cadman as chairman. Associated with Mr. Cadman are other notables of the music world: Arthur Foote, George Chadwick, Carl Busch, Arthur Farwell, Leonard Lieblich, Henry K. Hadley, Mrs. Elizabeth Casterton, Charles Farnsworth, Tali Esen Morgan, Roland Paul and Oscar Sonneck. This is only the beginning of a long list of programs of such fresh and exceptional interest that a few must be noted to show the wealth of material offered. Many numbers will be given with the composer at the piano or directing his own composition. Notable among these is the concerto for piano and orchestra by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, composer, at the piano, "Minnehaha's Vision," by Carl Busch, and "The Desolate City" (with baritone solo by Cecil Fanning), by Mabel W. Daniels.

At a later concert, the 1915 prize symphony, No. 2, C minor, op. 34, by Arne Oldberg, composer, conducting, and Charles Cadman's new sonata in A major for the piano, will be heard for the first time, with Claude Gottlieb, the brilliant young pianist, at the piano. Two local concerts, one by the combined musical clubs, the Lyric, Ellis and Orpheus, and one by the public schools, are among the many attractive programs arranged. American music will be heard in all of the churches on Sunday, June 27.

The reception at Hotel Alexandria, when many prominent musicians will be present to welcome the visiting artists, will be an occasion of much social brilliancy. The benefits to be derived from the meeting of delegates and representatives and musicians known to each other by reputation only, and the incentive to better work by the recognition of our own composers, cannot be overestimated. The hospitality and cordiality for which the west is noted will be extended with heart warming fervor, and no effort will be spared to make the first meeting of the National Federation on this western shore a wonderful one in the history of music clubs.

A fitting climax and finale to all of this great program will be the premiere production of the $10,000 prize opera, "Fairyland," by Horatio W. Parker and Brian Hooker. Marcella Craft has been chosen to create the role of "Rosamund," and the noted artists, Albert Reiss, Ralph Errolle, William Wade Hinshaw and Kathleen Howard, are in the cast, which is a famous one, all of these singers having established reputations on both sides of the continent. Those who have heard the rehearsals under the capable direction of Louis Gottschalk pronounce the music of "Fairyland" exceptionally fine. Since his arrival in the city, Mr. Alfred Hertz, director at the Metropolitan Opera House for thirteen years, has assumed charge of the rehearsals. The whole conception of "Fairyland" is broad, uplifting and almost Wagnerian in its intensity. A chorus of selected voices will give a strong, fine presentation of the superb music.

CONCERT OF MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER'S COMPOSITIONS

Friday evening, June 4, at Gary, Ind., in Library Hall, Marian Coryell Webster gave a program of her own compositions, assisted by Grant Kimbell, tenor; Nelle Sturtevant, contralto; Ada Sloan White, reader, Wade Eversoll, violin; P. H. Stevens, cello.

Mrs. Webster is a very talented musician and composer who is making rapid strides in her art. Her songs are built along melodic and rhythmical lines that are very convincing, attractive and original. The music fits the words to a nicety, along dramatic and musical lines that should be very gratifying to the interpreter.

A suite for violin, cello and piano also met with fine favor with the audience. Five movements comprise the "Suite," the "Mazurka," "Andante" and "Waltz" were best liked at the first hearing.

Mrs. Webster displayed fine gifts as a player, in the piano numbers, "Valse Spaniere," "Valse a la Coquette," both proved to be thoroughly fine in musical content,

WARREN PROCTOR
TENOR
Exclusive Management; Alma Voedisch
3941 Rokeby St., Phone Graceland 8814

and should meet with much success for they are well worth while.

Mr. Kimbell is a welcome singer wherever he chooses to appear. He sings with sincerity, and draws his interpretations along broadly intelligent and musical lines that might well be taken as an example. He gave of his best in the goodly list of fine songs from Mrs. Webster's pen, namely, "Song of the Nightingale and the Rose," "When Cherries Bloom," and "The Sea Gypsy."

Miss Sturtevant, a talented pupil of William Clare Hall, has a fine contralto voice, and she sang in a manner that reflected much credit upon Mr. Hall as her teacher. Her offerings met with fine favor. "Song of the Forest," "Humming Birds," "In Praise," and "Wind in the Corn," should be heard often. The closing number, "The Prayer of Pan," words by W. Hervey Woods, was given by Mr. Kimbell, tenor, Ada Sloan White, reader, with an accompaniment written for violin, piano and cello.

The musical setting of the "Prayer" is indeed beautiful. The many touches of light and shade are most fitting and effective. Mrs. White is a very talented reader, giving her lines with the authority and poise that left nothing to be desired. Mr. Kimbell's beautiful voice rang clear and true, throughout the varied score. The accompanying trio completed a wonderfully effective musical picture, that will long be remembered as one of the most delightful moments of the evening. Mrs. Webster may well feel proud of her work, and one may truly say she has the best wishes of all for continued success. H. W. P.

Music in Chicago

A SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL RECITAL

Madame Geneva Johnstone-Bishop of the Sherwood Music School presented Hazel Harris, soprano, and John Hedgecoxe, tenor, with George Ralf Kurtz at the piano in recital at Thurber Hall on Thursday evening, June 3.

Miss Harris possesses a brilliant voice of rich quality and good carrying power. She may well be styled with the sopranos of a dramatic type, for she thoroughly convinced on this point in the rendition of "Vissi d'Arte," (La Tosca), by Puccini, and "Depuis le Jour," by Charpentier, which opened the program. At later appearances in the evening she sang the great and difficult "Die Loreley," by Liszt, and "O Don Fa-tale," (Don Carlos), by Verdi, with a wealth of tonal color and dramatic intensity which brought great pleasure to the audience present and stamped her as a singer of high attainment.

Miss Harris was also heard in a very interesting group of songs made up with "We-Um" and "Her Blanket," two excellently written and colorful Indian songs by Thurlow Lieurance; the lively and charming "Saint Cecily," by M. Hartmann and "To An Angel," by Madame Bishop, who supplied the accompaniments for these four songs in a highly gratifying manner.

Mr. Hedgecoxe is a young tenor well known as a member of that artistic organization, the Chicago Male Quartet, and won a host of new admirers at this time on his splendid display of a well founded solo equipment. The recitative and aria, "Waft Her Angels," by Handel, was the first of Mr. Hedgecoxe's offerings and in this beautiful number his voice was used with good intelligence and his pure enunciation is especially worthy of mention. "Che Gelida Manina," from "La Boheme," was sung with great breadth of interpretative thought and ideal musical expression. Yet it was in "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby," by Clay, and "Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton, that Mr. Hedgecoxe did his best singing.

The two singers combined forces in the rendition of a duet from the opera, "Don Pasquale," in closing the program, which was splendid from every standpoint.

Mr. Kurtz added greatly to the artistic achievements of the evening by playing accompaniments that were musicianly and sympathetic and again demonstrated the fact that he is one of the most satisfactory accompanists now appearing in Chicago.

H. M. B.

Northwestern—At the School of Music, Northwestern University, Evanston, on Tuesday evening, June 1, a successful program was given by Mr. Russell Van Dyke Morgan, pianist, pupil of Mrs. Gail Martin Haake.

Bachman—Miss Ella Bachman will teach a class in voice production and repertoire at the Balatka Academy from June 24 to August 1.

PEOPLE'S GAS CO. PRESENTS AND ENJOYS FINE CONCERT

The Choral Society of the People's Gas Company, which numbers about thirty-five male voices, taken from various departments of that institution, with John W. Norton conducting, gave a splendid program in the main foyer of the company's magnificent building at Adams street and Michigan boulevard on Wednesday night, June 2, assisted by Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; A. Ray Carpenter, tenor; William Lester, accompanist, and the Metropolitan Ladies' Orchestra.

While the space utilized for this event was exceedingly attractive to the eye and formed a splendid setting for the presentation of such a concert, it nevertheless was somewhat of a failure from an acoustic standpoint. Too many pillars, alcoves, balconies, etc., were stumbling blocks for a true and proper display of tone power and quality from both chorus and soloists. However, be that as it may, the large audience grew enthusiastic as the evening moved on and well it should for under the masterful direction of Mr. Norton this assemblage of untrained voices displayed a quality of work well worthy of the older and more studious men's choruses of the city. Their opening number, the "Bedouin Song," by Foote, was pronounced for that excellent blending of tonal volume which is found only in a body of well drilled men's voices. "Winter Song," by Bullard, was sung with spirit and a commendable amount of finish, enough in fact, that a repetition was demanded. "Hark! the Trumpet Calleth," by Buck, brought forth some of the best ensemble effects heard during the evening. An arrangement of the sextet from "Lucia" was much enjoyed as was "King Bell and Ding Dong," by Karle. "Goodbye," by Tosti, proved a popular feature of the program and in Protheroe's "De Sandman," which was the only number sung unaccompanied, the chorus did some of their best work of the evening. Beautiful indeed were the effects gained by a smooth soft flow of tone in this number, which was further enhanced by an unusual degree of musical expression and elasticity of tempo. A musical jest, entitled "Italian Salad," which for text is made up with a lengthy list of musical terms set to music of a peculiar and interesting nature, brought the concert to a laughable climax. Mr. Carpenter sang the difficult tenor obbligato of this number with unusual ease and assurance. Mr. Carpenter has splendid concert style, is highly gifted in the art of interpretation and his voice is of that nature which easily adapts itself to any style of song he chooses to offer. This was especially noted in his songs by Freer and Homer, which came earlier in the evening, and which were given with great artistry.

Miss Kaufman added greatly to the enjoyment and artistic moments of the concert by appearing twice during the program and singing with all that rare style of delivery, clear enunciation and beautiful dis-

COMMENDATION

after years of service—and by one whose judgment is authoritative
NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

Office of the Dean Music Hall

Gentlemen—The fact that for twenty years the Mason & Hamlin Pianos have been used in our School of Music bears eloquent testimony of the high esteem in which these instruments are held and incidentally certifies to their stability and durability. For many years I have had a Mason & Hamlin Parlor Grand in my own home. Its refinement, its delicacy, its beauty of tone, its mellow sonority and its matchless mechanism never cease to charm and satisfy me.

Yours sincerely,

Peter Christian Luthman

H. M. B.

Evanston, May 19, 1915

TO CABLE PIANO COMPANY

To you who may be considering a Piano as a Commencement Gift we especially commend the

Mason & Hamlin

Musically the most beautiful piano the world has ever known. On exhibition and sale at the warerooms of the play of tone which has won for her the praise of lovers of good singing time and time again and placed her long ago among the most successful and satisfying sopranos now before the public. She sang "Joy of the Morning," by Ware, and "Se Saran Rose," by Arditi, each occasioning the demand for an encore, which came in the forms of "My Laddie" and MacFayden's "Slumber Song."

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson, Chicago

Mr. Lester was an important factor throughout the evening, supplying with utmost care, sympathy and artistry, ideal accompaniments for both chorus and soloists. His part in the concert could not have been improved upon.

The orchestra, which numbers only four members, played two numbers that added pleasure and variety to the good things listed and two of these young ladies played solos that won the approval of the large audience present.

Too much credit cannot be given Mr. Norton for making this concert possible. His conducting was a delight to the eye and an inspiration to the singers and his fame as a conductor was again acclaimed by a vigorous burst of applause on the part of the audience. The Advance Club, which is responsible for this Choral Society, is indeed fortunate in availing themselves of the services of a musician of such excellence as Mr. Norton.

H. M. B.

Corlew—Sunday evening, May 30, Miss Mabel Corlew, contralto, was the special soloist at the First Baptist Church of Ravenswood.

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT PUPILS IN CONCERT

Saturday evening last week in Assembly Hall, Fine Arts building, Anna Groff-Bryant presented pupils of the Lombard College vocal art institute in the annual Chicago recital.

The concert was given by the advanced pupils, who recently appeared in the spring musical series of individual and joint recitals at the Alumni Hall, college Campus, Galesburg, Ill. That Mrs. Bryant has accomplished what she set out to do cannot be doubted if one may judge by the number of talented pupils, who enthusiastically endorse her method of voice production and musical training.

Those appearing on the program gave evidence of having received much that is to be commended and praise meriting, for there was a general excellence of enunciation, good display of musical thought, and praise meriting interpretative gifts that should carry them far in their chosen work.

Miss Margaret McCarl, lyric soprano, opened the program with Bemberg's "Nymphs and Fauns," displaying a voice of good quality and range, covering the requirements of her offerings to a nicety. Arne's "Lass With the Delicate Air," was sung with much unction and "The Chimes," by Worrell, was very effective.

Miss Alexandrine Chabrisson gave a good reading of "One Fine Day" (Puccini), and in a group of songs by Beach, Bergen and Arditi, her fine lyric soprano voice gave genuine pleasure. Particularly good were her presentations of "June" and "Bow-legged Boy."

Miss Ruth E. Brown sang as her opening number, "Habanera," from (Carmen), displaying a contralto voice of good range and power. She employed it to a fine advantage also in a group of songs by Ross, Leoni and Salter.

Miss Ruth E. Heilman gave of her best in the "Aria" from (Louise), and in numbers by Ward-Stephens, Lemon and Cole-ridge-Taylor, she sang with much finish and style, and in good display of voice and musical feeling.

Miss Mac A. Ross disclosed a soprano voice of much beauty. She sang with much taste and finish that was highly enjoyable and praise meriting. Her offerings comprised numbers by Thomas, Haydn, Milder and Ward-Stephens.

The "Cavatina" from (The Queen of Sheba) was sung with a good breadth of style by Miss Viola E. Graber, dramatic soprano. Her second group comprising songs by Parker, Thayer and MacFadyen, were delightful, with many touches of color and shade, and good display of interpretative thought. Miss Frances Eldred, pianist, gave much pleasure by her playing of Schumann's "Vogel als Prophet." Miss Ethel Reynolds is a reader with much talent, and her offering by Van Dyke was very convincing.

Miss Winifred G. Tompkins deserves much praise for the splendid support she gave at the piano throughout the evening.

Mme. Bryant may well feel proud of the enthusiastic manner in which the pupils were received, and it is well to say their progress will be watched with much interest by all who heard the splendid program comprising the best in song literature. H. W. P.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL

A most pleasant incident was the assignment which led me to the Cosmopolitan School of Music on Monday evening. There I found that the graduates from the History, Aesthetics and Post-Graduate-Critical classes, under the leadership of W. Waugh Lauder, had in hand an intellectual banquet. The feast was elaborate, well prepared and entertainers in the best of form, and guests eager for and appreciative of the unique festival. As it progressed from course to course and reached its dessert when Mrs. Bracken presented favors in the way of diplomas to those selected for honors, the enjoyment became keener. It was an unlooked for satisfaction to find this splendid condition of things, where expectant teachers were actually preparing themselves with such thoroughness for their future responsibilities. A compliment goes out unhesitatingly to Mrs. Bracken and her associates for maintaining so valuable an accessory to right training.

The theses, which formed the substance of the evening, were excerpts from the monographs which each graduate had prepared. The most enjoyable feature in hear-

SUMMER SCHOOL
study the
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
Teaching system and HOW to BLEND
Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher
and finish with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
THE ORIGINATOR
LEARN HOW TO TEACH
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Mr. Oscar Deis, Pianist and Teacher,
Director of Piano Dept.
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD MUSIC SCHOOL.
Certificates authorized by State of Ill.
no's. accredited by Board of Education of Chicago
Phone Wabash 4279
SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BUILDING.
218 SOUTH WABASH, CHICAGO, ILL.

ing these was the revelation of personality. No two had resemblance, but all were alive with the keenest of zest, strong with earnestness and with saving grain of humor which must lubricate every healthful survey of what has been done, is being done and has to be done. Miss Marguerite Lauder, Mrs. Elnora Manson, Miss Julia Finney and Miss Elizabeth Layman were the participants, and only lack of space prevents a resume of the excellent productions. As it is, one, can only congratulate the school upon so interesting a department and the students upon so successful an exposition.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

BELDEN AVENUE BAPTIST.

Sunday morning the choir of the Belden Avenue Baptist Church, Mr. A. K. Ekvall director, did some splendid hymn singing, and in anthems by Stainer and Schnecker they sang with surety and a good volume and quality of tone that made their offerings very effective. The choir has improved in many ways since last heard by this writer. The solo parts were well cared for by Mrs. Schultz and Miss Agnes Loughthall.

Mrs. Evabel Clirby Tanner has become very popular as the newly chosen organist, and on this occasion she acquitted herself with credit and should be heard from.

WESTERN CONSERVATORY PROGRAM

Vocal—
Somewhere a Voice is Calling.....	Tate
Yes, Now Thou Art My Spouse.....	Verdi
Robert Jones.
Vocal—
The Asra.....	Rubinstein
Florins Song.....	Godard
Nina Shankland.
Piano—Staccato Etude.....	Rubinstein
William Luckow.
Vocal—
Mentra Gwen.....	Welsh Air
At Dawning.....	Cadman
I Hear a Thrush at Eve.....	Robert Jones.
Vocal—
O Love of Mine.....	Davies
Farewell.....	Schumann
Nina Shankland
Piano—Rigoletto.....	Liszt
William Luckow.
Vocal—
May Song.....	Cowen
Since You Came Back.....	Forster
Robert Jones.
Vocal—
Ask of Yon Ruined Castle.....	Cowen
Der Wanderer.....	Schubert
Nina Shankland.
Piano—Erlking.....	Liszt
William Luckow.
Vocal—
Who Is Sylvia.....	Schubert
Waft Her Angels.....	Handel
Robert Jones.
Vocal—
Thou Shalt Bring Them In.....
Recit.—See She Blushing Turns Her Eyes.....
Air—Hymen Haste! Thy Torch Prepare.....	Handel
Nina Shankland.

Such was the program rendered by three senior pupils of Western Conservatory in the conservatory parlors on last Saturday evening. Nina Shankland and Robert Jones are graduate voice pupils of H. W. Owens, and William Luckow is a graduate piano pupil of E. H. Scott, president of the school. Miss Shankland has a good contralto voice, of strong dramatic possibilities. She has had considerable experience in the concert field, which experience added to the interest of the work on this occasion.

Mr. Jones' tenor voice is clear, flexible and of appealing quality, and should insure him a successful future musically, if he continues in that line.

Both these singers' work showed the intelligent coaching that they have had from Mr. Owens, especially on the oratorio selections, a field in which Mr. Owens excels.

William Lukow was in every way a credit to Mr. Scott's method of instruction, playing with commendable technic and taste. Especially brilliant was his playing of the Liszt arrangement of "Erlking."

Haydn Owens aided the vocalists with reliable piano accompaniments. C. J. B.

---F---
Fiebach—Mr. Forrest Glenn Fiebach played a piano recital at the Charlotte, Mich., High School last Monday morning when, in a program of works of light caliber, exactly suited to the needs of the hour, he made a great success with the pupils Mr. Fiebach attended the May Festival at Ann Arbor last week.

---F---
Austin—The annual June Festival of the Handel Oratorio Society, under Miss Ida Belle Freeman, will be given at the First Baptist Church in Austin on Tuesday evening, June 15, when a Dudley Buck program will be given. Among the soloists will be Florence E. Boydston, organist and Julian Mogenson, tenor.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY COMMENCEMENT

In conformity with its usual plan the Northwestern University School of Music presented its annual commencement concert in the great gymnasium on the university campus on Thursday evening of last week.

The place is very large and the test to which pupils are subjected in an appearance there is very searching, but the Northwestern pupils met this test bravely and came off, in each individual case, with flying colors.

As usual, also, the very fine School of Music Symphony Orchestra, under direction of Harold E. Knapp, was a big feature in the evenings work and enjoyment.

Not only were exceptional accompaniments provided for all the arias and concerts, but also the orchestra played a Bach-Abert "Choral and Fugue" with solidity and brilliance of style and were distinctly professional in their reading of a movement from the symphony No. 7 of Beethoven.

Jessie Elizabeth Anderson, a pupil of Carl Beecher, played the Beethoven "Concerto for Piano, Op. 15," with clarity and crisp style. Elizabeth Muse, pupil of Victor Garwood, was extremely musical and wholly in conformity with the composer's demands that she be just a part of the orchestra in the "Variations Symphoniques," by Cesar Franck. Elizabeth Seaman Catterall, pupil of Arne Oldberg, displayed a properly suave and technically sure reading of the Chopin, Op. 11, and Bertha Florence Harbaugh, pupil of Miss Cameron, was really virtuosic in the Greig, Op. 16.

Mabel Marsh, a pupil of Walter Allen Stults, showed herself the possessor of a fine dramatic soprano voice in the "Ave Maria" from Verdi's "Othello," and proved also that her training has been along most careful and authentic lines. She found it possible to adequately fill the immense spaces of the gymnasium, and in a climax near the end of the work rose to a real dramatic power and splendid effect.

The "Cavatine," from Gounod's "La Reine de Saba," showed Marjorie Anna Mitchell, pupil of G. A. Grant-Schaefer, to excellent advantage, her voice being clear, bell-like and very resonant, while Charles Maschal Dennis, also a Grant-Schaefer pupil, was brilliant, forceful and entirely convincing in the "Toreador Song," from "Carmen."

C. E. W.

Stapleton-Murray—Marie Stapleton-Murray has been engaged to sing the role of "Aida" in Verdi's opera at Saratoga, N. Y., June 18. This is the second time Mrs. Murray has sung this part within thirty days, and her fourth appearance at Saratoga within a year.

Bollman—Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman presented her voice pupils in recitals in Rockford, Ill., on May 24 and 25.

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Pupils of Carrie Scott, Joel Mossberg and W. H. Simons presented the following program in a complimentary recital at the Mendelssohn Conservatory of Music, 218 South Wabash avenue, on Tuesday evening:

Quartet—Light Cavalry.....F. Ritter

Alma Kalseim.
Bertha Lunde.
Genevieve Larson.
Abbie Hansen.

Piano—Salut a Pesth, Op. 13.....Kowalski
Carrie M. Hanson.

Violin—Concerto in G Minor.....Viotti
Myrtle Linner.

Piano—Mazurka.....Bohm
Lillie Highland.

Vocal—
The Swallows.....Cowen
Burst Ye Apple Buds.....Emery

Lilly Larsen.

Piano—Valse, Op. 27.....Chopin
Genevieve Larson.

Trio in G Minor.....F. Mazas
Allegretto.
Andante.
Allegro.

Mendelssohn Trio.

Piano—Etude, Op. 10, No. 8.....Chopin
Lucy Bellerive.

Vocal—
Love's Sorrow.....Shelley
Within the Garden of My Heart.....Scott
Eric Lindholm.

Piano—Military March, Op. 51.....Schubert-Tausig
Hazel Olson.

Trio in C Minor.....F. Mazas
Allegro Moderato.
Andantino.
Rondo.

Mendelssohn Trio.

Vocal—
The Cry of Rachel.....Salter
The Quest.....Smith

Lucy Lee Livingston.

Violin—Concerto in D.....Ortmans
Roland Klug.

Piano—Sonata, Op. 2, No. 3—First Movement
Beethoven
Andrew MacCallum

As a glance at the program will show, the compositions were selected from widely varying schools and periods, and in just as varied degree difficult.

The presentation of the program revealed some excellent musical talent. Especially noteworthy was the piano playing of Miss Lucy Bellerive and Mr. Andrew MacCallum. A pleasing tenor voice was revealed in the singing of Mr. Eric Lindholm.

The parlors of the conservatory were filled to overflowing with an audience which gave the performers much hearty appreciation.

— # # # —

JOHN RANKL

John Rankl will sing the following group of songs at Winnetka, Thursday evening, June 10, at Christ Church parish house:

J'ai pleure en Reve.....Hue
Old Fashioned Town.....Squire
Eventide.....Dietrick
Gallie (Southern Serenade).....Mokrejs

— # # # —

Platz—Thursday evening, June 10, Mr. Artur Platz was the accompanist for Mme. Julia Claussen at the Swedish Club.

GARY MUSICAL CLUB

The Gary (Ind.) Musical Club presented Mrs. Clara Edmunds Hemingway in a very attractive "composer's program" at the Y. M. C. A. in that city recently, when she scored a big success in the following diversified list:

Piano—
Waltz
Mazurka
Slumber Song

Mrs. Lida Browning White

Reading—Th' Cherry Tree
Mrs. Hemingway

Soprano solos—
"Yesterday"—Words by Alice E. Allen.

Dawn—A spring song.
Miss Frances Batt

Contralto duet—The Dream River—Words by U. S.
Miss Lillian Wilhelm—Mrs. Hemingway

Violin—A Dream
Mrs. Walter Scott MacNabb

Baritone solos—
I'm Thinkin' o' You.

Twilight—Words by Sara Teasdale.
With violin obbligato, played by Mrs. MacNabb

Mr. Edwin C. Edmunds

Reading—The Tale of a Teapot.
Mrs. Hemingway

Contralto solos—
June Lullaby—Words by Will Reed Dunroy

Remembrance
Summer

Miss Lillian Wilhelm

Whistling solos—
Pixies in the Heather

The Spanish Dancer
Mrs. Hemingway

Bass solos—
Across the Dusk.....Scollard

Red Roses.....Wheeler
Mr. Forrest Rundell

Piano—Storm Witches
Reading—
Mr. Rundell

Piano solo—
Mrs. Hemingway

— # # # —

Calkins—Mr. Elton Calkins has been engaged for the position of tenor soloist in Christ Church, Winnetka, Ill.

"WILL O' THE WISP"

Scherzo-Toccata for the Organ

By Gordon Balche Nevin

has been given the strongest testimonials of any organ number published for years. It takes splendidly with the public, and is a most grateful piece to play.

Price, 75c

subject to sheet music discount.
Procure through your dealer or

CLAYTON F. SUMMY CO.
PUBLISHERS

64 E. VAN BUREN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

MONICA GRAHAM SOPRANO
Columbia School of Music

STULTS BASS

WALTER ALLEN --
303 KIMBALL HALL

CEDRIC W. LEMONT
PIANO AND COMPOSITION
715 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL
SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL
BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

EDNA DUNHAM
Soprano
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

Allen W. Bogen
CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER
RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

Mrs. Charles L. Krum
SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY
800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

EDWARD COLLINS
PIANIST
528 Fine Arts Building. Tel. Harrison 3766

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.
Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

At the Fourth Presbyterian Church on last Thursday afternoon a double treat of much value was offered in the fact that Mr. DeLamarter played an unusually indicative and worthy program and Cora Zimmerling Libberton, soprano, was heard in five of the "Biblical Songs," by Dvorak, to splendid advantage.

Mrs. Libberton has a voice at once flexible and warm—the technical aspects of the difficult Dvorak opus have no terrors for her—but far more important, the quality of her voice and the great intelligence of her musical readings work together so excellently that such a group of songs as this is given by her with rare style and wonderfully impressive effect.

Full of intensity are these songs, full also of musical charm (albeit, very introspective), and the interpreter must needs, to be successful, have a perfect enunciation as also a very real poetical grasp of the expressive text. All these virtues Mrs. Libberton brought to her task and the result was one of pure delight. If any particular number needs be singled out as best it would be, to this writer, the "God Is My Shepherd," which was indeed exquisite.

Mr. DeLamarter opened with a gay "Spring Song," by Bonnet, and followed this with an impressive and highly colored reading of the "Sonatina in A," by Karg-Elert.

A "Scherzo-Caprice," by Bernard, was brilliant even to the limit of the wonderful fourth organ, the "Angelus," by Bossi, charmingly introduced the chimes, and the "Fantasie," (Saint-Saens), opus 101, offered wide scope for impressive and even startling registrations which was promptly utilized by Mr. DeLamarter, who is an organist of charm and style, to say nothing of transcendent technic.

These organ recitals are given at the Fourth Presbyterian Church (free to the public) every Thursday afternoon at 4:30, winter and summer, the program for next Thursday, June 24, being as follows:

Prelude and Fugue in D.....	Dubois
Priere.....	Jongen
Scherzetto.....	Rousseau
Sonata—The Ninety-fourth Psalm.....	Reubke
In Memoriam (Titanic).....
Ariel.....	Bonnet
Angelus du Soir.....
Finale (Symphonie II).....	Widor
On June 24, Mr. Lemuel Kilby, baritone, will assist in the following program:
Chorale-Prelude—Herzlich thut mich verlangen.....	Brahms
Symphony for Organ, No. 3.....	Vierne
Allegro maestoso
Cantilene
Intermezzo
Adagio
Final
Cantabile.....	Jongen
A Hymn of Praise.....	Eric DeLamarter
(Solo cantata for baritone)
Sortie.....	Rousseau
	C. E. W.

American Conservatory—The annual commencement concert and exercises of the American Conservatory will take place at the Auditorium Thursday evening, June 17. A full orchestra under the direction of Adolf Weidig will assist. The number of post graduates, graduates and teachers' certificate classes will be 207. The program will be of unusual merit.

A NEW CANTATA

Hemenway Methodist Episcopal Church is a cozy little edifice situated near Main street, Evanston. The music in this church is furnished by a quartet whose personnel is as follows, viz.: Mrs. Mamie Rankin, soprano; Miss Rime, alto; Mr. Eastman, tenor, and Mr. Long, baritone, under the direction of Irving Wyckoff, organist. On the occasion of this writer's hearing, they offered a cantata by Harry Alexander Matthews, called "The Conversion," and having to do with incidents in the life of Saul. Like all of the compositions from the pen of this author, it is churchly in style and withal, somewhat difficult. It is no small tribute to the genius of Mr. Wyckoff as an organist and director, to say that the setting forth of this work as accomplished by his forces was wholly praiseworthy. The quartet has been together only through the present season and when one considers this fact, the blending of the voices attained was quite out of the ordinary. Dynamic effects of considerable variety were in evidence as well as well defined rhythmic pulses. The enunciation was admirable, in fact, being of such clarity as to make the printed word superfluous. Each of the voices had solo bits of considerable length and in every instance the effect attained was good. Mrs. Rankin exhibited a soprano of beautiful quality and extended range and she sings with pleasing simplicity and ease. Mr. Long's voice is a mellow baritone of splendid possibilities and he read his part with commendable feeling and musicianship, as did also the tenor, Mr. Eastman. The alto for the day was a substitute whose name we were unable to learn, but who sang her few measures effectively.

Special mention should be made of the clean cut and incisive manner in which Mr. Wyckoff played the hymns. Moreover they were all taken at a good tempo, thus doing away with the distressing feeling of lagging so much in evidence in many churches.

W. A. S.

MAY FESTIVAL AT AUSTIN

The annual June festival concert of the Handel Oratorio Society, Tuesday evening, June 15, at the First Baptist Church of Austin, will be a testimonial to its musical director, Miss Ida Belle Freeman. Miss Freeman has been musical director since the society's organization and this concert is intended as an expression of its appreciation of her success in guiding it from a local singing club to an oratorio society of established reputation, employing Chicago's best soloists in its concerts. The program will consist entirely of Dudley Buck numbers, including some of his best sacred and secular compositions for solo, male, female and mixed voices.

The assisting soloists will be those most definitely connected with Miss Freeman's work as director of the society.

The society's annual banquet will be held at the First Presbyterian Church of Austin, Friday, June 11, at 6:30 p. m.

Youngstown—At the annual May festival in Youngstown, Ohio, this week the chief soloists were Christine Miller and Paul Alt-house.

A SPLENDID RECITAL

The following program was given at the Auditorium Recital Hall on last Saturday evening by pupils of Caroline Marshall, and is printed in full here, because, notwithstanding its length, it is a splendid example of a wise choosing of material for a public recital of pupils ranging from primary grades to those distinctly advanced:

The Sleigh Ride	Ellsworth
Byrna Hehr
The Busy Bees	Ellsworth
What the Daisies Said	Ellsworth
Pauline Wolff
Dance Lightly	Gaynor
Jane Allen
The Answer	Newcomb
Robert Gurinian
'Cello Solo	Adams
Gordon Fairclough
Sunbeams	Wing
Murray Royer
Little Conversation	Gaynor
Howard Wolff
Evening Song	Gaynor
Frederick Wolff
Seesaw	Martin
Church Bell	Martin
Dennis McCarthy
Brownies' Dance	Martin
Sallie Conley
Christmas Bells	Kohler
Tom Bowers
Gladys at Play	Mokrejs
Loretta Barnes
The Bee and the Clover	Geibel
Martin Hardin
Rondo	Mokrejs
Simo Morand
To a Wild Rose	MacDowell
Jack Culbertson
The Juggler	Weidig
Virginia Blake
Summer Idyl	Rothleder
Edna Shattuck
Chopin	Godard
Helen Cummings
Shoemaker's Song	Mokrejs
Chester Fairclough
Gavotte in B Minor	Bach-Saint-Saens
Florence Geist
Song of the Brook	Lock
Helen Goss
The Wedding Day	Grieg
Helen Clithero
Minuet, B Minor	Schubert
Helen Kelly
Serenata	Moszkowski
Esther Pomeroy
Scherzino	Mokrejs
Josephine McEnery
Intermezzo	Heller
Margaret Pomeroy
Norwegian Bridal Procession	Grieg
Parker Hardin
Barcarolle	Godard
Katherine Tuohy
Br'er Rabbit (Fireside Tales)	MacDowell
Helen Badenoch
Valse Caprice	Newland
Marie Fairclough
Jugglery	Godard
Mildred Lyon
March Militaire	Schubert-Tausig
Mildred Fash; second piano, Miss Marshall

Only the last half of this program was heard, but this was sufficient to prove Miss Marshall a thoroughly painstaking and artistic teacher.

In the work of her pupils there was no forgetting, no hurrying and no harsh playing.

Peculiarly free from all cloudiness was the work of every pupil and on the other hand there was exceptional shading, a definite amount of mood painting and at all times good taste and sane judgment in the readings.

Miss Marshall's pupils come upon the stage with assurance, they have unusual poise and in each case, on Saturday night, the technical development was amply sufficient for the works given.

All this proves that the Marshall pupils are intelligent and talented and it shows conclusively also, as said at first, that Miss Marshall is an exceptionally careful and artistic teacher.

C. E. W.

— # # # —

Nichols—In just a few more weeks, John W. Nichols, the tenor, goes again to Burlington, Vt., (Lake Champlain), where he opens a summer course for singers and students at the University of Vermont. His wife, the talented pianist, who accompanies Mr. Nichols on his various tours, will teach piano, and they will spend July and August in this summer resort, teaching, giving recitals, and preparing various programs for next season. After finishing last summer's work at the University, Mr. and Mrs. Nichols received the following unsolicited letter from the director of the Summer Schools in appreciation of their services: "Mr. and Mrs. John W. Nichols taught voice and piano in our Summer Schools in 1914. Their work was greatly appreciated and highly recommended by the pupils. Personally they are charming people and their presence here added much to the life of the community. If they come again, as we hope they will, a cordial reception awaits them." —J. S. Messenger, director.

— # # # —

Choir Banquet—The Park Avenue Choir, Haydn Owens, director, gave a banquet at the Railway Club last Tuesday evening which was largely attended. The music was given by Margaret Owens, Miss Jenkins and Miss Colson. Mr. H. W. Owens, former leader of the choir, was a guest.

WOODLAWN METHODIST CONCERT

The Woodlawn Methodist Episcopal Church choir gave a special musical evening May 30. The program consisted of the choir's favorite anthems. In fact the program was entitled "An Evening of Familiar Song." Dr. Elmer Karger Smith sang "Creation's Hymn," by Beethoven. He was enthusiastically received. Woodlawn Methodist Episcopal Church will be glad to hear him many times.

The choir under the direction of Mr. Charles Lutten, who sang "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan, as offertory solo, did splendid work. The choir has been handicapped heretofore by having to sing from a poorly arranged choir loft. For this occasion they had a new platform. And for once the choir was heard to good advantage. It might be a good plan to have the choir loft placed in this new location.

The choir is well balanced. Mr. Stevenson sang the "Sanctus" with a beautiful tone. Mrs. Thompson, Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Ludwig sang the trio in "The Heavens Are Telling." Mrs. J. P. Crane, organist, assisted by Mrs. Charles H. Miller, pianist, played piano and organ duos for prelude and postlude.

D. WRIGHT.

— # # # —

Hewitt—Mrs. Kate Jordon Hewitt has opened a musical and dramatic bureau in the Fine Arts Building, which will certainly fill a long felt need in Chicago and which also, it may safely be predicted, will be conducted along the most progressive and effective lines.

— # # # —

Highsmith-Lyding—Mrs. Mary Highsmith-Lyding, soprano, sang in concert at Rochelle, Ill., on May 31.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

A. RAY CARPENTER

Mr. A. Ray Carpenter, who returned to Chicago last year after much study abroad has, during the season just past, won for himself a distinct place as a teacher and a concert artist in Chicago.

He will spend a part of the coming summer in Los Angeles, his old home, but will return to Chicago to resume his work here in the fall.

After a recent appearance at Chillicothe, Ohio, Mr. Carpenter received a most cordial letter from Wilby G. Hyde on his return to Chicago, a part of which is here reproduced:

A. RAY CARPENTER

Mr. A. Ray Carpenter,
Chicago, Ill.

My Dear Mr. Carpenter:

I am enclosing herewith clippings from the local newspapers, which I promised to send you. The delay has been caused by my absence from home.

These newspaper expressions are not as generous and cordial as that of the audience. If the opinion of the latter is to be judged by the expressions I have heard, as I believe it is.

Of course, your splendid tenor voice met with instant appreciation. One of our best musical critics has said that you are the best tenor ever heard in Chillicothe. Since we have had, especially in recent years, a goodly number of very good tenors, and this opinion comes from a woman who is our most competent critic, it is praise indeed.

Thanking you again,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) WILBY G. HYDE.

KARL BUREN STEIN

Four advanced pupils of Mr. Stein gave a spirited and clever performance of Balfe's comic opera, "The Sleeping Queen," before the Veterans' Association of the Knights of Pythias, last Wednesday evening. The solos and ensembles and dramatic work showed careful and efficient training, from the opening number to the final quartet, which was a splendid climax. The four singers, with Mr. Stein as accompanist, were immediately engaged for a return performance in October.

Omaha—Madame Marie Rappold has been engaged for the Sangerfest at Omaha in July.

WESTERN CONSERVATORY SENIOR RECITAL

Mr. H. W. Owens brought forward on Tuesday (June 1) his graduate voice pupils. Miss Harriet Schnitker and Miss Mayme Jones, and Mr. E. H. Scott; his graduate piano pupils, Miss Irene Keeler, Miss Alice Davies and Miss Josephine Mason. Together these young ladies gave an evening of music that was more than gratifying in its variety and delivery.

Miss Schnitker has a good, well schooled voice, is reasonably sure of herself, and has a feeling for what she does, and has will and intuition of her own in the control of her voice, and what it should say in her singing. She used Spross' "The Wind"; D'Hardelot's "All for You"; Forster's "Midfanway"; Hawley's "Gay Butterfly"; Schumann's "Thou Ring Upon My Finger;" an aria of Delibes; Frelitz "Spray of Roses," and the Handel air, "Return O God of Hosts." There was infinite pains and sincerity in revealing the many moods of the splendid list.

Miss Jones' selections included Spross' "Yesterday and Today"; Bond's "Pink Rose"; Schubert's "Serenade"; Eden's "What's in the Air"; Welsh airs by Davis, and an unknown author; the waltz song from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," and Costa's "I Will Extoll Thee," from "Eli." As evidenced by the songs, her forte lies in the direction of coloratura, and she compassed the elaborate demands capitally, with confidence and ease and with unflinching sym-

"Sang with great effect. 'Vision Fugative.'"—Chicago Tribune.

GRANT HADLEY

BARITONE

Auditorium Building, Chicago

pathy. Because of their variety the songs sung in the soft-flowing tongue of the Welsh made a lasting impression upon the reviewer. There was all sorts of tenderness and longing in the words and tones.

Miss Keeler chose Raff's brilliant "Polka de la Reine," which it was good to hear again. It has been neglected of late for things no more worthy. It offers many and effective moments for the pianist, and is so musical in its thought that it gives pleasure to auditors. Miss Keeler met its requirements by evidently well prepared means, and is entitled to heartiest commendation.

Miss Davies was in excellent form to give a well rounded performance of another old favorite, the Mendelssohn "Rondo Capriccioso," and its tunefulness and cheerful spirit met with like response from those who applauded the well played number.

Miss Mason essayed successfully the Chopin "Scherzo," and did it with fine spirit, and in the quieter middle section was very satisfactory indeed.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Boise—The Thalia Choir of Boise, Idaho, under direction of Dwight Edrus Cook, gave an exceptionally interesting and successful program at the First Methodist Episcopal Church on last Thursday evening.

A. DUDLY BUCK PROGRAM

The program of the Dudley Buck recital to be given at the First Baptist Church in Austin on Sunday evening, June 15, under direction of Ida Belle Freeman (to whom it is a testimonial), reads as follows:

Organ Processional—Triumphal March.
Miss Adams.
Anthem—Arise Shine
The Handel Society.
Solo—My Redeemer and my Lord.
Miss Eden.
Anthem—Sing Alleluia Forth.
The Baptist Quartet
Florence Boyd took at the organ
Solo—How Long Wilt Thou Forget Me.
Julian Mogenssen.
Duet—Wedding March—Piano and organ.
Mrs. Haefner and Miss Adams.
Solo—I will lay me down in peace—The Triumph of David.
Miss Brigg.
Anthem—The Alleluia Sequence.
The Presbyterian Quartet.
Solo—Judge Me O God.
Mr. Severinghaus.
Anthem—Te Deum in E flat.
The Handel Society.
Songs—
Evening Hymn.
Morning Invocation.
Ladies Chorus.
Solo—Sunset.
Mr. Hamilton.
Violin Obligato—Rex A. Rathbun
Chorus—Hymn to Music.
The Handel Society.
Songs—
There's a Merry Brown Thrush.
Down by the Mill.
Miss Helgesen.
Piano—
Dance of the Gnomes.....Lisz.
Polonaise—A Flat Major.....Chopin
Mary MacMillan.

Songs—
Spring's Awakening.
Where the Linden Blooms.
Mr. Henning.

Songs—
On the Sea.
Vocal Combat.
Male Chorus.

Songs—
Creole Love Song.
It was a Lover and His Lass.
Mr. Eldredge.
Song—When the Heart is Young.
The Handel Society.

ST. ALBAN'S

The music at St. Alban's Episcopal Church, Forty-third street and Prairie avenue, on Sunday evening, June 13, will be sung by three choirs, St. Cecelia choir of Church of the Redeemer, Francis A. Mackay, director; St. Cecelia choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, John A. Richardson, director, and St. Alban's parish choir, Robert R. Birch, director.

The musical program will include "Jerusalem, O Turn Thee," by Gounod; "Remember Not, Lord, Our Offences," by Marks, and "Psalm of Thanksgiving," by Allitsen.

The assisting soloists will be Ada Maude Cook, soprano; Miss Dorothy Irvine, soprano, and Mr. William Lawler, baritone.

The service is under the direction of, and will be played by, Robert R. Birch, organist and choirmaster of St. Alban's Church.

Wilford—Mrs. J. E. Wilford gave a pupils' recital at the home studio of the Wilfords in Maywood on Saturday afternoon. The annual public recital of the studio will be given at Library Hall in Maywood this (Friday) evening.

AMERICAN GUILD OF VIOLINISTS

The American Guild of Violinists (Chicago chapter) held its fifth annual convention at Hotel Sherman June 3, 4 and 5.

The purpose of the violinist guild is relatively the same as the "music teachers' associations" (standardization of the violin profession).

The first program was given Thursday evening with Mr. Herbert Miller, soloist.

The Sinding quintet for piano and string was indeed a very attractive choice as an opening number, played in a solid and musical manner by Messrs. H. Kortschak, R. Rueter, H. Felber Sr., L. Sametini and H. Felber Jr. Particularly fine was the ensemble work of the quintet in the "Andante" and "Intermezzo." The "Allegro" was enjoyable but not convincing. Messrs. A. Sebald and H. Levy presented Mr. Levy's "Sonata" for violin and piano. The work itself is well thought out and musically attractive. The "Adagio" and "Scherzo" are especially well written and melodious. Mr. Sebald and Mr. Levy gave it a superb reading, winning the enthusiastic approval of the audience.

Misses Wally Heymar Winifred Townsend, Amy K. Jones and Katherine Conlon, gave a spirited reading of Hellmesberger's "Romance" for four solo violins, that was highly enjoyed. Herbert Miller's splendid baritone voice was heard to fine advantage in songs by Brahms and Loewe. His artistry is fine and his interpretations musically. He was at his best in "Die Manacht" and the "Erkling."

The Tschaiakowsky "Sextet" for strings ("Souvenir de Florence") was the closing number of the long and interesting program. From all reports it was given a masterly presentation. H. W. P.

Second Evening

The beautiful music room in the Sherman House proved a partial delusion. For in the adjoining Red Room gay strains of an unclassical school burst through the walls at times and at one time threatened to wreck the elaborate music prepared for the second evening. The music room, but for such untoward disturbances, is about ideal for chamber music. Its style of decoration and furnishing belongs to the period when chamber music flourished more fully.

The superb Svensden quintet for strings opened the evening, and once under way was done with a very good ensemble. The compliment must be paid all the participants in the varied concerted efforts during the guild meetings, of rarely good team work. Either there had been much careful rehearsal or else unusual understanding. This Svensden music is warm and rich in the coloring we grow to expect from the northern composers, and with the veteran Listemann at the first violin stand, Miss Mabel Woodworth and Melvin Martinson splendidly seconding and Hugo Kortschak at viola and Day Williams' cello, there were some rousing effects. Mr. Kortschak made splendid work of the excerpts from Mr. Adolph Brune's sonata. His tone is so vibrant with feeling and he played with a vigor that was compelling. The final number was Wolf-Ferrari's piano quintet, done excellently by Mrs. Knapp and the University String Quartet. It proved not to be a serious work but rather a series of bright color sketches worked out pleasantly.

Mrs. Eugene Yahr was set down for two groups of songs and used her feminine privilege and changed her mind about them. Her first number was Fide's great air from Meyerbeer's "Prophet," and for next group the Schubert "An die Music," and Brahms' "Meine Liebe est grun." Mrs. Yahr is a notable exponent of the best German style. She is noble in appearance and carriage and adds to these the poise and authority that come from intimacy with what is uttered. Her diction is not least of her convincing qualities, and the voice is big and lustrous, and the dramatic import is ever to the front. She made an unquestioned impression and received hearty applause.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

h h h

Last Concert

The last program of the guild was given Saturday afternoon. The concert opened with Stillman-Kelley's "Quintet" for piano and strings in F sharp minor, op. 20, not heard by this writer, who arrived in time to hear Mrs. Eugene Yahr, contralto, give authoritative and musicianly readings of Schubert's "Du Bist die Ruhe," and Dvorak's "Als Die Alte Mutter." Her second group comprised numbers by Protheroe and Coleridge-Taylor. Her interpretation of "Life and Death" was drawn along broadly dramatic lines that was very effective.

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE

419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

ive. "Sometimes" was well done and met with fine favor. Miss Stella Byrum played splendid accompaniments.

Leonard's "Serenade Humorstique d'Espagnole," for violins, was played in a very spirited manner by eight talented musicians, who seemed to enjoy the playing as much as the audience enjoyed hearing them play.

J. A. Carpenter's excellent "Sonata" in G, for violin and piano, was played by L. Sametini and R. Rueter, in their usual manner, and much enjoyed.

A string orchestra, under the direction of Bernhard Listemann, gave good renditions of the "Theme and Variations," and "Menuetto," from Mozart's "Divertimento," that were thoroughly enjoyed. The "Slumber Song" (Hoffman), was the closing number on the splendid program. H. W. P.

RADANOVITS STUDIO NOTES

Miss Isabel Richardson gave a recital before the Western Illinois State Normal School, Macomb, Ill.

h h h

Alpha Henriksen sang for the Swedish Singing Society, under direction of Joel Mossberg, at Wicker Park Hall.

h h h

Hattie L. Mann sang before the Baron Hirsch Society at the Auditorium.

h h h

Wa-Tah-So has signed a twelve week contract with John Philipp Sousa.

MUNRO PUPILS' RECITAL

There is always bubbling enthusiasm and high good spirits in the Munro studios, as well as thought and taste in the decoration, when a recital is on. Mr. Munro and Miss Love have a way of making every one feel at home, and the pupils receive so much warm-hearted encouragement that it is a constant incentive for the best of endeavor.

At the recital on Saturday evening the program was abbreviated by the absence of three participants. Mr. Munro refused to heed the suggestion that he fill the vacant spaces. The initial numbers were given by Clarence Hokenson, a likeable young man with a good voice, who sang the "Minstrel Boy," and Hasse's "Vesper Hymn," very well indeed. Following came a brilliant surprise in the person of Helen Collins, who is the possessor of a light, flexible voice and gifted with a natural style that charms, and her progress admits of her using effectively the "Villanelle" of Del'Acqua, bristling with much ornamentation, and demanding a good many adjuncts which only the mature singer can supply. She made excellent work of it, as well as of the coquettish "Chrysanthemum," which is one of Mrs. Salter's real gifts to the soprano repertoire.

The singer and the song came together when Dr. Sylvester Ridley sang the Woodforde-Finden "Flower of All the World." He has a tenor voice of unusually beautiful quality, and already uses it with a choice sense of its value. Hendy Highland is almost as rich in the other sort of voice, a big, resonant bass, that carries excellently and lent itself well to the delightful old song of Lohr, "Out on the Deep." It is very well worth frequent hearing, even though it has not the usually hall mark of acceptance. Gilberte's "Little Red Ribbon" enabled Mr. Highland to show the range of his voice, while it revealed a song simply ideal in its construction and musical utterance. Miss Florence Bierman has a voice of great power and resonance, and has much musicianship also to commend her offerings. She used Parker's "Gipsy Maiden" as a vehicle, but it hardly seemed worthy the labor. Marshall's "I Hear You Calling" was also done by her, and merits praise.

Mrs. Elsa McMynn, who had been playing the best kind of accompaniments all evening, supporting and steadying and enriching the various contributions, now relinquished her seat and proceeded to furnish a marked furor. For she sang in a simply stunning manner the two big "Carmen" songs. There was such a sense of their vitality, such an absorbing of the ugliness and surliness lurking under the gipsy's coquetry, and such an ability to voice the many sentiments of teasing, and coaxing and irritating which were the undoing of the unfortunate Jose, that the pictures came of themselves. It was a rare bit of real artistry as brilliant and effective as it was surprising.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

h h h

Paynter—Miss Marguerite M. Monnet, a voice pupil of William G. Paynter in Kimball Hall, sang the part of the Plaintiff in the "Trial By Jury" performances at the Wendell Phillips High School last week, scoring a fine success.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A.M. Thorston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif.
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 429 Edgcomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
one Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

MR. AND MRS. BERGEY PRESENT PUPILS AT THE CONGRESS HOTEL

In the Francis First room at the Congress Hotel on last Sunday afternoon a splendid audience was richly repaid for effort of coming in the unusual heat of the afternoon by a program made up jointly of splendid piano numbers by pupils of Mrs. Bergey and a brilliant list of songs by the voice pupils of Theodore S. Bergey.

The function was under the auspices of the Bergey Chicago Opera School and proved very conclusively the value of this institution, for Mr. Bergey is certainly a voice teacher of ideas and force, while Mrs. Bergey, an ideal accompanist, is a teacher of piano whose work will rank with the best.

Miss Florence Benson, heard several times previously and commented on in Music News, steadily advances and is now a very promising young artist. Her best number was the "Etude Fantastique," by Friml.

Irving Engle, still a youth, has brilliant technic and considerable pianistic style. He played the "G Minor Ballade," (Chopin), and the "Staccato Etude," by MacDowell.

Miss Martha Meier gave an unusual number and was both musically and technically sufficient in a little used "Menuet," by Sherwood, and a glittering little tidbit of MacDowell, entitled "Joy of Autumn."

Clarence Stroupe, the last of the quartet of pianists, was very suave in a "Romance," by Sibelius, and attained considerable virtuosity in a Chopin "Polonaise."

Miss Mae McMinn, a pure coloratura soprano, sang arias from "Traviata," "Lakme," and "Hecrodade," being convincing in all and particularly musical in the "Il est doux," (Massenet). She also brilliantly held up the soprano score in the "Trio" from "Faust," her associates in a very good reading being Mr. Leslie Voightmann, tenor, and Mr. Hal Burr, baritone, these two also scoring a success in the opening scene from the opera, assuming the roles of Faust and Mephistopheles.

Mr. Voightmann was heard further in the very charming aria for tenor from "La Tosca," and in "Salve Dimora," from "Faust," in which latter piece he negotiated the perilous high note with ease and effect.

Mr. Burr, in his solo group, gave well known songs of Huhn and Homer and closed with "Quand ero paggio," from Verdi's "Falstaff," this constituting one of the most novel bits of the program and proving a vocal delight as well.

Mr. George Simons, whose charming voice and style have been before commented upon in Music News, and which also won him the Lake View Musical Club scholarship a few weeks ago, sang a group with much style and finish, displaying an unusually fine quality. His best number, in the opinion of this writer, was the Brahms "Minnelied," this being exquisite indeed.

Mrs. Frank Ashton, a dramatic soprano of much power and with an exceptionally sweet and flexible voice, was heard in numbers covering both the dramatic and the coloratura styles. Her reading of the "Aida" aria was notably good and in the "Mad Scene" from "Lucia" she was entirely adequate and in some respects remarkable. She sang also in a duet from "Aida" with Mr. Voightmann, intensifying the very good impression of her previous appearances.

Nearly every pupil appearing on this program was one who has studied nowhere else than at this studio and the showing for the Bergey School was certainly one to be proud of and one which will be equalled by but few of the spring functions now offered so freely and generously to the public. C. E. W.

A UNIQUE SONG RECITAL

Miss Mildrid Irene Romsdahl, soprano, gave a song recital at Wicker Park Hall last Wednesday evening which was splendidly attended and which was one of the most unusual programs it has been the lot of this writer to hear this season.

It was remarkably good also, for Miss Romsdahl not only makes a fine appearance and has excellent concert poise, but also she is temperamental to the fullest extent and is able to make her readings glow with interest.

Furthermore, not only has she a splendid voice, clear, sweet and virile, but her technical equipment is equal to the severest demands and these various assets helped her on Wednesday to present a program replete with charm and effectiveness.

The unusual part of the program lay in the fact that out of fourteen songs given by Miss Romsdahl, ten were in the Norwegian language.

This feature was not only novel, but it was one full of delight also, for Miss Romsdahl is mistress of the language and of the Norwegian musical idiom and she made her program alive with authority and interest.

These Norwegian songs were from the pens of Halvdan Kjerulf, Hallstrom, Martens, Grieg, Paulsen and Collan, and while all were fine, and each one brought its full meed of appreciation from the audience (largely Norwegian), the best of all, to this writer, was the "Solveigs Song," by Grieg, and the "Synnoves Sang," by Hjerulf, both well known but sung by Miss Romsdahl with special authority and finish.

In the English text songs Miss Romsdahl showed unusually good enunciation of the language and in every respect she made them both beautiful and intelligent. They were "The Passing Cloud," (Leoni), "I Arise From Dreams of Thee," (Huhn), "A Birthday," (Woodman), "Joy of the Morning," (Ware), and "Just Be Glad," (encore).

Good accompaniments were played by Miss Florence Hedstrum.

Assisting Miss Romsdahl in this program was the Chicago Artists' Quartet, an ensemble which has made much success, the personnel being Miss Hedstrum, Nellie Sturtevant, Carl E. Craven and Alonso Morsbach.

The Fanning "Song of the Vikings" was given with vigor and musical style, and the "Kerry Dance" (encore) was delightful.

A sentimental song by Lohr was well liked and a number from the Lehmann "Persian Garden" showed good musicianship, while the chief effect was made in those old favorites, the "Barcarolle," from "Tales of Hoffman," and the sextet from "Lucia," which, however, at this time were given exceptionally well. Accompaniments for the quartet played by Miss Corine Simpson. C. E. W.

UTHE-BROCK RECITAL

Miss Stella Uthe, pianist, and Mr. Collins Brock, basso, teachers in the Chicago Evangelical Institute, gave a very successful recital on July 4 in the chapel of the Institute. These capable artists have made many friends by their conscientious teaching, and on Friday evening the room was filled by an audience that expressed keen appreciation of the program. Experience and excellent preparedness were in evidence throughout an evening of much musical value and enjoyment.

Miss Uthe gave as the opening group three numbers by MacDowell, Beethoven and Chopin, interpreting each number in a masterly way, with the style and technic of a finished artist. The second offering included works of Mendelssohn, Grieg and Moszkowski, works that could not help but please the audience, and the bursts of applause showed beyond a doubt a wise selection of numbers. Liszt's "Fourteenth Hungarian Rhapsody" ended Miss Uthe's solo work, and this difficult composition was given a very fine rendition in which the pianist gave of her best resources. Besides all the solo appearances, Miss Uthe played fine accompaniments for Mr. Brock.

Mr. Brock is a singer of prominence in Chicago, and the attendance of many old friends served to put him in a singularly happy mood on this occasion. His work was thoroughly artistic and his voice equal to all demands. Songs of Schubert, Bohm, Cornelius and Schumann were first given. In these, marked interpretative gifts were revealed, together with beautiful quality of voice. Particularly impressive was the "Ein Ton" of Cornelius. Four Shakespeare songs in Mr. Brock's second appearance were presented with feeling and intelligence, "Caliban's Song," by Smith, calling forth insistent applause. Songs of Hawley, Lester, Russell, Phillips and Germain closed the program. For these the singer was accorded a fine tribute, and responded with a sacred encore splendidly sung. Mr. Brock has a voice of ample range and volume which has been well trained, and he sings with much musical intelligence. C. W. J.

###

Spalding—Mr. Albert Spalding is to tour the South during the coming season.

Ralph Brokow

VIOLINIST

Wichita, Kas.

GRACE BRUNE MARCUSSON
ORATORIO SOPRANO RECITALS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING

FRANCES INGRAM

CONTRALTO

Management: C. A. SHAW, Orchestra Hall, CHICAGO
MAURICE FULCHER, Representative, McCormick Bldg.

IDA GARDNER

CONTRALTO

Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

GEORGE MILTON LIPSCHULTZ

Teacher

Violinist

Soloist

1117 South California Avenue

Tel. Seeley 4074

RECITAL AT NORTH SHORE SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Miss Ruth Bowen Goodsmith, pianist, assisted by Wilna Soverhill, violinist, and Electa Austin, accompanist, members of the faculty of the North Shore School of Music, Charles J. Haake, director, presented a splendid program in the school's recital hall, Broadway and Leland avenue, on Friday evening, June 4, which was heard and greatly appreciated by a very music loving audience.

Miss Goodsmith had been heard in recital at Evanston earlier in the season with pleasure and to hear her again only strengthened the impression made at that time that here is a young pianist well worthy of commendation. She has received splendid schooling, thanks to Mr. Haake, and her playing denotes a true ring of sincerity for her art as well as a musical nature of rare type.

Miss Goodsmith chose the Brahms "Rhapsody in E Flat" as her opening number and played its brilliant lines with a splendid display of technical powers and good musical expression. However, she excelled the Brahms playing in the "Berceuse," by Chopin, which came later in the evening. This was made wholly charming through a smooth and accurate rhythm combined with a legato production of tone which was excellent. Chopin's "Etude in A Flat" was also well played and in MacDowell's "Post Wagon," Miss Goodsmith again displayed her highly developed gifts in a charming light. The "Romanza in F Sharp," by Schumann, was a welcome addition to her list of offerings and the MacDowell "Etude in F Minor" was raised to an inspiring climax and closed her solo work for the evening amid great enthusiasm and applause.

With the genial and musical Mr. Haake at the second piano, Miss Goodsmith played the Arensky "Third Suite," consisting of ten movements in entirety and deserve unstinted praise for their masterful rendition of this unique and interesting, yet beautiful music. The unity of thought and tone displayed by teacher and pupil was excellent indeed and proved beyond doubt their high attainments as pianists.

Miss Soverhill is a brilliant young violinist who uses her instrument and musical nature with great credit to herself and the school with which she is affiliated. Two movements from the Mendelssohn "G Minor Concerto" were played with great and beautiful tone as well as with delightful phrasing and expression. "A Summer Evening," "Florentine Serenade" and "Tarentella," three splendid numbers by Adolph Weidig, formed a group which Miss Soverhill played later in the program and made another deep impression thereby.

Miss Austin played accompaniments for the violinist that were commendable from every standpoint. She well deserves an equal share in the honors and praise of the evening. H. M. B.

###

Lima—The Woman's Musical Club of Lima, Ohio, is to engage largely American artists for the coming season. Among the first to be definitely decided upon is the distinguished pianist, Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler.

FRANK W.

Van Dusen

PIANO-ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON

4335 Ellis Av.

SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham

PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE

PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK

Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church

PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE

TEACHER OF SINGING

503 Kimball Hall - - - - - CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case

SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSIC

Clarence Eidam

Pianist

Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor

Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 521 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory

Carrie Scott, Director

Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American Violinist

YOST

Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals

Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development and Repertoire

Management Sam T. B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz

Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals

Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel

KIMBALL HALL

MUSICAL COLLEGE
CHICAGO, ILL.

Summer Term

Wm. Clare Hall

TENOR

Will continue teaching
at his studio

428 Fine Arts Building

Throughout June, July
and August

MRS. JESSIE MACK HAMILTON IN RECITAL

Mrs. Jessie Mack Hamilton, at her artistic home studio, 5057 Winthrop avenue, on the afternoon of June 6, sang for a large number of invited guests a program of children's songs.

She had the assistance of Mrs. Grace Keesler as piano soloist and accompanist, and Miss Jeanne M. Boyd, who played the piano part of a group of her own songs.

The program was opened with Miss Boyd's songs, which are still in manuscript, they are a group of five, called "A Child's World." They are written to interpret a group of pictures representing child life by Jessie Wilcox Smith, who gave Miss Boyd permission to use the titles as the names of her songs. Miss Beta Thorpe wrote the verses, and all together they are very charming. They are "In Doors," "The Light," "The Dark," "The Fairy Pool," and "The Mystic Wood."

The words and music are beautifully fitted together, and they were given a most sympathetic reading by Mrs. Hamilton. "The Mystic Wood" was repeated, when new lights and shades were discovered. Miss Boyd's "A Child's World," will, no doubt, meet with a large success.

Mrs. Grace Keesler played "Prelude di Orchestra" and "Polonaise" from "Scenes di Ball," by James Rogers. Mrs. Keesler has brilliant technic and excellent tone, and gave much pleasure to her audience; she played an encore and then gave very sympathetic accompaniments for Mrs. Hamilton's songs.

Mrs. Hamilton had a number of small children as guests; they had places of honor just in front of their hostess, and proved an inspiration with their little upturned, interested faces.

There was variety and humor and artistic interpretation. This was the first time this artist has used a program of childhood songs, but her success was such that it will probably not be the last. The songs were: If No One Ever Marries Me.....James H. Rogers
The Island Where Babies Grow.....James S. Ford
I've Got a Pain in My Sawdust.....Herman Avery Wade
Bowlegged Boy.....Alfred Hiles Bergen
When Mammy's Away.....Merle Kirkman
Go to Sleep Song.....Lulu Jones Downing Little Moccasins.....Liza Lehman
The Soliloquy.....Arthur Somervell

The final number was hardly a child's song but rather a mother's song about her son—an Irish woman's wail—and was comedy as well as pathetic. Mrs. Hamilton was clever, most assuredly in this unusual offering.

M. K. W.

The Apollo Club Will Not Go to California

As published in the daily press of Tuesday and verified later by the president of the Apollo Club. Music News is able to state definitely the fact that the California trip, as planned for the Apollo Club, has been abandoned.

Music News, last week, on authority of the new manager of the club, printed a very strong assurance that the trip would be carried out in full detail, also the statement that the affairs of the club were in excellent condition and that a very prosperous season was in prospect.

On this latter point there is no occasion for change of opinion. Mr. Harrison Wild has scheduled a splendid list of works and has all the plans well under way for a very successful season. Music News will do everything in its power to further the interests of the club during the coming season and wishes for it unbounded success.

This, however, has nothing to do with the California fiasco and an explanation of this is due the public, the club members and Mr. Kinsey, the man who inaugurated the plan and who put in many months of effort toward making it a brilliant success.

At the regular club election this spring, Mr. Carl D. Kinsey was re-elected secretary, but because of disagreements between the board and himself he was not re-elected to the office of treasurer.

Now, it happens in the Apollo Club that the office of treasurer is a salaried position, while that of secretary carries no salary. Mr. Kinsey, therefore, was placed in the position of either resigning or else, carrying out the California trip without any payment therefor. He was willing and anxious to do the latter and asked as a privilege that he might be allowed to finish the great plan which he had begun and which, up to that time, was thoroughly successful.

He was denied this privilege and the managership was voted by the board to the new treasurer.

Mr. Kinsey had no alternative but to resign, and this put the entire responsibility of the management of the trip into other hands.

All the experience and the financial success of Mr. Kinsey were thus thrown away and the inevitable has happened.

RECITAL BY PUPILS OF LOUISE GEORGE

On Friday evening, June 4, a most successful recital, under the auspices of the Chicago Piano College, was given by the pupils of Miss Louise George, at Kimball Hall.

A goodly audience of interested folk came to hear and encourage the young people, who have arrived at various stages of piano playing.

Miss George is a teacher of sterling worth, painstaking and patient, resourceful and tireless. Her large class is an indication that these qualities are appreciated.

The young students evinced in almost every case good hand position, good tone, good phrasing and poise.

Poise especially was exhibited in the case of Kathryn Longwell, whose memory failed her at the last moment, but not her determination, with a little prompting occasionally from her teacher, she stuck to it with splendid grit and came through, colors flying, winning admiration from the audience.

The final number, "Kinder Symphony," (Romberg), Louis Watt, conductor, was a delightful climax, and excellently accomplished. It is more elaborate than the "Hayden Symphony," given by this same group of children one year ago, such work is of great benefit to the young students.

The program is given below:

Twelve O'Clock	Loomis
Lady Bug	Thompson
	Rita Leddy
The Sleighride	Lawrence
	Helen Chandler
The Gypsies are Coming	Rogers
	Lyman Sperry
Little Chickens	Seeböck
	Olive Aitkin
Happy Farmer	Schumann
	David Keiser
Duo—The Riders	Schulitz
	Mary and Anna Kontny
About the Ships at Sea	Rogers
	Berglioth Faleide

Hunting Song	Spindler
	John Longwell
Evening Bell	Kullak
	Mildred Voinow
Duo—Valse	Gurlitt
	Sarah Grinker
The Brook	Karganoff
	Ethel Lewis
Witches' Dance	Schytte
	Catherine Denny
Firefly	Rogers
	Lucille Waymann
With Miss George
Scherzo—Valse	Chaminade
	Marcella Walker
Among The Gypsies	Krentzlin
	Gertrude Kenworthy
Soldiers' Chorus	Richard
	Palmer Clarkson and Harold Ruggles
Les Marguerites	La Fontaine
	Esthes Chase
Three Preludes	Heller
	Paul Garvais
Rustic Echo	Tschaikowsky
	Lois Watt
Arabesque	Von Wilhm
	Florence Byron
La Cinquantaine	Gabriel-Marie
	Catherine Albertelli
Fireflies	Grant-Schaefer
	Kathryn Longwell
Doll Dance	Mercadante
	Dorothy Bouffleur
Laddie	Morey
	George Keiser
Fairy Tale	Merkel
	Naomi Leitz
Cappriccieta	Scharwenka
	Percival Rishel
Valcik	Makrejs
	Louis Linker
March of the Dwarfs	Greig
	Alice Becker
Agitato	Von Wilhm
	Gertrude Wagner
Kinder Symphony	Romberg
	Allegro, Menetto, Adagio, Rondo
Drum	Lucille Waymann
Trumpet	Florence Byron
Triangle	Catherine Denny
Rattle	Berglioth Faleide
Quail	Gertrude Kenworthy
Cuckoo	Mildred Voinow
	Marcella Walker
Nightingales	Gladys Waymann
	Gertrude Wagner
Piano
Conductor	Lois Watt
	M. K. W.

CHICAGO MUSICAL COLLEGE

The forty-ninth annual commencement exercises and concert of the Chicago Musical College will be held in the Auditorium Theater, Tuesday evening, June 15. The soloists will appear with a full orchestral accompaniment. A Symphonie march, by Miss Florence D. Bettray of Racine, Wis., a pupil of the composition class, will also be played by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Carl Reekzeli.

The program is as follows:

Orchestra—Symphonie March.....Florence D. Bettray
Piano—Concerto, Op. 24, C Minor.....A. Brun
Miss Mary Dulsky
Vocal—Aria, Una Voce poco fa—H. Barbieri di Seviglia C. Rossini
Miss Leta Mae Forsaith
Violin—Concerto, Op. 11, A Major.....H. Leonar
Miss Florence Eaton
Piano—Konzertstück, Op. 79, F Minor.....C. Weber
Mr. Frank Mannheimer
Violin—Concerto, Op. 28, A Minor (First Movement) C. Goldmark
Mr. Stanley Church
Vocal—Gebet—Tannhauser.....R. Wagner
Miss Ruby Lyons
Violin—Faust Fantasie, Op. 20.....H. Wieniawski
Miss Claudia Page
Vocal—Aria—Ritorna Vincitor—Aida.....C. Verdi
Miss Naomi Nazor
Piano—Polish Fantasie, Op. 19.....I. Paderewski
Mr. John Wiederhorn
Conferring Degrees, Diplomas and Awarding Medals
Hon. Richard S. Tuthill

—♦♦♦—

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC, 2831
WASHINGTON BOULEVARD

The contest concert given at the Garfield Park Church last Monday evening was one of the best given this season. Part of the program was a contest between seven boys and seven girls. The audience voted 117 to 104 in favor of the girls, the winners each receiving one pound of candy.

The orchestra, under direction of Ralph Reiche, gave two very interesting numbers. A reading given by Mabel Peterson was very much enjoyed, as was the violin solo played by Robert Conffer of the graduating class. Mr. Reiche of the faculty gave an excellent interpretation of the Ballad and Polonaise of Vieuxtemps. The second contest concert will be this (Friday) evening at Warren Avenue Congregational Church, corner Warren and Albany avenues. Over one hundred students take part in these two concerts.

—♦♦♦—

Smith—Next Sunday, June 13, the choir of the Normal Park Baptist Church will present its final special musical service of the season. The major part of the first two parts of Hayden's "Creation" will be sung. The soloists are to be Miss Newell Mainwaring, soprano; Mr. William Griswold Smith, tenor, and Mr. Albert W. Dilling, bass. Miss Beulah Lee Taylor will play the organ accompaniments. Service will commence at 7:30.

—♦♦♦—

Chicago College of Music—The twentieth annual commencement concert and exercises of the Chicago College of Music, Esther Harris, president, will be given at Central Music Hall on Sunday evening, June 27. The very attractive program will be announced later.

—♦♦♦—

Diederich—Mr. Walter A. Diederich, tenor, has been chosen to sing at the Congregational Church of Evanston, for the summer.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood

Paw Paw City,
Mich.

30 Miles from Lake Paw Paw

An Ideal Spot in Which to Spend the Summer
A Musicians Colony Now Forming

Lots for Sale at Low Prices on Time Payments

Cottages at Reasonable Rental

Address LETTIE ESTEL BROWN, Paw Paw City, Mich.

RENE S. LUND

It is the intention of Mr. Lund to appear at regular intervals of eighteen months in song recitals in Chicago. Thus far he has appeared successfully in three. At present he is planning a tour of the Pacific coast for the spring of 1916. As Mr. Lund has made an especial and extensive study of American song literature he feels confident in stating that he has the largest and most attractive repertoire of American songs in use.

A few comments on some of his programs is subjoined:

He has a fine understanding of varied style, a clean-cut enunciation of English, and the power to present his intentions clearly. Further, Mr. Lund has the courage to sing only in the language of the country, and to represent native songs generously and importantly in arranging his program. For the choice and the intelligent presentation of three difficult songs by Eleanor Everest Freer he deserves especial commendation.—Chicago Tribune.

Notable in Mr. Lund's program was a collection of American songs, several being of local inspiration. His voice proved itself to be a sympathetic, well-schooled organ, and his sense of interpretation made his work thoroughly enjoyable to a goodly audience.

Most of all, however, Mr. Lund deserves more than passing compliment upon his courage in selecting unused (read "American") songs, and upon his sincerity in their presentation.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Rene S. Lund appeared in song recital last evening, disclosing a well trained baritone voice and considerable artistic taste in his performance. An attractive feature of his program was the accrediting of the authorship of the poem to each song. As the program was in English this proved a welcome addition.—Chicago Journal.—(Advertisement.)

VIVIAN SCOTT

Miss Vivian Scott is closing a successful year with three pupils' recitals. On Friday evening, June 11, eight of her pupils will appear on the junior program of the Cosmopolitan School of Music. On Saturday afternoon, June 19, at 3 o'clock, her primary and junior pupils will give a two-piano recital on the ninth floor of the Auditorium, and on Friday evening, June 25, John Bennett will appear in a recital at the branch studio of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, 1339 East 47th street.

—♦♦♦—

SUCCESS OF ANOTHER RADANOVITS
PUPIL

The following comment was taken from the Benton Harbor Daily:

Mrs. Louis Schulz of St. Joseph, a wonderful singer, has just returned from a season's study under Sandor S. Radanovits. While twin city friends have often listened to Mrs. Schulz's voice and admired it, they quickly noted the great improvement since studying under the great master of the art in American songs in use. Chicago. (Advertisement.)

—♦♦♦—

Western Conservatory—The Western Conservatory commencement concert will be given in Kimball Hall this (Friday) evening. A very comprehensive program has been prepared.

F
E
R
E
N
C
Z

HEGEDÜS

The Renowned Hungarian Violinist

In America 1915-16

Secretary, Stella Ramsey

2081 Broadway

New York

TWENTIETH YEAR

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Earnest students developed and carried through a most comprehensive course of study, leading to a degree

HARMON H. WATT, ELEANOR F. GODFREY, Directors

304 South Wabash Avenue, Kimball Hall

Chicago, Illinois

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of MUSIC Modern Language
Expression

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address
PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Fallison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDNOWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO
RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place Soprano

DAN S. DENTON

OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwald Avenue CHICAGO

ELISABETH FERGUSON HESS

CONTRALTO
7622 Rogers Ave. Tel. Rogers Park 9968

PUPILS OF GEORGE NELSON HOLT IN RECITAL

Seldom indeed is a program heard so full of musical charm and value as that presented by the pupils of George Nelson Holt in the Columbia School of Music, at Assembly Hall, on last Friday evening.

It is because of this unusual value of individual numbers as well as of the skill in arrangement that the entire program is here reproduced:

The Voyagers Sanderson
When the Daisy Ope Her Eyes Wood

Miss Neely, Miss Pease
Bowl of Roses Clark

In My Garden Liddle
May Roselle James

Invictus Huhn
J. Beach Cragun

Lullaby Cyril Scott
Pearl Ross

Song of Hope Wood
Stars That Light My Garden Russell

Ray Wiedemann
A Birthday Woodman

Agnes Denk
At Parting Troward

Magical June Hilton-Turvey
Leonora Linhoff

Little Gray Home in the West Lohr
My Day Dichmont

George Laing
Across the Hills Rummel

Wind and Lyre Ware
Maude Hulbert

La Ci Darem (Don Giovanni) Mozart
The Swallows (Mignon) Thomas

Miss Hayes, Mr. Johnson
Ye Banks and Braes of Bonny Doon Rogers

Love Has Wings Beulah Hayes

My Heart Is Weary Grieg-Thomas
Prelude Cyril Scott

Blackbird's Song Homer
Sing to Me, Sing Edna Swanson Verhaar

Tender Ties Delbruck
Open Thy Blue Eyes Massenot

Clarence Johnson
Bell Song (Lakme) Delibe-

April Morn Batten
Mrs. Oscar Weissenstein

Spirit Flower Campbell-Tipton
The Morning Wind Branscombe

May the Maiden Carpenter
Mammy's Song Ware

Elizabeth Pease
Five Manuscript Songs—

April Mary Holt
The Wind the Rascal Mabel Lee

Love Is So Strong Mary Eloise Crane
Trouble Chasers Mary Eloise Crane

My Baby Jean Hurford
Season's Lullaby Pearl Barker

Emma Bruce Beck
May Morning Denza

The Star Rogers
Heavenly Aida (Aida) Verdi

Ernest Davis
Accompanists—Miss Elizabeth Pease, Miss Elizabeth

Neely, Mrs. P. S. Hulbert, Mrs. George Nelson Holt

Some of the above numbers which are particularly unhackneyed and especially full of charm and value are "Stars that Light My Garden," "Magical June," "My Day,"

"Love Has Wings," "Tender Ties" and "The Morning Wind."

That Mr. Holt is an exceptional teacher is proven in the quality of his pupils—almost all of them being church singers and teachers.

In the above list it is to be noted that Mr. Cragun has charge of a chorus at the University of Chicago, Mrs. Ver Haar is contralto soloist at the West Side Sunday Evening Club as is also Mr. Davis, while Mrs. Beck is a member of the faculty of the Columbia School—and many others have been heard in various concert and church environment.

The tone of the entire concert was distinctly professional, and the very large and brilliant audience found much to admire and applaud.

It is hardly fair to single out individuals for every one on the program was of marked excellence.

Enunciation is a strong point with the Holt pupils, all being excellent in this respect, and notably so was Ray Wiedemann in the first part and everyone in the second part.

J. Beach Cragun was vital and finished in his number and Clarence Johnson showed extremely good voice.

Mrs. Weissenstein has a remarkable coloratura voice and accomplished some feats that might well be envied by an opera prima donna.

Mrs. Ver Haar has a glorious voice and a distinguished style. She was admired greatly.

Miss Pease showed decided musicianship and finished style and Mr. Davis, the possessor of a phenomenal voice, scored heavily.

This young singer has much vitality and great intelligence and no doubt will go far in his art.

The manuscript songs offered by Mrs. Beck were charming individually and collectively and showed her warm voice and correct interpretative feeling to exceptional advantage. They are all good songs and worthy of attention.

Every pupil, not specifically mentioned, showed the same values and graces of those individually noted in more or less advanced way and every one reflected much credit on the teaching of Mr. Holt. C. E. W.

ETHEL GEISTWEIT BENEDICT

Ethel Geistweit Benedict, dramatic soprano, is adding engagements to her list in spite of the fact that the season is so near a close. She is kept very busy with her work at the Second Congregational Church, Oak Park, where she is soprano soloist. The director at this church believes in putting on good music and he is not afraid of rehearsing to perfect it. During the past few months several musical services have been given very successfully. Using a number of masterpieces, including Brahms's "Requiem," Mendelssohn's "Hear My 'Requiem,' Mendelssohn's "Sollenelle." In all these Mrs. Benedict had a chance to use her voice, which is peculiarly equipped for church singing.

On May 10 she gave a recital in Assembly Hall, Fine Arts building. May 11 sang for Eastern Star banquet, Austin. June 8 gave a program of songs, with Arthur Randolph Fraser as accompanist, at the home of Mrs. F. R. Godolphin, Oak Park. On June 17 she will sing at the T. R. U. Club banquet, Hotel Plaza, Oak Park and on June 20 she will again be the special soloist for the Englewood Sunday Evening Club.

Aside from her solo engagements Mrs. Benedict is still doing a great deal of organ work. She is organist for Austin Eastern Star order. During the summer months while her quartet is having vacation she will substitute for Mr. Carl Kinsey at the First Congregational Church, Oak Park.

Bender—Blanche Hammond Bender, contralto, appeared in song recital at Ladd, Ill., on June 8.

The Hardman Piano

(Established 1842 in New York)

Recognized by the World's Greatest Vocal Artists and Musicians generally as the most perfect instrument to accompany the voice, and used exclusively in the homes of

CARUSO, TETRAZZINI, ZENATELLO, SLEZAK,
AND MANY OTHERS.

"A wise man profits by the experience of others"

Read what they have to say and remember that the same service and quality is at your command. Let us send you our booklet EXPRESSIONS OF OPINION, which contains half-tone pictures of the best known Operatic Stars.

Most reasonable in price among the few Artistic Pianos.

Uprights, $450.00 up. Grands, $700.00 up.

F. S. SPOFFORD, Chicago Representative
Seventh Floor, Republic Building,
State Street, Corner Adams.

FESTIVAL SERVICE AT CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER

A week ago Sunday there was a combination of Trinity, Christ and Redeemer choir in festival services at Trinity and Christ Churches (afternoon and evening) and last Sunday evening these same forces were augmented by the choir of St. Paul's in a very special service at the Church of the Redeemer, the four masters being Irving Hancock, Mason Slade, John Allen Richardson and Francis Mackay, and the singers totaling 200 voices, Mr. Mackay playing the service with great dignity and good musical effect.

The occasion was not only a religious festival, but was also in the nature of a silver wedding celebration for the Reverend John Henry Hopkins, rector of the church, and his wife, the day being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

News of the special character of the service had evidently been well circulated and hundreds of people desiring admission found it impossible to enter the church. All the anterooms and vestibules were packed with standees, the sidewalks were crowded, rows of people were perched on the railings surrounding the church grass plots and across the street, where a new building is in course of erection, every vantage spot of building material was swarming with humanity.

It is altogether likely that three times as many people tried to get in as the church would accommodate.

Of course, it was hot and uncomfortable inside, but everybody stayed to the end and enjoyment of the beautiful service was keen.

Preliminary to the service, a fine treat was offered in the form of a short organ recital by Mr. Hancock, who used the organ to the very fullest extent of its possibilities and demonstrated excellent technic and fine musicianship in the following numbers:

Burlesca E Melodia.....Baldwin
Spring Song.....Mendelssohn
Gothique Suite.....Boellman
Introduction—Choral
Menuet Gothique
Prayer to Notre Dame
Toccata
Menuet Gothique
Prayer to Notre Dame

Romanza.....Low-Brewer
Fanfare.....Shelley

The full choral service by Yallis was used.

with the Cruickshank "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis" and the "Te Deum" in B flat by Stanford. These were beautifully sung as also the Processional and Recessional hymns (done with great pomp and circumstance) and the "Hallelujah" (Messiah) was a repetition of the brilliant and effective reading given the previous Sunday.

In honor of the anniversary the first anthem, "Faithful and True," developed into the Lohengrin "Bridal Chorus," sung with much beauty by the magnificent choirs.

There was much felicitation and giving of presents and at the close of the sermon Dr. and Mrs. Hopkins went through the

Grant Kimbell

TENOR

Oratorio Recital Concert

Mr. Kimbell has appeared with
Chicago Apollo Club
Chicago North Shore Festival
Bach Choral Society

Soloist at
First Congregational Church, Oak Park
B'Nai Sholom Temple Israel

730 Fine Arts Building
309 F. 49th St. (Drexel 8519)

marriage ceremony and after the Recessional marched down the center aisle to the spirited playing of the Mendelssohn "Wedding March" by Mason Slade.

Altogether a very interesting service and one calculated to encourage the growth of fraternal feeling among all the singers of the various choirs.

To Mr. Mackay is due much praise for planning and carrying out the service and an equal amount goes also to all the assisting choirs and masters. C. E. W.

Ellison—Miss Edna Ellison sang on Monday evening, May 24, before the Sioux City Musical Art Society, her numbers including Lily Wadhams Moline's "Karoekens Vag" and "In Slumberland," with the composer at the piano.

ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock a junior recital will be given by pupils of Miss Zeigler, Miss Wallis, Mrs. DeVore, and Miss Valentine, at the home of the school, 1535 Hyde Park boulevard. This is the first of a series of six recitals to be given during June.

The summer school opens June 28, which will offer splendid opportunities along all lines of musical study. The ensemble class will be under the direction of Mrs. Jesse DeVore and Mr. Walter Braner, cello, musical history and the relative studies.

Public school music and private voice lessons, Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin.

Theory and harmony, class work, Miss Julia Zeigler.

Piano lessons, Mrs. Orchard, Miss Zeigler and Miss Wallis.

Mrs. Jessie DeVore, violin.

Mrs. Orchard strongly urges pupils who are still in school to utilize the summer months in preparing those studies which are necessary to teacher's certificate and graduation. The June 12 program follows:

Rock a By Baby.....	Gaynor
Happy Prince.....	Russell Mooney.
Traumerei.....	Harriet Ryan.
Graceful Dancer.....	Raymond Anspach.
Merry Bobolink.....	Lamont
Study.....	Scott Arms.
Dance of the Mice.....	Poldini
The Daisy.....	Jane Wild.
William Skahen, accompanied by Harvey Skahen	Geo. L. Tracy
The Winding Path.....	Barth
Souvenir d'Autumn.....	Frank Sefton.
First Loss.....	Richards
Hunting Song.....	Harvey Skahen.
L'Adieu.....	Schumann
Dance.....	Josephine Chaffin.
	Borowski
	William Avery.
	The Nightingale
	Katherine Sefton.
	Josephine Chaffin.

Congratulations—Music News extends sincere congratulations and good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson (nee Miss Helen Gallup), who were married in Chicago on June 2. Mrs. Henderson is a concert pianist, accompanist and coach of splendid attainments.

LOUIS KUPPIN

Mr. Louis Kuppin, who came to Chicago only a year ago, has already attracted a great deal of attention to his Vocal School in the Fine Arts Building as much because of his own remarkable voice as through the excellence of his teaching.

Mr. Kuppin, as a baritone, studied with the late Clara Baur in Cincinnati and with Cassini abroad, the latter told him that he had tenor possibilities as well and so, returning to America, Mr. Kuppin set about developing his voice according to methods and ideas which he himself had evolved.

It took him a number of years to do this, but the result was finally obtained and now Mr. Kuppin has a voice which is one of the most remarkable to be found anywhere, for not only does he retain a pure, mellow and broad baritone quality in his lower scale, but has also developed a ringing, clear and powerful tenor voice as well, one that more than covers the usual range and is one which, heard from the lowest note of his range to the topmost, is even and smooth throughout.

In a private musicale recently, when Mr.

A. L. Shynman was the very efficient accompanist, Mr. Kuppin was heard to remarkable advantage.

He first sang the best known tenor arias from "Tosca," "La Boheme" and "I Pagliacci," disclosing not only musicianship and excellent style, but also a voice which had all the ringing qualities which are necessary for "carrying" in the largest auditoriums, but also had expressiveness and a wealth of shade and color.

Then, to illustrate his very wonderful range, Mr. Kuppin gave the first scene of Gounod's "Faust," and throughout sang all the music of both "Faust" and "Mephistopheles," thus disclosing himself actually the possessor of two voices—a range for which it would be difficult indeed to find an equal.

Mr. Kuppin does not consider his achievement as at all in the nature of a strange freak of nature, but merely regards it as the result of a sane and logical method whereby a low voice, of either sex, may be developed upward to the usual range of the high voice and may yet retain its pristine range and timbre.

C. E. W.

MR. HUTTER'S CLASS CONCERT

Mr. C. A. Hutter presented some pupils of his vocal class in a song program at Kimball Hall on Monday night to a goodly audience and very unusual enthusiasm, but, despite many recalls he had the good judgment to withhold encores and the program was finished therefore at a reasonable time, and with everybody feeling pleased with what had been offered.

There were three piano accompanists, Mrs. McNeill, Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mr. Hutter, the latter introducing also an organ accompaniment, which was very effective.

The program was chosen with due regard to musical values, having much of classic and standard measurements, but it was also very largely popular in character, songs of sentiment and love being liberally besprinkled with some religious excerpts and an occasional oratorio or opera bit.

Mrs. A. J. Berry, Mr. Joseph Jensen, Miss May Grady, Mr. Tom Loftis and Miss Jane Walsh all appeared "for the first time," and every one showed much poise and a very carefully developed vocal power. Interpretations were good and musicianship was very much in evidence.

Their numbers ranged through Spross, Coleridge-Taylor, Aylward, Ronald, Woodman, Sanderson, Watson, Cadman and MacDermid.

Mr. John Hennigan has a good tenor voice and sang numbers by Carrie Jacobs Bond and Clarke with effect, appearing also in a very beautiful duet with Mr. Loftis, in which there was good blend of voices and real charm of vocalism.

Mr. Richard Fitzgerald, a basso with considerable range and style, sang "Thine" (Bohm) and "The Secret" (Spieker), to the great satisfaction of the audience, and there were two quartet numbers by Miss May Grady, Miss Helen Hawkins, Mr. Joseph Jensen and Mr. Richard Fitzgerald.

Their numbers were "Funiculi Funicula" (Denza), and the sextet from "Lucia," in both of which there was much careful vocalism and much effective interpretation.

The most distinctly professional feature of the program was the singing of "Comfort Ye" and "Every Valley," from "The Messiah," by Mr. J. Parnell Egan, a tenor, who is a favorite with every audience before which he appears, and who on Monday evening was greeted with a storm of applause.

The accompaniment furnished Mr. Egan was far short of what it should have been, but he nevertheless displayed a most ingratiating quality of voice, a very certain and effective musicianship, and a feeling for the religious text, which make it certain that in oratorio he is at his very best, and in a complete performance of "The Messiah" he would be admirable.

C. E. W.

HARRIET CASE

Miss Harriet Case, who has had an extraordinarily busy and successful year of teaching at the State Normal College at Cedar Falls, Ia., was a Music News visitor on Monday, en route to Maryland, where she will spend the next two or three weeks. After that she will go on to Boston and New York, and in the latter city will do some coaching and considerable singing.

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

FERENCZ HEGEDUS TO TOUR AMERICA

Since the visits of Flesch and Serato, few violinists of great European reputation have come to make their initial bows to American audiences. Those other great masters of the violin world who have toured America during the past two or three seasons are well known to our music lovers from their former visits.

Ferencz Hegedus, the eminent violinist, will undoubtedly prove one of the most interesting visiting artists of this coming season.

Much like Casals, the famous 'cellist, Mr. Hegedus also comes to America without the customary introductory blasts that have been the making as well as undoing of many European celebrities during the past seasons. Mr. Hegedus depends on his true merit alone to make his mark on his first American tour.

FERENCZ HEGEDUS

To quote Mr. Hegedus' own words: "I am a firm believer in the 'Vini, vidi, vici' spirit. Throughout my entire career I have kept this thought as a spur, and judging by my past record over the entire continent, I succeeded in reaching my goal."

If one but glance over the glowing tributes paid to Mr. Hegedus by the foremost critics of Germany, Hungary, France, England, etc., and add to these the comments of such authorities as Nikisch, Dr. Hans Richter, Ysaye, Godowsky, Wilhelmj and Hubay, there would be no doubt left in the minds of the most skeptic as to the eventually successful results of his methods.

Hegedus comes, plays, and succeeds.

The same amount of simplicity and power that his precept contains may be found in the individual by whom it has been adopted.

Hegedus' career has not been that of a wunderkind. Born in Hungary, the land that has produced more great violinists than any other under the sun, this extremely talented boy received the same careful and thorough training that has ensured great and lasting careers for Hungary's great violinists that have gone before him.

BLANCHE HAMMOND BENDER

On Tuesday evening, May 18, Blanche Hammond Bender, Contralto, gave a song recital at the Christian Church of Hamburg, Ia., in conjunction with harp numbers

BLANCHE HAMMOND BENDER

by Marie McAdoo. The program being as follows:

At Dawning	Cadman
Swallows	Cowan
Gae to Sleep	Fisher
Mrs. Bender.
Prelude	Hasselmanns
Ballade	Hasselmanns
Miss McAdoo.
Hunt of the Witches	Cassard
Roses are the Rhyme	Ormond
A Little Gray Dove	Saar
Mrs. Bender.
In the Garden	Shuetze
Spring Song	Zabel
The Rose	Nevin
Mrs. McAdoo
The Message	Bogan
The American	Blumenthal
Blumenthal and Bender.
The Little
A Little Pink Rose	Carrie J. Bond
A Perfect Day
(With Harp.)
Mrs. Bender.

The fine success of this concert may be judged from the following newspaper comment:

Those who were fortunate enough to hear the joint recital at the Christian Church Tuesday evening, given by Blanche Hammond-Bender of Chicago and Miss McAdoo of this place, were given a musical treat. Mrs. Bender has a voice of rare, sympathetic quality and gave her audience the pleasure of listening to a beautiful artistic voice. Her interpretations of the many songs she sang were all that could be desired by the cultured audience that greeted her. The group, "Sacrament," by MacDermid; the "Hunt of the Witches," by Cassard, and "A Little Gray Dove," by Saar, was given with much sweetness and power and brought out Mrs. Bender's low liquid tones, which were received with such strong enthusiasm that she was compelled to respond to an encore. She gave in her usual pleasing style "Mighty Lak' a Rose," by Nevin.—Hamburg Republican.

Mrs. Bender appeared on June 8 at Ladd, Ill., in conjunction with Mrs. John Zering, accompanist, singing a program comprising

"Sunbeams," by Ronald, "Her Rose," "Gae to Sleep," by Fisher; "Haunt of the Witches," by Cassard; "Sacrament," by MacDermid; "I Hear You Calling Me," by Marshall; "Swallows," by Cowan; "Who Knows," by Ball; "Night and the Curtains Drawn," by Ferrata; "The Little Gray Dove," by Saar; "His Lullaby," "God Remembers When the World Forgets," "A Little Pink Rose," and "A Perfect Day," by Carrie Jacobs Bond.

The Boonville, (Ind.) Standard recently had this to say of Mrs. Bender:

Mrs. A. W. Bender, formerly of this city, is now living at Rochelle, Ill., where she is taking a prominent part in music circles. Recently she furnished vocal numbers for various programs connected with the church and social life of Rochelle in which she acquitted herself with credit. The following excerpt from the Rochelle Herald conveys the information that Mrs. Bender is also engaged in orchestral performances:

The large audience at the M. E. Church Sunday evening was highly appreciative of the special music offered by the choir and orchestra. The choir gave one of their good anthems under the leadership of Mrs. A. A. Burbank. The orchestra, which includes some of the best musicians in Rochelle, has been recently organized and is under the direction of Mrs. A. W. Bender. It gives an excellent closing number as well as assisting in the hymns.—(Advertisement.)

EDNA ELLISON SOLOIST AT MARY WOOD CHASE CONCERT

Saturday afternoon, June 5, the eighth annual June concert of the Mary Wood Chase School of Music was given at Central Music Hall. Piano solos were given by Grace B. Curtis, Virginia Paul, Grace Sei-

Carpenter
ORATORIO PUPILS CONCERT
715 KIMBALL HALL TEL. WABASH 8700

berling; Mary Rhoades McBride sang songs; Zetta Gay Whitson gave violin numbers, and Clara J. Dunsworth accompanist.

Miss Edna Ellison has won many friends everywhere she has chosen to appear, and on this occasion added many admirers to her already long list. Miss Ellison is an artist pupil of Mrs. Hanna Butler, and it is well to say she is a distinct credit to her teacher, who may well feel proud of her successes. Hers is a soprano voice of a very sympathetic quality, rich and full throughout the entire range. Miss Ellison has true musical feeling in abundance, a fine breadth of interpretative thought that makes her offerings unusually attractive and artistic.

"Chere Nuit" (Bracklet), and "Vissi D'Arte" (Puccini), were sung with a fine display of vocal resource, variety of tonal color and correctness of interpretative thought seldom heard in so young an artist. Lily Wadhams Moline's "In Slumberland" is a beautiful song, and Miss Ellison gave it a very artistic and finished presentation that won the enthusiastic approval of the audience.

Mrs. Moline furnished musicianly and artistic accompaniments for Miss Ellison.

H. W. P.

Winona, Minn.—In some comment on the College of Saint Teresa, Music Department, Music News inadvertently gave the incorrect state. This flourishing institution is situated at Winona, Minnesota.

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston, Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE, 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Engaged for Chicago Grand Opera Co.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert Oratorio
Pupils
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

Edgar Nelson
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

DEWITT DURGIN LASH
TENOR
420 Fine Arts Bldg.

The Elderly Person

Once more the Evanston Festival has come and gone. The Elderly Person is constrained to wonder how it came to be at all. Of course he could find out if he wanted to go to headquarters, but it is infinitely more pleasant to speculate. And so he is allowing himself to believe that some one man had a vision long ago, worked toward it and when the time was ripe all the latent forces needed to contribute to the rounding out of the ideal were near at hand and promptly came forward and gave the vision a realization. Else how could it be that there was the perfect building for holding the required multitude located on the perfect spot to give the holiday atmosphere and attract the social life and stir and create the bubbling enthusiasm that have to lift well prepared endeavors into successful accomplishments? And while we honor the dreamer for his longing vision we have to be glad that it came about that the development was worked out as it has been. For these festivals have almost sprung into the field full-fledged and ready for contrast with anything in the field. They are wonderfully well managed. The valuable adjunct of social prestige is strongly evidenced and doubtless it is a serious social blunder to have no prominent part in the quite elaborate display of this world's goods in the choice places. The splendid building is a tremendous factor. It is so spacious and adaptable that, in its gala dress it is really tempting. The desire to see such crowds of well dressed, comfortable, happy people enjoying themselves so legitimately is infectious. It seems good to know that amid all the stern realities, which make themselves unduly felt in a great city, there are so many persons who can forget those realities completely and surrender to the refinements of life and the consequent inspiration.

The presence of the children is a felicitous touch in the splendor. The word is used advisedly, for the festivals are splendid. Whoever evolved the plan of giving the children's concert should be canonized. Their participation in the one concert gives them interest in all of the series. And the presence of their children gains enthusiastic support from the parents, to say nothing of the numberless sisters, cousins and aunts and incidental grandparents. Apart from the tactful use of such means toward a successful end, it is to be added, at once, that the children's music can stand on its own merits irrespective of any sort of comparisons with the mature endeavors. They don't need any patronizing pats on the back. In the matter of pronunciation, youth set an example this time. In the long cantata, "The Walrus and the Carpenter," even those of the audience who had but a smattering of the "Alice in Wonderland" lyrics could hear the whole story of the guileless young oysters who took that fatal walk with the ill-assorted couple. It does seem a bit queer that the girls and boys who sing and speak so clearly and purely should emerge into the indifferent text-producers who afterwards mumble and pinch and chop the good wholesome words with which we make speech. Chorus and soloists alike were serious offenders during the week, with flat A's, dull heavy E's, aspirant S's, eliminated D's, blurred U's and small heed for well-linked syllables. Doubtless the exigencies of accurately placed adult tone demand sacrifices, and certainly they are cheerfully made, if not willingly accepted. Just the same, there was no trouble about beautiful tone from the children. But the Elderly Person can't quite accept it as necessary to say "evun," "payshunt," "Ah-brayham," "harvist," "honer," "watur," "anguls," and so on.

At the risk of questioning something that is very full of fine qualities, one ventures a wonder at a certain minority of serious works in an occasion planned on such large lines. "Elijah" and "Dream of Gerontius" were the lofty portions of the program. The final concert was not heard, but as it exploited a coloratura opera singer, and the orchestral and chorus numbers were as a rule fragmentary, it might be said that three out of the five concerts were popular, in scope if not in detail. There was no complete symphony in the orchestra's list and the major portion of its offerings were distinctly light in character, even though given with due care when Mr. Stock directed. There are a great many people who love to hear the "Midsummer Night's Dream" music of Mendelssohn and the Elderly Person confesses that he sees all sorts of delightful things when the "Nocturne" is played well, which it was not at this time. The "Wedding March" had more spirit and everybody was smiling, even to our noncommittal friends who make the music. Romance is in every life and the ones who were married remembered the event. The ones who were not, heard the chimes ahead and liked the sound thereof!

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans Building
Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

Howard E. PRESTON
5434 Woodlawn Av. BARITONE Telephone Midway 4175

HICKISCH Soprano
RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE
Personal Address, LA CROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing, Recitals, Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

"Elijah" lacked force by reason of the unweildiness of the big body of singers. There was nothing wrong, no mishaps. But the accuracy of everything affected its sinuous strength. It was an absolute inspiration to use the A Cappella Choir in the lofty gallery above the main choral body. The effects were unbelievably beautiful, and "He Watching," which nearly always suffers at the hands of a large body of voices, was a bit of rare perfection. Added to this was the surety of tone and ensemble in the unaccompanied moments. "Lift Thine Eyes" fairly floated on the air like angels' wings fluttering, and "He Shall Give" sounded like a message out of the infinite. "Come Every One That Thirsteth" would have been intensified in the same hands. The soloists did honest, sterling work in the quartet, but it needs an ensemble preparation that can seldom be given it.

The A Cappellas were valuably present also in Elgar's noble "Dream of Gerontius." With their elusive, delicate tone for a basis, Mr. Lutkin built up wonderful climaxes, as well as making distinctive the voices of the two worlds. They could give to the ethereal messages a new and touching influence. The "Gerontius" was the high light of the festival. The chorus was compact, definite, pliable and thoroughly sympathetic with and subject to the music. The work grows and grows in value and importance with each rehearing, and Mr. Lutkin drew from it many inner meanings not noted before. The orchestra was plastic and in its very best form and filled its place with a completeness that strengthened. In the "Elijah" it did not seem weighty enough. In "Gerontius" there was an almost ideal balance between choral and instrumental forces. Presumably there will always be those to make themselves heard who do not care to, or else cannot go deeper than the obvious. Near the Elderly Person sat an eminent clergyman. In the hubbub following the concert the gentleman laughingly invited some comrades to come to his church the next Sunday and he would give them some more cheerful theology or thoughts. There was small comprehension of the fact that he had been in the presence of a great art work given with superb understanding of its many-sidedness. The clergyman saw only one side, and formed a one-sided conclusion. The Elderly Person has no quarrel with the attitude, but thinks he saw and felt something deeper than the mere narration of facts, even while he acknowledges that the clergyman could down him in a minute when it should come to debate about them. It is always true, and grows more so with time that we get out of an occasion or experience just what we take to it, and—but there isn't time or space to continue—and besides no one would be convinced!

The decorators certainly got in some "deadly work" for the first night—perfect nightmares of writhing snakes and octopuses in the way of allegorical scrolls. The spaces are too great for any but the simple direct decorations of former years. And flags were best this year, by all odds.

The climax was on Saturday afternoon when the children waved the flags as everyone poured out "The Star-Spangled Banner." And yet there must have been some throat too choked to sing, for the spirit of it all was overwhelming. For too long a time the demonstration of love of country has been felt to be a little common. We have regarded the subject as a sort of "buncombe" and made sport of the people who "pulled the eagle's tail" or made him scream. But it is a weakness, rather, to be proud of one's country instead of loving it. Little children love it intuitively. Too many older people like it for what it happens to do for them, and do not love it for what they have done for it. That was the privilege of our forefathers and we've put their patriotism away with their clothes and customs and call it old-fashioned. That is, at times. We'll hunt it up, from now on. The only drawback about the "Star-Spangled Banner" was that it needed a good, stalwart specimen of American manhood to sing the solo. Clarence Whitehill, for example, would have hit the mark.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

— # # —

Moline-Ellison—Lily Wadhams Moline, organist, and Edna H. Ellison, soprano, gave a concert at the Swedish Lutheran Augustana Church at Sioux City, Ia., on May 23, which was pronounced the most successful ever given there. Mrs. Moline is experienced to the last degree in organ playing and is besides a fine accompanist. Miss Ellison sang many attractive songs, including four by Mrs. Moline, and throughout was very successful. Miss Ellison also sang Mrs. Moline's "O God of Love," at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, again scoring a complete success.

— # # —

Kuppin School—Louis Kuppin, head of the Kuppin Vocal School in the Fine Arts Building, announces that he will continue teaching at his studios throughout the summer.

ETHEL LEGINSKA

Comment of the New York press:

Ethel Leginska, the English pianist, gave a recital at Carnegie Hall last night that fairly captivated a great audience. New York music lovers are not unfamiliar with her and have not failed to recognize her talent; but last night, in the combination of program, playing and personality, she won a triumph that was memorable. It seems incredible that the little woman with the boyish figure, her hair a mop, clothed all in black save for a big turnover white collar around her neck and shining silver buckles on her shoes, entering upon a stage of Paderewskian darkness, could move us so much; but she did. Personally no piano recital, this season has given me such enjoyment. Professor F. X. Ahrens, who was as much impressed as myself, said to me: "Isn't it a delight to hear a pianist who isn't a member of the Incorporated International Union of Piano Pounders?" That doesn't mean that Professor Ahrens, any more than myself, fails to appreciate the genius of a Hofmann or of a Bauer, but only that both of us, with the rest of the audience, fell under the spell of Miss Leginska's playing.

Miss Leginska began with the humorous "Cats Fugue," by Scarlatti, continued through compositions of simple sentiment by the same composer, Daquin, Borodine and Rameau, and closed the first part with Schumann's lovely "Sonata in G Minor, Opus 22," MacDowell's "Keltic Sonata," a more vigorous note after the interval, and with Rubinstein's "Study in E Flat," for a respite, was followed by Liszt's "Eighth Rhapsody," superbly played to the point almost of exhaustion of the player. A Leschetizky number and the Schulz-Evler arabesques on the "Blue Danube Waltz," completed the program. But nobody would go home, and the tired little woman was forced to play two or three extra numbers.—The Evening World, March 20. (Advertisement.)

— # # —

Hopkins—Jessie Lynde Hopkins, who has just finished a very successful year at Christian College, Columbus, Mo., was in Chicago last week en route to Wisconsin, where she will spend the summer. Miss Hopkins has had several flattering offers for next season, including Christian College, but has concluded to take up the work as a teacher of voice at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

Vilim American Violin School AT RESIDENCE
RICHARD VILIM SUMMER TERM RIVERSIDE, ILL., or
Academy of Our Lady
95th and THROOP STREETS.
DIRECTOR

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - 'Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - Piano

MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - - - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract. (26th Year)

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

AUGUSTA MEEKER

Augusta Meeker sang "Elijah" at Lafayette May Festival. Comment follows:

AUGUSTA MEEKER

Mrs. Augusta Meeker, with her rich contralto, drew much applause in her particularly pleasing number, "Oh! Rest in the Lord."—Lafayette Courier.

Mrs. Augusta Meeker was in fine voice, and her rich contralto enabled her to put all the pathos and reassuring spirit into the aria, "Oh! Rest in the Lord."—Lafayette Journal.—(Advertisement.)

###

Bush Temple—Last evening (Thursday) a recital was given by the piano pupils of Earl Victor Prahl at the Conservatory Lyceum, and this (Friday) evening a dramatic recital by pupils in the School of Expression will be given at Lincoln Hall, 1134 North Dearborn avenue.

The English Madrigal School

Madrigals of Thomas Morley, Orlando Gibbons, John Wilbye and John Farmer
IN EIGHT VOLUMES

Vols. I-IV. The Secular Works of Thomas Morley.

Vols. V-VIII. Complete Madrigal Writings of Orlando Gibbons, John Wilbye and John Farmer.

Edited by Edmund Horace Fellowes, M. A., Mus. Bac., Oxon. For list of contents and other particulars address

J. Fischer & Bros., New York
7, 8, 10, 11 Bible House (Astor Place)

WESTERN
Conservatory
E. H. SCOTT, Pres.
MALLERS BLDG., CHICAGO

CLARA EDMUNDS-HEMINGWAY
Contralto-Whistler-Render-Pianist,
In ORIGINAL Composition Recitals. ORATORIO, Concert, Recital,
CHURCH. 568 Madison, Gary, Ind. Phone 1224

CHARLES CITY, IOWA

The Lyric Club, organized last January and directed by Frank Parker of Cedar Valley Seminary, Orage, Ia., which gave the "Highwayman," by Deems Taylor, at its first concert in April, selected as the principal number of its second concert, Thursday night, "The Golden Prince," a new cantata by Henry Hadley. The club, composed of sixteen women, gave a remarkably fine performance of this work, showing a great improvement over their work at the first concert, and the many effects in the cantata were fully brought out by the chorus, Miss Wellemeyer, who had the soprano solos, and Mr. Parker, who sang the baritone solos, as well as directed.

The club gave also "Out in the Fields," by Bliss; "Little Papoose on the Wind-sung Bough," by Cadman; Coleridge-Taylor's "Low Breathing Winds"; "Duet of the Stars," by Chaminade; "Sweet and Low," by Matthews, and two choruses by Dvorak, "Parting" and "The Ring."

Mr. Parker, who formerly was a member of the faculty of the American Conservatory, Chicago, gave two groups of songs, the first included "Vittoria, mio core," by Carissimi; "Coro mio ben," by Giordani; "Aus meinen grossen Schmerzen," by Franz and "Ich liebe dich," by Greig. The second, "Heart's Country," by Carpenter; "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," by Burleigh; "Candle Lightin' Time," by Loomis, and "Moonlight Night" and "Three Comrades," by Hermann. Miss Marie Henland played fine accompaniments both for Mr. Parker and the chorus.

###

Loofbourrow—The music department of Miss Loofbourrow's School in Oak Park, under the direction of Miss Belle Parker, gave a final musical Saturday afternoon, June 5, at 400 North Euclid avenue. Much excellent work was accomplished by the young students. The program was concluded with the Haydn "Kinder Symphonie." Master John Klapproth, conductor, a young gentleman of decided musical temperament and executive ability.

###

Wa Tah Wa So—Princess Wa Tah Wa So, a pupil of Sandor S. Radanovits, is to sing at Willow Grove, Pa. She has just signed a contract with the bandmaster John Philip Sousa.

###

Smith-Bodholdt—A joint recital will be given by Lucia May Smith, soprano, and Agnes Bodholdt, pianist, at Auditorium Recital Hall, on the evening of June 14.

###

Church Concert—Miss Tina Mae Haines, organist, and Mr. James Hamilton, tenor, will give a concert at St. James M. E. Church this (Friday) evening at 8.

###

Diederich—Walter A. Diederich, tenor, gave a concert at Sheldon, Ill., last Friday evening.

A UNIQUE RECITAL

The month of June is always associated with graduation programs and recitals. Many times the latter is interesting only to the parents and the intimate friends of the participants. Few teachers are able to present small pupils' work in such a way as to interest and entertain strangers and musicians.

Miss Margaret L. Green of Austin presented a program of twenty-nine pieces Thursday evening at the Austin Christian Church to a crowded house, standing room was at a premium, many were turned away, and yet not a moment lacked interest, the attention was perfect, because all of the numbers were well presented. It would have been easy to have named the pupils who had had the most or all of their study with Miss Green. Conscientious work, such as Miss Green demonstrated with her pupils, deserved the recognition given it. Special mention should be made of the tone work, pedal work and pulse work, of all the pupils, the ensemble numbers were especially pleasing. Miss Green is also to be complimented upon the arrangement of the numbers on her program and the interesting pieces she selected for the pupils.

It was very commendable to see so many American composers represented on her program. These pupils are certainly being developed in the right way.

###

Church Concert—The choir of the California Avenue Congregational Church, under direction of George F. Kortzenborn, will sing the "Forty-second Psalm," (Mendelssohn), and the "Rebekah" of Barnby in their annual spring concert at the church on Thursday evening, June 17. The soloists will be Marie Sidenius Zandt, Grant Kimbell and Earle Houghton.

###

Donath—Mr. Kurt Donath will present an operatic performance at the Little Theater next Tuesday evening, when an act each from "Faust" and "Beggar Student" will be given, as well as "Lovely Galatea," in entirety. Mr. Donath will sing several parts and will be assisted by his advanced pupils.

###

Austin—The Dudley Buck program, to be given by the Handel Choral Society on June 15, will have a long list of soloists, chosen wholly from among Austin musicians. Ida Belle Freeman will be, as usual, the director.

###

Augusta Meeker—Augusta Meeker has become a member of the faculty of the Walter Spry School of Music in the vocal department.

###

Radanovits—Mr. Sandor Radanovits has been elected director of the vocal department of the Walter Spry School of Music.

###

Gale—Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale will sing in "Samson and Delila," at Albion, Mich., on June 14.

TALLARICO

Winner of National Pianists' Contest Prize

Representative American Pianist at the Biennial Convention of National Federation of Musical Clubs at Los Angeles, June 29, '15

Tour 1915-16 Now Booking

Management, G. Tallarico, Wilton, N. H.

EDWARD WALKER

Last week Mr. Walker received a "hurry telegram" from Peru, Neb., to come on and fill the vacancy caused by the fact that Evan Williams found it impossible to fulfill his engagement in that city. Mr. Walker sang a recital in the afternoon and appeared in the evening in "The Swan and the Skylark," almost without rehearsal, and made a fine success.

EDWARD WALKER

Homer C. House, director of music at the Peru State Normal School, writes: "Mr. Walker saved the day. He gave a fine recital and sang 'Swan and Skylark' to my complete satisfaction."

Mr. Walker appeared the previous week at Lansing, Mich., in "The Golden Legend," also on short notice and received much favorable comment, including the following from the Lansing Evening Press:

Edward Walker of Chicago sang the tenor part in the evening concert. His voice is well placed and controlled and he did his part of "Prince Henry" in a most finished manner.—(Advertisement).

Lyceum Arts Conservatory—The commencement exercises of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory will be held at Central Music Hall on June 14 (evening).

BISPHAM

AS

BEETHOVEN

In the one act play "Adelaide" supported by a specially selected company.
PART II
Miscellaneous concert by Bispham and Company, entitled "The Rehearsal."
MANAGEMENT, R. E. JOHNSTON, 1451 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

WILLIAM BROOKE REEVE

Organist and Master of the Choir St. Luke's, Evanston. Organ, Voice, Choir Training

Ada Grace JOHNSON

Recital Soprano Concert
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich.

PERMELIA NEWBY GALE

Among the very fine notices given Mrs. Gale on her recent California trip is the following from the Eureka "Humboldt Standard":

Numerous artists have visited Eureka during the last several years but it is doubtful if any of them created a more favorable impression than that which was made by Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale at her recital given last evening. The recital was under the patronage of the Sequoia Club of Music and will go down in the annals of that organization as one of the functions which reflected to greatest credit to it and afforded maximum enjoyment to its members. The hall was filled with members of that club and scores of other music-lovers, all anxious to hear Mrs. Gale. There was not one person present who was disappointed but there are many today who remained at home last night, now regretting that they overlooked the opportunity of hearing such a charming, talented and altogether, most pleasing artist as Mrs. Gale proved herself to be.

The recital was not without its outstanding characteristics. The hall was filled with people who really appreciate music. Maybe it was what some would call a critical audience, for it contained scores of those who are proficient in the technical knowledge of music. But in addition to these there was a notable number of those who cannot criticize but can appreciate; persons who love music, yet have not the technical training in the finer points of the art. Added together, it made it an audience truly representative and when such an audience is pleased it means that the artist must have a voice of beauty, trained to a high degree and a temperament in sympathy with all of the highest motives of the musical art. It is an honor to please an audience of critics and it is also an honor to please an audience of those who are not, strictly speaking, critics. But it is more than an honor—in fact, it is near a triumph—when an artist can please an audience made up of a mixture of these two classes of music lovers.

Mrs. Gale has a rare contralto voice. She takes the higher notes clearly, sweetly and softly and the lower notes come with a fullness of tone yet without the harshness which tends to make a less gifted singer distasteful to many. Her enunciation was perfect and she had a presence which charmed to a high degree. Before the last note of the opening number, Verdi's beautiful "O don Fatale!" had died away the audience was pervaded with a spirit of friendliness to the singer which lasted until the close of the evening.

The program was one which demanded great versatility for it ranged from the opening number by Verdi, on through Schubert's "Der Tod und das Mädchen" and Brahms' "Der Schmied," sung in the German tongue with wonderful accuracy as well as beauty in every particular, through a colorful suite by Ross, including "Sunset in the Desert," "Night in the Desert," and "Dawn in the Desert," and then plunged into the wonderful "J'ai Pleure eu reve" by George Hue and "Agnus Dei," by Bizet. "Sleep Why Dost Thou Leave Me" and "Matilda," the former by Handel, and the latter, what might be called a "comic tragedy" by Del Riego, demanded rapid changes from the classic to the popular, and Mrs. Gale was competent for her task at every moment.

The wide divergence of opinion as to the leading numbers of the evening is at once remarkable and a high compliment to the ability of Mrs. Gale. Many picked the suite by Ross as favorites but to the writer none appeared more beautiful in composition and rendition than the sacred "Agnus Dei" and the softly soothing "His Lullaby" by Carrie Jacobs Bond. These two numbers were rendered most perfectly and were real gems for any program.

Mrs. Gale is not traveling with her own accompanist and, many times, she naturally finds difficulty in securing one. But in Eureka no such problems confronted her. Mrs. Alice J. Otto of this city filled this difficult and unassuming role with a high degree of skill. She seemed to be in perfect harmony with every note of the singer and every phase of the many difficult compositions was brought out with a touch from the accompanist which spoke volumes for her talent.

Taken as a whole, last night's concert reached far towards the dizzy heights of perfection. (Advertisement).

Institute of Musical Art—The commencement concert of the Institute of Musical Art in New York City was given at Aeolian Hall in that city on Tuesday evening, June 3.

EDWARD CLARKE

Edward Clarke has no cause to complain about this being a poor season for concert work. Besides filling a large number, teaching at the American Conservatory of Music and filling the place of soloist at the Second Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago, he has found time to fill the following engagements:

Oratorio and Opera—"Creation," Mt. Vernon, Ia.; "Creation," Sunbury, Pa.; "Creation," New Orleans, La.; "The Messiah," Chicago, Ill.; "The Messiah," Newton, Kan.; "Golden Legend," Ada, Ohio; "King

EDWARD CLARKE

Olaf," Chicago, Ill.; "Hiawatha," Brookings, S. D.; "Samson and Delilah," Tiffin, Ohio; "Cavalleria Rusticana," Hillsdale, Mich.; "Erkling's Daughter," Terre Haute, Ind.

Recitals—Rock Island, Ill.; Monmouth, Ill.; Livingston, Ala.; Marion, Ind.; Chicago, Ill.; Delaware, Ohio.

Chicago Clubs—Birchwood Country Club, Ravenswood Woman's Club, Arche Club, Playgoers' Club, Oak Park Sorosis Club, North Shore Woman's Club, Chicago Heights Woman's Club, Rogers Park Woman's Club, Wilmette Woman's Club, Woodlawn Woman's Club.

Concerts and Joint Recitals—Springfield, Ill.; West Union, Ohio; Madison, Ind.; Kokomo, Ind.; Greenfield, Ind.; Goshen, Ind.; Wabash, Ind.; Greencastle, Ind.; Piqua, Ohio; Findlay, Ohio; Elgin, Ill.; Freeport, Ill.; Macomb, Ill.; Kaukaee, Ill.; Michigan City, Ind.; Washington, Iowa; Fullerton, Neb.; Chicago, Ill.; Grand Rapids, Mich.

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT
President

CONSERVATORY

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivaled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

People & Events

THEODOR BOHLMANN

The following comment on Mr. Theodor Bohlmann is taken from the catalog of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, in which institution he is a valued member of the faculty:

Mr. Theodor Bohlmann is endorsed by high European authority as a teacher of marked ability. His connection with the faculty of the Conservatory of Music has been marked by an uninterrupted career of success, both as teacher and concert pianist. Moritz Moszkowski writes: "Mr. Bohlmann is, in my opinion, one of the most gifted of our younger generation of pianists." Eugene d'Albert pays the following tribute: "I consider Mr. Bohlmann one of the best pianists we have at present in Germany. Each time I heard him I was enraptured, and especially was I pleased with the eminently musical style of his playing." Mr. Bohlmann studied with Karl Klindworth, P. Rucker and Moritz Moszkowski. These great masters pronounce him one of the most gifted of musicians, and place him in the front rank of German pianists. Mr. Bohlmann was added to the faculty of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music in 1890.

In 1905, Mr. Bohlmann obtained a three years' leave of absence from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and, taking up his residence in Berlin, became successor to Dr. Ernest Jedlitzka in the artist department of the famous Stern Conservatory of Berlin, directed by Professor Gustav Hollaender.

Mr. Bohlmann has received the sincere endorsement of many of the leading European musicians. Felix Weingartner, when he selected Mr. Bohlmann as the pianist to interpret his works at the first Weingartner Festival in 1907, spoke of him as a musician of great knowledge and high purpose. Karl Klindworth, under whose direction Mr. Bohlmann played the two Liszt Concertos for pianoforte and orchestra, overwhelmed the artist with his enthusiastic congratulations. In 1908, the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra produced Mr. Bohlmann's "Symphonic Song Poem in D Major," and the well known baritone, Gustav Franz, sang the song cycle, "At Night In a Cabin" (written to the verses of Heine), on which occasion the composer appeared at the piano. Mr. Bohlmann returned to this country and the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music environed by an absolute artistic success, surrounded by the prestige accruing from his achievements as a teacher of pianoforte music, pianist and composer in the most critical art center of Europe.

— — —

Huelster School—The Huelster School of Music, formerly located at Kimball Hall, announces its removal to Suite 406, 59 East Van Buren street.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Mr. John Orr Stewart, pupil of Mr. John A. Hoffmann, gave a song recital of considerable merit at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Wednesday evening. Mr. Stewart's voice is a deep basso, rich in quality and texture and his interpretations were intelligent as well as sympathetic. The violin solo of Mr. Oliver Kilb, pupil of Mr. Bernard Sturm, added variety and interest to the evening.

Mr. Hugo Sederberg's class, which numbers some exceedingly fine students, was heard to very good advantage in recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music on Thursday evening. Mr. Sederberg is known as a teacher of excellent powers and his precise methods, his musicianship and enthusiasm for his art were abundantly apparent in the well given program. Those participating were Salomea Neumark, Grace Sternberger, Pauline Stenler, Mary Bates, Virginia Lord, Janet Watt and Alma Putman. Miss Alice Morris, soprano, pupil of Miss Frances Moses, lent variety to the program by contributing two groups of charmingly given songs.

The young pupils of Mrs. Ida Ulmer Jenner's class were heard in a highly creditable recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music on Friday afternoon, the following taking part: Dan Cohen, Mildred Kassel, Paul Kunkel, Jean Simon, Virginia Lewis, Raymond Kunkel, Leona Gessing, Mabel Ulmer, Eleanor Esberger, Margaret Kirchner, Ruth Ruskin, Rosalind Cohen, Martha Louise Kunkel, Lorain Steinbecker, Alice Kain, Helen Klinge.

Miss Helen Portune, one of the most versatile of the young artists of Cincinnati, demonstrated that she is entitled to this reputation by following her successful violin recital of last week with an evening of songs this week. Miss Portune has been devoting serious study to her vocal work under Mr. John A. Hoffmann, during several years past and is developing into a singer of decided promise.

Herbert Silbersack, a boy violinist who has advanced well along artistic lines and whose playing merits brilliant predictions, gave a highly interesting recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music last Saturday evening. Young Silbersack has been studying under Signor Tirindelli for several years and with the advantages he is enjoying will assuredly be heard from in wider than local circles.

This week's calendar at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music is as follows:

Monday, June 7, 8 p. m.; pianoforte recital by Miss Alma Brandewic, pupil of Mr. Leo Paalz.

Tuesday, June 8, 8 p. m.; pianoforte recital by Miss Daisy Ann Thompson, pupil of Mr. Theodor Bohlmann.

Wednesday, June 9, 8 p. m.; organ recital by pupils of Mr. Karl Otto Staps, to be given at St. Paul's Cathedral, Seventh and Plum streets.

Thursday, June 10, 8 p. m.; song recital by Miss Constance Baur, pupil of Dr. Fery Lulek.

Friday, June 11, 8 p. m., graduation exercises.

Saturday afternoon, June 12; alumni meeting.

The following young boys from the Juvenile and Preparatory departments of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music gave a splendidly rendered program yesterday afternoon: Edward Mack, Samuel Kaufman, Tommy Adler, Harry Newberger, Park Schawe, Hadyn Evans, Robert Winkler, Alexander Despres, Herbert Hardin, Walter Silbersack, Reynold West, Robert Eschenbach.

The 48th graduating exercises of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music will take place in Conservatory Concert Hall on the evening of June 11. The following program will be rendered by the Conservatory Orchestra under Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli, conductor, and Miss Lena Palmer, pupil of Mr. Marcian Thalberg, pianist.

March—Pomp and Circumstance.....Elgar
Invocation

Concerto, G Minor.....Saint-Saens
Miss Lena Palmer and Orchestra

Overture—Athalie.....Mendelssohn
Address—The Rev. Bishop William Franklin Anderson, D. D., LL.D.

Presentation of Diplomas—Judge Alfred K. Nippert
Benediction

— — —

Clarke—Edward Clarke has been engaged by the University Lecture Association to give a series of lecture-recitals in Chicago next season. Mr. Clarke has already had experience in this work, having given programs of this nature at the American Conservatory of music and for a number of clubs and study classes. The series will be given as part of the course at the Fullerton Avenue Center. Mr. Clarke will give six recitals on "Songs," taking up the development of song literature in the various nations of the world. Mr. Clarke appeared for the Woman's Club of Gary, Ind., on Monday, June 7, and sang the baritone role in "Cavalleria Rusticana," at Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., on Tuesday, June 8.

— — —

International College of Music—This (Friday) afternoon at 3:30 in Fullerton Hall the International College of Music will give a concert and a tour of the galleries, those appearing being Jessie Mack Hamilton, soprano; Elizabeth Guion Dormer, cantillator; Edna Lucille Baun, dancer; Kirk Towns, baritone, and Otoy Mizuki, Japanese, baritone.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE.
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8185
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancin.

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTAL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
ENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

FLORENCE MACBETH

The following comment is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

Miss Florence Macbeth, the Minnesota coloratura soprano, who gave a recital before a large audience at the Minneapolis Auditorium last night, is at that delightful age when every day of experience tells both in her voice and art. It is some nine months since she was heard here last and it must be confessed that in that time she has improved noticeably. Her voice has increased in timbre and her art is more poised and deliberate.

The two-fold role of opera prima donna and recitalist is by no means an easy one to fill, as the requirements of each is directly opposed to the other. The recitalist devoid of gesture and divorced from stage atmosphere, such as setting and costume, with a cast, supply, must stand alone and in perfect repose convey by the singer's art alone the picture and the emotions described by the composer.

In the old days coloratura singers never invaded the concert stage alone for the purpose of a recital. Such artists as Patti and Nilsson when they appeared in concert, were assisted by at least three other singers, a solo instrumentalist and orchestra. The latter half of the program was given over to a scene from an opera, usually the Garden Scene from "Faust," presented in costume and with scenery.

Besides the arias, two lovely Franz songs, one of which was "Mother, Oh Sing Me to Rest," Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," No. 3, Op. 47, two charming French songs by Weckerlin, Dell'Acqua's "Vilanelle," and English songs by Marion Bauer, Phillips, Bishop and Monroe were sung. Thus in a variety of well chosen selections, French, German, Italian and English, Miss Macbeth displayed a versatility and finesse that were considerable.

Her diction was delightful. Admirably sensed and enunciated were the Mozart and Franz songs, beautiful in the same sense was the Mendelssohn song, while in the old English music of Bishop and Monroe Miss Macbeth was superlatively charming. We have never cared very deeply for the vocal pyrotechnics of the Donizetti and David roles, which play "high jinks" with voice and flute, but as specimens of a bygone day they still hold their own and are a severe test of the bel canto powers of a coloratura soprano.

Miss Macbeth stood the test heroically. Well deserved were the ovations which she received at the close of them. Indeed, throughout the concert enthusiasm ran high. Numerous encores were demanded and graciously granted. The young prima donna was deluged with flowers. (Advertisement.)

MR. KREIDLER AT BETHLEHEM

Following is some newspaper comment on the very successful appearance of Mr. Louis Kreidler at the Bach Festival at Bethlehem, Pa.:

The bass soloist, Mr. Kreidler, captivated in the difficult passages. He possesses a smooth, pleasing voice, his register is wide and he brought out his notes in a clear and perfect tone. His enunciation was excellent and most pleasing.—South Bethlehem Globe.

Again and again at both sessions, Louis Kreidler gave the words of the Saviour the dignity and compelling pathos of the Man of Sorrows. Especially in the contemplative vein of quiet and restrained rejoinder, the tone quality was delicious. Mr. Kreidler is one of the best coadjutors the Bach Festivals have had.—Philadelphia Public Ledger, May 29.

Exceedingly meritorious was the work of the bass soloist, Louis Kreidler, of the Century Opera Company, who is possessed of a voice powerful and resonant. His dramatic manner was well suited to the recitatives and arias that were his portion. His skillful interpretation with the easy assurance of artistic authority were particularly gratifying to the people of this locality, Mr. Kreidler being a native of a neighboring town. In the evening he won new laurels by the fine manner in which he sang "Consider, O My Soul."—Bethlehem Times, May 29, 1915. (Advertisement.)

CHARLOTTE, MICH.

Mrs. Ione Eggleston Ward, violinist, and Miss Vera Waldo Maynard, pianist, both local teachers of Charlotte, Mich., and Miss Elizabeth Baer, contralto, of Hillsdale College, gave a very delightful and well rendered recital Thursday evening, May 27, 1915, at the Congregational Church. The audience was very responsive.

PASQUALE TALLARICO

Some comment of the Chicago press on the appearance of Pasquale Tallarico in Chicago:

Pasquale Tallarico created something of a sensation at Orchestra Hall last night as soloist in the first of this season's concerts. The opinion of the audience, made up chiefly of musicians, seemed to be that an unusually good pianist has been discovered. The storm of approval which followed the first and last movements of the MacDowell Concerto must be taken at face value.—Ronald Webster in Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Pasquale Tallarico is an artist of distinct quality who demonstrated without question his right to the honor accorded him. He has pianistic talent of the first rank, a firm grasp of the meaning of the music, poetic, imaginative, and with the personal quality which is the vital thing in art. * * * His tone was always beautiful.—Karlton Hackett in Chicago Evening Post.

Mr. Tallarico must be accepted as one of the elect, the possessor of instinctive intelligence in musical values. * * * Under his hands it became a personal message, not from the composer, but from the performer.—Stanley K. Faye in Chicago Daily News.

Mr. Tallarico was so admirable that it would be difficult to call to mind a pianist of this age who has made manifest the same amount of gift and promise. There was abundant technic in the young man's performance. * * * There was beautiful tone and a touch at once virile and charming to the ear. Tallarico showed that his perception of poetry is keen and that his musicianship is above reproach. Altogether a debut of more than ordinary brilliance.—Felix Borowski in Chicago Herald.

He has sincere feeling for his music, a feeling assisted and not overshadowed by that ideal of most young players, technical brilliancy. He had complete mastery of the Concerto, of the majestic breadth of the first movement, the sustained song of the second, and the lilt of the last.—Edward C. Moore in Chicago Journal.

His playing was of such distinguished kind, and he displayed such extraordinary musical talent, that he carried everything before him, and proved to be the artistic hero of the occasion. The Concerto received at Tallarico's hands an interpretation which was consummate in its virtuosity. * * * His technical mastery of the score was absolute, and his innate musical nature illumined many of the passages. The work fairly glowed under his fingers, and he dominated the entire performance.—Maurice Rosenfeld in Chicago Examiner. (Advertisement.)

LETTER TO CHARLOTTE BURTON

Department of Agriculture,

Washington, D. C., January 11, 1915.

Mr. William E. Burton, 1106 East Grove street, Bloomington, Ill.

My Dear Mr. Burton: It gives me great pleasure to say how much I have enjoyed hearing your daughter, Charlotte, play. I do not know when I have been more enthusiastic over anybody's playing than I was over hers the first time I heard her. Her music was an inspiration and a revelation.

I regard Miss Burton as in the highest sense of the word a real musician. She has both the temperment and technic which goes to the making of a great artist. Her playing is full of poetry and color, and I am looking forward to hearing her often in the future.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) CARL VROOMAN,
Assistant Secretary.

New Denver Conservatory—At the new Denver Conservatory, last Friday evening, Miss Dora Mae Van Debergh was presented in piano recital, being assisted by Filomena Sarconi, soprano, and Blanche Haynes-Jacobs, accompanist.

Lund—Miss Mildred Shaughnessy, a pupil of Mrs. Edla Lund at Oklahoma City, was the winner in the Federation contest at Memphis. She sang in recital at Oklahoma City last week with great success.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park

426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method

815 WILSON AVENUE

TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES
Soprano
HERBERT M.
Baritone
BAILEY

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO

522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER

Just returned from abroad

Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MAUDE BOLLMAN
FENLON

CONCERT SOPRANO

STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG.

Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL

ORATORIO CONCERT

3958 Drexel Boulevard

TEL. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH

SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

OPERA

849 LAKESIDE PLACE

TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Doelling Pianist

2912 Burling Street

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE

509 S. WABASH AVENUE

Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Ninth Floor Auditorium Building

Chicago, Illinois

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-

CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

A FEW WORDS ABOUT ALINE VAN BAERENTZEN

Excerpted from a Recently Published Pamphlet

To be divinely tall and blonde as a young Viking Princess—to be charming, agreeable and beautiful—to be hardly more than sweet sixteen, is to be a veritable Darling of the Gods. And if added to these gifts of rare vouchsafement are the versatilityes of a talent almost all embracing, one has begun to taste life in the utmost sweetness of its promise, and approached very near the pinnacle of earthly felicity.

Aline van Baerentzen is, perhaps, the youngest woman pianist of the first rank now before the public, and she can claim a position of pre-eminence; for the triumphs have been and are unquestioned. The brilliance of her artistic successes since a child of most tender years has focused the attention of the music-loving world upon her.

Great was the promise of her earliest childhood, and much and more has she given.

In her tenderest years, before the average child has a notion of keyboard values, little Miss van Baerentzen played with a mellow maturity that excited wondering bewilderment wherever as a child-prodigy she was heard.

The wiseacres shook their heads and declared it was too phenomenal, this tiny blonde creature who had to be lifted upon her improvised piano stool, performing the monumental works of the mighty Seigneurs of Composition, the works of the three great B's—Bach, Beethoven and Brahms—with a ripe judgment and altogether uncanny precocity and intelligence.

Her playing produced surprise and astonishment among her hearers, because it was instinct with the wisdom and depth of the mature and experienced virtuosi; because she was mistress of the ability to grasp the vital facts of the composer whose work she expounded, and definitely to convey his meanings through her unusual technical skill and interpretative force.

Indeed, she unconsciously exerts an authority over her audiences and carries them with her wherever it pleases her.

This rare gift, combined with a most intense perception of pianistic values, contrasting colors and textures, the broadest conception of the many phases of her art, an exquisite and delicate poesy and profound intelligence, she has brought with her into the domain of her appealing adolescence.

Wherever she appears the press and the music loving public are unanimous as to the unique character of her incomparable talents and irresistible personality.

Miss van Baerentzen possesses the remarkable quality of painting so well her harmonic pictures at the keyboard that they seem forever fixed in the memories of her auditors—tone pictures to be remembered with love and gratitude.

Supreme in her art, Miss van Baerentzen, functioning as High Priestess, is also its darling handmaiden, and she reconciles these dual roles with an ardent and passionate devotion.

Miss van Baerentzen is a young creature of poise. To her the drama of existence is serious though joyful, and she appears to have been created without that juvenile insolence and swagger, too often idiosyncratic of the youthful prodigy. Her nature is too well balanced to err upon the side of those crudenesses too often a repellant feature of the character of the extremely young artist.

From the very beginning hers has been a sane attitude toward the world, its people, its culture and its arts.

Miss van Baerentzen is an American by birth, and she comes of distinguished and noble ancestry on both sides of her house. Her earliest studies were prosecuted under the skillful teaching of her mother, a woman of far reaching culture and versatile accomplishments.

Her musical studies were inaugurated before she was in her sixth year, and before she had reached the age of 12 she was graduated from the Paris Conservatoire, and she owns the distinction of being the youngest pupil and first American to win the Grand Prix for piano.

After leaving Paris Miss van Baerentzen traveled to Germany and in Berlin at the Royal Academy she studied with the famous Hungarian virtuoso, Dohnanyi.

She has been acclaimed in the various great capitals of Europe where she has played. She has been soloist with the Colonne Orchestra in Paris, with the Philharmonic, the Bluthner and the Royal Academy Orchestras, Berlin; and her recent appearance with the orchestra of the Metropolitan Opera House was a signal triumph.

Miss van Baerentzen has the good fortune to be under the management of Mr. R. E. Johnston, that Dean of the Managerial Corps, who predicts a tremendous success for her in this country, and a great future.

G
I
O
V
A
N
N

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

M
A
R
I
A

Mr. Robert Maitland

Robert Maitland, the distinguished and handsome young baritone, has been winning new and continuous successes, filling important engagements, recitals and concerts, and appearing as soloist at important festivals.

He made a deep impression by his fine and manly rendition of the bass roles at the Springfield Festival of May 21.

The audience was enthusiastic over his work; his intelligence, poetic utterance; his unusual personality, and his broad musicianship.

The Springfield Union waxes eloquent over his singing, averring that Mr. Maitland gave an "inspiring clear transcription of the part written for the bass," and also adds that he rounded out his paragraphs with uncommon and convincing power.

It continues thus: "Robert Maitland's exacting part began with a most dramatic accusation delivered with fine fervor and appropriate emphasis. His appreciation of the meaning of the declamation and manifest intelligence in interpreting the score made his work one of the things to be remembered with pleasure."

Germaine Schnitzer

This petite, mignonne pianiste is ruralizing near the ocean, and enjoying the pleasures of the semi-quiet life with her usual gay and satisfying philosophy—a satisfactory philosophy which rarely finds room or inclination for caviling or carping, and vitalizes her playing to an extraordinary degree.

She is indefatigably busy, and enjoys to the utmost the addition of new works to her repertory.

This year she is scrutinizing and studying the very moderns. Men like Richard Strauss, Ravel, Florent Schmitt, Dukas, Massenet, Max Reger and a host of somewhat lesser lights in the perspective of modernism in music.

She informs me that her managers, Messrs. Haensel & Jones, are kept pretty busy arranging dates for her next tour of the United States.

The members and visitors to the convention of the N. Y. S. M. T. will enjoy a great treat at the concert which concludes the functions of that body, the week of June 17.

They will hear Arkady Bourstein reveal what magic he can draw out of his violin, and they will hear that little combination of fire and flame and poetry and sparkle, Ethel Leginska, prove that the piano is something more than an arrangement of wood and wire.

Both these artists are young, overflowing with healthy sentiment, translating itself into interpretations that leave the auditor with the impression that after all music may be worth while.

It is to be hoped that Miss Leginska will show these worthy people how "snappily" she can "run off" that none too easy composition, the Schultz-Evler paraphrase of the "Blue Danube Waltz."

The convention will, of course, be a talk-fest, and there will be the usual exordiums upon standardization and licensure, that ap-

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE
THUEL

THUEL

ALVIN
E

DOSTAL

One of the World's leading
Lyric Tenors

Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

Barentzen

PIANIST
Management
R. E. Johnston
Commercial
Trust Building
41st St. and
Broadway
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO

MANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

SEASON 1914-15. Management HARRY
CULBERTSON, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

SEASON 1915-16. Concert Direction Maurice
FULCHER, McCormick Bldg., Chicago

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich
Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

GERMAINE
SCHNITZER

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABEL
E

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

Personal Address, 1003 Reberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CONTRALTO

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

CLEVELAND BOHNETConcert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240LESTERMARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888Hanna ButlerSOPRANO Pupils Recital Oratorio
512 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wabash 4870ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASERChoirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749Grace E. KeeslerSong Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569LEIST-BEEBESOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana AvenueLambert MurphyRecital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New YorkRaoul S. BonannoBARI-TONE
Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts BuildingMARVIN HINSHAWCONCERT BARI-TONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

Palmer ChristianConcert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium BuildingLOUIS KREIDLERConcerts BARI-TONE Pupils
Oratorio Telephone Kenwood 627
4051 Calumet AvenueH. WILHELM NORDINBaritone
44 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIOJ. PARNELL EGANCONCERT ORATORIO TENOR
RECITAL 1351 Granville AvenueW. Otto MiessnerDir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Whittman Kelley and Alexander Helmreich, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.H. B. BARTHOLOMEWPIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SORECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463ELLA LA FORGE MURPHYDRAMATIC SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042Musical Festival at Pocatello, Idaho, May 24-28

Pocatello, Idaho, known as the Gate City to the West because of its unique position in the valley just west of the only gateway through the mountains, bids fair to become also the gateway of the intermountain region to an appreciation of all that is great and inspiring in the music world.

Professor Robert T. Blair, director of the Idaho Conservatoire of Music at Idaho's Technical School, has had under his direction since last fall a chorus of about sixty-five members and is now for the first time presenting his body of singers, with the aid of four visiting artists, in a musical festival with the rendition of "Elijah" as the chief attraction of the week.

PARVIN WITTY

In all, there were four concerts and one evening devoted to a dramatic interpretation of the life and character of Richelieu by President Southwick of the Boston School of Oratory.

On Monday evening, a large crowd gathered to hear a concert given by the local talent and enjoyed a program of which Pocatello may well be proud. Especially enjoyable were the numbers rendered by the festival chorus and the semi-chorus. Although the chorus is still in its infancy, the members responded to Mr. Blair's baton with great alertness. There was a certainty of attack, a perfection in phrasing and a clearness of enunciation, which is rare in a body of volunteer singers. This program was raised to artistic heights by the violin trio, Mr. Blair, Mrs. Blair and Miss Pierce. Mr. Blair is a master of the violin and Mrs. Blair and Miss Pierce are artists of no small ability. In addition to these numbers, the rendition of the sextet from "Lucia" was very commendable, and vocal and piano solos were rendered with great credit to the performers. Of these last, the aria, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," sung by Mrs. Lowe, a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, was especially well rendered.

The Wednesday recital was given by Esther May Plumb and Messrs. Parvin Witty and Thomas Christian. Miss Plumb is the possessor of a contralto voice of great richness and warmth combined with power and beauty. Each number of the program was a musical gem and displayed superb training and genuine art. Miss Plumb was received with great enthusiasm and will no doubt be asked to return to Pocatello many times.

Mr. Christian, late soloist at Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, Ohio, and now concertizing through the west and northwest, has an excellent bass voice of great power, flexibility and mellowness. His tones are open throated and free, and his voice never loses its sweetness, which is its greatest charm, always retaining the same sweet quality even when under the stress of intense emotion, he displays all its wonderful power. His perfect musicianship is evidenced by his splendid interpretation of songs of varied types. Mr. Christian has a magnetic personality and charm of manner, which have won for him many warm admirers.

THOMAS A. CHRISTIAN

Mr. Witty has a splendid tenor voice and immediately became a great favorite with the audience. His "Invictus" and "O Moon of My Delight" (In a Persian Garden) were sung with dramatic fire and musicianly interpretation. The duet "Solemn in Question," sung by Mr. Witty and Mr. Christian, found especial favor with the audience and the singers were compelled to respond to several recalls.

The third concert was given by Miss Lucy Gates, coloratura soprano, and Messrs. Christian and Witty. Miss Gates has a magnetic personality, great charm of manner and individuality, a voice of superlative quality, wide range and as clear as the tone of a flute. Her artistry is of the highest order and her interpretations unimpeachable. Miss Gates won the immediate approval of her audience by the wonderful rendition of "Caro Nome," from "Rigoletto." Each number following contained a new charm and delight. Had not her audience been completely won, it must needs have been subjugated by the bell-like quality and wonderful technical ability displayed in the "Bell Song," from "Lakme."

Friday evening was reserved for the rendition of the great oratorio, "Elijah." The chorus, inspired by the enthusiasm of Mr. Blair, was at its best and sang the great choruses with alertness and careful attention to the guidance of their leader.

The soprano solos were sung by Mrs. Parvin Witty. Mrs. Witty has a clear soprano voice, and although undertaking the ment of the Conservatory of Music, presided at the piano for all but one of these concerts. At all times quiet and unobtrusive, he was a revelation to his friends in the beauty and artistry of his accompaniments. So pleasing was his work as accompanist for the choruses as well as for the solos, that at the close of a successful evening, he received a special call from the audience and was greeted with enthusiastic applause of keenest appreciation.

Pocatello is fortunate in having so ambitious a music club and in being able to secure the talent that has made this festival so great a success, financially and artistically. The festival is assured for next year and bids fair to become an annual event.

ROBERT T. BLAIR

GERTRUDE TAYLOR BURNS.

CLINTON, IOWA

Lewis R. Casperson, a pupil of Allen Spencer, who has been teaching in Clinton, Iowa, for the past two years, has accepted a position at the Texas Christian University Conservatory, Fort Worth, Texas.

On last Wednesday evening Mrs. A. H. Hammarstrom, teacher of voice, and Miss Anna E. Hart, teacher of piano, presented their pupils in recital at the Congregational Church.

The Students' Auxiliary of the Harmonic Club gave a complimentary concert at the Sheridan Club Rooms on last Saturday evening.

Miss Clara A. Wheeler presented her pupils in their annual piano program at the Presbyterian Church at Lyons, Iowa, on June 1.

At the vesper services at the Congregational Church last Sunday evening, solos were beautifully presented by Miss Bergendahl and Robert White, while the quartet numbers were given by Mrs. Hammarstrom, Mrs. Cady, Dr. Huey and Rev. G. R. Cady.

LOS ANGELES

With the production of the $10,000 Prize American Opera "Fairyland" in Los Angeles, and the Music Festival to be held in connection with the biennial meeting of the National Federation of Musical Clubs from June 24 to July 3, America's great advancement in musical art will be triumphantly proclaimed, and that city will become definitely known as a world center of music.

In connection with the Biennial there will be a Congress for the Encouragement of American Music, with Charles Wakefield Cadman as chairman. With Mr. Cadman are associated Arthur Foote, Mrs. Elizabeth Casterton, George W. Chadwick, Carl Busch, Charles H. Farnsworth, Arthur Farwell, Henry K. Hadley, Leonard Lieblich, Tali Esen Morgan, Roland Paul and Oscar Sonneck.

During the festival American music and American artists only are to be featured. Among the composers who will direct their own works are George W. Chadwick, Carl Busch, David Stanley Smith, Arne Oldberg and Mabel W. Daniels. Others represented are Edgar Stillman Kelley, Arthur Foote, Ernest R. Kroeger, George Colburn, Arthur Farwell, Walter Spry and Adolph M. Forester. Recitals will be given by Frederick Preston Search, Yvonne de Treville, Jeannette Durno, Carrie Jacobs-Bond, Marie Stapleton Murray and Cecil Fanning.

Pasquale Tallarico will appear as soloist with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra in MacDowell's "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 1, C Minor." Tallarico is a brilliant young pianist of Italian parentage, who has obtained all his musical training from Virgil and Joseffy of New York. Last June he was one of thirty-five who entered the contest for American trained pianists held in Chicago. Not only did he win the unanimous approval of the judges, but the prize of $200 and an appearance with

EDWARD

WALKER

Teaching this Summer

1118 E. 65th St.

the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. He will be heard in the same concerto which brought him so prominently before the American public. Claude Gotthelf, pupil of Lhevinne, has been chosen to play Charles Wakefield Cadman's "Sonata for Piano, A Major." The inspiration for this sonata came from Joaquin Miller's "Sea to Sea," and the music follows closely the lines of the poem.

The winners of the "National Musical Contest" (violinists, vocalists and pianists) will present a program during the festival.

The $10,000 opera, "Fairyland," is the work of Horatio W. Parker, Dean of the Music Department of Yale University, with libretto by Brian Hooker. This is the second prize opera which Mr. Parker has written, the first prize offered in America for grand opera having been awarded to his "Mona." The music of the opera is said to be very uplifting, and the story is an exquisite idyll based upon the relation of the realities and dreams of human existence.

All the principals of the opera are of international fame, several having been chosen from the ranks of the Metropolitan Opera Company. William Wade Hinshaw will have the leading baritone role, "Corvain," and Marcella Craft, lyric soprano, that of "Rosamund." Kathleen Howard, the American mezzo-soprano, will be heard as "Myriel," Albert Reiss, lyric tenor, will have the part of "Robin," and Ralph Errolle that of "Auburn." Alfred Hertz, for thirteen years conductor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will direct the performance. Louis F. Gottschalk, of light opera fame, will be stage director. An orchestra of seventy and chorus of one hundred will assist in the production.

Loudon School—The M. Jennette Loudon School of Music will give a pupils' recital at the Anna Morgan studios, Fine Arts building, on Saturday afternoon at 2:30. This will be followed, at 4 o'clock, by a program of original compositions, written under instruction of Mr. Palmer. Some works will be played by composer-pianists of five years of age and the program will range upward to two songs by M. Jennette Loudon, director of the school.

ROBERT EXELBY CROSSLAND

work on short notice, sang the parts very creditably.

Mr. Witty, in the tenor role, sang intelligently and with sincerity.

The great moments of the evening came when the audience was held spellbound by the superb interpretation of "Oh Rest in the Lord," sang by Miss Plumb, and the power, dramatic fire and pathos of the Elijah role, sung by Mr. Christian.

Mr. Crossland, head of the piano depart-

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

pear to be the staple of the speakers, especially the older ones, who, apparently having once gotten hold of a theme, are unable to let go, and if the hot air keeps the soup (I suppose I ought to say the "Pottage" as the MacAlpin is both Frenchy and Recherche) and the coffee at the proper temperature—for the speeches are to be fired off at the banquet ($2.50 per plate, moderate sum for these war times), there won't be so much harm done to digestions if the diners (not the Pullman variety this time), have enjoyed the musical performances of Bourstin and Leginska.

Concert at the University Settlement

Mrs. John R. MacArthur and Sascha Jacobsen were the soloists on the evening of June 1 in the pleasant auditorium of the University Settlement on Rivington street, and a very delightful program they offered an audience which paid strict attention and followed the work of the artists with discriminating applause.

It is needless to say that Mrs. MacArthur looked as pretty as a picture in her stunning evening gown of white net and jeweled embroideries, and played and sang with a spontaneity and delight in her performance that infected the audience with an answering joy.

She aroused them to vociferous acclaim after her surprisingly strong and well fibred rendition of the paraphrase by Liszt of Schubert's "Erlking." She did herself justice, too, in the Grieg "Sonata," which she played with Mr. Jacobsen, who was himself in the very best of form, and whose playing throughout the evening was a revelation of beautiful color, finely restrained temperament, clear, refined and broad technique.

Indeed, Mr. Jacobsen's style is unusually virile and energetic, his graduation of color enrapturing.

With him was Mr. Alexander Saslavsky, his invariable accompanist, who subordinates his work with telling effect to that of the violinist, though he always supplies a masterly complement. He is not the musical foil nor yet an obtrusive element.

Mrs. MacArthur was also, heard in a group of songs which pleased the audience to the extent of their demanding encores which the amiable lady cheerfully gave.

Among the songs were the Gounod-Bach "Ave Maria" and "Le Nil," both with obligato of the violin; several sets of songs, both pathetic and gay, and charmingly rendered.

The program was as follows:

Canzonetta	Tschaikowsky
Zapateado	Sarasate
	Sascha Jacobsen
Mighty like a Rose	Nevin
Le Nil	Delibes
Aria and Scena "Aida"	Verdi
	Mrs. MacArthur
Variations	Tartini-Kreisler
	Sascha Jacobsen
Erlking	Schubert-Liszt
	Mrs. MacArthur
Souvenir de Moscou	Wieniawsky
	Sascha Jacobsen
Sonata in F Major	Grieg
	Mrs. MacArthur and Sascha Jacobsen

Among the audience and in Mrs. MacArthur's entourage were Mrs. Bovee, looking the picture of reposeful enjoyment, Alexander Arnoux MacArthur and Arthur Paul MacArthur.

Recital of Becker Pupils

Gustav L. Becker has never a fear or trepidation about producing the result of his eminently satisfactory pedagogy, and his pupils surely must be a constant source of satisfaction to him.

On the afternoon of May 29 in his pleasant studio on the West Side he was the inspiration of a most agreeable and varied program.

Each pupil acquitted herself surprisingly well. Charlotte Jaekel, who has put up her braids into a modest chignon, shows marked improvement, and she invested her performance of the "Prelude, Op. 28, No. 6," and Beethoven's "Sonata, Op. 78," with a rather surprising authority and musicianly spirit. The same compliment must be paid Mrs. Esther Wolfe, whose development of the Bargiel "Characteristic Pieces," Op. 8 Nos. 1 and 2, was eminently effective and invested with a mature and mellow atmosphere.

Little Gertrude Silverman, looking a picture of quaint and almost infantile prettiness, played her Mozart "Concert in D Minor" (with Mr. Becker at a second piano) without any prettiness whatever, but with a solid and remarkably substantial tone, with dignity and absolute self possession. Such a sweet and cherubic little one will soon ascend to the plane of infant prodigy.

Miss Agnes Kirby was very pleasing in her performance of Rubinstein's "Nocturne, Op. 118"; Misses Mary Moran, Alice Levv and Consuelo Faust reflected gloriously upon their teacher, and Miss Celia Gridley showed promise of great future artistic successes in her really fine playing of Saint-Saens' "Allegro Appassionata" and two Beethoven numbers.

After the recital and when nearly all the guests had departed Mr. Becker himself played in fine style Schumann's "Faschingschwank" for the half dozen of us who had coaxed him to yield us this treat.

Why is not Mr. Becker's name on the program on the concerts of the N. Y. S. M. T. convention? Surely he would reflect credit upon an organization which seems almost invariably to be obliged to go outside its own ranks for soloists and speakers.

And that's one reason why the American musician will never be a prophet in his own fair, fine, great big country.

Mr. Christian Kriens is a busy teacher, conductor and soloist, whose strenuous endeavors are being attended with unusual success.

We shall undoubtedly hear more of Mr. Kriens.

Miss Aline van Baerentzen will spend the month of June in Canada. She will be heard in many recitals during the summer. The chief of these in Newport.

Miss Lulu Breied, the pretty blonde secretary of Mr. R. E. Johnson, has just returned from a visit to the New England musical centers. Though a woman and a very young one at that, she is the right hand man of the renowned impresario, and knows the musical field from A to Z.

A new Russian violinist, and a nobleman at that, a Count de Pator, will join the ranks of the great ones this coming season. He has just been the hero of some interesting war experiences, and the recipient of jewels and orders in Russia. Besides, he knows how to play the violin, and that, after all, is the main thing.

Mr. Paul Althouse seems to have won the lion's share of praises for his work at the Norfolk Festival.

At a Musicale recently given by Mr. David Bispham in his apartments, Mme. Marie Narelle sang a group of Irish songs and an Aria from "Aida."

Mr. Albert Spalding has become his own manager. Not a bad idea. Mr. Spalding appears to be not only a sterling young virtuoso, but a level-headed American gentleman, with practical ideas of how an artist can be his own manager and still gain success.

Cosmopolitan School—The Cosmopolitan School of Music announces a junior pupil's concert at the Auditorium Recital Hall for this (Friday) evening, and a graduation piano recital of Miss Cecelia Eva Hentges, pupil of Clarence Eidam, on Friday evening, June 18, on the ninth floor of the Auditorium building.

HERMAN DEVRIES MRS. HERMAN
Formerly Baritone the ASSOCIATE
METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY Vocal Instructor
Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg. Residence 5433 Harper Av. Tel. Midway 8963

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART
MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago
Summer Term Begins June 30 The School for Serious Students

Frank Olin Thompson
PIANIST
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC MILWAUKEE, WIS

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS 515 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO PHONE WABASH 4805
TECHNIC

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

A GALA CHORUS FOR THE C. E. CONVENTION

This convention, to be held in the Coliseum in Chicago on July 7 to 12, will have a monster chorus under direction of H. Augustine Smith, for which volunteer singers are still desired.

Rehearsals are held on Mondays at the First Presbyterian Church, Forty-first street and Grand boulevard, at 8 o'clock; on Tuesdays at North Shore Congregational Church, Sheridan road and Grand boulevard; and on Thursdays at the Third Presbyterian Church, on Ogden and Ashland avenues, thus accommodating singers in all parts of the city.

H. AUGUSTINE SMITH

Under the caption, "Music at the World's Convention," Mr. Smith has written as follows:

1. An adult chorus, fifteen hundred to two thousand singers and Endeavorers. Seven weeks of exacting rehearsals and "get-together" evenings prior to the convention. This great chorus will sing at all of the evening sessions.
2. A children's choir, three hundred to five hundred voices, with the five famous vested choirs (two hundred and twenty singers) of the New First Congregational Church as a nucleus. This juvenile choir will sing at two evening sessions along with the adult force.
3. The territorial staff band of thirty players, the most efficient Salvation Army band in the middle west. Men who know how to play sacred music, and particularly hymns.
4. Individual solo singers of clean life, great heart, and impassioned message.
5. Antiphonal singing of rare beauty and thrilling effect. Three choirs stationed in different parts of the Coliseum and singing the call and the response of mighty motives and biblical scenes.
6. Hymn-singing with a meaning and a permanency from twenty-thousand throats. Hymns that will enforce the message of the hour, and not be mere "fillers-in" for late comers, for collections, or for awkward moments in the program.
7. Historical notes on the hymns and anthems to be sung will appear along with the music and texts; illuminating bits of history and incident, placing the sacred lyric where it belongs, and giving it status in the program.
8. Anthems and oratorio excerpts of the most direct and immediate appeal. Where the music has seemed overelaborate, or diverse in its canonic leading or separate voice group singing, it has been ruled out, even to the blue-pencilling of such convention war-horses as "The Heavens Are Telling" (Haydn), "Great and Marvelous Are Thy Works" (Gaul), "I Waited for the Lord" (Mendelssohn), "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem" (the elaborate harvest anthem). In their places will be uttered such intense brief messages as these (where spirit clearly outruns all suggestion of technic or musical workmanship): "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs"

NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH CHORUS, 22 SINGERS; ONE OF THE SINGING UNITS OF THE GREAT C. E. CONVENTION CHORUS OF 1,500 VOICES

("Messiah"), Handel; "Jerusalem, O Turn Thee to the Lord" ("Gallia"), Gounod; "The Hallelujah Chorus" ("Messiah"), Handel; "Unfold, Ye Portals, Everlasting" ("Redemption"), Gounod; "Angel of Peace" (Keller's "American Hymn"); etc. In other great chorus numbers there is obvious beauty of motive, as in "Lift Up Your Heads," composed in 1915; "Worship and Praise," "The Call of Antiphon, proclaiming King David's entry into the city of Jerusalem; "Behold, Thy King Draws Near the City Gates," describing Christ's triumphal entry into the Judaean city; "O, Come to My Heart, Lord Jesus," or the Master's indwelling in all hearts that have room for Him (Bethlehem scene). Note the following hymn headings, how they not only touch the heart, but voice its inmost yearnings and aspirations in heroic, "Service and Brotherhood," "Missions."

SEASON 1915-16

ALBERT
1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist Steinway Piano

SPALDING

Herbert J. Wrightson

PIANO AND HARMONY

CHICAGO

20 East Jackson Boulevard, Phone Wabash, 6293

COPY OF LETTER FROM FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

MY DEAR MR. UNDERWOOD:—

I have wanted to write to you for some time to tell you of my satisfaction with the results you obtained with Miss ——. I have recently sent you another pupil, Miss —, of San Francisco, and am urging two others, Miss — and Mrs. —, to go to you also. Everyone who has investigated your method of hand development is delighted with it and feels that it cannot possibly do any harm under competent supervision. One of my pupils even sent a doctor to investigate your apparatus and he gave a good report.

Thank you also for the Spiral Key, which I consider an excellent thing. I can think of no better way to gain strength in the fingers, providing the key is used properly. This is manipulated purely by the strength of the fingers while moving the wrist up and down, so that it is sure to be loose.

I hope you will pardon the delay in sending this letter, of which you may use all or any part that may be useful.

Many thanks for what you have done for Miss ——. I hope you will see her through.

Sincerely,
(Signed) FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER.

OSTROVSKY INSTITUTE

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ELSA STAUD

CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 571

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tha Mac Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4593 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeister
CONCERTS - PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
410 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

ALFRED GOLDMAN Violinists
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

A GLIMPSE OF SOUTHERN LIFE AND MUSIC

Oklahoma City! Yes, you would realize it is a very tangible, up-to-the-minute fact that same city if you could see it as I did one recent May morning when the locust trees in full bloom, bordering both sides of its residence streets, were adding their perfume to that of the roses. Far from being the mere frontier town, inhabited by blanketed Indians that one might expect of a twenty-six year old prairie town, it is a very mature and well developed city of beautiful homes, business blocks, office and public buildings, many amusement places and delightful boulevards and parkways built and enjoyed by progressive citizens.

The writer was particularly interested in the musicians and musical affairs, playing as they do some considerable part in the life of the inhabitants. Oklahoma as a state has done a great deal to further education along musical lines. In many instances a very good musical education has been obtainable for practically nothing and that this has been a stimulus to the desire for more and better music for their children may be realized when one learns that in this city of 75,000, there can be found numbered as first-class a Musical Art Institute, instructing in piano, violin, voice, cello and dancing, with an enrollment of over 400 students, a Musical Academy doing a proportionate amount of work in piano, violin and voice; a Piano School, a Ladies' Musical Club of fifty active and two hundred and fifty associate members, an Apollo Club of twenty-four male voices, a German Männerchor of some twenty-odd voices and an energetic movement in public school music with an unusual number of outside teachers. Many beautiful churches, and in two of them we found two very fine organs, a ten thousand dollar Kimball and a fourteen thousand dollar Austin.

Many leading artists and orchestral organizations are brought here under auspices of Ladies' Music Club and Musical Art Institute. The local affairs take form of recitals, chamber music, and the following program of annual open meeting of the Ladies' Musical Club, assisted by the Apollo Club, which the writer heard with much interest and pleasure in its artistic and musicianly finish, will give an idea to the reader of the work being done:

Cantata—Young Lovel's Bride.....Haesche
Ladies' Club Chorus
Directed by Rowland D. Williams
Chorus—On the Sea.....Buck
Apollo Club
Assistant Director C. E. Van Cleve
Chorus—Stars of the Summer Night.....West
Ladies' Club Chorus
Chorus—Serenade to Juanita.....Jouberti
Doan y' Cry, Ma Honey.....Noll
Apollo Club
Trio—Symphony Concerto for two Violins and Piano.....Dancila
Trio (women's voices)—The Sundown Sea.....Steckel
Composer at the piano
Chorus—Fly, Singing Bird, Fly (obligato of four violins).....Elgar
Madrigals—
So Saith My Fair.....Marenzo (A. D. 1600)
Ladies Fair of Mantua's City.....Gastoldi (A. D. 1500)

Both choruses show results of good direction and the tone shading and diction were unusually fine. Mrs. Fred B. Owen, secretary of the club, and a very accomplished musician, acquitted herself with honor as accompanist for the Ladies' Club, and a decidedly gifted young musician, Edwin Steckel, is not only a noticeably good accompanist, but has something in store for the future as a composer, if we may prophesy from "The Sundown Sea," in which the four-part accompaniment of Apollo Club and Ladies' Chorus showed an admirable amount of originality in harmony.

All the music heard in cafes, picture shows and theaters was of the caliber dear to a music lover's ear, and thriving Oklahoma City is equal if not superior to many cities more than twice her size and four times her age. The State Normal School at Edmond, an hour's trolley ride, has a music department and many organizations and artists are brought to Edmond under its auspices. This means that music lovers in Oklahoma City and Norman and El Reno, all nearby towns, have the opportunity which many grasp of going by trolley or motor, as I learned many did to hear the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra May 2, which played to a delighted audience in a gigantic tent. Oklahoma City and its environs are western in their topography, but a pleasant southern spirit of "manana" pervades the atmosphere and the people are taking time for pleasure, a great deal of which they seem to find in music and the kindred arts. Any one who has been a "stranger within her gates" can only say, as I do, "Long life and prosperity" to her.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

BRILLIANT SUCCESS FOR SIBYL SAMMIS-MACDERMID

Sibyl Sammis-MacDermid and James G. MacDermid will give a recital for the Ohio State Music Teachers' Association at Toledo.

The singer was new to Toledo, and in this day of numberless belauded songstresses there was not much preliminary enthusiasm. But those music lovers who were not there missed a rare treat, and those who were so fortunate as to be present went away brimming with enthusiasm.

Mrs. MacDermid has a voice of rare beauty and it is used with the highest degree of artistic skill and is backed up with unusual charm of personality. What more could be said? Her voice is of velvety richness and smoothness; it has an extraordinary range—it runs way down to where contraltos get their best innings, without any shortening of brilliant high notes—and it is as sweet in quality as any voice we recall. Then, there is that musical sense and resourcefulness which makes an individual gem of each song.

An unusual feature of her singing is her great range of tone colors and the skill with which she uses them in creating moods, atmospheres, suitable to the various compositions. She seems to have a dozen different voices!

And what a charm of presence—queenly, free-moving, wreathed in smiles, easily dominating the situation, pleased with the audience, with the music, and with her own easy success—she captivates from the first.

Her program was varied and interesting; a classic aria, two folk songs, three ultra modern songs; Strauss, Hildach, Debussy. Two operatic arias; "Boheme" and "Thais;" and in conclusion, six lovely songs by her talented composer-husband, who presided at the piano and who added not a little to the sum total of the pleasure by his artistic accompaniments.

Mrs. MacDermid belongs to the first rank of recital singers of the day. She has unusual ability to give pleasure. Our local societies will make a strange success if they do not hasten to secure her for a concert or two for next season.—Toledo Blade, May 29, 1915. (Advertisement.)

Craig—"The Pilgrim's Message," by Craig, was sung at the ministerial conference at the German Baptist Church of Oak Park last week, with great success by E. Louise Krause.

RENE S. LUND

BARITONE

Song Recitals—Concerts

Season 1915-16 Now Booking

"Mr. Lund sang all with admirable taste."—Chicago Herald.

"Has a voice of sympathetic quality, and sings with a good understanding of the music."—Chicago Evening Post.

"Voice is rich and under good control."—Chicago Tribune.

"Revealed a voice of warm and sympathetic quality and a grasp of the meanings of his songs."—Chicago Examiner.

"Lund has a voice of rather unusual natural beauty."—Chicago Journal.

Address:

2453 W. Monroe St., Chicago

CINCINNATI, OHIO

The evening of scenes from the opera given by the Conservatory of Music at Emery Auditorium on Friday evening was an affair of surpassing interest and an unexpected revelation of new talent. So great was the interest in this performance that the handsome hall was thronged not only by friends of those taking part and of the Conservatory forces, but also by a public which evidently is becoming aroused on the subject of local opera.

Mr. Tirindelli directed the performance, which had been well drilled and staged by Mr. Otto Schmid of the German Theater, and as the curtain disclosed on its rising the handsome scenery which had been obtained for the occasion, there was a little ripple of surprise as the perfection of the detail indicated the effects which were to come. The opening scene was taken from the second act of Verdi's "Aida." Mr. Tirindelli, who had assembled his conservatory orchestra and had added to its ranks the mature assistance of tried men from the Symphony forces, had discreetly combined his ensemble. The brilliant and famous overture to "Aida" prefaced the entertainment. To bind this music to the second act, "Aida" appeared first to sing her Aria, which properly belongs to the first act. The role was taken by Miss Marguerite Stegemueller, dramatic soprano, a pupil of Dr. Lulek's, and a young singer whose exceedingly fine voice, dramatic instinct and composure indicates a sure pathway toward future operatic successes. Miss Stegemueller has the range, the quality and the full vocal command of that long register of tone exacted by the music written for "Aida." She sang also with emotion, and probably made as fine an impression on the audience, which applauded her, as has been made for many a long day by a young student unknown to fame. Her rival, "Amneris," was sung by Miss Emma Noe, a fine mezzo soprano, whose voice is most effective in her middle and soaring upper registers. Both girls, for they are no more than that, despite their glittering costumes and their stage makeup, sang against each other in true operatic style. Their duet was splendid and spirited.

A chorus surrounding the Egyptian princess sang correctly and most beautifully the curious haunting music which Verdi has written. And as the ballet also must make a part of this enchanting scene, graceful dancers from the Conservatory department, which teaches this old art, posed and waved and glided before the eyes of the indifferent Americans and the delighted audience. The music employed was the weird chant of the priestesses of Isis in their temple heard in the first and last acts of the opera. The whirling ballet of small Ethiopians was most judiciously banished from the scene. Following "Aida" came "Manon." For the third act by Massenet, Miss Etta Masten was the pretty seductive girl, who traced Des Grieux even to his sanctuary and recalled him to the world by her tender appeal. Miss Masten's voice is well suited to this exquisite music. It is light, facile and lovely quality. Des Grieux was splendidly sung and well acted by Mr. Elwin Smith, another young singer, from whom much may be expected. A pupil of Mr. John Hoffman, Mr. Smith honored his instructor through the correctness of his style, and himself by the true tenor quality of his even, fine voice. Mr. Chester Moffat sang the few lines of the Count effectively. "Manon's" music, which is comparatively unfamiliar, was received with continued applause by the audience, new to this delicate form of eclectic French music writing.

The last act of "Faust," the prison scene, presented Miss Helen Portune as Marguerite, Mr. Emil Rosen as Faust, and Mr. Moffat as Mephistopheles. The scene was, of course, with Marguerite, to whom, during this act, the other characters are merely dramatic adjuncts. Nevertheless, Mr. Moffat exhibited his dramatic intensity and Mr. Rosen a very promising voice and considerable ease on the stage. Miss Portune's voice, which is delightful in its middle register, and carried through that medium with good effect, sang her music very well and with understanding of the scene. The entertainment was closed by the graceful tableau of Marguerite's transfiguration, which suitably concluded an evening of unusual merit. The talent of these young people for opera is undeniable and the resources of the Conservatory to produce from its own ranks a director like Mr. Tirindelli, a chorus, an orchestra, principals and dancers, indicates the complete equipment of this famous institution for fostering talent of every artistic description. Miss Baur and Mr. Tirindelli were not only overwhelmed with congratulations, but the young principals were also surrounded with a throng of friends. It was truly a venture which well succeeded beyond the fondest expectations of all interested in it.—N. P. S. in the Cincinnati Times-Star.

MRS. AGNES HANSEL-HARTER

The following comment is from the Fargo, N. D., Courier-News:

The students and friends of Fargo College were given an exceptional treat yesterday morning by a descriptive song recital given by Mrs. Agnes Hansel-Harter, daughter of President and Mrs. Hansel.

In her introductory remarks she gave the requirements of a singer and also of a worthy song, using the words of Mr. Thomas N. MacBurney, her teacher, who maintains that a singer must first of all have brains, then culture and lastly voice. As for a worthy song first of all examine the text with regard to suitable English, poetic value, and sentiment, then look to the music and ascertain its adaptability to the text.

The program, which was very well selected, was divided into four groups, the first being "Songs of Autumn"; the second, "Songs of Winter"; the third, "Songs of Spring," and the fourth, "Songs of Summer."

Songs of Autumn—
Forest of Oaks.....	MacFadyen
Autumnal Gale.....	Grieg
Songs of Winter—
'Tis Snowing.....	Bernberg
Winter.....	Mary Turner Salter
Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind.....	Sarjeant
Songs of Spring—
First Primrose.....	Grieg
Open Secret.....	Woodman
Yearning.....	Costello
Blackbird's Song.....	Cyril Scott
Spring.....	Hildach
Songs of Summer—
Throstle.....	Maude Valerie White
A Summer's Night.....	Schumann

In the singing of Mrs. Harter, good judgment and control was evident throughout the entire program. This was not the result of any conscious muscular control, but the result of controlled inspiration. (Advertisement.)

——

Texas—The State Teachers' Association of Texas has been formed and the next meeting will be at San Antonio.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED To sublet studio in Kimball Hall one afternoon or part of two afternoons each week; Grand piano. Call at 322 Friday afternoon, or address "Studio," care Music News.

WANTED—Experienced player wants position for the coming season as studio or concert accompanist; violin or voice. Mrs. Helen H. Morgan, 3834 Lake Park avenue. Phone Oakland 5272.

FOR SALE—Scholarship good for lessons in French, German or Spanish; address A. B., Music News.

FOR SALE—Pipe organ; three-manual, tubular pneumatic, 38 stops, complete couplers and accessories; seven years old, and in good condition; now in a Chicago church; will have to be moved to make way for a larger one; will be moved and erected, ready to play, for $4,000. A real bargain for some large church or music studio. Instrument can be seen and heard by addressing F. D., Music News.

Blanche Hammond Bender
CONTRALTO CONCERTS RECITALS
Personal Address, Rochelle, Ill.
3117 Sheffield Avenue Chicago, Ill.

EARLE CEASERO
BARITONE
Concerts Recitals
21 North Centre Street Bethlehem, Pa.

Henriette Weber
Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School Auditorium Bldg

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST
Kimball Hall Exclusive Management
JOINT SONATA RECITALS HARRY CULBERTSON

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST
4621 Lake Park Av. Teacher, Concerts

ELLMER ZOLLER
ACCOMPANIST COACH
19 W. 46 Street NEW YORK

Isabel Richardson
MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.
Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, Oratorio and Grand Opera. 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Agnes Hansel-Harter Contralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

THE EMINENT PIANISTE NEUHAUS
CLEVELAND IN JUNE

SCENE AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

The accompanying scene gives some idea of the beauties of both lake and forest at Lake Brownwood, the new musician's colony which is being established in Michigan. If one may judge by this picture the place is certainly ideal for a summer's rest.

FESTIVAL AT FLINT, MICHIGAN

Michigan, which has acquired some reputation as a state of summer resorts and automobiles, is fast making a name for itself as a state of May festivals as well. For some time hardly a week has passed but that a festival has taken place in some part of the state. Ann Arbor started the ball rolling and a little later Kalamazoo and Lansing followed suit, while last week the city of Flint also made itself heard very creditably. A series of three concerts were given under the auspices of the Flint Choral Union, and the success of the series was so decided from all points of view that it is a foregone conclusion that it will be made an annual institution.

Mr. Earl V. Moore, head of the organ department of the University School of Music at Ann Arbor, Mich., the ever active and enthusiastic young conductor of the Flint Choral Union, is responsible very largely for the splendid results achieved. He has journeyed to Flint each week for several months and has whipped into shape a body of 150 singers, whose splendid achievements reflected great credit upon themselves as well as upon Mr. Moore.

The festival was inaugurated on Wednesday evenings, June 2, by a rather miscellaneous program, in which the Choral Union were heard in Bruch's "Fair Ellen," and Gounod's "Gallia," while a children's chorus of 300 youngsters, who had been trained by Miss Fischer, supervisor of the Flint public schools, gave a splendid performance of "The Walrus and the Carpenter," one of Lewis Carroll's children's tales set to music by Percy Fletcher. The soloists of the evening were Mrs. C. B. Crampton, soprano; Miss Irma Herre, mezzo; both of Flint, and Chase B. Sikes, a student of Theodore Harrison of Ann Arbor, Mich. The performance was very satisfactory throughout and made a decided impression upon the packed houses. Orchestral accompaniments were furnished by an orchestra of 20 pieces.

Thursday afternoon a miscellaneous program was given at which the following soloists took part: Miss Ada Grace Johnson, soprano, who was one of the Ann Arbor

May festival soloists; Mr. Anthony J. Whitmire, violinist, and Mr. Chase B. Sikes, from Ann Arbor, together with Mr. Burton Thatcher, baritone, and John B. Miller, tenor of Chicago.

The festival was brought to a close Thursday evening by the performance of "Faust," in which the afternoon soloists, augmented by Mrs. Harry Winegarden, contralto, took part.

The concerts were all well attended and the soloists, as well as Conductor Moore, gave splendid accounts of themselves and were liberally applauded by the festival audience. C. A. S.

CLARA EDMUNDS HEMINGWAY

The Gary (Ind.) press comments as follows on the work of Mrs. Clara Edmunds-Hemingway:

Mrs. Hemingway is one of the most talented women in Gary.—Gary Tribune.

The recital proved to be one of the best ever given here and was greatly appreciated by the large audience composed of Gary Musical Club members and other music lovers of the city.

Mrs. Hemingway, who is one of the most talented musicians in the club is an artist of rare ability, being a reader, soloist, pianist and whistler.

Mrs. Hemingway possesses a contralto voice of unusual quality and compass and is an artist in the truest sense of the word.

Her compositions are of the very highest character, and the wording and phrasing perfect.

Her first reading, "Fust er Last," and her first whistling number, "Bridal Bells," were two of her best numbers although it was difficult to name the favorites.

The second half of the recital was largely composed of children's songs, readings, piano and whistling numbers, and this feature of the program was equally as interesting and well received as the first half. That the entire program was thoroughly enjoyed was evidenced by the applause which the artist received at the conclusion of each number. Not only is Mrs. Hemingway an artist of rare ability, but she also has a delightful personality made especially so by her unaffectedness. All who heard yesterday's recital declared that the artist never appeared to better advantage, every selection keeping the listeners in rapt attention.—Gary Post.

Mrs. Hemingway is the author of a wealth of child's selections. She has appeared before many Gary audiences, and her appearance is always heralded with joy. In addition to being an artist she has also the invaluable asset of an entertainer, a charming personality.—Gary Tribune.—(Advertisement.)

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

FESTIVAL AT BOWLING GREEN, O.

The first annual May Festival was held in Bowling Green, Ohio, last week and such a success was scored under the direction of Ernest Hesser that the permanency of the institution is now assured.

Last September Mr. Hesser went to Bowling Green from Pasadena, Cal., where he was superintendent of music in the public schools and took up the work as director of the Music Department in the State Normal College.

Bowling Green is a town of six thousand inhabitants only, but has many good choirs, and last February Mr. Hesser invited all those to join with the students of the Normal College in forming a festival chorus, and

The following comment is taken from the Bowling Green Daily Sentinel:

The first concert of Bowling Green's first May Festival, given at the Methodist Church Thursday night, was a great artistic triumph. Many converts to good music have been made among the large audience which filled the capacious auditorium and these acquisitions will mean a larger public upon which to draw support for next year's festival.

The May Festival has started the dawning of a better day, not only by giving hundreds of Bowling Green citizens a keener liking for good music, but by interesting them in artists and in the broader artistic field, so that they will be eager to broaden their knowledge of musical concert events through the musical press and such other mediums as are afforded.

As a disseminator of the Normal College and civic publicity, the festival has also won the success that its sponsors hoped for it. These concerts have been the best possible advertisement for this city, because they have drawn parties of music lovers from all the towns in Wood county, while special cars brought parties from Toledo, Fremont, Fostoria, Findlay, Rossford, Lima, Bucyrus, Crestline, etc. Thus, this event has served to spread abroad the information that here in Bowling Green the lives of the residents are made brighter by the magic of this fine art—music.

Director Ernest Hesser achieved remarkable results with his huge chorus of 200 voices. The large choral body was handled most skillfully, the attacks were precise, climaxes stirring and certain finer effects well outlined. To hear the inspiring strains of "The Pilgrims' Chorus," from "Tannhauser," and the finale of Grieg's "Olaf Trygvason" is a thing to be long remembered. Mr. Hesser's arrangement of the singers was so skillful that the voices were splendidly balanced and so precisely did they answer his slight cue to arise that they appeared for the moment as one complete whole. The decorations, which the ingenuity and dexterity of Professor L. L. Winslow of the Normal College had wrought, added greatly to the beauty of the scene.

Madame Sibyl Sammis-MacDermid, dramatic soprano, charmed her hearers with her delightful voice and magnetic personality. If ever a Bowling Green audience opened its heart to a visiting artist it did to Madame MacDermid, who took last night's house by storm with her rendering of her two groups of songs. Madame MacDermid's songs were revelations of the charm which personality adds to a voice of surpassing beauty and flexibility.

Miss Pearl Heiser, as organist, and Miss Mary Beverstock, as pianist, shared in the glory of the affair and Bowling Green people were delighted to hear these skilled local musicians maintain their part of the program so handsomely.

"Great and marvelous are thy words, Lord God. Amen, alleluia, amen." So sang the great May Festival choruses the valedictory theme which closed Friday night, May 21, at the First Methodist Church.

Well-nigh prophetic was the musical director of the festival, Mr. Ernest Hesser, when he chose this beautiful oratorio for the final number of the two-day event, for as he laid down his baton after the last note had been sung, he did actually hear a "grand amen." From the chorus the "amen" took the form of cheers and applause for the conductor, while from the audience of nearly a thousand there came a burst of applause indicative of the city's and normal school's deep pride in its first festival.

The chorus work Friday night was faultless, magnificent, inspiring, and the vast audience left the auditorium with the feeling that they had listened to most uplifting sermon preached in musical tones. As on the other night the work of Miss Pearl Heiser, organist, and of Miss Mary Beverstock, pianist, was most artistic and satisfying; and Bowling Green took much pride in the quartet work in which local singers took part.

The contralto for the evening was our own Mrs. Ada Allen of Bowling Green. Her singing is always a great pleasure to the listeners and especially so Friday evening in the beautiful aria, "Eye Hath Not Seen." Her interpretation was faultless and it was superbly sung. She is a singer of rare quality, and her success Friday evening was eminently deserved.

Mr. Herman Militzer, the tenor soloist, did very beautiful work in the two arias allotted to him. He sings with ease and assurance and it was a pleasure to hear him.

The baritone, Mr. Roscoe Mulholland, gave a masterful and much admired rendition of his aria, "A New Heaven and a New Earth."

PRESS OPINIONS OF A. RAY CARPENTER

Some recent expression of the newspaper critics in regard to the work of A. Ray Carpenter, read as follows:

A. Ray Carpenter, tenor, in the role of "Arthur," was most pleasing. His excellent tenor voice, of mellow tones, was heard to splendid advantage throughout the cantata, and in the duets it blended in beautiful harmony.—Chillicothe (O.) News-Advertiser.

In thorough accord with what is regarded as the accepted tradition of oratorio was the singing of A. Ray Carpenter, a tenor new to Chicago. It is understood he is a Debussy pupil, but whatever his training he sings with a smoothness and a sympathy that made a deep impression.—Musical Leader, December 3, 1914.

Two "narrators" are required by the text and these tricky scores were entrusted to Mr. A. Ray Carpenter and Mr. Frank Collins, than whom no better artists could have been chosen. Mr. Carpenter has a good voice and fine perception of sacred text. Each did his solo work admirably and in the ensemble they were both fine.—Music News, Chicago.—Advertisement.

ELLA BACHMAN

Pupils of Miss Ella Bachman, soprano, have appeared as follows:

Miss Millicent Martin, soprano soloist at Wicker Park Methodist Episcopal Church, frequently.

Miss Leah Marks, soprano at Zion Auxiliary, was heard in the Aria from Roberta-Meyerbeer last Sunday.

Miss Madeline Gerharz will be the soloist with the Arion Mannerchor, May 29.

Miss Esther Oppenheim is very popular among the Northwestern University Extension circles.

The Misses Elsa and Margaret Leimbach are often heard in charming duets, lately at the Mothers' Club, Fourth Presbyterian Church, Wicker Park Methodist Episcopal Church and Circle Intime.

The Ellba Musical Club, under direction of Miss Bachman, will give a sacred song service on May 13 at the Wicker Park Methodist Episcopal Church, and the annual concert of the club took place at Recital Hall, June 10.

ERNEST HESSER

rehearsals have been in progress ever since.

The chorus thus formed was a splendid one of over 200 voices and the community and the college together have united in working out a fine festival.

The first night's program was a secular program, the chorus singing Grieg's "Olaf Trygvason," "The Heaven's Resound," by Beethoven, and "The Pilgrims' Chorus," from "Tannhauser." The artists assisting were Sybil Sammis-MacDermid, soprano, of Chicago, singing two groups of songs, and Fred Newell Morris, basso, of Toledo. The second evening was given over to the oratorio, "The Holy City," by Gaul, sung by the Festival Chorus and soloists. The artists were Agnes Kimball-Affleck, soprano; Ada Allen, contralto; Herman Militzer, tenor, and Roscoe Mulholland, baritone.

CHARLOTTE BURTON
 VIOLINIST
 1105 E GROVE ST.
 BLOOMINGTON ILL.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR
CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conduct-
ed according to the advanced methods
of the most progressive
European Conserva-
tories.

MR. FREDERIC SHAILER EVANS
Pianist

A Faculty of INTERNATIONAL REPUTATION. Location ideal. Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art

Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic
Classes, Post Graduate and
Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced
Composition, Normal
Courses, Most Modern
Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open
throughout the Summer.
Special Summer Courses
in Public School Music.
Exceptional opportunities for
Public Work. Professional
Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time
For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR

Directress

Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

LOS ANGELES

The local forces in music are reaching the climax of their season's work. Some schools have presented their promising pupils in recitals, notably Mrs. Thilo Becker's violin pupil, Miss Audry St. Claire Creighton, who is an artist of promise at only seventeen years of age, who played in the Leo Domke piano recital program with an artist's list of selections, finely played, and was heartily appreciated. Mr. Domke, as a pianist, is an agreeable surprise in technical and interpretative powers, for one under twenty years, playing Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso," Liszt's "Dance of Gnomes," "Concert Etude, D Flat," "Liebestraum" and "Rigoletto," "Paraphrase" and a few other gems for piano.

h h h

The Los Angeles High School gave three presentations of "Erminie," a musical comedy by Jakobowski, with the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs of about forty voices, and the School Orchestra, with Miss Verna C. Blythe, director, and Miss Sallie Mason at the piano. The presentation was very much like a real opera company. The intense interest taken in giving it by pupils was a great compliment to the leaders and for the music department of the schools, affording a choice opportunity to develop their talents. The practice will go far to prepare for stage work, should their vocal work merit that avocation. The limited time to voice building was in evidence, as that is a work of years, and excellence must not be expected except with long study and practice.

h h h

The Manual Arts High School gave Planquette's "Chimes of Normandy" in an afternoon and evening performance. Mary Esta Groves, the director and manager of the orchestra, glee clubs and the solo talent, demonstrated strong and versatile ability in the music department. These works serve a good purpose for the high school girls and boys to develop stage ease, as well as vocalism.

h h h

Miss Lucy B. Seator gave a piano recital, assisted by Miss Blanche Helen Fowler, reader, who gave Cecil Fanning's "Pipes of Pan," Miss Seator playing the Lulu Jones Downing music. The piano numbers included Chaminade's "Morning" and "Evening," Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in C Minor," Mendelssohn's "Capriccioso," Liebling's "Valse de Concert," and Beethoven's "Concerto, Opus 15." Miss Seator is a pupil of Dean W. F. Skeele of the University, Miss Guelph McQuinn playing the orchestral parts at the second piano.

h h h

Mr. Horatio Cogswell presented his pupils in a commendable program, also the pupils of Mr. Arthur M. Perry in violin, assisting. The Pacific Mutual Glee Club of 12 male voices, under Mr. Cogswell's directorship, made a splendid showing in voices and good singing. A ladies' trio and quartet of ladies gave good satisfaction; in all a very good showing of talent and entertainment.

h h h

It was my pleasure to attend a full chorus rehearsal of the "Fairylend" Parker-Hooker creation. Mr. Paul Eisler was in charge of piano and directing. Mr. Louis Gottschalk, having spent much time in preparing the part, I was much impressed with the wonderful music, its peculiar, though very interesting harmonies, and a well sustained melodic thread, with counter duet and quartet melodies, so interesting as to be one grand network, well supported with piano score which will orchestrate with grand effect. Daily, morning, afternoon and evening, rehearsals are held and all reaching a degree of completeness that will fully materialize in a fine presentation July 1, and the following five or more performances, at or near the close of the National Federation of Music Clubs' convention June 24 to July. Dr. Hertz, the conductor, will return from Massachusetts and add the finishing touches in the closing rehearsal.

S. W. MOUNTZ.

1651 Sixth avenue. Phone W. 1024.

h h h

BETHLEHEM, PA.

On Thursday evening of last week a large coterie of music lovers gathered at the home of Mr. Earle Ceasero, as the guest of the singer, at the first of a series of complimentary summer-evening song recitals, which he will give during the next two months. Mr. Ceasero sang a program of modern American compositions, and was ably assisted by Bethlehem's distinguished pianist, Mr. Leland Lobach, as accompanist, who also gave a very majestic performance of the "G Sharp Minor Prelude," by Rachmaninoff.

Trinity Episcopal Church gave a musical in which a popular request program was rendered in good style, the most notable number of which was the work of the pianist, Mr. W. B. Rohs (organist of Trinity Church), who played his own compositions—"Gnomentanz" and "Reverie"—two very artistic numbers of good workmanship and attractive rhythm, especially the "Gnomentanz." Mr. Rohs is a young pianist of splendid attainments, and an organist of ability. However, if what the writer has heard of his compositions is any criterion of his ability along those lines, his forte will be creative work.

On last Thursday evening Mr. Wm. T. Trembath, organist and choirmaster of Grace Church, presented his pupils in recital to an audience of devotees of pianistic art who listened attentively to a program which reflected great credit on the ability of Mr. Trembath.

On Tuesday evening the choir of the United Evangelical Church gave a very interesting concert, assisted by the following soloists. Miss Helene Jacoby, pianist; Mr. Truman Walton, violinist, and Professor Adams, organist. The stellar attraction was, as usual, the brilliant young pianiste, Miss Jacoby, whose splendid work, so far outclassed the other soloists of the evening as to make their efforts appear ridiculously amateurish.

The writer, in conclusion, cannot help observing that somehow or other cows will occasionally wander into china stores.

EARLE SEASERO.

h h h

PILLSBURY-LUND RECITAL AT ROCK ISLAND

The joint recital by Edla Lund, soprano, and Agnes Hopc Pillsbury, pianist, in the new hall of the Methodist Episcopal Church, on May 10, gave those present, a delightful evening.

Mrs. Lund made Rock Island her home for some time and her return for a recital was an opportunity for her friends to see that she still retains her high standards, and has lost none of her ability to present a good program.

She excels in soft legato passages—her enunciation is clear and her phrasing musicianly.

Miss Pillsbury made a splendid impression, and while not so well known here as Mrs. Lund, will surely be remembered for her forceful and artistic readings. She also showed herself to be an accompanist who gives a singer unrestrained liberty and satisfactory support. The program was as follows:

Sonata, Opus 22	Schumann
Allegro
Andante
Scherzo
O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me (Semele)	Miss Pillsbury
Aria (Orpheus)	Handel
Figlio Mio (The Prophet)	Gluck
Four Preludes	Mrs. Lund
Mazurka
Etude
Scandinavian Songs—	Miss Pillsbury
Visa i Folkton (Song to a Folk Air)
En Svane (A Swan)	Peterson-Berger
Sne (Soft Footed Snow)	Grieg
Til Majdag (To May-day)	Lie
	Peterson-Berger
Melodie	Mrs. Lund
If I Were a Bird	Rachmaninoff
Barcarolle	Henseldt
Mazurka	Rubinstein
	Zerkowitz
American Songs—	Miss Pillsbury
Sacrament	MaoDermid
A Spirit Flower	Campbell-Tipton
The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes	Carpenter
The Star	Rogers
	Mrs. Lund

h h h

Thomas—Mr. Arthur Thomas, after a successful season of teaching in the College at Murphreesboro, Tenn., is spending the summer in Chicago and at Cedar Lake, Wis.

0.5
UN FESTIVAL AT KINGFISHER, OKLA.
SPRING CONCERTS AT AURORA, ILL.

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

IVA BIGELOW WEAVER
Soprano

Valparaíso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with furnished room, $1.50 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

43rd Year will open September 21, 1915

THE HEWETT BUREAU

KATE JORDON HEWETT
Musical and Dramatic

A clearing house for Artists and those who seek them.

Employers Teachers
Professional Interpreters

627 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Illinois
Phone Wabash 5189

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
Chicago's most attractive hall, devoted exclusively to concerts, recitals and other high-class entertainments. Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates, Address,
HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908, at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JUNE 18, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company, Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application. Changes in advertisements must be ordered one week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George G. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. VA.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seeastrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital, Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Super-vises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz School of Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

1915-16 Tour
Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, June 18, 1915

No. 25

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Scores and scores of commencements, class concerts and debut recitals have been given in Chicago the past month, and the total amount of value exhibited in these is simply immense.

Surely, enough material is at hand, much of it already well shaped, to supply vast reaches of territory.

§ § §

Where is the outlet for all these young artists and teachers? Some will inevitably, through circumstances unavoidable or through perverse choice, remain in the city. In fact it is well that a goodly number of them do so.

But, those who seek newer fields and more open country in which to operate are by far the wiser and more fortunate ones.

Chicago, as indeed every other big city, is much overdone in the way of artists and teachers, and this condition, already so plainly existent, has been intensified the past year by an undue accretion of foreigners who, unable to find employment at home, have flocked to this country.

§ § §

But, throughout the country, in smaller cities, in towns and even in rural neighborhoods, there are openings by the hundreds awaiting the ambitious young singer, player and teacher, and it is the part of wisdom for the great majority of graduates to seek these fields and there to develop not only themselves, but, at the same time, build up new music centers.

§ § §

In addition to the feeling of wonder and admiration that so many young artists have been evolved, the concerts of the past weeks have brought to mind a number of practical thoughts which it may be well to talk about at this time.

§ § §

Concert deportment is one of the things that has persistently obtruded itself.

In a few concerts the young players and singers knew how to walk on the stage, how to greet an audience, how to acknowledge applause and how to receive flowers and walk off, to say nothing of maintaining a position and a pose which was at once appreciated and ingratiating.

On the other hand, in the vast majority of concerts these very essential things had

The whole world hates a quitter—
Even tho' as a leader
He was once called
"peerless."

been entirely overlooked by the teachers, and many pupils slouched, ran, skipped or crawled upon the stage, each according to inherent mannerisms and moods. They did not know enough to acknowledge the friendly reception of an audience nor realize that a pleasant countenance will go far to augment the graces of a well developed voice. At the piano they slouched, crouched, or gesticulated just as fancy decreed, and often, very often, took away half the charm of good playing by their ungracious and ungraceful attitude.

§ § §

What may be deduced from this?

Simply, the fact that no teacher should present a class without training each individual member of it in stage manners and behavior.

In those cases where good manners were evident it is perfectly certain that the teacher had everything to do with the development. In the other cases it is just as certain that the pupils had been left to their own "original sin" devices.

§ § §

Moral: If you, as a teacher, do not know how to train your pupils for the stage, for goodness sake engage a professional in that line to do it for you.

§ § §

The questions of too-difficult selections and too-difficult programs have been discussed too much to bear repetition just now, but there is one factor bearing upon the last detail which is worth mentioning once more.

It is the question of encores at pupils' concerts. The occasions when encores are agreeable in such concerts and where they should be allowed are so infinitesimal in number as to amount to nothing, and it may, therefore, be given as a rule, which should invariably be followed, that encores should not be allowed at pupils' concerts.

Nothing is gained by allowing them.

The audience is often pleased very much with a certain performance and wishes to show this by hearty applause. Except in the case of a few personal friends this does not mean, however, that the audience wants a repetition or another number from the young artist and, if this is given, the inevitable result is weariness before the end of the program and a very distinct injustice to all who come during the last half of the program.

Put on long programs if you must, but BEGIN ON TIME—HAVE THE ENTIRE PROGRAM MOVE ALONG WITH CELERITY, AND, ABOVE ALL ELSE, DISPENSE WITH ALL ENCORES.

—§§§—

How could an opera season in Havana possibly succeed when the chief attraction was Ruffo at three thousand dollars a performance? Such folly is attributed to America usually, but evidently it is prevalent everywhere.

h h h

In Musical America there is reproduced a group photo of those attending the recent State Convention of Music Teachers at Toledo, Ohio. Modestly standing in the background is Mr. H. M. Bailey of Music News, featured, however, as "No. 1" in the printed list of those present.

— — — — —

CHICAGO HEBREW INSTITUTE

"To provide a social center for the native American as well as the immigrant; to encourage education; to promote physical welfare and arouse civic interest; to give freely moral and spiritual rather than material aid; to strive for the elimination of class distinction; to prevent rather than cure social ills."—This is the aim of the Institute.

The beautiful, spacious and finely appointed gymnasium building of the Hebrew Institute was dedicated, with most interesting exercises, on Sunday afternoon. This building, designed to serve as an auditorium for large audiences, besides the purposes which its name implies, has a seating capacity of 1,200 on its main floor and, by using the balcony, can be increased to 1,800 when occasion demands; its stage is ample and its acoustics very good.

A good program of music was given by a dozen men from the Chicago Symphony orchestra, led by Alexander Zukowsky. The other exercises consisted of a prayer by Rabbi Silber, an address by Jacob M. Loeb, president of the institute (one of the best of its nature we ever listened to), and others by James Davis, chairman of the building committee, and by Judge Julian W. Mack, of the Commerce Court.

The Institute is doing a great and noble work, in a section of the city where such work is most needed. Its classes in music are well conducted and largely attended. Its concerts on Sunday afternoon are surpassed in excellence by no similar concerts in Chicago, the admission to same being only ten cents, while many admissions are free, when the applicant is known to be unable to pay. Success and long life to the Institute!

L. F. NEWHALL.

— — — — —

CORRECTION

In these days of student recitals when many names are on the program and changes made as well as omissions, it is easy to overlook some items. And so in my review of Mr. Munro's pupils' concert I find that Mr. Harry Navison, who sang Massanet's "Open Thy Blue Eyes" and a smaller English song, had no notice. He has a good tenor voice, with many traits of service now in evidence and more in promise for the future. At this concert he was second on the program but through absence of three others he was set forward to the next to last place. In an effort to put him where he appeared he was left off altogether.

A. C.

NEW MANAGER FOR THE APOLLO CLUB

Mr. H. F. Grabo, secretary of the Chicago Mendelssohn Club, has been appointed manager of the Apollo Musical Club, vice Mr. Carl D. Kinsey, resigned. The two clubs will be under one management at Lyon & Healy's Music House, Wabash avenue and Adams street. All communications for either club should be sent to the above address. Telephones, Harrison 4050 and 5620.

— — — — —

A LETTER FROM MR. UPTON

Mr. Charles E. Watt,

Editor Music News.

Dear Mr. Watt:

I notice in your issue of above date you say under the title of "Correction" that "Everybody in Chicago knows that Mr. Tomlins was the founder of the Apollo Club."

Won't you kindly make one more correction? Mr. Tomlins was no more the founder of the Apollo Club than the man in the moon. The first suggestion for the founding of the Apollo Club was made by Mr. Silas G. Pratt at my home one Sunday afternoon in the summer of 1872, at which time he urged me to take the presidency. We discussed the matter all the afternoon and at last I told him that if he could get the singers together and they wanted me I would undertake the presidency. Mr. Pratt assembled his singers in September, 1872, in an old church, corner of Wabash avenue and Sixteenth street, occupied at that time by Lyon & Healy. At a subsequent meeting a few weeks later, the Apollo Club was organized with the following officers: President, George P. Upton; vice president, William Sprague; treasurer, Frank A. Bowen; secretary, Charles C. Curtiss; librarian, W. C. Coffee; musical committee, Fritz Faltz, S. E. Cleveland and Philo A. Otis. Its first conductor was Adolph W. Dohn, and he directed the club as a mannerchor until 1874, at which time there was a very general desire on the part of the members to make the club a mixed chorus. Mr. Dohn thereupon resigned and I followed suit as we had doubts as to the success of the scheme which happily were not verified. After the change was made, Mr. Carl Bergstein of St. Louis was elected conductor, but after he had directed three concerts, he proved unsatisfactory and Mr. Tomlins was elected. He first directed the club at the concert of November 17, 1875, three years after its foundation and continued in his position until Mr. Wild took the helm.

Pardon this long spun out letter, but it is well to get the Apollo's biography correct.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) GEO. P. UPTON.

Congratulations for your newsy paper.

5491 East End avenue, Chicago, June 11, 1915.

— — — — —

THE STRIKE

That such a calamity as the street car strike of the present week should be allowed to fall upon such a city as Chicago is as unbelievable as it is inhuman.

To see the hundreds of women on last Monday night walking toward their homes in all parts of the city, many of them having to go miles and miles in a miserable rain storm, was an object lesson in the inefficiency and the general instability of "modern civilization."

If such a public commodity as the entire transportation system of a great city cannot be run otherwise it should be instantly confiscated and run by the government.

Music has suffered very greatly during the week. Lessons have been missed in lamentable numbers, and concerts have been sparsely attended. Music News has attended every function originally scheduled for review, and will endeavor to do as much so long as the strike lasts. Those schools and studios that withdrew their public functions early in the week, however, were wise.

WARREN

PROCTOR

TENOR

Exclusive Managment; Alma Voedisch
3941 Rokeby St., Phone Graceland 8814

A LETTER FROM MAURICE FULCHER

Mr. Charles E. Watt,

Editor Music News, Chicago.

My Dear Mr. Watt:

I have heard so much favorable comment concerning the very attractive photograph which recently appeared on the front page of Music News, of Mme. Chilson-Ohrman. I congratulate you upon the artistic manner in which this picture was reproduced. I am highly delighted with the enthusiasm with which Mme. Ohrman's coming tour is being received. Everywhere I find great interest in this charming American soprano. My brother, Gordon Brooks Fulcher, who is my associate manager, writes me from Texas that he has booked Mme. Ohrman for important engagements in the Lone Star state. Mme. Ohrman will open her tour October 1, in Indiana, and will then journey east, singing twice in New York city, and after the holidays will make one of the longest tours of the south which has yet been undertaken by a single artist. Mme. Ohrman will sing in Nashville, Birmingham, Mobile, Ala.; Macon, Ga.; New Orleans, Houston, Tex., and in practically every city of the southwest. Mme. Ohrman is already booked for festivals for the spring of 1916. Although Mme. Ohrman's appearances in the past have been largely in the west, I am finding a keen interest and a growing demand for her services in the east and in New England.

I find that Music News is read extensively throughout the entire country, and many of the largest clubs keep this journal on file in the club rooms.

With best greetings, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) MAURICE FULCHER.

Music in Chicago

MRS. WOOD PRESENTS PUPILS IN CONCERT

Once a year this writer goes out to the Odd Fellows temple at Yale and Sixty-third streets to hear the annual concert by pupils of Mrs. Stanley Wood, who teaches both piano and voice at "The Birmingham," Wentworth and Sixty-ninth streets. It happens that in the past four years several pupils have been heard each time and the work of these is therefore a safe and convincing criterion of the pedagogic abilities of Mrs. Wood.

It must be said at once that these particular pupils sang and played better this year than ever before and not only so but the whole average of the class shows consistent and encouraging advance.

More of the piano pupils played without notes also and special credit marks on this score should be given to Helen Folk, Helen Marvin, Ralph Olsen, Mabel Davidson and Harold Olsen.

The program opened with the well known "Etude de Concert," (MacDowell), played with real skill and effect by Miss Folk, who deserves a special word of commendation for her really artistic use of pedal.

John McGowan was clear and musical in the Dvorak "Humoresque," which, however, he played too rapidly.

Mrs. Wood's pupils all have a musical touch. There is never any forcing of tone in her concerts, either by piano or voice pupils. Mr. McGowan showed this suave characteristic fully as did also Mrs. Minna Segerpalm-Sproul, who played the very attractive "Berceuse," by Godard.

Raymond Shaffer played the "Polka Boheme," by Rubinstein, with nice touch and clear reading. It should have been committed, however, to have produced a greater effect of spontaneity.

Ralph Olsen played the Mozart "Fantasia, Op. 18," so very well as to have easily proved himself the one who has made the very greatest advance in a year of any member of the piano class. He showed much interpretative ability, but should be more careful of time values, especially in the andantino section of the "Fantasia."

The "Polonaise, Op. 53," (Chopin), was played somewhat hurriedly by Miss Davidson, but nevertheless proved her to have much talent and to be well advanced in her work.

Harold Olsen played fine accompaniments (alternating with Mrs. Wood), and in his solo group, a "Valse," (a flat), and "Polonaise," (military), by Chopin, showed great talent and style. He should, however, recommit both these pieces and especially in the "Waltz" endeavor to get all the left-hand chords more correctly.

On account of the illness of Mrs. Inez Gray McNay and Mrs. Grace Hollinbeck Shaffer, the program of vocal music was not extensive, but it was none the less interesting and also it proved the worth of Mrs. Wood's methods very conclusively.

Mrs. Elsa O. Christigau sang two numbers with power and considerable finish and Hazel Wood was heard in Ethelbert Nevin's fine "African Love Song" and the pleasing "Low Backed Car," as well as in a very charming duet (Mozart) with Margaret McCarthy.

Miss Wood has professional style as well as a very good voice and was both dramatic and musical in the Nevin number, while in the Irish air she disclosed much piquancy and a distinct comedy element.

Altogether the program was one of worth and interest and easily proved not only Mrs. Wood's teaching skill, but also that she has had an interesting and profitable season.

— — — — —

RECITAL AT ARTHUR R. FRASER'S STUDIO IN OAK PARK

Thoroughly enjoyable was the piano recital given in Mr. Arthur R. Fraser's Studio, 316 Wisconsin avenue, Oak Park, on the evening of Wednesday, June 9, when Mr. Fraser presented Elizabeth Harris in a program including the following compositions: "Song of the Bathers," (Paul Wachs); "To a Water Lily" and "In Autumn," (MacDowell); "Minuet," (Paderewski), and "Finale-Saltarelle," (Scotson Clarke). MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose" and Chaminade's "Scarf Dance" were given as encores.

Miss Harris is only eleven years of age, but it must not be inferred that she is a child prodigy. She impresses one as being just a normal little girl, who has reached quite an advanced state of musical proficiency by faithful endeavor and competent instruction.

This program was prepared under Mr. Fraser's careful supervision in the last five months, but he shares the credit for its success, with her former teachers, in laying a good foundation. Certain it is that the program was rendered with a degree of skill, understanding and poise quite remarkable in one so young. Her technic was dainty and pleasing, her sense of rhythm and musical values commendable, and she used the pedals judiciously. A modesty and gracefulness of manner greatly enhanced the charm of the little lady's performance.

Mr. Fraser is entirely justified if he is professionally proud of this pupil.

C. J. B.

— — — — —

THE ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The summer term opens June 28 and continues till July 31. The school is making a feature of classes in ensemble playing with Mrs. De Vore, violin, and Walter Brancr, 'cello. There will also be classes in public school music, musical history, etc. with Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin.

Mrs. Orchard strongly urges students who are still in school to utilize the summer term in acquiring those studies necessary for teachers' certificates, and graduation for piano and voice pupils, as high school work precludes the possibility of doing these things in winter months.

COMMENDATION

after years of service—and by one whose judgment is authoritative

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

Office of the Dean Music Hall

Gentlemen—The fact that for twenty years the Mason & Hamlin Pianos have been used in our School of Music bears eloquent testimony of the high esteem in which these instruments are held and incidentally certifies to their stability and durability. For many years I have had a Mason & Hamlin Parlor Grand in my own home. Its refinement, its delicacy, its beauty of tone, its mellow sonority and its matchless mechanism never cease to charm and satisfy me.

Yours sincerely,

Peter Christian Luthman

Dean.

Evanston, May 19, 1915

TO CABLE PIANO COMPANY

To you who may be considering a Piano as a Commencement Gift we especially commend the

Mason & Hamlin

Musically the most beautiful piano the world has ever known. On exhibition and sale at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson, Chicago

RECITAL AT NORTH SHORE SCHOOL

Monday evening the North Shore School of Music, Charles J. Haake, director, presented Miss Doris Trafford, pianiste, and Mrs. Louise Halstedt, soprano, in recital.

Miss Trafford is a very talented young girl, whose playing is a distinct credit to her teacher, Mrs. Charles J. Haake. She has poise, and her readings are very intelligent and thoroughly musical. Miss Trafford chose the "First Modern Suite" of MacDowell for the opening number, displaying a well developed technical equipment, good tonal qualities, and variety of interpretative thought that was very convincing and artistic.

In the second and third movements of the sonata, "Eroica," by MacDowell, she excelled herself in the variety of musical thought expressed.

The closing group by Liszt, Cui and Korngold, she again employed her good legata tone and splendid technic to a good advantage, winning the sincere approval of the audience.

Mrs. Louise Halstedt has a soprano voice of good quality and range, used in a very pleasing manner in her songs. She sang "With Verdure Clad," by Haydn, as her first number, and in her second group of songs by Lieurance, she drew her interpretations along splendid lines that were very convincing and musical.

Miss Ruth Goodsmith played good accompaniments.

H. W. P.

A LETTER TO THE APOLLO CLUB

The following letter was mailed last week by Mr. Kinsey to each member of the Apollo Club. It has caused endless comment, needless to say:

To Members of the Chicago Apollo Club:

Now that the tour to California has been abandoned by your board of directors, I have something to say as to why I did not remain secretary and treasurer and carry the tour to a successful conclusion, which tour could have been made the biggest musical event in the history of the club.

The facts are these: Unknown to me, a series of meetings (caucus and otherwise) was held during the month of April, and through absolute falsehoods, I was grossly misrepresented to members of the board and after nine years of faithful service to the club, so much so that at a regular meeting of the directors held early in May, Mr. Ratcliffe was appointed treasurer by a majority vote. As the treasurer appointed by the board is virtually business manager of the club, I could not remain as a mere figure-head, and immediately resigned as secretary, which resignation was accepted.

You ask at once the cause of this animosity towards me. First, I would not support the peace jubilee book, which involved thousand of dollars outlay, thereby jeopardizing the club's reserve fund of seven thousand dollars or more invested in high class bonds at five per cent. Second, there was a difference of opinion as to the matter of the railroad, which was to carry the chorus to the west, a certain officer favoring the Rock Island, one of the officials of the road being a personal friend. Without possessing any friends or affiliations with any of the railroads, I selected the Chicago and Northwestern for the reason that it offered the more favorable contract, the best time, service and equipment. The board of directors not unnaturally took my view of the matter and decided to make a contract with the Northwestern. The feelings of this particular officer toward me easily may be imagined. Other misrepresentations of a similar kind have been made to the members, all of which I did not and could not support, for everything I have done has been honest and above board at all times, consequently immediately after the annual election, at which election the members unanimously elected me to the office of secretary, the above means were taken to secure my resignation.

Many members have asked regarding the endowment fund, about which so much was heard at the time of the election of 1914. It was then publicly stated that "wealthy men were waiting to give thousands of dollars to the fund when created," but not one cent of money has ever come to the fund, or is there known to be any coming from any source in the future.

After due deliberation and advice, I decided not to bring the matter before the club, for such a course might have brought disruption, and under our present by-laws the members have absolutely nothing to say about the management of the organization, this being vested entirely in the board of directors. I awaited developments, since the carrying out of the many details of such a big tour, involving hours and hours of hard work, could not be done by inexperienced persons, so it was only a question of time before the facts would necessarily be made public.

Mr. Wild, whose illness has been a blow to the club, has worked together in perfect accord with me during the past nine years, although reports to the contrary have been spread about by irresponsible persons. However, immediately after it was discovered that his illness was of such a nature as to absolutely preclude his traveling, and after he had personally told me he could not make the trip, Mr. Stock was suggested as a substitute and this being agreeable to Mr. Wild, I conferred with that distinguished leader, agreed upon terms, presented the matter to the board and the members were given the announcement. With Mr. Stock at the head, success appeared to be assured.

No matter what other business I had in hand, it was my intention to see the trip through to a successful conclusion, but I was not allowed to do this except as a mere figure-head, and to this I objected.

I have always worked for the best interests of the Apollo Club, many times even at the sacrifice of my personal affairs, but one cannot give of his best against such odds. I want every member to know that the Apollo Club is close to my heart and I ways will be. It has been brought to my attention that derogatory statements have been made concerning my dealings with artists in the matter of engagements with the club. I take this opportunity of saying that never have I accepted one cent commission from any artist engaged to sing for the club, or any other organization under my management.

The auditors are now in possession of the club's books. Statements to balance my accounts each year for the past nine years have been mailed to members at the close of each season and the statement balancing this year's account should be mailed you within the next ten days or two weeks.

Members wishing to confer with me on any matter pertaining to the club's affairs will be gladly received at my new address. I am still retaining my active membership in the club and, business not preventing, I will be a singing member next season and thereafter, working for the success of the club's concerts at all times.

I remain, Faithfully yours,
(Signed) CARL D. KINSEY.
Chicago, Ill., June 10, 1915.

EARL VICTOR PRAHL PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

Thursday evening, June 10, a fine recital was given by piano pupils of Earl Victor Prahl at Bush Temple Conservatory Lyceum Hall.

Mr. Prahl is well known as a pianist of excellent attainments, also as an accompanist, and has by his artistic playing won his unstinted and merited praise from the press and public alike.

The showing made by his pupils on this occasion proved beyond doubt that he is a teacher who is both painstaking and artistic, and he may well feel proud of the suc-

SUMMER SCHOOL
study the
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
Teaching system and HOW to BLEND
Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher
and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
THE ORIGINATOR
LEARN HOW TO TEACH
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to
teachers.
Mr. Oscar Deis, Pianist and Teacher,
Director of Piano Dept.
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD MUSIC SCHOOL.
Certificated authorized by State of Illinois, accredited by Board of Education of Chicago
Phone Wabash 4279
SUITE 950-955 MCLURG BUILDING.
218 SOUTH WABASH, CHICAGO, ILL.

cessfully given and well chosen program, which was as follows:

Mazurka	Von Wilm
Butterflies	Dorothy Roeschlein
Pomponette	Evelyn Meyer
Canzonetta	Durand
Musix Box	Schuett
Dance of Columbine	Laidow
Warum	Lillian Widmayer
Grillen	Schumann
The Cuckoo	Schumann
Elevation	Daquin
Butterfly	Chaminade
Capriccio Brillante	Rollie Fox
	Lavallee
	Mendelssohn
	Esther Johnson
	(Mr. Prahl at second piano)

The pupils displayed well developed technical equipments, a fine regard for musical and rhythmic values. The employment of musical thought was definite and individual, proving them to be very talented and serious students, who set about their tasks with a surety and poise that was very gratifying, and they should go far if they continue along the same good lines. H. W. P.

Tomlinson—Miss Anna Tomlinson furnished organ solos at a concert at the First Congregational Church in Berwyn, Ill., on June 3.

BETSY M. HOWLAND PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

Miss Betsy M. Howland, a member of the faculty of the Chicago Piano College, presented her pupils in the following program Tuesday evening, June 8, at Kimball Recital Hall:

*Seesaw	Loomis
Hazel Cooley
Robin and Bobolink	Ellsworth
Aaron Perbohner
*Twelve O'Clock	Loomis
Burton Cooley
*Chinese Song	Garnsey
*Boat Song	Garnsey
Sylvia Keller
Alla Turca	Janke
Millicent Moll
The Chase	Friml
Herbert Habermann
Frolics	Von Wilm
Margaret Sharp
A Day in Summer	Mokrejs
Rhoda Axelson
Elfin Revels	Paldi
Virginia Saunders
Playful Rondo	Greene
Harold Wagner
Hide and Seek	Schytte
The Gypsies are Coming	Rogers
Eleanor Frantz
Chasing Butterflies	Lamont
Gertrude Sideman
Walking on Stilts	Gayhros
Seesaw	Knowlton
Roy Ringdell
*Hunting Scene	Gurlitt
Mollie Green
Doll Dance	Mercadante
Marion Schreiber
Gallop Burlesque	Gurlitt
Howard Frantz
Gipsy Dance	Schumann
Marie Knautz
*Rondino	Schultz
Marion Schreiber
Bubbling Spring	Rive-King
Clarice Larson
Trot de Cavalier	Rubinstein
Norton Sutton
Prologue	Bohm
Mildred Felker
Sylphiden	Gade
Anna Sideman
March Grotesque	Friml
Helen Ruttle
Alla Marcia	Schytte
Midred Hendrickson
Spring Showers	Fink
Florence Townsend
Etude Fantastique	Friml
Catherine Braidwood
*Rondo Brillante	Mohr
Esther Shonfeld
*With Miss Howland.

That Miss Howland is a painstaking teacher was clearly demonstrated by the work of the pupils throughout the well chosen program. Pupils in the many grades of study taking part and each individual proved himself or herself fully equal to the task before them, and also they proved themselves to be very talented and musical.

The technical equipment was sufficient for the work used, and they played with much assurance and ease. There was a definite amount of thought and color throughout that proved Miss Howland to be a very artistic and thorough teacher.

The pupils come on the stage with the assurance and ease that adds much to the attractiveness of any program. Miss Howland may well feel proud of the work accomplished. H. W. P.

Cookingham—Alfred Desmond, a pupil of Miss Edna Cookingham, won the second medal in the Intermediate Department contest at the American Conservatory.

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church } Chicago
Walter Spry School }
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

WESTERN CONSERVATORY COMMENCEMENT

The Western Conservatory of Music held their thirtieth annual commencement in the Kimball Recital Hall Friday evening, June 11, before an audience of such numbers that standing room was at a premium.

Mr. E. H. Scott, the energetic president of the school, gave a very neat and instructive address that was very enjoyable, and proved him to be a man of ideas.

The program opened with the well known "Sextet," sung with much finish and with fine effect by Misses Augusta Collson and Ida Edenburn, Messrs. Haydn Owens, Harlan Haines, Carl Brown and Archer Ballantine. Mr. H. R. Vail played a fine accompaniment.

Miss Alice Davies, pianist, gave a brilliant reading of the "Rondo Capriccioso," by Mendelssohn.

Miss Adeline Eriksen gave of her best in Beethoven's "Sonata Fantasia, Op. 27," displaying good pianistic gifts.

Miss Irene Keeler, pianist, gave a very musical and enjoyable presentation of Raff's "Polka de la Reine."

Miss Josephine Mason played in a spirited and effective manner Chopin's "Scherzo, Op. 31."

Mr. William Luckow, pianist, met the requirements of the Schubert-Liszt "Erlking" to a nicety, disclosing much talent.

The instrumental numbers later included De Kanski's "Awakening of the Lion" and the "Jubal Overture," by Weber, for four pianos and organ.

Misses Irene Keeler, Hazel Manansa, Pearl Fountain, Edna Riedel, Harriet Schnitker, Ethel Erickson, Rae Christie, Edna Uthes, pianists, and Miss Nellie Orr, organist, gave a rousing rendition of the De Kanski number, and Misses Schnitker, Fountain, Christie, Erickson, Keeler, Manansa, Uthes, Orr and Josephine Mason brought the splendid program of the best in musical literature to a very effective and artistic close.

Mr. Scott directed the closing numbers with authority and finish. The vocal numbers were given by pupils of H. W. Owens, director of the voice department.

Miss Harriet Schnitker disclosed a good quality of voice and much musical talent in Forester's "Mifanwy" and Rossini's "Una Voce Poco Fa," singing with sincerity and a good degree of finish.

Miss Nina Shankland gave the Saint-Saens "Aria" and the "Florian Song" by Godard, with much unction, her splendid voice covering the requirements of the songs to nicety.

Miss Mayme Jones' fine lyric voice was employed in a most effective way in "Tomorrow," by Lillo, and "The Dove," by Welshan.

Mr. Robert Jones' sympathetic tenor voice was heard with fine effect in Tate's "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," and Taylor's "On Away, Awake Beloved."

E. H. SCOTT

Mr. Haydn Owens did the greater portion of the accompaniment work, and to him much praise is due, for he gave the singers splendid support.

Throughout the excellent program of piano and vocal numbers the performers gave evidence of great sincerity of purpose and well developed musicianships that should carry them far in their chosen work. The directors and teachers may well feel proud of the splendid array of talent presented, and the praise meriting manner in which they acquitted themselves.

DIPLOMA OF GRADUATION—PIANO

Alice M. Davies, Adeline Eriksen, Irene A. Keeler, Josephine Mason, and William Luckow.

DIPLOMA OF GRADUATION—VOICE

Mayme Jones, Harriet Schnitker, Nina Shankland, Gertrude E. Sternberger, Robert Jones.

NORMAL CERTIFICATE—PIANO

Susan Augustine, Margaret A. Butler, Charles L. Bourrie, Rae Christie, Pearl Fountain, Hazel Manansa, Lottie Norris, Harriet Robinson, Nina Shankland, Ivy Sievers, Erna H. Ufer, and Alvin V. Thomas.

CERTIFICATE OF PROFICIENCY—PIANO

Nellie Fugate, Lillian Freeman, Dorothy Garty, Elsie Rix, Grace Gardner, Otilie Unger, Ralph Hamel.

H. W. P.

Bush Temple—The School of Expression of the Bush Temple of Music gave a program at Lincoln Hall, last Friday evening.

VIVIAN SCOTT PUPILS TO GIVE RECITAL

Saturday afternoon, June 19, Miss Vivian Scott will give a recital at the Cosmopolitan School of Music at 3 o'clock.

Barcarolle	Reinecke
Viola Westberg, Clara Erikson
Melody	Gurlitt
Winifred Cook, Mildred Lewis
Minuet	Whelpley
Fanchon Bennett, Ruth Henion
Gavotte	Gurlitt
Hilda Flemming, Dorothy Kohler
Hunting Song	Gurlitt
Valse	Gurlitt
Tyra Christensen, Betty Blichert
Minuet	Gurlitt
Hilda Flemming, Charlaine Welter
Melody	Gurlitt
Winifred Cook, Charles Williams
Gavotte	Ten Brink
Ballet Scene	Schultz
Brook Ballard, John Bennett
Mandolinpieler	Reinecke
Clara Erikson, Viola Westberg

Brock—Collins Brock, basso, sang the following group of songs on a concert program at Garfield Park Baptist Church, Tuesday evening, June 8, and was given enthusiastic appreciation: "To You," by Speaks; "Country Night Song," by Phillips, and "Young Tom O'Devon," by Russell.

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL CONCERT

A distinct advance was made by the Columbia School this year in the fact that their commencement was held in the Auditorium and in the evening, instead of, as heretofore, in a theater in the afternoon.

The change resulted in an enormous audience and very great enthusiasm.

These conditions were wholly warranted by the very fine program given.

A large class received diplomas and these, with the splendid chorus and orchestra, filled the stage with a beautiful and inspiring picture.

The Columbia believes very much in having its pupils do something which shall make for musicianship and in providing such routine as will fit them for practical positions after graduation. To this end one of the best and largest student orchestras ever maintained in Chicago is under constant drill by that wizard of the baton, Mr. Ludwig Becker, and the amount of repertoire and experience gained in this way is very great indeed.

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
605 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO

Oratorio - Concert - Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY
800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

EDWARD COLLINS

PIANIST
28 Fine Arts Building, Tel. Harrison 3766

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

ERNEST J. DAVIS

Also, Miss Louise St. John Westervelt maintains in the school a splendid woman's chorus and, from time to time, this fine ensemble is heard in public. On Thursday evening this item of the program was of especial value, and reflected immensely to the credit of Miss Westervelt, who conducted with grace and authority.

The body of tone evolved was sweet, full and round and, also, by careful attention to Miss Westervelt's directions, the singers were enabled to give notably good readings to two works by Moussorgsky, and one each by Gretscher and David Stanley Smith, the latter being the only American composer on the entire program.

His "The Zircali," showed magnificent musical values, though its words needs to be printed on the program until it becomes a more familiar number.

In the rather somber Russian works the tone quality was beautiful and the musical values very great.

The orchestra, augmented to symphony proportions by professional additions, played unusually good accompaniments, and in the "Tannhauser Overture" was virtuosic.

The two pianists of the occasion were Grace Leonore Hogue and William Griffith Hill in the Saint-Stens "Concerto in G Minor," and that by Liszt in E flat, both being played with much distinction.

There was style and brilliancy in both performances, and a full quota of musicianship, although the piano used was far from being a good instrument for such an important occasion.

Malvina Neilsson, a young violinist, whose attainments have been commented upon in Music News, played the entire Mendelssohn "Concerto" and played it with such beauty of tone and clarity of interpretative design as to reflect great credit on her teacher, Mr. Becker. She will certainly attain high rank in concert circles if she but perseveres in the path she is now traveling.

Two singers appeared, both pupils of George Nelson Holt, and both of whom have been commended in Music News previously.

Edna Swanson Ver Haar has one of the most beautiful contralto voices in Chicago today, and her training has been such that she uses it superbly. Her reading of the "Liete Signor" from "The Hugenots," was full of beauty and authority.

Mr. Ernest Davis, who sang the "Che gelida Manina" from "La Boheme," is a tenor whose career will be worth watching.

His voice is unusual in every way, and is as beautiful as it is unusual. He will certainly take a high place among local tenors.

Few young voices have so completely filled the Auditorium and few indeed have sung with such excellent tonal quality or such convincing display of musicianship and interpretation.

Mr. Davis has a very high voice, and produces his high C with thrilling effect, and also in such a way as to carry absolute conviction that it is perfectly easy for him, in fact, he sings it so easily that the impression is given that he could go much higher still if he chose, and the making of this statement is surely praise in the highest degree, or at least it is so intended.

The audience was enthusiastic about this young singer, and very ready to admit that his voice is equal to most of the important tenors. He was recalled many times.

C. E. W.

Fanning—Cecil Fanning, baritone, was soloist at Dr. H. J. Stewart's organ recital at San Diego, Cal., last week.

RAOUL BONANNO AND MAE DOELLING IN RECITAL

Raoul S. Bonanno, baritone and Mae Doelling, pianist, were heard in a fine music program by a goodly and very enthusiastic audience in the East Room of the La Salle Hotel on last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Bonanno appeared first on the program and very quickly charmed the audience by his fine appearance, his good concert style and his artistic interpretation of Verdi and Bellini opera arias, which he sung with skill and authority, following with a dramatic reading of "Son lo spirito che nega," a really wonderful number from the little-used "Mephistopheles" of Boite and Schubert's "Erlking," sung, with good enunciation of text, in German.

Later Mr. Bonanno showed his linguistic powers to be extensive by singing also a group of English text numbers, and he closed the program with brilliant readings of two more Italian arias: "Oh, chi piange," from "Nabucco," by Verdi, and "Dio dell'or" from "Faust," by Gounod.

RAOUL BONANNO

Mr. Bonanno's voice is improving steadily, he makes a resonant and powerful tone throughout his middle range, and has some extremely serviceable low tones in his scale. His top notes, too, are ringing and expressive, and altogether his work is that of a most painstaking and attractive artist.

A feature of Mr. Bonanno's work which was much liked and which should always bring him especial attention was the singing of some old Italian folk songs (Sicilian and Neapolitan), in which he displayed not only unusual beauty of vocalism, but also an intimate interpretative thought at once appealing and convincing.

Miss Doelling is always a general favorite whenever she appears, and Wednesday evening was no exception to this very pleasant rule.

She plays the piano in a most wholesome, confident way and has a vast amount of technical development upon which to draw for the purposes of shading and color.

Brilliance is an outstanding feature of her work, but it does not exhaust her possibilities by any means, for she has delicacy and grace in abundance also, and her musicianship is so thoroughly developed that whatever she presents is fully imbued with correctness of expression, no less than with a wealth of technical display.

Mendelssohn-Liszt's "On Wings of Song," is a piece which this pianist has made peculiarly and emphatically her own, and which she played on Wednesday with great beauty of tone and refinement of interpretative thought, being extremely musical also in a "Barcarolle," by Rachmaninoff, and truly virtuosic in his "Prelude" and also in a Chopin "Etude."

The Leschetizki "Lucia," transcription for left hand alone, was made to glow with interest, and the Schulz-Evler "Blue Danube" was again given with that immense speed and sparkle which has made it so notable when played before by Miss Doelling.

Also, this talented pianist played all the accompaniments, and again did she prove herself adept and convincing in the work.

C. E. W.

BUSH TEMPLE

The Bush Temple Conservatory Commencement extended over four days, i. e., June 14, 15, 16, and 17. Reviews of the concerts will be printed next week in Music News.

William Lester—The John Church Co. has accepted for publication a new cantata by William Lester, entitled "The Galleons of Spain." It is for four-part chorus of women's voices with contralto solo, to a text by Frederick H. Martens.

FESTIVAL SERVICE AT ST. JAMES

John W. Norton, organist and choirmaster at St. James Episcopal Church, presented his choir in a festival service on Sunday afternoon, this being the last special musical service of the season for this choir.

As usual, everything was done with taste and skill. Care was given to all parts of the service, even the shortest response.

The "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis" were by Tours, in the key of D.

Shelley's "Saviour When Night Involves the Skies" was the first anthem, and Stainer's "And the People Saw," was the offertory anthem. Both were beautifully rendered.

The singing of Henry's "Orison Hymn" also deserves special mention, as being one of the most beautiful moments in the service.

At the close of the service a short recital was given by Mr. Norton and Master Earl Abramson, boy soprano.

Mr. Norton played, first, Guilmant's "Seventh Sonata" (first movement), and later the ever enjoyable Mendelssohn "Spring Song," both being rendered in thoroughly inspiring and musicianly manner.

Master Abramson's clear, sweet voice was heard in "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," by Harriss; "With Verdure Clad," by Haydn; "Angels Ever Bright and Fair," by Handel, and "The Lord is My Light," by Marsh. Good tone and expression characterized the giving of all of these numbers, although the Haydn oratorio excerpt called forth his best efforts.

C. J. B.

Richardson—Miss Isabel Richardson, soprano, will be a soloist in the first concert of the N. F. M. C. meeting at Los Angeles on June 24. The concert will be given at the Trinity Auditorium.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

IVY SCOTT

SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The Illinois College of Music gave two concerts last week, in each of which some fifty students took part. Novel features in the concerts were contests of seven boys vs. seven girls. The audience was given ballots, and after listening to the contest part of the program, voted the decision. That the question of the superiority of boys over girls in the study of music, and in its rendition, is a close one, was indicated by the vote, which at the Garfield Park M. E. church Monday evening, was in favor of the girls by 17 votes out of 300 cast, while Friday evening, at the Warren Avenue Congregational church the boys won by 10 votes.

A violin orchestra of forty violins, with Mr. Reiche directing Monday, and Miss Tolleson Friday night, gave great delight.

The soloists among the younger pupils Monday night Bernice Heilman gave the "Polonaise" in A of Chopin, in a splendid style; Beulah Bassett played a brilliant arrangement of "Bonnie Doon"; Miss Roberta Brashear showed a charming voice in her vocal selection, which was given with artistic dash and judgment. Roy Melind and Robert Couffer, who played "Airs de Ballet" of De Beriot, were favorites, as was Mable Peterson in her humorous reading; Edith Creighton also was a great favorite.

Friday night the following little artists gave solos: Beatrice Dorian, Chopin Waltz, op. 34; Franklin Paul (violin) "Souvenir" Drdla; Gracie Behan, Bach Gavotte, Invitation No. 13, and Dennee's "Tarantella," A minor; Helen Rusch gave "Love's Caprice" (Heindl). Some twenty others played in a very attractive and interesting program. The college holds its commencement concert at the Central Park Presbyterian church Tuesday evening, June 22, and thereby closes a very active year, having given thirty-two students' recitals at the college hall, besides many concerts in various churches and halls. It is one of the substantial schools of the city, enrolling the past season 350 students.

HAROLD HENRY PUPILS

On Monday, June 21, Mr. Henry will present several pianists in recital at Thurber Hall as follows:

Sonata, Op. 2, No 1.....	Beethoven
Prestissimo
Bouree	Miss Lenore Wood
Serenade a la Lune.....	Bach
.....	Pugno
In Autumn	Miss Anne Neill
.....	Chaminade
Etude in D, Flat.....	Miss Ellen Ekholm
.....	Liszt
Etude, Op. 10, No. 3.....	Miss Katherine McFadon
Barcarolle	Chopin
.....	Rubinstein
Concerto, Op. 37.....	Miss C. Bess Bennett
Rondo	Beethoven
.....	Miss Ellen Ekholm
Petrarch Sonnett, No. 104.....	Liszt
Fantasy Impromptu	Chopin
.....	Miss Augusta Rasch
Ballade, Op. 24	Grieg
.....	Mrs. C. E. Buckley

Orchard—Miss Lavinia Bohrer will give a Piano Recital at the Orchard School of Music and Expression at 1535 Hyde Park boulevard, this (Friday) afternoon at 3.30. Tomorrow at the same hour a program will be given by pupils of Mrs. Orchard, Miss Ziegler, Mrs. De Vore and Miss Wallis.

"CREATION" AT NORMAL PARK BAPTIST CHURCH

Normal Park Baptist Church is to be congratulated on its musical forces in the choir loft that are capable of presenting such an excellent musical program as was heard in that church on Sunday evening.

The occasion was the last special musical service before the summer vacation season, and the music given consisted of selections from Haydn's oratorio "Creation." William Griswold Smith is director of music, and he is ably supported in his work by Miss Beulah Lee Taylor, as organist, who is efficient and thoroughly reliable.

Mr. Smith, in addition to his work at the conductor's stand, sang the tenor solos in a fine manner, "In Native Worth" being especially enjoyable.

As a conductor, Mr. Smith is capable and exacting. He knows what he wants, and how to get it, and the choir responds with promptness and precision. Good tone, attack, release and shading are the results of this mutual understanding.

The soprano soloist of the occasion was Miss Newell Mainwaring, a young woman with a perfectly beautiful high soprano voice, which, thanks to Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdieu, with whom she studies, she is learning to use with telling effect.

Mr. Albert Dieling, pupil of Mr. Smith, delivered the bass solos broadly and successfully. He possesses a big rich voice of the bass-baritone type. He is receiving fine training.

Mr. Smith is also fortunate in having good voices in his chorus, especially in the soprano section. The numbers given were:

Overture—Chaos (organ).
Chorus—And the Spirit of God.
Soprano Solo and Chorus—The Marvelous Work.
Bass Solo—Rolling in Foaming Billows.
Soprano Solo—With Verdure Clad.
Tenor Solo and Chorus—The Heavens are Telling.
Trio—Most Beautiful Appear.
Bass Solo—And God Said, Let the Earth Bring Forth the Living Creature.
Tenor Solo—In Native Worth.
Chorus—Achieved is the Glorious Work.

C. J. B.

LILY WADHAMS MOLINE

Lily Wadhams Moline, formerly organist at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Highland Park, Ill., has recently been appointed organist at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Oak Park, Ill. The work of Mrs. Moline at Highland Park was greatly appreciated by the congregation who kindly but regretfully released her at her own request in order that she might take the position at Oak Park.

Mrs. Edith A. McCullough, soloist at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Oak Park, sang "O God of Love," by Lily Wadhams Moline, Sunday, June 6. She sang with great expression and beauty of tone.

Mr. C. B. Johnson, soloist at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Highland Park, sang "O God of Love," by Lily Wadhams Moline, Sunday, June 13.

Mr. Johnson's way of singing is very impressive, and he sang this song beautifully.

Bagg—Mrs. Elizabeth Foresman Bagg will present some of her vocal pupils in a recital at the Little Theater tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. She will be assisted by Helene M. Browne, pianist, from the Chicago Piano College.

ELLBA MUSICAL CLUB CONCERT

Ellba Musical Club, Ella Bachman, director, assisted by Ethel Couleur, pianist; Frank Holub, violinist, and a visiting quartet, including Anna Parneau, soprano; Honora McGuire, contralto; George Fox, tenor; John Everette, bass, in its third annual concert on Thursday evening, June 10, in Auditorium Recital Hall, gave the following program:

PART I.

Chorus—By Babylon's Waters.....	Smart
Solos by Lucy Rhinevault, Emma Beckmann
Solo—
An Irish Lullaby.....	Ruthven Lang
Salutation of the Dawn (new).....	Kuerstein
Mallicent Martin
Duet—
Die Fischer	Kuecken
Guten Abend, Gute Nacht.....	Brahms
Elsa and Margaret Leimbach
Solo—Rose in the Bud.....	Foster
Hattie Levy
Violin—Perpetuum Mobile.....	Ries
Frank Holub
Solo—Der Himmel hat eine Thrane geweint. Kuecken
Madeline Gerharz
Violin obligato—Paul Hachnik
Chorus—The Lord Is My Shepherd.....	Schubert
Solo—
Fruehling's Nacht.....	Van der Stucken
Day Is Done.....	Ruth ven Lang
Margaret Leimbach
Quartet—Swiftly the Moments.....	Donizetti
Anna Parneau	Honora McGuire
Frank Fox	John Everette

"Sang with great effect. 'Vision Fugative.'"—Chicago Tribune.

GRANT HADLEY

BARITONE

Auditorium Building, Chicago

PART II.

Piano—Etude	Saint-Saens
Ethel Couleur
Solo—To Spring	Stern
Leah Marks
Chorus—
Sweet and Low.....	Barnby
Silver Bell	Herman
Solo by Ella Bachman
Duet—Thy Will be Done.....	Jerome
Hattie Welch, Madeline Gerharz
Solo—Nymph of the Rhine.....	Weckerling
Charlotte Noelle
Solo—Elsa's Traum	Wagner
Esther Oppenheim
Octet—Marrying Maiden	Anon.
Emogene Michel, Sylvia Marks, Kathryn McGuire, Emma Beckmann, Agathe MacDonald, Charlotte Noelle, Florence Marks, Mary Dempsey
Chorus—Charity	Rossini
Solos by Leah Marks, Pearl Jacobus

Miss Bachman, the director of the club, is a member of the faculty of Balatka Academy of Musical Art.

The program was selected and varied in such a manner as to add to its interest and much good talent was displayed in its presentation.

The Ellba Musical Club is composed of young ladies, and the chorus numbers, selected from the works of standard composers, evidenced much painstaking work in preparation. The singing of Herman's "Silver Bell," in which Miss Bachman sang the solo part, was especially grateful, and Miss Bachman was rewarded with hearty appreciation.

Miss Couleur, pianist, and Mr. Holub, violinist, rendered their numbers with skill as did the visiting quartet.

A large and enthusiastic audience was present to inspire the performers.

C. J. B.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER

Mr. Charles Mitchell Mixer is a young Chicago violinist whose success has been marked and for whom it is perfectly safe to predict a brilliant future.

He has great talent, which has been developed in the most careful way for many years, and he is very rapidly taking his place among the most popular young artists in Chicago, having appeared recently in distinctly professional engagements and with other professional musicians.

Throughout Chicago and vicinity he has become widely known for his fine personality, his good musicianship and his artistic playing.

For several years he has been in much demand and his recent solo engagements include appearances with leading down town clubs, churches, choral societies, woman's clubs and society functions.

He has received much praise from the factors that have employed him as well as from the press and his fellow artists, and with him re-engagements are the rule.

Besides being a popular favorite with the public he is a fine teacher and has a large class, being a member of the faculty of the American Conservatory, from which school he was post-graduated last year, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Music.

Mr. Mixer has accepted an out-of-town engagement for the summer but will return in the early fall to resume his teaching at the American Conservatory and to fulfill his many concert engagements.

EARL VICTOR PRAHL A BUSY ARTIST

Mr. Prahl will continue teaching in Chicago until August 1, when he will leave on a Chautauqua tour with Edward Clarke, playing engagements in Iowa, Nebraska, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and West Virginia. He will also become pianist for Charles W. Clark at the four song recitals he is to give during July.

— — — — —

Peterson—Helen Edith Peterson will sing the contralto solo part in "Prodigal Son," by Beveridge, on June 19 at the Salem Swedish Lutheran Church.

HARRIET CASE AS TEACHER

Miss Case's large following in Iowa this season has included a number of gifted young singers. Miss Alita Vaughn, a former graduate of the Columbia School of Music of Chicago, has grown markedly under Miss Case's guidance.

Miss Vaughn was heard at the commencement concert at I. S. T. C., and displayed a pure lyric soprano of much flexibility and brilliancy. Miss Annie Pierce, who appeared on the same program in an effective group of English songs, has a soprano voice of much warmth and beauty of quality.

Miss Pierce, formerly a student at both the Northwestern and Cosmopolitan schools in Chicago, has studied with Miss Case during the past three seasons, and will be associated with her next year as student and assistant.

Miss Inez Brown, contralto, made a successful appearance in the "Rose Maiden" at Oelwein, Iowa, and Hilda Gross Mann, contralto, was heard to fine advantage with the "Germania Mannerchor," of Waverly, on May 28.

— — — — —

Burton—Miss Louise Burton will give a recital at Naperville, Ill., on June 15, leaving immediately afterward for a ten weeks' Chautauqua tour.

THE WILFORD STUDIOS RECITAL

The annual concert of the Wilford Studios in Maywood was given at Library Hall in that suburb on last Friday evening amid the usual scenes of enthusiasm and with the usual gala surroundings.

Pupils of both Mr. and Mrs. Wilford appeared as also Arthur McClure, pupil of Frank Mandy, head of the violin department, and himself an assistant teacher in the school.

Many young pianists came before the audience who in their ease of manner, certainty of technical preparation, and perfection of memory, were a great credit to their teachers.

The choice of repertoire also was skillful and there was shown much taste in interpretation.

Among the more youthful players there were heard Cornelius Hawthorn, Ruby Richardson, Gladys Huffmann, Edward Beech, Philip Sommer, Esther Gonder, Ida Bernstein, Sophia Jarmulsky, Minnie Sloan, Lillian Freeto and Dorothy Stratton, all playing with much credit to themselves and their teachers.

• Everest Johnson, who is also but a youth was the surprise of the evening for he played the far from easy "Valse Tyrolean,"

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE

419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

(Raff), with utter clarity, many touches of virtuosity and a remarkable degree of taste.

Very evidently this boy is destined to take high rank for he is sincere and painstaking far beyond his years.

Barring a careless use of pedal, Florence Glosser played Wilson G. Smith's "Elfin Dance" very well indeed and Evelyn Williams, who closed the program, proved herself to be well advanced technically and musically and played the Chopin "Ballade in A Flat" and "Waltz in E Minor" with a goodly display of musicianship and style.

Mr. McClure showed himself a good violinist and the possessor of both poise and excellent style in pieces by Kreisler and Musin, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Mandy.

Bertha Gunnell-Fricke, the possessor of a good personality and voice, sang Dudley Buck's "When the Heart Is Young" to much appreciation and Mr. and Mrs. Fricke were heard in "I Feel Thy Angel Spirit," (Grabin-Hoffmann), Mr. Wilford playing their accompaniments.

C. E. W.

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE Arthur Platz, Tenor

IS SINGING

"IN ITALY"

By Jeanne M. Boyd

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers
Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.
67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

B BISPHAM AS B BEETHOVEN

In the one act play "Adelaide" supported by a specially selected company.

PART II

Miscellaneous concert by Bispham and Company, entitled "The Rehearsal."

MANAGEMENT, R. E. JOHNSTON, 1451 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

WESTERN
Conservatory
E. H. SCOTT, Pres.
MALLERS BLDG., CHICAGO

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Aze

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
one Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

A SPLENDID PROGRAM AT THE LOUDON SCHOOL

The Anna Morgan Studios in the Fine Arts Building, on a winter's afternoon or evening looks a homey, cheerful place—artistic, too, to the limit.

But on a June afternoon, it is the hottest, stuffiest place in the city of Chicago and the audience assembled there on last Saturday afternoon simply melted in the fierce heat.

However, uncomfortable or not, each one stayed to the very end and each one enjoyed the program to the very full, for it was unique in the extreme and just as full of value as it was unusual.

The early part of the afternoon was occupied by a miscellaneous program, well chosen, well played and splendidly received. At 4 o'clock there was put on a program of original compositions under the direction of John Palmer, these having been written by the pupils of the composition classes in the school.

This program was so unusual and so altogether suggestive of what such an event may be made to be that we print it here entire:

ORIGINAL MELODIES BY OLDER GIRLS

Spring Time—The Bees.....Ruth Menish
A-low A-loof.....Leona Sanstedt
The Lilies—The Dawn.....Edith Powell
Kling-Klang—Shadow March.....Genevieve Sanstedt
Brownie Firefly—The River—My Bed Is Like a Little Boat.....Elizabeth Welch
Song Without Words.....Eleanor Fink

CHILDREN FIVE AND SIX YEARS OF AGE

The Frog.....Allan Welch
My Dolly
Brownies—Words by Jane { Jane Adams
The Bobolink
Little Tin Soldier.....Remick McDowell
Sprinkle, Sprinkle
Birds Are Singing { Charlotte Adams
(Words by Charlotte)
Sunbeams—Words by Charlotte
Duet—The Little Red Fox.....Charlotte and Jane Adams Song—Fiddle-De-Dee.....Elizabeth Pigall

PART TWO

Piano—Song Without Words.....Irma Day
Caprice
Miss Irma Day
Songs—Swing Song.....Mae Twist
Shadow March
Miss Mae Twist
Piano—Polonaise.....Irene C. Francis
Miss Irene C. Francis
Songs—
Fancy { Margaret Weiland
Song for Music
Epilogue
Miss Eda D. Ohrenstein

Piano—
(Written at five years of age)
Sing, Sing,
Zum, Zum,
Schlufe ein
(Written at six years of age)
Dandelion Seed { Elizabeth Hofmann
The Window Pane
Will o' the Wisp
(Written at seven years of age)
Schlummerlied
O Wind A Blowing
The Sandman
Windy Nights

Songs—
The Splendor Falls.....Irene C. Francis
Ask Me No More.....Irene C. Francis
Miss Gertrude Dillon

Piano—
Nocturne.....Margaret Weiland
Scherzo.....Margaret Weiland
Miss Margaret Weiland

Songs—
Longing.....M. Jeanette Loudon
My Child.....M. Jeanette Loudon
Mr. C. Edward Clarke

The work of the little children was so good and so pleasing as to be very suggestive of the unusual value of study in the Loudon School.

Appreciation of poetic titles and a corresponding mood and color in the piece itself is not so common as it might be and certainly these little composers at the Loudon School are on their way to a real appreciation of music as well as in the process of attaining technic to interpret it.

Of the more adult work, it may be said that Miss Francis' "Polonaise" is very good, very stirring and wholly pianistic. Also, she played it well. Her songs were pleasing.

Miss Pigall shows much talent for one so young, but her song suffered through the fact that its interpreter (unprogramed) was not sufficiently prepared to sing it in public.

Irma Day's piano pieces were of some real value and were played neatly. Mae Twist has caught a very clear idea of her chosen texts and sang her songs well.

Margaret Weiland is a very good pianist and she has written very convincingly for her instrument. Also she played the numbers so well as to prove herself a splendid technician. Her songs, however, are not well adapted to the voice and the accompaniments are altogether too elaborate to correspond with the text.

Miss Loudon's songs are of distinct and telling value—the second one especially—set to wonderfully beautiful text, should be published and ought to be much used.

These were, of course, lifted to stellar place on the program through the wholly fine singing put into them by Mr. Clarke, an artist through and through, and one who knows it is just as important to put much careful preparation on a little composition as though it were the very greatest work ever evolved.

C. E. W.

HELEN BROWNE PRESENTS PUPILS

Helen M. Browne presented pupils of her piano class on last Friday evening at her residence studio, 4308 Greenview avenue, in the following program, assisted by Kathryn Browne, soprano:

Echo Answers.....Armand
Kathryn Stull
Pitter Patter Come the Rain Drops.....Elsworth
The Clock.....Elsworth
Marguerite Daum
Birds in the Branches.....Rogers
Gertrude Macintyre
The Shadow March.....Del Riego
The Elf-Man.....John Barnes Wals
Miss Kathryn Browne
Chasing Butterflies.....Lemont
Eunice Klewer
Singing and Swinging.....Crosby-Adams
Kathryn Stull
Dance of the Marionettes.....Crosby-Adams
Gertrude Macintyre
Neckerein.....Von Wilm
Marguerite Daum
Tarantella
Eunice Klewer
The Crafty Crocodile
My Little House.....Travalsea
Miss Kathryn Browne
Duet.....D'Ourville
Gertrude Macintyre and Eunice Klewer

President Hattstaedt Gives Reception—Mr. John J. Hattstaedt, president of the American Conservatory of Music, and Mrs. Hattstaedt gave a reception to the alumni of the school, its teachers and some invited guests at the Auditorium Hotel on last Saturday afternoon.

MUNRO STUDIO RECITAL

The closing recital for the year at the studios of George Munro, in the Athenaeum, drew a capacity audience for the attractive rooms and was the means of showing the finishing work of four fine students.

The remarkable value of the Munro teaching was proven in the unusual scope of the program, for the young artists appearing were given work to do far outside their original limitations, and in every case there was convincing and artistic response to the demands.

Miss Minnie Lang, originally a dramatic soprano, was heard to most convincing effect in works which gave her free scope in lyric and even coloratura effects as well, and throughout her program she displayed an entire fitness for every number of her list.

Especially notable was the ease and beauty, with which she manipulated pianissimo tones in altissimo—an accomplishment, by the way, rarely attained by a dramatic soprano. Her singing of "Hush, My Little One," (Bevignani), was a piece of vocal beauty which this writer has never heard excelled in any studio recital in Chicago and Abt's "Sleep Well, Sweet Angel," was almost at the same great height of excellence.

"Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster," (Weber), in German, showed all those big, virile and forceful qualities which Miss Lang possesses in such abundance and it proved also a wonderful range and the fact that she can be very impressive on unusually low tones, as well as on exceedingly high ones.

In a recitative and aria from "La Sonnambula" (sung in Italian), Miss Lang disclosed those coloratura qualities which have undoubtedly been acquired through hard work and the intelligent application of an effective method. Those effects included clean staccati, very pure chromatic scale and an altogether remarkable trill.

Miss Lang was suffering on Saturday from tonsillitis, but nevertheless gave most convincing proof that she has attained to complete voice control and very much of interpretative artistry.

Miss Vesta Marrs, whose metamorphosis from a contralto to a coloratura soprano under Mr. Munro's instruction has already been told in these columns, showed, on Saturday night a great advance over her status at her last appearance.

Her style has broadened and her voice is continually growing.

She gave a number of coloratura songs as well as some purely lyric in quality, maintaining a fine quality in all.

The "Polonaise" from "Mignon" was done admirably, especially the cadenza, which was crystal pure.

The "Doll Song," from "Tales of Hoffman," was not so satisfactory, being taken at such a speed that both clarity and rhythm suffered somewhat.

Miss Charlotte Kimball is another singer who has grown perceptibly for, while she originally had a soprano of very limited range and color, she has now developed both these items amazingly.

She sang a Woodforde-Finden suite with great purity and warmth of tone, such in fact as to make her seem certainly a mezzo soprano, but later on she sang Sanderson's "Spring's Awakening" just as well and just as emphatically did she prove her coloratura powers.

Miss Alice Hammond, the only contralto of the program, brought her broad style and big tone to bear on a number of well chosen songs, the chief of which was "My Heart at Thy Dear Voice," from "Samson and Delila," in which there was much quality, but which also dragged interminably because of the very slow movement at which it was taken. This writer liked much better Nevin's "My Desire," and "Warum sind denn die Rosen so blass," which are smaller songs but of equally great message and which suited Miss Hammond admirably.

All the singers gave other numbers, the whole program totaling a list of very great worth and Mrs. McMynn, as usual, was the accompanist throughout.

This recital was an admirable example of the value of Mr. Munro's work, for, in the case of each of these four singers the growth has been watched through several years and it has certainly been notable.

The audience was most enthusiastic and each singer was presented with many flowers. C. E. W.

WALTER ANDERSON

Following is Mr. Anderson's list of artists for next season:

Marie Kaiser, soprano.
Elizabeth Spencer, dramatic soprano.
Emma Nagel, soprano.
Henriette Wakefield, contralto.
Christine Schutz, contralto.
Ida Gardner, contralto.
Charles Harrison, tenor.
William H. Pagdin, tenor.
Andrea Sarto, baritone.
Wilfred Glenn, basso.
Laeta Hartley, pianist.
Rebecca Davidson, pianist.
Graham Harris, violinist.
Louise Van Ogle, "Opera Talks."
Manhattan Ladies' Quartet.
Albin Antosch, 'cellist.

FRANK W. Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary STEEL
Hinman TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 521 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

Mabel-Helen
ROGERS

HARPISTE
Concerts - Recitals - Musicales
Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

GRACE MARCUSSON
BRUNE SOPRANO RECITALS
ORATORIO 609 FINE ARTS BUILDING

FRANCES INGRAM
CONTRALTO

Management: C. A. SHAW, Orchestra Hall, CHICAGO
MAURICE FULCHER, Representative, McCormick Bldg.

IDA GARDNER
CONTRALTO
Management WALTER ANDERSON 171 W. 57th St., New York

GEORGE LIPSCHULTZ
MILTON Teacher Violinist Soloist
1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

Summer Term

Wm. Clare Hall
TENOR

Will continue teaching
at his studio

428 Fine Arts Building
Throughout June, July
and August

STRAND THEATER

A very rich entertainment was that at the Strand Theater, which is our old friend Orchestra Hall dressed up and decorated until it would hardly recognize itself.

The entertainment does not depend upon any one thing to carry the burden of the day. Everything offered is new, original, inviting, and each section is bound and pervaded with music. When Mr. Arthur Dunham is not leading his orchestra through a scheduled number or supplying capital accompaniments, he is providing an undercurrent of fitting sound to compass the moving pictures on the canvas. And this music is good too, for "Glad" as personified excellently by Mary Pickford, went through some of her more serious movements to the "Andante" from Tchaikowsky's fourth symphony, and Isaac Van Grove was heard in the Schubert-Tausig "March Militaire," besides good organ music galore being evidenced.

The particular star of the week was Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdieu, who sang with splendid dramatic force and power the big aria from "Aida," "Return, Victor." She was in immaculate voice, seemed to enjoy her surroundings, was superbly gowned and made a most pronounced impression and yielded the requested encore. Later on she did two songs of quiet content with enjoying simplicity and directness and with rare repose and musical taste.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY IN CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

Mr. Denhard, who has a class of pupils of exceptional talent, will present Master Henry Fluegge, fourteen years old, in Central Music Hall at the commencement exercises of the Hinshaw Conservatory on June 25. This young boy has created quite a sensation wherever he has played, and besides being a fine soloist, is an accomplished accompanist, having played for several professional singers.

SUMMER PLANS OF THE ZOELLNERS

The Zoellner Quartet and Mrs. Jos. Zoellner Sr., left on June 15 for Wrentham, Mass., where they will spend the entire summer.

This wonderful organization will again have a record-breaking tour for 1915-16, as their manager, Harry Culbertson, reports that they are already heavily booked for next season. The first engagement takes place in Chicago on October 1.

DRAKE SCHOOL CONCERT

Tuesday evening at Steinway Recital Hall the Drake School of Music presented the orchestra and pupils in the departments of piano, voice and violin in a recital. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Earl R. Drake, gave a good account of itself in the "Coronation March." Meyerbeer and Strauss waltz, also furnishing the accompaniments for the piano and violin solos in a manner meriting much praise and commendation.

The pupils displayed much talent and gave evidence of having received good training along lines that should carry them far. Miss Blanche Blood presented four pupils, ages from twelve to sixteen years—

HELEN PETROVICS AND GERALDINE VANCE
(Each 13 years old), Pupils of Blanche Blood.

namely: Misses Helen Petrovics, piano; Geraldine Vance, piano, and Master Horace Harte, violin. They were heard in numbers by Beethoven, Mozart, Viotti and Vieuxtemps, playing with considerable poise and surety, reflecting much credit upon themselves and their teacher, Miss Blood. Especially noteworthy was the playing of Helen Petrovics and Geraldine Vance, each of whom is but thirteen years of age.

These little girls have much natural talent and in their numbers they showed fine technical development and a real insight into the musical meanings of the numbers they played. Miss Blood is to be congratulated on such pupils and they in turn are fortunate in having her careful attention.

Miss Sara Lasinsky, a pupil of Alfred Calzin, gave the first movement of the Schumann "Concerto, Op. 37," with a breadth and style that was very commendable and much enjoyed. Miss Desneiges Senesac, pianist, and Mrs. Ruth Johnson, voice, pupils of the school, also came in for their share of the merited applause of the evening. Miss Senesac played a number by Beethoven, and Mrs. Johnson sang songs by Roma and Winne, both acquitting themselves in a praiseworthy manner.

H. W. P.

MRS. HANNA BUTLER PRESENTS PUPILS

In the class concert given by Mrs. Butler in the Fine Arts Building last Saturday afternoon there were presented a number of pupils each of whom displayed fine technical preparation and each one showing also that she had caught much of the Butler charm of expression and had imbibed much of the artistry which always pervades the Butler Studios.

Miss Irma Bliss sang "Spirit Flower," (Campbell-Tipton), and "Lo Here the Gentle Lark," (Bishop); Miss Edna Ellison "Chere Nuit," (Brachalet), and "Spring Singing," (MacFadyen); Mrs. Carl Nyquist, "Ah fers e lui," (Traviata); Miss Heaps, "Il est doux, il est bon," (Massenet); Miss Anita Blair, "Little Pink Rose," (Bond), and a group of French songs; Miss Sara Hilles, "A Japanese Love Song"; Miss Marion Grosse, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," (Saint-Saens); Miss Clara Burleigh, "Du-puis le jour," (Louise); Mrs. Henricks, aria from "La Boheme"; Mrs. Mary Holmes, "Songs My Mother Taught Me," (Dvorak), and "Vissi d'Arte," (Tosca); Miss Josephine Parker, "Lullaby," (Brahms), and "Florian's

A. CARPENTER
ORATORIO PUPILS CONCERT
715 KIMBALL HALL TEL. WABASH 8700

Song," (Godard); Miss Charlotte Rothlinberger, "Printemps," (Stern), and Miss Judith Borg, "Ouvrez tes Yeux Bleues," by Massenet.

The accompanists were Mrs. Lily Wadhams Moline and Miss Shaffer and the entire program was a distinct credit to the teaching of Mrs. Butler.

ADA GRACE JOHNSON

Miss Ada Grace Johnson, soprano, was thoroughly successful in the May Festival at Flint, Mich. The following comment from the Daily Journal refers to her singing in "Faust":

Miss Ada Grace Johnson of Ann Arbor captured her share of the plaudits in her interpretation of "Marguerite." Miss Johnson's soprano is very pleasing and her solos were well given, particularly the "Jewel Song." In the trio in the prison scene she shared equally in the honors accorded the other artists.—(Advertisement.)

Cosmopolitan School of Music—The Cosmopolitan, in the Auditorium Building, announces a summer school to extend from June 28 to July 31. A great many of the best teachers will be on duty, and many special features will be added to make this term particularly attractive and thoroughly profitable to out-of-town students especially.

Hinshaw—Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hinshaw were in Chicago last week en route to Los Angeles, where Mr. Hinshaw will have a leading part in the prize opera, "Fairyland," after which he will proceed to Chautauqua, N. Y., where he will head the vocal department of the summer school.

ANOTHER UNUSUAL SERVICE

The Episcopal choirs of the south side, in splendid combination, have been offering some unique programs recently, the silver wedding anniversary service at the Church of the Redeemer, reported in Music News last week, having been one of them.

Still more unusual was the occasion at St. Alban's last Sunday evening, however, when most of the usual evening service was omitted in favor of Henry Van Dyke's poem, "God of the Open Air," and when most of the music was furnished by women instead of the ordinary men and boys.

St. Alban's has found it necessary (because of lack of boys) to employ women for the soprano and alto sections of the choir (using men in the tenor and bass sections, of course) and St. Paul's under direction of John Allen Richardson, has a "St. Cecilia" choir (auxiliary), as has also the Church of the Redeemer under music mastership of Francis Mackay.

All these forces joining at St. Alban's on Sunday evening resulted in a big choir of women (probably 75) with a small choir of men from St. Alban's and St. Paul's.

Robert Birch is the director at St. Alban's and on Sunday evening played the service with brilliant impressiveness, giving a taste also of his technical virtuosity in the "Pilgrim's Chorus," played for prelude, and the "Hallelujah Chorus," played with wonderful verve for the postludium.

In introducing Van Dyke's great poem, the Rev. Jacob Julius Steffens, M. A., said that the current poets were teaching morality in their work in contradistinction to the older ones who by their adherence to pagan mythology taught quite the reverse.

Without stopping to analyze or discuss this contention it is sufficient to say that the Van Dyke creation is a magnificent one and the reading and explanation were very interesting.

Mr. Steffens said, however, that a difference between a man and a horse was that the former could appreciate and love nature while the latter could and did not.

How does Mr. Steffens know this to be true? It is the opinion of this writer (who is a lover of both nature and animals), that cows and horses, dogs and cats, on an average, are much greater lovers of nature than are most humans.

The women of the Redeemer choir dress in white (with veils) and those of the other choirs in black. All are beautifully trained and the processional and recessional were therefore intensely impressive to see, while the mass of tone was big and beautiful as well.

The St. Alban's Choir alone sang Marks' "Remember Not Our Offences" so well as to prove Mr. Birch an excellent drill master, the incidental solo being well done by William Lawlor.

"Jerusalem," from Gounod's "Gallia," was splendidly sung by all the voices, there being present musical power and religious inspiration.

The solo was sung by Miss Dorothy Irvine, who has good voice and considerable skill, but who should learn the pronunciation of the word Jerusalem.

Miss Ada Maude Cook, whose voice gave the impression that she is a promising amateur, sang Van De Water's "The Good

SCENES AND INCIDENTS

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood

Paw Paw City,
Mich.

30 Miles from Lake Paw Paw

An Ideal Spot in Which to Spend the Summer
A Musicians Colony Now Forming

Lots for Sale at Low Prices on Time Payments

Cottages at Reasonable Rental

Address LETTIE ESTEL BROWN, Paw Paw City, Mich.

Shepherd," which is an unusually attractive song.

The crowning point of the program, however, lay in Frances Allitsen's "Psalm of Thanksgiving," which was not only beautiful and appropriate, but which also was given a rousing good reading by the combined choirs.

C. E. W.

WILLIAM BEARD

Music News is in receipt of Mr. Beard's announcement of the removal of his studio on July 1 to 421 Fine Arts Building, also a neat circular entitled, "Facts and Results," which he advises will be mailed on request. Mr. Beard was compelled to refuse an engagement to sing "Creation" at Wooster, Ohio, on the evening of June 15, because he is singing "Elijah" in Ripon, Wis., on the evening of June 14, and it is impossible to reach Wooster in time. He has just been engaged to sing the role of "Alfio" in Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," to be given in Minneapolis, on June 25 and July 23.

Bengel—Helen Bright-Bengel will be substitute alto at St. James Methodist Episcopal Church on June 13. She has refused several Chautauqua engagements for the summer, and will, a little later, go to the White mountains for several weeks.

ELIZABETH FERGUSON HESS

Recently this fine contralto was heard in a private recital and it required but a few songs to prove that her voice is a very exceptional one, her musicianship notably good and her musical feeling of fine sort.

In Liddle's "Abide With Me," she showed such suavity of tone as well as such splendid feeling for religious text as to prove very fully that she is especially fitted for church and oratorio work.

Mrs. Hess has a very long range, but her voice is produced with absolute evenness throughout.

This was proven conclusively in the "Wind Song" of Rogers and "The Sea," by Grant-Schaefer, two songs which together cover a very long scale and which also require great versatility and variety of interpretative thought.

This was fully supplied by Mrs. Hess, who brought also to her task a continual flow of beautiful tone and poetic feeling.

Altogether, Mrs. Hess is a singer thoroughly worth while and she will be heard again with great pleasure.

Mr. William Lester was her accompanist and provided always a solidly beautiful background for her work.

C. E. W.

Spalding—Albert Spalding, distinguished American violinist, will make his fourth transcontinental tour of the United States next season.

HEGEDÜS

The Renowned Hungarian Violinist

In America 1915-16

Secretary, Stella Ramsey

2081 Broadway

New York

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO

THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of MUSIC Modern Expression Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Cor. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL 300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director 2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK

CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS

SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago Tel. Superior 2680

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE

KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK

CONTRALTO

CONCERTS-ORATORIO

294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127 510 Lakeside Place

Soprano

DAN S. DENTON

TENOR

OPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL

Address care Chicago Musical College

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL

08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079 4318 Oakwood Avenue CHICAGO

ELISABETH FERGUSON HESS

CONTRALTO

7622 Rogers Ave. Tel. Rogers Park 9968

BENEFIT CONCERT

An excellent concert, for the benefit of a worthy artist, was that given in Kimball Hall on Wednesday evening, June 9, by Miss Louise Krause, soprano; Miss Frances Schutt, reader; Chr. Mathisen, tenor; Nathan Herzoff, violinist; Stanley Deacon, baritone; Alexander J. Spiegel, cellist, and Elsa Staud Denton, contralto. The participants were greeted with enthusiastic applause which was well merited because of high-grade performances. Because of the variety offered it was a program of unusual interest.

Miss Krause, a young lady of charming presence, sang Becker's "Fruehlingzeit," and the soprano part in the trio from "Faust," showing excellent training and good understanding. Her voice, a lyric soprano, is rich in quality, and she sings with the ease resulting from correct production.

A feature of the program was Miss Schutt's reading of the origin of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," with Mr. G. Leavitt Brown at the piano. Miss Schutt's work was very grateful, and Mr. Brown's playing of the music was thoroughly sympathetic.

Chr. Mathisen made a favorable impression with the tenor aria from "La Boheme." His singing represents much serious study, and the utilization of a fertile musical intellect. He possesses a lyric voice of pleasing quality, especially in the middle range, and shows individuality in his interpretations.

Nathan Herzoff played the "Romance" of Friml and the "Caprice" of Kreisler in a commendable manner. He plays with feeling and sincerity, and with technic adequate for attractive interpretations.

Great praise is due Mr. Deacon for his work on this occasion. Possessing a resonant voice of range and quality, he gave stirring presentations of "Invictus," by Huhn, and the "Largo al Factotum" aria. Style and commanding stage presence with vital interpretations brought him great applause, and he received a hearty reception after his encore.

Mr. Spiegel, at the cello, gave Goltermann's "Andante," and Popper's "Polonaise" with authority and poise. His interpretations showed him the possessor of much musical instinct and a technic that is fluent. He possesses much natural talent, and means of realizing a high artistic standard.

"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," was given a fine rendition by Elsa Staud Denton. Her voice is a colorful contralto of much volume and range, and her singing is thoroughly artistic, showing plainly that she understands her art and possesses musicianship.

The trio from "Faust" closed the program. Miss Krause, Mr. Mathisen and Mr. Deacon were forced to repeat this number, which they did with beauty of tone, good blending of the voices, and no little operatic realism.

An unfortunate oversight was the omission of the accompanist's name—Mr. G. Leavitt Brown gave able support in this department and was a great factor in the success of the evening's program. A happy feature of the entertainment was the willingness of all to give encores.

C. W. J.

COMMONWEALTH EDISON CHORAL SOCIETY AT CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

That the stage of Central Music Hall is well adapted to a small choral society, such as the Commonwealth Edison, was thoroughly proven on Thursday evening, and also the fact that such music sounds beautiful in this dainty hall.

The full power of this society was conserved admirably by the acoustics, while the very marked pianissimo which the director, Mr. Alfred Wathall, so prides himself upon, carried to every seat in the house with utter distinctness and beautiful quality.

This society is closing its year under Mr. Wathall most auspiciously. It is, in fact, two societies in one. The Electra Glee Club, composed of women only, and the Edison Glee Club, devoted to men, while the combination of the two, under the title of the Commonwealth Edison Choral Society, is a well selected, well proportioned and well developed singing body, very equally divided as between the sexes and unusually well proportioned as to voice parts.

The choice of numbers for each choir and for the society itself was made with skill, many light works held the attention of the audience, while at the same time the quota of really fine works was satisfactory, and the presentation of the same was above reproach.

Mr. Wathall has an easy manner, and yet his intention and his control are positive, and his musical acumen is such that each number of his singers is made to glow with musical meaning.

Mr. Guy Webster is accompanist.

The Northwestern University String Quartet, which includes Mr. Wathall in its personnel, gave one of its effective readings and Mabel Corlew Smidt, the popular soprano, was heard in an aria and a group of songs, the latter not being heard by this writer.

For the first appearance she chose the "Michaela" aria from "Carmen," and sang it with a notable wealth of musical beauty.

This test piece requires for its proper handling a voice of superlative sweetness and one also which is under perfect control. These attributes belong to Mrs. Smidt in full power, and she was able to give such an effective reading of the number as it has seldom received.

Her enunciation, shading and phrasing were perfect, and the musical thought was so completely conserved and so deftly manipulated by this gracious singer as to win for her the most thorough approbation.

It is safe to say that this society will again want Mrs. Smidt as soloist for her success was emphatic.

C. E. W.

Woodlawn Baptist Church—The choir of the Woodlawn Baptist Church, University avenue and Sixty-second street, will sing Stainer's "The Daughter of Jairus," next Sunday evening, June 20, at 7:45. The solo parts will be sung by Mrs. R. J. Lytle, Mrs. O. H. Runyan, Mr. A. M. Richardson, and Mr. A. J. Bond; Mrs. Anne Pearson Maryott, organist, and Mr. Harold B. Maryott, director. Next Sunday will be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the church. Rev. M. P. Boynton, D. D., has been the honored pastor for eighteen years.

The Hardman Piano

(Established 1842 in New York)

Recognized by the World's Greatest Vocal Artists and Musicians generally as the most perfect instrument to accompany the voice, and used exclusively in the homes of

CARUSO, TETRAZZINI, ZENATELLO, SLEZAK,
AND MANY OTHERS.

"A wise man profits by the experience of others"

Read what they have to say and remember that the same service and quality is at your command. Let us send you our booklet EXPRESSIONS OF OPINION, which contains half-tone pictures of the best known Operatic Stars.

Most reasonable in price among the few Artistic Pianos.

Uprights, $450.00 up. Grands, $700.00 up.

F. S. SPOFFORD, Chicago Representative
Seventh Floor, Republic Building,
State Street, Corner Adams.

J. LAKIN PORTER AND AUBURN PARK METHODIST CHURCH CHOIR

The Methodist Church at Seventy-fifth street and Harvard avenue is an imposing structure outwardly. Inside it is well arranged along modern lines of church activities and the auditorium is open and direct and will be beautiful when decorative colors shall be added to harmonize with the rich woodwork. There is a small organ, which was not used on the present occasion, and the parson seems to be alert and ready for things. The choir is a good chorus, with solo voices in its folds that meet requirements. The preponderance is feminine, but the male section held up its end with good vigor and determination, and the general effect is distinctly good and pleasing. The director is Mr. J. Lakin Porter, and his young people respond to his wishes in honest, hearty and friendly enthusiasm, and he is apparently on such good terms with them that the music has a kind of cheerful utterance that makes it reach and influence all hearers. The chorus was heard in the Coleridge-Taylor "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," and the strange and varied rhythms, odd chant and chance fragments were all well compassed as well as the more solid portions of plain harmony. It is lovely music, and the lyrical text makes it flow along like a cheerful strain. It has but the one solo moment, the "Onaway Awake, Beloved," which was well done by Mr. James Wasson, who has a resonant tenor voice, likable personality and pleasant directness in his singing.

Prior to the concerted work a mixed program was given, including a group of three songs done in extremely good style by Mr. Porter himself. He has a fine baritone voice, unusually firm in its upper tones and sings with surety and ease and a warm feeling for the meaning of the words. Herman Lohr's "World was once a garden," received at his hands thoroughly grateful treatment.

Mrs. Frederick W. Wiley was heard also in a group of songs. From a chance remark of the minister, it is inferred that she is a pupil of Mr. Porter. If so, she reflected credit upon his abilities, as well as carrying conviction herself, with the clear, well placed voice, good enunciation and emotional content of her message. The Korthour song, "Under the trees," new to the reviewer, was beautifully done.

Miss Edna Bruner played violin solos, being at her best in the Beethoven "Minuet" and Dradla "Souvenir." Someone has wrestled with Lemare's "Andantino" for organ, in an endeavor to make a violin number of it. The result is not happy.

Some trashy "readings" retarded the program, which otherwise was well thought out, arranged and delivered.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL

The program for the commencement exercises to be held this (Friday) evening at assembly room, Fine Arts Building, is as follows:

Overture—Idomeneus	Mozart
The School Orchestra (Strings)	Mr. Kortschak, Conductor
Concerto—Op. 69, Andante Espressivo	H. Miller
Mrs. Ogle
Concerto in A Minor—Allegro (Reinecke)
Cadenza	Mozart
Miss Whitfield
Accompanied by String Orchestra
Duo—Morning, G Major	Chaminade
Miss Richart
Russian Airs—Op. 6	Wieniawski
Miss Miller
Concerto in A Minor—Allegro	Hummel
Miss Freck
Accompanied by String Orchestra
Loreley, E flat Major, Op. 2	Seeling
Ballade, A flat Major, Op. 47	Chopin
Miss Donahoe
Duo—Night and Day	Converse
Misses Butler and Eberhardt
The Star	Rogers
Compensation	Lester
Song of the Shirt	Homer
Miss Mina Katherine Hager
Concerto in A Minor—Finale	Grieg
Miss Cook
Address and Presentation of Diplomas and Certificates by the Director
Concerto in B flat Minor—Finale	Tschaikowsky
Miss Pound

Little Theater—The Chicago Little Theater Company is still being received enthusiastically everywhere. A large, appreciative audience gathered in the Burns' Theater, in Colorado Springs, the evening of May 26, to see and hear the "Trojan Women" of Euripides, as it was presented and interpreted by the members of this company.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY DRAMATIC ART PUPILS AT CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

Tuesday evening, June 8, the advanced pupils in expression and dramatic art presented Hubert Henry Davies' (comedy), "A Single Man" at Central Music Hall. The play was staged under the direction of Mr. Walton Pyre, director of the expression department of the American Conservatory. Only a small part of the "comedy" was heard by this writer, but one can safely say the production as a whole was fully equal to many professional ones.

The stage settings were attractive and the lighting very effective. Rather a remarkable array of talent appeared, proving conclusively that Mr. Pyre has not been idle.

The pupils set about their tasks with ease and assurance, the dramatic action was fine, and the stage pictures were such as to win the enthusiastic approval of the audience. The showing made by each individual is well worth special commendation, and one can truly say they have begun their work along wholly efficient lines. The school may well feel proud of the showing made by this department.

The program cast and the musical numbers were as follows:

Robin Worthington	Mr. John Morgan
Henry Worthington	Mr. John Lukken
Dickie Cottrell	Mr. Malcom Rowles
Lady Cottrell	Miss Margaret Mahoney
Maggie Cottrell	Miss Thelma Fitzwilliam
Miss Hazeltine	Miss Laurine Beaumont
Isabella Worthington (Henry's Wife)	Estha Ohlson
Louise Parker	Miss Jane Clarken
Bertha Sims	Miss Marion Robb
Mrs. Higson	Miss Angie Baker
Olga	Miss Irene Terwilliger
The Nurse	Miss Constance Claussen
Nora	Miss Mary Williams
Bessie	Miss Frances Wine
Violin solos between acts:
Zephyr	Jeno Hubay
Zigeunerweisen	Sarasati
Helene Houghteling
Sicilienne and Rigaudon	Francoeur-Kreisler
Tambourin Chinois	Kreisler
Abe Sopkin
H. W. P.

Meagley—Pupils of Mary Willing Meagley gave a very attractive piano program at the Museum of Art in Toledo, Ohio, on June 7. This was the last of a thoroughly fine series.

MONICA GRAHAM STULTS WALTER ALLEN
Columbia School of Music SOPRANO BASS 303 KIMBALL HALL

CEDRIC W. LEMONT
PIANO AND COMPOSITION
713 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL
SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

Lucy Hartman
CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando
CONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWS

Mayme E. Bolger
ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY
CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS
PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES HERBERT M. BAILEY
Soprano Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland
PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN
CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL
ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH
SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHN CONCERTS
CONTRALTO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough
Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE CHURCHES

Many adult singers had a vacation in Chicago last Sunday morning through the fact that the churches very generally were turned over to a celebration of Children's Day and the children themselves provided all the program that was necessary.

This institution has grown to be a very big one in Chicago and the services offered in hundreds of churches on that day are elaborate and pleasing.

Part of the service was heard at the Austin Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday morning, though Mr. H. W. Owens and his wonderful choir were not in evidence to any extent and the organ was closed and banked high with flowers, the instrumental music being furnished by a very complete amateur orchestra and piano.

These forces opened the program with a Sousa "March," or something so nearly akin that it could not be distinguished from the real article—this being a latter day development which probably would have caused the sudden death of the early Methodists could they but have heard it.

However, the songs as given by the children were of the same jiggy, inconsequential character and so long as the public is attracted by this kind of music and so long as it predominates in the homes and the public schools, why should the Sunday schools struggle against its use? It's all a part of the frivolous times, evidently.

As much of the music as was heard at this service was given with great spirit and skill and all the leaders in the church may congratulate themselves on good discipline, good amount of vigor and effective results.

Among the special numbers was a song by Mrs. Marvel Bergin, a young soprano from a neighboring city, who has a nice presence and a pleasing voice. She sang with care and intelligence and fitted into the occasion very nicely.

Mrs. Bergin has a good presence and displayed fine musicianship. Her number was the splendid "Exaltation," by Craig, a song which has been used a great deal as have also the others of his attractive list. This song is written to the well known text, "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken," and Mr. Craig has caught the spirit exactly and has expressed it in music at once simple in form but powerful in content. It is a song which will be more and more used as choir singers know better its real worth and beauty.

Warren Avenue Congregational

The second stop was made at the Warren Avenue Congregational Church, where much the same conditions prevailed except that the songs assigned the children were of a very much better grade and one especially, a hymn, entitled "Jesus, Friend of Little Children," written by the pastor, James Alexander Jenkins, and set to the familiar air, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," was particularly appropriate and good.

An outstanding feature of the service here was the organ playing of Clarence Loomis. The organ of the church is just now in tip-top condition and Mr. Loomis gets out of it every particle of beauty possible.

The soloist of the church, Mrs. Bonney, sang Cowen's "The Children's Home," but failed to hold the attention of the mass of children present.

Mrs. Bonney displayed good tonal quality and musicianship, but she lacks entirely the ability to "tell a story." Probably none of the children present realized her intention in the least, simply because, with her, it was a question of vocalization and not one of interpretation. Her poor enunciation helped to this dismal result.

Miss Maude Tollefson, a teacher in the Illinois College of Music, played, as a violin solo, the "Meditation," from "Thais," and played it very well indeed. One could have wished, however, that she had chosen something not so hackneyed. C. E. W.

CONCERT AT DIVERSEY BOULEVARD METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

A large chorus choir is maintained at the Diversey Boulevard Methodist Episcopal Church under the direction of Mr. R. Clare MacDonald, who arranged an interesting program for Tuesday evening, June 8.

An audience of good proportions was in attendance.

The auditorium is one of those square rooms in which the acoustic properties seem to be particularly good so the music was heard to good advantage.

Mr. MacDonald had the assistance of several soloists and the Landwer Family Quartet; the soloists being Miss Augusta B. Collison, soprano; Mrs. Nelle Damuth MacDonald, soprano; Mr. H. E. Haines, tenor and reader; Mr. James Nichols, tenor; Arthur B. Swanson, baritone; Miss Fern Keeler, whistler and Miss Emma Wilson, organist.

Mr. MacDonald was ill, so ill, in fact, that he was unable to sing two duets with Mrs. MacDonald which were announced and they were omitted entirely. These were "I Know a Rosebud Shining" (Cowen) and "Doan Ye Cry, Ma Honey," (Noll).

Mr. MacDonald did, however, direct the choir through a number of choruses and these were distinctly to his credit. The selections were excellent, being "Soldiers' Chorus," from "Faust," (Gounod), "O, Italia, Italia, Beloved," (Donizetti), and "Unfold, Ye Portals" (Gounod).

The choir gave these numbers with good attacks, full tone of good quality and gratifying energy.

Mrs. MacDonald was heard in the solo work of "Unfold, Ye Portals," giving an antiphonal effect by taking her place at the rear of the church. Her small part only made one wish she might have been heard in the duets announced or in solo work.

M. K. W.

HINSHAW CONSERVATORY

Hinshaw Conservatory Commencement will take place at the Central Music Hall Friday evening, June 25. Besides the regular graduation exercises, a performance of the opera, "The Mikado," will be given from a cutting made by Mr. Harry Davies, the Welsh tenor, reducing the time to a little over an hour. This is the production which will be sent on the road in Chautauqua by the Conservatory, beginning July 1.

Best—A card from C. W. Best locates him at Lincoln, Neb. He is out booking his artist series and reports splendid results for the coming season.

The American Opera Association of Los Angeles Announces the Following Program

The American Opera Association of Los Angeles, the Local Biennial Board and the Musical Clubs and Citizens of Los Angeles, Entertain the National Federation of Musical Clubs and the Congress for the Encouragement of American Music for the Ninth Biennial Festival of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, and Present the Ten Thousand Dollar Prize Opera, "Fairyland."

JUNE 24TH—JULY 3RD

National Federation of Musical Clubs—Mrs. Julius Eugene Kinney, president; Mrs. Theodore Thomas, honorary president; Mrs. J. H. Smislaert, secretary; Mrs. J. S. Morris, treasurer.

Local Biennial Board—Mrs. Frank Garrett, president; Miss Beresford Joy, recording secretary; Miss Jessica Lawrence, corresponding secretary.

Congress for Encouragement of American Music—Charles Wakefield Cadman, chairman; Carl Busch, Mrs. Elizabeth Casterton, George W. Chadwick, Charles H. Farnsworth, Arthur Farwell, Arthur Foote, Henry K. Hadley, Leonard Lieblich, Tali Esen Morgan, Roland Paul, Oscar Sonneck.

American Opera Association—F. W. Blanchard, president; L. E. Behymer, vice president; Mrs. W. H. Jamison, secretary; Mrs. Gertrude Parsons, Dr. Norman Bridge, J. P. Dupuy.

The following is a tentative program which is as nearly accurate as possible. All numbers cannot be announced with certainty so long in advance of events.

MONDAY, JUNE 21

10 a. m.—National Board of Management, Hotel Alexandria.

2 p. m.—National Board of Management, Hotel Alexandria.

TUESDAY, JUNE 22

10 a. m.—Credential Committee, Hotel Alexandria.

10 a. m.—National Board of Management, Hotel Alexandria.

2 p. m.—National Board of Management, Hotel Alexandria.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23

9 a. m.—Meeting Credential Committee, Hotel Alexandria.

10 a. m.—National and Auxiliary Boards, Hotel Alexandria.

10 a. m.—Interpretative Lecture on "Fairyland," courtesy Ebell Club.

2 p. m.—National and Auxiliary Boards, Hotel Alexandria.

THURSDAY, JUNE 24

9 a. m.—Meeting Credential Committee, Hotel Alexandria.

10 a. m.—Opening Session Ninth Biennial Festival, Gamut Club; invocation, Rev. William Horace Day; address of welcome; response; followed by business session; reports of officers; report of Credential Committee; appointment of committees.

1 p. m.—Adjournment morning session.

2:30 p. m.—American Music Committee, Trinity Auditorium. Mrs. Jason Walker, chairman. Address, F. W. Blanchard; demonstration of Earliest Indian Music, Charles F. Lummis; group of Indian Songs, Princess Tsianina Redfeather; Congress for Encouragement of American Music, Charles Wakefield Cadman, chairman; address by E. R. Kroeger, St. Louis; followed by program of chamber music.

Trio for Violin, Violoncello and Piano, Op. 61.... Adolph M. Foerster

Messrs Oskar Seiling, Axel Simonsen and J. Homer Grunn of the Brahms Quintet.

Group of songs, including prize song, "A Ballad of Trees and the Master".....Faith Rogers Quintet for Piano and Strings in F Minor.....Ernest R. Kroeger

Messrs. Oskar Seiling, Louis Rovinsky, Rudolph Kopp and Axel Simonsen of the Brahms Quintet. Composer at the piano.

8 p. m.—Reception at Hotel Alexandria.

FRIDAY, JUNE 25

9:30 a. m.—Necessary business, Gamut Club.

10:30 a. m.—Public School Music, Mrs. Frances E. Clark, chairman; address, Mrs. Frances E. Clark; intermediate school chorus; address, Miss Lucy Cole, Seattle, Wash.; original compositions, harmony students from Los Angeles high schools; address, Mr. J. H. Francis, superintendent of Los Angeles schools.

2:15 p. m.—Elementary school program, Shrine Auditorium.

Part I.

Seventh and eighth grade combination orchestra, Boys' Glee Club.

Part II.

Junior combination orchestra; elementary school chorus.

8:15 p. m.—High school program, Shrine Auditorium; High school combination orchestra; unison chorus high school boys; cello solo; Girls' Glee Club; chorus; piano solo; orchestra; Boys' Glee Club; violin solo; chorus; orchestra. Director:

Mrs. Gertrude Parsons, Miss Kathryn Stone, Miss Mary D. Ludlow, Miss Jennie Jones, Miss Alma Stickle, Miss Verna Blythe, Miss Ida E. Bach, Miss Mary E. Groves, Mr. Hugo Kirchofer, Miss Ethel Brooks.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26

9:30 a. m.—Business session, Gamut Club; revision of by-laws.

12 m.—Election Nominating Committee.

1:30 p. m.—Club conference, Gamut Club; discussion of methods, etc., Mrs. Emerson Brush presiding.

3 p. m.—Concert by representatives of western clubs, Trinity Auditorium.

5-8 p. m.—High tea, Friday Morning Club.

8:15 p. m.—Orchestral concert (subject to change), Trinity Auditorium; Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, Adolf Tandler, director.

Part I.

Prelude—Hamadryad.....W. J. McCoy

Overture—Prince Hal.....David Stanley Smith

The "1915 Prize Symphony, No. 2, C Minor, Op. 34".....Arne Oldberg

Composer conducting

Part II.

Concerto for Piano and Orchestra.....Mrs. H. H. A. Beach

Omar Suite.....Arthur Foote

The Domain of Hurakan.....Arthur Farwell

SUNDAY, JUNE 27

Morning—American sacred music in all churches.

3 p. m.—Mass meeting, Shrine Auditorium; sacred concert by Woman's Orchestra of Los Angeles, the city and county band and a chorus of one thousand voices, in charge of the Committee from American Music, Sunday, Morton F. Mason, chairman; invocation, Rev. William Horace Day.

Selection.....Los Angeles City and County Band, Adolf Tandler, conductor

The Lord Is My Light.....Parker

A Song in the Night.....Woodman

Chorus

Address.....Mr. Lawrence Erb

My Mouth Shall Speak Thy Praise.....Demarest

Love Song from "The Indian Suite".....MacDowell

Woman's Orchestra, Henry Schoenefeld, conductor

Vocal Solo.....Shackley

Whoso Dwelleth Under the Defense.....Coomb

Chorus

America.....Orchestra, Band, Chorus and Audience

The American Opera Association acknowledges its gratitude to the firms of G. Schirmer (Inc.) and Arthur P. Schmidt, who so generously contributed the music for choral numbers.

Evening—Organ recitals by visiting organists, George Whitfield Andrews, Lawrence Erb and others.

MONDAY, JUNE 28

9:30 a. m.—Reports of special committees; students' department symposium, Mrs. Nellie Strong Stevenson, chairman.

1:30 p. m.—Students' contest recital, Trinity Auditorium.

3:30 p. m.—Recital by Carrie Jacobs-Bond and Frederick Preston Search.

8:15 p. m.—Choral concert by the Woman's Lyric, Ellis and Orpheus Clubs, Shrine Auditorium.

First three numbers by Orpheus Club, J. P. Dupuy, director

The Gateway of Ispahan.....Arthur Foote

The Wish.....Charles Wakefield Cadman

(Dedicated to the Woman's Lyric Club)

The Year's at the Spring.....Mrs. H. H. A. Beach

Woman's Lyric Club, J. B. Poulin, director

Numbers 7, 8 and 9 by Ellis Club, J. B. Poulin, director

TUESDAY, JUNE 29

9:30 a. m.—Report of Nominating committee, Gamut Club; appointment of tellers; educational department symposium, Mrs. Ella May Smith, chairman; followed by course of study round table.

2:30 p. m.—Address, "Establishment of National School of Music," Trinity Auditorium.

3 p. m.—Congress recital: Brahms Quintet of Los Angeles, Oscar Seiling, first violin; Louis Rovinsky, second violin; Rudolph Kopp, viola; Axel Simonsen, violoncello; J. Homer Grunn, piano.

Quintet.....Mrs. H. H. A. Beach

Address by Leonard Lieblich of New York

Quintet for piano and strings, F Sharp Minor.....Edgar Stillman Kelly

8:15 p. m.—Orchestra concert, Trinity Auditorium.

Part I.

Symphonic Sketches.....George W. Chadwick

Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 1, in A Minor.....Edward MacDowell

Pasquale Tallarico, pianist; Mr. Tandler conducting

Part II.

Tone Poem—Minnehaha's Vision.....Carl Busch

The Desolate City.....Mable Daniels

Baritone Solo.....Cecil Fanning

Overture—Masquerade (first time heard).....Eric Delamarter

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30

9:30 a. m.—Election of officers, Gamut Club; new business; followed by discussion of club methods.

1:30 p. m.—Congress recital, Walter Spry, pianist, Chicago, Trinity Auditorium. Assisted by Oscar Seiling, violin; Rudolph Kopp, viola; Axel Simonsen, violoncello.

Part I.

Finale from Grande Sonata Russe.....Felix Borowski

Variations on Balkan Themes, Op. 60.....Mrs. H. H. A. Beach

Part II.

Quartet for piano and strings, D Major.....George Colburn

Andante, allegretto, rondo Americaine

Part III.

Romance in C (Dedicated to Mr. Spry).....Louis Victor Saar

The Valley of White Poppies from "Moods, Op. 9".....Noble Kreider

Intermezzo Scherzando, Op. 6.....Walter Spry

Polonaise in E Minor.....MacDowell

3-4 p. m.—Yvonne de Treville, Trinity Auditorium.

4-6 p. m.—Reception, the Ebelle of Los Angeles.

8:15 p. m.—Joint recital by Mrs. Frank King-Clark, Mr. Cecil Fanning and Mr. Claude Gottlieb. Groups of songs by Mrs. Frank King-Clark.

Songs: Out of the Rolling Ocean (Walt Whitman).....Marshall

Aedh Wishes His Beloved Were Dead (Wm. B. Yeats).....Clyde Van Nuys Fogel

The Lute Player's House (Bard of Dimbovitza).....Winthrop L. Rogers

The Last Leaf (Oliver Wendell Holmes).....Sidney Homer

Piano Sonata in A Major (first time heard).....Charles Wakefield Cadman

Claude Gottlieb at the piano

Songs—Mrs. Clark

It Was a Lover and His Lass (Shakespeare).....Frederic Ayres

I Had a Dove (Adapted from Keats).....Carl Busch

Mammy's Song (Written for Mr. Fanning).....Harriet Ware

A Knighthood Song (Laura Rountree Smith).....Charles Wakefield Cadman

Composer at piano

THURSDAY, JULY 1

10 a. m.—Report of tellers, Gamut Club; unfinished business; report Committee on Resolutions; auto ride to points of interest.

8:15 p. m.—Premiere production of prize grand opera, "Fairyland," Clune's Auditorium Theater. Music by Horatio W. Parker; libretto by Brian Hooker. Cast—Auburn, the king, afterward Prince of Fairyland, Ralph Errolle; Corvain, brother to Auburn, William Wade Hinshaw; Myriel, the abbess, Kathleen Howard; Rosamund, Marcella Craft; Robin, surnamed Goodfellow, Albert Reiss. Alfred Hertz, director.

Paul Fidler, assistant director. Louis F. Gottschalk, stage director.

FRIDAY JULY 2

10 a. m.—Board of Management, Gamut Club.

2 p. m.—Board of Management, Gamut Club.

8:15 p. m.—Opera, "Fairyland," Clune's Auditorium.

SATURDAY, JULY 3

10 a. m.—Board of Management, Gamut Club.

2 p. m.—Matinee, "Fairyland," Clune's Auditorium.

8 p. m.—Electric display, pageant.

8:45 p. m.—Opera, "Fairyland."

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Av., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and
Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Engaged for Chicago Grand Opera Co.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel
3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert
Pupils Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

Edgar Nelson
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

DEWITT DURGIN
TENOR LASH
420 Fine Arts Bldg.

Columbia Conservatory of Music of Aurora Gives Interesting Series of Concerts

Mr. Harry R. Detweiler, director of the Columbia Conservatory of Music and Dramatic Art in Aurora, is a thorough musician and a man of ideas and force.

He has recently been elected for the three year term on the examining board of the State Music Teachers' Association.

A glance over the list of artist pupils who have appeared on the annual programs is as surprising as well as convincing, and it is well to add there are very few teachers whose record of results will equal those shown by Mr. Detweiler's teaching. The programs of the repertoire class will be printed elsewhere.

"The Rose Maiden"

Wednesday evening "The Rose Maiden" was presented by the Aurora College Oratorio Society chorus and the New England

HARRY R. DETWEILER

Church choir, Mr. Harry R. Detweiler, conductor.

The chorus did splendid work throughout the evening and they deserve the highest praise for the manner in which they gave of their best. That Mr. Detweiler is musicianly and a very magnetic conductor goes without saying, and he knows what he wants and gets it.

There was a great variety of contrasted choral effects, the shading, attacks and releases well taken and the unanimity of thought between chorus and conductor, made possible many touches of color and shade wholly effective and artistic. The opening chorus, "Green Vale and Vine Clad Mountain" was sung with a fine breadth, and "Mid the Waving Rose Trees" was given with great expressiveness and beauty of tone.

"Tis Thy Wedding Morning" met with fine favor and well it might for they sang it with telling effect. The soprano and contralto solos were well taken by Misses Shults, Bouslough, and Olson, sopranos, Miss Stephens and Dannewitz, contraltos, pupils from the class of Lemuel Kilby, who has been very successful in his year's work in the school. He may well feel proud of the showing made at this time for they sang with surety, poise and a good display of vocal resource, wholly enjoyable and praise meriting, for they gave of their best, and should go far in the work so well begun.

The tenor solos were handled with much skill and in a very enjoyable manner by Messrs Baker and Tinsley.

Mr. Peterson gave a good account of himself in the bass solos, singing with much sincerity. The closing number, "Yea e'en as die the roses," was sung with telling effect by the chorus and Messrs Baker and Tinsley.

Miss Melita Krieg deserves special mention for the excellent support given at the piano throughout the evening. Her accompanying was a model of elegance in musical and sympathetic playing.

Mrs. Rhoda Miller presided at the organ, adding many touches of color and a good breadth of tonal volume that was very commendable.

Mr. Walter Brauer, 'cellist, gave a refined and musicianly reading of the Goltermann "Concerto in A Minor," for 'cello, that was received with much enthusiasm. He also played the orchestra parts for 'cello in the "Rose Maiden" score with good effect.

Miss Walborg Swanson displayed splendid pianistic gifts in her solo number, "Song of the Sea," by Ware. Her playing is musical as well as brilliant, and she adds many touches of color and shade that make her playing very attractive and artistic.

The splendid programs herewith printed were given by piano pupils in the repertoire class of Mr. Harry R. Detweiler representing classic works from Bach to the ultra modern school of Debussy. The singers appearing on the program are from the class of Lemuel Kilby.

Misses Sybil Hall and Francis Northam are very talented young students, who have made rapid progress in their study and developed a taste for the beautiful in tone, and the best in piano literature.

Miss Mabel Brown is a very successful

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

Howard E. PRESTON
5434 Woodlawn Av. BARITONE Telephone
Midway 4175

HICKISCH Soprano
RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE
Personal Address, LACROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

LEROY CARLSON

SYBIL HALL

WALBORG SWANSON

JENNIE MARSELUS

MARION WHITE

teacher in Plainfield, Ill. This occasion being her first attempt at a complete program, her attitude toward her work is serious.

Miss M. Beatrice Anderson's playing shows appreciation of naunce and rythm, and she has been very successful as a teacher in Newark, Ill.

Miss Sigrid Norling won the gold medal in the composition class this year. She is also completing the teachers' finishing course in the Columbia Conservatory.

Mr. Leroy Carlson is a brilliant young pianist and teacher, who has just completed the high school work in the Geneva High School. He is also a church organist in St. Charles.

Miss Ruth Burnett is a very talented Aurora teacher.

Miss Marion White is a teacher in the Columbia Conservatory. This is her second appearance in the annual series of concerts.

Miss Walborg Swanson played her first program of the series. She is also a very busy and successful Aurora teacher.

Miss Jennie Marselus is a teacher in Somonauk, Ill., who has been very busy as a teacher and a concert artist, and whose repertoire is extensive.

PROGRAM, TUESDAY, JUNE 8

Pianists: Sybil Hall, Frances Northam, Mabel Brown.
Singer: Frances Dannewitz.

7:45 P. M.—SYBIL HALL

Sonata in E Flat—Allegro.....Joseph Hydn
Gavotte, Op. 62.....Xavier Scharwenka
Canzone Amorosa, Op. 25.....Ethelbert Nevin
(Venetian Love Song)
Alba—(Dawn), Op. 25.....Ethelbert Nevin
Aria—My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice.....Saint-Saens
(Samson and Delila")

8:15—FRANCES H. NORTHAM

Sonata VII.....Mozart
Papillon (Butterfly).....Grieg
Erotik (Love Poem).....Grieg
Scherzo-Valse.....Chaminade
Chant d'Amour (Love Song).....Paderewski
Canzonetta.....Holloender
Octave Mazurka.....Eggeling

8:45 P. M.—MABEL BROWN

Sonata, Op. 2, No. 3.....Beethoven
Allegro con brio

Gavotte in D.....Bach
Impromptu, B Flat.....Schubert
Ungarisch.....MacDowell

SONGS

Water Wagtail.....Cyril Scott
Concert Waltz.....Friml

THURSDAY, JUNE 10

Pianists: Miss Beatrice Anderson, Miss Sigrid Norling, Mr. LeRoy Carlson
Singer: Miss Catherine Hurd

7:45 P. M.—M. BEATRICE ANDERSON

Fantasia, Op. 18.....Mozart
Menuet in G.....Beethoven
From a Wandering Iceberg.....MacDowell
Autumn Idyll.....Cyril Scott
Rondo Capriccioso.....Mendelssohn

8:30 P. M.—SIGRID NORLING

Sonata, Opus 31, No. 3.....Beethoven
Minuetto—Trio
Menuet in G.....Bach-MacDowell

ROBERT MAITLAND

BARITONE

Available Season 1915-16

Management Haensel and Jones Aeolian Hall, New York

Moment Musical, Opus 94, No. 2.....Schubert
Aria, Farewell ye Hills.....Tschaiowsky
Joan of Arc
Arabesque in E.....Debussy
A Song from the East.....Cyril Scott
Fruehlingsrauschen.....Sinding

9 P. M.—LEROY CARLSON

Sonata, Op. 14, No. 1.....Beethoven
Allegro—Allegretto
Kamennoi, Ostrow, Op. 10.....Rubinstein
Prelude C Sharp Minor.....Rachmaninoff
Chant du Voyageur, Op. 8, No. 3.....Paderewski

SONGS

Polonaise, Op. 46, No. 12.....MacDowell
Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 2.....Franz Liszt

FRIDAY, JUNE 11

Pianists: Miss Ruth Burnett, Miss Marion White
Singer: Miss Maude Bouslough

7:45 P. M.—RUTH BURNETT

Prelude and Fugue in D.....Bach
Sonata, Opus 26.....Beethoven
Theme: I, II, IV variations
Scherzo—Andante Maestoso.
Aria, With Verdure Clad (Creation).....Haydn
Impromptu, Opus 142, No. 1.....Schubert
Spinning Song.....Mendelssohn
Danse.....Debussy
Wedding Day (at Troidhaugen) Op. 65, No. 6
Concerto in G Minor.....Mendelssohn
First movement

8:30 P. M.—MARION WHITE

Sonata in A.....Mozart
Valse, Op. 18.....Chopin
Piece Romantique, Op. 9, No. 1.....Chaminade
Valse, Op. 34, No. 1.....Moszkowski

SONGS

Concerto in C Minor.....Beethoven

SATURDAY, JUNE 12

Pianists: Miss Walborg Swanson, Miss Jennie Marselus
Singer: Miss Ethel Stephens

7:45 P. M.—WALBORG SWANSON

Sonata, Op. 53.....Beethoven
Adagio molto—Allegro con brio
Aria, Oh My Heart is Weary (Nadeschda).....Goring-Thomas
Etude, Op. 10, No. 5.....Chopin
Chant D' amour, Op. 26, No. 3.....Stojowski
Intermezzo en Octaves, Op. 44, No. 4.....Leschetizky
Nocturne.....Debussy
Song of the Sea.....Harriet Ware
Concerto D Minor.....Rubinstein

8:30 P. M.—JENNIE E. MARSELUS

Theme varie.....Paderewski
Rondo, Op. 1.....Chopin
Gardens in the Rain.....Debussy
Sparks, Op. 36.....Moszkowski

SONGS

Concerto in A Minor.....Grieg
Allegro.....H. W. P.

Burton—Maude Beyler, soprano, pupil of Louise Burton, sang at the Deaconess' Home on June 9 and will give a recital before the Naponese Musical Club on the 23d. Stanley Schubert, tenor, will sing June 20 at Pennsburg, Pa. These pupils received Teachers' Certificates at the Northwestern College, Naperville, Ill., on June 14.

FRANCES NORTHAM

RUTH BURNETT

SIGRID NORLING

M. BEATRICE ANDERSON

Music Festival at Kingfisher, Okla.

The beautiful little city of Kingfisher, Okla., held its first annual music festival on Monday and Tuesday evenings, June 7 and 8.

For this event, which promises to become one of the foremost festivals of the southwest, the city can well afford to offer up thanks to Mr. Frederick L. Drake, director of the music department of Kingfisher College, under whose auspices the festival was presented. Mr. Drake is that type of man which is not afraid to dare to do. Since his connection with the college a few years ago the music department has developed into one of the most efficient in that part of the country, and at the same time he has aroused the interest in and appreciation of the best in music on the part of the populace of Kingfisher until he felt justified in taking the first step for an established music festival. To do this he not only needed the unstinted support of the college and city in preparing the programs, but to fill the opera house at each performance as well.

MABEL CORLEW

The first point was gained with most gratifying results, the latter could have stood improvement, and no doubt this will be noted next year, after the success of the 1915 festival has become thoroughly known throughout the city and surrounding country. To further the interest and pleasure of this festival a quartet of Chicago soloists was brought down to take part in a concert of a miscellaneous nature on the first night and to appear with the Kingfisher Choral Union in a performance of "The Messiah" on the last evening.

A seldom heard of fact is this sending so far for all four soloists in the giving of a first festival, and it is a credit to those responsible for turning what was one year ago a mere dream into success.

The expense attached to the giving of a music festival of this type was a minor point in the scheme of things for Mr. Drake and his promoters are bound and determined to put Kingfisher firmly on the musical map regardless of financial returns, and it is well to add that this point can be proven by the fact that several world renowned concert artists have been brought to Kingfisher in the past few seasons who have aided greatly in the musical development of the populace there. Yet no great money returns were noted after expenses had been paid. With such a spirit on the part of the musical promoters and a co-operation on the part of the students of the college and citizens of the city, which is growing to greater proportions each year, the music festivals are destined to become a great and widely known success.

HERBERT M. BAILEY

Three years ago Mr. Drake, with the aid of Mrs. Drake, who had charge of the dramatic part, put on the opera of "Martha," all the parts were taken by local talent. This was the first effort of the music department to raise the standard of music in the community, and singers from both the college and town took part.

Last year "Bohemian Girl" was given, with the aid of one out-of-town soloist. The interest taken in this by the singers, as well as the people of the community, was such as to encourage Mr. Drake to attempt higher things, and he turned his attention to oratorio work, with the result that after last year he organized a combined chorus of the singers of the college and town, and with a chorus of about eighty voices began work on "The Messiah." It was a tremendous undertaking with a chorus, many of which had never sung in oratorio work, especially one of the magnitude of "The Messiah," but Mr. Drake has the necessary determination to carry through anything he has begun, and he succeeded in giving the oratorio at commencement time of the college on the night of the eighth of June, 1915.

Ladies' Chorus Gives Cantata

The first portion of the Monday evening concert was given over to a rendition of "The Lady of Shalott," a cantata for women's voices, by Wilfred Bendall. Sixteen singers, assisted by Inez Francisco Hughes, soprano, appeared in this performance with Mr. Drake conducting, and Charles Haubiel playing the accompaniments. We are glad of the opportunity herewith to print a picture of this body of admirable singers. It is seldom that one has the good fortune to see such a good looking group of singers as this particular chorus and with the masterful and musicianly hand of Mr. Drake directing their singing reached a plane of excellence seldom equaled. The singers knew the music exceptionally well so consequently a splendid balance of parts as well as

AUGUSTA KANER DRAKE

PASUALE

TALLARICO

Winner of National Pianists' Contest Prize

Representative American Pianist at the Biennial Convention of National Federation of Musical Clubs at Los Angeles, June 29, '15

Tour 1915-16 Now Booking

Management, G. Tallarico, Wilton, N. H.

rhythm was maintained throughout. Distinct enunciation was another pleasurable feature of their work as was their attentiveness to the director.

Mrs. Hughes aided greatly to the success of this cantata's rendition by singing the soprano obbligato with a fine display of tone volume and interpretative intent that carried authority and conviction in every line.

The entire cantata consumed only about twenty minutes, and Mr. Drake deserves high praise for bringing a hearing of this beautiful music to a Kingfisher audience.

INEZ FRANCISCO HUGHES

His directing was musicianly and convincing from every standpoint and he gained gratifying results from the chorus with apparent ease.

Mr. Haubiel played the piano score skillfully, sympathetically and at all times in full accord to the well defined ideas of director, chorus and soloist. Great responsibility rested upon him, but he is such a thorough musician and master of the keyboard that he delivered his share of the work with great eclat.

Chicago Singers Score Success

The latter part of the Monday evening concert brought the Chicago soloists, Inez Francisco Hughes, soprano; Mabel Corlew, contralto; T. Francis Hughes, tenor, and Herbert M. Bailey, baritone, together in a joint program which pleased the audience immensely and was pronounced at once as one of the best concerts ever heard in Kingfisher. Their belated program opened with a quartet arrangement of the "Sextet" from "Lucia," which was sung with such a wealth of tonal volume and color that the audience was at once placed in a most gracious and appreciative mood and showered the singers with applause from the first number to the last. So insistent was this applause that every number of the program was followed by an encore.

Mr. Hughes achieved a triumph in a masterful presentation of "Canio's Lament," from "Pagliacci." His voice is especially adapted to this class of music, and his past operatic experience brings authority and conviction into his singing of operatic arias.

Miss Corlew appeared in two solo numbers, the first being "O, for a Burst of Song," by Allitsen, and the latter, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delila." To both was added a charming encore.

This young and talented contralto was one of the sensations of the festival. She has everything in her favor and should become one of the leading lights on the American concert and oratorio stage. Her voice is rich, full and intelligently produced throughout its entire range, and her style of presentation as well as stage presence is a commendable asset to her resources and a pleasurable feature to her singing. It is hardly possible that anyone could have pleased the audience more with the same list of songs.

Miss Corlew and Mr. Hughes brought a welcome touch of variety into the evening's list of good things by singing the well known duet, "Home to Our Mountains," from "Il Trovatore," in a style which merited the repetition the audience demanded.

T. FRANCIS HUGHES

Mrs. Hughes made a deep and lasting impression upon her hearers through a delightful rendition of Del Acqua's "The Swallow." Her voice is particularly suited to this type of song, and she sang its tricky and difficult phrases with an ease and assurance wholly commendable. Her personality and charming stage presence is very much in her favor and the audience was very enthusiastic over both her programmed and encore number.

Mr. Bailey chose "To the Evening Star," from "Tannhauser," for the display of his powers, and easily shared the honors of the evening through his masterful singing of this beautiful and popular number. His encore was Homer's well known "Banjo Song" and the audience apparently enjoyed this as much as any number offered during the evening.

Mr. Haubiel appeared both as soloist and accompanist on this program, and proved beyond all doubts that Kingfisher College has been especially fortunate in having a musician of such attainments at the head of its piano department. He played the "Danse Macabre," by Saint-Saens in a style which displayed his vast technical equipment to splendid advantage as well as ideal musical expression and an abundance of colorful shading. A vigorous round of applause greeted him both before and after his playing of this number, and only the inevitable encore would quiet the audience. His accompanying the soloists throughout the evening had been a joy to both singers and listeners and thereby does he deserve still further tribute and acclaim. The evening's musical activities were brought to a brilliant and inspiring climax by a magnificent performance of the ever welcome "Quartet" from "Rigoletto."

The Chicago singers were very much at home in this always welcome number and made a complete and lasting impression upon the Kingfisher music loving public thereby. There is a whole souled welcome awaiting these singers should they appear in Kingfisher again in any style of concert.

"The Messiah" Performed

On Tuesday night the people of Kingfisher swarmed to the Opera House in great numbers to hear "The Messiah" performed in their city for the first time, and at the conclusion everyone pronounced the performance a great success.

DR. HERMAN L. MORTON

The Kingfisher Choral Union under the direction of Mr. Drake deserves the unstinted praise and support of the city, college

CLARA EDMUNDS-HEMINGWAY
Contralto-Whistler-Render-Pianist,
 In ORIGINAL Composition Recitals. ORATORIO, Concert, Recital.
 CHURCH. 568 Madison, Gary, Ind. Phone 1224

WILLIAM BROOKE REEVE
 Organist and Master of the Choir St. Luke's,
 Evanston. Organ, Voice, Choir Training

YOUNG LADIES' CHORUS OF KINGFISHER COLLEGE

and surrounding country after such an achievement as that of Tuesday night. "The Messiah" is a task for any body of singers, no matter how experienced they are in ensemble work, and when you find a chorus of seventy-five amateur singers preparing and presenting fourteen of this oratorio's difficult numbers in the short space of four months some great incentive is back of their every move. To put Kingfisher on the musical map is this moving power and results are already attained. Next year they are bound to be better if followed along the same lines.

Mr. Drake knows "The Messiah" and its possibilities as well as that of the chorus thoroughly and therefore gains effects with ease. This was noted throughout their singing of the various numbers, which included "And the Glory of the Lord," "And He Shall Purify," "O Thou That Tellest," "For Unto Us," "Glory to God," "Behold the Lamb," "He Trusted in God," "Lift Up Your Heads," "Their Sound is Gone Out," "Hallelujah," "By Man Came Death,"

"Even So in Christ," "Worthy is the Lamb," and the entire "Amen" chorus. As will be noted, several of these numbers are not sung by the majority of choral bodies, and for that reason added interest and expectancy was brought to the performance. A healthy, solid and well blended volume of tone came with every line they sung, and Mr. Drake succeeded in gaining his every wish and fancy with an intelligent and graceful use of the baton.

Mrs. Hughes sang the soprano solos in true oratorio style. Her clear, ringing voice was heard with gratifying results in "Rejoice Greatly" and in "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" found the sustained and dramatic quality of her voice used with a high degree of artistry.

A SCENE FROM "THE BOHEMIAN GIRL," AS GIVEN AT KINGFISHER COLLEGE, SPRING OF 1914

Miss Corlew again won the deep admiration of the audience by singing the contralto solos with a rare display of voice, deep feeling and a high regard for musical values. "O Thou That Tellest," "He Shall Feed His Flock," and "He was Despised" are wholly within her grasp, and she deserves the tribute that it is but seldom we hear these well worn numbers sung in a more satisfactory manner.

The tenor solos were in excellent and capable hands with Mr. Hughes present to deliver them. His interpretation of the opening recit. and aria, "Comfort Ye," and paniment ceased, the audience sat still until told by the director, that they were excused, seemed loath to go. It all opened a new vision of music, even to those whose idea of music had heretofore not been above "ragtime."

All the singers taking part in this are in favor of perpetuating the chorus, and repeating "The Messiah" every year and there is no question that, if it is given another year, a larger opera house will be necessary to hold the audience which will come to hear it.

The result of it all shows what Mr. Drake has accomplished by his efforts and ability, and what Prof. Carl Swensson of Lindsborg, Kansas, has done for the college there with "The Messiah" is not an impossibility for Kingfisher College under Mr. Drake's efforts.

q q q

Kingfisher College

In the spring of 1907 the board of trustees of Kingfisher College decided to make more of the department of music, and immediately took necessary steps to secure a competent man to place at the head of the College of Fine Arts, as it is now called. They chose Dr. Frederick Lewis Drake, of Chicago, to fill that important place. Dr. Drake is still dean, and he has succeeded in building up a department of music that is surpassed by none in the state.

Only the highest grade of instruction is given; as the college is noted throughout this part of the country for its high standards in every line of work, and salaries that command first-class instructors are

FREDERICK L. DRAKE

"Ev'ry Valley" was an example of how this well known number should be sung, and his dramatic rendition of "Thou Shalt Break Them" was one of the stirring points in the evening's achievements.

Mr. Bailey was in good form throughout his singing of the bass solos and was especially fortunate in making his work of direct appeal to the audience. The true lover of singing always looks forward to "Why Do the Nations?" with a high degree of expectancy at every performance of "The Messiah," and the people of Kingfisher were truly delighted with Mr. Bailey's masterful rendition of this remarkable song.

Mr. Haubiel played the accompaniments in a manner which again brought great credit to himself, and he was most ably assisted by Mildred Ross in the chorus numbers.

There is no question that the rendition of this oratorio has been a revelation to many people of Kingfisher, even to those who, when canvassed by the ticket sellers, said, "I don't care for classical music," for, after the last "Amen" was sung, and the accompaid. The large endowment which the college enjoys makes it possible to give the best instruction at a moderately low figure.

CHARLES HAUBIEL

Pupils are given every opportunity to appear in recitals which are given monthly. Besides these recitals the department produces at least one serious musical work each year which affords great opportunity for the students, not only to hear these works and take part in them, but to hear and get into personal contact with many fine musicians, who are brought here from time to time.

During the past few years many important musical works have been produced by the students, under the directorship of Dr. Drake. Among the latter works are the operas, "Martha" and "Bohemian Girl," the cantata "Holy City," by Gaul, and the oratorio, "The Messiah," by Handel.

Mr. Charles Haubiel has been at the head of the piano department for the past two years and has co-operated with the dean in establishing the highest degree of excellency in that branch of the college. Mr. Haubiel will leave the institution this summer to be succeeded by Dr. Herman L. Morton of Denver.

The college officials are congratulating themselves on securing so eminent a musician as Dr. Morton. He comes to the college in September on the recommendation of some of the foremost musicians of Germany, England and America.

Dr. Morton has been seven years in Europe, the greater part of that time studying with eminent teachers in Germany; the last two years were spent in teaching and concert touring. He has taught several years in this country and is a man of broad education, culture and experience. Dr. Morton has successfully filled several responsible positions, and has done a great deal of lecture-recital work in this country and abroad. He will teach the same method of technic which Mr. Haubiel taught, and which is used by the best musicians the world over.

Dr. Drake, as a voice teacher, stands high and is untiring in his efforts to raise the standard of vocal music in college and community. His many pupils and splendid voices, which he has developed, speak louder for him than anything which might be written or said for him. In all his work and undertakings he is ably assisted by his wife, Augusta Kaaner Drake, who is indeed a charming and talented woman, and enters into the musical life of Kingfisher with whole souled faith and enthusiasm.

It should indeed prove profitable to the young people of the great southwest who are expecting to spend time in a college or music school to look into what Kingfisher College has to offer. Its future sure looks great.

M. N. R.

Doelling Pianist
Teacher
2912 Burling Street

George Nelson Holt, Basso
TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-
CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Ada Grace JOHNSON
Recital Soprano Concert
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich.

RADANOVITS STUDIO NOTES

Isabel Richardson, soprano, will sing on the opening program at the Los Angeles biennial convention of the Federated Music Clubs, the program to be given in Trinity Auditorium June 24.

Laura Cohan gives a recital in Pittsburgh June 22.

W. E. Proctor sang "Cavalleria Rusticana" at Hillsdale, Mich.

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

CELESTED.

HECKSCHER

Personal Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG

110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS

NOVELLO EWER

COMPOSER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfson Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Bealy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST

Management
Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

CHRIST CHURCH CHOIR CONCERT

The choir of Christ Church, Winnetka, gave a very enjoyable concert in the parish house on Thursday evening, June 10, before a large audience of appreciative friends. The leader of the choir is Mr. Ellis E. Chase, who formerly had charge of a boy choir in La Grange, and who in his present work is achieving praiseworthy results. Mr. Chase did all the accompanying for both choir and soloists, and proved very efficient in his endeavors. The program in full was as follows:

Rose of My Heart.....	Lohr
Choir.....
Mighty Lak' a Rose.....	Nevin
Sleepy Time.....	Collins
Gordon De Lay.....
Sweet Miss Mary.....	Neidlinger
Choir.....
A Perfect Day.....	Jacobs-Bond
I Love You Truly.....	Jacobs-Bond
Charles Bulot, Myron Erickson, Mr. Elton Calkins and Mr. Arthur R. Dean.....
Call Me Back.....	Denza
Postillion Song.....	Molloy
Mr. C. L. Day.....
Cowslips and Clover.....	Trevalsa
Charles Bulot.....
Take, O! Take Those Lips Away.....	Moore
Choir.....
Phyllis Is My Only Joy.....	Whelpley
O for a Breath of the Moor-land.....
Mr. Clifford Johnston.....
Bendemeer's Stream.....
Annie Laurie.....
Choir.....
J'ai pleure en reve.....	Ilue
In an Old-fashioned Town.....	Squire
Eventide.....	Dietrick
Gallie (Southern Serenade).....	Mokrejs
Mr. John Rankl.....
The Lark.....	Parker
Choir.....

There were many solos by both young and old members of the choir. Perhaps especial mention is due Gordon De Lay, a five-year-old, who sang charmingly his programmed numbers and an appropriate encore; also Mr. John Rankl, baritone, who is well known in musical circles and who on this occasion received a great ovation, being forced to add two encores. Mr. Rankl's singing is always thoroughly artistic and enjoyable, and he was fully appreciated at this concert.

Mr. Johnston sang beautifully with ease and fine modulation as well as colorful text.
D. K.

BUSH CONSERVATORY

Last Friday evening Mr. Prah played a group of solos and accompanied the chorus in a concert at the Rogers Park M. E. Church. During the last month he has also been accompanist for the rehearsals of the Apollo Club.

Stappani—Pietro Stappani, Ph.D., instructor in Roman language at the University of Chicago, and personal manager as well as affianced husband of Jenny Defau, soprano, has left Chicago for Italy, where he will join the army. The best wishes of Music News goes with him, and we hope for him a safe and speedy return.

JUNIOR RECITAL AT COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL

In the Auditorium Recital Hall on Friday evening, June 11, occurred the junior pupils' recital of the Cosmopolitan School before an interesting audience of friends who encouraged the youngsters to creditable performances. The pupils of Miss Scott, Miss Bracken, Miss Jones, Mrs. Hagenow, Mr. Eames and Mr. Lewis participated, and in general gave evidence of instruction from teachers who are resourceful and painstaking. Miss Scott's students were in the majority, and the work of her class is an indication that she is a teacher of sterling merit, children of extreme youth winning admiration for the success they attained.

The program:

Melody.....	Garlitt
Wake Up Little Daisy.....	Ellsworth
Judith Eames.....
Silhouette.....	Reinhold
Hilda Flemming.....
Music Box.....	Ed Poldini
Evelyn Bovee.....
Fugue in E Minor.....	Weidig
Turkish March.....	Mozart
Virginia Wilson.....
Fahret Grillen.....	Weiss
Dorothy Weinstein.....
Dance of the Brownies.....	Laver
Will o' the Wisp.....	Behr
Mildred Lewis.....
Fantaisie.....	Alard
La Fille du Regiment.....	Alard
Edward Keefe.....
Fugue in C.....	Bach
Kathryn Wennerblad.....
Melody.....
First Loss.....	Schumann
Soldiers' March.....
Charles Williams.....
Romance.....	Case
William Gubbins.....
Three Scenes from Childhood.....	Schumann
Jane Eames.....
March.....	Rentsch
To a Wild Rose.....	MacDowell
To a Water Lily.....	MacDowell
Agnes Loomis.....
Souvenir.....	Bossi
The Skylark.....	Tschaikowsky
Fanchon Bennett.....
Moonshine.....	MacDowell
Shadow Dance.....	MacDowell
Viola Westberg.....
Slumber Song.....	Dennee
Rope Dancers.....	Kullak
Marie Evans.....
Four Preludes.....	Chopin
Albert Walker.....
Child and the Cuckoo.....	Reinecke
'Cello.....	Hall
Winifred Cook.....
Concerto in A Minor.....	Acoolay
Walter Strauss.....
Sonatina, Op. 20, No. 3, first movement.....	Kuhlau
Carl Ulrich.....

Edward Roeder—This evening, Friday, June 18, at the First Methodist Church in Blue Island, Ill., Mr. Edward Roeder, violinist, will play the following program: "Idyl," by Elliott Foudier (dedicated to Mr. Roeder); "Menuet in G," by Beethoven; "Cradle Song," by Schubert-Ehman; "Humoreske," by Dvorak; "Caprice Viennois," by Kreisler.

Ingram—Frances Ingram appeared with great success in the May festival at Cadillac, Mich.

GIOVANNI

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay

MARIA

POPULAR CONCERT AT ST. JAMES
METHODIST CHURCH

The present reviewer came to his first hearing of the new organ at St. James Episcopal Church on last Friday evening and in so doing heard it as he most desired to, under the authority of Miss Tina Mae Haines, its patron saint, by reason of the labor, love and enthusiasm she has bestowed upon it from the inception of its coming.

This concert was the advance guard of a series to be started in the early fall, in which Miss Haines will bring forward the innumerable contents of her library of organ literature, in a system which will be exhaustive in the way of contrast and variety and illuminating comment. She has set herself a pleasant and stimulating task, and in herself and the truly superb instrument at her command she has the material to fully meet its most exacting requirements. Much comment has been already made upon this organ, which is about the last word in completeness and resource, and Miss Haines has had time to become mistress of the situation and is equable and well poised in control, and is easy, deft, brilliant, delightful and spirited, by turns, in the effects she brings about.

The program under consideration was avowedly popular and included familiar things like the Martini "Gavotte"; Rachmaninoff "Prelude"; MacFarlane's "Evening Bells and Cradle Song," and Rossini's "William Tell" overture. It is to be said in all frankness and with decided sincerity that the latter was tremendously showy and stunning as well as well worth while in revealing to the fullest the compass of the organ's many means of expression. Among the newer things was Matthews' "Evening Song," which was a rare study for the listener in the use of the many shades of color and nuance that can be evolved by the competent to illustrate and enrich what is not of great seriousness in itself. In these two numbers were made a large sum total of Miss Haines' assets, for they were a bewildering setting forth of qualities of mind and feeling that were wholly admirable and enjoyable.

Mr. James Hamilton was her assistant, and a real joy throughout, and a particular one in the ballads which depend so much upon taste and expression for their influence. The operatic excerpt did not have all the qualities which later on showed in the ballads. His voice is sterling in character, beautifully placed, and he has good enunciation and style without limit. And atop of these he has personality, a trait so marked that it only needed his interpretation of the Ware "Mammy Song" to know that the charm came through that best of all breeding—the south. No hearing so far has been experienced that had the fascinating touches he put into this song. And there were suavity and polish and fine spirit in Hammond's "Recompense"; Marshall's "I Hear You Calling"; Andrews' "When Roses Wake," and Scott's exquisite "Within the Garden," and a solid purpose in every phrase of Huhn's "Invictus." Mr. Hamilton is a distinct value in the tenor ranks, and his decision to leave Chicago is much to be deplored.

A large audience was enthusiastic.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

GEORGE

THUEL

ALVIN

DOSTAL

Burnham

Barentzen

One of the World's leading
Lyric TenorsManagement
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

PIANIST

Management
R. E.
Johnston
Commercial
Trust Building
41st St. and
Broadway
NEW YORK

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS
TENORCONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIOMANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIO

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU

Season 1915-1916.—Concert

Direction MAURICE FLETCHER

COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company

McCormick Bldg, Chicago

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America

Exclusive Management

Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Peabody St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

CLEVELAND BOHNET

Concert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240

LESTER

MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8888

Hanna Butler

SOPRANO Pupils Recital Oratorio
512 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wabash 4870

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Cholmaster and Organist. Grace Church. Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
714 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

LEIST-BEEBE

AGNES
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue
ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILS

Lambert Murphy

Recital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

Raoul S. Bonanno

BARITONE
Concerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. ALLEN, Fine Arts Building

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

Ralph Brokow

VIOLINIST Wichita, Kas.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cincinnati School of Music Auditorium Building

LOUIS KREIDLER

CONCERTS BARITONE
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Pupils
Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM

Baritone
144 6th Avenue
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR
RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner

Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162

PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SO

RECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 2463

ELLA LA FORGE MURPHY

DRAMATIC
SOPRANO
ORATORIO — CONCERT — RECITAL
Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

A recital interesting a wide circle was that given by Miss Alma Brandewie at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Monday evening, June 7. Miss Brandewie, a pupil of Mr. Leo Paalz, proved herself a conscientious young pianist who has fostered her musical gifts to decided purpose.

Miss Daisy Ann Thompson, pupil of Mr. Theodor Bohlmann, gave an interesting pianoforte recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Tuesday evening, June 8. Her eclectic program provided her ample opportunity to display her keen musical perception. Poise, discreet pedaling, refinement and grace of her rhythms and balance marked her performance.

Mr. Karl Otto Staps presented three of his advanced Conservatory of Music pupils in recital at St. Paul's Cathedral Wednesday evening, June 9. The evening's offerings gave evidence of conscientious preparation and sympathetic co-operation on the part of both teacher and pupils.

The Conservatory of Music department for the blind will be well represented next Friday evening in the pianoforte recital of Miss Alma Rabe, whose entire course has been pursued under Miss Clara Bridge. Miss Rabe is gifted and plays surprisingly well, so that her recitals never fail to attract widely.

Mr. John A. Hoffmann will present a number of talented pupils in a song recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Tuesday evening, June 15. The participants will be: Allie Grant, John Wimmer, Olive Wellbaum, Mrs. Charles E. Howard, Emma Colman, John Orr Stewart, Eva Rosser, Helen Portune, Emil Rosen, Mabelle Heger, Lilius Fry, Mrs. William A. Evans and Chester Moffett.

Dr. Fery Lulek will present two of his most prominent artist pupils in recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music Wednesday evening, June 16, when Miss Ruth Welch, mezzo soprano, and Mr. Elwin Smith, tenor, will give a delightful program of songs and ballads.

The special six weeks' summer session designed for public school music teachers begins at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music next Wednesday, June 16, and the enrollment for this splendid course promises to be greater than ever before. The scope of the opportunities offered at the conservatory for teachers in Normal work along various lines is exceptional and many well known teachers have planned to avail themselves of the advantages offered by Cincinnati and the conservatory.

A sympathetic, well schooled voice was brought into favorable public notice last Thursday evening, when Miss Constance Baur, pupil of Dr. Fery Lulek, gave a song recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. She used her voice, which is replete with a warm and sympathetic quality, with skill, and rare taste thereby winning much admiration and applause.

The juvenile department of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music came into prominence again last Saturday afternoon when the children's classes in sight-reading, ear-training and rhythm demonstrated the remarkable results which are being achieved along these important lines. Classes in juvenile work along these lines, trained under Miss Wisenall, participated in the exhibition, with mutual credit. In addition the program presented a violin solo, by Herbert Silbersack, and a reading by Helen Duhlmeier, promising students of the preparatory department. Those participating were: Lysle Gladys Drake, Jean Frances Small, Virginia Brooks Gilbert, Virginia Evans, Jane Steel, Martha Siefried, Margaret Shotwell and Mildred Harris.

Artist pupils from the class of Mr. Marcian Thalberg were heard in an interesting pianoforte recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Monday evening, June 14.

CHRISTINE MILLER IN INDIANAPOLIS

Some comment of the Indianapolis press:

So well liked was Miss Christine Miller, last night at the Maennerchor concert, that ovations and applause were hers and encore songs were the reward of the audience. Miss Miller has been in Indianapolis six or seven times, and the pleasure enjoyed by her songs is such that it is quite likely she will come again. Added to the beauty and charm of her singing is the delight of her personality, her little ways and gracious greetings, and acknowledgments. Miss Miller was in excellent voice and sang with such happy style that every one liked her. She received many flowers.—The News.

Not in many years has a soloist at the Indianapolis Maennerchor received the ovation that was accorded Arthur Middleton and Miss Christine Miller last night at the last concert of the season at the Maennerchor Hall. Both are great favorites with the local society, it being Miss Miller's seventh and Mr. Middleton's second appearance. It is doubtful if the Maennerchor ever had a more winning combination of soloists for one concert. Miss Miller possesses a voice of remarkable sweetness and, in addition to perfect technique, she has a charm of manner that captivates her audience before she utters a note. Her program numbers consisted of two song groups, the first composed of "Ständchen," (Brahms); "Marienwuermchen," (Schumann), and "Mein," (Schubert). The second group comprised "Damit es Fruehling Werde," (Von Koss), the beautiful "Mit Deinem Blauen Augen," (Strauss), and the familiar "Heimweh," (Wolf). In response to the insistent applause that followed each number she sang "Feinde Ringsum," (Max Fiedler), and "Flower Rain," (Schneider).—The Star. (Advertisement).

CHARLOTTE BURTON

Some comment on this young American violinist reads as follows:

Miss Charlotte Burton, the violinist, and Miss Doris Rinehart, accompanist, were given the rapt attention of the audience, and were compelled to respond to encores. Miss Burton is an exceptional artist for her age and her technique was never better than last night. Enthusiastic friends showered her with flowers.

Until last evening there were many in the audience, who had not been given the pleasure of hearing Miss Burton. Her work was excellent and the audience marveled at her skill. Her encore proved a distinct hit.—The Daily Bulletin.

Miss Burton is so earnest and happy about her work, and her study and talent is a wonder to all who hear her.—Bloomington Bulletin.

Miss Burton has created much favorable comment in her previous public appearances through her marked musical talent and has proved herself the mistress of her instrument, the violin.—St. Louis Star.

The house rung with applause when Miss Charlotte Burton, a young violin prodigy, finished the difficult Czardas, by Sarasate, with a dash and force one does not expect to find in a girl so young.—St. Louis Republic.—(Advertisement).

Loomis—Clarence Loomis, pianist, in conjunction with Mr. Kendrie, violinist, gave a recital at Music Hall, Valparaiso, Ind., last Monday evening to a capacity audience. Helen Axe Brown, H. W. Roberts, Mr. Kendrie and Mr. Loomis appeared in the great auditorium at Valparaiso University on June 15.

ISABEL RICHARDSON

Miss Isabel Richardson gave a song recital at the Illinois State Normal School at Macomb, Ill., on June 3, being assisted by William Lester, at the piano.

The occasion was in the nature of a complimentary entertainment given by the junior class to the seniors and the faculty and it was a pronounced success.

The program was as follows:

Lieder—
Widmung	Schumann
Sapphische Ode	Brahms
Die Forelle	Schubert
Beim Tanz	Hermann
Songs—
A Spirit Flower	Campbell-Tipton
I Know Where I'm Goin'	Old Irish
Only a Rose	Downing
Birthday Song	Woodman
Piano—
Nocturne	Arensky
Ballade	Sibelius
Mr. Lester

Aria—
Adieu Fortes (Jeanne d'Arc)	Tschaikowsky

Songs—
Elysium	Speaks
Will o' the Wisp	Spross
As a Perfume Doth Remain	Lester
Springtide	Becker

The following comment is from the Macomb Daily Journal:

On Saturday evening, at Monroe Hall, the juniors of the Western Illinois State Normal gave the annual entertainment to the seniors and faculty in

LEGINSKA, Pianist

Who appeared as soloist SEVEN times with the New York Symphony Orchestra this season, completely captivated the music lovers of New York at her Carnegie Hall recital, Friday evening, March 19, as the following will attest:

"Leginska gave a convincing exhibition as a pianist in Carnegie Hall last evening. Her skill was of an exalted and unaffected character. She is a conscientious and sincere artist. It may safely be said that of the younger generation of pianists now before the public, Leginska ranks highest."—New York American, March 20th, 1915.

Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

the form of an "at home." It was a most pleasing innovation to be entertained on that occasion by Miss Isabel Richardson and Mr. William Lester, both of Chicago.

Miss Richardson gave much pleasure to her listeners through her charming personality, pleasing soprano voice and musical style.

The four German Lieder, "Widmung," (Schumann), "Sapphische Ode," (Brahms), "Die Forelle," (Schubert), "Beim Tanz," (Hermann), were her opening numbers and served to show Miss Richardson's splendid German diction and power and authority in delivery. "Die Forelle" was particularly liked by the audience.

In the aria, "Adieu Fortes," from "Jeanne d'Arc," by Tchaikowsky, she made the greatest success. In it was displayed variety of effect, dramatic power, voice control of much worth, splendid French and continual musical beauty.

Her English groups were deftly chosen. Her first consisted of "A Spirit Flower," (Campbell-Tipton), "I Know Where I'm Goin'," (Old Irish), "Only a Rose," (Downing), "Birthday Song," (Woodman). These were all done in a thoroughly convincing and finely artistic manner. "The Birthday" being especially well done.

Speaks' "Elysium," Spross' "Will o' the Wisp," Lester's "As a Perfume Doth Remain," Becker's "Springtide," made up the well contrasted group; all being effectively sung. Miss Richardson's singing of each of these was so dramatic and properly emotional that the audience received the impression of much beauty and effect. In response to the hearty applause she responded with "My Shadow," by Hadley, and "In Italy," by Boyd, with sincerity and beauty.

Mr. Lester also came in for much praise. He not only proved himself an alert, sympathetic and accomplished accompanist, but showed splendid technique and delicacy of interpretation when giving Arensky's "Nocturne" and Sibelius' "Ballade." His beautiful "As a Perfume Doth Remain" attracted no little attention to him as a composer. (Advertisement.)

RODERICK WHITE AT GRAND RAPIDS

Some comment of the Grand Rapids press on the recent appearance of Roderick White, violinist, in that city, reads as follows:

An important and successful sonata recital was presented last evening before a large audience in the St. Cecilia Auditorium, by Roderick White, violinist, and Leo Sowerby, pianist.

Grand Rapids has reason to be proud of two such distinguished sons. Mr. White has just experienced his formal New York debut, where foremost musical criterions called his successes triumphs and predicted for him a career that would fulfill his fondest hopes.

The creative and interpretative work of Leo Sowerby in Chicago has attracted no end of favorable comment and encouragement to this gifted young pianist. He has espoused the cause of the ultramodernists particularly and is himself a composer whose radical ideas are apparent in all his work.

The young collaborators substantiated the report that they were in fine form and presented a program last evening unique for its divergence of interest and projecting the contrast of the old and new schools. The first number was Brahms' "Sonata in A. Major, Opus 100," allegro amabile, andante tranquillo vivace and allegretto grazioso. This was performed with admirable deference to its spirit, and rendered beautiful by excellent technical ground work and artistic finish and the perfect unity of instruments. The selection of Brahms served to illustrate the established forms of the long accepted school, the solidity of the appreciation of both players for this particular master and further illustrating the maturity of their musicianship, the necessary firm foundation for a well-ordered advent into the new school.

It is to be remarked that both players possess vital energy (a wholesome product of youth), highly specialized technic and unquestioned eloquence of expression, all of which requisites have gravitated to them by reason of their serious, studious attitude and by reason of their natural gifts. Each has attained that prime requisite, taste, and in tone production, elasticity, warmth and beauty without prolix temperamental evidence.—Grand Rapids Herald.

Each time that Roderick White plays here he shows finer development in technic, in the mechanical mastery of the violin, while his interpretations gain in intellectual depth and insight and in imaginative quality and inspiration. He is a serious minded young musician whose temperamental quality and originality undoubtedly will reach full realization and expression with later experiences and growth. The marked and definite development of his art, which is noted with each of his appearances, gives the impression that he is on the way to become a very distinguished artist.—Grand Rapids Press.—(Advertisement.)

CAROL ROBINSON

Maurice Rosenfeld wrote in the Examiner after Miss Robinson's recital as follows:

Most formidable in its make-up, the program, which Carol Robinson, the young Chicago pianist, presented at the Fine Arts Theater, held the interest of her audience through the long "F. Minor Sonata, Op. 5," by Brahms; the "Kinderszenen," by Schumann; a group of Chopin and some pieces by MacDowell, Bortkiewicz and Chabrier. Miss Robinson has acquired steel-like fingers, supple wrists and great power. She has keen musical intelligence, an un-failing ear for tonal shadings, and altogether a pianistic talent of high order. She ought to become one of our leading virtuosos. Her novelties, the two "Etudes," by Bortkiewicz, are interesting and cleverly constructed, and the Chabrier "Bourree Fantastique" is a fine technical tour de force. (Advertisement.)

Nichols—John W. Nichols, the tenor, recently appeared for the first time in Buffalo, with the Saengerbund Society, where he was warmly received and scored a decided success. Since singing in Buffalo he has had several requests for his services there in joint recital with his wife, the well known pianist, and it is quite probable that they will both be heard again in Buffalo some time next season. All of the Buffalo papers were very enthusiastic over Mr. Nichols' singing.

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. at Gorton School
TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD

Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER

PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Astoria 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67½ East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet

GEORGE DASCHE, 1st Violin OTTO ROEBBORN, Viola
BJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Sweckerod, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE (WABASH) 8988

GEORGE KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

ROEDER EDWARD

CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Roder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts' Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

NORA LORAIN OLIN

VOICE
524 Kimball Hall, 321 Lake Street, Oak Park. Tel. O. P. 2724

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

MARGARET MULFORD

LAWSON
CONTRALTO, MGT. JAMES DE VOE
933 DIME BANK BLDG. 656 LOTBROF AV. DETROIT, MICHIGAN

ADORATION: for medium voice

By HARRY R. DETWEILER
Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Ills.
An exquisite little song.—D. A. Clippinger.

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY

Program of commencement concert at Central Music Hall June 24:

Overture Raymond	Thomas
Orchestra—A. Alfred Holmes, Conductor
Andante Concerto, G minor	Saint-Saens
Lucy Bellerive
Concertstueck in C sharp minor	Chaminade
Martha Johnson
Qui Die Contrabandier, from Act III, "Carmen"	Bizet
Cora E. Rise
Last Movement of Concerto in D minor	Rosenhain
Andrew MacCallum
Andante with Variations	Rode
Ethel Herle
Concerto in A minor, Andante Presto	MacDowell
Marion Lower
Elsa's Dream, from "Lohengrin"	Wagner
Philipine B. Marsden
Concerto, in E flat	Liszt
Margaret Andersen
Petite Tambour	David
Edith Nelson
Fantasia on Hungarian Air	Liszt
Clara Andersen
Address—Honorable R. Chindblom

ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC AND EXPRESSION

Mr. Walther Brauer, 'cellist of the Orchard School of Music and Expression, directed the orchestra and arranged the musical setting for the prize-winning masque, "The Builders of Walls," by Miss Julia Cooley, which was given its first performance last Saturday afternoon at Illinois Canyon, Starved Rock Reservation, under the auspices of the Friends of Our Native Landscape.

MacLeish—Miss Lillian MacLeish sang as substitute contralto at the First Presbyterian Church in Oak Park on June 20, and the two succeeding Sundays.

MACBURNIE STUDIOS

The MacBurnie studios announce a special summer course for teachers, beginning June 21, and closing August 28. This course includes ten student and faculty recitals, ten lectures by Mr. MacBurnie, ten teachers' training classes, and ten literary study classes for those who are taking private lessons.

The opening song recital of this summer term will be given at the MacBurnie studios on Monday evening, June 21, by Miss Marcia Higginson, soprano. The first lecture by Mr. MacBurnie will be given on Wednesday, June 23, at 2 p. m., and the teachers' training classes will begin on the evening of the same day. These are free to all students taking private lessons.

CHANGES AT THE WALTER SPRY SCHOOL

The Walter Spry Music School announces that after June, 1915, this institution will be known as the National Conservatory of Music, Walter Spry, director. The same quarters in the Fine Arts Building will be used, and among the additions to the faculty are: Alexander Raab, celebrated Hungarian pianist; Sandor S. Radanovits, one of the most eminently successful teachers in Chicago as head of the vocal department, and as assistants in this department, Mrs. Augusta Meeker, John Karl Jackson and William Lester, coach and accompanist.

MacLeish—Miss Lillian MacLeish sang at the banquet given by the Handel Choral Society at the First Presbyterian Church of Austin on Friday, June 11. She sang a group of Scotch songs in costume.

AN UNUSUAL PROGRAM

A unique event occurred in the Art Institute on Friday afternoon, June 11, where, under the direction of the International College of Music and Expression, Emma Clark-Mottl, president, an interpretative program was given by Jessie Mack Hamilton, soprano; Kirk Towns, baritone; Otoy Mizuki, the Japanese baritone; Elizabeth Guion Dormer, cantillator, and Edna Lucile Baum, dancer. The accompanists were Jeanne M. Boyd, Margaret Daniels, Rose Seidler and Abe Shynman.

The program was given in Fullerton Hall, and each number on the program illustrated some masterpiece of art in the institute. After the program, Mrs. Lois Dunning, an artist, was presented, and she conducted a tour through the Art Institute, visiting the pictures and statuary represented by the program numbers, and giving a short but interesting talk regarding each.

Mrs. Hamilton opened the interpretation with Schubert's "Hark, Hark, the Lark," which illustrated Breton's famous painting, "Song of the Lark." Two of Jeanne M. Boyd's new songs still in manuscript, the first, "Canzonette," illustrating Jessie Arms' "Lamia" prints, and the second, "At Morning," illustrating Adolph Schultz's "Sunrise," were included in a group. Each of these songs was given with exquisite artistry. Miss Boyd furnished beautiful accompaniments for Mrs. Hamilton.

Kirk Towns' splendid bass voice and interpretative ability were instrumental in presenting a brilliant reading of the "Prologue" from "Pagliacci" (Leoncavallo). This was illustrative of "Pierrot," by Magonigle.

The Hokunsai prints were illustrated by the "Harvest Song" of Cadman, sung by Otoy Mizuki, Japanese baritone. Mr. Mizuki has a voice of good quality and under excellent control.

Elizabeth Guion Dormer gave four interesting cantillations, which were well received. They were: "My Ships" (Wilcox), illustrating Clay's painting, "In Holland Waters"; "Mother's Three Ages of Man" (Bond), illustrating Walker's beautiful piece of sculpture entitled "Her Son"; "What the Chimney Sang" (Harte), illustrating Keith's "The Coming Storm," and "Materialism" (Roger), illustrating Van Ostade's "The Jubilee."

Another interesting and novel feature was the classic dancing of Edna Lucile Baum, by which she illustrated Michetti's "Spring-time," and Muskaes's "The Challenge." Her work was in every way beautiful.

Preceding the program Mrs. Clark-Mottl gave a short talk on music and the correlated arts, and urged that a greater interest be manifested in them, especially with regard to the training of children. She also urged that parents spend more time in our Art Institute, one of the greatest institutes of the kind in the country, and that they bring their children there, even very small children, that they may acquire taste for only the best in art.

The whole affair was both interesting and profitable as well as unusual. C. J. B.

Jeannette Loudon Studios—A children's program will be given Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock by pupils of Miss Jeannette Loudon in Anna Morgan studios.

Philip SPOONERAMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORKSEASON 1915-16
A L B E R T
1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist Steinway Piano

SPALDINGHerbert J. Wrightson

PIANO AND HARMONY

CHICAGO

20 East Jackson Boulevard, Phone Wabash, 6293

HERMANFormerly Baritone the
METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

DEVRIES

Residence 5433 Harper Av.

MRS. HERMANAssociate
Vocal Instructor

Tel. Midway 8963

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago

Summer Term Begins June 30The School for Serious Students*Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS

KATHARINES. BROWN

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

515 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

STAGE
TECHNIC

PHONE WABASH 4805

Jennie F. W. JohnsonContraltoAmerican Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

Instrumental Works by Charles Wakefield CADMAN

For Piano

IDEALIZED INDIAN THEMES

Op. 54

1. The Pleasant Moon of Strawberries.
2. From the Land of the Sky-blue Water.
3. The Sadness of the Lodge.
4. The Return of the Braves.

(Marche Fantastique)

None of these pieces is published separately.

Price $1.00

PUBLISHED BY

White-Smith Music Publishing Co.

BOSTON: 62-64 Stanhope Street

NEW YORK: 13 East 17th Street

CHICAGO: 316 South Wabash Avenue

For Piano

SONATA in A Major

The inspiration for this Sonata came from Joaquin Miller's "Sea to Sea" and the musical interpretation follows the lines of the poem closely.

Price, $1.50

CLAUDE GOTTHELF

the distinguished young American pianist and pupil of Rafael Joseffy, Rubin Goldmark and Josef Lhevinne, has been chosen by Mr. Cadman to play his Sonata, which is to have its first presentation at the Congress of American Music convening at Los Angeles the last week in June, in connection with the Biennial of the Federated Clubs.

PUBLISHED BY

White-Smith Music Publishing Co.

BOSTON: 62-64 Stanhope Street

NEW YORK: 13 East 17th Street

CHICAGO: 316 South Wabash Avenue

For Violin,
Cello and Piano

TRIO in D Major

Op. 56

Dedicated by permission to

Mr. George W. Chadwick

DIRECTOR

New England Conservatory of Music

Retail Price, $3.00

Professional Price, $2.00

PUBLISHED BY

White-Smith Music Publishing Co.

BOSTON: 62-64 Stanhope Street

NEW YORK: 13 East 17th Street

CHICAGO: 316 South Wabash Avenue

LYCEUM ARTS CONSERVATORY CONCERT

Monday afternoon the closing concert of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory was given at Central Music Hall by pupils in the dramatic and music departments of the school.

The conservatory orchestra opened the program with the overture from "Zampa," and later played selections that were enjoyable.

Some splendid talent was heard in the dramatic sketches given, namely, "The Twelve Pound Look" (Barrie); scenes from Susan Clegg's adapted "Ann Warren"; "Castles in Spain," Alice Brown, and "On Bail" (Middleton). The Warwick Male Quartet gave a good account of itself in numbers by Bullard and Greene.

Miss Sadie Christensen, a pupil of Edgar A. Brazelton, disclosed much musical talent in the "Petite Suite," by Ole Olesen. Her technical equipment is well developed and she plays with sincerity. Especially good were her renditions of the "Mazurka" and "Caprice."

Five talented pupils of Mrs. Sybil Sammis-MacDermid, Misses Diena Hilfer, Rose Brown, Lenore Meginnis, Lulu Woessner, Kathleen Lightford, and Miss Jeanne Boyd, accompanist, gave very enjoyable readings of selections from "Impressions," by Ferreri.

Miss Margaret Carlisle disclosed good pianistic gifts in numbers by Rubinstein and MacDowell. The Arcadian Trio, in a group of "Old English Songs," gave much pleasure.

Wanieck—Among the medal winners at the American Conservatory contests this year were the following pupils of Mr. Kurt Wanieck: Harriet Shaffer and Esther Kittilsby, first and second medals in graduating class. Maude Winfield, second in first year collegiate. Richard Oliver and Philipp Warner, first and second in children's class.

Central Music Hall—A place which has at once come into great popularity is the new Central Music Hall (once the Whitney Opera House) and almost every evening of this month is occupied at this handsome place with commencements and other school and studio activities. Next year will find Central Music Hall the most popular place in Chicago.

Washington Park—The choir of the Washington Park Congregational Church, under the leadership of Mr. Richard Proud, gave the patriotic cantata, "Barbara Fritchie," Thursday evening, June 17. Mrs. Bess Beyer Bailey was soloist, and Miss Nellie M. Orr, accompanist.

LAKE BROWNWOOD

So much enquiry has reached us as to the location and cost of reaching this place, etc., that we herewith gladly reproduce some printed information that has just come to hand for the guidance of those musicians who are considering a vacation at this new Musician's Colony:

The entire grounds are shaded with giant forest trees, and a clean white sandy beach of two thousand feet, washed by the restless waters of the crystal lake. Splendid bathing, fishing and boating are daily pastimes, and the entire ground is a shady nook sleeping on the eastern water's edge of the beautiful lake, where from the cottage windows you can see the last blush of the Sultan as he trails his lordly garmentage of carmine across the western surface of the waters. You should see the panoramic grandeur of a Lake Brownwood sunset.

Lake Brownwood is only a few hours from Chicago, and a two mile drive from Paw-Paw City, through the famous fruit lands of Michigan. It will soon reach the season when life's energy will reach the danger line, and you should come and enjoy the refreshing, health renewing breezes 'neath the shaded woodlands of Lake Brownwood. To reach Lake Brownwood by boat, you have the choice of two lake trips, Dunkley-Williams Steamer line to South Haven, and Pere Marquette Railway from South Haven to Paw-Paw City, or Graham & Morton steamer to St. Joseph, thence via Pere Marquette Railway to Paw-Paw City about thirty miles. To go by rail, the Pere Marquette Railway from Chicago to Paw-Paw City. The Michigan Central Railway for Lawton, six miles from Lake Brownwood. For schedule of boats and trains consult the agents of respective companies, as the summer schedule is subject to change. Avoid mistakes; always state to ticket agents, Paw-Paw City, Michigan. Don't confuse Paw-Paw City with Paw-Paw Lake.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
OR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICA O

Mary Lindsay Oliver
 PIANISTE TEACHER
 STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
 Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ELSA STAUD
 CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
 Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL
 The Art of Singing
 81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
 Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Lemuel W. Kilby
 BASS-BARITONE
 Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ
 TENOR
 Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN
 CONCERT ORGANIST
 Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

IDA MELCHER
 TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
 4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 571

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON
 Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
 Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
 Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW
 CONTRALTO
 27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING
 PIANIST
 Studio 418, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tha Mac Haines Teacher, Coach
 Lectures, Recitals
 4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON
 Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
 CONCERTS - PUPILS
 25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS
 SOPRANO
 CONCERTS RECITALS
 510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY
 SOPRANO
 LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck
 PIANIST
 AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale
 CONTRALTO
 FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN Violinists
 CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
 Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE

On May 31 the Peoria Musical College, Peoria, Ill., presented Mrs. C. G. Steinhardt, Miss Lucile Saville and Mr. Robert Doht in an organ recital at the College Building, assisted by Miss Edith Clinebill, soprano.

On Friday, June 11, a students' recital was given at Recital Hall, College Building, introducing Fred Doht, Mrs. Fred Mayer, Luverne Waltmire, Bretha Bradley, Inez Freeman, Marjorie Barclay, Mrs. E. M. Bailey, Julia Zimmermann, Elise Schlatter, Lona Hoover, Adelaide White and Eileen Hoover.

Carl Paige was presented in an organ recital at the Unitarian Church on Sunday, June 8, and a concert by the College Chorus and Orchestra was given at Recital Hall on June 7.

A dramatic recital was given on Monday evening, June 14, and on Thursday the commencement exercises were held with the following program:

Rosamond Overture.....	Schubert
The last Spring.....	Grieg
Hungarian Dance, No. 6.....	Brahms
Orchestra
Concerto, D Minor.....	MacDowell
Larghetto calmo
With second piano, organ and strings
Miss Read
Concerto, E flat Major.....	Liszt
Allegro maestoso
With second piano, organ and strings
Miss Reichelt
Address—Dr. B. G. Carpenter
Presentation of Diplomas and Certificates
Franklin Stead
Steinway Piano Used

EARLE CEASERO

Mr. Earle Ceasero, baritone, of Bethlehem, Pa., was born in that city, but studied in New York and Los Angeles as well as with Trembath of Bethlehem.

He is distinctly a product of America and besides being a pianist and organist (Grace Church, Bethlehem), is a singer of distinction.

Some of his interesting press notices are here reproduced:

A great voice, and a complete mastery of the art of singing.—Denver Times, Denver, Col.

Voice, appearance, personality, the greatest singer who has ever appeared in Pueblo.—Pueblo Chieftain, Pueblo, Col.

A wonderful voice of marvelous sweetness and dramatic power.—Oakland Tribune, Oakland, Cal.

A splendid voice, coupled with the ability to use it.—Gazette, Colorado Springs, Col.

One of the really great singers of the day—his work can best be described as being triumph of diction, finesse of style, the climax of vocal art.—Plain Dealer, Cleveland, O.

A voice of marvelous texture and wonderful power.—Metropolis, Jacksonville, Fla.

The work of Mr. Ceasero was marvelous and he thrilled his hearers by the strength and beauty of his voice.—Plain Speaker, Hazelton, Pa.

Ceasero's work was magnificent—he is an artist and a gentleman with a charm all his own.—Courier-News, Plainfield, N. J.

His singing was like the throwing open of a new and garish world of music.—Reynoldsville Star.

It is seldom indeed that Punxsutawney people have an opportunity to hear a finished vocalist such as Mr. Ceasero proved to be.—Punxsutawney Spirit. (Advertisement).

Hadley—Miss Clara Throndrud, contralto, a pupil of Grant Hadley, will give a song recital under his direction at Perrin Hall, seventh floor Auditorium Building, this (Friday) evening at 8:15.

BISPHAM WILL REVIVE "ADELAIDE"

David Bispham recently returned to New York after a series of engagements throughout the Middle Atlantic and Middle Western States. Among his appearances was one at the spring festival at Ames, Ia., at Charleston, Mo., and other important cities included in his itinerary were St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Atlantic City. Since his return he appeared twice in New York, and on May 25 he was a soloist at the production of the cantata "Columbia Triumphant in Peace," which was given in Washington, D. C.

In a recent letter to the Musical Courier, Mr. Bispham speaks as follows regarding his offerings for the coming season:

"Years ago when I was studying in Florence I saw at the house of a friend a photograph of the celebrated Viennese actor, Jauner, in the character of Beethoven in a one-act play called 'Adelaide,' a romantic episode in the life of the great composer, and at once realized—in a state of mind that is commonly called 'a hunch'—that I could look like Beethoven and that I would play in that drama before I died. I was not yet upon the stage; but several years later when I was singing in the Wagnerian operas at Covent Garden in London I set about finding this piece. I had told a German friend about it, and by a lucky chance he discovered the little faded pamphlet in a second hand book stall; for a penny he bought it and gave it to me. To brush up my German for the operas I translated and adapted 'Adelaide,' but still there never was opportunity to act in it. That did not come until I was singing in New York at the Metropolitan Opera, when I was engaged to give something out of the ordinary for a special occasion. The first performance was at the opening of the new ballroom at the Waldorf-Astoria, when Anton Seidl conducted the orchestra and Schumann-Heink sang before the rise of the curtain. Julie Opp supported me as the beautiful Adelaide, and among others in the cast were Yvonne de Treville and the celebrated actresses, Mrs. Whiffen and Mrs. Walcott.

EDWARD WALKER
 Teaching this Summer
 TENOR 1118 E. 65th St.

"After the play the apparently unemotional Seidl paid me the greatest compliment by coming on the stage, wiping his eyes, which were filled with tears, and with a warm grasp of the hand, saying: 'You are the first man with half effort made me so weep.' Since that time I have frequently performed this affecting and effective little piece in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington and also in London, where one season I took a theater for its production.

"I realize that our American public wants novelty now, and I propose during the coming season to give my play with a cast so chosen that the second part of the program will be a miscellaneous concert, which will be given by the ladies and gentlemen who support me in the drama. In the play Beethoven's dingy, untidy studio is shown. In the second part, however, a modern drawing room will be the setting for the concert, which I shall call 'The Rehearsal.' A hostess is awaiting the arrival of the artists, whom she has engaged for her musicale shortly to take place, and they have an hour or so of informal music in preparation for the occasion. This is a good idea in the opinion of many, and I have patented it."—The Musical Courier.

Mendelssohn Conservatory—Anna J. Brenne and Anna M. Leeb, pupils of Miss Carrie Scott in the Mendelssohn Conservatory, gave a thoroughly attractive and very successful piano recital at the conservatory rooms in the McClurg Building on Friday, June 4, being assisted by J. Elvira Anderson, soprano, pupil of Joel Mossberg, Sarah Catlin, reader, and the Mendelssohn Conservatory Ladies' Quartet, the latter being a favorite organization at this time, as always, won the heartiest approval from the audience and responded to many encores.

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

"SIEGRIED" GIVEN FIRST OUT-DOOR PERFORMANCE IN THIS COUNTRY

Before an audience of about 20,000, (Wagner's) "Siegfried" was given its first out-door performance in this country, at the Stadium, Harvard University, Friday night, June 4.

The writer was not present, but from reliable reports it appears that the critics are evidently trying, owing, maybe, to the prominence of the soloists, management, and financial interests behind the affair, to make the most of a questionable production, when musical and artistic results and effects are considered.

Everything possible to make the acoustical conditions of the Stadium perfect was done, and yet, as expected, the finest effects of the orchestra were lost to ears some distance from the stage, the facial expressions of the singers were unseen, and action, at least in detail, was unobservable.

The daily papers gave double-headed headlines and several columns to the story of the production, and of the generous financial support of Alexander Steinert, and the amazing energy of S. Kronberg, manager, which made interesting reading about an event destined, perhaps, to become a precedent for future performances, similar in character, in American cities.

In reviewing the reviewers of the production, it is interesting to note their labored effort to say that the soloists played their roles in a great way. Mr. Hale, Boston Herald, says, "The scene between Erda and Wotan is one of the grandest conceived by Wagner. It has justly been called Aeschylean, and Mme. Schumann-Heink sings her music in the Aeschylean manner."

Mr. Downes (Boston Post), remarks that "Mr. Sembach was the only artist who was practically unknown to Boston audiences. His Siegfried was beautifully sung. The voice is fresh and youthful and is used with uncommon skill."

Speaking of Mr. Whitehill's Wotan, the same critic says: "Mr. Whitehill's Wotan is a sonorous and generally impressive impersonation." But his voice had a sameness of color on this occasion, which was not conducive to the utmost interest on the part of the hearers." Further, Mr. Downes' remarks, "Intelligent, reverent as this artist is, he is to be commended for his dignity and breadth in the treatment of phrases, his intelligence and sincerity."

The Boston Evening Globe of Saturday, June 5, gives much space to describing the spectacular features, which all agree were wonderful; to the display of motor cars, more than 5,000, to the dressing in sweaters, overcoats and other apparel suited to a cold New England night, of the audience, and to its movements about, and in the Stadium before and after the performance.

It was announced that a part of the proceeds would go to the American Red Cross Society. While the expenses, said to be $30,000, were large, the receipts, it is also said total more than that sum, so that some benefit, in a general public way, may come from this spectacular and stupendous undertaking. Whether it will prove of lasting, or temporary value to music as an art, or to its devotees as an incentive for study, or to its promoters as an integral factor in community culture and life, is a most debatable question.

At first view, it would seem that this sum of money expended in promoting good concerts in small towns and cities throughout the United States, at popular prices, would do more for American music and musicians than this "Siegfried" performance can do.

Alfred Hertz conducted. The cast was as follows:

Alfred Hertz conducted. The cast was as follows:
Siegfried.....Johannes Sembach
Mime.....Albert Reiss
Der Wanderer.....Clarence Whitehill
Alberich.....Otto Goritz
Fafner.....Basil Ruysdael
The Forest Bird.....Alma Gluck
Erda.....Ernestine Schumann-Heink
Bruennhilde.....Johanna Gadske
L. S. B.

Personals

The Plymouth Choral Society gave its sixteenth concert at Old Colony Theater May 16. The soloists were Grace Bonner Williams, soprano; Miss Eleanor Shaw, contralto; Mr. Louis Carroll, tenor; Mr.

Willard Flint, bass. The chorus, Brocton Philharmonic Orchestra and ensemble were under the conductorship of Charles B. Stevens, also conductor of the Faneuil Choral Society, that gave its spring concert in Warren Hall Thursday night, June 3.

New England Conservatory Note

Representatives of many families of greater Boston gathered at Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon, Saturday, May 29, for the annual recital of pupils of the pianoforte normal department. This class is composed of young people who at a nominal expense acquire the rudiments of a musical education sufficient to enable them later to enter the regular courses of the conservatory and, who, at the same time, give to student teachers practical experience in instructing under supervision. Yesterday's program included pieces by forty-three youthful soloists, a class drill in notation, sight reading, rhythm and ear training, conducted by Maude M. Hardstock, and a class drill in scales, intervals, chords and ear training, conducted by May M. Lynch. Superintendent F. Addison Porter of the department announced that pupils for the normal classes of next season will be examined the third week in September. A special course has been arranged for those who finish the fourth year.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

Vilim American Violin School AT RESIDENCE
RICHARD VILIM SUMMER TERM RIVERSIDE, ILL., or
Academy of Our Lady
95th and THROOP STREETS.
DIRECTOR

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - - - 'Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - - - Piano
MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - - - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - - - - - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract.

(25th Year)
Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—To sublet studio in Kimball Hall one afternoon or part of two afternoons each week: Grand piano. Call at 322 Friday afternoon, or address "Studio," care Music News.

WANTED—Experienced player wants position for the coming season as studio or concert accompanist; violin or voice. Mrs. Helen H. Morgan, 3834 Lake Park avenue. Phone Oakland 5272.

FOR SALE—Pipe organ; three-manual, tubular pneumatic, 38 stops, complete couplers and accessories; seven years old, and in good condition; now in a Chicago church; will have to be moved to make way for a larger one; will be moved and erected, ready to play, for $4,000. A real bargain for some large church or music studio. Instrument can be seen and heard by addressing F. D., Music News.

St. James—A special praise service will be given at St. James M. E. Church next Sunday evening under direction of Miss Tina Mae Haines. Permelia Newby Gale, contralto, will assist.

Blanche Hammond Bender
CONTRALTO CONCERTS RECITALS
Personal Address, Rochelle, Ill.
3117 Sheffield Avenue Chicago, Ill.

EARLE CEASERO
BARITONE
Concerts Recitals
21 North Centre Street Bethlehem, Pa.

Henriette Weber
Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST
Kimball Hall Exclusive Management
JOINT SONATA RECITALS HARRY CULBERTSON

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST
4621 Lake Park Av. Teacher, Concerts

ELLMER ZOLLER
ACCOMPANIST COACH
19 W. 46 Street NEW YORK

Isabel Richardson
MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.
Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Agnes Hansel-Harter Contralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
2nd Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL
THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUHAUS
CLEVELAND IN JUNE

DAVID BISPHAM

Mr. David Bispham desires to announce that, during the season 1915-1916, it is his intention to revive the one-act play, "Adelaide." This romantic drama, founded upon an incident in the life of Beethoven, has been adapted by Mr. Bispham from the German, and in it he appears as the great composer.

In the cast will be six persons selected by Mr. Bispham for their musical as well as for their dramatic ability. They will support him in the second half of the evening in a beautiful miscellaneous concert. Thus there will be afforded an entertainment at once artistic, educational and entirely unique.

All communications in regard to terms and dates should be addressed to

R. E. JOHNSON, Manager,
145 Broadway, New York City.

MARIE SIDENIUS ZENDT

Mrs. Zendt will sing this Thursday evening at the California Avenue Congregational church in Barnby's "Rebecca," and Mendelssohn's "Forty-second Psalm." June 29 she will go to New York for five weeks to study and for recreation.

Marie Sidenius Zendt sang with great success at Hastings, Neb., at its June festival Monday evening concert; Tuesday, "Creation." Hastings Daily Republican says: "Mrs. Zendt has a voice of much beauty and feeling, and captivated her hearers with the charming way in which she rendered her songs. Her encore was especially appreciated by the audience, and was highly applauded. Mrs. Zendt's voice was thought by many to be at its best in the duet from "Cavalleria Rusticana," which she and Mr. Hall sang in Italian." (Advertisement.)

STEIN MUSICAL DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY

Christine Deuel, soprano; Grace Leonhardt, reader, and Eva Peterson, pianist, pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Buren Stein and Edwin Gemmer, gave a program at the Deaconess' Hospital, Tuesday afternoon, June 15.

Miss Marguerite Haase, pupil of Mr. Stein, will be the soloist at the annual concerts of Grace Lutheran church of Oak Park, Friday and Saturday evenings, June 18 and 19.

HOWARD VAN SWERINGEN

Mrs. Elizabeth Ruffner, soprano, was principal soloist in Des Moines, Ia., last week at the commencement exercises of St. Joseph's Academy.

Mr. William Lawler, baritone, was soloist last Sunday at St. Alban's Episcopal Church. Mrs. Ruffner and Mr. Lawler are pupils of Howard Van Sweringen.

Mr. Van Sweringen announces that he will teach during the entire summer.

VAN DUSEN PUPIL

Mr. Marmaduke Eide, a pupil of Frank Van Dusen, left on June 14 for Lancaster, Wis., where he will spend part of the summer. Mr. Eide has filled a number of concert engagements during the season, among which are engagements at Jefferson Theater, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Hotel Ryan, St. Paul, Minn.; Daughters of the American Revolution, Congress Hotel, Chicago.

THE N. F. M. C. AND THE CONGRESS OF AMERICAN COMPOSERS

The meeting of the Federated Clubs and the Congress for the Encouragement of American Music to be held at Los Angeles,

CHARLES WAKEFIELD CADMAN

beginning on June 21, will be reported in full detail for Music News by Charles Wakefield Cadman, the distinguished composer and writer.

HONORARY DEGREE CONFERRED ON GEORGE B. NEVIN

The degree of Honorary Master of Arts was conferred on George B. Nevin by Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., June 16.

Mr. Nevin is one of America's most successful composers, and his many friends will be glad to know that he has in this way been honored.

Mr. Nevin is the father of Gordon Balch Nevin, the composer, and organist, who has just been elected organist and choirmaster of the Second Presbyterian Church of Cleveland, Ohio.

This is one of the strongest churches in the city and is said to be the wealthiest one in Ohio.

This young composer's organ recital "Will o' the Wisp" has been played by four organists at the expositions in California, and is one of the most successful recital numbers of the year.

Owens—Miss Margaret Owens, soprano, made a fine success in a recent concert at Woodstock, Ill., the alternate artist being Francis Moore, organist.

CHARLOTTE BURTON
"VIOLINIST"
1105 E. GROVE ST.
BLOOMINGTON ILL.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for
 Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

People & Events

IVA BIGELOW WEAVER

A singer who is locally very well known in both Chicago and Milwaukee, and whose successes throughout the country have been numerous and emphatic, is Iva Bigelow Weaver.

Mrs. Weaver has a soprano voice of power, sweetness and great flexibility. Her knowledge of repertoire is very extensive, enabling her to fulfill recital engagements as well as to make appearances in oratorio and all sorts of miscellaneous programs, her preparation for these various purposes being also very great.

Recently she has fulfilled several May festival engagements during which her successes have been unusual, as may be noted in the press comments printed elsewhere in this issue of Music News.

At Pittsburgh, enormous audiences heard Mrs. Weaver in the soprano solos of "The Messiah" and in Bruch's beautiful "Ave Maria," which she sang in a miscellaneous concert. For an encore she used the Stern "Spring," (Waltz), which won her a distinct ovation.

At Abilene she was highly successful also in a recital and in "The Rose Maiden," besides which she gave a recital in a private home and sung at a Sunday morning church service.

During the past week Mrs. Weaver has sung at Janesville, Wis., and her engagements for the future are many and of splendid character.

LEMUEL KILBY

Recent dates:

"Elijah," Goshen, Ind., grade school festival, Fort Wayne, Ind.

High school commencement, Samonauk, Ill.

The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette says of Mr. Kilby's work:

"Mr. Lemuel Kilby of Chicago is the soloist of the festival. Mr. Kilby has a fine baritone with an appealing quality in it, and he sings with a great deal of expression, in fact, with dramatic fire. He has a dignified and easy stage presence, with a graciousness which recognizes the presence of the audience and at the same time is oblivious of self. He fully realizes the artistic value of his vocal offerings, making them duly pathetic or gay, as the case may be."

Thursday, June 24, at 4:30 p. m., at the weekly organ recital of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Delaware place and Lincoln Park boulevard, Mr. Kilby is to sing cantata "Hymn of Praise," by Eric De Lamarier. —(Advertisement.)

Ceasero—Mr. Earle Ceasero, baritone, gave an evening of song at Phillipsburg, Pa., in April.

CHARLES WAKEFIELD CADMAN

Charles Wakefield Cadman, who is chairman of the Congress for the Encouragement of American Music in connection with the ninth biennial convention of the Federation of Musical Club, left this week for Los Angeles to arrange the final details of the programs to be given in that city which entertains the big convention between June 24 and July 2.

Mr. Cadman will hear his new piano "Sonata in A Major," played by Claude Gotthelf, pupil of Joseffy and Lehvinne, on the evening of June 30. This will be the first performance in America. The work is now being published by White Smith Music Company of Boston, and is being eagerly looked for since Mr. Cadman's "Trio in D Major" has proved such a success. This latter work was heard with brilliant success at Chicago before the American Chamber Music Organization recently. The Tollefsons of New York have used it no less than three times this season and there is a likelihood of its being given in St. Petersburg, Russia, in the very near future.

Mr. Cadman will include it in his programs during his fall tour, playing the piano part in the work. In this way the "trio" will no doubt be given in quite a few eastern cities. Mr. Cadman in conjunction with Princess Tsinina will be heard in various parts of the east and middle west in his famous Indian music talk and with choral societies in his own compositions. Their season opens in October. Princess Tsinina, the composer, and his mother will join the National Federation special train at Colorado Springs and proceed to the convention this week. The Indian girl is to appear on the afternoon of June 24 on the program conducted by Mrs. Jason Walker of the American music section, illustrating a talk on Indian music by Charles F. Lummis, the well known archaeologist.

MARTHA STEELE GIVES SPLENDID PROGRAM

On Tuesday evening, June 22, Martha S. Steele, contralto, will appear in recital at the residence of Mrs. Gertrude Johnston Barry in Pittsburgh.

Following is the program that Mrs. Steele will present:

Widmung	}	Schumann
Ich Grolle Nicht
Fruehlingsnacht
Botschaft	}	Brahms
Von Ewiger Liebe
Weine Liebe ist Grun
Der Schmied	}	Goring-Thomas
Aria, from Nadeschda, "Oh, My Heart is Weary
Cacile	}	Strauss
Zueignung
Heimliche Aufforderung
And a group of songs by American authors
Dawn in the Desert		Gertrude Ross
O Moon Upon the Water		Charles W. Cadman
Separation		Ward-Stephens
Wind Song		James H. Rogers
The Star		James H. Rogers
Morning Song		Horatio Parker

Orr—Miss Nellie W. Orr completes the tenth year of service as organist of the Washington Park Congregational Church, next Sunday, June 20. A special musical service is being prepared for the occasion.

PRUDENCE	Address	ROBERT
NEFF	SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF MUSICAL ART	DOLEJSI
PIANISTE	BIRMINGHAM, ALA.	VIOLINIST

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
 4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
 Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON
 SOPRANO
 520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
 COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard Mrs. Charles Orchard Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
 OLENE WALLIS
 BERTHA THOMAS
 JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
 ELSIE RAWLE
 WALTER BRAUER
 JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
 JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
 MARGARET TARRANT
 EENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR

CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conduct-
ed according to the advanced methods
of the most progressive
European Conserva-
tories.

MR. LEO PAALZ
Pianist

A Faculty of INTER-
NATIONAL REPU-
TATION. Location ideal.
Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art

Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic
Classes, Post Graduate and
Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced
Composition, Normal
Courses, Most Modern
Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open
throughout the Summer.
Special Summer Courses
in Public School Music.
Exceptional opportunities for
Public Work. Professional
Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time
For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR
Directress

Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

IVA BIGELOW WEAVER

Recent press comment reads as follows:

Madame Weaver's highly developed dramatic soprano notes were clear and sweet. She took the highest pitches without effort and put deep feeling and expression into her work. Her rendition of the aria
"I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," won generous approval. She also showed her wonderful accomplishments in the singing of the aria, said by critics and close students of Handel to be the most difficult of the serious numbers of the oratorio.—The Headlight, Pittsburgh.

Mme. Weaver, to whom warmest praise must be given, displayed a brilliant, dramatic soprano voice, capable of pleasing the most artistic and thrilling
the least emotional. "The Pastoral" from the opera
"Rosolinda," was sung in an exquisite manner, the phrasings and shadings were done beautifully. The "Prelude" from Ronald's "The Cycle of Life," a number full of pathos and demanding deep emotional feeling, was rendered satisfactorily in every sense. And Scott's setting of "When Spring Comes Laughing," a gem genuinely lyric in its character, was interpreted in such a manner as to thrill every listener. Her singing of Bemberg's "Tis Snowing," was done in a most captivating manner. "Dearest," one of Homer's most popular compositions, proved Mme. Weaver's ability to sing a true legato most admirably.
This was followed by an excellent rendition of Rum-mel's "Ecstasy," which gave ample opportunity for the singer to show her brilliant, dramatic voice to the best advantage. Her singing of Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me," struck a sympathetic chord in the heart of every listener. Mme. Weaver was at her best in Stern's setting of "Spring," a coruscating waltz song. In this number did she show her ability to execute passages of the florid style of singing in real elegance of manner. She was forced to respond to encores at the end of each of her groups of songs.
The waltz song closed the program of the evening and left everyone in such a spirit as to be thankful for what they had heard, expressing themselves to the effect that Mme. Weaver was the most satisfying and pleasing singer who had visited our city.—Abilene Reporter.

The following criticism of the Weaver-Smith concert recital at the Wesleyan Chapel last evening is contributed by one of Salina's prominent musicians:

Mme. Weaver was in splendid voice and held the close attention of the audience. The program was mostly in English, giving one German number and one French aria, which was, perhaps, the best received number that she rendered. Her French pronunciation was perfect and her interpretation pleased all.
Mme. Weaver's program was entirely new to the audience and it would be hard to say which English number was best, "My Treasure," by Travalsea, and "Unmindful of the Roses," by Schneider, received much applause. Mme. Weaver has a voice of wide range with wonderful resonance. Too much cannot be said of her low and middle registers for depth and sympathetic quality. The song, "Spring," by Stern, displayed her upper voice, showing splendid technic and perfect control.—Salina Daily Journal. (Advertisement.)

SOME HEGEDUS PRESS COMMENT

We herewith reproduce some London comment on the playing of the Hungarian violinist, to tour America next season:

There is no question of the very interesting nature of his performance since he combines truly Hungarian vigor and refined restraint that holds his abundant energy in check and keeps him well within the artistic limit. This violinist has earned a very high place among his contemporaries.—London Times.

Ferencz Hegedus gave a concert at Queen's Hall in which he was assisted in a superb manner by the London Symphony Orchestra under Arthur Nikisch.

The splendid technic, pure tone and artistic conception of Hegedus were heard at their best in his finished playing.—London Times.

When composers such as Tartini, Handel, Gold-mark, and Paganini are rendered by a startling and original personality, their greatness makes unfailing appeal to all. Ferencz Hegedus is possessed of a highly-strung artistic temperament, the poetry, fire, and mysticism of his race. To speak of his technic, his aplomb, his facility, is to lessen his genius. Great as these are, they never force themselves upon the attention. His realization of his subject, his delight in its expression, his communication of both, tinged with his own personality, are the great powers he possesses.—London Telegraph. (Advertisement.)

Corlew—Miss Mabel Corlew was soloist at the Englewood Sunday Evening Club on June 13.

GRACE BRUNE MARCUSSE

Mrs. Marcusse has had a very successful western trip, and so many have been the demands for return engagements, she already has an even more extensive trip booked in the same part of the country for next season. The following comment is from the Mason Valley News, Yerrington, Nevada:

The four groups of Madame Marcusse's program, as rendered at Rink Hall Friday evening, cover a wide range of possibilities in vocal accomplishment, and her remarkable voice met every requirement, with an ease, too, that delighted her hearers. Nothing is so disturbing to the temperament of one who loves and appreciates the artistic in music as a realization that a voice is roaming in fields of uncertainty. When listening to Madame Marcusse this disturbing element of a concert program is distinctly missing, for even in the passages most exacting in both tone and technic there was no suggestion of her wonderful volume and power being taxed; and the substantial manner in which her beautiful tones were produced was positively soothing to the listener, through the constant realization each note came forth with support in reserve; this was quite true in every aspect of her seemingly unlimited range, high or low register, whether in the modulations of the simple melodies or in the most difficult passages of the aria,
"One Fine Day," an arrangement from "Madame Butterfly," in the superb execution of which our audience had a glimpse of the real possibilities of the singer's talent.

A most notable feature of Madame Marcusse's work is her very precise enunciation, or clarity of voice. The master under whom this gifted woman studied has the unreserved thanks of a suffering public for the ease and distinctness with which she produces her tones, at the same time preserving language in a state that can be distinguished from a mush.
Bell-like were her tones.

The dramatic ability of this artist is of a high order, such as to adorn her as a distinctive attainment; it was, indeed, a surprise to learn she has never been on the operatic stage, for her interpretation demonstrated an understanding of operatic work which, in the absence of stage experience, evidences a native dramatic ability indeed rare.—(Advertisement.)

HELEN WARE'S SOUTHERN SUCCESSSES

Some press comment from Gainesville,
Fla., reads as follows:

Helen Ware's violin recital was undoubtedly the most important musical event of the season in this city. The music lovers of Gainesville had a rare musical treat and the glowing tributes of the press did but echo the hearty reception which was accorded Miss Ware.

The program was such as to make its appeal to the numerous scholarly musicians as well as to the majority of the audience to whom music appeals but through its esthetic powers and through that emotional fervor which so truly characterizes all of Miss Ware's interpretations.

Here is an artist whose simplicity and unaffectedness shine through all her artistic endeavors and give her work a power that makes a direct appeal to her audience.

The accompanist, Mr. Wilhelm Meyer, gave Miss Ware splendid support, and especially in the spirited rendition of the Hungarian and Slav numbers, which were played by the soloist with all the abandon and ad libitum privileges that but few soloists dare attempt without sad results, here did the accompan-ist's fine musicianship and true sympathy prove indispensable. Mr. J. Oscar Miller is to be congratulated for insuring success by giving Miss Ware such a thorough accompanist.

Artists may come and artists may go, but Helen Ware will at all times be heartily welcomed by Gainesville music lovers.—(Advertisement.)

SUCCESS OF ANOTHER RADANOVITS PUPIL

The following comment was taken from the Benton Harbor Daily:

Mrs. Louis Schulz of St. Joseph, a wonderful singer, has just returned from a season's study under Sandor S. Radanovits. While twin city friends have often listened to Mrs. Schulz's voice and admired it, they quickly noted the great improvement since studying under the great master of the art in Chicago. (Advertisement.)

Music News

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Soprano

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
43rd Year will open September 21, 1915

THE HEWETT BUREAU

KATE JORDON HEWETT
Musical and Dramatic

A clearing house for Artists and those who seek them.

Employers Teachers
Professional Interpreters

627 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Illinois
Phone Wabash 5189

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
Chicago's most attractive hall, devoted exclusively to concerts, recitals and other high-class entertainments. Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates, Address,
HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago
(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST

Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908, at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under the Act of March 3, 1879

Chicago, June 25, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid.....3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly subscribers should notify the office promptly. Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company, Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application. Changes in advertisements must be ordered one week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts

Herbert Bailey and Harry Porter, Business Agents

Albert Cotsworth, Collins J. Brock and Herbert J. Wrightson, Special Writers

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK Abbie S. Fridenberg 110 Carnegie Hall For sale at Bretano's 27th st. and 5th av.	COLUMBUS, OHIO George G. Whitehead Redpath Lyceum Bureau
BOSTON Lester S. Butler Steinert Hall	MILWAUKEE Iva Bigelow Weaver Mack Block
DETROIT, MICH Margaret Mulford 871 Ferry Park Ave.	PHILADELPHIA Walter St. Clare Knodle 1523 Chestnut St.
OMAHA Goodwal Dickerman Arlington Block	LINCOLN, NEB. Sidney Silber Univ. School of Music
CINCINNATI L. Drew Mosher 137 W. Fourth av.	SAN FRANCISCO Henry B. Baerman 720 Steiner St. Phone Park 3861
On sale Geo. B. Jennings 105 Fourth av. W.	LOS ANGELES, CAL. S. W. Mountz 1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND George Emerson 616 The Arcade	ERIE, PA. Albert H. Dowling Jr. 456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS Gaylord Yost Indianapolis Cons.	CHARLESTON, W. VA. J. Henry Francis St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY Mary H. Flagg 311 Studio Bldg.	WASHINGTON Horace D. Hitchcock 2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER R. Jefferson Hall St. Mark's Church	MINNEAPOLIS Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk 109 Marlborough Hotel St. Paul, Minn.
ST. PAUL, MINN. Myrtle Weed 802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	DRESDEN, GERMANY Anna Ingman Franklinstrasse 20 Papers on sale J. Ries' Music Store Seestrasse 21
WICHITA, KAN. Ralph Brokaw
WORCESTER, MASS. Lester S. Butler 441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Wabash 7470 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital, Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz School of Languages,

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

1915-16 Tour
Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

CHICAGO, JUNE 25, 1915

No. 26

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Among the first Worcester Festival engagements to be announced is that of Mabel Sharp Herdien, the Chicago soprano, for a part in Pierne's "Children Crusade." The announcement is most welcome and the Festival management is to be congratulated.

h h h

There is much discussion over the proposed change of name of the Chicago Amateur Club. By all means it ought to be changed, for not within memory has the club been "amateur" in any sense. It is distinctly and absolutely a club of Professional Musicians of the highest degree of excellence.

h h h

Three of the Chicago music schools held their commencements in the great Auditorium this spring, and all drew magnificent audiences. Other commencements have been given to a succession of "capacity" houses in the smaller halls. Surely there is no indication of hard times in the Chicago schools and studios.

h h h

The announcement that Frances Ingram is to play "Carmen" with the Chicago Grand Opera Company during the coming season is a thoroughly agreeable one. Geraldine Farrar and Conchita Supervia, will be seen and heard in the part also, but Chicagoans will have a very lively interest in the performances in which our own contralto will appear.

h h h

A letter from William Wade Hinshaw, postmarked "Los Angeles," announces that immediately after the "Fairyland" appearance in the Pacific coast city, the famous baritone will go to Chautauqua, N. Y., to head the vocal department of the summer school for the balance of the season. This is good news to the many who wish to study with Mr. Hinshaw during the summer.

h h h

A young woman, in a studio in the Athenaeum Building, was "held up" and robbed one evening last week. When it becomes necessary for any teacher, man or woman, to be alone in a down town studio in the evening it might be a good thing to have a small, pearl-handle revolver, close at hand, or a hatpin. Or, better still, it might be a fine idea for the managements of all studio buildings to keep a closer watch for sus-

If you get simple beauty and naught else,

You get about the best thing God invents.

—BROWNING

picious characters and land a few of them in the hands of the police.

h h h

The following, taken from the latest issue of the Chautauqua (N. Y.) Quarterly, furnishes much food for thought:

Americans who travel and take vacations this year will do so almost wholly in the United States; and while the reasons are melancholy the first effect on some activities within our own borders is sure to be favorable. Chautauqua is planning for distinctly more than normal attendance, both of its old patrons and of those who usually go elsewhere. Extraordinary efforts will be made to provide a rich and varied program. Not to mention engagements for major hours at the Amphitheater, such attractions as Charles Rann Kennedy and Edith Wynne Matthison in dramatic presentations, and Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond in reading and song recitals are provided for the delightful 5 o'clock hour at the Hall of Philosophy.

h h h

Music News is in receipt of a protest from a professional musician who was present at the Riverview Singing contest, a week ago last Sunday, and who claims that one of the societies winning a prize in that contest should have been debarred because of the fact that it was not really a society at all, but merely a body of picked singers gotten together for the occasion. Of course the judges could not know of such an arrangement but—if the charges be true, it was a distinctly wrong thing to do, and the prize should not have been awarded under such circumstances, had they been known.

Also—We are in receipt of a letter from Lydia Pearl Coe in which the claim is made that the "Go to Sleep Song," accredited to Lulu Jones Downing, on a recent program given by Jessie Mack Hamilton (and reprinted in Music News) really was written by Beatrice Hubble Plummer.

The music, as issued by the Gamble Hinged Music Company, carries the name of both women—Mrs. Plummer and Mrs. Downing, therefore, the program and, its reproduction should probably have done the same, though the question as to which really deserves the most credit for the song is one which we cannot determine, either from the printed sheet or from Miss Coe's letter of protest.

h h h

A LETTER FROM J. FRED WOLLE

Mr. Charles E. Watt,
Editor Music News,
522 Kimball Hall,
Chicago, Ill.

My dear Mr. Watt:

I desire to express my appreciation of the Bach festival review written for Music News by Mr. Earle Ceasero. The writer seems to have caught the spirit of the affair and transcribed it in a happy manner in language at once elevated in style and forceful. I remain,

Yours truly,

(Signed) J. FRED WOLLE.

THE NEW KIMBALL BUILDING

A very attractive card is being sent out by the W. W. Kimball Company which contains an authentic and very useful map of the Loop district and a large part of Chicago, with a handsome picture of the new Kimball Building, which is to rise at the corner of Wabash and Jackson.

At the expense of a great deal of trouble and re-arrangement the Kimball Company has managed to make temporary quarters for almost everyone of their tenants in the part of the building which will remain intact until half of the new building is completed. After that they will be moved into the new quarters, while the second half of the building is being put up.

By this arrangement there will be no change of address for any of the Kimball tenants and very little disarrangement of business during the process of rebuilding.

Music News, which—fortunately, has its office in the part of the building which is not to be disturbed this year, does not expect to change location until the first half of the new building is completed.

The usual entrance to the building, the same elevator and stairways always used by our customers will be found intact throughout this year.

THE END IS NOT FAR OFF

A Southern clergyman tells of a certain congregation whose annual report to its denominational authorities regularly reads like this:

"Number added last year by baptism, none.

"Number added by letter, none.

"Number dismissed by letter, five.

"Number of members who have died, three.

"Amount raised for state missions, nothing.

"Amount raised for home missions, nothing.

"Amount raised for foreign missions, nothing."

Each year the letter closes with this request.

"Pray for us, brethren, that we may continue faithful to the end."—Young People.

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD AT THE ORCHARD SCHOOL

Effa Ellis Perfield has been engaged to conduct classes in keyboard harmony at the summer session of the Orchard School of Music, beginning on June 28.

This will be an exceptional opportunity for south side teachers and students wishing to study the famous Perfield method, to take the work under the most favorable conditions. For particulars, write Orchard School of Music, 1533 Hyde Park boulevard.

Defau—Miss Jenny Defau sang at an anniversary service at the French church, (37th and Langley) last Sunday.

NATIONAL CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Announcement is made that henceforth the Walter Spry Music School will be known as the National Conservatory of Music. Walter Spry will continue as president and musical director of the new organization.

This school has developed from a personal following of Walter Spry, when he organized his piano school ten years ago, to an institution among whose faculty are some of the world's greatest music masters. The name of Hugo Kortschak is known both in Europe and America as one which stands for the highest attainment as a virtuoso and teacher. Walter Spry is himself a pianist and teacher who stands in the front rank of American musicians, and he has organized a piano department which has few equals in any school. In this work, Mr. Spry has had the able assistance of Cedric W. Lemont the past nine years.

It has been found necessary to make additions to the faculty owing to the greatly increased following. Among the most eminent new teachers will be Alexander Raab, the famous Hungarian pianist, who has been such a favorite in Europe for the past five years. Mr. Raab was booked last sea-

WARREN

PROCTOR

TENOR

Exclusive Management: Alma Voedisch
3941 Rokeby St., Phone Grac. land 8814

son for one hundred concerts in England, but was compelled to flee owing to the war and his nationality. He has the past three months been making records for the Aeolian Company in New York and they are said to be among the finest ever made. Mr. Raab was for several years a favorite pupil of Leschetizky.

Another important engagement is that of Sandor Radanovits, the well known vocal teacher. He has been very successful in all the branches of vocal art—voice building, song interpretation, oratorio and opera. Mr. Radanovits is a graduate of the Budapest Conservatory, and was a favorite singer at the Royal Opera House in Budapest. Mr. Radanovits will have the assistance of Mrs. Augusta Meeker and also of John Carl Jackson. Other prominent members of the vocal department are Minnie Fish-Griffin and Cora Libberton.

This institution has always insisted on good theoretical training, and the faculty will be further strengthened by the addition of John Palmer, who is very favorably known as teacher and composer. The organ department will be in charge of Palmer Christian, one of Chicago's best organists and teachers.

With such a faculty it is to be expected that the National Conservatory will take its place among the important schools of music in this country. It is Mr. Spry's ambition to make it one of the greatest institutions in the world. The school occupies a beautiful suite in the Fine Arts Building and the new catalog will be ready for distribution the last week of June.

MacBurney Studios—The Summer term at the MacBurney studios began on June 21, and will continue for six weeks.

A SPLENDID PIANO AND SONG PROGRAM

On Monday evening, in a downpour of rain and with no street cars at all in commission, a small audience came to the Auditorium Recital Hall to hear a program by Miss Agnes Bodholdt, pianist, and Miss Lucia May Smith, soprano, the latter being a pupil of Miss Lucile Stevenson.

This audience was more than repaid for the effort, for the recital was one of superior attractiveness and worth.

Miss Bodholdt is a pianist of the most unusual charm, for to great personal attractiveness she adds musical attainments of the finest sort.

Her stage appearance is most ingratiating and her bearing at the piano could well serve as a perfect model for all players.

She has relaxation in plenty—loose wrist to perfection—but she does not flaunt this acquirement in the face of her audience, and not for many months has a pianist been heard who sits so quietly and yet who is so evidently and so wholeheartedly absorbed in what she is playing.

Mannerisms are far too plentiful and those assets of a pianist which are admirable in themselves, but which, overused, are always tiresome, are to be encountered every week, but they are not in evidence in the work of this pianist who instead displays always an evident sincerity and a perfect poise, coupled with beautiful position and telling technic.

On Monday the Beethoven "Thirty-two Variations" were done with distinct style and abundant power, while the MacDowell "Concerto in A Minor," with which the program closed, was virtuosic to the final degree and equally as clean cut.

The group of smaller pieces by Sauer and MacDowell were admirable in their musical intention and technical finish. A "Study in Double Thirds," by Sauer, was a piece of virtuosity which has not been excelled by any young pianist in Chicago of late.

It was eagerly redemanded as also one of the MacDowell excerpts.

When she first came upon the stage, and at every reappearance, Miss Smith was greeted with such hearty applause as to prove that she is a very great favorite.

This is no more than her merits warrant and indeed so beautiful was her program and the rendition of it on Monday that it is a great pity that it could not have been heard and enjoyed by a very large audience.

Handel was treated with great care and an equally fine effect was gained, while in three Franz numbers there was such utter sincerity of poetical feeling as well as such an abundance of vocal charm that the numbers were made to glow with meaning and beauty. "Chere Nuit," (Bachelet), was a piece of pure lyricism, fluent and expressive, the Napravnik "Cossack Cradle Song" was set forth with due regard to its intensity of musical feeling as well as sincerity of form, while Coleridge-Taylor's "Death and Life," that ultrapopular song of the moment, which indeed justifies its popularity through an intensity of color and a tremendous musical worth, was sung by Miss Smith so extremely well that the audience demanded a repetition.

Miss Bodholdt further justified a fine impression of her musical worth by playing exceptionally good accompaniments for Miss Smith.

C. E. W.

The Elderly Person

He sat, or sprawled, or curled up on a species of natural grand stand, being restrained on one side by the brow of the hill and on the other by an outline of vines and tree branches following the circle of the hill, and leaving a wide free space of flat sand for the stage. In the center was what appeared to be a small thicket on a mound, until sharp eyes discovered that scooped out stand made the hillock, and that, and the deftly placed tree tops hid a deep cavity for the director and the hidden music. The thick verdure climbed close to the top and peeped over the edges of the plateau, but there were suggestive openings to tempt the venturesome and which promised many mysteries, that there was no surprise when the unexpected finally emerged from them. But on one side the plateau was a wide opening looking down a smooth expanse of sand to the beating breakers of the lake and the farther stretch of waters that were lost at last in the vague blues and amethysts that drenched the horizon beyond and hid its line. Above was a sky almost dazzling in its play of color, and carrying, capaciously, great shoals of fleecy clouds in a perfect abandon of frolic and changing form. It was just a day to be mad with the delight of life, when sky, and sea, and cloud, and sunshine, and birds, and flowers, and shrubs, and trees yielded their gifts to the happy wind which went in and out among them with a kind of intoxicating freedom and left every particle of life touched and quivering with exhilaration.

In his busy moments, in years gone by, this same wind had begun the series of experiments which had in time made possible the present order of things. A seemingly fortified line of sand cliffs faced the lake. But the wind found one weak place, and began blowing the sand inland. A small cleft in the hill soon became widened and the sand blew more freely to the inner base of the hill. In the countless wrestling matches the wind tore away supports for trees and shrubs and vines, and left the skeleton roots bare and lifeless, but it treasured every grain of the shining sand and added it to its increasing mound on the other side, until there was a wide opening between two hills with a smooth approach from the lake and a natural platform that shifted and moved when the wind wanted play time and a place to make use of it. In the parlance of the versed such a formation is called a "blow-out," and on this afternoon mortals were to be allowed to see, for the first time, just what use the wild things of the woods could make of the gifts they made to one another. And the wind elected itself host of the occasion, as was most fitting, since the environment was of his own choosing. He was ubiquitous, welcoming everyone with unfailing cheerfulness and danced and frolicked unseen but buoyantly, and by his unceasing hospitality, and that elixir he can inoculate beings with by means of a little caress, he made people happy just to be in his playground.

And while the musicians, and writers, and poets, and artists, and teachers and all other earnest workers waited, behold, a man and woman wearily climbed the hill from the sea. The man is not happy. He is in middle life and large of build and carries himself as if he wished always to be cared for. There is no vigor or spirit in his manner, but a resentful mood of tolerance. The pretty girl beside him feels this dissatisfaction. She droops apologetically and forgets the sweet enthusiasms that make youth and nature usually such ready comrades. Near the mound the man halts suddenly and says he will go no farther. He throws down the wraps and sticks, mops his forehead and says sharp things about the questionable pleasures of outdoor life. Golf links or an automobile are much better than tramping in sand, and he kicks the sand spitefully as he says it. The maid is almost tearful in her disappointment, and says she is tired and must rest at least. He finds his better self at once, and is solicitous for her comfort as he sits beside her. Gaining courage, she asks him to smell the odors of the spring, to see the swelling beauty of lake and sky, and to feel the wind's message. But he answers that it is the same old lake that he sees from his office window every day, and the wind is an equally old story. That he will give her a few minutes more for rest, and then they'll get back to town, quick as possible, have a good dinner and go to a show. He smiles complacently at his program as summing up life's ideals. And while he speaks, the far away tones of an elfin horn sound again and again, and the maid, starting up, says she knows something lovely is going to happen, and they must hide and see what it may be. While they seek a copse a faun laughs and capers from the forest's edge. He has been watching them, and he is a veritable Pan for dancing and the mellow lines that flow from his flute. He is glorious of figure, lithe and swarthy, with a jovial laugh and merry eyes. His arms and legs are bare and his body restless under the tunic and garlands of leaves, and he has the sweet smelling grape leaves and bloom in his hair. And, suddenly, in response to his lively melody there is a troop of fauns and dryads dancing and singing about with him, until, exhausted with their exertions, they throw themselves on the sandy reaches and beg Sylvan for a story. He tells them of his precious charge, the sleeping lady consigned to his care by Helios, the sun-god. She has been asleep now for nearly a year, and the time for her awakening is near at hand. Before the story is fully told a rumbling chariot is heard, and all hasten to meet Helios himself, attended by his sunbeams, most radiant maidens, whose yellow garments glisten in the bright light. With the wild, strange fauns and dryads there is more dancing and singing and weaving and twining of colors. The sun-god asks as to his beauteous lady, whose long sleep he deploras, and for whose smiles and loveliness he has languished and longed these many months. Sylvan assures him that there are indications that she is ready to meet and greet her lover once more

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. at Gorton School
TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 21697

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
Address O. M. Sweeney, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Irving 3643

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

GEORGE KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Roeder American Violin School 521 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST-ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg.

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

ARTHUR UHE PUPILS
RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

NORA OLIN
VOICE
524 Kimball Hall, 321 Lake Street, Oak Park, Tel. O.P. 2724

L. Drew Mosher
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

Margaret MULFORD
Lawson
CONTRALTO—Mgt. James DeVoe
933 DIME BANK BLDG. 656 LOTHROP AV. DETROIT, MICHIGAN

ADORATION: for medium voice
By HARRY R. DETWEILER
Pres. Columbia Conservatory, Aurora, Illinois
"An exquisite little song"—D. A. Clippinger.

CLEVELAND BOHNETConcert Pianist and Teacher
3932 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. OAKLAND 5240LESTERMARGARET Soprano
WILLIAM Composer-Accompanist
1510 EAST 52ND STREET PHONE MIDWAY 8888Hanna ButlerSOPRANO PUPILS RECITAL ORATORIO
512 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wabash 4870ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASERChoirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
PUPILS—PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749Grace E. KeeslerSong Repertoire Accompanying
714 Kimball Hall
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569LEIST-BEEBESOPRANO
804 McCLURG BLDG. and 4348 INDIANA AV.Lambert MurphyRecital Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New YorkRaoul S. Bonanno, BaritoneConcerts and Recitals Voice Placing, Operatic Coaching
Management J. E. Allen, Fine Arts BuildingMARVIN HINSHAWConcert Baritone
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION Kimball Hall, Wabash 8335Ralph Brokow

VIOLINIST Wichita, Kas

Palmer ChristianConcert Organist Pupils Coach Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium BuildingLOUIS KREIDLERBARITONE Concerts Oratorio Pupils
4051 CALUMET AVENUE PHONE KENWOOD 627H. Wilhelm NORDINBaritone
44 6th Av., LaGrange, Ill.
Recital Concert OratorioJ. PARNELL EGANTENOR
CONCERT, ORATORIO, RECITAL 1351 Granville Av.W. Otto MiessnerDir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing. Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heilmann, Berlin.
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.H. B. BARTHOLOMEWPIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
622 FINE ARTS BUILDING TEL. WABASH 4162PRINCESS WA-TAH-WA-SORECITALS
Indian Song Legends Indian Song Dances
4535 LAKE PARK AV. TEL. DREXEL 3463ELLA MURPHYDRAMATIC SOPRANO
ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
Dorchester Avenue Telephone Kenwood 4042

but not until she is borne into his presence can she be fully awakened. The lover doth protest his eagerness to breathe upon her, to arouse her, to embrace her, and urges the faun to send his messengers to bear her from her secret place in the forest into his presence. With wild shouts and echoing laughter the fauns disappear and their calls are heard through the woods. While the others wait the "Spring Song" is heard and Flora dances and sprinkles her flowers, the lavish lupine and puccoon and sprays of the wild grape. From the wood is borne the litter twined and wreathed with the exquisite blue and green of the lupine and its star-like leaves sheltering the form upon it, are the rainbow maidens with their scarfs of blended colors. Reverently these are waived aside by Helios while Sylvan lies upon the sand and blows the witching calls of elfland. Slowly, in response to the calls, the music and the warmth of love's insistence, the eyes are opened, the hands raised, the figure rises to a sitting posture and, finally, with rapture and surprise at the new vitality, becomes erect—and summer is come once more, and the sun has his bride. The sprays of flowers fall all about her, her hands yield herbage and bloom, and her freshness radiates light and gladness and brightness. For a time the many figures move about in dance, in song, in posture, and in groupings. Then, slyly, the faun, or sylvan, as he was called, perches himself upon the hillock and the faraway calls are heard once more. With summer and Helios at their head the glistening groups circle about the plateau and then, one by one, disappear in the embracing shadows of the wood, leaving those who watched their disappearance with a lump in the throat. The man and the maid run from their hiding place to follow the train, but their feet are leaden beside the wild ones, and they come back alone, but oh, so happy and content and uplifted. They gather up the lupine and grape clusters and kiss them gratefully. Hand in hand they pass on their way with gladness and benediction for the day and its message.

And the Elderly Person, who wasn't making any disguise of a lumpy throat and wet eyes, gathered for milady a cluster of the discarded flowers and kissed and blessed them for their new beauty and significance. Perhaps everybody did not see all this, because everyone does not yield readily to the impulses such sights and sounds engender. But to those who carried the right spirit with them all these and more beauties were unfolded when Mrs. Abt's Masque, "The Awakening," was given on "The Dunes," on Decoration day for the Prairie Club. For Summer comes on May 31, and it was beauteous beyond words.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

Richardson—G. Dexter Richardson, announces for the coming year the following artists: Maude Klotz, soprano; Ruth Cunningham, mezzo contralto; Berenice Pasquali, soprano; Lillian Blauvelt, soprano; Diamond Donnar, soprano; Carrie Bridewell, contralto; John Finnegan, tenor; William Wade Hinshaw, baritone; Harry Munro, baritone; Charles Bowes, basso; Ruth Deyo, pianist; Louise Hopkins, pianist; Franklin Cannon, pianist; Dorothy Hoyle, violinist and Gustav Hornberger, cello.

WILLIAM JOHN HALL

Students of William John Hall, St. Louis, gave the following attractive program at the Musical Art Building in that city last Tuesday evening:

Beneath the Willows.....	Cowles
Dusk in the Lane.....	Lehmann
The Riddle.....	Miss Hahn
Cuddle Doon.....	Gaynor
The Riddle.....	Gaynor
Miss Saxe
A Southern Hammock Song.....	Clutsum
Mena (Chinese Love Lyrics).....	Bennett
Miss Yeargain
Absent.....	Metcalf
Cradle Song.....	Del Riego
Miss MacIlvane
I Know a Little Rose.....	Warner
When Song Is Sweet.....	Sans Souci
Miss Enzinger
Who Knows.....	Dunbar
Dream Divine.....	Sanderson
Mr. Newsum
Two Violets.....	Scott
Snowflakes.....	Cowen
Miss Sale
Come to Me.....	Barry
Spring.....	Andrews
Miss Johnston
Tears.....	Bacon
Because of You.....	Strickland
Mr. Van Horne
A Wild, Wild Rose.....	Foster
In Dreamland.....	Dennee
Miss Griffin
Acceptance.....	Bingham
Garden of Sunshine.....	Lohr
Miss Hazeltine
My Love's a Butterfly.....	Johnson
As in Waves Without Number.....	Chadwick
Mr. Werth
Where the Abana Flows.....	Woodforde-Finden
Allah, Be With Us.....	Woodforde-Finden
Miss Fabian

MRS. BUCKLEY PRESENTS HER PUPILS

A very successful pupils' concert was given by Caroline E. Buckley at her studio, 315 Pleasant street, Oak Park, on last Saturday afternoon. The program read as follows:

Fireflies.....	Hannah Smith
Edith Gerry
Chivalry.....	Burgmuller
Waltz.....	Reinhold
Linnie Soule
Song of the Armorer.....	Jessie L. Gaynor
Evening Song.....	Jessie L. Gaynor
Paul Johnstone
Dance of the Gnomes.....	Schytte
Under the Linden Tree.....	Schytte
Elizabeth Webb
Angel Voices.....	Burgmuller
On the Meadow.....	Lichner
Helena Bradford
Poupee Valsante.....	Poldini
Janet Keefe
Rustic Dance.....	Gurlitt
March.....	Giese
Dorothy Ech
Will o' the Wisp.....	Jungmann
Helen Dieterle
Prelude, Op. 28, No. 20.....	Chopin
To a Wild Rose.....	MacDowell
Marion Webb
Waltz, D Flat.....	Chopin
The Evening Hour.....	Kussner
Mrs. Lewis Cook
Impromptu, Op. 90, No. 2.....	Schubert
Pan.....	Godard
Helen Soule
Duo—Idylle Arabe.....	Chaminade
Helen Soule, Mrs. Buckley

Sherwood School—In the concert given by the Sherwood Music School at Thurber Hall, on last Thursday afternoon, the pupils appearing were: Florence Mertens, Hilda Gremmel, Alma Goebler, Edwin Kemp, Lillian Harkness, Ruth Howe, Walburga Loeppart, Mary Whitcomb and Dorothy Cass, assisted by Georgia Kober and George Ralph Kurtz of the faculty.

Music in Chicago

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT CONCERT

The twentieth annual commencement concert of the Chicago Piano College was held in Kimball Hall on Thursday evening, June 17, with eight young ladies from the graduation class furnishing the program. One movement from as many concertos was assigned to each, and either Harmon H. Watt or Eleanor F. Godfrey, the directors of the school, was at the second piano furnishing the orchestral parts throughout the evening.

ELEANOR F. GODFREY

Miss Agnes Peterson, in opening the program, played the first movement of the "Concerto, Op. 72," by Reincke. A splendid unity of both pianos was maintained throughout the performance of this composition and the playing of Miss Peterson was distinguished by a clear and strengthful execution of the difficult score.

Miss Lillian A. Rogers offered the last movement of the "Concerto, Op. 73," by Rosenhain, and she at once brought pleasure to the audience through her pleasing appearance at the piano and the graceful use of her well schooled technic. By continued study and encouragement she should achieve success in the near future.

Miss Florence E. Watson in her playing of the "Marcia-Assai Presto," from Weber's "Concertstueck," furnished convincing proof that she possessed an intelligent grasp of the musical value of this rather popular number and a sufficient technical equipment to display its beauties in a most pleasurable light.

Miss Frieda Friedman, who played the first movement of the Moszkowski "Concerto, Op. 59," was very successful in her portion of the program. She has style, personality and confidence in her resources and plays with an unusual amount of feeling. She is indeed a credit to the school from which she graduated.

Miss Julia B. Perry was heard in the last movement of the "Concerto, Op. 47," by Schuett, and received the sign of approval from her hearers by a vigorous round of applause. She is a brilliant young pianist and should meet with gratifying success in her chosen profession.

Miss Ada Marie McCarty played the last movement of the Godard "Concerto, Op.

31," and knew the work extremely well. There was assurance, delicacy and repose adorning her playing which brought rare pleasure to the real lover of good piano playing.

Miss Agnes M. Davidson revealed an immense amount of strength and surety in her playing of the magnificent first movement of Rubinstein's "Concerto, Op. 70." Her chord playing was clean and distinct and through a skillful use of the pedals she made the legato phrases especially commendable.

Miss Elizabeth W. Leitch brought the musical activities of the evening to a close by playing the last movement of the "Concerto, Op. 22," by Saint-Saens. She has developed a brilliant and reliable technic as well as thorough musicianship, which makes it possible for her to present a work of this type in a rare and artistic manner.

For Miss Watson and Miss McCarty the second piano parts were played by Miss Godfrey in a sympathetic yet masterful style and for the remaining six performers Mr. Watt supplied the accompanying parts in a manner which denoted rare skill in this type of playing.

The large and appreciative audience was very enthusiastic throughout the evening and the young ladies who played well deserved the beautiful bouquets showered upon them.

HARMON H. WATT

The presentation of diplomas, medals and certificates followed the program.

Those who graduated were Elizabeth W. Leitch, Elsa A. Ewert, Julia A. Williamson, Nellie Sparks Dohman, Lillian A. Rogers, Agnes M. Davidson, Frieda Friedman, Irene Greider, Ada Marie McCarty, Agnes Peterson, Julia B. Perry, Florence E. Watson, Helen M. Browne, Christine Miller, Bessie M. McAllister and Berton Williamson.

H. M. B.

JENNIE F. W. JOHNSON

Miss Johnson, the contralto, is still busy, she sang in DeKalb, Ill., June 15; at the Dante school, Chicago, June 16; Kankakee, Ill., June 21, Auditorium Hotel, June 22, and a south side wedding, June 23. This month closes her synagogue work until fall, but she teaches the summer term at the American conservatory, not taking her vacation until August.

The

Artist's Piano

THE most convincing demonstration of the superiority of the

Mason & Hamlin

Piano is found in its continued use by those whose judgment is authoritative. The supreme test lies in the fact that so many artists who have played all other leading pianos have finally turned to the Mason & Hamlin as the instrument best suited to their exacting requirements.

Mason & Hamlin

Pianos are for sale at the waterrooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson, Chicago

A PUPILS' CONCERT

Mildred Millett and Lenore Word, presented their pupils in recital, June 17, at Hamilton Park. A large audience assembled, who responded enthusiastically, children from six to twelve years, who had studied from 3 months to 3 years, were at the piano throughout the entire program. Remarkable poise, technical display and good tone work were manifest, those who took part in the program were:

Katherine and Pearl Kane, Herbert Hill, Virginia Hannan, Gordon Spivey, Irma Bailey, Evelyn and Mildred Solomon, Franklin Suthers, Elizabeth Nolan, Ethel Blue, Helen O'Shea, Marion Muncester, Margaret John, Helen Jackson, Marion Murphy, Dorothy Murdock, Marjorie McDougall, Ruth and Maryalice Hutchinson, Dorothy Mae De Forest, Elise Peterson, Kathryn Montgomery, Wayne Spalding, Kathryn Cox, Anna Anderson and Rose Mowrer.

Especially mention should be made of Rose Mowrer, who displayed amazing skill in the Wollenhaupt Etude, A flat.

Kathryn Montgomery showed much musical feeling for her years in the "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn," also Elsie Peterson gave an especially brilliant rendering of "Alla Marcia," by Rogers, and this little girl is but 10 years old. Little Marjorie McDougall played the "Gypsy Rondo," from "Hayden" in a most interesting manner.

Wayne Spalding will be heard in the same hall, Friday, July 9, at 8 p. m. N. X.

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan left Chicago on June 17, for a summer Chautauqua tour, beginning at Des Moines, Ia. The states to be traversed during the next few weeks include South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio and Iowa.

MISS EDNA COOKINGHAM'S CLASS AT IRVING PARK.

Irving Park is one of those places where people live in houses instead of flats, where there are rows of pretty homes, some with fences, others without, but all with the grass running to the walk and so carefully looked after that one suspects that the neighbors compete to see who shall be most snug and neat. There were stately trees and clumps of shrubs, among them, the fragrant syringa, to keep the reviewer company last Tuesday night, when he was hunting in the thin moonlight, for the Carl Schurz high school, where Miss Edna Cookingham was presenting her pupils. The natives said it was just a few blocks from the station, but don't you ever believe it, for the distance is a good mile. It is a very handsome building, when found, and the observer simply must stop and greet two big cottonwood trees on the campus. Inside is a fine auditorium and it was well filled, but the program was half done when I reached there, because the train was late and the walk a neat one.

Miss Cookingham is fortunate in finding herself in a musical community, which Irving Park has demonstrated itself to be in its sturdy and generous support of the orchestral concerts given under the direction of Mr. George Dasch. The impression was felt at once that these pupils were in an environment which seconded and aided the able tuition of a capable teacher. For example, girls of from twelve to fifteen played things like Chaminade's "Scarf Dance," Strelezki's "Serenade," Grieg's "To Spring," Moszkowski's "Etude," and other pieces of like weight, with a general feeling for the musical message, that it has to be spoken of. The little maid who played the "To Spring," put into it the poetry and tenderness and joy of an adult and yet preserved her own sweet simplicity. I cannot praise Miss Cookingham too highly, she has a remarkable group of pupils, and she is putting a note of individuality upon each one that speaks volumes for her fitness for what she is doing. In one number she played the second part for a movement from the Hiller "Concerto," revealing also her own taste and facility of finger and mentality. Unfortunately the two pianos did not agree in pitch and marred the full pleasure. The following pupils were listed to play, although all did not appear: Florence and Grace Heath, Gladys Duval, Katherine Flanagan, Dayton Rathmelle, Evelyn Muenzenberger, Helen Yeakel, Gladys and Mildred Rosevear, Beatrice Hatzfeld, James and Norman Bengston, Virginia Zoph, Elizabeth Barrett, Jean Gregg, Esther Berry Fredstrong, Edna and Herbert Rosenberg, Lillian Martin, Berenice Davis, Sidney and Herald Rosenberg, Vivian Shourds, Edwin Paxton, Vera Bean, Fannie McCay, Frances Sochotoff, Edith Hunter, Alfred Diamond, Beatrice Meseviow, Margaret Williams, Dorothy Bernan, Jeane Haskins, Donald Bean, Doris Plapp, Marvel Davis and Miss Luson.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Charleston—The Commencement Exercises of the Charleston, W. Va., high school was given at the Burlew Opera House last Thursday evening, the music being under the direction of J. Henry Francis.

CLARA EDMUNDS HEMINGWAY PRESENTS PUPILS IN RECITAL

Monday evening, June 14, at the First Congregational Church in Gary, Ind., Mrs. Clara Edmunds Hemingway presented four of her talented pupils in a most enjoyable recital, with Fanny Amstutz-Roberts, accompanist.

Mrs. Hemingway is a very talented musician and a most charming woman, who has won a host of friends and admirers during her residence in Gary.

The program heard on this occasion was a musical and artistic success, and reflected great credit upon Mrs. Hemingway as a teacher.

Miss Hemingway, contralto, opened the program with a group of songs by Montague, Bohm and Edwards, not heard by this writer, but she appeared later as a pianist, proving herself to be a very talented young musician. She plays with sincerity, poise and with a fine regard for tonal and musical values. She is a beautiful girl, and her personality is such as to immediately ingratiate her with any audience.

Miss Beatrice Cavell has a lyric soprano voice, very sympathetic in quality, and she by Nevin, DeKoven and Buck, he drew his interpretations along broad lines, wholly effective and artistic.

A group of Scotch songs and stories are seldom given in such a wholesome and enjoyable manner. He has musical feeling in abundance that adds greatly to his offerings. His presentations of the Lauder songs were greeted with much acclaim, and well they might, for he sang in a capital manner.

Mrs. Hemingway may well feel proud of the work of her pupils and they will be heard again with great pleasure. A novelty duct given by Mrs. Hemingway and Miss Hemingway was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

Mrs. Amstutz-Roberts comes in for a large share of merited praise for she furnished musicianly and artistic accompaniments that added greatly to the enjoyment and success of the evening. H. W. P.

NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY

Thursday, June 17, the New England Society of Chicago enjoyed a splendid program of music at the Chicago Beach Hotel.

The soloists of the occasion were Sarah E. Paine, pianiste; Ethel Connely Cutler, soprano, and Martha J. Owen, reader.

Miss Paine opened the program with the brilliant "Hungarian Fantasie, No. 14," by Liszt, played with fine breadth of interpretative thought, brilliant display of technic, and understanding of the musical values wholly artistic and effective.

Mrs. Owen gave several enjoyable readings that met with much appreciation.

Mrs. Cutler was heard with great pleasure in songs by Huhn, Ware, Cadman and Tate. She has a pleasing stage presence that adds greatly to the presentation of her offering. "At Dawning" and "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" were sung with a fine display of artistry, and "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," with flute obbligato, was beautiful indeed.

Miss Paine is a talented flutist, and her solo offering met with fine favor.

She also added much to the pleasure of the program in furnishing musicianly and artistic accompaniments for Mrs. Cutler in her splendid vocal offering. H. W. P.

HELEN M. BROWN PLAYS AT LITTLE THEATER

Saturday afternoon, June 19, Miss Helen M. Brown, pianist, of the Chicago Piano College, was the soloist on a program given by pupils of Mrs. Elizabeth Foresman-Bagg.

Miss Brown displayed excellent pianistic gifts in her group of solos that were a musical and artistic delight. Her playing is at all times musical, and she uses her well developed technic to a fine advantage in whatever she chooses to present.

The first movement of the Grieg "Sonata" was made to glow with interest in variety of musical thought and the many touches of tonal color and shade employed.

Scenes from Coleridge-Taylor's "Imaginary Ballet, Op. 74," is wholly charming in musical and rythmical content, and Miss Brown gave it with a fine breadth of style and with the poise and surety that was at once convincing, again proving herself to be the possessor of interpretative gifts far above the ordinary. H. W. P.

SUMMER SCHOOL
study the
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
Teaching system and HOW to BLEND
Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teacher
and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
THE ORIGINATOR
LEARN HOW TO TEACH
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to
teachers.
Mr. Oscar Dels, Pianist and Teacher.
Director of Piano Dept.
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD MUSIC SCHOOL.
Certificates authorized by State of Illinois, accredited by Board of Education of Chicago
Phone Wabash 4279
SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BUILDING.
218 SOUTH WABASH, CHICAGO, ILL.

uses it in a very effective manner in the presentation of songs.

"A Sky of Roses," by Salter, and Grieg's "Dream of Love" were given with a good understanding and a beauty of voice that was very effective and enjoyable. De Riego's "Hayfields," and "Butterflies," also received thoroughly grateful treatment at her hands, and it is well to say she should go far in her chosen work if she continues along the same good line. Mr. Walter MacPherson was heard in two groups of songs, disclosing a baritone voice of good range and quality.

His singing is very musical and the interpretation he gave the allotted songs was a distinct credit to himself and his teacher.

Lohr's "Little Gray Home in the West" was given with a fine display of vocal resources, and also in numbers by Batten and MacDowell did his splendid voice give great pleasure.

Mr. Edwin C. Edmunds closed the splendid program with a very attractive list of songs. His voice is very appealing in quality and he uses it with much skill in whatever he chooses to present. His stage presence is attractive, and his offerings were given with a good grasp of the musical and poetic content. The first group of songs, by Bond, Homer and Slater, were given with distinction and later, in numbers

Cora Libberton

SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church }
Walter Spry School } Chicago
Telephone, Studio: Wabash 6485

KUPPIN VOCAL SCHOOL RECITAL

Six splendid singers, including Mr. Louis Kuppín, director of the Kuppín Vocal School, gave a highly enjoyable and commendable studio recital in the Fine Arts building on Sunday afternoon, June 20. The singers were assisted by A. L. Shynman, accompanist, and his artist piano student, Miss Gertrude Bates.

Mr. Louis Barber, the possessor of a rich, powerful baritone voice, opened the program by singing "Vision Fugitive," from Massenet's "Herodiade," in a manner which disclosed an ease of vocal production and a thoroughly musical style, such as one hears only occasionally in a recital of this type. Later in the program Mr. Barber sang "O Casto Fior," from "Il Re di Lahore," by the same composer, and was very effective in this also. The audience showered a vigorous round of applause upon him.

Miss Ruth Jackson, a soprano who should be heard from, sang the "Habanera," from "Carmen," with a voice and enunciation quite out of the ordinary, and aiding these two assets was her charming personality and a deep intent for the musical values of this popular aria. In "Lilacs," by Cadman, and "Going to Market," by Diehl, which came later in the afternoon, Miss Jackson pleased to a still greater extent, and well deserved the congratulations she received at the close of the recital.

Mr. George Schneider is another singer of great credit to Mr. Kuppín. His voice is a well rounded baritone, used with keen intelligence. His first two songs, "Der Asra," by Rubinstein, and "Thy Beaming Eyes," by MacDowell, were apparently very grateful to his vocal resources for he delivered them in a delightfully interesting style. To Mr. Schneider fell the task of closing the program, at which time he sang "In Old Madrid," by Trotter.

Miss Jackson and Mr. Schneider joined forces in a rendition of Schubert's "Serenade," arranged in duo form, and they pleased immensely with it. Their voices blended well and there was a unity of thought and expression throughout.

Mr. Henry Pfafe had two appearances during the afternoon, singing first "Du fragst mich taeglich," by Meyer-Helmund, and "O Mighty God," by Woeller, then later the "Bedouin Love Song," by Coombs. Mr. Pfafe has a tenor voice of splendid quality, which should be wholly at his command soon under the guidance of Mr. Kuppín. More of the Kuppín concert style will no doubt come to Mr. Pfafe in the near future, and when it does he is going to be a satisfying and welcome singer.

Miss Julia Flavillo, who possesses a rich, full voice of the mezzo soprano type, and is extremely well versed in the delivery of operatic song, was heard with the magnificent voice of Mr. Kuppín in the duet, "Si la stanchezza," from "Il Trovatore," and there-in came one of the artistic achievements of the afternoon. The audience tried hard for a repetition of this number but were unsuccessful.

Miss Bates gave a splendid account of herself and teacher in the playing of two piano solos, "Waltz in C Sharp Minor," by Chopin, and the "Tocatta in D Minor," by Leschetizky. The is indeed a highly gifted musician, and Mr. Shynman is wholly justified in setting her forth as an artist student.

No small portion of the honors of the afternoon are due Mr. Shynman, who played accompaniments during the afternoon that were elegant from every standpoint. He is an artist in this line of work and is fast taking a leading place among the professional accompanists of the city, which he rightly deserves.
H. M. B.

AT THE ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC AND EXPRESSION

It is seldom that one is privileged to spend a more enjoyable hour than that which surrounds a recital at the Orchard School of Music and Expression out on Hyde Park boulevard and there are many at this time of year in this flourishing school. A junior recital given by pupils of Mrs. Orchard, Miss Zeigler, Miss Wallis and Mrs. De Vore, on Saturday afternoon, June 19, was one of the best yet attended, and led by the congenial Mrs. Orchard, friendliness, good feeling and pleasure abounded throughout the hour. However, this atmosphere is not the main and only attraction of this school for an efficient corps of teachers has been training a large body of students there during the past year, and these pupils are now showing the fruits of their study and the endeavors of their teachers in a series of recitals at which it is a pleasure to be present.

Foster Lewis, Marie Harney, Katherine Sefton, Catherine Gardner, Alexander Alison, Katherine Kennedy, Carlin Crandall, Maude Cameron and Julia Tomlinson were the pupils who presented this particular program. Whether they were first year pupils or in a more advanced stage of musical development there was the undeniable trait of good instruction and no small amount of musical talent shown at all times.

The various numbers played disclosed the fact that the pupils are working with compositions exceptionally well suited for their present needs and into each has been instilled a confidence in his or her present attainments and a sincerity for the art which helped very materially in the performance of these numbers. The audience, while of the usual Saturday afternoon size, was nevertheless enthusiastic in its praise of every effort shown by the pupils, and Mrs. Orchard merits high commendation for making possible these necessary and enjoyable recitals.
H. M. B.

Paine—Pupils of Miss Sarah E. Paine will play at 503 W. 62nd street this (Friday) evening.

VIVIAN SCOTT'S PUPILS

The young pupils of Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art, who, on last Saturday afternoon, in one of the school's recital halls, on the 9th floor of the Auditorium building, appeared in a program of compositions all written for two pianos, certainly demonstrated the fact that they are receiving most efficient training in both music and public deportment at the hands of Miss Vivian Scott, their teacher.

Miss Scott's connection with the Cosmopolitan school pertains almost exclusively to the teaching of children in the piano department.

She also has charge of the south side studios on East 47th street.

The program on Saturday afternoon opened with "Barcarolle," by Reincke, played by Viola Westberg and Clara Erickson, with good touch, fine shading and smoothness. They also played the closing number, "Mandolinspieler" (Reincke).

"Melody" (Gurlitt) was daintily and carefully played by two small tots, Winifred Cook and Mildred Lewis.

The Whelpley "Minuet" was given with smoothness and varied tone color by Fanchon Bennett and Ruth Henion.

In the absence of Dorothy Kohler, who was programmed to play the weird little "Gavotte," by Gurlitt, with Hilda Fleming, Miss Scott played the second piano, and the number was thoroughly successful and enjoyable.

"Hunting Song" and "Valse," (Gurlitt) were played by Tyra Christiansen and Betty Blichert. Both young ladies showed much ability and technical skill.

Hilda Fleming and Charlaire Welter appeared in an accurate and confident rendering of a "Minuet" by Gurlitt.

The quiet Gurlitt "Melody" received careful execution and poetic interpretation from Winifred Cook and Charles Williams. It was a delightful little performance.

"Gavotte," (Ten Broeck) and "Ballet Scene," (Schultz) occupied the attention of Master Brook Ballard and Master John Bennett, and a fine account they gave of themselves, playing with full tone or light sparkling touch as the occasion demanded, but always with accuracy and confidence.

The whole program was judiciously chosen and well within the present capability of the players, two brief lapses of memory being the only untoward occurrences, and what grown-up does not experience such accidents occasionally.

It was one of the most interesting, unique and well presented pupils' program we have heard.
C. J. B.

Lighthall—Mrs. Marie Lighthall, soprano, who has been ill for some weeks, has now recovered and resumed her work as soloist at the Belden Avenue Baptist Church, last Sunday.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF THE BALATKA ACADEMY OF MUSICAL ART

The Balatka Academy of Musical Art in the Auditorium Building, which has just completed one of the most successful years in its history, held its annual commencement exercises in Auditorium Recital Hall on Friday evening, June 18, amid great enthusiasm, many beautiful flowers and a large and appreciative audience.

Anna H. Balatka, director of the school, as well as her efficient corps of teachers, should feel highly elated over the results of the evening. The writer has heard many programs given by pupils of this school heretofore, but never has the standard been set quite so high and maintained throughout the evening as that of Friday night, when twelve members of the graduating class offered a program full of interesting, enjoyable and well rendered numbers. In addition to the work of these twelve young musicians, the ensemble class, composed of twenty or more stringed instruments under the direction of Albert Green, head of the violin department, played a splendid number, entitled "Germania," by Moszkowski, in opening the program, which far surpassed the playing of this class on former occasions. The piano soloists of the evening were Isabelle Mohr, who played in a delightful manner a "Tarentello," by Heller; Erhardt Bergstraffer, who played the first movement of the Beethoven "Concerto in C Major" in a style eliciting much praise for both himself and teacher; Winnie May Hornbeck, in the first movement of Mendelssohn's "Concerto in G Minor," likewise showed splendid schooling and acquitted herself with credit as did Winifred Youngberg, who played in fine style the first movement of Weber's "Concertstueck"; Ethel F. M. Scholefield was very successful in her performance of one movement from the "Concerto in F Sharp Major," by Hiller, and Charlotte Krause, a brilliant and very satisfactory pianist, who never fails to please, brought the program to a magnificent close by a well rounded reading of the first movement of the "Concerto in G Minor," by Saint-Saens. Anna H. Balatka supplied splendid orchestral parts on the second piano and deserves a large portion of the honors of the evening for her masterful delivery of these very important yet often abused parts.

The violinists who appeared were: Evelyn Morrow, who pleased immensely in her playing of a "Gavotte," by Pepper; Robert Springsguth, a very talented youth, who should be heard from, played a movement from the "Ninth Concerto," by DeBeriot, and Lenise Harber, who played "Gypsy Dances," by Nachez, in a style that denoted especially good training and she well merits the honors bestowed upon her Friday night.

The singers who appeared were Madeline Gerhard, whose voice is well trained and of a quality which made her numbers, "Der Himmel hat eine traum Geweint," by Kueckes, and "Mein heimath Wald," by Bachman, a keen pleasure to the large audience present; Esther Oppenheim, who sang "Elsa's Dream," by Wagner, and "Ill Baccio," by Arditti, gave a splendid account of her vocal equipment and also deserves commendation for her good concert style and charming stage presence. Leah Marks sang a Chopin "Valse" (posthumous) and "Preludium," by Mozart, in a wholly effective and enjoyable manner. Her voice is of the coloratura type and should gain for her much success in the future.

Mr. Carl Weiss furnished the accompaniments for violinists and singers.

The graduating class, which numbered over twenty-five, received diplomas and certificates following the program. Over forty students received medals, merit prizes or honorary mention.

H. M. B.

ST. LUKE'S CHOIR

St. Luke's Choir of Evanston, Ill., which was reorganized two years ago by Mr. William Brooke Reeve, and has been doing such creditable work for the past year will give their first annual Festival at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gunthrop, June 30. The choir will be assisted by Mrs. Mitchel Hoyt, soprano. Mr. Arthur H. Ranous, baritone and Mr. Walter Diedrich, tenor; Mr. Richard Babcock, violin and St. Luke's orchestra. The Boy soloists will be Master William Sumner and Master Hubert Welter, the program will appear later.

CLARENCE EIDAM'S PUPIL GIVES RECITAL

Friday evening, June 18, Miss Cecelia Eva Hentges, pupil of Mr. Clarence Eidam, gave her graduation recital at the Cosmopolitan school.

That Mr. Eidam is a serious and capable teacher is well known fact and he has enjoyed much success also, as a concert artist of excellent attainments.

His pupils have given many splendid recitals throughout the past year, and on this occasion Miss Hentges presented a program of works chosen from the best in classic piano literature.

The program opened with the Bach "Prelude" and "Fugue," in D flat, played with surity, poise, and a good understanding.

Her technic is so well developed that there doesn't seem to be any difficulties in whatever she chooses to present.

The Beethoven, "Sonate" Pathetique, Op. 13, is always a great favorite with lovers of good music, and in this Miss Hentges, did some splendid playing. Her sense of rhythm is good, and the clarity with which she employs her splendid technic, is highly enjoyable and commendable.

In the second group numbers by Schumann, Chopin, MacDowell, she again displayed much musical intelligence in the interpretation of the group, especially fine was her rendition of the Chopin, "Polonaise." The MacDowell number was given with much unction.

The program was brought to a brilliant close by Miss Hentges, with Mr. Eidam at the second piano, playing the "Capriccio Brilliant," from the Mendelssohn concerto Op. 22, with surity and a fine display of musical intelligence and a breadth of style that won them the enthusiastic approval of the audience. Mr. Eidam may feel justly proud of the work accomplished during the course of study and the results obtained.

H. W. P.

MISS PILLSBURY PRESENTS PUPIL

Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury, who has just been added to the faculty of the Caruthers school of Piano, introduced Miss Vini Fravel in a "Movement from the Grieg," pianoforte "Concerto," at the school concert last Saturday afternoon, and proved her own skill in teaching, at the same time showed Miss Fravel to be a very talented and sincere young pianist.

Rhythm in perfection, tone well made and deftly shaded, vivid contrast in color and a general alertness in technic, are the requirements for the successful playing of this Concerto and all these assets were brought to her task in full measure by Miss Fravel, who furthered showed a nice concert style and keen interpretative powers.

C. E. W.

Proctor—The recent engagements of Warren Proctor, tenor, in Michigan, have been, in every way successes. The return dates at Cadillac, Hillsdale, and Albion, are assured.

Hinshaw Conservatory—The twenty-fifth Commencement concert of the Hinshaw Conservatory will be given this (Friday) evening at Central Music hall.

JOHN RANKL
BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

EDNA DUNHAM
Soprano
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

Allen W. Bogen
CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER
RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

Mrs. Charles L. Krum
SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY
800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

EDWARD COLLINS PIANIST
28 Fine Arts Building, Tel. Harrison 3766

CHICAGO MUSICAL COLLEGE
COMMENCEMENT

The forty-ninth annual commencement exercises of the Chicago Musical College were held at the Auditorium Theater, on Tuesday evening, June 15, and an audience which nearly filled the first two floors was in attendance. The new and efficient manager of the college, Carl D. Kinsey, was overseeing things in his usual courteous manner and the esteemed founder and president of the school, Dr. F. Ziegfeld, surely felt gratified over the success of the evening.

An orchestra of sufficient proportions to form a very satisfactory ensemble, under the musicianly conductorship of Karl Reckzeh, played splendid accompaniments for each of the soloists who appeared on the program.

DR. FLORENCE ZIEGFELD

In opening the musical activities of the evening, Mr. Reckzeh led his body of musicians through a performance of a "Symphonic March," by Florence D. Bettray, a student in the composition class of the college, which at once stamped her as a composer to whom the music world can look for excellent and valuable material in the future. Its strains formed the swing and accompaniment for the marching in and seating of the many, many students who were to receive degrees, diplomas and medals.

The diamond medal winners in piano, voice and violin from the post-graduating class, graduating class and teachers' certificate class furnished the major portion of the program. The pianists were Miss Mary Dulsky, who played Adolf Brune's "Concerto, Op. 24, in C Minor"; Mr. Frank Mannheimer played Weber's "Konzertstück," and Mr. John Wiederhorn played Paderewski's "Polish Fantasia." The singers were Miss Leta Mae Forsaith, who sang "Una Voce Poco Fa," from "Il Barbiere di Siviglia"; Miss Ruby Lyons sang the "Prayer," from "Tannhauser," and Miss Naomi Nazor sang the aria, "Ritorna Vincitor," from "Aida." The violinists were Miss Florence Eaton, who played one movement from the Leonard "Concerto, Op. 16"; Mr. Stanley Church played one movement from a Goldmark "Concerto," and Miss Claudia Page played the "Faust Fantasia," by Wieniawski.

With one or two exceptions, each of these young musicians well merits the encouragement and honors bestowed upon them on this occasion, yet with no exception will each prove a credit to the college for which he or she performed on Tuesday night. The concert was one which the public hears only occasionally and those who suffered inadequate transportation service to attend should feel well repaid.

The conferring of degrees, diplomas and awarding of medals was made by the Hon. Richard S. Tuthill. The following graduated:

Artists' Class

DEGREE—MASTER OF MUSIC

Bernard Deiter	Florence J. Sausman
Mary M. Massman	Mildred Brown

Post-Graduating Class

DEGREE—BACHELOR OF MUSIC

Georgena Davidson	Vera M. Talbot
Grace M. Elphinstone	Mamie Thilo
Granville E. English	Kathryn E. Thomas
Sophia Grosbernd	John A. Wiederhorn
Esther V. Kaczorowski	F. Caro Lindley
Minnie Lebovitz	Jane MacArthur
Sibyl MacDonald	Frances N. Nazor
Elsie H. Mueller	Valerie T. Walker
Myrtie B. Peterson	Stanley A. Church
Helen I. Prinderville	Samuel Price
Julia M. Rebell	Louise M. Dwyer
Viola E. Rensink	Ruth A. Luckow
Mable A. Rippe	Frankie E. Swain
Sister M. Virginia	Ethel Woodstock
Hilbert E. Stewart

Graduating Class

PIANO

Rosila M. Baker	Bertha M. Larsen
Sophia Beilin	Clella K. MacClaran
Vera Bowen	Frank S. Mannheimer
Hazel A. Dallach	Gertrude Manske
Margaret A. Dirks	Evelyn A. Meyer
Dorothy D. Eichenlaub	Nellie Morris
Edna J. Friedrich	Beulah W. North
Taubie M. Gertz	Sue Ogura
Louis J. Halpern	Stella F. Potstock
Vetolia Hayes	Edith M. F. Randolph
Elmer M. Hegbom	Nettie M. Rieken
Ida Hickman	Estye R. Ruekberg
Gretchen A. Hinkley	Mildred Samp
Lena M. James	Minnie A. Sampson
Lydia S. Jones	Rosa C. Schmidt
Bonnie I. Knowlton	Henrietta Spruhan
Esther M. Kolste	Ethel Stevenson
Julia B. Kryl	Florence E. Trockey

VOCAL

Maud B. Askew	Ada Miller
Mrs. Maude M. Hawkins	Mary G. Oddrick
Ruby Lyons	Mary Shouse

VIOLIN

Frederick A. Braucher	Claudia Z. Page
Helen M. Kramer

SCHOOL OF EXPRESSION

Grace P. Bourke	Antoinette Schwen
Gertrude Henken	Sister M. Jane
Dorothy Hogan	Esther B. Wheeler
Meriwyn T. Parsons

H. M. B.

Edwards—Miss Marie Edwards will be in the city during the summer and will teach both at the Illinois college of music, 2831 Washington boulevard, and at her studio No. 612 Fine Arts building, on Saturday mornings.

Philip SPOONER AMERICAN TENOR
Mgt. FRED. O. RENARD
216 West 70th Street
NEW YORK

NATIONAL CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC
WALTER SPRY, Director
Formerly Walter Spry Music School—New Catalog on Application

Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO

Phone Wabash 6485

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

Preiser Violin School

STUDIOS

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul.

Louise George Children's Harmony
Chicago Piano College

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO
ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Bertha Beeman Contralto - Teacher of Voice
Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

ORATORIO AT NEW ENGLAND CHURCH

Owing to the exceeding inclement weather and the street car strike, only a few persons were present at New England Congregational church on Monday evening, June 14, to hear Hugo Goodwin's oratorio, "From Easter to Pentecost," rendered by the chorus choir and soloists, Mr. Goodwin, himself presiding at the organ and directing.

Those who came were more than repaid for any special effort they may have exerted to get there, for the oratorio is one of much beauty, both as to music and text, and under the composer's careful direction, his musical forces gave a most successful performance.

As indicated by the title, the text of the oratorio traces the history of the apostles and friends of Jesus Christ from the Resurrection until and including the day of Pentecost.

The text matter is from the scriptures, with the words of appropriate hymns interspersed.

The music is mainly contemplative and gentle, although some splendid fortissimo climaxes are skilfully wrought out and introduced which prevent any suggestion of monotony.

The burden of solo work falls to the tenor, and while not requiring a voice of

"Sang with great effect. 'Vision Fugative.'"—Chicago Tribune.

GRANT HADLEY

BARITONE

Auditorium Building, Chicago

unusually extended range, the music is so full of subtle suggestion that the soloist must be thoroughly equipped and experienced to bring out all the meanings, which the music only suggests.

Mr. Harlan Haines, whose excellent voice has been commented upon several times in Music News, sang the tenor part with good tone and considerable artistry.

The baritone solos were sung with experienced authority by Mr. Edward W. Blatchford.

The one extensive solo for this voice is a fine opportunity for the singer to display all his vocal resources.

Miss Alice Gile sang the small bit allotted to the contralto, with rich tone and fine effect.

Miss Madeline Gallagher read the extensive and sustained soprano portions with most commendable smoothness and beauty of tone.

Her voice is beautifully clear, light and well trained and her singing of the beautiful and melodious, "O Saviour make me to know Thee" and "What Love Divine" with the chorus, were exceedingly enjoyable and satisfactory.

Mr. Goodwin at the organ was more than equal to all demands. He knows his organ thoroughly, played it artistically and directs his singers with musicianly taste and confidence. He is to be congratulated upon the beauty and worth of "From Easter to Pentecost," and upon the success of this performance.

C. J. B.

"AS PANTS THE HART" AND "REBEKAH" GIVEN BY WEST SIDE CHOIR

On Thursday evening, June 17, the chorus choir of California Avenue Congregational church, under the direction of George Francis Kortzenborn, presented Mendelssohn's "As Pants the Hart," and Barnby's "Rebekah," in a manner that reflected credit upon itself and at the same time proved that its new director, is a worthy successor to the former efficient director, Mr. Milton Harris.

MARIE SIDENTIUS ZENDT

Much of the credit for the successful outcome of the evening's offerings is due to the fine work of the soloists, Marie Sidentius Zendt, soprano; Grant Kimbell, tenor, and Earle Houghton, baritone. Also the work of Myrtle E. Mattison at the piano, deserves generous commendation, for it was splendid. "As Pants the Hart" was marked by some clean cut, confident singing on the part of both chorus and soloist. This composition is written for chorus and soprano soloist only.

GRANT KIMBELL

The aria "For My Soul Thirsteth for God," is not of the most grateful character, yet Mrs. Zendt mastered the difficulties, and sang it with beautiful clarity of tone and able interpretation. "The Lord Hath Commanded," male chorus and soprano air, should be mentioned especially also because of its good reading.

The Barnby "Rebekah," is mainly tuneful, melodious and not too difficult, although the opening and closing choruses, contain some fugue work that tests the metal of the singers. On this occasion the young folks under Mr. Kortzenborn's careful and intelligent guidance proved themselves equal to the task, singing these parts with surety and snap.

In this cantata as in the Mendelssohn

GEORGE FRANCIS KORTZENBORN

work, Mrs. Zendt demonstrated her worthiness to be ranked among the best soloists in the city, an artist who for excellence of voice and graciousness of manner, one enjoys hearing.

Mr. Kimbell is another singer who can be relied upon to do things as they should be done, when fine effects are desired.

The recitative "With Overflowing Heart" and aria "The Soft Southern Breeze," as sung by Mr. Kimbell brought him into immediate favor with the audience; which favor was in no way lessened by his work in the duet for soprano and tenor, "Oh Flower of the Verdant Lea." Both singers distinguished themselves in its rendition.

The baritone parts were well taken care of by Mr. Earle Houghton a young singer with a mellow voice of ample range, and a musicianly way of delivering the music assigned to him.

Director, chorus, accompanist and soloists all deserve great commendation for an artistic performance.

C. J. B.

GRANT HADLEY PRESENTS PUPIL
IN SONG RECITAL

Mr. Grant Hadley whose studio in the Auditorium Building is an exceedingly busy place these days presented Miss Clara Throndrud, a young and artistic contralto, in recital at Perrin Hall, Auditorium Building, on Friday evening, June 18. The program was of a varied character, enjoyable to the utmost from first to last and presented in a manner quite out of the ordinary by Miss Throndrud. The aria, "Love of Thy Might," from "Samson and Delila," which opened the program offered the singer a splendid medium for the display of her well schooled vocal abilities as well as her thorough musicianship and at once established a lasting bond of sympathy and intimacy with the audience present. The personality of Miss Throndrud is very much in her favor as is her gracious stage presence. She also has the poise and authority which adds greatly to the pleasure of her offerings and combined with these assets is a voice of unusual beauty used with an intelligence which makes it effective in any style of song she chooses to sing.

The group of songs made up with "Es hat die Rose sich beklagt," Franz; "The Swan," Grieg; "As My Old Mother," Dvorak; "Zueignung," Strauss and "Elegie," Massenet was presented with a wealth of beautiful tone quality and charming interpretation throughout. The Strauss and Massenet numbers being especially commendable.

The "Banjo Song," Homer; "Cradle Song," MacFadyen; "Where Go the Boats?" (Dedicated to Miss Throndrud) by the composer, Alice M. Olson and "Kerry Dance," Molloy, made up the closing group and Miss Throndrud received quite an ovation from her hearers for the artistic presentation of these songs.

Both Miss Throndrud and her teacher, Mr. Hadley, should feel highly gratified over the success of the evening and it is only fair to state that should this talented contralto enter the church, concert and oratorio field of Chicago, she deserves and should receive the highest recognition.

William H. Cheesman, violinist, added pleasure and variety to the program by playing numbers well chosen for the display of his powers and to Miss Edith Schwarze is due a strong word of praise for the skillful and satisfying accompaniments furnished the soloists throughout the evening.

H. M. B.

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG TENOR
ARTUR PLATZ

IS SINGING

"IN ITALY"

By Jeanne M. Boyd

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers

Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGOLUDWIG BECKERVIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.SUCCESSFUL VIRGIL RECITAL RE-PEATED

The unusual success which attended the recital of Virgil pupils at Chickering Hall, New York, May 22, led to a repetition of the program for the accommodation of several hundred who were turned away.

Many convents and music schools were represented at the second performance, May 29.

The playing was consistently excellent in expression, pedaling and technic.

Many seasoned and critical teachers became enthusiastic as the young pupils proceeded. Favorable comments were made upon tonal richness and beauty, intelligence of interpretation and finished technic. Few young pianists indeed have acquired such a well-rounded training, coupled with so clear an insight into musical content.

Miss Emma Lipp's opening number was MacDowell's "Polonaise," a number which she has always rendered with individuality of expression and fluency of technic. The same was true of the more brilliant Liszt Rhapsodie No. 10. In Mrs. A. M. Virgil's newly published "An Old Love Story," Miss Lipp made effective use of delicate tone color and direct simplicity of presentation.

Miss Marion Blair's first group consisted of two new pieces by Mrs. A. M. Virgil, the "Mazurka Romantique," and "Le Caprice." She played them with a charming sincerity and grace, which emphasized the refreshing, frankly joyous spirit in which they were conceived.

The more brilliant numbers, the "Fourth Rhapsodie," by Liszt, and the "Staccato Etude," by Rubinstein, required more extended technical powers, but Miss Blair seemed fully confident and at ease. In fact, her grasp was so secure that she played them with a great deal of dash and fire.

The audience, composed largely of teachers, paid many tributes to the results of Mrs. Virgil's method, as illustrated by technical exercises on the tekniklavier. Her new pieces also attracted considerable attention. In every way their debut was successful. The young players presented them skillfully, and they made an instant appeal. Mrs. Virgil is indeed to be congratulated upon her double achievement.

The program was as follows:

Polonaise	MacDowell
Emma Lipp
Mazurka Romantique	Mrs. A. M. Virgil
Le Caprice	Mrs. A. M. Virgil
Marion Blair
Liebesträume	Liszt
Polish Mazurka	Mrs. A. M. Virgil
Emma Lipp
Rhapsodie No. 4	Liszt
Marion Blair
Five minutes' talk	Mrs. A. M. Virgil
Subject: "The Value of Technic"—with illustrations on Virgil "Tek's" of scales, arpeggios, octaves and bravura work. Velocity 600 to 1152 notes per minute.
An Old Love Story	Mrs. A. M. Virgil
Black Key Etude	Chopin
Emma Lipp
Magic Fire Scene	Wagner-Brassin
Staccato Etude	Rubinstein
Marion Blair
Rhapsodie, No. 10	Liszt
Emma Lipp

Diederich—Walter A. Diederich, tenor, will be soloist in a concert given by St. Luke's Episcopal Church choir, Evanston, On Wednesday, June 30.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH

Herbert E. Hyde, organist and choir director at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, presented his musical forces in the last monthly festival service at this church for the season, on Sunday evening, June 20.

Mr. Hyde's choir is a large one composed entirely of male singers and there is always a heartiness and enthusiasm about their manner of participation in the services that is felt by one in the pew most forcibly.

Sunday evening was no exception in that respect, everything being carried to successful issue with confidence and vigor, after evident thorough preparation.

Besides the regular Versicles and responses, "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis" (in B flat by Lutkin) and processions, the choir sang, "Ho! Everyone that Thirsteth," (Martin) and "Awake Up My Glory," (Barnby) and as already suggested, their work was inspiring and effective.

Mr. Hyde used as his prelude, Stebbin's "In Summer," bringing out its lights and shades most skillfully.

After the service Mr. Hyde presented a short recital on the organ, the first number being, Grieg's "Cradle Song" and the second "Gavotta," by Martini, both of which received beautiful interpretation.

The last number played was "Bonheur," a

RADANOVITS

VOICE CULTURE

419 Fine Arts Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

composition by Mr. Hyde, still in manuscript form.

One should hear a composition more than once before attempting on extensive review of it, but on hearing this work, on Sunday evening, for the first time, the writer was most favorably impressed.

Built along brilliant and pretentious lines generally, it yet has its quiet moments which are melodious and extremely grateful and appealing.

Mr. Hyde obtained splendid effects in the rendering of it, although an organ of much more extensive resources than that at St. Peter's Church, would be required to do the composition justice.

C. J. B.

Hostetter—Hildred Hanson Hostetter, soprano, has just been added to the faculty of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory. Mrs. Hostetter is singing at present as substitute soprano at the Church of the Redeemer.

WHY NOT HAVE YOUR NAME IN MUSIC NEWS CLASSIFIED DIRECT-ORY? IT PAYS?

WESTERN
Conservatory
E. H. SCOTT, Pres.
MALLERS BLDG., CHICAGO

ALL FOR 10 CENTS

4 New PIANO SOLOS

- 1. Fussin' Around
Slow Drag or Fox Trot
- 2. DOLORES
March by NEIL MORET
- 3. Young April
Novelette by GEORGE L. COBB
- 4. Parade of the Puppets
Marche Comique

MANDOLIN ORCHESTRA

- 5. DREAM FACES
Reverie
Arr. HILDRETH
Marche Comique
Arr. JACOBS
- 6. Parade of the Puppets
Each Number for
1st Mandolin or 1st Violin Mando-Cello or Violoncello
2nd Mandolin or 2nd Violin Guitar Accompaniment or
3rd Mandolin or 3rd Violin Piano Accompaniment
Tenor, Mandolin or Viola

BANJO SOLO

- 7. Parade of the Puppets
Marche Comique. Arr. JACOBS

GUITAR SOLO

- 8. Posies
Waltz by A. J. WEIDT.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS FOR PIANO, MANDOLIN, BANJO, GUITAR, Etc.

And much good reading on musical Matter in general.

TO OBTAIN the above mentioned eight (8) pieces of music, send 10 CENTS in stamps and REQUEST the May issue of

THE CADENZA

SUBSCRIPTION, Per Year
United States $1.00
Canada, $1.25 Foreign, $1.50
PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

Address
The CADENZA
888
Bosworth Street BOSTON, MASS. U.S.A.

Blanche Hammond Bender
CONTRALTO CONCERTS RECITALS
Personal Address, Rochelle, Ill.
3117 Sheffield Avenue Chicago, Ill.

Henriette Weber
Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST
Kimball Hall Exclusive Management
JOINT SONATA RECITALS HARRY CULBERTSON

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST
4621 Lake Park Av. Teacher, Concerts

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

The Masonic Hall in Bush Temple was handsomely decorated for the commencement week of the Conservatory, and doubtless proved inadequate for the crowds at the latter part of the festival. But on opening night the street car strike and drenching rain interfered with the attendance and the young people appearing had to do without the stimulant of a crowd. But they went ahead with the best kind of an eager spirit, the young women wearing their pretty gowns and flowers with just as much evident desire to look well as if they had a multitude to entertain.

The program did not state what teacher sponsored the students on the list, but as Madame Julia Rive-King played the second piano parts in the concerted numbers, it was fair to presume that the pianists were from her workshop. Three talented young people these proved to be. Miss Esther H. Goetz plunging into the intricacies of the first movement of Hugo Kaun's "Concerto," and emerging with a splendid record of sureness, speed and strength. There was a sort of requiem-like middle section that called for considerable breadth and feeling and it was well met.

Supple and clear was the touch of Miss Rozelda Cohn, who did two movements of the little heard Schuett "Concerto." This composer is so continuously musical that his works are grateful to the ear, and lend themselves equally well to an earnest exponent. Miss Cohn was particularly convincing in the development of the allegro, with its dancing theme, elaborated to a degree and calling for abundance of lightness and grace of style.

Replacing Miss Lulu Matheson, absent because of illness, the audience was treated to a surprise in the brilliant endeavor of young David Marcus, a lad of sixteen, with a burning talent that displayed itself in a rush of impetuosity and rich color in the presto and allegro of the MacDowell "Concerto, No. 2." He dashed off the embroidery of the presto with stunning speed, and in the broader phrases of the allegro showed that he had power to match his fleetness. Madame Rive-King was a persuading foil for all these students, calling them on by her own resourceful abilities and stirring and stimulating them by her finished art.

Harold Dosch did the Wagner "Prize Song," as arranged by Wilhelmj, with a big resonant tone, always pure and true and with well planned and worked out thought for nuance and color.

The vocal contributions came from Dr. John J. Killeen, an excellent baritone, who did Handel's "Aim, Aim, Ye Brave," with a nice sense of its musical content. Miss Mercedes Davis-Holden used the former song of triumph of all prima donnas, the "Robert" aria of Meyerbeer, and showed herself well schooled and fully adequate to its dramatic demands. Miss Shirley Mallette has a contralto voice of quality, and with possibilities which she does not yet foresee, and she sang very well the Henschel "Morning Hymn" and Tipton's "Spirit Flower." Mr. Clay Hart has intensity and purpose to back him in the use of his robust tenor voice, and these gave a vigorous interest to his presentation of Leoni's "Birth of Morn," Clarke's "Bowl of Roses" and Cadman's "Dawning," the latter once more declaring itself to be a song of unusual caliber. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

h h h

Second Concert

The second concert of the series was given on Tuesday morning at 10:30, the program being as follows:

Concerto (first movement)	Edward Bredshall
Master Edward Bredshall
Returning Spring	Vidal
Ferry Me Across the Water	Homier
Miss Helen Lomax
Les Farfadets	Pente
Miss Mary Thomas
Slumber Song	MacFadyen
Song of Joy	Woodman
Mrs. Louise Schulz
Caprice Viennois	Kreisler
Miss Marietta Livengood
L'Amoro (from Il Re Pastore)	Mozart
Miss Anna L. Beebe
Rhapsodie No. 8	Liszt
Miss Vivian Stoik
Floods of Spring	Rachmaninoff
Miss Lillian Wright
Concerto, No. 2	MacDowell
Presto
Allegro
Master David Marcus
Madame Julie Rive-King at second piano

h h h

The Third Concert

The third concert was given on Wednesday evening and brought to notice some remarkable piano playing and some good singing, in the latter class being a group of songs by Hildred Hanson Hostetter, a singer of advanced technic and truly professional style.

Mrs. Hostetter has a beautiful voice, very full and clear and of unusually sweet quality. Added to this she has personality and poise and, on Wednesday, she gave a very clear and convincing reading of the group of songs assigned to her.

Grant-Schaefer's "The Sea," a noble song, was given with great repose and great beauty of vocal art, MacDermid's "Saerament" was a piece of sustained beauty and Boyd's "In Italy" was made to sparkle in its usual fashion.

The Grieg "Sonata in E Minor" was well played by Miss Charley Stinson, and the "Concertos," G minor (Mendelssohn), No. 1 (MacDowell), and A minor (Grieg), were played by Eugene Musser, Violet Bourne and Georgia Jones, respectively.

Mr. Musser has a most beautiful touch and very great facility. He made the "andante" movement glow with musical charm and the "presto" was scintillant.

Miss Bourne, grown as tall or taller than her teacher, Madame King, played the slow movement of the MacDowell opus in a rather perfunctory manner, her poetical development not yet being great enough to thoroughly compass such items, but in the rapid last movement, she was superb. Such brilliance and such certainty are not often encountered except in the case of the greatest and most experienced artists.

Miss Jones showed good training and much promise in her work.

Dr. M. A. Bernstein sang an "Elijah" aria with clear enunciation and good tone, and in the absence of Miss Ruth Agar, scheduled for Cadman songs, Miss Lillian Wright gave two songs with good intelligence, one being the Clough-Leigher "Possession."

Miss Alice Calvert also sang two songs, one of which was the "Bird of the Wilderness," by Rogers, in both displaying nice voice and style, but lacking considerably in the matter of clear text enunciation.

Edgar Nelson provided model accompaniments for all the songs and played also for Mr. Musser, in the absence of his teacher, Miss Grace Potter.

Madame Julie Rive-King, who is responsible for the great development of Violet Bourne, played the second piano for her "Concerto" and Mr. Harold Mickwitz played for Miss Jones.

There was present a large audience and enthusiasm was plentiful. C. E. W.

On Thursday morning at 10:30 there was an informal faculty concert in connection with the conferring of degrees, diplomas, etc., as also an address by the president of the conservatory.

Closing Concert

The closing program of the commencement concerts at Bush Temple Thursday evening was very attractive in musical works, and also the persons on the program disclosed talents of a superior sort, that should carry them far.

Mr. Lyell Barber, pianist, opened the program with the Beethoven "Concerto, No. 4, G major" (first movement). He has advanced far along musical and technical lines, and the reading he gave the programmed number was brilliant and musical, with Mr. Harold von Mickwitz providing a thoroughly fine second piano part.

Misses Lillian Wright and Alice Calvert gave a good account of themselves in the "Flower Duet," from "Madame Butterfly."

Misses Marion Forgan and Marian Patterson Boyce proved themselves to be very talented singers, and they sang with a good understanding of the music and a good display of vocal development in numbers by Massenet, Rimsky-Korsakow and Hue.

Miss Marion Forgan in the "Giga con variazioni, Op. 91," by Raff, won the enthusiastic approval of the audience. Her playing is musical, enhanced by a surety and poise at once convincing and artistic.

Mr. Joe Wynne has won a fine place in musical circles by his splendid playing. His technical equipment is of a superior sort, enabling him to grace his offerings with many touches of color and shade thoroughly effective and artistic. He has true musical feeling in abundance, and in the Saint-Saens "Concerto in G Minor" he played with a fine breadth of style and much imagination, and with Mr. von Mickwitz furnishing a musicianly and artistic complement at the second piano, they won the sincere and merited approval of the audience.

Mr. Alexander Spiegel, in the Goltermann "Sonate," for 'cello and piano, disclosed a tone very attractive in musical color, and he should be very successful if he continues along the same good lines. H. W. P.

Orchard School—Tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon, Miss Olene Wallis will give her graduation piano program at the Orchard school. At 3 o'clock, on Wednesday, June 30, Miss Mabel Baker and Mr. Charles Laff, piano pupils of Mrs. Orchard, will present a program.

Correction—In the Music News article about Earle Ceasero of Bethlehem, Pa., last week the statement was made that he is organist at Grace church in that city. We should have said that he has studied piano with Mr. W. G. Trembath, organist of Grace church.

KURT DONATH'S OPERA CLASS

On Tuesday evening, at the Little Theater, Mr. Kurt Donath presented the pupils of his opera school in excerpts from three operas, he himself appearing in two of the casts.

On account of the street car strike the audience was not what it would have been otherwise and this writer, with others, had to leave before the end of the program in order to catch the only means of transportation homeward.

However, enthusiasm reigned supreme and, if "Lovely Galatea," (Franz von Suppe), which closed the program, and which was not heard, held up to the standard of the first two-thirds of the program, it was certainly a brilliant piece of work.

This may well be taken for granted and the hope is expressed that there will be another opportunity of hearing this dainty work given by Irene Graf, Pearl McAdams, Augusto Gonzales and Mr. Donath, who constituted the cast for its Tuesday performance.

The opening part of the program was devoted to the garden scene from "Faust," and surely there was never yet seen so cunningly bijou a setting of this familiar scene.

With scarcely room for four people on the stage at once the scene was yet very beautiful and wholly appropriate and the well known lighting effects at the Little were in full and convincing play with the one exception that a bad blunder was made just at the close of the scene. There was compensation for that, however, in the really astonishing effect produced with red lights at the moment of the satanic invocation to the flowers to help him in his designs upon Marguerite.

Marguerite was sung by Miss Graf, who has been heard in many parts and who is convincing in all. She looked the innocent German maident to perfection and she acted with rare skill, singing also so well as to prove her art is a growing one and the training is fine.

Miss McAdams appeared first as "Siebel" and gave to the "Flower Song" a good reading, after which she returned in a few moments to fulfill the ensemble demands upon "Martha" in quite a different dress and characterization.

In both items she was very good and the voice especially showed improvement over the last appearances.

In dress and acting she was thoroughly authentic and the audience found her comedy especially very diverting.

Mephistopheles was sung by Mr. Gonzales, his thoroughly fine voice suiting the score admirably and his make-up and action being professional in skill and finish.

The invocation scene was particularly fine, sung and acted so well indeed as it is seldom done even on the professional stage.

Mr. Donath appeared as "Faust" and once more provided an object lesson of fine natural abilities and real professional art. His vocal perfection in "Within This Sacred Dwelling" was marked.

In make-up, stage deportment, etc., he was, of course, authoritative to the last degree and a most agreeable lesson to all students present.

The garden scene from "Faust" provides a wealth of solo opportunity and each one of the numbers was admirably done, while the quartet ensemble was of very unusual and effective worth.

This was followed by scenes from Mil-loecker's "Beggar Student," in which Misses Graf and McAdams shared honors with Marguerite Farady and Mildred Nisted, all four doing spirited acting and graceful singing.

In the last division of the program many other students of the school also took part as Grecian maidens and throughout good piano support was afforded by Miss Marie Simon. C. E. W.

— # # # —

MISS PILLSBURY PRESENTS PUPIL

Dagmar Andersen Herem, a pupil of Agnes Hope Pillsbury, gave a piano recital, Sunday afternoon, June 6, in Miss Pillsbury's studio in the Fine Arts building. The program was as follows:

Carnaval	Schutt
Gavotte and Musette	d'Albert
If I were a Bird	Henselt
Barcarolle	Rubinstein
Etude Japonaise	Poldini
Capriccio Brilliant	Mendelssohn

The salient characteristic of Mrs. Herem's playing is a rarely found poise, a poise which never leads into constraint but is simply a fine sense of values. This sense of balance and proportion was nowhere more apparent than in the Schutt Carnaval, which was perhaps the best thing she did. She showed a really beautiful discrimination in mood and color.

Mrs. Herem chose to interpret the d'Albert Gavotte and Musette with the daintiness of old form dance rhythm rather than with the complete abandon with which this number is more often played. The Henselt, "If I Were a Bird," was played with great delicacy and charm, and the three other numbers of this group were equally interesting. The Mendelssohn Capriccio, with Miss Pillsbury at the second piano, was given a brilliant reading and closed a delightful program. B. L.

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT
President

Chicago's Foremost School of
MUSIC

Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc. 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivalled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

SOLOS and QUARTETS

FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By
HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

Summer Term

Wm. Clare Hall
TENOR

Will continue teaching
at his studio

428 Fine Arts Building
Throughout June, July
and August

SALEM CHORUS GIVES CONCERT

Saturday evening the chorus of Salem Swedish Lutheran Church, under the direction of A. R. Johnson, gave a splendid performance of "The Prodigal Son," by Berridge. Some special numbers were given as follows: Miss Marian Larkins gave some pleasing harp solos, and the Ogden Male Chorus proved themselves to be a splendid body of singers under the direction of their capable leader.

Mr. Robert Quait, tenor, gave a group of songs with much artistry, and in the solo and duet numbers of the cantata he also proved himself to be thoroughly capable and musically in his interpretations.

Mr. Fred Soderborg handled the bass role with much skill and a good display of musicianship and in his group of songs his presentations were very finished and musical.

Mr. Johnson, the regular organist and director of the choir, has built up a splendid chorus that sings in a very enthusiastic manner. He is a musicianly director and he uses good taste in the variety of choral effects gained. The shading, attacks and releases were well taken and the quality and volume of tone at all times commendable and satisfying.

The opening chorus was given with much unction and also in chorus numbers with the quartet did they give of their best, gaining some fine effects in color and shade.

Miss Helen Edith Peterson sang the one solo for the contralto with a fine display of artistry and vocal resource that was a musical delight, and left nothing to be desired in beautiful singing.

Miss Ellen Larson, soprano, sang her solos with much surety and she should be heard from. Her voice is very pleasing and covers the requirements of the role very nicely.

The closing chorus numbers, "Rejoice" and "How Pure and Heavenly Is the Sight," were brought to a high point of excellence in choral singing and Mr. Johnson may well feel proud of the work accomplished, and too much praise and commendation cannot be given.

Mrs. Robert Quait furnished good accompaniments for Mr. Quait and Mr. Soderborg in their solo groups.

Miss Ella Olson, pianist, and Mr. Emanuel Anderson, organist, furnished excellent support for the chorus. H. W. P.

Tenney—Mr. George L. Tenney and family have gone to the west for the summer. They will spend some time in Colorado and considerable also in California.

Sunday Evening Club on Tour

Reviewed by CLIFFORD JOHNSTON

With a special train of four cars, the Chicago Sunday Evening Club left Chicago for their Pacific coast tour on Friday, June 18. Friends in great numbers accompanied the members to the station, some new members going on the complete trip with the choir. Approximately one hundred people left Chicago behind for a tour which is remarkable in every way. Various other organizations had planned similar trips, only to fail through some miscarriage of plans, and it remained for the Sunday Evening Club to show the way, and accomplish the fullest expectations of its members. The greatest praise is due Mr. Gordon Erickson, the director, who, by his executive ability, staved off a last possible handicap, and started every one away in good spirits.

Five prominent soloists accompanied the club—Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdjen, soprano; Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; Mr. John B. Miller, tenor; and Mr. Burton Thatcher, basso. Mr. Thatcher took the place of Mr. Holmquist on short notice, and will remain with the club till after the Salt Lake City engagement. The accompanist is Mr. Edgar Nelson, who is well known to all musicians of Chicago.

✻ ✻ ✻

Joliet

Leaving Chicago at 6:10 on the Rock Island, the choir arrived at Joliet about 7:30 after a trip during which the main occupation seemed to be asking questions of Mr. Erickson and trying to arrange permanent location on the Pullmans. Despite the inclement weather and the unsettled conditions generally, there was a good lively spirit in the air which promised much for a successful and happy trip. At Joliet everyone hurried to the Ottawa Street Methodist Church, where the concert was held, and though the seating for the choir was far from convenient, each one made the best of conditions, and a very good program was given. The choir showed its versatility in both accompanied and unaccompanied numbers, and also in its ability to cope with both the heavy and the light effects. Clean cut attacks, striking volume, definite releases, and varied shadings were handled in a manner reflecting great credit on Mr. Erickson, who conducted with surety and precision, and a thorough understanding of each text. Beauty of voice and remarkable tone quality as a club were shown which, with fine enunciation, made for an evening of pleasure and musical value to the audience.

The soloists were the recipients of much applause. Mr. Thatcher appeared first in three numbers, and his resonant, ample bass voice gained him much favor. He was thoroughly artistic, and his poise was admirable.

Mrs. Herdjen sang the "Ritorna Vineitor," from "Aida," with great beauty of tone and fervor. Her high work was particularly effective and her diction clean cut. She is always a grateful singer, and was much appreciated in Joliet.

In two songs by Kellie and MacFayden,

Mrs. Gannon pleased the audience in all respects. Her rich contralto voice was in great form, and she thrilled with an easy high voice that rang full and vibrant.

Mr. Miller sang songs of Beah and Rummel in a most satisfying manner. Years of experience and a well developed musical instinct enabled him to give fine renditions of these numbers, and he found great favor with the audience.

Mr. Nelson's accompaniments were the production of the finished artist and were commendable in all respects. He is a thorough musician of much versatility and his work was no small part in the success of the concert.

✻ ✻ ✻

Rock Island

After a night declared by many to have been "the limit," the choir arrived at Rock Island early on Saturday morning. Unfamiliarity with surroundings was the cause of the lack of rest, but all felt sure that a few days of train life would find everyone in ship shape. At Rock Island various trips were taken, some to Davenport and Moline, others to the large arsenal, while many availed themselves of the opportunity to "jitney" around on sight-seeing tours.

Two programs were given at this place, both at Watch Tower park about three

A. R. Y. Carpenter
ORATORIO PUPILS CONCERT
715 KIMBALL HALL TEL. WABASH 8700

miles from the city. This is one of the most beautiful parks to be seen anywhere because of its great natural advantages. These, coupled with the many attractions of the average amusement park, made for an ideal spot. The afternoon concert was held in the open air, and though rain necessitated a removal to the pavilion in the middle of the program, the audience was immensely pleased at the entire program. The accompaniment of a rooster's crowing and the downfall of rain gave a decidedly informal atmosphere to the first half of the concert. A feature of the afternoon was the quartet's singing of the famous "Rigoletto" quartet, after which the audience showed great appreciation.

The night's program was given in the pavilion and was featured by fine chorus work, a brilliant rendition of the "Lucia" number by the quartet and by the wonderful work of the soloists.

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building
Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

THE EMINENT PIANISTE
NEUBAUER
CLEVELAND IN JUNE

"ROSE MAIDEN" BY HAYDN OWENS CHOIR

It was quite a different Frederick Cowen who unfolds the mysteries of "The Veil" from the one who reels off the flowing melodies of "The Rose Maiden." Of course the latter belong to his formative period the years that also gave "The Better Land" and "The Promise of Life" and there are those in plenty who would have him disown the value, at least, of his earlier productions in the light of his greater offerings. But an analogy may be suggested by the difference between Frederick Cowen, the plain citizen and Sir Frederick Cowen, knight.

The same man is behind each sobriquet, and he is not true to himself if he forget the days of his beginning or the stepping stones by which he rose to higher things. And the same can be said of the romantic and even sentimental little story with its fitting lyrics which serve so useful a place in the field of choral music. Its very fluency and its cheerful moods have worth and have made it so to live, that for a long time to come it will be heard and enjoyed more frequently than the "Veil," with its exacting demands upon the many forces that are required to demonstrate its superiority.

And so it came about on last Friday night that a thoroughly pleased audience listened to the unfolding of the romance of the Fairy Queen, who came to mortal life, loved, lived, and died happily in the new sphere she chose. Mr. Owens has choice qualities as a director. His band of singers is the usual mixture of those who sing because they love to sing and therefore do it with a whole heartedness that seldom fails of its purpose. There was spirited volume of sound with many pleasant and effective pauses for accent and strength, and many moments when the stream of love was limpid and mellow. With his earnestness and adaptability and his unquestioned and well felt abilities, Mr. Owens can look a long way ahead and see himself increasingly successful. As he progresses towards a place of marked importance.

The soloists were well prepared for their portion of the work. Mr. H. E. Haines the tenor, calling for especial praise because of his very nice voice and thoughtful attention to the needs of the text. He used with fine discrimination a mezzo voice that had a hint of falsetto at times that gave to it a delivery very marked. To Miss Augusta Collson fell the large part of solo work and she sustained its demands with unfailing freshness and breadth of tone and in no moment failed to understand and interpret the full spirit and beauty of the smoothly flowing lyrics assigned her. Miss Nina Shankland had but one opportunity and it fitted her darkly colored voice admirably, and her enunciation brought very clearly to the front the needed text to make the story coherent. Mr. Carl H. Brown, has a resonant, wide sphered voice and a good sense of the declamatory demands of the phrases so plentifully sprinkled throughout his score. Together these soloists made much of several trios and quartets, and almost every combination is made of the voices by way of these means and sundry duets. Two really fine numbers fell to a double quartet of male voices and female voices and they were given with much attention to neat phrasing and shading.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS

AT LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood

Paw Paw City,
Mich.

30 Miles from Lake Paw Paw

An Ideal Spot in Which to Spend the Summer A Musicians Colony Now Forming

Lots for Sale at Low Prices on Time Payments

Cottages at Reasonable Rental

Address LETTIE ESTEL BROWN, Paw Paw City, Mich.

HAROLD HENRY'S PUPILS

Monday afternoon, found an interested audience in Thurber Hall to listen to the group of pupils, Mr. Harold Henry informally presented. There were eight well trained young women, who supplied a program that was enjoyably contrasted and not so intricate as to be exacting upon either listener or player. The indications seemed to point that these numbers had not been specifically prepared for the occasion, but were portions of a repertoire that could be given readily on call. The fact gave a certain ease and freedom and made for that much more pleasure. The young people were varied as to natural gifts but it was to be observed that Mr. Henry had evidently studied the individual traits and sought to develop them, rather than to put his own hall mark decidedly upon them and make each talent to shine in the same way.

Thus, Miss Lenore Wood gave one part of a Beethoven sonata and did it with a sturdy steadiness that went with her make up, while Miss Ellen Elzlohm used the Chaminade "Autumn" with a certain feeling for its tender message that showed her tendency towards the poetry. Later on she played a movement from a Beethoven concerto with splendid fire and breadth. Miss Annic Neil contributed the Bach "Bourree," with a rhythmic swing that showed her love for the square, well defined melodic idea and its logical working out. Miss Katherine McFadden chose the richly colored D flat "Etude" of Liszt, and made it warm and pulsating with a lovely tonal coloring. Miss C. B. Bennett voiced her love for strength, bigness and power in a

Chopin "Etude" and the peculiarly marked rhythms of the Rubinstein "Barcarolle."

Mr. Henry added the requisite bit of personal touch in a taste of his own fine quality when he played the second piano part in the Beethoven concerto. It was, as ever, of a pervading purpose and musicianly feeling.

Unfortunately the two final numbers selected by Miss Augusta Rasch and Mrs. E. C. Buckley, were not heard.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

AT THE MACBURNIE STUDIOS

On next Monday evening Mr. MacBurnie presents Worth Faulkner in a program of songs by Chicago composers as follows:

When I Bring to you Colored Toys.....	John A. Carpenter
On the Day When Death Will Knock at Thy Door.....	John A. Carpenter
The Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes.....	John A. Carpenter
On the Seashore of Endless Worlds.....	John A. Carpenter
Light, My Light.....	John A. Carpenter
With Strawberries.....	Leo Sowerby
The Ghost.....	Leo Sowerby
The Full Sea Rolls and Thunders.....	Leo Sowerby
Dainty Little Maiden.....	Isaac Van Grove
What Can an Old Man Do but Die?.....	Isaac Van Grove
Jenny Kissed Me.....	Isaac Van Grove
To a Dreamer.....	Eleanor Everest Freer
Sonnet 14.....	Eleanor Everest Freer
How Many Times, Do I Love Thee, Dear.....	E. E. Freer

Mr. Sidney Arno Dietch will be the accompanist.

Russell—The Russell School of Music will give a pupils recital at Auburn Park M. E. church, on Monday night, June 28. Pupils of Louise Cozad, Mary Hester Cleary and L. Douglas Russell will appear.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

Anna Groff-BryantSTUDIO OF VOCAL ART
606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSONTEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIOGUSTAF HOLMQUISTBASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.Peoria Musical College

FRANKLIN STEAD, Director

School of MUSIC Modern
Expression Language

Faculty of 23 teachers who have enjoyed study with the best American and European masters. Catalog sent on request. Address: PEORIA MUSICAL COLLEGE, Co. Madison Av. & Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

ARCANGELIITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGOHAYDNOWENSPianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO RECITALSSOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680J. E. WilfordPIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOISALMA BECK CONTRALTOCONCERTS-ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, OhioMARJORIE DODGE WARNERPhone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

Soprano

DAN S. DENTON TENOROPERA-CONCERT-RECITAL
Address care Chicago Musical CollegeDIEDERICH WALTER TENORTEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
08 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwood Avenue CHICAGO

ELISABETH FERGUSON HESSCONTRALTO
7622 Rogers Ave. Tel. Rogers Park 9968CALUMET CONSERVATORY CONCERT

Richard B. De Young, president of the Calumet Conservatory of Music and Dramatic Art, has, with the aid of his efficient teachers, built up a splendid school in Roseland.

The concert on this occasion was given in the Palmer Park Assembly Hall, which is in nearly the center of Roseland. A splendid audience was there to greet and lend encouragement to those appearing on the program.

RICHARD B. DE YOUNG

The concert opened with the "Octet" for violins, "Scenes Pittoresques," by Allen, played with a splendid body and quality of tone by Frieda Bethig, Louise Bauch, Grace Houle, Louis Schneider, Fred Schneider, Arthur Sorenson, William Tatter and Walter Wiessner, under the direction of their talented and musically teacher, Melvin Martinson. Two pupils from the piano department, Misses Irene Bury and Florence Wiersma, were heard in numbers by Mendelssohn and Schubert-Tausig. They displayed well-developed technical equipment, and they set about their tasks with a sincerity that was very gratifying and praise meeting.

Miss Mildred Verhoeven gave a reading by May Isabel Fisk in a delightful manner.

The voice pupils appearing were from the class of Mr. De Young, director of the vocal department, who may well feel proud of the showing made at this time. They came upon the stage with much assurance and poise, and they sang with sincerity, displaying voices of good quality that have been developed along lines that enabled them to present their songs in a very musical and convincing manner, proving Mr. De Young to be a very painstaking and artistic teacher. The pupils were Misses Esther Lundquist, Ethel Handley and Jessie Myers, and they sang numbers by White, Sanderson, Woodman and Dvorak-

Rix, with a good grasp of interpretative thought.

Mr. Martinson is well known as a violinist of splendid attainments, and as a teacher he is enjoying much success.

Miss Louise Bauch gave a musicianly reading of the "I Lombardi" fantasia, (Vicuxtemps), that won her much applause. Her technic is well developed, and she draws a good tone from her instrument that is very pleasing to hear.

Mr. Louis Schneider is the possessor of a musical talent far above the ordinary. He played the very difficult "Faust" fantasia with abandon, brilliancy, and a warmth and breadth of tone that was very astonishing as well as satisfying and musical, and it is safe to predict that both Miss Bauch and Mr. Schneider should go far if they continue their studies along the same good lines.

Miss Josephine Pignata was the accompanist of the evening, and she acquitted herself in a praise meriting and commendable manner.

DRAMATIC ART

Miss Rhoda Hiestand

Miss Mary Louise Isherwood

TEACHER'S CERTIFICATE

Violin—Miss Louise Bauch

PRIZE WINNERS

Piano

Intermediate Department

Gold medal—Miss Irene Bury

Silver medal—Miss Rose Kuiken

Honorable mention—Miss Olive Brandt

Junior Department

"Bertha Leitzman" silver medal (donated by Mrs. C. Lucas)—Gladys Friedlander.

Silver medal—Johanna Vellenga

Honorable mention—Hazel Steward, Catherine Bass, Christine Dekker, Alma James

Dramatic Art

Junior Department

Silver medal

H. W. P.

CHARLOTTE BURTON

The following comment on the work of this young American violinist is from the Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph:

Miss Burton proved herself an exceptional artist and immediately won the admiration of her hearers. She played with a strength and self-forgetfulness which carries its charm. She is indeed a born artist and plays from her soul. Miss Burton has been appearing on the concert stage since she was four years of age, obtaining her early violin education in St. Louis.

Eugene Ysaye heard the young girl play and spoke of her afterward as "the little girl with the big tone," and prophesied a brilliant musical career for her. (Advertisement.)

Doelling Pianist
Teacher
2912 Burling Street

George Nelson Holt, Basso
TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-CANTANTE
LAKESIDE, O., JULY AND AUGUST

Ada Grace JOHNSON
Recital Soprano Concert
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Hardman Piano

(Established 1842 in New York)

Recognized by the World's Greatest Vocal Artists and Musicians generally as the most perfect instrument to accompany the voice, and used exclusively in the homes of

CARUSO, TETRAZZINI, ZENATELLO, SLEZAK,
AND MANY OTHERS.

"A wise man profits by the experience of others"

Read what they have to say and remember that the same service and quality is at your command. Let us send you our booklet EXPRESSIONS OF OPINION, which contains half-tone pictures of the best known Operatic Stars.

Most reasonable in price among the few Artistic Pianos.

Uprights, $450.00 up. Grands, $700.00 up.

F. S. SPOFFORD, Chicago Representative
Seventh Floor, Republic Building,
State Street, Corner Adams.

HANDEL ORATORIO SOCIETY

A fine concert was given by the Handel Oratorio Society, on Tuesday evening, June 15, in the First Baptist church of Austin. The whole event was in the nature of a testimonial to the society's director, Miss Ida Belle Freeman, and certainly the spirit of the singers, and the enthusiasm of the large audience assembled, spoke most eloquently of the sincere regard that Austin has for Miss Freeman's untiring efforts in maintaining a standard of things musical there.

The program was arranged from the compositions of Dudley Buck, with the exception of one number, "Triumphal March," played on the pipe organ with good execution by Miss Jessie Adams, organist of Austin's First Presbyterian church, opened the program. The Handel society then sang "Arise, Shine" with telling brilliancy and skill, under Miss Freeman's direction. The incidental soprano solo was sung by Mrs. W. H. Amerson.

"My Redeemer and My Lord" was well presented by Miss Emma Ewen, a soprano with an admirable voice and much musical taste.

The Baptist Church Quartet, Lillian MacLeish, soprano; Mrs. Albert Sedell, alto; T. F. Thorsen, tenor, and Milton Severinghaus, bass, with Florence E. Boydston at the organ, gave "Sing Alleluia Forth." Good voices compose this quartet, and their interpretation of the numbers was spirited and generally effective, although the balance of parts is not always as uniform as one could desire.

"How Long Wilt Thou forget Me," tenor solo from "Triumph of David," was sung by Mr. Julian Mogensen, who displayed thereby, a splendid tenor voice and much interpretative ability, but the excellence of his reading was compromised by an evident lack of preparation and rehearsal with the accompanist.

"Wedding March," duet for piano and organ was brilliantly presented with Mrs. Lillian Grant Haeffner, at the piano and Miss Adams at the organ.

Miss Irene Briggs' excellent soprano voice and musicianship, contributed much to the beauty of the program with "I will lay me down in Peace," from "Triumph of David."

The "Alleluinatic Sequence" was given a beautiful and artistic reading by the Presbyterian church quartet, Irene Briggs, soprano; Ida Belle Freeman, alto; Arthur Henning, tenor, and Murray Eldredge, bass, with Miss Adams at the organ.

The first part of the program closed with the famous "Te Deum" in E flat, sung by the society, Miss Briggs singing the tenor solo. All other incidental solo bits were sung by the parts in unison.

The ladies' chorus directed by Miss Freeman made enjoyable work of "Evening Hymn" and "Morning Invocation."

"Sunset," with violin obbligato played by Mr. R. H. Rathburr, was sung by Mr. J. I. Hamilton. He displayed a fine rich baritone voice, but he varied from the pitch at times.

Miss Vivian Helgesen, mezzo soprano, sang "There's a Merry Brown Thrush," and "Down by the Mill." Miss Helgesen has a delightful voice, and thoroughly pleasing manner.

"Hymn to Music" was accorded a splendid presentation by the society. Its many difficult phases were passed over with a confidence gained by thorough rehearsing. The necessity of catching the last train to the city prevented Music News writer from remaining for the balance of this admirable concert, which was programmed as follows:

- Piano—(a) Dance of the Guomes..... Liszt
(b) Polonaise, A flat major..... Chopin
Miss Marie MacMillan
(a) "Spring's Awakening"
(b) "Where the Linden Blooms"
Mr. Henning
(a) "On the Sea"
(b) "Vocal Combat"
Male Chorus
(a) "Creole Love Song"
(b) "It was a Lover and His Lass"
Mr. Eldredge
"When the Heart is Young"
The Handel Society

Miss Freeman has gained most satisfactory results in her work with this chorus. She directs authoritatively and the chorus responds with promptness. Confident attacks, intelligent phrasing and interpretation all contribute to general excellence of the society's work, and Austin is to be congratulated upon the maintainance of such a praise worthy organization, under such a competent director.

C. J. B.

JOHN LORING COOK

Mr. Cook is experiencing the busiest season in the sixteen years he has been in Steinway hall. His artist pupils are busy filling engagements all over the country. Irene Sage, leaves June 21, to fill a two weeks' engagement in Grand Rapids, Mich. Atlantis McClendon, singer of Mexican and Indian songs gave an interesting recital, June 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Day, 533 Briar Place. This young singer has abundance of style and temperament in her work and was at her best upon this appearance. Beginning her program with a short explanation of the Mexican folk songs, Miss McClendon sang four songs in manuscript, in the peasant dialect. The compositions contained many an appealing strain and are decidedly characteristic of old Mexico. Other numbers on the program included two pianologues, "The Fiddler of Dooney," and "Lil Black Sheep." Both are interesting and effective and Miss McClendon, who is Mrs. J. C. Marshall, is enthusiastic over the work Mr. Cook has done for her, especially in the new departure, the pianologues. An appreciative audience heard the singer who was ably seconded by Mrs. George Shaw on the piano. Other talented singers working with Mr. Cook are: Harriett Hubert of Montana, Walter Moore of Ohio, and Jane Scorr of Iowa, who has returned now to her home.

John Loring Cook was presented with a silver mounted baton by twenty-five members of his Lyric club, which has been meeting all winter in his studio. The presentation was in the manner of a complete surprise to Mr. Cook and the club took possession of the studio bringing an elegant spread. Next season the organization plans many part songs concerts.

— # # # —

Rankl—John Rankl will sing this Friday morning, at commencement exercises, School for Cripples, Park avenue and Ashland boulevard, accompanied by Miss Katherine Reiplinger.

— # # # —

Richardson—Music News is in receipt of a card from Miss Isabel Richardson, written from Colorado Springs, enroute to Los Angeles, where she sings this week before the N. F. M. C.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY COMMENCEMENT

A crowded auditorium and immense enthusiasm was the portion of the American Conservatory in its twenty-ninth commencement, held last Thursday evening.

The program was one of superlative worth, each student appearing proving beyond any question that natural gifts and acquired technic are sufficient to carry him to the greatest heights in his profession besides entitling him at the present moment to the name—Young Artist.

Mr. Adolph Weidig again showed his skillful authority with the baton and held the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, engaged for the occasion, to a good reading of the "Oberon" overture, as well as reliable accompaniments for all the solo numbers.

The program was not of excessive length and it moved along with commendable celerity as well as with a constant show of musical feeling and a glittering display of technic.

Miss Vierlyn Clough, a pupil of Henriot Levy, played the pianoforte "Concerto, C Minor," by Saint-Saens with a liquid purity of tone, clean cut musical thought and much neat distinction in the interpretation.

Miss Elsa Kressman, soprano, sang the "Robert tu che adore," from the Myerbeer opera, "Robert Il Diavolo," with great freedom of tone, much facility of coloratura effects and a general musicianship entirely worthy.

The Bruch violin "Concerto in G Minor" showed Miss Anna Nyberg, a pupil of Mr. Weidig, to pleasing advantage, her tone being firm and true and her technical equipment entirely consistent with the number assigned her.

Miss Aletta Tenold, a pupil of Kurt Wanieck, played the pianoforte "Concerto in D Minor," by MacDowell, with distinctly beautiful tone and a very fine regard for contrasts and color. She is fully able to differentiate between the moods of contrasting movements and has ample technical facility.

Miss Mary Hansen, a violin pupil of Herbert Butler, followed with the charming Mendelssohn "Concerto" and gave it an unusually good reading. Her tone in the slow movement was lovely, and in the last one it was sparkling.

Mr. Sol Heller, pupil of Charles La Berge, has a baritone voice of much quality and he has learned how to handle it with skill, and at the same time he was able to read the "Prologue" from "Pagliacci" with considerable authority and much finish.

The audience liked his work very much and gave him unusual commendation. The program ended with the Liszt piano "Concerto in E Flat," played with great verve by Miss Cora Anderson, an advanced pupil of Silvio Scionti. Miss Anderson is the prize winner of the post graduate class this year, and as such stands in the highest place of the program. She was entirely worthy of the honor and proved herself to be very talented and to have attained also a virtuoso technic as well as commendably sincere and scintillant musical interpretative gifts.

The address given by the Rev. Herbert W. Prince was full of good thought, and the program ended with an exhilarating display of honor-giving.

Scores and scores of teachers' certificates

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT

were awarded, while the graduates were as follows:

PIANO, COUNTERPOINT AND COMPOSITION

Viola Elizabeth Allen, Council Bluffs, Ia.
Babelle B. Anderson, Appleton City, Mo.
Lena Crescentia Auer, Bynum, Mont.
Margaret E. Badenoch, Chicago, Ill.
Clara D. Boehm, Chicago, Ill.
Lydia M. Bornhoeft, Chicago, Ill.
Catherine Cajori, Great Falls, Mont.
Helen Elizabeth Campbell, Oak Park, Ill.
Sylvia Chana, Chicago, Ill.
Honor Dolores Comerford, Chicago, Ill.
Carrie E. Dahlbom, Carpentersville, Ill.
Erna C. Ehrhardt, Chicago, Ill.
Ruth Marshall Freeman, Chicago, Ill.
Hazel W. Gabler, Chicago, Ill.
Sophie Hagen, Stanhope, Ia.
Thyra G. Hagstrom, Chicago, Ill.
Ada L. Honderick, Bison, Kans.
Marval Louisa Jimison, Cherokee, Ia.
Emma W. Kikkebusch, Maywood, Ill.
Helen Kirby, Mokenca, Ill.
Esther L. Kittilsby, Chicago, Ill.
Ida Florence Lapin, Chicago, Ill.
Mabel C. O. Lewis, Bavaria, Kans.
Mary G. Lussan, Chicago, Ill.
Sister Mary, Chicago, Ill.
Pearl Helyne Mayne, Tipton, Ind.
Mary Ethel McVey, Highmore, S. Dak.
Alice Nelson, Livingston, Mont.
Neva C. Norelius, Kiron, Ia.
Mamie O'Leary, Chicago, Ill.
Fleta Dell Pease, Chicago, Ill.
Leda Riley, Chicago, Ill.
Walter Buchanan Roberts, Centralia, Mo.
Ruth A. Scott, Kearney, Neb.
Harriet Shaffer, Muskegon, Mich.
Dorothy E. Smyser, Bartlesville, Okla.
Jessie Stanly St. Clair, San Benito, Tex.
Florence H. Swanson, Chicago, Ill.
Ruth I. Swanson, Chicago, Ill.
Nelle VanBroeklin, Livingston, Mont.
Oscar M. J. Wehrley, Wausau, Wis.
Gabriel Herbert Wellner, Chicago, Ill.
Ruth M. Wightman, St. Paul, Minn.
Lorene Ruth Kitch, Cheyenne Wells, Colo.

VIOLIN

Carrie V. Lewis, Grand Ridge, Ill.

SINGING

Hulda Blank, Great Park, Ill.

Della S. Bond, Chicago, Ill.
Mrs. Josephine Davies, Chicago, Ill.
Inez Dewey, Chicago, Ill.
Maud Louise Helmey, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.
Nora Rivers Jackson, Chicago, Ill.
Florence C. Jernberg, Chicago, Ill.
Robert List, Chicago, Ill.
Clara Bernice Smith, Lennox, S. Dak.
Allen E. Takken, Holland, Mich.
Harriet C. Vannatta, Chicago, Ill.
Carrie Edna Wackerbarth, Independence, Ia.

DRAMATIC EXPRESSION AND PUBLIC SPEAKING

Bonnie Laurine Beaumont, St. Paul, Minn.
Jane C. Clarken, Toledo, Ohio.
Esther C. Ohlson, Aurelia, Ia.

PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC

Amanda Caroline Bjertnes, Chicago, Ill.
Nannie M. Curren, Chicago, Ill.
Lucille Daegling, Whiting, Ind.
Laura Earnist, Chicago, Ill.
Rosa Fuenfsmann, Seattle, Wash.
Edda Mae Gibson, Aurora, Ill.
Abbie Lurena Harvey, Chicago, Ill.
Sara Hall Knisley, Greenfield, Ill.
Elizabeth Gillin McCartney, Sioux City, Ia.
Florence M. McDermott, Canton, S. Dak.
Lucille Morrison, Ft. Madison, Ia.
Lillian Louise Redeker, Elgin, Ill.
Marie Schaper, Ft. Madison, Ia.
Gretchen Richards Seyler, Marietta, Ohio.
Drusilla Lane Shaw, Escanaba, Mich.
Anita Naoma Stevens, Ogden, Ia.
Bernice Florence Swift, New London, Wis.
Annetta F. Wahlstrom, Chicago, Ill.
Alberta Wells, Marissa, Ill.
Edna Blanche Wilder, Chicago.
Muriel Willard, Chicago, Ill.

MUSICAL THEORY

Phyllis Fergus, Chicago, Ill.
Pearl Belle Komp, Chicago, Ill.

The post graduate list reads as follows:

PIANO

Cora S. Anderson, Appleton City, Mo.
Ellen Carlson, Chicago, Ill.
Linnie Chronister, McEwen, Tenn.
Margaret A. Dittmann, Chicago, Ill.
Gustav Dunkelberger, Newton, Kans.
Nora Funkenstein, Chicago, Ill.
Dorothy Vera Ginsberg, Chicago, Ill.

William Oscar Haeuser, Pontiac, Mich.
Ruth A. Hall, Chicago, Ill.
Mrs. Emma Grant-Holmes, Berwyn, Ill.
Carl F. L. Jessen, Clinton, Ia.
Viola L. Kerber, Chicago, Ill.
Katharine T. Kittilsby, Chicago, Ill.
Goldie Marguerite Grace McKenny, Chicago, Ill.
Vivien O'Brien, Chicago, Ill.
Delos Owen, Chicago, Ill.
Nannie Mae Strayhorn, Meridian, Miss.
Aletta L. Tenold, Flandreau, S. Dak.
Mary S. Thrash, Chicago, Ill.
Margaret Weick, Muskegon, Mich.

SINGING

Velma Margaret Steiner, Grant Park, Ill.

VIOLIN

Raymond T. Burkholder, Streator, Ill.
Florence M. Hermann, LaCrosse, Wis.
Anna E. Nyberg, Chicago, Ill.

MUSICAL THEORY

Katherine C. Baker, Chicago, Ill.
Clara J. Rubey, Chicago, Ill.

ORGAN

Elmer Friedrich Ende, New Bremen, Ohio.

C. E. W.

A TALENTED LITTLE PUPIL

The accompanying picture shows Elizabeth Harris, the young Oak Park girl, who was so successfully presented in recital recently by her teacher, Mr. Arthur Randolph Fraser, comment appearing in Music News last week.

ELIZABETH HARRIS

MR. DIEDERICH IN RECITAL

Mr. Walter A. Diederich, tenor, will sing the following songs in recital, at Wolcott, Indiana, on Tuesday, June 29.

Where'er You Walk—(Semele).....	Handel
Nymphs and Shepherds.....	Purcell
Caro Mio Ben.....	Giodini
A Roaming.....	Schubert
Hark! Hark! the Lark.....	Schubert
Where My Caravan has Rested.....	Lohr
Invictus.....	Huhn
Besides Thee.....	Parks
The Nightingale.....	Ward-Stephens
Aria—Thou Enchanted Land (L'Africaine).....	Meyerbeer
Somewhere a Voice Is Calling.....	Tate
Life and Death.....	Coleridge-Taylor
The Wind Speaks.....	Grant-Schafer
The Call of Spring.....	Daniels

###

Craven—Carl E. Craven left Chicago last week for an all summer Chautauqua engagement. A note located him at Yandallia, Ill., last Wednesday.

ST. JAMES M. E. CHURCH

To the rapidly increasing list of genuine concert organs in Chicago churches there was lately added a splendid instrument at St. James.

On Sunday night, when a sacred concert was given by the choir, this organ was heard to wonderful advantage, under the skillful and experienced manipulation of Miss Tina Mae Haines.

Virtuosic to the final degree is her technique and full of authority and finish are her readings.

The St. James organ is apparently perfect for the place it has to fill. There is enormous power when wanted and also the most wonderful of pianissimo effects.

The chimes and the echo are beyond criticism and the scores of vitally characteristic stops have been chosen with rare skill.

On Sunday night Miss Haines was entire mistress of the situation and used all the varied effects and resources with great skill and abiding artistry. Her solo numbers being "Pastorale," (Yon) "Evening Song," (Matthews) and "Moonlight," by Karg-Elert.

It was not alone in solo numbers that the prowess of Miss Haines and her new organ were shown, for in combination, they dominated the service superbly.

Even the hymns were shaded and climaxed, and the prelude to Mrs. Gale's solo number was positively orchestral in effect.

A splendid chorus was presented and showed fine drill as well as much innate ability in several selections.

It would be difficult indeed to imagine a more beautiful quartet than that made up by Naomi Nator, Permelia Gale, Artur Platz and G. Magnus Schutz.

An absolute perfection of blend and a wonderfully fine pianissimo were shown in Federlin's "Show Thy Loving Kindness," in which Mr. Schutz was fine in an incidental solo and in Miss Haines' "Bow down Thine Ear," the total musicianship in composition, accompaniment and quartet ensemble was notable.

This strong number is dedicated to Mrs. Gale and to her was assigned the long incidental solo, which she sang beautifully. Miss Nator also excelling in the excerpt falling to her lot.

A quintet, "There Shall Be no Night There," (Wood) was not well done, rehearsals evidently having been insufficient.

"To Him Who Left His Throne," from Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus," was sung with great power and authority. Miss Nator rising to a superb climax at the end.

In the Gounod "Sanctus" (Messa Solenne), Mr. Platz did the prelude solo admirably and the chorus was splendid throughout. Miss Nator again coming to the front also with a clearly ringing high tone.

Mrs. Gale (who belongs to the First Congregational Quartet in Oak Park) was peering in the aforementioned quartet she peering in the aforementioned quartet she sang also as a solo, Stevenson's "The Salutation of Dawn," and sang it with consummate artistry. A wonderful song it is, musical and logical, and—with the fine Haines accompaniment, Mrs. Gale made its every beauty apparent and proved herself, again one of the most pleasing church singers in Chicago.

Merriam Downe was the scheduled contralto for the day but at this service was heard only in the unfortunate quintet number referred to above.

C. E. W.

###

THEODORA STURKOW-RYDER PRESENTS PUPILS

On last Saturday afternoon Mme. Sturkow-Ryder presented the last of her splendid pupil's recitals at her home studio, 4715 Lake Park avenue, with Jessie DeVore and Wally Heymar, violinists, assisting.

These artists played the "Double Concerto," by Bach, with much distinction, this being followed by piano numbers from the same master admirably played by Ruth Hanak, Alexander Alison, III, Mildred Mathews, and Ernau Smith, this in turn being followed by technically brilliant and musically exact readings of numbers by Wagner, Hummel, Von Weber and Beethoven, by Darwin Curtis, Ruth Hanak, Mildred Mathews and Ernau Smith. The program ending with a Moszkowski "Suite" played by Mmes. Heymar, De Vore and Sturkow-Ryder.

###

ESTHER MAY PLUMB AT SAN DIEGO

Under the Captions—Chicago Vocalist Scores Triumph at the Fair, Esther Plumb Delights Exposition Throngs on Short Notice and Ovation Given Her, the San-Diego Union comments as follows:

"With James MacDermid's effective setting of the Ninety-first Psalm as her principal offering, Miss Esther Plumb, contralto of Chicago, yesterday made her bow to a large audience gathered at the Spreckels music pavilion at the Exposition. The soloist's appearance was arranged on extremely short notice by Miss Gertrude Gilbert immediately on learning that Miss Plumb is passing a short vacation in San Diego preliminary to taking up a series of engagements in the Northwest.

"Miss Plumb chose a simple aria and sang it simply, receiving something close to an ovation. A notably rich voice, particularly sweet in mezza voice, brought out the full beauties of her selection, more vividly, perhaps, than the somewhat more pretentious, "The Lord is My Light" of Allitsen. She was heartily encored and responded with a graceful lullaby, reminiscent of Eugene Field.

(Advertisement.)

Howard E. PRESTON
5434 Woodlawn Av BARITONE Telephone Midway 4175

A N N A HICKISCH Soprano
RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE
Personal Address, LACROSSE, WIS.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Agnes Hansel-Harter
Concerts Oratorios Recitals

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

BURTON TENOR
H. R. K. Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago
Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff
COLORATURA SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawdale 1335

ELLA O'NEAL Corrigan Soprano
Engaged for Chicago Grand Opera Co.
6114 Stony Island Avenue Phone Blackstone 1677

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Augusta Meeker
CONTRALTO
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Wellington 1866

Margaret OWENS Concert Pupils Oratorio
2112 Washington Boul. Phone Seeley 1147

Edgar Nelson
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

DEWITT DURGIN TENSOR LASH
420 Fine Arts Bldg.

WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

The commencement concerts of the Walter Spry School of Music have always had such an intimate and personal charm, that it seems almost a pity that the Assembly hall has become too small for them—but, such indeed is the case, and on last Friday evening, hundreds were turned away unable to gain admission.

The announcement was made during the evening that there is to be a change in the name of the school, and a greatly enlarged faculty for next year—this will probably mean a much larger auditorium for the Commencement next year, and as a matter of good luck, Music News hopes that it does.

The program was a particularly fine one and contained examples of many schools and eras of music. Mozart and Hummel represented the Classical time, Hiller, perhaps, expressed the Romantic and there was a lot of modern compositions of various countries, including even one American—Converse, whose "Night and Day" for two pianos proved to be good music and thoroughly fine fare even if not vastly exhilarating.

WALTER SPRY

Every member of the Post Graduate, Graduate and Teachers' classes was represented on the program and thereby the Spry school proved the excellence of its average teaching as well as that applied to the Young Genius, who figures so often in many commencements and proved also that membership in this school means something very definite and very well worth while.

There was a string orchestra in attendance, under the capable baton of Hugo Kortschak and several of the concerts had the advantage of this accompaniment as well as the skillful and sympathetic support of the second piano, as manipulated by Mr. Spry.

This orchestra also was heard to splendid advantage in a Mozart overture.

Miss Miller, a very talented pupil of Mr. Kortschak, reflected great credit on his teaching as well as proving also that she is a faithful and careful worker.

The group of songs by Miss Nina Katharine Hager showed her voice to have been excellently trained by her teacher, Mr. Sandor Radanovits, and her numbers were presented with much style and authority, although the "Song of the Shirt," by Homer, should never be used in a group with anything else, being so distinct in mood that it needs to be entirely alone. Even at that it is neither a pleasing nor a grateful song and it is more than difficult to score success with it.

The best of the group was the Lester "Compensation," which was indeed a gem, and having the advantage of Mr. Lester at the piano, it again proved his great abilities.

It would not be fair to particularize in the piano work, for each pupil did so well and there was such unanimity in sincerity of purpose and expressiveness of interpretation that all deserve praise and commendation alike.

The program in full follows:

- Overture—Idomeneus Mozart
- The School Orchestra (Strings)
Mr. Kortschak, Conductor
- Concerto—Op. 69, Andante Espressio.....Hiller
Mrs. Ogle
- Concerto in A major—Allegro (Reinecke Cadenza)
..... Mozart
- Miss Whitfield
- Accompanied by String Orchestra
- Duo—Morning C major.....Chaminade
Miss Richart
- Russian Airs—Op. 6.....Wieniawski
Miss Miller
- Concerto in A minor—Allegro.....Hummel
Miss Freck
- Accompanied by String Orchestra
- Loreley, E flat major Op. 2.....Seeling
- Ballade, A flat major, Op. 47.....Chopin
Miss Donahoe
- Duo—Night and Day.....Converse
Misses Butler and Eberhardt
- The Star.....Rogers
- Compensation Lester
- Song of the Shirt.....Homer
Miss Mina Katherine Hager
- Concerto in A minor—Finale.....Grieg
Miss Cook
- Address and Presentation of Diplomas and Certificates by the Director
- Concerto in B flat minor—Finale.....Tchaikowsky
Miss Pound
- Baldwin Pianos Used
- Second Piano Parts, Mr. Spry
- Accompaniments, Mr. Whitaker and Mr. Lester

Miss Ida May Cook was the only Post graduate of the year, while Miss Dorothy Lueile Butler, Miss Mary Magdalene Donahoe, Miss Marie Westerlin Eberhardt and Mrs. George Braddock Ogle were given Diplomas and Miss Margaret Loraine Freck, Miss Ruth Miller, Miss Dorothy Leslie Pound, Miss Genevieve Sharpe Rieart and Miss Kathryn Thomas Whitfield were awarded teachers' certificates.

C. E. W.

People & Events

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Music News shows today, on its cover page, a picture of Hazel Dell Neff, an attractive young soprano, who is rapidly making a name for herself.

The following appreciation of Miss Neff was written by one who is in position to know her status thoroughly:

Hazel Dell Neff, as a singer of songs, is rapidly becoming a leader in her art. She has studied extensively with H. W. Owens, and coached with Herman Devries.

Miss Neff's repertoire contains the soprano roles of many of the oratorios, arias from the leading operas, and songs from the classic literature and the more modern writers of the French, Russian, German and English schools. She has not neglected the American and includes many songs from our native composers.

With perfection in singing as an aim, Miss Neff has not neglected the kindred subjects, she being an excellent pianist and thorough musician.

A NEW IDEA IN CONCERT PROGRAMS

Mr. Bispham is original and unconventional in everything he undertakes and his offering before the public for the forthcoming season is certainly novel. He writes us as follows:

Years ago when I was studying in Florence I saw at the house of a friend a photograph of the celebrated Viennese actor, Jauner, in the character of Beethoven, in a one-act play called "Adelaide," a romantic episode in the life of the great composer, and at once realized—in a state of mind commonly called "hunch"—that I could look like Beethoven and that I would play in that drama before I died. I was not yet upon the stage; but several years later when I was singing in the Wagnerian operas at Covent Garden in London I set about finding the piece. I had told a German friend about it, and by a lucky chance he discovered the little faded pamphlet in a second-hand bookstall: for a penny he bought it and gave it to me. To brush up my German for the opera I translated and adapted "Adelaide," but still there never was opportunity to act in it. That did not come until I was singing in New York at the Metropolitan Opera—when I was engaged to give something out of the ordinary for a special occasion. The first performance was at the opening of the new ballroom at the Waldorf-Astoria, when Anton Seidl conducted the orchestra and Schumann-Heink sang before the rise of the curtain. Julie Opp supported me as the beautiful Adelaide, and among others in the cast was Miss Yvonne de Treville and the celebrated actresses, Mrs. Whiffen and Mrs. Walcott.

After the play the apparently unemotional Seidl paid me the greatest compliment by coming out on the stage, wiping his eyes which were filled with tears, and with a warm grasp of the hand, saying: "You ze first man vitch haff effer made me to weep." Since that time I have frequently performed this affecting and effective little piece in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington and also in London, where one season I took a theater for its production.

I realize that our American public wants novelty now, and I propose during the coming season to give my play with a cast so chosen that the second part of the program will be a miscellaneous concert which will be given by the ladies and gentlemen who support me in the drama. In the play Beethoven's dingy, untidy studio is shown. In the second part, however, a modern drawing room will be the setting for the concert, which I shall call "The Rehearsal." A hostess is awaiting the arrival of the artists, whom she has engaged for her musicale shortly to take place, and they have an hour or so of informal music in preparation for the occasion. This is a good idea in the opinion of many, and I have patented it.

FLORENCE MACBETH

After her recent La Crosse recital, Isidor Tippmann wrote in the Tribune as follows of her work:

All the elements which woman has in her nature—love, pathos, passion, poetry and religion—combine to perfect her song and give fitting expression to the ideas of the great musical creators. That, which generally goes under the name of artistic personality, is very complex in its organization and for the average person difficult to comprehend and appreciate. La Crosse musicians and music lovers have had the pleasure to make the acquaintance of a vocal artist, who exhibited all the above enumerated elements of an artistic womanly nature in a high degree of perfection. Miss Florence Macbeth, in her recital at the theater last evening, charmed her audience in the delivery of the most exacting program, which was a bouquet of vocal beauties, plucked in the musical gardens of the most musical countries of the world.

Miss Macbeth's voice is a high soprano of great compass and absolute purity. The ease with which she sings, her artistic repose, the classic style and a faultless intonation are only some of the most prominent attributes of this charming singer. Her voice may be likened to a fine Amati violin in its captivating and penetrating purity and bewitching sweetness. Miss Macbeth's singing also resembles the playing of a violinist with brains as her tones were free of the detestable wabbling called tremolo and her phrasing was that of a true musician.

The program contained some of the most celebrated show pieces of coloratura singing, such as the "Shadow Song," by Meyerbeer; "Bell Song," by Delibes; "Mignon Polonaise," by Thomas, and even the "Staccato Polka," by Mulder, the old war horse of concert singers of many years past, made a fine number by the charming way in which it was sung.

The three groups of German, French and English songs were happily chosen and showed the versatility of style which Miss Macbeth commands. For encores the German song, "Sah ein Knab ein Roeslein stehn," the "Last Rose of Summer" and "Annie Laurie" were performed with becoming artistic chastity of style and genuine warmth. (Advertisement.)

MRS. NERING PRESENTS PUPILS IN RECITAL

Mrs. Agnes Nering, teacher of singing, presented her pupils in an elaborate and varied program at St. Stanislaus Auditorium on last Sunday afternoon, with much success. Having the assistance of Angles Nering, soprano; Naomi Scanlan, contralto; Velma C. McKinley, dancing; Cecilia Maliek, pianist and the Agnes Nering Singing club.

A great number of pupils appeared in "A Musical Picnic," which constituted the first half of the program, part two being taken up by the opera "Ewunia," by Ardziejewski and the last part being devoted to "Ho-Ho of the Golden Belt," a Japanese Romance by Herbert Wareing.

MONICA GRAHAM STULTS WALTER ALLEN
Columbia School of Music SOPRANO BASS
303 KIMBALL HALL

CEDRIC W. LEMONT
PIANO AND COMPOSITION
712 FINE ARTS BLDG. TEL. WABASH 6485

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL
SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Rubee Wilson DeLamar
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

Lucy Hartman
CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Leo Zelenka - Lerando
CONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWS

Mayme E. Bolger
ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY
CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

GLADYS HAWKINS
PIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

ANNA AGNES HERBERT M. BAILEY
Soprano Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. Howland
PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN
CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

CORLEW MABEL
ORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674

MELBA MAE FRENCH
SOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322

MARIE YAHR CONCERTS
CONTRALTO ORATORIO OPERA
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

Edith Ayers McCullough
Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

Isabel Richardson
MUSICALES SOPRANO PUPILS
4536 Sheridan Road Tel. Edgewater 2070

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.
Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

LAKE BROWNWOOD

Lake Brownwood, the new musicians summer resort, looms big for the current season, and reservations are already plentiful.

We herewith reprint a part of the attractive folder sent out by this attractive place and also show a few views.

Lake Brownwood, in the heart of Michigan's fruit Belt, two miles from the beautiful City of Maples (Paw Paw), appeals instantly to discriminating outing seekers because of its wealth of natural advantages.

On 23 acres bordering the shore of charming Pugsley's Lake is the storehouse of delight for the tired city worker who seeks the maximum of rest, recreation and relaxation, with the minimum of expense and effort.

Nothing seems lacking at Lake Brownwood for the comfort of man. The ruthless ax of woodsmen of two score years ago spared a grove of majestic pines and their balsamic effect gives the spot an enviable possession. Beneath the shade of symmetrical maples—the glory of Michigan—under the branches of gnarled oaks and in sylvan retreats made by black walnut, whitewood and hickory trees, the stranger from the busy city finds profitable and pleasing communion with nature.

His reveries may be broken by the merry splashing of bathers, for in all Michigan there is no bathing beach so admirable as that at Lakewood. If the eye wearies of the vista of the picturesque lake dotted with pleasure craft, it is immediately brightened as the shouts of the returning fishermen announce additional captures of gamy and firm bass, appetizing pickerel or the sweet and toothsome blue gill and perch.

The philosophy of the followers of Izaak Walton at Lake Brownwood is: "Spare the rod and reel and you miss the treat of your life."

Situated about 300 feet from the shore of the attractive Lake Brownwood Hotel affords an always interesting view of a crystal sheet of water. Cottages skirting the shore and distributed through the timber have their satisfied occupants all the outing season. The subdued shriek of the locomotive whistle in Paw Paw or the faint hint of municipal activity that penetrates this strangely pleasing resort for those on vacation, serves no summons on the guests to hasten to hot, dusty and oppressive urban offices.

The great charm of it all is: Two miles away is Paw Paw, a distinct type of the enterprising cities of the fruit belt, and only 80 miles away, as the crow flies, is Chicago, the maelstrom of all that is strenuous and health-wrecking.

In Lake Brownwood's captivating groves, on its pure sandy beach and in the shady nooks of its verandas, is all that a wholesome rural environment may provide for the health and mental and physical refreshment of the city toiler.

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Eight artist-pupils of Marcian Thalberg collaborated in a superbly given pianoforte recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Monday evening, June 14. The attentive audience and the few vacant seats must have been gratifying for teacher, soloists and management. The successful young pianists taking part were: Helen Atchison, Margaret Poindexter, Frieda Besuner, Elsie Ricks, Grace Miriam Witt, Katherine Russell, Beulah Davis and Elizabeth Barbour.

§ § §

Miss Ina Dillow, pianist, pupil of Mr. Theodor Bohlmann, will be heard in a pianoforte recital at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Saturday evening, June 26.

§ § §

The following program was excellently carried out by talented pupils from the classes of Miss Mozelle Bennett and Miss Carol Ferrenot on Friday afternoon, June 18, at the Cincinnati Conservatory:

Reverie	Fauconier
Celia Kaufman
Lose Blatter	Koelling
Jean Loeb
Badinage	Herrmann
Hilda Heinichen
Good News	Tirindelli
Margaret Scheid
Trombone solo, 'Cello solo, Guitar serenade	Gaynor
Dorothy Hayward
Melody in F	Rubinstein
Olga Marohn
Joy with Sorrow	Tirindelli
Eleanor Wachs
Le Secret	Goutier
Janet Enger
Duet—Symphony Concertante	Dancela
Nora Berr and Eleanor Wachs
Sonata No. 3	Clementi
Two Etudes	Gurlitt
Ida Hoffman
Concerto No. 7—Andante	DeBeriot
Edward Spangenberg
Deutsches Tanze	Beethoven
Bess Marvel Coffin
Scena Dramatica	Tirindelli
Nora Berr

§ § §

EDWARD WALKER

Edward Walker did great singing this past season with the following splendid press criticism from Peru, Neb., of his singing at its May music festival, June 2, 1915:

The big audience had been looking forward for weeks to hearing Evan Williams. It was doubly a triumph, therefore, for Mr. Edward Walker, who hurried out from Chicago upon an emergency call to take his place, to win the hearts of every one before many minutes of the afternoon recital were gone.

Mr. Walker's program, made up of representative songs from Italian, German, English and American composers, was an especially charming one, most delightfully interpreted by an uncommonly lovely tenor voice, capable of infinite variation, from dainty lightness and simple pathos to extreme dramatic intensity.

Before the afternoon was over we knew what to expect from Mr. Walker's rendition of the wonderful "Swan Song" (from "Swan and Skylark," by Goring-Thomas) in the evening's cantata; and we were not disappointed.—The Peru Pointer.—(Advertisement.)

CLARA EDMUNDS-HEMINGWAY
Contralto-Whistler-Reader-Pianist,
 10 ORIGINAL Composition Recitals. ORATORIO, Concert, Recital,
 CHURCH. 568 Madison, Gary, Ind. Phone 1224

WILLIAM BROOKE REEVE

Organist and Master of the Choir St. Luke's,
 Evanston. Organ, Voice, Choir Training

IDA GARDNER

Miss Ida Gardner, a contralto singer of real merit—a newcomer in the world of musical artists—has just closed her first season with a most successful record.

Miss Gardner's ability as an oratorical artist was demonstrated in her rendition of the contralto parts of "The Messiah" with the Columbia University Festival Chorus, the Brooklyn Oratorio Society, and the Montclair Choral Society; also in "Samson" with the Boston Choral Society. At the musical festival in Lindsborg, Kas., in March, Miss Gardner's work during the week consisted of three performances of "The Messiah," a performance of "Faust," and a recital, all of which brought forth numerous expressions of praise and admiration from both critics and audiences. Other artists taking part in the festival were Mme. Gadski and Mme. Claussen.

IDA GARDNER, Contralto

Miss Gardner also gave recitals at Schenectady, Pittsfield, Amsterdam, Olean Hutchinson, Kas., Newark, and other cities. By the quality and range of her voice, her superior style and musicianship, she has obtained written endorsements from such well-known directors as A. D. Woodruff, Dr. A. S. Vogt, Seth Clark, Carl Kinsey, and others.

The following criticisms also bear evidence of her successes:

Miss Gardner showed musical taste and a rich contralto voice.—Boston Globe.

Miss Gardner's rich and mellow voice found adequate expression in her three arias, each most beautifully sung.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Miss Gardner is a contralto of great promise, and sang her part delightfully.—Newark News.

Miss Gardner rendered a superb program. Her voice is genuine contralto of especially pleasing quality. Each song was rendered with utmost artistic finish and intelligent interpretation.—Lindsborg News.

Miss Gardner, in this varied classic program, showed herself to be an exceptional artist in that she possesses an enormous range, wonderful dramatic ability, and absolute control and command of her heavy, contralto voice.—Schenectady Gazette.

Miss Gardner's perfect mastery of her voice in the dramatic as well as the lyric passages, her charming stage manner, her art of interpretation and expression, puts her on an equal footing with the leading concert artists of the day.—Amsterdam Sentinel.—(Advertisement.)

— — — — —

CHICAGO COLLEGE OF MUSIC COMMENCEMENT CONCERT

Sunday evening, June 27, at Central Music Hall, with full orchestral accompaniment by members of the Ballman Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Martin Ballman:

Piano-Concerto, G minor, op. 25 (First Movement) Mendelssohn

*Miss Angelia Weinberg
(First appearance)

Piano-Concert Rondo, D major.....Mozart

*Miss Libbie Brasnick
(Age 11 years) (First appearance)

Piano—(a) Rondo all' Ongharese (from D major concerto) Haydn

*Master Morris Kowsky
(Age 10 years) (First appearance)

Piano—(b) Rondo all' Ongharese (from D major Concerto) Haydn

*Miss Esther Swiren
(First appearance)

Vocal—"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice".....Saint-Saens

*Miss Ethel Heide

Piano—(a) Rondo (from C minor Concerto, Op. 37) Beethoven

*Miss Ruth Messe
(Age 12 years)

Piano—(b) Concerto, C minor, Op. 37.....Beethoven
(First Movement and Cadenza by Reinecke)

*Miss Gertrude Weinstock
(Age 10½ years)

Vocal—"Oh, Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star" Wagner

Dr. A. A. Shere
Esther Harris at the Piano

Piano—(a) Concertstuck, F minor, Op. 79 (First Movement) Von Weber

*Miss Etta Blonstein

Miss Blonstein received several medals in the different classes 1907-14

Piano—(b) Concertstuck, F minor, Op. 79 (Last Movement) Von Weber

*Miss Mary Sternberg

Violin-Concerto, D minor.....Wieniawski

Romance and Finale

Miss Gertrude Consuelo Bates

Artist Pupil of Max I. Fischel

Piano-Concerto, C major, Op. 11 (First Movement) Von Weber

*Miss Josephine Harrison

Piano-Polonaise Brillante, Op. 72.....Weber-Liszt

*Miss Sarah Rifas

Piano—Concertstuck, C sharp minor.....Chaminade

*Miss Hilda Lipsky

Conferring Degrees and Diplomas. Awarding Medals and Merit Prizes

Mr. Leopold Salteil

*Pupils of Esther Harris

— — — — —

GRACE BRUNE MARCUSSON

Some recent press comment:

Never has a Reno audience had the opportunity of listening to a more talented artist than Mme. Brune Marcusson, who was heard here in concert on May 21. She carried her audience with her in every song, as was evidenced by the numerous encores. With an unusual soprano voice and a well chosen program, Mme. Marcusson had occasion to reveal her exceptional qualities of versatility and dramatic expression, giving the aria from Puccini's popular aria, "Madame Butterfly," with a brilliancy which would do credit to an artist of the highest stamp. A group of old English songs and "The Asra" of Rubinstein's were also included in her program and sung with unerring effects. The singer has also in her favor an extremely magnetic personality. This, combined with a voice of perfect clearness, pure tones in the higher range, an exquisite refinement of phrasing, made her singing as a whole, a real delight to her hearers. The people of Nevada need more singers of this individual type and would gladly welcome Mme. Marcusson in a return concert at some future time.—Reno Evening Gazette.—(Advertisement.)

— — — — —

FERENCZ HEGEDUS

Further press comment:

Last night was the first time we have heard Ferencz Hegedus, a violinist of great accomplishments, and splendid bow hand, who knows the art of singing on his instrument without becoming sentimental.

In the rarely heard Tartini "Concerto" he infused new life into the passage work. In overcoming the rhythmic difficulties with such ease and elegance one was made to forget the highly developed technique it requires to surmount the complexities of the old masters' compositions such as this concerto.

The other numbers, the "Serenade," from Tchaikowsky, a sad Cantilena, mostly on the G string, warmly and impressively rendered, and the grateful "Perpetuum Mobile," from Novacek, both won hearty rounds of applause, and resulted in many encores.—Mainzer Tageblatt:

A most noteworthy artist was heard last Saturday whose artistry is showing in his appearance as well as in his playing.

Every sign of superficiality is ousted from his playing, for a classic simplicity and control spreads over it all. It is evident that Hegedus is a born violin genius. Not a trace of apishness or seeking for effects can be found in his playing. What he brings us is a natural gift combined with authoritative craftsmanship.—Wiesbadener General Anzeiger. (Advertisement.)

— — — — —

M. J. BRINES

M. J. Brines sang the Creation in Wooster, Ohio, on June, 15, at the annual commencement concert of the Wooster College Oratorio Society. This is the second time within two years that Mr. Brines has sung in Wooster at the annual concert and incidentally he has sung the Creation six times this season.

Mr. Brines will spend the summer in the west where he will be heard in concert and returns early in September to begin an exceptional season under the concert direction of Maurice Fulcher. Next year Mr. Brines will devote some time to teaching and indications are that he will have a splendid class.

— — — — —

Owens—Mr. Harlan Haines, tenor, a pupil of H. W. Owens, sang Coleridge-Taylor's "Onaway, Awake," at a concert at the Diversey Boulevard Methodist Episcopal Church, last week, making a pronounced success and responding to an emphatic demand for encore.

— — — — —

Hickish—Miss Anna Hickish, soprano, was the soloist with the Wesleyan Male Chorus of La Crosse, Wis., which gave a concert at the First German M. E. Church in that city last week. Her success was a very pronounced one.

— — — — —

Bengel—Helen Bright Bengel is the substitute contralto at the First Presbyterian Church in Oak Park, June 20, 27 and July 4.

F
E
R
E
N
C
Z

HEGEDUS

The Renowned Hungarian Violinist

In America 1915-16

Secretary, Stella Ramsey

2081 Broadway

New York

THE THURSTON TEACHERS' AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

ROBERT R. LIPPITT

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif.
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
TBE BIRMINGHAM SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV.

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Avenue Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS SOPRANO PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg. Tel. Birchwood 984

Hans HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST KIMBALL HALL

Katharine D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe
SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO VOICE BUILDING
ORATORIO and SONG RECITAL
625 Fine Arts Building. Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgemoor Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

Marie Edwards

PIANIST. Ill. College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd.
Phone Kedzie 228. 612 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 7220

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Some recent press comment:

Miss Hazel Dell Neff charmed her auditors with her sweet voice and pleasing manner. With perfect ease she soared to the higher notes with a voice clear and sweet. She easily won the audience and her popularity was proved by the numerous encores she received.—Austin, Minn.

Miss Hazel Dell Neff marked herself as a soprano of unusual talent and ability. Her vocalization and tone production were excellent and her pianissimo work was especially noticeable in its beauty. Her ability in coloratura was especially demonstrated in the magnificent polonaise, "I Am Titania," from "Mignon," which she rendered in a finished manner. This was received enthusiastically by the audience.—The News-Tribune, Muscatine, Iowa.

Miss Neff possesses a coloratura lyric soprano voice of pleasing quality, which was displayed to advantage.—The Republican, Rockford, Illinois.

Probably the greatest interest centers about the work of Miss Neff, whose beautiful voice, clear, full, well trained, of wide range and wonderful flexibility, delighted her audience in each of her numbers. Added to this is a most pleasing personality and winsome smile which won the hearts of her audience when she first appeared.—Telegraph-Press, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Miss Hazel Dell Neff took the audience slightly unawares. The wonderful range of her voice unlocked the door of hidden harmonies that were exhilarating in the extreme. Her fine bearing and natural grace add greatly to the Russian costumes of nobility and peasantry which she wore.—St. Charles, (Mo.) Daily Banner-News.

Miss Hazel Dell Neff, soprano, won instant favor. Her voice is lovely, a high lyric soprano with a rich and sweet quality that is very appealing. She sings with a finish and ease that is unusual, and there is a spiritual quality in her work, without which no music is complete.—Neenah, (Wis.) Daily News.

Miss Neff sang sweetly, with the ease and perfection of tone that bespeaks fine musical talent, splendid culture and a high order of interpretative ability.—Greensboro, N. C.

Miss Neff sang right out from her soul and into the hearts of her auditors. She never sang better.—Plymouth (Ind.) Daily Democrat.

Personal charm as well as a rich soprano voice which she used to the best advantage made Miss Hazel Dell Neff's vocal numbers thoroughly delightful.—Waterloo (Ia.) Evening Courier and Reporter.

—(Advertisement.)

ALICE VERLET

Some recent press comment on this favorite coloratura singer is here reproduced:

Mademoiselle Verlet is a coloratura singer who takes rank with the best exponents of this style.—Columbus Citizen, December 5, 1914.

A voice that is well formed and elastic; a temperament that is refreshingly ingenious and piquant, and a singing style that evidences her long and varied operatic experiences—these are her gifts.—Columbus Dispatch, December 5, 1914.

Mademoiselle Verlet is the possessor of a high clear voice under admirable control and she made a tremendous impression.—Hartford Courant, December 10, 1914.

Mademoiselle Verlet is mistress of a very charming manner. Her French is delightful, her English piquant and fascinating. She possesses a lyric voice of quality clear crystalline.—Hartford Times, December 10, 1914.

She has an exquisite voice of wide range, which she displayed to a striking advantage Thursday night.—St. Paul News, January 15, 1915.

Alice Verlet, a delightful and gifted coloratura soprano, gave her first New York recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. She disclosed a beautiful coloratura voice, over which she had excellent control. Her compass was broad, her taste and expression praiseworthy, her diction excellent.—New York American, March 5, 1915.

Her singing was much liked by an audience that had evidently come prepared to enjoy all that should be offered and there was much applause that resulted in repetitions and encores.—New York Sun, March 5, 1915.—(Advertisement.)

Clarke—Edward Clarke, baritone; Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist and Earl Victor Prah, pianist, will fill chautauqua dates this week in Iowa. Edward Clarke sang the baritone role in "Creation" last Tuesday evening at Wooster University, Wooster, Ohio.

ETHEL LEGINSKA AT SARATOGA

The following is from the Saratoga (N. Y.) Sun:

Leginska, the English pianist, gave a recital at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., on the night of April 30. She also appeared on a program given at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, Sunday night, May 2. The appended notice tells the story of her success.

The wonderful Miss Ethel Leginska received a cordial ovation last evening in the First Baptist Church, Saratoga Springs, when she returned to the city to give her second recital. Saratogians had remembered her first recital of two years ago and as a consequence the auditorium of the church was well filled by music lovers and by admirers of Miss Leginska.

For nearly two hours she held the thoughts, the interest and admiration of the audience and when she had played her last number each was sorry that it was not the first, so wonderfully did Miss Leginska hold the attention of the audience. Dressed in an appealingly boyish fashion, she does not appear to be one who could draw from the piano the expression, the power, the sweetness and loveliness that she actually does. Miss Leginska is acknowledged one of the real masters of the piano in this country. She has played before the largest audiences which a master pianist has been capable of drawing not only in all the chief cities of this country, but in those of Europe. Musical critics have accorded her the honor of being the most wonderful pianist now before the public and the audience who heard her last evening and was swayed by the spell of her miraculous touch saw plainly why she has been such a drawing card. (Advertisement.)

SOME MUSICAL ATTRACTIONS AT THE SAN FRANCISCO EXPOSITION

Philippine Constabulary Band of 80 artists, Captain W. H. Loving, conductor, every day.

Sousa and his band, 65 artists, May 22 and July 24.

Boston Symphony Orchestra, 100 players, led by Karl Muck, May 15 to 26.

Exposition Orchestra of 80 artists, led by Bose and Bendix, every day.

Official Band, Charles H. Cassasa, conductor, every day.

Thaviu's Band of 50 artists, September 23 to December 4.

Conway's Band of 50 artists, May 18 to July 12.

Boston Band of 65 artists, Emil Mollenhauer, conductor, July 17 to September 17.

Ogden Tabernacle Choir, 300 voices, July 21 to 26.

United Swedish Singers, June 18.

Loie Fuller and orchestra, June 1.

Edwin H. Lemare in 100 pipe organ recitals, June to September.

Forty noted organists in concerts.

Eisteddfod $10,000 prize choral competition, July 27 to 30.

SOME LETTERS TO A. RAY CARPENTER

Mr. Frederic W. Root says of his work:

Mr. A. Ray Carpenter is a scholarly singer with a fine voice, refined style and a large knowledge of the art of vocalization.

Mr. Jean de Reszke, with whom Mr. Carpenter studied in Paris, says:

You have a fine voice and musicianship, excellent tone production, style and French diction. You evidently have done a great deal of teaching as well as singing.

Mr. Claude Debussy of Paris, with whom Mr. Carpenter coached while in Paris, says:

You not only have a beautiful voice with which to interpret my songs, but also the musicianship. Your French is excellent. And on his leaving said: You may now sing Debussy with authority, and you have my best wishes for the success you merit.

NELDA HEWITT STEVENS

One of the most unique and beautiful circles ever seen in Music News office is that of Nelda Hewitt Stevens, who will specialize during the coming season again in costume recitals as well as in concert, oratorio and private recitals.

NELDA HEWITT STEVENS

Two of her programs read as follows, the accompanying illustration being taken in the costume in which she sings the Old English program.

OLD ENGLISH

Come Beloved.....	Handel
A Spring Morning.....	Wilson
I've Been Roaming.....	Horn
Cherry Ripe.....	Horn
Have You Seen but a Whyte Lily Grow.....	Anon
No, John, No.....	Anon
Un bel di from "Madame Butterfly".....	Puccini

MODERN

The Weaver.....	Thurflow Lieurance
Aedh Wishes for the Cloths of Heaven.....	Clyde Van Nuys Fogel
Love Is the Wind.....	Alex MacFadyen
The Crying of Water.....	Campbell-Tipton
Sing to me, Sing.....	Homer

AN APPRECIATION OF PERMELIA NEWBY GALE

The following is from Arcato (Cal.) Union:

It was indeed a delightful evening enjoyed by music lovers Monday, when Mrs. Permelia Gale, of Chicago, gave her song recital.

The program was a splendid one, the numbers rendered being sufficiently contrasted to display many details of expression.

Mrs. Gale has a beautiful contralto voice of wide range, full of color and added to this, the soul of an artist. Her talent is versatile, and the unassuming ease with which she sings will always make her appearance welcome.

In the German lieder, her phrasing and clever enunciations were admirable. The dainty "Shadow Song" was charmingly given.

Two songs of the desert, cast in so exquisite a mold that they have almost the quality of pastels, were particularly attractive. The singer in each displayed rare insight, finesse and true appreciation of the text.

To sing Handel means that the interpreter must have rich qualities of temperament and style, combined with deep tonal brilliancy. Mrs. Gale's rendition of this selection was extremely effective. Her singing of an aria from "Samson and Delila," by request, was illumined by intensity of feeling, and mellowed by ripe scholarship.

A gem of the evening, by MacDermid, was notable for strength of tone and fine poetic sensibility. It expressed every nuance of feeling.

Mrs. Gale used her voice with unusual skill in the group of Indian songs by Lieurance. Her encores were well chosen. (Advertisement.)

PERMELIA NEWBY GALE IN ALBION

Mrs. Gale sang in "Samson and Delila" with the Philharmonic Choral Society of Albion, Mich., last week, under direction of H. J. Cozine. The Albion Evening Recorder spoke of her work as follows:

During the years the Philharmonic Society has been in existence, many different soloists have appeared in conjunction with the society's appearances. It is safe to say, however, that on but few occasions has there been such general satisfaction from the viewpoint of the auditors, displayed toward the solo singers during any particular rendition as in Monday night's. All three of the artists were enthusiastically received and were very deserving of the applause given them.

It was Albion's first opportunity of hearing Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale of Chicago, who sang the role of Delilah, and it is to be hoped it will not be the last. Her voice was beautiful at all times. Possessed of plenty of strength and volume it was used with the most discriminating fashion in the singer's shading and phrasing and in her enunciation. Mrs. Gale's voice is a mezzo contralto, with a remarkable register which was very necessary to the part she sang.—(Advertisement.)

RENARD TO MANAGE SPOONER

Philip Spooner, the young American tenor, will be under the management of Fred O. Renard next season. Mr. Renard is now traveling in the west and no doubt will be able to book Mr. Spooner a number of important engagements, as this artist is well known in that territory. Negotiations between Mr. Renard and Mr. Spooner have been under way for some time but were not concluded until the day the former left New York. Having passed through several successful seasons without the assistance of a manager, Mr. Spooner deemed it advisable to place his interests in the hands of a personal representative for the coming season, as the amount of work entailed by supervising his own campaign was assuming such proportions that he recognized the necessity of relieving himself of both the responsibility and the burden thereof.

SEASON 1915-16

ALBERT

1439 Aeolian Hall

Andre Benoist, Accompanist

Steinway Piano

SPALDING

Herbert J. Wrightson

PIANO AND HARMONY

CHICAGO

20 East Jackson Boulevard, Phone Wabash, 6293

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone the METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

Studios 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

Residence 5433 Harper Av.

Tel. Midway 8963

The COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

9th Floor Auditorium Bldg., Chicago

Summer Term Begins June 30 The School for Serious Students

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN

STAGE TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

515 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4605

Iennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Personal

Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG

110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfson Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory. Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th St., New York. In care of Howenstein, Lyon & Healy, Chicago

BOURSTIN VIOLINIST
Management
Haensel and Jones

Roderick White, Violinist

Management Charles Wagner, 1451 Broadway, N. Y.

STANDARDIZATION

We have had another convention in New York of the State Teachers' Association. The next one is slated for Syracuse, a year from now; which ought to allow of ample time for improvements, if there are any—of methods now before the teachers, with additions to a circular of 34—only 34—propositions in alleged vocal methodizing and standardization, adopted if you please by vote. Each proposition forced down the gullet of each unoffending and uninformed person with the patience to listen, by gag law.

The foolish physicians and scientists who are striving each after his own idea and method to isolate the microbe of cancer (if there be one) would better crystallize the fruits of their explorations upon the subjects in a paper of more or less lucid propositions and call upon the cancer specialists for a majority vote—the ayes to have it—as a final decision. The surgeons running the conclave.

If, dear reader, you have an idea that vocal methods are a matter of sane and reasonable discussion, with illustrations to help in making decisions, why you have much to learn, and you have lost a great opportunity; for at this conference of vocal teachers it was shown that the only way to prove or solve a problem is to take a majority vote upon it; proving that we are still living in an age when the subject for the witticism of a Barnum is born every minute.

We live by formula and juggle with names and polysyllables; therefore the peradventure of a more or less scientific statement is the matter of a majority vote.

What the teachers of the state of New York need is an organization of serious minded persons who are willing to delve deeply and patiently into the recesses of their problem. To do this without any idea at all of personal gain or individual graft, but altruistically and with the high ideal of reaching the truth by honest and conscientious methods.

If it is essential for the teachers of voice to be instructed in the functions of the vocal instrument, let them invite a body of disinterested—yes disinterested—physicists and anatomists (not throat specialists who combine the teaching of singing—such as it must be under the circumstances—with their professional activities) to deliver a series of lectures explanatory and illustrative; let suitable text-books be recommended and a list of writers upon anatomy and physics be supplied. Authorities of reliability.

After due study and consideration it will be matter of small difficulty for the teacher to decide whether he has been helped or hampered by his incursion into the domain which invites Garcia to penetrate with dabbings of a speculative and foolish nature.

He may, if he has time, money and inclination, set up a laboratory of his very own, and experiment in the measurement of sound waves, their deflections and directions, to his hearts content. Or he may conclude that registers exist or not; are divided into fives or threes, as his inclinations urge him; that the cricoid or trytenoid muscles with an infusion of the muscle orbicularis oris, are far more important in an exposition we will say of the concluding phrases of the tenors dramatic aria from "The Messiah," than a demand upon the dura mater.

If a professor of the Greek devoted his life to the observation of the dative and genitive, why may not Mr. Bogert, dedicate himself to the study of the "proximate and direct action of the vocal cords"—his own statement about these fixed bands. As he did not qualify his statement it was left to the hearers imagination as to what he meant, and whether he was talking about the true or false—so called—vocal cords.

A man named Muckey was much in evidence—indeed he was the whole show, and a very boring and tiresome one to my mind. If he is the chosen guide and counselor of the vocal contingent of the N. Y. T. A., he should take more kindly to a discussion of the printed statements he insisted the audience must swallow; infuse a little of patience, if not that subtlety for which nearly all physicians are famous, into his manner. Also he might with profit take a few lessons in elocution, and put into practice some of the reasonance he talks about; which reminds me to say that the voice teachers were notoriously lacking, from the chairman of the voice contingent to a white-haired officer, in the power to make themselves heard beyond the 4th or 5th row.

The white-haired one mumbled in a surprising fashion. How do these gentlemen illustrate for their pupils the manner of sending a tone or word to the end of an auditorium?

The first requisite of a speaker or a singer is the power of making himself heard, and the association is here advised to name a committee of four or five to pass upon the powers of intending speakers at conventions; the committee proving first its own capacity to judge and to make itself heard.

Queer things I thought about did I not during the times I sat bored; trying to make

G
I
O
V
A
N
N

Zenatello

Management of
R. E. JOHNSTON
Commercial Trust Building
Broadway and 41st St.
New York
SEASON 1915-1916

Gay MARIA

out what these would be authorities on the vocal problem were attempting to pass over to the audience. One thing was certain. Each one was a type more or less perfect of the gloved or muffled tone.

A few teachers who know their business—men with carrying voices—ought to be selected to instruct the instructors. As the treasury of the association appears to be at very low ebb, perhaps Mr. John C. Freund, editor of the Musical America, and apparently the chief adviser and guardian angel of the organization, would be only too delighted to pay for lessons out of his own pocket. Indeed since his name is before us, and since he is insisting upon a legislative oversight of Music Teachers and their affairs, he will doubtless be chosen to pay for their licenses whether they are advertisers in his paper or not. And as one of his admirers, whose speech was quoted in an issue of the America not so long ago, says, "Mr. Freund might be said with truth to have literally gone through a martyrdom for the cause," and as one form of martyrdom is delivering up the contents of one's pocketbook, I suggest here, in all earnestness, that Mr. Freund put himself on record with a promise to pay all licenses and expenses incurred by the musicians for whom he is martyrizing himself.

The business meeting gave me more pleasure than going to the "Movies." When a motion was before the house, certain members, officers of long standing I am told (for the personnel of office holders seems rarely to undergo any startling changes, though an infusion of warm, young blood might profit its fortunes and bring its proceedings up to date), rose up and delivered themselves of whatever appeared to be upon their minds without reference to the matters to be voted upon. I am sure that I was not the only one who was immensely entertained, for I heard a voice behind me say clearly yet in sotto voce, as one of the teachers talked wide of the point:—"Numbskull."

Instead of Muckey next season I should suggest a teacher of Parliamentary usage. I charge nothing for the advice—I merely give it.

I visited the meetings at the McAlpin twice. During the discussion of the 34 "Fundamental Principles" (sic) I was haunted by that song familiar to the German student mind, and which, unfortunately, came after Hans Sachs moved by the Beckmesserian futilities shrieked out:—"Wahn, Wahn, Ueberal Wahn!"

"Ich bin der Doktor Eisenbart; billi, willi, wim bam boom!"

Kurir die Leut nach meiner Art, billi, willi etc.

Kann machen das die Lahmen sehn, und das die Blinden wieder gehn.

Billi willi wim bam boom."

The Music League of America, putatively a philanthropic organization for the uplift, etc., etc., and with women back of it who represent millions of dollars, is demanding an increased sum to be devoted to music in the Parks this summer; notwithstanding the impoverished condition of the Civic Exchange.

Why don't the moneyed females behind this organization "dig down?"

Why don't they establish a fund (out of their own pockets), of about one half mil-

(Continued on page 30)

GEORGE

DOSTALOne of the World's
leading
Lyric TenorsManagement
R. E. Johnston
Commercial Trust Bldg.
41st St. and Broadway
New York

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

ALVIN

BarentzenManagement
R. E.
Johnston
Commercial
Trust Building
41st St. and
Broadway
NEW YORKHelen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

H. EVAN WILLIAMS CONCERTS
RECITAL
ORATORIO
TENORMANAGEMENT WOLFSOHN MUSICAL BUREAU, 1 W. 34th Street, NEW YORK
Personal Address, AKRON, OHIOYeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

JENNY DUFAU Season 1915 - 1916.---Concert
Direction MAURICE FLETCHER
COLORATURA SOPRANO, Chicago Grand Opera Company
McCormick Bldg, ChicagoMarcella CraftLeading Soprano Royal Opera Munich
Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON
437 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

GERMANINE

SCHNITZER

Management Heensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONESCHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Have You Seen

Our New Catalog of Educational Sheet Music?

LITTLE WHIMSIES FOR LITTLE PIANISTS

By Carrie Bullard

Four interesting and melodious pieces in the first grade from which the little folks will derive pleasure and profit.

Barcarole

Carrie Bullard

My Pony Trots

Carrie Bullard

Copyright, 1916, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge
International Copyright Secured

OTHER NEW FIRST GRADE PIECES

First Buds of Spring, by E. J. Biedermann
Six easy recreative and instructive compositions for pianoforte—graded, fingered, and marks of expression carefully indicated.

Five Little Dances, by J. F. Zimmermann.
The little folks always love dance music and the exquisite melody of these little gems will render them no exception to the rule.

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES

E. R. Kroeger. Op. 82. No. 1-10

Ten second grade teaching pieces embodying modern educational principles. The introduction of an illustrated story of each "Tale" quickens the student's interest and creates a desire to play with expression.

The Golden Bird

E. R. KROEGER

H. R. & E. S.

Copyright, 1916, by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--------|
| 1. Little Red Riding Hood..... | $0.40 |
| 2. The Enchanted Stag..... | .40 |
| 3. The Frog Prince..... | .30 |
| 4. Little Thumbkin..... | .35 |
| 5. Snow White and Rose Red..... | .30 |
| 6. The Three Spinning Fairies..... | .35 |
| 7. The Dancing Shoes..... | .40 |
| 8. The Sleeping Beauty..... | .30 |
| 9. The Golden Bird..... | .40 |
| 10. Hansel and Gretel..... | .50 |

FOR SALE AT ALL MUSIC STORES

Thematic Catalogue mailed free on request
HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE, Publishers
30 Irving Place, New York City

Music in America

LOS ANGELES

All musical efforts seem to trend for a great culmination in the presentation of the prize opera, "Fairyland," by Horatio Parker, and the libretto by Brian Hooker, for which $10,000 will be paid to the successful contestants by the Los Angeles promoters of American Opera Association.

The National Federation of Musical Club's biennial opening, June 24, and will continue until July 3, during which time six performances of the opera is expected. The rehearsals promise a good presentation. I had the pleasure of hearing the fifteenth orchestra rehearsal and the soloists and understudy, who have arrived and today director Alfred Hertz, will arrive to put the finishing touches necessary.

Tickets are selling rapidly and full houses are anticipated from far and near places. Los Angeles has a wide reputation for entertaining delegates and visitors and will not come short in this most interesting educational event. The public schools will make a good showing. They are at a high mark of popularity at present, having given to the city the finest floral parade and three performances of the "March of Empire," pageant, using 6,500 of high school pupils which seems to have outstripped all former efforts on graduation and magnitude. We expect them to make good in music. The programs of the convention utilizes a goodly number of our local talent, and our symphony orchestra's talent. The tournament, or parade, July third, will surpass all others previous.

The Orphans Club, in the seasons closing concert displayed great advance in their vocalism. Much time has been given in preparation of the club to enter the contest for prizes, at the Exposition, competition in July.

Mrs. Maude Reeves Barnard, mezzo soprano, was the soloist, who gave a song by Chaminade. Rubinstein's, "Since first I met thee." Gertrude Ross, "Dawn in the Desert," and an encore song, Cadman's "At Dawning." Her voice shows much training in artistry, but seldom asserts power or marked vitality, always delicate, a pleasing quality throughout.

Miss Gertrude Cohen, a growing artist pianist, has been delighting good audiences with her charming skill and artistry.

Mr. Thilo Becker, presents his pupil, Raymond Schouten, in a high grade recital. Miss Esther Sharp, soprano, assisting.

The Beall concert, at the Temple, with orchestra and chorus, in Dubois' cantata, "The Seven Last Words," and also a chorus and good orchestral introduction, "I Will Arise," from Mr. John David Beall's cantata, "Song of Solomon." The chorus, though small, gave a good rendering of both works and the soloists, Mrs. Beall, soprano; Mr. Chas. Barkdull, Tenor; Mr. Henry Page, baritone; were pleasing and successful. Mr. Hermann Seidell, violinist, gave Bruch's, "Concerts in G Minor." Mrs. Sybilla Clayton-Bassett, rendered Liszt's "St. Francis Walking on the Waves," finely.

The graduating class of the N. So. California, presented a program of good order and student talent of much promise. Dean W. F. Skeele, at the organ in a solo number for Mr. Willard Halteen, in Allitsen's, "The Lord is My Light," Miss Guelph McQuinn, in an organ solo. Miss Lucy Seator, in Drowning's, music to the "Pipes of Pan," by Ceciel Fanning.

The St. Cecilia Musical Club, gave a splendid program at the home of Mrs. L. J. Selbey this week.

Mr. Cecil Fanning, has been appearing considerable in musical and social clubs, lately, and with popular favor everywhere. He will sing for the Lyric Club the coming week, also will appear with the musical clubs programs convention.

Mrs. Jas. Henry Ballagh, has been re-elected to Matinee Musical Club presidency.

At the home of Miss Lillian Ammalee Smith, a dinner and musicale was given in which the writer, participated in song and social, with Mr. Carl Bronson, and his daughter, soprano, and other friends. Mr. Bronson's contributions were Buck's "Capture of Bacchus," and "Creole Lover's Song." Also Allitsen's "Love is a Bubble." Mr. Monutz gave, "Alone in the Desert," by Emanuel, Malloy's "Boatswain," and King's "Israfel." Miss Smith, the "Brook" and the "Butterfly," Olsen.

The Kathryn Barnard Song recital last night, at the Alexandria hotel concert room, was a fine social and musical event. She appeared in thirteen solos, from German, French and Italian authors, six being in English. The "Mad Scene" from "Lucia," and an aria from "La Bohemme," were the best in artistry. All were daintily rendered. An extreme holding back of the voice and smothering of the articulation made it difficult to get, even the English text, intelligibly.

The Adolf Tandler Quartet gave three choice selections and an encore. Mr. Tandler, first violin; Mr. Rudolph Koop, second violin; Mr. Axel Simonsen, 'cello, and Mr. Alexander Kavnbach, piano.

Mr. William Bassett, baritone, in a group of three songs, "Caro Mio ben," and "Two Grenadiers," Schumann, sang quite acceptably in a good quality voice and good diction. Mrs. Bassett being the accompanist of the evening, met all demands in a finished manner in good proportion to the voices of both artists.

S. W. MOUNTZ,
1651 6th Ave., Phone West 1024.

Loudon—The Jennette Loudon Studios presented an elaborate children's program, at the Anna Morgan Studios on last Saturday afternoon.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

The pupils of the Charleston High School, under direction of J. Henry Francis, presented "The Captain of Plymouth," a comic opera by Eldridge, at the Burlew Opera House in Charleston on June 8. From the Charleston Gazette we copy the following comment:

With every inch of available space taken in the Burlew theater last night the curtain went up on the quaint chorus of pilgrim maids who carried their audience back nearly 300 years. The reward of several weeks' hard labor came last night in the thunderous applause with which the great audience received the "Captain of Plymouth." It was the class play of the High School seniors.

Into the midst of the joyous chorus of youths and maids came the old elder, Brewster, bidding them cease their frivolities and return to their toil. The play in brief is the old familiar story of John Alden and Priscilla.

To attempt a criticism of the players and their playing would be a task indeed, but to give impressions on their acting is a pleasure well worth the attempt. First and foremost is Priscilla, dainty and sweet. The apparent lack of self-consciousness with which she took her part won for her the much merited applause. Noticeable above everything else was her clear enunciation in her songs, a thing almost unheard of in a "star," but which gave added charm to the sweetness of her voice and added to the pleasure of her admirers. Her costume was as simple as she was unassuming, and the combination won admiration and applause for her from the four corners of the house.

Miles himself did well and portrayed with skill the character and temperament of the captain made immortal in the poet's lines. The outstanding fact was the commanding appearance which he maintained and the clear and penetrating voice he has, which is so suited to the stage.

Alas, poor John, we knew him well and well he took his part. There might have been a touch of that enemy of all beginners, self-consciousness, but it soon melted into the natural castdown, love-sick John. His voice was not strong, and fortunately not so, for it would have spoiled his part.

Both pale and painted faces, one and all did well. Time and after time were they called back by generous applause. The greatest actor of all was their teacher, Professor Francis. The hours he has spent in planning and rehearsal was reflected last night in the success of his troupe of stars. His efforts have been continuous and not in vain.

Following is the cast of characters and chorus as they appeared:

Miles Standish, who is wonderfully like Caesar..... Edward M. Craig
John Alden, the diligent scribe..... W. Arthur Brook
Elder Brewster, who believes life is only sorrow..... Charles C. Warner
Erasmus, Miles' right bower..... Harry C. Martin
Wattawamutt, chief of the Pequots..... Robert B. Price
Lads of the colony:
Richard..... Frank A. Thomas
Stephen..... Edward C. Cork
Gilbert..... Tristram Colcord
Theodore, a soldier in Miles' army.....
Ioneaus Julius Stanley
Priscilla, fairest maiden of Plymouth..... Pearl M. Burgwin
Katonka, an Indian Princess..... Talmo M. Simpson
Mercy, an American girl..... E. Verona Strechley
Puritan Daisies:
Charity..... Kathalein Anderson
Patience..... Frances Hayes
Mary..... Jeanette Beckenstein
Martha..... Julia Beckley
Hester..... Katie Fisher
Ruth..... Ella Lebow
Thankful..... Elizabeth Savage
Repentance..... Edna M. Fruth
Majella, Indian squaw..... Elizabeth Scott
Pecksuot, messenger..... Herman Engle

Accompanist..... Mabel Hudnall
Wardrobe Mistress..... Mrs. Mary E. Reber

Korner—Elizabeth Korner, soprano, gave a joint recital last week with Margaret Badenoch, pianist, at the residence of Mrs. Kent on Harvard avenue. Her numbers were: "The Land of Sky Blue Water" and "The Moon Drops Low," (Cadman) "Down in the Forest," (Ronald) and "Where Blossoms Grow," by Sans Souci.

WOOSTER, OHIO

The Wooster University Conservatory of Music is just closing a very successful year. A new and much higher standard has been set by Professor Neille O. Rowe, who assumed the directorship last September, beginning with a series of recitals by visiting artists, faculty and advanced students, the first of which, an organ recital given by Director Rowe in the fall, was pronounced by local musicians to be superior in finish and musicianship to any recital of a similar kind heard here in recent years. In December the Oratorio Society of over 100 voices, conducted by Professor Rowe, and assisted by a quartet of Pittsburgh soloists, gave an unusually finished performance of the "Messiah." This organization will present for its commencement concert the "Creation," with Evangeline Mann, M. J. Brines and Edward Clarke of Chicago, with Mr. J. Milton Vance and Professor Harry C. Thorpe of the Conservatory faculty, soloists.

An unusually large number of pupils' recitals have been given this year. Miss Edith Barnes of Fredericksburg gave her junior piano recital in Memorial Chapel, playing:

Preludes, Nos. 18, 7, 20, 1..... Chopin
Sonata, Op. 7..... Beethoven
Caprice on Elfin March from Midsummer Night's Dream..... Mendelssohn-Heller
Intermezzo, Op. 117, No. 1..... Brahms
Were I a Bird..... Henselt
Serenade, Op. 16.....
Midsummer, Op. 62..... MacDowell
Joy of Autumn, Op. 62.....
Tarantella, Op. 39, No. 5..... Leschetizsky
Miss Isabell Booher, who is a senior in both piano

Grant Kimbell

TENOR

Oratorio Recital Concert

Mr. Kimbell has appeared with
Chicago Apollo Club
Chicago North Shore Festival
Bach Choral Society

Soloist at
First Congregational Church, Oak Park
B'Nai Shalom Temple Israel

730 Fine Arts Building
309 E. 49th St. (Drexel 8519)

and voice, gave a junior program in organ, and gave the following programs in Memorial Chapel:

PIANO
Prelude and Fugue, W. T. C., No. 21..... Bach
Ballade in G Minor, Op. 118..... Brahms
Des Abends.....
Warum..... Schumann
Grillen.....
Etude in G Flat, No. 9.....
Nocturne in C Sharp Minor, No. 1.....
Sonata in B Minor..... Chopin
Barcarolle in G Minor..... Moszkowski
To the Evening Star..... Schubert-Liszt
Spinning Song..... Wagner-Liszt

VOICE RECITAL

The Wanderer..... Schubert
Death and the Maiden..... Schubert
Dedication.....
In Dreams My Tears Were Falling..... Schumann
In the Garden.....
I'll not Complain.....
The Asra..... Rubinstein
The Swan..... Grieg
The First Primrose..... Grieg
Why..... Tschaiowsky
The Sea..... MacDowell
The Wind Speaks..... Grant-Schaefer
Unrequited..... Hawley
Ah, Let the Night Speak to Me..... Chadwick
Sweetheart, Thy Lips are Touched with Flame.....
Song, Jest, Perfume, Dances (Romeo and Juliet)..... Gounod

Clark—Ronald Baker Clark, son of Charles W. Clark, the baritone, was married to Catherine Cole MacBurney in Newark, N. J., on June 12.

BETHLEHEM, PA.

A weekly musical event of noteworthy merit, is the service held every Sunday evening in Salem Lutheran Church of this city. Dr. J. Fred Wolle, the eminent Bach conductor, is the organist and choirmaster, and under his direction, musical programs of rare beauty are rendered at these services.

Last Sunday the following program was given and thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience assembled in the church:

Romanza..... Howard
Epithalamium..... Woodman
Idylle..... Harker
Offertoire..... Read

Dr. Wolle

Et in Spiritum Sanctum (mass in B minor)..... Bach
Mr. Howard J. Wiegner

Teach Me To Pray..... Jewitt
Mr. Charles Cole

Sanctus..... Farmer
Holy Lord God Almighty..... Storer
Choir

Dr. Wolle, as usual, played with exquisite artistry, and consummate musicianship. Mr. Wiegner gave the "Et in Spiritum" an intelligent reading, and was in good voice. The numbers by the choir were smooth and at all times eloquent of the music and its message—some very good shading having been in evidence throughout both numbers.

The choir of Emmanuel Church gave a very interesting concert on Tuesday evening, assisted by the following soloists: Miss Helene Jacoby, pianist; Mr. Truman Walton, violinist; Mr. William Lynn, organist, and Mrs. Kenneth Kemmerer, soprano. Miss Jacoby gave a very finished and artistic performance of both the "Nocturne, Op. 15, No. 2," (Chopin), and MacDowell's well known "Bluettes," and as an encore played Schumann's "Nachtstucke" with a good tone and poetic feeling. Mr. Walton played the well known "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn" exquisitely and drew from his violin a tone of haunting beauty—his performance of the cadenza being remarkably smooth and interesting. The chorus numbers were all done in good style, with a degree of smoothness worthy of mention, the well known sextet from "Lucia," probably presenting the best chorus number of the evening. Notwithstanding the fact that the choir is only three months old, and made up entirely of raw material, their work throughout the evening reflected credit on the training they have received at the hands of their director, Mr. Fred W. Adams, who is organist and choirmaster of Emmanuel Church.

The choir of the First Presbyterian Church of Allentown, on last Tuesday evening, gave a very creditable rendition of A. R. Gaul's "Holy City," with Miss Mayme Widman, Miss Maude Spangler, Mr. W. Morrison and Mr. Howard J. Wiegner as soloists. The choruses were fairly well done and there was some good solo work by Miss Spangler and Mr. Morrison.

Plans are being formulated by a number of the leading musicians of this city—among them Professor Hans Roemer, in charge of the music department at the Moravian Seminary and College for Women, for the holding of a mammoth Music Festival at some time during next October, of three or four days' duration, and it is planned to give a number of cantatas, two oratorios, one or two artists' recitals, and a mixed concert. The writer sincerely hopes that the plans of the promoters will be consummated and their hopes realized. The time will be ripe for such a festival by October, and I feel that properly conducted the undertaking can be made a success.

In conclusion, the writer would ask a question in the hope that some one of the numerous learned scribes, probably even Mephisto, will be able to answer. Here it is: Why is there so little "harmony" between Harmony's many exponents?

EARLE CEASERO.

Van Katwijk—Mr. Paul Van Katwijk, pianist, who has just concluded a successful year as teacher in the Drake University School of Music, Des Moines, was a Music News visitor on Wednesday, being enroute to Swampscott, Mass., where he will spend the summer.

Schieb—Miss Eleanor Schieb an accompanist and coach with but few equals in Chicago, will spend the summer at Hartford, Conn. Her address is 92 Farmington Avenue.

American Songs

By American Composers

Angels Guard Thee.....	Hamilton	$0.50
(Two Keys)
Apple Blossoms.....	Lester	.50
(Two Keys)
At Night on the Terrace High.....	Genet	.50
(Two Keys)
Dawn in the Desert.....	Ross	.60
(Two Keys)
Egyptian Boat Song.....	Nevin	.50
(Two Keys)
O Moon Upon the Water.....	Cadman	.60
(Two Keys)
Heart's Highway, The.....	Fearis	.50
(Two Keys)
A Lover's Litany.....	Kramer	.50
(Two Keys)
I Hear a Thrush at Eve.....	Cadman	.60
(Three Keys)
Message, The.....	Caverly	.50
(Three Keys)
Nature Awaits Thee.....	Warner	.50
(Two Keys)
Hidden Song, The.....	Cadman	.60
(Three Keys)

PUBLISHED BY

White-Smith Music Publishing Co.

BOSTON: 62-64 Stanhope Street

NEW YORK: 13 East 17th Street

CHICAGO: 316 South Wabash Avenue

American SongsBy American Composers, Sung by American SingersSOPRANO

Helen Stanley
Eva Emmet Wycoff
Alma Gluck
Yvonne de Treville
Frances Alda
Marie Rappold
Grace Hall Riheldaffer
Ethelynde Smith

ALTO

Mme. Schumann-Heink
Christine Miller
Mildred Potter
Harriet Story Macfarlane
Corinne Welsh
Beatrice McCue
Frances Ingram

TENOR

Leon Rice
Dan Beddoe
Warren Procter
John McCormack
George F. Reimherr

BARITONE

David Bispham
Charles L. Granville
William Simmons
Rene S. Lurid
Gay Donaldson

American Songs

By American Composers

Adoration	Fox	$0.50
(Three Keys)
Flower Rain.....	Loud	.50
(Three Keys)
A Knighthood Song.....	Cadman	.60
(Baritone or Tenor)
My Love Is Fair.....	Nevin	.50
(Two Keys)
My Rose.....	Lester	.50
(Two Keys)
We Two Together.....	Warner	.50
(Two Keys)
Valentine, A.....	Hartmann	.50
(Two Keys)
Sunset in the Desert.....	Ross	.50
(Medium or High Voice)
Voice of the Dove.....	Burnham	.50
(Three Keys)
Song of the Chimes.....	Worrell	.50
(Three Keys)
Captive Rose, The.....	Knox	.50
(Three Keys)

PUBLISHED BY

White-Smith Music Publishing Co.

BOSTON: 62-64 Stanhope Street

NEW YORK: 13 East 17th Street

CHICAGO: 316 South Wabash Avenue

NEW YORK LETTER

(Continued from page 27)

lion dollars, and use the annual interest for the purpose of providing the poorer classes with music, now and in the future.

The League, as far as I can see, is a Managerial proposition, which competes with other managerial Bureaus for engagements for its artists; advertises as do other Managers, and conducts a business enterprise.

Why then should it assume the role of philanthropy? And why should it appeal to the Borough president, Marcus Marks to aid in getting more money for the music in the Parks, etc., with the taxpayer paying the piper? It is to be hoped that Mr. Marks will turn a deaf ear to their entreaties. He will, if he is a wise man considering our depleted treasury and the needs of a more pressing character awaiting consideration, turn the League down.

Let the women forming the directorate of the Music League hire Carnegie Hall once a week during the summer; engage a good Orchestra at the minimum union rates; a fair to middling Conductor (there must be one at least who might be secured at a bargain) and the soloists on their list, these are not artists demanding extravagant figures, and entertain the Proletariat. They would then be doing something worth while.

If not the "Peepul" will not starve for the want of the usual noise, yclept music, doled out to them in the good old summer time. The management of many of the "movie" houses have installed good, (some of them have invested in really splendid instruments), organs and have engaged organists often of repute to play them. Superior programs are the rule, making a far more suitable and acceptable kind of musical entertainment than the blaring, screeching bands can offer.

Undoubtedly the arrangements of classical airs and excerpts (Gluck and Mendelssohn for choice) accompanying the exhibitions of "Cabiria" has done much to raise the standard of Music in the "Movie" houses.

The purveyors of popular forms of entertainment are not slow to gain ideas in their attempt to give their audiences as many good things as they can assimilate; even the Vaudeville houses are taking notice.

But to return to the Music League. If it has the desire to do something for the public, let it foot its own bills, and offer its own entertainments; but hands off the City's treasury.

George Dostal, tenor; Marie Narelle, soprano, and Alfred Ilma, baritone, created an excellent impression upon an overflow audience at a concert in Richmond Hills, a short while ago.

Mr. Dostal was in perfect voice and sang the arias from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," with ease and agility. He was heard in a group of songs in English, and three or four encore numbers.

Mme. Narelle sang an aria from Ponchielli's "Gioconda," and a group of Irish and Scotch songs. She too was in beautiful form and made to grant a number of encores.

Mr. Ilma, said to be an Arabian Prince, was the recipient of much applause.

CARL SCHURZ HIGH SCHOOL

The commencement at the Carl Schurz High School is an important musical event to the school.

Thursday and Friday evenings the two-year and four-year classes were graduated, respectively. A strong instrumental program by the school orchestra, guided by the baton of Mr. James Mason, was in evidence.

The choral music, directed by Mr. Charles Lagerquist, was as follows:

THURSDAY EVENING

Waltz Song—Venice	Moszkowski
Carl Schurz Choral Union
La Zarine	Denne
Carl Schurz Choral Union
Commencement Song	Murray
Two-Year Graduating Class

FRIDAY EVENING

Chorus—And the Glory of the Lord, from "Messiah"	Handel
Orchestra accompanying
Chorus—
O for the Wings of a Dove.....	Mendelssohn
Night	Michael Watson
Obligato singers: Ruth E. Andersen, Mary L. Merrill, Leone E. Riley
Contralto Solo (with chorus)—My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice, from "Samson and Delilah"	Saint-Saens
Miss Margery Lagerquist
Chorus—Happy Days.....	Strelezki
The class did all the chorus singing. Miss Margaret Wilson was the pianist and Mr. Harold Dosch, violinist, both accompanying.

AT THE ORGAN RECITAL, SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION

CECIL FANNING IN SAN DIEGO

The San Diego Union comments as follows on the work of Mr. Cecil Fanning, where he appeared before five thousand people:

One of the largest Sunday crowds of the year yesterday filled every bench in front of the Spreckels organ pavilion at the Exposition, the benches along the Esplanade, seats in the pergolas of the pavilion and available standing room, drawn by the desire to hear Dr. H. J. Stewart's organ recital and the vocal contributions of Cecil Fanning, baritone.

Occasionally there appears in concert a singer who enunciates. Mr. Fanning is one. Probably, like most others who enunciate, he owes the art largely to his training for oratorio, and his principal offering was "It Is Enough," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." In it he gave evidence of a splendid natural voice, particularly good in the lower and middle registers, and admirably adapted to the aria. He was warmly received and gave as encore the "Evening Star," from "Tannhauser." Dr. Stewart accompanied both. (Advertisement.)

CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY

The program of the graduation exercises, held at Conservatory Recital Hall, on June 11, was as follows:

March—Pomp and Circumstance.....Elgar
Invocation.....Rev. Jacob W. Kapp, D. D.
Concerto, G Minor, for Piano and Orchestra.....Saint-Saens

Andante Sostenuto
Scherzo
Presto

Miss Lena Palmer

Overture—Athalie.....Mendelssohn
Address—The Rev. Bishop William Franklin Anderson, D. D., LL. D.

Presentation of Diplomas—Judge Alfred K. Nippert

CECIL FANNING AND H. B. TURPIN AT SAN DIEGO

FESTIVAL AT ALMA, MICHIGAN

The third annual May festival of Alma, Mich., was held at the Wright Opera House on May 27 and 28, under direction of Reese F. Veatch.

The first program consisted of a performance of Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," the principals being Velma Gilmore, Lorna Woodruff, William Fenton, Hugh C. Dickerson, Reese F. Veatch and Bope Butler, with the Alma Choral Club and Orchestra.

On Friday afternoon there was a program by the Alma Public School Children's Chorus, assisted by visiting artists and in the evening Dubois' "Seven Last Words" was sung with soloists, chorus and orchestra.

On Tuesday, June 1, a piano (graduating) recital was given by Mary Rose, at Alma College Conservatory of Music, assisted by Eva Barnes, pianist. On June 3, a song recital was given by Lorna Woodruff, contralto; June 4, song recital by Bope Butler, tenor, and on June 9, a song recital by Mary Rose.

CECIL FANNING AND H. B. TURPIN AT THE SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION

RECENT BOOKINGS OF ANDERSON ARTISTS

Henriette Wakefield, Rochester, November 17, New York Oratorio Society, December 28-30; Marie Kaiser, Fall River February 21; Christine Schutz, Fremont, Ohio, December 7; Laeta Hartley, Boston, August 13, Boston Symphony Orchestra, November 23, Boston Symphony Orchestra, December 7; Charles Harrison, November tour, Wichita Symphony Orchestra, Sedalia, Mo., Hays, Kan., Arkadelphia, Ark.; Ida Gardner, Amsterdam, November 30; Manhattan Ladies' Quartet, January Pacific coast tour, February tour, Wichita Symphony Orchestra, Washington, Kan., Hays, Kan.

CROWD LISTENING TO CECIL FANNING AT SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION

Mary Lindsay Oliver
 PIANISTE TEACHER
 STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
 Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ELSA STAUD
 CONTRALTO—Opera—Concert—Recital
 Address care of Chicago Musical College.

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL
 The Art of Singing
 81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
 Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Lemuel W. Kilby
 BASS-BARITONE
 Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ
 TENOR
 Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN
 CONCERT ORGANIST
 Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

IDA MELCHER
 TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
 4715 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 571

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON
 Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
 Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
 Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW
 CONTRALTO
 27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING
 PIANISTE
 Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines Teacher, Coach
 Lectures, Recitals
 4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON
 Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
 CONCERTS - PUPILS
 25 Auditorium Building Phone Superior 4520

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS
 SOPRANO
 CONCERTS RECITALS
 510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY
 SOPRANO
 LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck
 PIANIST
 AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale
 CONTRALTO
 Exclusive Management Alma Voldisch
 3941 Rokeby St., Chicago

MAX I. FISCHER Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN Violinists
 CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
 Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

MURFREESBORO, TENN.

Following is copied comment and program of the annual commencement recital given at Tennessee College, May 31, Murfreesboro, Tenn.:

An exceptionally large audience attended the annual commencement recital given last Monday evening by students of the music department of Tennessee College.

Students of Mr. Arthur P. Thomas, director of music, were heard in piano numbers. Misses Threlkeld, McGee, Lewis and Gross delighted the audience with their numbers for two pianos, eight hands. These young ladies played with a vim, spirit and harmony that called forth most enthusiastic applause.

Misses Gardner, Dorris, Pope and Threlkeld gave a good account of themselves, playing their numbers in a very effective manner.

More difficult compositions were rendered by the Misses Licker, McGee, Thurman, Lewis and Gross. They played with good tone quality, adequate technique and excellent interpretation.

It is very evident that all these students have had admirable instruction. The whole program was given in a way to show the most painstaking and thorough training. Each student performed carefully and in splendid musical style. All were deserving of the hearty applause accorded by the appreciative audience. This was one of the best student recitals ever given in Tennessee College.—The Home Journal.

Following is the program:

Two pianos, eight hands—
 Husarenritt Spindler
 Trot de Cavalerie Rubinstein
 Violet Gross Grace Threlkeld
 Mabel McGee Rebecca Lewis
 At the Spinning Wheel, Op. 85 Godard
 Ruby Thurman
 Polonaise de la Cour, Op. 60 Hachk
 Gene Gardner
 Fifth Valse, Op. 91 Durand
 Lucile Dorris
 Novelette, Op. 46 MacDowell
 Bess Pope
 Mazurka, No. 2 Borowski
 Grace Threlkeld
 Prelude, C Sharp Minor Rachmaninoff
 Ethel Licker
 Dream of Love, No. 1 Liszt
 Mabel McGee
 Herald of Spring Friml
 Rebecca Lewis
 Tarentelle, Op. 43 Chopin
 Violet Gross
 Two pianos, eight hands—
 Kronungsmarch Meyerbeer
 Mabel McGee Rebecca Lewis
 Violet Gross Grace Threlkeld

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.

Rock Island's musical public had the unusual experience Saturday night of listening to a sacred oratorio composed and directed by a writer who calls that city his home and where is centered his interests, when "Golgotha," J. Victor Bergquist's work was presented at the Illinois by the Handel Oratorio Chorus of Augustana, supported by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. The performance marked an epoch in local musical circles, for it was the first time that a work of such proportions has been given, coming from the pen of a local writer, and it well deserved the excellent patronage given. The audience, warm in its reception of "Golgotha," set its stamp of approval by careful attention and sustained interest. Professor Bergquist has prepared a splendid work and one that must take a place among the essentially artistic descriptive compositions. It is more than a discourse; it is an expression of a beautiful story.

The oratorio is characterized by great seriousness and dignity, the orchestration being highly descriptive of the theme.—Rock Island Argus.

——
 Nichols—Mr. Harry Frazer, pupil of John W. Nichols, the New York tenor and teacher, recently took part in a Quartet Concert which was given in the Nostrand Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, in Brooklyn. He sang Verdi's "Celeste Aida" admirably, and was most enthusiastically received. Since studying with Mr. Nichols, Mr. Frazer has made very rapid progress and is now tenor soloist in the above mentioned church.

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

Outside of great preparations for the Minnesota Music Teachers' Convention to be held at Albert Lea, June 22, 23, 24, and pupils' recitals without number, there is little to relate. The Symphony Orchestra has returned and many of its members have already departed for summer vacations to be spent in various places.

The convention should be the best ever held as the association has the largest membership of its history now and there seems to be an unusual amount of interest displayed in the programs. The officers of the association are working very hard and the success of it will be due to their tireless and unselfish energy.

The Northwestern Conservatory has held a number of commencement recitals in its music and dramatic departments as have Stanley Hall and the Johnson School of Music. The MacPhail School has presented over sixty pupils in three very interesting recitals. William MacPhail, Mabel Jackson, Edward Towler, Rudolph Kvelve and Rudolph Peterson presented violin pupils; Kathleen Hart Bibb, vocal, and Carl Youngdahl, piano pupils. Each branch was well represented and some very excellent ensemble work was noted. All the numbers were memorized which is an exceptional advantage to the young performers if they only realize it. Even the youngest pupil, a small lad of some six years, who played "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," evinced good value of rhythm and a firm true tone. The recitals began promptly and went without a hitch.

All Minneapolis music lovers will regret very much to hear that the Minneapolis Trio, consisting of Cornelius Van Vliet, Karl Scheurer and Giuseppe Fabbri, has been discontinued. Mr. Van Vliet is to appear in a couple of sonata and novelty programs and it is to be hoped that out of the number of fine artists in the orchestra some other trio or quartet will be formed among the players. The Chamber Music Society brings some splendid outside offerings, but after the number of concerts of chamber music given the past winter it is going to be hard to have only three or four. There is no greater educational factor in music than chamber music and the true music lover looks to it for his greatest enjoyment.

WALKER
 Teaching this Summer
 1118 E. 65th St.

A woodwind ensemble has been formed among some of the orchestra men and we hope to hear some unusual programs from them this coming season. Mr. Oberhoffer introduced several numbers for the woodwind this winter and they were not only extremely novel, but equally pleasing and will always be welcome.

The Thursday musical is planning a larger number of artist recitals this coming season which will be welcome news. The many talented members of the Ladies' Thursday Musical always put on exceptionally good amateur programs, but there is no doubt that the promise of artist recitals is a stimulus to every one and especially to interest new members.
 MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

RADANOVITS STUDIO NOTES

Mina Hager sang at Fullerton Hall, June 19, also at Assembly Hall, June 18. Wendell Loveless appeared before the Senior class at Wheaton, Ill. Ruth Lewis and Jean White are appearing at Kansas City on the Orpheum time.

Hughes—Mr. T. F. Hughes, tenor, left Chicago on Wednesday to join one of the Redpath Chautauqua Companies, opening at Beresford, S. D., the succeeding two weeks being in the same state.

Kraft—Mr. Edwin Arthur Kraft has resigned the position as Municipal Organist at Atlanta, and has resumed his old position at Trinity Cathedral, in Cleveland, Ohio.

BETHLEHEM, PA.

On last Thursday evening the Bethlehem Conservatory of Music, Mr. David G. Samuels, director, presented the senior class of the piano department in its graduation recital to an audience of very nearly eight hundred people, in the high school auditorium.

Miss Vivian Quier opened the program with Beethoven's "Sonata, Op. 13," an invested the time-worn "Pathétique" with a new charm, giving the number a distinctively original reading, which, if rather cold, was interesting from the standpoint of virtuosity at least. Sinding's hackneyed "Frühlingsrauschen" met with a very dainty and smooth treatment at the hands of Miss Katherine Ross. Miss Sarah Yocum then gave a reading of Rubinstein's "Kamenoi-Ostrow, Op. 10, No. 22," to the obvious satisfaction of the audience. Miss Bernadine Worsley, next, played Seeling's "Lorelei" with considerable display of technique and little feeling. Miss Helen Jacoby was at her best, and gave a most artistic reading of Beethoven's "Sonata, Op. 57," at this juncture. The next number was an interesting reading of Raff's uninteresting "Nocturne," by Miss Margaret Hummel, followed by a remarkable performance of Rubinstein's "Concerto, D minor, Opus 70," by Miss Ruth Fluck, who displayed a colossal technique, and played the concerto with such virtuosity that the audience was held spellbound. Next, Schumann's "Nachstuecke" was given a rather noisy reading by Miss Dorothy Garis. The next number, Chopin's "Fantasie-Impromptu, Op. 66," was the artistic delight of the evening, and was given a vividly beautiful performance by Miss Helen Schwedes, the one pianiste of the evening who seemed to find in her playing a means of expression for her innermost thoughts, thus stamping herself an artist of the first water, interpretatively at any rate. Mr. Russel Shimer, here, played Raff's "Cachoucha" in good style. At this point the reviewer found it impossible to remain any longer, because of the antics of some red-headed hoodlums who sat in back of him, and he left the auditorium in despair. However, what he did hear of the program gave full and ample evidence of the wonderful genius of Mr. Samuels, director and teacher of piano, of the conservatory.

On last Tuesday evening the graduating class of the Moravian Seminary and College for Women, Department of Music, gave its annual spring concert under the direction of Professor Hans Roemer, head of the Music Department, and one of the most versatile and accomplished musicians in this vicinity. The program follows:

Chorus—On Verdant Meadow.....Gabriel Seminary Chorus
Piano—Au Rouet Godard
Miss Marie Wetherhold
Vocal—A Summer Night.....Thomas
Miss Adele Fenstermacher
Reading—Selected
Miss Edith Mullineaux
Piano—Love Dream (No. 3).....Liszt
Miss Catherine Kessler
Chorus—The Lonely Rose.....Hermes
Semi-Chorus
Violin—Introduction and Polonaise.....Bohm
Miss Hannah Hauser
Piano—Prelude in D Flat Major.....Chopin
Miss Margaret Hicks
Nocturne in G Major.....Chopin
Miss Beatrice Gehringer
Vocal—
Nymphs and Shepherds.....Purcell
Silent as Night.....Bohm
Miss Elsie Mauser
Piano—The Trout (Fantasie-Transcription).....Schubert-Heller
Miss Mary Jefferson
Trio—Lift Thine Eyes (Elijah).....Mendelssohn
The Misses Elsie Mauser, Hilah Reder, Adele Fenstermacher
Vocal—
Eternal Love Brahms
Miss Nightingale Taubert
Miss Catherine Lapsley
Piano—Ballade de Concert.....Reinecke
Miss Pauline Dettner
French Horn Solo—
On the Sea.....Schubert
Hoidenroslein.....German Folk Song
Professor Hans Roemer
Reading—Selected
Mrs. Maybelle Harte Meyer
Chorus—O Zion, Blest City.....Hiles
Seminary Chorus, assisted by the Bass Clef Club.

During this spring the writer has had the pleasure of attending several concerts given under the direction of Mr. I. H. Bartholomew, one of the leading musicians of Bethlehem, most notable of which was the recent spring concert of the Mendelssohn Club, of which Mr. Bartholomew is director. The concert was an absolute success financially, and from an artistic standpoint also, the work of the chorus giving evidence at all times of the splendid training they had received under the baton of its director. We look for big things from the Mendelssohn Club next season.

EARLE CEASERO.

OSAGE, IOWA

The regular school year in the music department of Cedar Valley Seminary closed last week, when two public recitals were given by the pupils of Frank Parker, director of the music school and teacher of singing; Florence C. Fennessy, teacher of piano, and Harriet Woodard, teacher of violin. Some thirty pupils appeared on the programs and their work was of a uniformly high standard.

The J. H. Brush prizes for the pupils having made the best progress during the year were won by Miss Carolyn Moen in piano and Miss Verna Gorder in voice. Miss Gorder has an unusually beautiful and promising soprano voice and has been prominent as soloist with the High School Glee Club and at the Methodist Church during the past winter.

Frank Parker has been re-engaged as director and teacher of singing and Miss Fennessy as teacher of piano, harmony and history of music for next year. Mr. Parker will have charge of the music at both the Baptist and Methodist churches and has been re-engaged as conductor of the Lyric Club of Charles City.

Both Miss Fennessy and Mr. Parker are giving special summer courses—Miss Fennessy one in piano of six weeks, and Mr. Parker a ten weeks' voice term. Features of the voice course will be several pupils' recitals and two lecture-recitals by Mr. Parker, one on "The Development of Song" and one on "Interpretation."

CLARA EDMUNDS HEMINGWAY

The following is an excerpt from the Benton Harbor News-Palladium:

Mrs. Clara Edmunds Hemingway has made a signal success of her musical talent for the last few years, and has become very prominent as an entertainer and original composer, not only of vocal, but of whistling and piano selections. (Advertisement.)

NEW ALBANY, IND.

At New Albany, Ind., a two-day festival was given last week when 150 New Albanians participated in a very successful series of concerts.

We are indebted to Musical America for this comment:

The choral works given were Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and Max Bruch's "Fair Ellen."

The latter was given at the first concert, and in addition to chorus and orchestra enlisted the services of Mrs. Jessie Bowman Webb, soprano, of Louisville, and Vinton Nunemacher, baritone, of this city. These soloists gave beautiful interpretations of their music, while the chorus and orchestra gave impressive tonal solidity to the ensemble numbers, and showed the result of fine training and unanimity of attack.

The vocal soloist of the Monday evening concert was Mrs. Webb, whose finely trained and beautiful lyric soprano was heard at its best. One of her songs was "If I But Knew," by Carl Shackleton, the young Louisville composer. Ruth Willis Brown, pianist, was Monday night's instrumental soloist, and she proved a revelation, especially to those who had hitherto known her principally as a church organist. She won prolonged applause in Mendelssohn's "Concerto, Op. 25," with the orchestra.

The orchestral numbers that made up the first night's program were two military marches by Schubert; the "Allegro Moderato," from the Schubert "Unfinished" symphony; the ballet music from "Faust" and the "Carmen" "Prelude."

The Tuesday evening concert offered the "Freischütz" "Overture," and the third act from "The Jewels of the Madonna," by the orchestra. These numbers were splendidly played. Earl Hedden, 'cellist, was the instrumental soloist of this concert, and played most effectively with orchestra, Molique's "Concerto, Op. 45."

The extremely able soloists for the "Elijah" performance were Flora Marguerite Bertelle, soprano, of Louisville; Mrs. Robert K. Van Pelt, contralto; Dr. Noble Mitchell, tenor, and John Peterson, bass, all of whom contributed admirable singing, stirring their hearers deeply. The work of the chorus and orchestra was undeniably fine. Ruth Brown gave valuable assistance at the piano.

Vilim American Violin School AT RESIDENCE
RICHARD VILIM SUMMER TERM RIVERSIDE, ILL., or DIRECTOR Academy of Our Lady
95th and THROOP STREETS.

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

Iva Bigelow Weaver SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals
MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

The C. W. Best Artist Series

ANTONIO SALA - - - 'Cello
MIGNONNE MEEKER - - - Soprano
LOIS BROWN - - - Piano
MARGUERITE AUSTIN - - - Violin
ALBERTO SALVI - - - Harp
FLORENCE HEDSTRUM - - - Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Dramatic Reader

SEASON OF 1915-16

Address 5412 Woodlawn Av., Chicago

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract. (26th Year)

Chicago 414-416 Steinway Hall
Baltimore Md. Munsey Bldg.
New York, N. Y. Flatiron Bldg.
Kansas City, Mo. New York Life Bldg.
Spokane, Wash. Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

COMMENCEMENT, SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL

A richly varied program was the one prepared to exemplify the methods and attractions of the Sherwood Music School, and set forth in the always satisfactory assembly room of the Fine Arts Building. A large audience was present more than ready to show how fully it entered into the enjoyment of the occasion. There were many flowers for the performers. Miss Georgia Kober and her aids set a fine example of handsome attire, which was followed largely by the graduates, and thus all the attending needs were present to make the event take on the festive spirit which lifts a commencement above the ordinary concert.

As was to be expected, the piano playing was to the front, and once more Miss Kober was the dominating, fusing element, playing with that big sweeping way that is peculiarly her own and is a nerveing, energizing element in calling the best from her associates. There were excerpts from the piano concertos of Arensky, Grieg, Mendelssohn, Sauer, and the Liszt "Preludes," all for two pianos. Except in the case of the Mendelssohn, Miss Kober was at the second piano. The Mendelssohn had an adequate presentation, just a little unsteady in places, but Madeline Chadwich and Miss Marley had a feeling for the serenity and unaffected simplicity of the work and made it a significant contrast to the always stunning Grieg, which preceded it. Somewhere this concerto has a vitality which allows of so much fecundity of expression, that each interpreter can be personal and not fail to be interesting. Miss Elsa Barwig disclosed qualities of such intensity as to be almost feverish, but there seemed weight and balance always which kept impetuosity in such leash that the study was pregnant with pleasure. Miss Cornelia Bue felt the pulsation and warmth of the Arensky excerpt and was felicitous in the variety of color she infused into the too oft repeated main theme of the movement. This is a fine work barring the possibility of the monotonous repetition referred to. Those of us who heard Sauer play his concerto, some years ago, rejoiced in Miss Gladys Smith's reintroduction of its manifold charms. It is a pianist's concerto, just filled to overflowing with musical ideas developed to a fascinating result by a master hand and mind. Miss Smith was fully equal to its exactions and left a vivid impression of the evening's satisfactions, for it was the last number heard.

Vocal numbers were also in evidence and with one exception, were lifted into a certain prominence by the value of the accompaniments which George Ralph Kurtz supplied. These were thoroughly sane and supporting, without any of the affectations of the half-light that sometimes hide themselves or any of the assertive moments that too often obtrude. They were always picturesque; assisting, musicianly and to be commended as speaking in an original, helpful way. Miss Sylva A. Roder, who was accompanied by her teacher, was set down for David's "Brilliant Bird," but substituted the "Fors e Lui," from "Traviata" and did it with freedom and elasticity in the use of her naturally flexible lyric voice. Joseph J. Kendrick made a strong presentation of the Clough-Leigher "Possession," built on stately lines and calling for decided gifts of temperament and good schooling. Miss Hazel Harris, who has been the recipient of much former praise, met with a fine degree of equipment, the demands of the "Louise" aria, so grateful to all sopranos. Here is a voice of rare natural quality, which with added culture and experience should carry its owner to real heights in her career.

Miss Luella Chapman gave a quite unique reading that filled unto the uppermost thoughts of men, and incidentally allowed a manifestation of the honor of country, which people readily grasp at nowadays. She was a bit embarrassed when her audience arose as she began to sign the "Star Spangled Banner," but met the emergency cleverly.

R. C. Allard, the manager, gave a rapid fire, but elucidating talk of the plans of the school and there was an address by J. J. Tobias. "With Verdure Clad," attributed to Verdi, by some error and sung by Helen Heading, and in the Liszt "Preludes," Lyle Comstock was at the first piano. These, with the distribution of diplomas, occurred after the reviewer had retired.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

GRACE RENEE CLOSE

One of the most active of the younger singers is Grace Renee Close, mezzo soprano, who is booked for the coming season almost as far west as the coast.

Miss Close has just closed a very busy season having appeared during the month of April in twenty-two recitals, six of them being joint recitals with the eminent baritone, David Bispham.

This singer is not only the possessor of a beautiful voice and the gift of rare interpretation, but she has a most attractive personality which endears her to the public. Many of Miss Close's engagements for the coming season are return ones in cities where she has made so many friends and admirers. Assisting Miss Close is Alta Kathryn Rall, pianist, accompanist, a talented young woman who is receiving most favorable mention from the public and press alike. Miss Rall is also a splendid organist being frequently engaged with Miss Close for dedications and sacred recitals.

COLUMBUS AND CENTRAL OHIO

Harold L. McCall, tenor, and Ralph H. McCall, basso, two accomplished brothers, were heard in song recital recently at the studio of Professor Samuel Richards Gaines. They were assisted by Miss Mabel Black, soprano, and Miss Ruth Immel, contralto.

Violin pupils of Miss Cecelia Burke and piano pupils of Miss Elizabeth Burke, gave a joint recital in the studio of the Misses Burke Saturday afternoon.

Miss Frances Smith appeared in a senior recital Wednesday evening, June 2, at Sanborn Hall of Ohio Wesleyan University. Miss Smith is one of the highly talented pupils of Professor Harry N. Wiley of the Delaware, Ohio, school. Her home is in Des Moines, Ia.

The Creators Band has been touring Ohio cities for several weeks.

At Ohio State University Tuesday afternoon an important musical event was the dedication of the chimes recently added to the college equipment. Each class from 1906 to 1910 staged an act in celebration of the event.

Miss Carrie Porter, soprano, appeared recently with Mrs. Maud Wentz McDonald in a musical program for the Columbus Masons.

Professor Harry N. Wiley of the School of Music of Ohio Wesleyan University is in California attending the festival of the American Federation of Music. He will spend the summer at North Amherst, Mass., and return to Delaware, Ohio, next fall. Professor Wiley is one of Ohio's recognized leaders in the music profession, and has attained great success at the Ohio Wesleyan Conservatory.

Mr. Gordon S. Battelle of Dayton appeared recently in the presentation of "Pinafore" at Ashland, Ky.

With a chorus of 160 voices Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," was presented Monday afternoon and Tuesday evening in the Ohio State University Armory, by the University Choral Union. The union is under the direction of Professor A. R. Barrington.

At Youngstown this month the music festival plans include concerts by Paul Althouse, Christine Miller, the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, and others.

Evan Williams has been secured to open the senior lecture course at Ohio Wesleyan University next year. Others to appear are Jenny Defau and the Chicago Oratorio Quartet.

In sixty cities in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, this summer Redpath Chautauquas will be held, and among the musical

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—To sublet studio in Kimball Hall one afternoon or part of two afternoons each week; Grand piano. Call at 322 Friday afternoon, or address "Studio," care Music News.

WANTED—Experienced player wants position for the coming season as studio or concert accompanist; violin or voice. Mrs. Helen H. Morgan, 3834 Lake Park avenue. Phone Oakland 5272.

FOR SALE—Pipe organ; three-manual, tubular pneumatic, 38 stops, complete couplers and accessories; seven years old, and in good condition; now in a Chicago church; will have to be moved to make way for a larger one; will be moved and erected, ready to play, for $4,000. A real bargain for some large church or music studio. Instrument can be seen and heard by addressing F. D. Music News.

TO RENT—A fine front studio in Fine Arts Bldg., with three windows overlooking the lake; beautifully furnished; at very reasonable rates for July, August and September. Address H. Music News.

WANTED—To sublet studio in Fine Arts Bldg.; two afternoons a week. Can be had during summer or next season.

CHARLOTTE BURTON
"THE VIOLINIST"
1106 E GROVE ST
BLOOMINGTON ILL

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

attractions will be Marcus A. Kellerman, dramatic baritone; Ferullo and his band; the Elwyn Company, consisting of Thomas Lewis, Welsh baritone, Priscilla Carver, pianist, and Leonardo Fristrom, violinist; the Kentucky Entertainers, consisting of A. J. Spiegel of Chicago, Miss Ruth Chastain Haines and Miss Olive Robertson of Kentucky, and the Chicago Ladies' Singing Party, including Misses Alice Wright Baker, Mary Welch and Gertrude Harris. Among the cities where these artists will appear are Springfield, Ohio., Wheeling, Huntington and Charleston, W. Va., Youngstown, Findlay, Mansfield, Ashtabula and Warren, Ohio, and Ashland and Maysville, Ky.

Of the artists who appeared at the North Shore festival in Chicago recently, several are to be in Columbus next season, including Frieda Hempel, Pasquale Amato, Evan Williams, Clarence Whitehill, Margaret Keyes, Yolando Mero, and others.

Beginning in July the Columbus Oratorio Society will issue a monthly bulletin covering the many interests of the organization.

IN RE THE BACH FESTIVAL A Letter

Editor, Music News.

Chicago, Ill.

Esteemed Sir:—

In view of the fact, that I had the honor of reviewing the recent Bach Festival, in this city, in the interest of your splendid publication, and, apropos of certain published statements emanating from the pen of the "learned critic" of the "New York Sun," I have taken up my pen in just defense of the persons so unfairly criticised by the "learned critic" in his review of the aforesaid festival.

Obviously tyrants are not all entirely extinct yet, neither do they always occupy King's thrones—some even essay to sit in solemn and arrogant judgement upon the achievements of men, who, by their zeal, combined with many years of unremitting toil and study have produced unparalleled results, and placed their work upon such a high plane of perfection that criticism of any sort, when emanating from one person alone, becomes near sacrilege, for after all it is the opinion of the masses, which really stamps an undertaking with success, or failure—and not the opinion of one man, who, when it comes to a matter of taking the place of the individual he has criticised, would find himself sinking into oblivion at the rate of several miles a minute.

There are two statements of the "learned critic" of the New York Sun to which I wish to take emphatic exception, viz., "Louis Kreidler, late of the Century Opera Company, displayed small acquaintance with the spirit of Bach, and less with the style of his music"; also, "Celebrity placed its curse upon the enterprise. . . . a ceremonial function designed to celebrate Bethlehem and Wolle, rather than the immortal cantor of the Thomas School of Leipsic."

Both of the above statements are absurd! In the first place Mr. Louis Kreidler displayed more familiarity with the spirit of Bach, and the style of his music, than any of the baritones the writer has ever heard in the Bach festivals, or in the interpretation of Bach's music anywhere. And I should hasten to add that I have heard most of the notable performances of Bach's works during the last twenty years—and this is the statement of every member of the Bach choir, including its eminent conductor, Dr. J. Fred Wolle, who has probably forgotten more about Bach than the "learned critic" will ever know—and also the sentiment of the majority of the audience.

In the second place, all who know Dr. Wolle just a little bit, know him to be modest and unassuming to a painful degree, hence the second statement quoted from the writings of the "learned critic" becomes in addition to its absurdity a gross insult to Bethlehemites in general, and particularly to the man who has given his life up to the study of the immortal works of the master of masters, Johann Sebastian Bach, and who produced those works with the aid of his faithful singers, with glorious success, and then crept into his shell too modest to bear even the commendation of his beloved Bach, "Well done thou good and faithful servant," borne to him on the wings of the spirit from out the long corridors of the past.

In conclusion I cannot help observing that the "learned critic" even forgot to sign his name to his review of the Bach festival.

Very truly yours,

EARLE CEASERO.

THE MACBURNEY STUDIOS

A program was given at the MacBurney studios on Monday evening, which was a model of elegance and which was sung in a way to prove that the recital giver had thoroughly sensed the meaning of each number and had applied both brains and musical feeling to its interpretation.

Each piece, standing alone—was fine, while the composite of the whole was unusually agreeable and as thoroughly worthy.

The program here follows:

Intermezzo	Schumann
In the Forest	Schumann
In Slumber I See Thee	Schumann
A Summer Night	Schumann
The Soldier's Bride	Schumann
Dream in the Twilight	Strauss
From Her Balcony Green	Wolf
The Mouse-trap	Wolf
Song to Spring	Wolf
Lilac Time	Cyril Scott
Be Ye in Love With April Tide?	Ward-Stephens
He Sent Me You	Burleigh
O Fleet Little Fairy	Sibella
'Twas Long Ago	LaForge
Star-Trysts	Marion Bauer
Mary of Allendale	H. Lane Wilson
Spring Morning	H. Lane Wilson

Miss Marcia Glover Higginson, the singer of this program, is to be congratulated for her poise and patience no less than for the above mentioned musical qualities.

For her recital was scheduled for the same hour as the great parade of the Advertisers' meeting and as the grand stand was on Michigan avenue, directly opposite the Fine Arts Building, it followed that her program was well punctured by brass bands, tooting horns, shouting crowds and even an occasional singing group.

Nevertheless, she exercised the greatest possible concentration and the audience joined her in an effort to exclude the outer noises so that—after all, the total of pleasure afforded by the program was great, especially, also, in view of the fine pianistic back ground provided by Mr. John Doane.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
 4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
 Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON
 SOPRANO
 520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
 COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
 OLENE WALLIS
 BERTHA THOMAS
 JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
 ELSIE RAWLE
 WALTER BRAUER
 JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
 JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
 MARGARET TARRANT
 JENNIF BOWMAR RICKETT

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

48th YEAR
CLARA BAUR, Foundress

Conduct-
ed according to the advanced methods
of the most progressive
European Conserva-
tories.

M. ALFRED NONNOT
French Language and Diction

A Faculty of INTER-
NATIONAL REPU-
TATION. Location ideal.
Residence department with superior equipment.

Literature,
Expression,
MUSIC,
Language and
Dramatic Art

Special Features:

Opera and Dramatic
Classes, Post Graduate and
Repertoire Courses, Orchestra and Chorus, Advanced
Composition, Normal
Courses, Most Modern
Methods in Juvenile Training.

All Departments open
throughout the Summer.
Special Summer Courses
in Public School Music.
Exceptional opportunities for
Public Work. Professional
Engagements for Graduates.

Students Enrolled At Any Time
For Catalogue Address

MISS BERTHA BAUR
Directress
Highland Avenue and Oak Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

A NEW MUSIC MEMORY SYSTEM

So little is really known definitely about memorizing by most students and many teachers that any new system tending to simplify the subject is taken up with eagerness.

Hence, the new Squire Music Memory System, discovered, developed and taught by Belle Squire, has created much comment and investigation.

As a matter of public information on a very important subject we quote as follows from the circular explaining this method:

Since the time of Liszt, who is said to have made the innovation, it has gradually come to pass that the pianist who cannot perform his art from memory is absolutely out of the race. He is eliminated from the game. A well stored, dependable memory is the artist's chief requirement. It is the culmination, the flower of his musical education, and he must either possess naturally a reliable memory or acquire one as best he may.

There are not a few geniuses who possess this gift of memory, and many who by tremendous and exacting labor acquire a semblance of it, but the memory feats of ordinary mortals and many talented ones as well are usually the result of some "hit or miss" method by which the whole nervous system of the player is keyed up to a disastrous pitch until after a certain date on the calendar is canceled. When the dreaded event is finally over, if the player does not himself collapse, his memory is likely to do so. Only the printed program remains to prove that once for a brief space of time he was master of certain music pieces.

This is an age of scientific achievement and the Squire System of Music Memorization is simply music memorizing reduced to an exact science, with definite rules of procedure followed by definite results, chief among which are the following:

1. Economy of Time, Energy and Effort.
2. Increased Memory Capacity.
3. Elimination of Fear, Nervousness and Stage-fright.
4. Accurate Memory Made Permanent.

The Squire Music Memory System is a new and original educational method by which the various memories—eye, ear, muscle and intellectual memories—are simultaneously developed and trained to work in harmony. It is a rational scheme for increasing the mental efficiency of music students by scientific means, but in accordance with natural law. The natural law on which it is based was accidentally discovered by Miss Squire some six years ago in an effort to recover her own music memory which at that time seemed hopelessly gone—demoralized, like many another, by the usual haphazard methods of memorizing with their inevitable attendants—unreliable memory, nervous panic before, after and during the ordeal of playing even before friends! Having herself suffered the agonies of stage-fright and knowing to the full its demoralizing after effects, she was able to realize the immense importance of the discovery of an underlying principle, when later she found herself not only free from fear while playing, but memorizing with ease from ten to twelve different pieces at the same time! In her enthusiasm she developed the idea, upon which she had stumbled, into an educational system which, for want of a better one, she called by her own name, for name it had to have.

The positive results of scientific memory are said to be economy of time, energy and effort.

CLARA EDMUNDS HEMINGWAY

The following comment is from the Gary (Ind.) Tribune:

About one hundred and fifty persons attended the original composition recital which was given yesterday afternoon in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. by Mrs. Clara Edmunds Hemingway. The recital proved to be one of the best ever given here and was greatly appreciated by the large audience composed of Gary Musical Club members and other music lovers of the city. The recital was a complimentary one to the members of the Gary Musical Club and their friends.

Mrs. Hemingway, who is one of the most talented musicians in the club, is an artist of rare ability, being a reader, soloist, pianist and whistler. All the compositions which she presented yesterday were entirely original and her talent was displayed in every selection. (Advertisement)

ALINE VAN BARENTZEN

Some additional press comment reads as follows:

Aline van Barentzen, who has studied with Herr von Dohnanyi, made a very successful first appearance in London at Aeolian Hall on Monday afternoon. Not only has she a technic large enough to reckon easily with modern demands, but her playing in Liszt's transcription of Bach's "Organ Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor," and Beethoven's "Eroica" and Brahms' "Paganini Variations" had a virility and largeness of style very remarkable for her years, while her interpretation of Schumann's "Papillons" had notable fancy and delicacy. A thoughtful, earnest pianist, with a clear, confident technic and a delightful touch.—London Times, June, 1913.

It is seldom that so favorable an impression is made on a first appearance as that created by Aline van Barentzen, a youthful pianist at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. There is no branch of her art with which Miss van Barentzen is not on terms of the utmost familiarity. She appears to revel in technical difficulties and to overcome them with the confident ease of maturity. Her range of expression is wide and always musicianly, and her intellectual outlook is abnormally developed. Her playing of Bach-Liszt "G Minor Organ Fantasia and Fugue" was remarkably strong and at the same time in perfect accordance with the traditional idea; the fugue, in particular, being given with a broad dignity and a sufficient clear emphasis on each recurrence of the subject to make it an unusually strong and vivid interpretation. Beethoven's "Eroica" variations and Schumann's "Papillons" were treated with faultless execution.—The Standard, London, England, June 24, 1913.

Miss van Barentzen plays with great temperament. She also has necessary strength for dynamic effects as well as the amount of technic for all difficulties and finesse to bring out the poetical sentiment in the rendering of the pieces. After each number she was warmly applauded, especially the Chopin number, which was received with great acclamation.—Magyarorszag, Budapest, April 9, 1914. (Advertisement)

ROSE LUTIGER GANNON

Press excerpts on Rose Lutiger Gannon's work in the Verdi "Requiem" at a concert given by the Irish Choral Society of Chicago:

Rose Lutiger Gannon, the contralto, was capital.—Ronald Webster in Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Gannon sang with skill and enthusiasm.—Felix Borowski in Record-Herald.

Admirable singing was done by Rose Lutiger Gannon, the contralto.—Mr. Moore in Chicago Journal.

Mrs. Gannon has an excellent voice and is a routinized singer.—Chicago Evening Post.

Rose Lutiger Gannon, one of Chicago's best known vocalists, maintained her reputation for beauty of performance.—Chicago Daily News. (Advertisement.)

BISPHAM as In the one act
BEETHOVEN play "Adelaide" supported by a specially selected company.

Part II.—Miscellaneous concert by Bispham and Company, entitled, "The Rehearsal."
Management R. E. JOHNSTON, 1451 Broadway, NEW YORK

GRACE MARCUSSEN
BRUNE
ORATORIO . . . SOPRANO . . . RECITALS
609 Fine Arts Building

FRANCES INGRAM
CONTRALTO
Management: C. A. SHAW, Orchestra Hall, CHICAGO
MAURICE FULCHER, Representative, McCormick Bldg.

IDA GARDNER
CONTRALTO
Management Walter Anderson, 171 W. 57th St., New York

GEORGE MILTON LIPSCHULTZ
Teacher Violinist Soloist
1117 South California Avenue Tel. Seeley 4074

Books and Music

REVIEWED BY H. J. W.

Fundamental Piano Method, by Albert Locke Norris. Price $1.00. (The Boston Music Co.)

The specialty of this new addition to the hundred and one "methods" now before the public is the Arm-Weight Touch. The book is divided into two parts, and the first part into lessons. The lessons, again, are each subdivided into two parts—Technical and Mental; although technic is largely mental and trained mentally is technic, as the treatment of the subjects bears out. Perhaps a more exact definition of the subdivisions would be practice and theory. Numerous photographs illustrate the exercises, the theoretical material is added gradually, and the usual little pieces and duets are furnished for the pupil's advancement. The second part brings in some subjects, which are not always found in instruction books, such as elementary studies of motive, phrase, and pedaling, and these are of advantage to the work. Mechanically the book is attractive.

The Song, by George P. Upton. Price $1.00. (Chicago: A. C. McClurg & Co.)

A treatise on the evolution of Song from its earliest days, and in the various subdivisions of its thematic material—as to text—is both interesting and valuable as a reference work. There are chapters upon Love songs, Patriotic songs, Negro minstrelsy, Sea songs, Hunting songs, Drinking songs and Sacred songs, besides some others on matters of general application. That upon Love songs is quite amusing, the texts of the older ballads of this class containing much that seems bathos to our modern minds. In the chapter entitled "Birth of the Song," there are comparisons between the heartfelt sincerity and beauty of the old ballads and the eccentricities of modern music. The latter are likened to the oddities of the Cubist school or fad in painting and a sonata by Schoenberg is said to be as formless and meaningless as "The Uncle Descending the Stairs." We can only suppose the picture alluded to is the famous "Nude Descending a Staircase," never having heard of an avuncular relative being portrayed in the act. The comparison, when divested of this startling innovation, is a good one.

There are lists of the famous old and semi-modern songs appended, arranged in classes according to the chapters; and just preceding this final section of the book is a little chapter of one page, headed in fanciful manner, "Cadenza." It is a tribute to the ineffaceable memory of Jenny Lind, one of those luminous stars among the singers who form the living link between song in written characters and song to the ear of the public. Not many now living will remember the Swedish nightingale's spectacular triumphs in this country in 1850, and it is little wonder that those who witnessed any of the same remember them.

Mr. Upton's attractive book has the full texts of many songs and hymns, a copy of the St. Cecilia of Domenichino, and a good index.

§ § §

School of Violin Technics, by Henry Schradieck. Edited by Franz C. Bornschein. Books I, II and III. (Oliver Ditson.)

A fine edition of these standard violin studies is here presented. Explanatory notes head the different sections, and an introduction with detailed directions for work is supplied by the editor.

§ § §

The Three R's, a music primer for the violin student, by Elizabeth Fyffe. Price $1.25 net. (G. Schirmer.)

The system used in this book is based on the idea that the young student should first be given the desire to do something musical, and then the means necessary are supplied to him as required; which is scientifically correct, according to latest pedagogical principles. The work is well arranged and well printed and containing much of novelty is, therefore, of the greatest interest. Photographs of hand positions are given.

§ § §

Chopin Nocturnes and Chopin Waltzes, edited by Klindworth. Prices 75 cents and 50 cents, respectively. (Ditson edition.)

New and excellent editions of these staple works will always find a market. As there is nothing absolutely perfect, the volumes before us doubtless make some improvements upon all preceding ones, in matters of phrasing, fingering or notation.

§ § §

Reliquary of English Song, collected and edited by Frank Hunter Potter. Price $1.25 net. (G. Schirmer.)

This collection of fifty-two old English songs, ranging from cir. 1250 to 1700 A. D., is a perfect work of art. It seems to us that it should have been bound in full calf at the least, and that a paper cover is altogether unworthy of it. From the illuminating Introduction and the illumined facsimile of "Sumer is icumen in," to the last page of the book, all is thoroughly admirable. There are descriptive notes relating to the songs and their authors, some other reproductions of MSS. and a double index.

§ § §

SHEET MUSIC

Arrangement is alphabetical both as to publishers, composers, and titles.

Boosey & Co., New York

SONGS

Percy Bowie, "Daffadowndilly"; A. Herbert Brewer, "Mine"; Harold Craxton, "Timothy"; Francis Dorel, "Love Bells"; Herbert Oliver, "On the March"; Harold Samuel, "The Call of the Roses"; Edwin Schneider, "When the Dew Is Falling"; C. Linn Seiler, "Love's Offertory"; T. Wilkinson Stephenson, "Ships That Pass in the Night"; R. H. Walthew, "To Pyrrha."

A singer cannot go far wrong in giving all the Boosey songs a trial, as they are invariably good on at least nine points out of ten. By which token each of the above should have special mention, but space forbids, except to refer to the quaint brevity of "Timothy's" "Thank God!" the luring lilt of "Love Bells," the prevalence of nonharmonic dissonances in "Love's Offertory," and the sadness and deep feeling of "Ships That Pass in the Night." The rich harmonies of this song well bear out the sense of Longfellow's words. There is an interlude, simple and of only three measures, which contains a world of eloquence. The first chords of "When the Dew Is Falling" have an odd effect upon one, like "bells at eventide."

§ § §

W. U. Czamanske, Cheboygan, Mich.

W. U. Czamanske, "Hoist the Banner of the Gospel"; F. Reuter, "Sing Together While You May" (octavo).

These are called "anthems," but appear to us as conventional gospel hymns, a trifle longer than the average. They should be useful in their right place, being grammatical and singable, if not remarkable.

§ § §

Oliver Ditson Co., Boston

SONGS

Charles W. Cadman, "Memories"; Henri Duparc, "Phidyle"; Fay Foster, "The King"; Miner W. Gallup, "Her Rose" "So Long Ago"; Helen Hopekirk, "Hush-a-by, Darling"; H. Alexander Mathews, "A Morning in Spring"; Marion Rogers, "Impression"; Cornelius Ruebner, "Indeed Most Wonderful it Must Be"; "When You Wander Through the Fields"; G. Waring Stebbins, "Morning"; Tschaiakowsky, "If You But Knew," "Whether Day Dawns"; Ambrose Thomas, "Ne'er Dreamed the Tender Maid" (Mignon).

PIANO

John Alden Carver, "Evening Song"; Brahms, "Hungarian Dance, No. 7 in F," "Intermezzo in A and B Flat"; Adolf Frey, "Elevation"; Miner Walden Gallup, "Valse Gracieuse"; Carl Wilhelm Kern, "Love and Sunshine"; Gustave Lazarus, "Court Minuet," "Dream Sprites," "Grandmother's Dance," "Round Dance," "Rustic Minuet"; Cedric W. Lemont, "An April Shower"; Walter Rolfe, "Rendezvous of the Roses"; Frederick A. Williams, "A Summer Idyl."

PIANO DUETS

Charles W. Cadman, "Mister Policeman"; Moskowski, "Serenata"; Verdi-Roger, quartet from "Rigoletto."

ORGAN

Clifford Demarest, "Aria in D"; William Faulkes, "Berceuse in G."

VIOLIN AND PIANO

Carl Bohm, "Siciliano"; B. Godard, "Berceuse in G"; C. W. Lemont, "The Dancers"; Karl Rissland, "La Danseuse," "Legende."

VIOLONCELLO AND PIANO

Bartlett, "A Dream"; Cadman, "At Dawning," "Indian Summer"; Eugene Cowles,

EARLE CEASERO

TENOR Recitals
21 North Centre Street Bethlehem, Pa.

ELLMER ZOLLER

ACCOMPANIST COACH
tel Wellington, 7th Ave. and 55th St., NEW YORK

F
R
A
N
KVan Dusen PIANO ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON
4335 Ellis Avenue SOPRANOEdna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADE
Piano Christ Episcopal Church Organ
65th St. and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary STEELE
Hinman
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL
KIMBALL HALL TENOR CHICAGOHarriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL
OF MUSICClarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Bldg. CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing---
STUDIO, 521 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Bldg. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst
PIANIST 1553 Highland AvenueGAYLORD YOST American Violinist
ADDRESS
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYMarie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO CONCERTS, ORATORIO, RECITALS
719 Park Av., Wilmette, Ill. Phone Wilmette 849-RDR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso
Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 South Wabash Avenue 2nd FloorSilas Wright MountzVocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
CONCERT and ORATORIO BASSO CANTANTE
Studio 1651 6th Avenue Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. MONZEL MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.J. S. FEARIS & BRO.
Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

"Forgotten"; William Dichmont, "Thinking of You."

GUITAR

G. C. Santisteban, "Adios" (Lopez), "In Happy Moments" (V. Wallace), Two Hawaiian airs, "Badinage," "Home, Sweet Home," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

MANDOLIN AND PIANO

Verdi-Odell, selection from "Aida."

Prominent among the songs stands out the mighty name of Tschaiowsky, and not only for the name alone. "If You But Knew" is perfect art, the form comparatively simple, but the harmonies gorgeous, and thematic treatment and rhythm fascinating. It is another example of this composer's strange faculty of bringing to the threshold of expression that quality we call the ineffable, and which affects so profoundly. A French version of the original Russian text is given and an excellently adapted English translation of the same. "Whether Day Dawns," is rather more elaborate in its construction and yet more ordinary in its sentiment. There are important instrumental sections for opening and conclusion, strongly suggestive of orchestra. Another fine song is Ruebner's "Indeed Most Wondrous It Must Be"; although the same composer's "When You Wander Through the Fields" may appeal more to the average musician than the others, or the Tschaiowsky numbers. This apparently implied slight to the "average musician" only means that when a great artist expresses the best that he knows, it must necessarily be beyond the full comprehension of those on the lower (not necessarily low) planes of art.

Duparc's "Phidyle" exemplifies the modern trend. It is a complicated song, with many different divisions, movements and keys and the harmonies are often very rich and effective, at other times odd and unaccustomed, though not extreme. The song is an impassioned apostrophe to a fair one, "Marguerite." The songs of Miner Walden Gallup are of a high quality, "So Long Ago" being preferred of the two before us. The text is rather enigmatical, but a profound sentiment is apparent in the composition. "A Morning in Spring," by Mathews, is another good musicianly song with a strong accompaniment.

There is nice feeling in Alden's "Evening Song," for piano, a melody in D flat, 12-8 time, carried mostly in right-hand octaves. The harmonies are euphonious. Frey's "Elevation" is also a melody in the same key. "Love and Sunshine," (Kern), has the easy attractiveness of spontaneity. The Lazarus pieces comprise regulation second and third grade teaching material, to which might be added William's "A Summer Idyl."

For organ, we can conscientiously recommend the Faulkes "Berceuse in G" as very effective and yet easy.

All the 'cello and piano arrangements are done by Karl Rissland, and include well-known songs to the expressiveness of which the 'cello can do full justice.

h h h

Thomas J. Donlan, New York

Dorothy Foster, "Come, for It's June," "A Wild, Wild Rose" (songs).

A couple of songs, pleasing for both singer and hearer.

Music Art Shop, Chicago

Lulu Jones Downing, "Memory-Land" (recitation with piano). A pretty improvisation accompanies the little poem of sentiment by James P. Whedon. The composition will only require a minute or two for performance, but should be useful to readers who use this class of piece.

h h h

G. Schirmer, New York

SONGS

Helen Hopekirk, "Blows the Wind Today," "The Song of Glen Dun," "The Voice of the Mountains"; Mana Zucca, "If Flowers Could Speak."

PIANO

Helen Hopekirk, "Dance," "Prelude," "A Reverie."

ORGAN

Alberto Bimboni, "Preludio e Fuga"; R. Friml, "Russian Romance"; Pietro A. Yon, "Second Concert Study."

VIOLIN AND PIANO

Valentina Crespi, "Steluta," "Variations on a Roumanian Air"; Maurice Goldblatt, "Butterfly," "Elaine," "A Love Song," "Rosalind."

'CELLO AND PIANO

Maurice Goldblatt, "Rosalind"; Leo Smith, "Sarabande," "Two Gavottes."

OCTAVO

Carl R. Diton, "Four Jubilee Songs" (five-part mixed chorus).

The Hopekirk compositions, both songs and piano pieces, are good in quality—harmonically inclined to be free and odd in tonality here and there. The piano pieces are written as by one who knows the instrument. "If Flowers Could Speak" is very singable; the text is of the conventional love song order.

For organ, Bimboni's "Preludio e Fuga" is a distinguished work of some difficulty from the executive standpoint, but of probably more musically. The composition is not of the obvious or commonplace order in any way, and some imposing effects are introduced. A fragment of Plainsong is used as thematic material in the prelude and introduced against the fugue subject, full organ, at the conclusion of the work. Friml's graceful "Russian Romance" is arranged by F. W. Holloway and contains some of those one-hand-on-two-manuals effects, in bringing out a counter melody. For showiness and pedal practice Yon's "Second Concert Study" will appeal to many. It belongs to the order of strenuousness and will be most effective when not taken too seriously. The violin and 'cello numbers are all agreeable compositions, suitable for instruction or entertainment. We are a trifle mystified as to why a simplified version of Goldblatt's "A Love Song" should be called "Elaine." Because it is only a part of the love song perhaps. All the two-voiced work (doubled stopping) is omitted.

The jubilee songs arranged by Diton are extremely interesting and well done. They express the religious sentiments of the old-time negro, both texts and music conveying genuine camp meeting spirit. The titles are "Pilgrim's Song," "Deep River," "Little David, Play on Your Harp" and "Every Time I Feel the Spirit." Their novelty and the high quality of the musical arrangements should attract many singing societies.

DIRECTORY

Addresses are Chicago unless otherwise stated

ACCOMPANISTS

BOLGER Mayme E. (Phone Humboldt 1257)
1916 Potomac Av.
BROWNE Helen M. (Phone Graceland 7714)
4308 Greenview Avenue
CAMPBELL Gordon (Phone Rogers Park 943)
Cosmopolitan School of Music
DEVINE Mildred J. (Violin, Voice)
11 Rugby Place Elgin Ill.
DIETCH Sidney Arno (Phone Highland Park 1144)
609 Fine Arts Building
DOANE John (Tel. Wabash 8988)
608 Fine Arts Building
FRAM Arthur (Sherwood School)
Phonograph Harrison 2255, Wabash 5007
GOLDKETTE Jean (Tel. Wellington 5735)
1317 Byron St.
GROVE Grace (Home Phone Lincoln 559)
609 Fine Arts Building
HENDERSON Helen Gallup (Tel. Seeley 465)
2234 Jackson Blvd.
HUGHES Violet Martens (Tel. Graceland 6539)
715 Kimball Hall
KEESLER Grace E. (Tel. Humboldt 4569)
714 Kimball Hall
KURTZ George Ralf (Organist)
111 S. Ashland Blvd. (Tel. Haymarket 1262)
LESTER William (Phone Midway 8888)
419 Fine Arts Bldg.
McALLISTER Bessie (Chicago Piano College)
5629 S. Blvd. (Tel. Wabash 4606)
NELSON Edgar A. (Phone Edgewater 9832)
Bush Temple Conservatory
ORCHARD Mrs. Charles 1535 Hyde Park Av.
Hayden (Tel. Seeley 1147)
OWENS 2112 Washington Boulevard
PLATZ Arthur F. (Tenor) Tel. Harrison 2074
523 Fine Arts Bldg.
REITERMAN Mabel (Phone Austin 5171)
6748 W. Lake St.
SCHEIB Eleanor W. (Phone Superior 4232)
45 Bellevue Pl.
SHYNNMAN J. L. (Home Tel. Belmont 553)
510 Fine Arts Bldg. (Tel. Wabash 2583)
Ruth (Oak Park, Ill.)
SIMMONS 622 N. Kenilworth Av. (Tel. O. P. 6249)
Beulah Lee (Tel. Rogers Park 1679)
TAYLOR (Organ) 1712 Lunt Ave.
Mrs. Eben (Tel. 918-J, LaGrange)
52 Seventh Av. LaGrange, Ill.
WADHAMS Al Meda. Phone Diversey 8470
2434 Burling St.
WALD Max R.
716 Fine Arts Building
WHITMORE Edna L. Organ and Piano (Tel. O. P. 3029)
621 S. Ridgeland Av. Oak Park

BANDS AND ORCHESTRAS

DEPEW Harry (Phone, Central 5478)
R. 715 54 W. Randolph Street

COMPOSERS

BOYD Jeanne M. (Tel. Harrison 2074)
523 Fine Arts Bldg.
DELLERS Walter (Phone River Forest 2647)
421 Kimball Hall
JUST Rob't H. (Wis. College Music, Milwaukee)
5054 Kenwood Av. (Tel. Hyde Park 7186)
LEMONT Cedric W.
712 Fine Arts Bldg.
SHIPMAN Vera Brady (Ft. Smith, Ark. Times-Record)
Chicago address—7539 Colfax Av.

CONDUCTORS

BALLMAN M. (Orchestra and Band)
1257 Foster Ave.
BOEPLER Wm. (Chorus and Orchestra)
929 Edgewood Pl. (Tel. Graceland 375)
CRAGUN J. Beach (University of Chicago)
Orchestra and Womens' Glee Club
GINGRICH Irving (Choral & Orch. Conductor)
High School, Miami, Florida
SMITH H. Augustine (Dir. and Lecturer on Chorus)
30 N. Ashland Avenue. (Tel. West 1017)
STEVENS Robert W. (U. of C.)
University Choir and Chorus

DRAMATIC ART

SAYLOR Anna Parker (Tel. Wabash 612)
41 Auditorium Bldg.
STEIN Mrs. Karl Buren (Phone Wabash 9070)
55 Auditorium Building

ENSEMBLES

PHILHARMONIC String Quartet
4053 Warwick Av., Tel. Irving 3543
MALE QUARTETTE Imperial
404 Kimball Hall
ST. CECILIA QUARTETTE Julie Manierr. Mgr
1507 Dearborn Parkway
ZOELLNER Quartette Mgt. Harry Culbertson
Fine Arts Bldg.

HARP

ROGERS Nable Helen (Tel. Midway 6585)
1401 E. 65th Place
ZELENKA-LERANDO Leo
Care Music News.
LUDWIG Marie Tel. Oakland 5139
8963 Langley Av.

MANAGERS

ALLEN Jessamine E. (Tel. Harrison 5865)
Lahee Bureau, 421 Fine Arts Bldg.
ANDERSON Walter (New York)
171 W. 57th Street
BEST O. W. (Phone Midway 2106)
612 Woodlawn Av.
CHOIR BUREAU (Harriet Martin Snow, Dir.)
64 E. Van Buren St., Phone Harr 5661
HAENSEL & JONES New York
Acollan Hall

HEWETT BUREAU Kate Jordan Hewett (Tel. Wabash 5189)
627 Fine Arts Building
GARTON Samuel B. (Tel. Harrison 6662)
Flisk Agency, Steger Bldg.
GRABO F. (Lyon & Healy)
Mgr. Apollo and Metelssohn Clubs.
SHAW & TUCKER Orchestra Hall
Chicago
SHIPMAN Frederick
3835 Flournoy St.
WOLFSON Bureau (New York)
One W. 34th St.

HARPSICHORD

PELTON-JONES Frances (New York)
111 W. 33rd St.

ORGAN

BIRCH Robert R. (Tel. Seeley 4447)
St. Alban's Episcopal Church
BOGEN Allen W. (Harrison 4015)
Kimball Hall
BOYDSTON Florence E. (First Baptist Church, Austin)
329 N. Lockwood Av. (Tel. Austin 29191)
CHRISTIAN Palmer (Phone Keuwood 4018)
Kenwood Evangelical Church
COOK Frances Anne, (Phone Douglas 3908)
644 Woodland Park (6th Pres. Church)
COTSWORTH Albert (Haymarket 5612)
New First Congregational Church
COWAN Phelps (Phone La Grange 963-R)
Immanuel Church, La Grange, Ill.
DEAL Alice R. 715 So. Campbell Av. (Phone Seeley 4210)
Leavitt St. Congregational Church
DOANE John (Phone Evanston 3074)
1812 Sherman Av., Evanston
EDDY Clarence (Concert Organist)
510 Oakwood Boul.
EDWARDS Marie (Tel. Kedzie 228)
Cuyler Av. M. E. Church, Oak Park
FRANCIS J. Henry (Choral Conductor and Composer)
St. John's, Charleston, W. Va.
FRASER Author Randolph (Tel. Oak Park 5749)
Grace Church, Oak Park Ill.
FRYSINGER J. Frank, (Lincoln, Neb.)
University School of Music
GALLUP Emory L. 322 Kimball Hall
St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church
GERBER Ralph M. (Phone Midway 3461)
Temple Israel, 63rd and Michigan Avenue
GOODWIN Hugo
3534 Lake Park Ave.
HAINES Tina Mae (Phone Kenwood 2688)
Organist St. James M. E. Church
HANCOCK Irving C.
Trinity Episcopal Church
HEMINGTON Francis
Church of the Epiphany
HODGE Florence (Edgewater Presbyterian)
4717 Sheridan Road
HOLMES A. Alfred
Kimball Hall
HOLZWORTH Alfred (Phone Blackstone 1281)
Fullerton Ave. Presbyterian Church
HYDE Herbert E. (Organist & Choir Master St. Peters Church) Belmont near Evanston Av., Chicago.
KELLER Walter (800 Fine Arts Bldg.)
Organist, St. Vincents Church.
KNODLE Walter St. Clare
Philadelphia, Pa.
McDUFFEE Mabel H. Garfield Boul. M. E. Church
1187 E. 44th St. (Tel. Kenwood 6872)
Stanley A. (St. Marks Church)
MARTIN Box 172 Evanston Ill.
MATTISON Myrtle E.
California Av. Cong'l Church
MIDDELSCHEUTE Theodore Thomas Orchestra
Orchestra Hall
MIRANDA Max (Organ, Piano, South Bend, Ind.)
Director South Bend Conservatory
MOLINE Lily Wadhams (Phone Diversey 8470)
1st Church of Christ Scientist, Highland Park
MORSE Orwin Allison (First Presbyterian Church)
Morningside Cons., Sioux City, Ia.
MURDOCK Edna (Res. Phone Midway 1692)
American Conservatory
NORTON John W.
St. James Episcopal Church
PRUYN-HALL Edythe (Phone Drexel 4763)
4326 Greenwood Avenue
REEVE William Brooke (St. Lukes, Evanston)
503 Lee Street, Evanston, Ill.
RODEN Stella (Temple Emanuel and Lake View Presbyterian Church)
SCHEVE Edward B. (Grinnell, Ia.)
Iowa College, School of Music
SLADE Mason (Christ Episcopal
66th and Woodlawn Av.
STEVENS Robert W.
Faculty Exchange, University, Chicago
STRONACH Robert (Clerical Presbyterian Church)
6505 Yale Av. (Tel. 6909)
THOMPSON John Winter (Galesburg, Ill.)
Central Congregational Church
VAN DUSEN Frank W.
American Conservatory
WEDERTZ C. Gordon
Chicago Musical College
WILD Harrison M.
Kimball Hall
WYCKOFF Irving O. (Hemenway Church)
1422 Elmwood Av., Evanston, Ill.
ZARING Irene Belden, North Shore Cong'l. Church
4451 N. Winchester Av. Tel. Ravenswood 1418
ZEUCH Wm. E. (Phone Harrison 7664)
812 Fine Arts Building

FLUTE

DE LORENZO Leonardo (Flute Virtuoso)
Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra
MANUFACTURERS & DEALERS

BALDWIN Piano Co.
823 South Wabash Avenue
CABLE Piano Co. (Mason and Hamlin Pianos)
Wabash Avenue and Jackson Boulevard

PIANO

ABERNETHY Patricia (523 Fine Arts Bldg.)
Phone Harrison 2074
ADLER Lois
1804 Kenwood Park Place
AMSTUTZ-ROBERTS Fanny (Valparaiso, Ind.)
Teacher and Accompanist
ANNEN Marie J. (Tel. Wellington 8710)
617 Gary Place
AUSTIN Electa, Organ, 1421 Carmen Avenue
North Shore School of Music
BARTHOLOMEW H. B. (Tel. Wabash 4162)
622 Fine Arts Bldg.
BECKER Gustav L., New York
Steinway Hall
BRUMBAUGH Frances Pearson (Avon-by-the-Sea, N. J.)
Studying with Leopold Godowsky
BELL Daphne Edwards (Tel. O. P. 111)
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.
BEHRENS Cecile M. (New York)
100 West 71st Street.

BIRDSALL Edna J. (Phone Lincoln 4635)
2315 Seminary Av.
BOHNET Cleveland (Tel. Oakland 5240)
3932 Lake Park Ave.
BRAZELTON Edgar A. (Fine Arts Bldg.)
Lyceum (Arts) Conservatory
BROWN Roy David, Spry Music School
Fine Arts Bldg.
BUCHHALTER Simon
427 Fine Arts Building
BUCKLEY Caroline E. (Tel. Oak Park 4564)
815 Pleasant St. Oak Park
BURNHAM Thuel (New York)
The Rausby, West 94th St.
CALZIN Alfred (61 Auditorium Bldg.)
Drake School of Music
CLEOPHAS Mrs. Kirsti (Piano and Voice)
Kensett, Ia.
CLARK Ella M. (La Grange, Ill., (Piano and Organ)
388 N. Ashland Avenue
CLEOPHAS Gertrude (Minneapolis, Minn.)
Brooks-Evans Bldg.
COLE Viola
612 Fine Arts Bldg.
COLLINS Edward (Tel. Harrison 3766)
528 Fine Arts Building
COOKINGHAM Edna Winifred (Phone Irving
1539), 3856 N. 42nd Av.
DANA Lynn B. (Warren, O.)
Dana's Musical Institute
DETWEILER Harry
Bush Temple Conservatory
DENHARD Frank L. (Kimball Hall)
Hinsaw Conservatory
DOELLING Mae (Concert Pianist)
2912 Burling Street
DURNO Jeannette (Tel. Oakland 4638)
4140 Lake Park Av.
EHRHARDT Edward V. (Phone Graceland 5717)
523 Oakdale Av.
EDAM Clarence
Auditorium Bldg.
EMERSON George G.
The Arcade, Cleveland, Ohio
ERST Stephen Adolph
1553 Highland Avenue
FIEBACH Forrest Glenn
Nashville, Mich.
FOX Albert E. (Phone Garfield 8277)
Residence 4208 Wilcox Av.
EPPLING H. Ruth (Tel. Ravenswood 7681)
Granville Av. M. E. Church
FRAZER Arthur (Indianapolis, Ind.)
Indianapolis Conservatory of Music
GEORGE Louise
Chicago Piano College
GODFREY Eleanor F. (Kimball Hall)
Chicago Piano College
GOOD SMITH Ruth B. (Tel. Edgewater 868)
North Shore School of Music
GRANQUIST Arthur
Columbia School of Music
HAAKE Charles J. (Evanston, Ill.)
Northwestern University School of Music
HAAKE Gail Martin (Evanston, Ill.)
Northwestern University School of Music
HANAPEL Rose (Tel. Kenwood 523)
4740 Prairie Ave.
HAUSER Isabel (New York)
The Afftarp, 79 and Broadway
HART Bertha (Auditorium Bldg.)
Cosmopolitan School of Music
HAWKINS Gladys (Tel. Edgewater 8163)
815 Wilson Av.
HENRY Harold (Phone Drexel 7046)
425 Fine Arts Building
HOWLAND Betsy M. (Kimball Hall)
Chicago Piano College
HUNT Emily Parsons (Phone Highland Park 120)
Highland Park, Ill.
IRONS Myrie Tyler (Stevan School of Music)
821 Kimball Hall (Phone Drexel 9205)
JOHNSON Elmer G. (Phone Lakeview 41)
Chicago Piano College Kimball Hall
KING Jessie (Studio)
418-59 E. Van Buren Street
KOBER Georgia (Sherwood Music School)
800 Fine Arts Bldg.
KOHN Theodore (719 Kimball Hall)
5739 Indiana Avenue (Tel. Wentworth 4909)
LA BELLE Guy A. (9th Floor Auditorium Bldg.)
Cosmopolitan School of Music
LA ROCHE Pearl (419 Fine Arts Building)
5510 Indiana Av. Tel. Wentworth 2630
LEVY Henriot (Kimball Hall)
American Conservatory
LEGINSKA Ethel (New York)
Management Haensel and Jones
LIPPITT Robert R.
Carmel-By-The-Sea, Calif.
LOOMIS Clarence (Pianist-Composer)
American Conservatory
MARSHALL Caroline E. (Phone Garfield 9470)
417 S. Central Park Av.
McKAY Louis P., 2 Nelson Pl.
Grand Rapids, Mich.
NEFF Prudence (Birmingham, Ala.)
Southern School of Musical Art
NEUHAUS Estella, (On Tour)
Management J. H. Clifford, (See Adv.)
NYVALL David, Jr. (Tel. Ravenswood 5871)
8257 Foster Av.
OLIVER Mary Lindsay
Moline, Ill.
PAINE Sarah E. (Piano and Flute)
503 W. 62nd St. (Tel. Englewood 2826)
PERSSON Frederick (Phone Irving 1267)
625 Fine Arts Building
PETERSON Edna Gunnar (Tel. Hyde Park 3118)
1352 E. 62nd Street
PILLSBURY Agnes Hope
707 Fine Arts Bldg.
POTTER Grace Stewart
Bush Temple Conservatory
PRAHL Earl Victor (Tel. Superior 8700)
Bush Conservatory
RECKZEH Karl (Res. 4709 N. Artesian Av.)
Chicago Musical College
RICE Emma
Stillman Valle
RING Robert J. (Warsaw, Ind.)
114-12 N. Washington St.
RIVE-KING Julie
Bush Temple Conservatory
ROBINSON Carol (Tel. Superior 4520)
1300 North Dearborn Street
RUSSELL Julia A. (Berwyn, Ill.)
3131 Oak Park Av. Tel. Berwyn 621
RYDER Theodora Sturdivant
4715 Lake Av. (Phone Drexel 8300)
SCIONTI Silvio (Kimball Hall)
American Conservatory
SAMUELSON Arvid (Lincoln)
University of Nebraska
SCHNITZER Germaine (New York)
Met. R. E. Johnston
SCOTT Vivian (Res. Phone Oakland 4638)
Cosmopolitan School of Music
SILBER Sidney (Lincoln, Neb.)
University School of Music

SMITH Lura Schuler (Lincoln, Neb.)
University School of Music
Ella V. (401 Kimball Hall)
1624 Park Av. Phone Seeley 1771
SNELL Allen (Pianist-Teacher)
American Conservatory
Mahel Riggs
Peoria, Ill.
STEAD Bertha M. (Tel. Edgewater 7108)
78 Auditorium Bldg.
STEVENS Pasquale
Wilton, N. H.
TALLARICO Arthur P.
Murfreesboro Tenn.
THOMAS Frank Olin
Wisconsin Conservatory, Milwaukee
THOMPSON Anna (Phone 745 W. Berwyn)
3500 Carroll Av., Berwyn, Ill.
TOMLINSON Paul (Des Moines Iowa)
Drake School of Music
VAN KATWIJK Harold
Bush Temple Conservatory
Alone (New York)
Management R. E. Johnston
VON MICKWITZ Evangeline
522 Kimball Hall
WALLACE Kurt (Phone Graceland 631)
American Conservatory
WANIECK Harmon H. (Kimball Hall)
Chicago Piano College
WATT Henriette (Tel. Diversey 1185)
1930 Lincoln Avenue
WEBER Harry N. (Delaware, Ohio)
Ohio Wesleyan Conservatory
WILEY J. E.
527 Kimball Hall
WILFORD Carolyn Louise
721 Fine Arts Bldg.
WILLARD Kathryn L.
1516 Maller's Bldg.
WILLIAMS Herbert (Tel. Wahash 6253)
20 East Jackson Boulevard
WRIGHTSON Joseph (Tel. Superior 8700)
Bush Conservatory
WYNNE Fannie Bloomfield
5749 Woodlawn Av.
ZEISLER Elmer (York City)
Hotel Wellington, 7th Avenue and 53th Street
ZOLLER

PIPE ORGANS

HENRY PILCHERS SONS Louisville, Ky.
Estimates on request
HINNERS ORGAN CO. Organ Builders
Peoria, Illinois
CASAVANT BROS. Organ Builders
South Haven, Mich.

PUBLISHERS

BOND Carrie Jacobs and Son
726 S. Michigan Avenue
BINGHAM Helena, Care Music News
Western Address, Garfield, Colorado
DITSON Oliver
Boston, Mass.
FEARIS J. S. and Bro.
4547 N. St. Louis Av.
FISCHER (J) and Bro. New York
7 and 11 Bible House
GAMBLE HINGED Music Co.
67 E. Van Buren
GILBERT Music Co. (Tel. Monroe 5550)
130 South Desplains Street
HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE New York
30 Irving Place
KEY Publishing Company
171 W. 57th Street, New York
LYMAN M. B. and Co.
622 Kimball Hall
MacDERMID James G.
Fine Arts Bldg.
SUMMY Clayton F. (Co.)
84 E. Van Buren St.

PIANO TUNING

DEHLE George (Tel. Belmont 1520)
2315 N. Hamlin Av.

PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC

ROBINSON O. E. (Res. Phone Drexel 1871)
American Cons., Kimball Hall

SCHOOLS

AMERICAN Conservatory
Kimball Hall
ANNA GROFF-BRYANT Institute of Vocal Art
Fine Arts Bldg.
Balatka Academy Musical Art (Anna Balatka, Dir.)
41 Auditorium (Tel. Wahash 612)
BIEDERMANN School, Piano and Vocal Art
74 Auditorium Bldg.
BINTLIFF Mrs. Elizabeth Battie
School of Music, Ripon, Wis.
BOEPLER (Wm.) School of Piano and Voice
714 Kimball Hall and 928 Edgecomb Pl.
CHICAGO Bush Temple Cons.
Piano College
Kimball Hall
CHICAGO Opera School (Bergey, Dir.)
430 Fine Arts Bldg.
CHCAPEK Music School 3452 Broadway, Chicago
(J. H. Chapek, Dir., Tel. Graceland 2621)
Chicago Kindergarten Inst. C. C. Cronlsey, Sec.
40 Scott St.
CINCINNATI Conservatory of Music
Highland Av. and Oak St., Cincinnati
COLUMBIA School of Music (Clare Osborne Reed, Dir.)
609 South Wahash Avenue
COSMOPOLITAN School of Music (Harrison 4868)
Auditorium Building
DERDIGER School (Tel. Lincoln 6002)
512 Kimball Hall
DRAKE School of Music
61 Auditorium Bldg.
EFFA ELLIS Music School
550 Mc Churg Building
FAELTEN Planaforte School
Huntington Chambers, Boston
HINSHAW Conservatory of Music
4th Floor, Kimball Hall
HUELSTER School of Music, Suite 406
59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Wahash 5013
ILLINOIS College of Music, C. W. Edwards, Dir.
2831 Washington Boulevard
INTERNATIONAL College of Music Tel. Wahash 5918
63 Auditorium Bldg.
KNOX Conservatory of Music
Wm. F. Bentley, Dir., Galesburg, Ill.
KUPPIN Vocal School, (Tel. Harrison 3766)
628 Fine Arts Bldg.
LOUDON The Jennette Studios
614 Fine Arts Bldg.
LYCEUM ARTS Conservatory (Phone Har. 2074)
622 Fine Arts Building
MANDY STUDIO Violin and Piano
413 Kimball Hall
M. A. MONZEL Musical College
Kimball Hall
MEDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY (Carrie Scott (Dir)
McChurg Bldg. (Tel. Harrison 5366)

Morningside Conservatory Sioux City, Iowa
Orwin A. M.
NATIONAL CONSERVATORY Walter Spry, Dir.
712 Fine Arts Bldg.
NEW ENGLAND Conservatory of Music
Boston, Mass.
NORTHWESTERN University School of Music
Evanston, Ill.
ORCHARD School of Music and Expression
1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
STEIN STUDIOS Music and Dramatic Art
55 Auditorium Bldg.
UNIVERSITY School of Music (W. Kimball, Dir.)
11th and R Sts., Lincoln, Neb.
VALPARAISO University School of Music
Valparaiso, Indiana
VILIM American Violin School,
Riverside, Ill.
VIRGIL Place Conservatory (New York)
42 W. 76th Street
WESTERN CONSERVATORY E. H. Scott, Pres.
1516 Maller's Bldg.
WOOD Mrs. Stanley (Voice and Piano)
69th St. and Westworth Av.

TEACHERS AGENCIES

ALBERT Teachers Agency
623 South Wahash Avenue
BABCOCK Charlotte (College-Church-Concert Agency)
Carnegie Hall, New York
BREWER Teachers Agency
Auditorium Building
CLARK Teachers Agency (Harrison 1277)
414 Steinway Hall
FISK Teachers Agency
28 East Jackson Boulevard
HEWETT BUREAU Kate Jordan Hewett (Tel. Wahash 5189)
627 Fine Arts Building
LAHEE Henry C. (218 Tremont St., Boston)
425 Fine Arts Building, Chicago
THURSTON Teachers Agency
623 South Wahash Avenue

THEORY

ANDERSEN Arthur Olaf (Home Phone H. P. 6783)
American Conservatory
BRADLEY Kenneth M.
Bush Temple Conservatory
BUTLER Lester S.
Worcester, Mass.
FROTHINGHAM Frances (Piano)
Columbia School of Music
GRAHAM A. Cyril (Tel. Harrison 2680)
509 Wabash Avenue
LUTKIN Peter C.
Evanston, Ill.
SOWERBY Leo (Harmony—Composition) 626 Fine
Arts Bldg. (Home Phone Normal 2045)
WATT Harmon H.
Kimball Hall
WRIGHTSON Herbert J. (Tel. Wahash 6293)
20 E. Jackson Blvd.

VIOLIN

BARRON Robert Louis (Phone Superior 815)
Studio, 226 E. Ontario St.
BOURSTIN Arkady. (New York)
Management Haensel and Jones
BECKER Ludwig
Columbia School of Music
BROKAW Ralph
Wichita, Kas.
BURKHOLDER Raymond
Streator, Ill.
BURTON Charlotte (Bloomington, Ill.)
1806 E. Grove St.
CEDARGREEN Minnie (Phone Monticello 2072)
4220 Kimball Av.
CLEOPHAS Cornelia
Kensett, Ia.
COE Lacy (Phone Wahash 8324)
730 Fine Arts Building
DOLEJSI Robert (Birmingham, Ala.)
Southern School of Musical Art
DRAKE Earl R.
84 Auditorium Bldg.
FLESCH Carl (New York)
Management Haensel and Jones
FISCHEL Max I.
810 Fine Arts Bldg.
FREDERICKS Aage (Tolhurst)
106 Central Park West, New York
FROSOLONO Antonio
4315 Oakwald Av.
GINSBERG Ralph (Tel. Wahash 8335)
Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall
GOLDBLATT Manrice H.
Chicago Musical College
GOLDMAN Alfred
610 Fine Arts Bldg.
GREEN Albert (Dir. Violin Dept.)
41 Auditorium, Tel. Wahash 612
HATHAWAY Sigrid Janson (Phone Graceland 6054)
1849 Eddy St.
HEIZER Frederick (Sioux City, Ia.)
Heizer School of Music
ITTE Fritz (Chicago Symphony Orchestra)
1225 Morse Av. (Phone Rogers Park 6694)
KOHLER Franz (Oberlin, Ohio)
Oberlin College Conservatory
KORTSCHAK Hugo (Tel. Hyde Park 6498)
718 Fine Arts Building
LIPSCHULTZ George Milton (Tel. Seeley 4074)
1117 S. California Av.
MARTINSON Melvin
409 Kimball Hall
MIXER Charles Mitchell, Kimball Hall,
American Conservatory
MUSIN Ovide (Virtuoso)
51 West 78th St., New York
PFEIFFER-MOSES Doris (Violin and Voice)
1803 E. 68th St.
PREISER Albert Leo, (Austin-Chicago)
630 North Pine Ave.
ROEDER Edward (Phone 504-M Blue Island)
Roeder, American Violin School
SCHULTE Karl (Chicago Musical College)
Res. 2021 W. Adams St. (Tel. West 2659)
SEBALD Alexander
4821 Lake Park Avenue
SPALDING Albert (New York)
1439 Aeolian Hall
STECKELBERG Carl Frederic (Lincoln, Neb.)
University School of Music
WHITE Roderick (New York)
Management Charles Wagner
WOODWORTH Mabel (Phone Kedzie 7937)
American Conservatory
YOST Gaylord
Indianapolis Conservatory
UHE Arthur E. (Bethany College)
Lindsborg, Kansas
VIOLONCELLO
HESS Hans (Phone Lincoln 7917)
American Conservatory
SEARCH Frederick F.
437 Fifth Av., New York
VAN VLIET Cornelius (Minneapolis)
228, 10th St.

VOICE

ARENDT Else Harthan (Tel. Normal 1408)
5742 Calumet Av.
ALLEN Leonora A. (Ann Arbor Michigan)
University School of Music
ARESONI Enrico (Tenor)
705 Ashland Boulevard
ARKWELL Wm. J. (Basso-Cantante)
Worcester, Mass.
ARCANGELI Studios (Phone Wahash 6629)
300 Athenaeum Bldg.
BACHMAN Ella. (Balatka Academy of Musical Art)
40 Auditorium Bldg. (Tel. Wahash 612)
BAILEY Mr. and Mrs. Herbert (Phone Wahash 5595)
6557 Ingleside Avenue
BALDWIN Jessie Nichols (Home Phone Douglas 6811)
Orchard School, 1535 Hyde Park Boul.
BARRADELL Kennard
416 Kimball Hall
BAXTER David. (Tel. Superior 8700)
Bush Temple Conservatory.
BEARD William
825 Fine Arts Bldg.
BECK Emma Bruce (Phone Harrison 2580)
Columbia School of Music
BECK Alma (Cincinnati, Ohio)
249 Mc Cormick Place
BEEBE Agnes Leist
604 McClure Building
BEEMAN Bertha (Evanston, Ill.)
Northwestern University School of Music
BENDER Blanche Hammond
Rochelle, Ill.
BENEDICT Ethel Gelstweit (Phone O. P. 3421-R)
6120 Pleasant St., Oak Park (Accompanist)
BERGEY Theodore S. (Tel. Harrison 1636)
430 Fine Arts Building
BINGHAM Helena (Care Music News)
Western address, Garfield, Colo.
BISPHAM David
44 W. 44th St., New York
BOEPLER Wm., 929 Edgecomb Pl. (Res. Tel. Graceland 8751)
714 Kimball Hall
BOLLMAN Mande Fenlon
Oak Lodge, Rockford, Ill.
BORROFF Albert (Phone Wahash 6021)
Kimball Hall
BOWMAN Mrs. Hatswell (Evanston, Ill.)
Northwestern University School of Music
BRACKEN Mrs. W. S. (Auditorium)
Cosmopolitan School of Music
BRAINARD Ralph. (Tel. Irving 8188)
8833 N. Kostner Ave.
BRAUN Anna C. (Phone Seeley 2780)
2764 Wilcox Avenue
BRIGHT-BENGEL Helen (Phone Wentworth 3886)
(Ernest L. Briggs, Manager)
BRENNEMAN Hedwig (Sop.) Tel. Evanston 2268
Northwestern School of Music
BRINES M. J. (Tenor)
1117 E. 64 Place (Phone Midway 3490)
BROCK Collins J. (Tel. Superior 3428)
1887 N. Dearborn St.
BROWN Helen Aye
Valparaiso Ind.
BROWN Marguerite Manierre (Tel. Superior 4740)
(Mezzo Soprano) 1510 Dearborn Parkway
BUCKINGHAM Adah Bryant (Tel. Blackstone 1577)
(Contralto, Teacher) 5727 Kenwood Av.
BURDICK Sara (Tel. Wahash 8852)
727 Fine Arts Bldg.
BURNHAM Cardon V. (Tel. Wahash 5020)
5407 Dorchester Av.
BURTON Louise, (Phone Drexel 8182)
620 Fine Arts Building
BURTON Beecher (Mgt. Harriet M. Snow)
64 E. Van Buren St.
BUTLER Hanna (Tel. Wahash 4870)
512 Fine Arts (Soprano)
CALKINS Elton (Tenor)
1209 Morse Av., Tel. Rogers Park 2928
CARPENTER A. Ray (Tel. Wahash 8700)
715 Kimball Hall
CARTER S. E., Central Holiness University
University Park, Oskaloosa, Iowa
CASE Harriet
Auditorium Bldg.
CEASERO Marie (Tenor)
Bethlehem, Pa.
CHILSON-OHRMAN Soprano (4203 Sheridan Road)
Mgt. Maurice Fulcher
CLARKE Katherine M. (Contralto) Milwaukee
Wis. Conservatory of Music, Tel. Main 752
CLARKE Edw., 819 Kimball Hall (Phone Harrison 631)
Residence Phone, Edgewater 9133)
CLARK Dr. Frederick
83 Auditorium Building
CLARK Marie White (Tel. Evanston 3398-R)
825 Kimwood Av., Evanston, Ill.
CLIFFORD William (Tenor) Phone Hyds Park 4400)
CLISSOLD Edward T., 327 S. La Salle St., (Baritone)
Dir. Men's Fall Festival Ochorus, 1928-14
COFFEY Kate (Phone Austin 11448)
122 S. Waller Av. and 621 Kimball Hall
COOLEY Sydney Smith (Contralto)
6310 Magnolia Av. Tel. Sunnyside 5080
CLIPPINGER D. A.
410 Kimball Hall
COLLINS Frank H. (Tel. Midway 6676)
5627 Blackstone Av.
CONGDON Ethel M. (Soprano, Teacher)
721 Fine Arts Bldg. (Phone Diversey 3537)
COOK Dwight Edrus (Boise, Idaho)
Boise Conservatory of Music
COOK John Loring (Tenor)
800 Steinhay Hall. (Phone Harrison 5118)
CORY Alice (Painesville, O.)
Lake Erie College
CORLEW Mabel (Contralto)
3258 Drexel Blvd., (Phone Drexel 4674)
CORRIGAN Ella O'Neal (Tel. Blackstone 1677)
614 Stony Island Avenue
CRAFT Marcella (M. H. Hanson)
437 Fifth Ave. New York
CRAVEN Carl E. (Tenor) 428 Fine Arts Bldg.
305 E. 54th St. (Phone Oakland 6461)
DAHLSTROM Margaret (Western Conservatory)
1516 Maller's Bldg.
DAVIS Ernest J. (Tenor Third Presbyterian Church)
7345 Rogers Av. (Tel. R. P. 3940)
DENTON Dan S.
Chicago Musical College
DELAMATER Ruhee Wilson
Fourth Presbyterian Church
DIEDERICH Walter A. (Home Phone Kedzie 8977)
608 Fine Arts Bldg.
DEVRIES Herman
518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.
DE YOUNG Richard B.
American Conservatory
DOAK Saha (Tel. Superior 2630)
Plaza Hotel
DOBYNS Mrs. Fletcher (Tel. Superior 4358)
(Mezzo-Soprano) 67 E. Develion St.

THE MUSIC NEWS

DONATH Kurt (Tenor)
426 Fine Arts Bldg.

D'ORSAY Katharine (Phone Englewood 9748)
408 Merrick Bldg. and 61 Auditorium

DOSTAL George (New York)
Management, R. E. Johnston

DOWNING Frederica Gerhardt (Phone Oak Park 1476)
203 S. Harvey Avenue, Oak Park, Ill.

DUFAU Jennie (Coloratura Soprano)
Auditorium Hotel

DUNFORD Frank M. (Bass). Phone Kedzie 8810
710 South Central Park Avenue

DUNHAM Edna (New York)
131 W. 81st Street

EDMUNDS-HEMINGWAY Clara (Entertainer)
568 Madison St., Gary, Ind.

EGAN J. Parnell (Tenor) Tel. Ravenswood 6164
1351 Granville Av.

ELLISON Edna H.
512 Fine Arts Bldg.

ENGLISH Jane (Soprano)
224 E. 60th Street

FANNELL Thomas A. (Tenor) Tel. R. P. 2747
1666 Farwell Av.

FANNING Cecil (Dayton, Ohio)
H. B. Turpin, Manager

FISH - GRIFFEN Minnie (Tel. Graceland 4746)
4332 Vista Terrace

FREEMAN Ida Belle, 523 Fine Arts Bldg
6308 W. Ohio St., (Contraalto)

FRENCH Nelba Mae (Violin)
5632 Wayne Av. (Tel. Edgewater 8322)

FRIDENBERG Abbie L. (New York)
Studio 110 Carnegie Hall

FRIEL Myrtle (Phone Oak Park 716)
53 Auditorium Bldg.

GALE Bernella Newby
Fine Arts Building

GALLAGHER Madeline (Phone Kedzie 4886)
3435 Flournoy St.

GANNON Rose Lulliger
716 Kimball Hall

GARDNER Ida (Contraalto) New York
Cbg. Walter Anderson 171 W. 57

GAY Maria (New York)
Management R. E. Johnston

GREULICH Anna Breining (Tel. Austin 6561)
4706 Park Av.

GROW Ethel (London, England)
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater, W.

GROFF-BRYANT Anna, (Institute of Vocal Art)
523 Fine Arts Bldg

HADLEY Grant (Britone)
Auditorium Building

HALL R. Jefferson (Denver)
Denham Theater Building

HALL William John (St. Louis)
Musical Art Building

HAMILTON Jessie Mack (Phone Ravenswood 326)
6367 Winthrop Av.

HAMILTON James (Tenor) Phone Evan on 1816
Box 203, Evanston, Ill.

HARRIS Milton K. Home Phone Garfield 3915
521 Kimball Hall

HARRISON Theodore (New York)
Mgt. M. H. Hanson

HARTER Agnes Hansel (Tel. O. P. 3619R)
648 Woodbine Ave. Oak Park, Ill.

HARTMAN Lucy J. (2422 South Lawndale Ave.)
Contraalto (Phone Lawndale 1767)

HEDGCOXE John G. (Tel. Superior 1165)
(Tenor) 1012 N. Dearborn Av.

HERDIEN Mabel Sharp
5132 Kenmore Ave.

HESS Elizabeth Ferguson, (Tel. Rogers Park 5968)
622 Rogers Avenue

HICKISCH Anna (Soprano)
LaCrosse, Wisconsin

HIGHSMITH-LYDING Mary (Tel. Midway 2928)
5422 Ellis Av.

HILLEBRAND Katherine (Coloratura Soprano)
1144 Diversey Parkway (Tel. Grac. 1733)

HINSHAW Marvin (Baritone)
Kimball Hall

HINSHAW William Wade (New York)
Metropolitan Opera Company

HOLMQUIST Gustaf (Harry Culbertson)
304 Kimball Hall

HOLT George Nelson
509 S. Washash Ave.

HOPKINS Jessie Lynde (Knox College)
Galesburg, Ill.

HOLSTMAN Orpha Kendall (4640 Lake Avenue)
419 Fine Arts Building

HOSTETTER Hildred Hanson (Tel. O. P. 3126)
715 Forest Av. Oak Park, Ill.

HOSTLER Eleanor Capps (Phone Austin 13737)
5886 Washington Blvd.

HOUSTON Beulah L. (61 Auditorium Bldg.)
Drake School of Music

HUGHES T. Francis (Phone Blackstone 2306)
6349 Ellis Avenue

HUNTLEY Hazel (Phone Harrison 6380)
609 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUTTER C. A. (Home Phone 4287)
626 Kimball Hall

INGRAM Frances (Orchestra Hall)
Mgt. Shaw and Tucker

IREDALE Bertha Smart (Phone Englewood 8800)
357 W. 63rd St.

JOHNSON Ada Grace (Ann Arbor, Michigan)
University School of Music

JOHNSON Jennie F. W. (Phone Drexel 5104)
4937 Michigan Ave.

JONES Ethel Edith (Tel. Lincoln 4030)
Columbia School of Music

JONES Edith Maldwyn (Tel. Evanston 5267)
820 Foster St. Evanston Ill.

KASTHOLM-DARCIE Gertrude (Tel. Austin 856)
(Contraalto) 9th floor Aud'tm Bldg.

KANBERG Alfred A. (Tel. Wabash 8867)
(Tenor) 51 Auditorium Bldg.

KAUFMANN Alfred (New York)
Century Opera House

KEYES Margaret (New York)
2609 Broadway

KILBY Lemuel W. (Phone Ravenswood 7201)
528 Fine Arts Bldg. (Phone West 2319)

KIMBELL Grant (Tenor)
809 E. 49th St. (Tel. Drexel 8519)

KORRER Elsbeth (Tel. Lincoln 703)
Residence 2464 Diana Court

KORTZENBORN George F. (Tel. Irving 1985)
4784 Springfield Av.

KRAUSE E. Louise (Soprano)
Hinsaw Conservatory (Tel. Wabash 8335)

KREIDLER Louis (Tel. Kenwood 627)
4051 Calumet Av.

KRUM Mrs. Charles (Tel. Drexel 2936)
621 Fine Arts Building

KURTZ Mr. and Mrs. J. H. (Tel. Stewart 838)
324 Kimball Hall

LANGER Ora Padgett (Phone B)
1899 E. 52nd St.

LASH De Witt Durgin (Phone Harrison 6385)
420 Fine Arts Bldg

LAYFIELD Mabel B. (Phone Douglas 6294)
3633 Grand Boul

LE BARON Louise 249 W 106th Street
New York City

LESTER Margaret Smith (Tel. Midway 8888)
1510 E. 52nd Street

LEWIS Maude (Phone Oakland 965)
(Soprano) Cosmopolitan School of Music

LIBBERTON Cora (Soprano)
1839 Hammond St. (Tel. Diversey 8895)

LIGHTHALL Mrs. Marie (Tel. Diversey 1613)
514 Deming Place

LIVENGOOD Charles E. (Bass-Baritone)
2226 W. Adams St. (Tel. Seeley 6802)

LONGMAN Marie White, (Contraalto)
1311 E. 63rd St

LOVE Mary Hotchkiss (Mezzo Sop. and Cond.)
Waukegan (Ill.), Cons. Tel. 740

LOVE Lola Lee (Contraalto)
512 Athenaeum (Tel. Harrison 4577)

LUND Rene S. (Baritone)
2463 W. Monroe Street (Phone Seeley 6602)

LUTTON Charles Edwin (Phone Blackstone 3384)
1222 East 65th Street

MACBETH Florence
Care, Music News

MACKAY Francis (Tel. Harde Park 677)
512 Kimball Hall

MacBURNIE Thomas
609 Fine Arts Building

MAITLAND Robert (New York)
125 W. 38rd Street

MATTESON Maurice (Tel. Rogers Park 9841)
(Baritone) 1705 Morse Avenue

McCULLOUGH Edith Ayers (Tel. O. P. 937)
467 N. Oak Park Av., Oak Park, Ill.

Mc GAW Winifred S. (Tel. Ravenswood 2306)
(Contraalto) 859 Lawrence Av.

McGREGOR Ada Josephine (Tel. LaGrange 94)
343 Fifth Av., LaGrange, Ill.

MacDERMID Sibyl Sammis (Phone Midway 1999)
620 Fine Arts Building

MacDONALD Nelle Damuth (Soprano)
3928 Greenview Av., Tel. Graceland 2011

MacLEISH Lillian (Phone Garfield 3566)
3422 Fulton Street

MENDSEN Dr. Thomas (Tel. Garfield 9036)
Western Conservatory, Mallers Bldg.

McGRANAHAN (TENOR) Thos. J. (Tel. Stewart 6328)
7219 Perry Avenue

MAGNUS Florence R. and Rudolph E.
616 Fine Arts Bldg.

MALLOY H. E. (Baritone) Hays, Kansas
Fort Hays Normal School

MANIERRE Julie (Tel. Superior 2287)
1807 Dearborn Parkway

MARCUSSON Grace Brune
609 Fine Arts Building

MEDINI F. Roena (School Vocal Art)
3769 Lake Park Av.

MEEKER Augusta Alberti (Tel. Wellington 1986)
419 Fine Arts Bldg.

MELCHER Ida (Soprano) Tel. Irving 13852
4775 Milwaukee Ave.

MEISSNER W. Otto (Milwaukee)
867 Shepard Av.

MILLER Alta (Mezzo Soprano) 1707 Hinman Ave.,
Evanston, Tel. Evanston 318

MILLER Christine
1003 Heberton Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

MILLER Herbert
716 Fine Arts Bldg

MILLER John B. (Tenor)
Chicago Musical College

MILLER Reed (New York City)
749 West End Avenue

MILLER Julian S. (Tenor) (Tel. Austin 7158)
5241 Washington Boulevard

MOGENSEN L. Drew
137 W. 4th A. Cincinnati O.

MOSHER Joel (Baritone)
1155 Belmont Ave

MOSSBERG S. W. (Los Angeles)
446 W. 40th Place

MOUNTZ Esther D. (Phone Austin 25813)
427 North Leclair Avenue

MUENSTERMANN Margaret Lawson (Detroit, Mich.)
428 Lothrop Av.

MULFORD George (Studio) Phone Wabash 7470
300 Athenaeum Bldg.

MUNRO Marie Stapleton (Soprano)
242 W. 103th St., New York City

MURRAY Lambert (New York)
Wolfsoln Bureau, 1 West 34th St.

MURPHY Ella La Forge (Soprano)
5000 Dorchester Av. (Phone Kenwood 4042)

MURPHY Eva (New York)
174 W. 76th Street

MYLOTT Marie (New York)
110 Carnegie Hall

NARELLE Naomi (Phone Kenwood 5350)
4621 Woodlawn Av.

NAZOR Hazel Dell, Soprano
Plymouth, Ind.

NEFF Agnes (Tel. Humboldt 5408)
2201 Cortez Street (721 Fine Arts Bldg.)

NERING John W. Tenor (New York)
330 W. 58th St. (Phone 1434 Columbus

NICHOLS H. Wilhelm (Phone LaGrange 1679)
44 6th Ave., LaGrange, Ill.

NORDIN Dorothy (Phone Oakland 5508)
4137 Drexel Blvd.

NORTH Nora Loraine, 524 Kimball Hall
Res., 321 Lake St., Oak Park, Phone O. P. 2724

OLIN W. H. (Tel. Seeley 1147)
2112 Washington Blvd.

OWENS Margaret (Tel. Seeley 1147)
(Soprano) 2112 Washington Boul.

OWENS Annette (Phone Wabash 4905)
519 Kimball Hall

PANGBOURNE Grace Dickinson (Tel. Lincoln 4208)
2619 Hampden Court

PATTERSON Helen Edith (Tel. Ravenswood 2513)
(Contraalto) 5223 Wayne Av.

PETERSON Florence J. (Tel. Wabash 8998)
(Soprano) 606 Fine Arts Bldg.

PETTINGER Mildred (Soprano)
131 N. Parkside Avenue, (Tel. Austin 965)

PILLINGER Esther (Phone Oakland 3240)
4178 Lake Park Av.

PLUMB Arthur F. (Tenor) Tel. Harrison 2074
523 Fine Arts Bldg

PLATZ J. Lakin (Tel. Midway 7668)
917 E. 56th St.

PORTER Mildred (Contraalto) (New York)
Wolfsoln Musical Bureau, 1 W. 34th St.

POTTER Howard E. (Telephone Midway 4175)
5434 Woodlawn Avenue

PRESTON Warren E., 419 Fine Arts Bldg.
Tel. Maywood 1615, Res. 1015 S. 3rd Av.

PROCTOR Daniel
810 Fine Arts Bldg

PROTHOROE Constance (New York)
400 Riverside Drive

PURDY Edward H. (Tel. Ravenswood 689)
Columbia School of Music

QUINN Sanford
419 Fine Arts Bldg.

RANKL John R. (Phone Harrison 8880)
809 Fine Arts Building

READ Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Normal 1878), Kimball Hall (Tel.

RICE Charibelle (Home Phone, Edgewater 4280)
Cosmopolitan School of Music

RICHARDSON Isabel (Mezzo-Soprano,
4536 Sheridan Rd. (Tel. Edgewater 2079)

RICHARDSON John Allen (Tel. Oakland 8185)
St. Paul's Church

RIHELDAFFER Grace Hall (Pittsburgh, Pa.)
624 8th Av.

RINEBOLD Helen (Contraalto) Phone Drexel 2518
413 Kimball Hall, 4409 Greenwood Av

ROBBINS Mrs. Charles (Soprano)
1372 E. 62nd Street

ROMSDAHL Mildred Irene (Tel. Humboldt 1007)
2155 Pierce Av.

RONEY Henry B. (Coach, Lecturer)—specializes boys voices, 555 Wellington Av. (Tel. Graceland 6912)

ROSS Mrs. Edna McDevitt (Phone Stewart 677)
7206 Stewart Ave.

ROUSE Charles (Home Tel. Superior 5711)
712 Fine Arts Bldg

RUGGLES May Sleeper (Contraalto)
Principal, Liederheim, Auburndale, Mass.

RUSSELL L. Douglas (Phone Stewart 6285)
719 Fine Arts Bldg.

RUSSELL Mrs. Estelle L. (Phone Garfield 8448)
3100 Lexington St.

RYAN Millie (Omaha, Neb.)
111 S. 35th St.

SALMON Bessie Talbot (Soprano) Teacher
201 Clarendon St., Boston

SCHUTZ G. Magnus (Phone Harrison 2256)
712 Fine Arts Bldg.

SCHWICKERATH Jos. A. (Musical Director)
(Baritone) 53 Auditorium Bldg.

SCHUSTER Katherine
71 Auditorium Bldg.

SCHUMANN-HEINK Ernestine (New York)
Wolfsoln Bureau

SCOFIELD Mrs. W. C. (Phone Harrison 469)
528 Kimball Hall

SCOTT Ivy (New York)
St. Francis Hotel

SLADE Louise Harrison (Contraalto)
1205 N. State St. (Tel. Superior 5718)

SLATTERY Margaret (Soprano)
4053 Michigan Av.

SMIDT Mable Corlew (Phone Austin 10273)
5822 W. Ohio St.

SMITH Lucia May (Tel. Stewart 3378)
7019 Stewart Av.

SMITH Wm. Griswold (Tenor)
Studio 6765 Perry Avenue

SPEARIN Jane Polson (Phone Wellington 7738)
2501 Cullum Avenue

SPOONER Philip (New York)
Mgt. Renard, 216 West 70th

STANLEY Helen (New York)
M. H. Hanson, 437 Fifth Av.

STAUD Elsa
Chicago Musical College

STEELE Mary Hinman
603 Kimball Hall

STEELE Martha S. (Pittsburgh)
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts.

STEIN Karl Buren (Phone Wabash 9070)
55 Auditorium Bldg.

STEVENS Nelda Hewitt (Tel. Wellington 7879)
500 Diversey Parkway

STEVENSON Lucille (Tel. Oakland 1570)
4335 Ellis Avenue

STEWART Cameron (Tenor)
76 Auditorium Bldg. (Tel. 2790 Midway)

STRIBLEN Louise Mathews
625 Fine Arts Bldg.

STULTS Walter A. (Evanston) 322 Kimball Hall
Northwestern University School of Music

STULTS Monica Graham
Columbia School of Music

SUNDELINUS Marie (Mgt. Gertrude F. Cowen)
1451 Broadway, New York.

TENNEY Mr. and Mrs. George L.
Lewis Institute, Phone West 793

THATCHER Burton (Baritone)
Chicago Musical College

THOMAS Mr. and Mrs. (Baritone-Soprano)
5355 Lake Park Avenue

THOMSON Mary Peck (Res. Phone Drexel 4418)
620 Fine Arts Building

TODD Ernest O. (Tenor) Phone Edgewater 3765
Bush Temple Conservatory

TOWNS E. Kirk
612 Fine Arts Bldg.

TROWBRIDGE J. B. (Tenor, Conductor, Lecturer)
813 N. La Salle St. (Tel. Superior 8600)

TUCKER Carlile F. (Baritone)
82 Auditorium Bldg. (Phone Wabash 9007)

TUFTS Ben O. (Phone Harrison 7949)
423 Kimball Hall

VAN SWERINGEN Howard (Tel. Wabash
614 Fine Arts Bldg.)

VER HAAR Edna Swanson (Tel. Blackstone 2189)
5541 Drexel Av.

VERLET Allee (New York)
Management M. H. Hanson 437 Fifth Av.

WALKER Edward (Phone Midway 2358)
1118 E. 65th St.

WARNER Marjorie Dodge (Phone Sunnyside 7127)
810 Lakeside Place

WATAHWASO Princess (Tel. Drexel 3463)
5355 Lake Park Avenue

WEAVER Iva Bigelow, Fine Art Building
Mary Wood Chase School.

WEBSTER Frank B.
719 Kimball Hall

WEEKS Charles E. (Tel. Highland Park 927)
71 Auditorium (Basso)

WEGENER Mme. Justine
Bush Temple Conservatory

WESTERVELT Louise St. John (Phone North
Columbia School of Music

WING Eloise Hilton (Soprano), (Phone Rogers Park 1607)
709 Fine Arts Bldg.

WILLETT Wm. A. (Vocal Studio)
516 Kimball Hall

WILLIAMS Dr. Carver
Auditorium Bldg

WILLIAMS H. Evan
Akron, Ohio

WILSON Jean (Contraalto)
41 Auditorium Bldg. (Tel. Wabash 612)

WITHERS-BIGGS Lora (Tel. Norma
510 E. 62nd Street

WYCOFF Eva Emmet
607 W. 187 St. New York

WYNN Bessie (New York)
110 Carnegie Hall

YAHN Marie 949 Lakeside Place
Tel. Ravenswood 2319

ZENATELLO Giovanni (New York)
Management R. E. Johnston

ZENDT Marie Sidenius (Phone Wilmette 849 R)
719 Park Avenue, Wilmette, Ill.

PEOPLE who love music and respect piano-culture, take no chances, restricting very wisely their choice to the little group of great instruments dominated by

The Baldwin Piano

To play great music beautifully, flawless tone is as necessary as are pure colors to the painting of a Carnegie prize-winner.

Between the tone-resources of the "commercial" and the "artistic" piano, there is a world of space—wide, often as between the mouth-organ improvisations of a pickaninny on a rail fence and any musical performance of an artist.

The tone-beauty of the Baldwin Piano—famous in recital and symphony concert—exerts a new charm in the closely drawn circle of the home. Warm, imaginative, full of color—like a Sembrich folk-song, it seems in its power to touch the feeling.

We would be pleased to have you see and hear the Baldwin Piano, at our store, or to mail you a catalogue upon request.

The Baldwin Piano Co.

323 South Wabash Avenue

CHICAGO

In the BALDWIN MANUALO, the Player Piano that is all but human, we offer the successful unification of the most artistic piano, with the most scientific player action made in the world. There is absolutely nothing better, nothing more perfect on the market, neither as a piano nor as a player piano.

New, "Love's Eternity," male voices, funerals, 15 cents; a dainty lyric, "A Sigh," 27 cents. "A Darkies' Lullaby," 15 cents. Good music for good singers, by

LESTER S. BUTLER

TEACHER OF SINGING

Harmony and Counterpoint by Mail if desired
Correction of Vocal Faults a Specialty
Musical Mss. Edited

Boston and Worcester
Editor and Critic for Music News and
Pacific Coast Musician.

Steinert Hall, Boston, Mass.
Day Building, Worcester,
Mass.

S. HARRISON LOVEWELL

TEACHER OF PIANO, ORGAN and HARMONY

Lectures and Lecture Recitals (Circular at Request)
Modern Harmony by Correspondence

Studios: 9 Bartlett Av., Arlington

30 Steinert Hall, Boston

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

Summer School of Music
June 21 to July 31, 1915

IN ADDITION to private private teaching in Piano, Organ, Violin, or Voice the school offers a special course in Piano Teaching Methods which outlines definite systems of instruction with copious teaching material for both elementary and advanced pupils. A six weeks' course with 72 hours of instruction in piano methods, harmony, musical analysis and history of music for twenty-five dollars. Private lessons extra. Evanston is the most beautiful residential city in the West, on the shores of Lake Michigan, a half hour from the heart of Chicago.

Send for Summer Bulletin, also Bulletin of Summer School of Liberal Arts and School of Oratory

Secretary School of Music, Evanston, Ill.

For Young Students and Amateurs

NOVELLO'S Elementary Music Manuals

No. 2.—Price, 75c

Harmoni ng Melodies

Book 1

BY CUTHBERT HARRIS

After the Elements of Harmony; this book will be found most valuable in developing a musical instinct in the important matter of choice of choral progression, and in developing it throughout the earliest stages. Additional exercises are given in

Book 7.—Harmonizing Melodies,
Price, 25c

Use with the following manuals

Book 1.—Part Writing for Beginners, by
J. W. Ivimey, Price, 25c.

Book 10.—Composition of Simple Melodies, by R. T. White, price, 75c.

SPECIAL OFFER

The above Four Books, sent Postpaid for $1.50

The H. W. GRAY CO.

2 West 45th St.

New York, N. Y.

Sole Agents for

NOVELLO & CO. LTD.

Music News Is Read

BY PRACTICALLY

All Chicago Musicians

EVERY WEEK

If Your Name is not on the Mailing List it ought to be.
Subscription is Two Dollars for Fifty-Two Copies.

